RANGER MUST BUILD THAT JUNIOR COLLEGE

BUSINESS MEN OPEN CAMPAIGN AT BIG DINNER

Approximately Half of Amount Needed Raised for the Institution

With approximately half the amount needed to insure the Central West Texas Junior college subscribed at the dinner in the Gholson hotel Wednesday night, and the board of trustees named for the first year coupled with the appointment of live wire committees from the various clubs working in the interest of the institution, it will not be a great while before the college will be a reality and the dream of R. F. Holloway, superintendent of the schools and M. H. Hagaman, John Gholson and Dr. L. C. G. Buchanan come true.

The dinner at which the money was raised and the junior college proposition put up was attended by representative citizens and business men. Every line of endeavor was had a representative in attendance. Speeches were made by R. F. Holloway, who presented the detail of the cost and how to obtain the junior college, Rev. A. W. Hall of the Methodist church of its value to the community, Dr. L. C. G. Buchanan on various phases of the college, M. H. Hagaman on its general need in the cause of education, Dr. J. A. Shackelford and others.

In his talk, R. F. Holloway told of the costs to obtain the college and how it would become accredited. He said, the expenses connected with the establishment of a college here would be little, because of the equipment now on hand.

'CANDY KID' MUST HANG FOR MURDER

BEVERLY FARMS, Mass., Aug. 12.—Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes of the United States supreme court, today refused to interfere in the case of Richard Reese Whitmore, who is sentenced to be hanged immediately after midnight tonight in the Maryland state penitentiary in Baltimore. Immediately after the announcement, E. L. Pendleton, the negro attorney representing Whitmore, who came here to ask for a writ of error from Justice Holmes, said that he would not go to any other member of the supreme court. He said he could do no more to prevent the execution of Whitmore.

Whitmore was convicted of murder of a federal penitentiary guard in making an escape from the Baltimore prison. He was known in the underworld as the "candy kid" bandit. He had been serving a term for violating the federal laws. He was brought to Baltimore for trial following the failure of a jury in Buffalo, N. Y., to come to an agreement, where he was tried for murder on the charge of murder in connection with a hold-up.

Mexican Workers Parade to Show Loyalty to Calles

Here is the first picture to reach this country of the great demonstration in Mexico City staged by the Mexican Federation of Labor, showing the massed thousands of laboring men marching through the capital bearing banners calling for the support of President Calles in his conflict with the Roman Catholic Church. This picture was taken in the great plaza, in front of Mexico City's famous cathedral.

5 MEN TRAPPED IN MINE ARE RESCUED ALIVE

SALEM, Ky., Aug. 12.—Five stoical Kentucky miners trapped for almost a week in the chilly blackness of a mine pocket, today belittled their experiences after being rescued alive after five days and six nights of frantic labor. The men were led out of the old mine shaft in which they were imprisoned by the fall of a rock at 7:15 o'clock this morning.

George Catullo fell in the inky blackness Sunday night and wrenched his back. A chill followed his injury and his four companions forgetting their own discomfort literally covered him with their bodies to ward off catching cold they feared might end in death. Catullo was taken to the hospital shortly after he was brought out of the mine in spite of his protests. It is believed the injury to his back is not serious and he will recover.

DEMPSEY WILL FIGHT ON SEPT 16

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—The state boxing commission today approved a bout between Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney to take place Sept. 16 at the stadium here and notified the license bureau that he had complied with all the rules and should be granted a license.

The commission's action came on a record two to one vote with Commissioners Muldoon and George Brower favoring the bout and Chairman James A. Farley registering a protest.

After the committee meeting, Dempsey and Paddy Mullins, manager of Harry Wills, the negro challenger for the heavyweight title, almost came to blows. Friends seized the arms of both men as they drew back for a punch after a heated argument.

Ford Trophy

This silver trophy, the gift of Edsel Ford, will go to the winner of the airplane reliability tour, which will start at Detroit August 7. The tour is expected to develop commercial aviation.

7 INJURED IN BLAZE AT GAS PLANT

BRECKENRIDGE, Aug. 12.—Seven men are in the hospital here suffering from serious burns as a result of a fire in the still room of the Breckenridge Gasoline company's plant, a mile south of here, Tuesday night about 9 o'clock. One of the men may be fatally burned.

No explosion attended the accident, vapors from a leaky manhole, which the crew was engaged in correcting at the time, taking fire from some undetermined reason, neither of the stills being fired at the time.

The injured are: R. C. Myers, yard man, reported more seriously injured than any of those sustaining burns. Stewart Cate, plant superintendent.

W. J. Palk, yard foreman. N. C. Graham, "gasolite" operator. J. D. Grimes, plant operator. George Walker, daylight yard man. Joe Russell, daylight yard man.

OLDEN POOL IN THE LIMELIGHT WITH PRODUCER

The Olden field sprang again into the limelight when news was rumored that the Harris No. 12 was one foot in the pay sand at 7 o'clock this morning and that the boiler had been moved back, preparatory to drilling in, which will be done this afternoon. This looks like a real well, according to reports.

The Harris well is at the end of Magnolia avenue, near the railroad, and is an offset to the Butler lease, which was bought by the Conway brothers of Ranger last week from Barker, Adams and Boyd. Conway brothers are rigging up now and will spud in shortly.

Low Teatsorth deep well drilling at 3,040 feet, has encountered the Cadde lime and as soon as the drill goes through this they will put in five-inch casing.

A well that has been watched with more than the usual amount of interest, on account of its proximity to the road, and its long period of drilling known as Ford No. 5, is still having casing trouble, but will go on through when that is adjusted.

It is reported that Teatsorth is rigging up on the Parton north of town, which lease is adjacent to the Harris lease.

Th Parsons field still holds a big center in the stage of oil operations. Its No. 6 of the Gulf Production company came in late Monday with a flush production around 200 barrels daily. Two other wells in this pool were due to be drilled in today.

Harry Shinholt of Eastland, drilling on the Fox, got a gasser Saturday, when he shot his well, but little showing of oil. They are still optimistic.

Former Ranger Woman Dies In El Paso, Texas

Mrs. Charles De Groff, owner of the De Groff Hotel and other property in Ranger, died in El Paso, yesterday. Mrs. De Groff was appointed on the Texas Tech Board by Pat Neff during his administration as governor, and has served on it continuously since that time.

Mrs. De Groff, having lived here during Ranger's boom day, leaving here in the late part of 1920, had many friends in Ranger, who will learn with regret of her demise.

DISTURBANCES ARE SERIOUS IN INTERIOR

Two Priests Are Killed And 27 to 30 Injured During The Rioting

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 12.—Archbishop Jose Moray del Rio, the aged leader of the Catholics in Mexico, may be summoned before legal authorities on charges of sedition in violating a clause of the new religious laws.

Secretary of Interior Alberto Tejeda has ordered the attorney general to examine a recent statement given by the archbishop to the New York World to determine whether the prelate expressed the sentiment violation the prohibition against members of the clergy criticizing the acts of the government and the laws of Mexico. If the attorney general finds the utterances to be seditious he will summon the archbishop for a preliminary hearing.

Seize Church Property. The Mexican government has announced its plans to take over the church property held in the name of individuals as well as by churches themselves and add fuel to the flames that are already burning, according to Catholic leaders.

In the meantime, the Catholics are working their boycott all over the nation and have sent priests in all the interior points to rouse the faithful. Workers are going among the Indians to arouse them. Every possible method that can be used is being used by the church.

Holding Firm. President Calles and the administration are holding their own and are firm. They maintain that the state has gained a victory and are prepared to meet any emergency that may arise.

Information was received here Wednesday to the effect that 27 Catholic priests and between 27 and 30 Catholic citizens were executed on charges of heading an uprising growing out of the religious situation. The information came from Archbishop Leopold Ruiz y Flores who has just arrived from Michoacan.

Archbishop said the disturbances occurred in the states of Michoacan and Guanajuato. The battle between the soldiers and citizens lasted for a day in the town of Zahuayo Michoacan. The bishop estimated that probably 50 persons were killed in the battle. The other two towns where the disturbances occurred were Acambaro and Irapuato in the State of Guanajuato.

MY MISSION SUCCESSFUL, ANDREWS

NEW YORK, August 12.—Back from seeking co-operation of foreign nations in the war on liquor smuggling, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lincoln C. Andrews, in charge of prohibition enforcement, conferred with Federal officials here today about the New York situation.

It was expected he would be given an official report on rum running and bootlegging campaign begun here and in other cities during his absence.

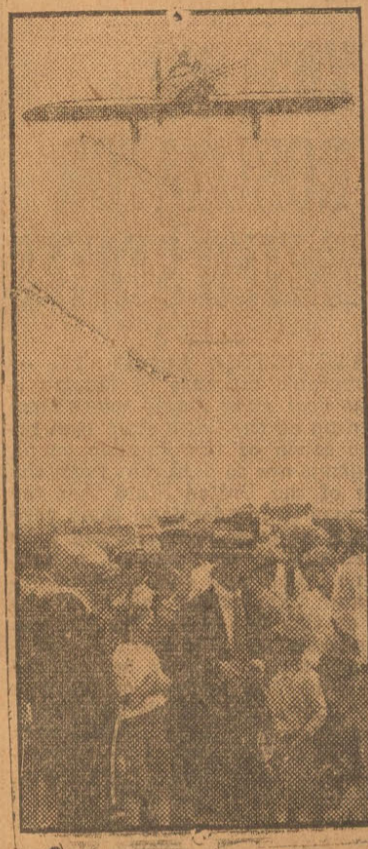

Andrews declared his mission abroad was "125 per cent successful." He predicted the bootlegging business would be cut in half by the co-operation of the British government.

Arkansa Mob Lynches Black; Killed Officer

LEWISVILLE, Ark., Aug. 12.—Quiet reigned today following the lynching late yesterday of George Powell, a negro slayer of Deputy Sheriff James Dooley of LaFayette county.

When the deputy went to arrest the negro for wife beating he was shot to death by Powell. A posse of 500 citizens was quickly formed and the negro's body was later found riddled with bullets.

Here is Henry Ford's "flivver airplane" on its maiden trip. Note how the pilot sits on the very top of everything.

CAMPAIGN WILL BE MAPPED OUT NEXT SATURDAY

AUSTIN, Aug. 12.—There is a probability that his detailed statement in regard to Mrs. Ferguson's announcement yesterday that she will continue in the race for the democratic gubernatorial nomination in the run-off primary Aug. 28, and that she will not resign, will not be issued until after the general conference of his leading supporters at Dallas, Saturday, was indicated by Attorney General Moody.

He announced that he would leave Austin Friday night for Dallas to attend the conference. The conference will draw Moody supporters from practically every county in Texas.

Former Gov. James E. Ferguson is to begin a speaking campaign in behalf of the governor next week, Guy Holcomb, Governor Ferguson's campaign manager announced, stating that the itinerary was being prepared and would be announced in a few days.

From the Moody forces it was learned that probably a speaking tour will be arranged for Moody to begin at the same time, and also for a number of his supporters. Practically the same ground that was gone over before will be covered again, but the big proposition will be the big issue.

It is planned for Moody to defend himself against the charges made by Ferguson regarding campaign donations.

While Moody will defend himself he also proposes to take the fight into the Ferguson strongholds and attack them because of the statements made by both the Ferguson on the hustings. The plan of the campaign will be mapped out at the Dallas meeting Saturday.

NO CHANGE OF VENUE IN NORRIS CASE

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 12.—Change of Venue in the trial of Dr. J. Frank Norris, charged with killing D. E. Chippis, July 17, in unlikely unless after the venire are questioned, it becomes apparent that a jury cannot be obtained. This was announced by the attorneys of the defense and prosecution, after the trial of the first Baptist pastor has been set for Nov. 1, in a conference of the attorneys.

If after exhausting the special venire men called, a jury cannot be obtained, it was said by the attorneys that the court may then change the place of the trial, but neither side is expected to ask such a change.

MOVIES MADE OF VETS IN PARADE BUSINESS STREET

Primitive Court Held On the Old Camping Ground Near Town

By RENA B. CAMPBELL. Menard was chosen for the 1927 meeting place for the Texas Ex-Rangers' association, at their morning session today. Abilene, Newcastle, and Johnson City were all competitors for the honor, but Menard carried a majority over all the other places.

W. W. Lewis of Menard a hardy Ex-Ranger, extended the invitation to the assembly and promised to give them "one good time."

Augmented by a number of late arrivals, the second day of the convention got well under way this morning, a business session, called to order at 10 o'clock by Major William Green, president of the association, having precedence over all arrangements.

Fifty-six have registered at noon today, with an occasional one or two eleventh hour guests dropping in.

Late arrivals are John T. Pope, Anson; Mrs. Oliver Wood, Dallas; C. C. Hight, Cisco; H. E. Conn, Floresville; Dr. S. H. Chilton, Texan; W. W. Lewis, Menard; A. G. Collins, San Angelo; C. M. Grady, Brownwood; W. R. Nixon, Ranger; J. W. Mayfield; Morgan Mills; T. S. Allen, Carbon; R. B. Moore, Mineral Wells; J. W. McCollum, Comanche; John Bui-nett, Menard.

Monument. The subject of the ranger monument was lightly touched on at the morning session when Major Green asked that a motion be made to make the Austin committee on the monument honorary members of the association, where they were not already members. This motion was made and carried.

At noon a luncheon was served at the American Legion hall, by the Lions club of Ranger, who served and looked after the welfare of their honored guests.

Movies Made. The Texas Ex-Rangers got "shot" this afternoon by two cameramen from the Fox News service. The first movie was of the Ex-Rangers, standing in front of Ranger's city hall, and Mayor Bob Hodges, resigning his office in favor of S. P. Elkin, the oldest ranger, and pinning the official badge of chief of police Vol Davenport on W. J. Hale of Palo Pinto longest in service. Then the old frontiersmen fell in line and marched through the flag draped streets of Ranger, following their color bearer, as they carried the Lone Star flag of the republic. The movie cameras clicking off the scene as they marched.

Immediately after the march they were loaded in cars, among which was "Miss Ranger," a West Texas bus, and carried to the old courthouse, near Merriam, immortalized by its million-dollar graveyard.

Primitive Court. Revisiting their old stomping grounds, the Ex-Rangers fell into the spirit of the thing and were once again part of a primitive court scene. A horse, saddled and blanketed, ridden by a ranger, who was leading his burro, and was stopping to make camp near the rock walls of Eastland county's first courthouse, was one of the scenes that will be flashed on the silver screen wherever Fox service extends.

Returning to the city the rangers will visit with one another, "swapping" yarns, until the call comes for chow. This meal will be served by the Chamber of Commerce of Ranger.

"Caseys" Plan Drive for Funds, To Aid Mexicans

NEW YORK, Aug. 12.—Officers of the Knights of Columbus are contemplating a drive to raise a fund of five million dollars to be used for the relief of the Catholics in Mexico, it was reported here today.

Supreme Secretary Wm. J. McGinley, who was leaving New York this afternoon for Chicago and other western cities, admitted that the proposal was under consideration but added that no definite plans had been drawn up.

"I shall return to New York within a week," McGinley said, "and by that time, may be able to make a further announcement."

EQUALIZATION OF TAXES.
 Arthur P. Duggan, Littlefield, president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, has inaugurated a wonderful campaign that should redound to the benefit of West Texas and place his name in the hall of fame.

Using figures obtained from the books of the tax commissioner and state comptroller, West Texas counties have been bearing the white man's burden of taxes in Texas and have done more than their share to support the government. President Duggan agrees with this paper that taxes are necessary, but should be equally distributed with the big property owner and rich counties bearing their just share of the burden of government. There can be no doubting what President Duggan says. West Texas is doing more than her share, and something should be done to stop it. President Duggan is using the best weapon known to stop injustice and to help to cause a general renovation of the household, publicity.

From figures compiled by him, it is revealed that assessments vary from 15 per cent to 45 per cent of the real value of property, while the state rate on the $100 valuation prevails alike all over the state.

The investigation further shows that some of the black lands in Texas, that can not be bought for $150 an acre, are assessed at $10 an acre. In further support of his charges, he had the following to say in his Marfa speech:

A group of 12 counties in Texas—not down in the sticks of East Texas—but some of the best black land counties of the state, received for the year 1924-1925 the sum of $899,125 more for school purposes than they paid for all purposes. During the five-year period—1920-1924—this same group of counties took out of the state treasury for text-books and rural aid $2,867,186 more than they paid for all purposes. In other words, Texas would now be nearly $3,000,000 richer had those counties belonged to Oklahoma, or some other state during the past five years. This same group of counties has reduced its assessment $25,573,062 from the 1920 valuation. If there is a county in West Texas that has not had to raise its assessment during the same time I do not know of it.

Let's take an actual case. El Paso county for 1925 assessed its lands at an average value of $13.29 per acre. The same year Hunt county lands had an average of $19.52 per acre. For the five-year period 1920-1924 El Paso county paid into the state treasury $807,386 more than they received through the apportionment of text-books and rural aid. During the same period Hunt county received from the state treasury $273,750 more than they paid in. El Paso's excess of $807,386 covers the amounts received for books and rural aid, more than paid in, for the counties of Hunt, Collin, Fannin and Rockwall. These four counties received $816,116 more than they paid in. El Paso county is therefore paying for the text-books and rural aid for those four rich black land counties. It is true that El Paso has a city within its borders, but it is also true that it has thousands of acres of grass land only, entirely uninhabited, while all of the four counties mentioned are in the highest priced, and most densely settled parts of the state.

Here is another case: Brewster county, during the five-year period, paid into the state treasury $175,814 more than it received. During the same period Kaufman county drew out of the state treasury $145,806 and Rockwall county $24,866 more for text-books and rural aid than they paid for everything. Those two rich, thickly settled Central Texas counties come away out here in Brewster county and take its tax money to pay for the text-books and rural education of their children. Splendid for them, isn't it? Take Gonzales and Guadalupe that adjoin. Gonzales lands for 1925 were rendered at $11.22 per acre and Guadalupe at $22.43—just double. And so we may go through the whole list, finding equality and uniformity nowhere; and everywhere books known as the "full rendition law." The inequalities not only exist between the counties but in the counties and in the different precincts in the counties. Authoritative figures presented to me show that there are 177 southern and western counties in the high percentage class, the most of which are in the regional territory of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, whose average assessment is on a basis of $3 1-3 per cent of their actual value. This is equal to $384,392,000 over the average of the state, which, when made subject to the state rate of 77 cents makes the sum of $2,959,818 annually paid in excess of their proportionate part.

It is a fact that these southern and western counties, with the addition of the counties containing the large cities, are paying practically the entire cost of the state government, and in addition paying about $1,000,000 every year for school books and rural aid for some of the richest counties in Texas.

MEXICO BIG PROBLEM FOR UNITED STATES

WASHINGTON, August 12.—Washington's estimate of Mexico is a great deal more nearly exact than its size up of the Latin American republics south of the Panama canal. Mexicans are so different from the people of the United States that the latter may not understand them very well, but at least it is realized here that Mexico is on the map, a next door neighbor, and one whose troubles and tribulations mean something on this side of the Rio Grande.

Countries like Bolivia and Paraguay can revolt to their hearts content, and Washington officials hardly know anything is going on. The United States government blithely takes the role of peace maker between Chile and Peru, gets what peace makers generally get and still doesn't know what it was all about.

A United States Naval Mission goes gallantly down to Rio to build up a big fighting fleet for the Brazilians, quite oblivious to the fact that it's a mighty dangerous plaything for Brazil to have.

But Mexico is recognized as a powder magazine, which would be no joke to have blow up—again.

Of course there are a few interests on this side of the border which would like to see a Mexican explosion, because this time they believe the United States would have to go in, stamp the embers out and make some safer disposition of the TNT.

A first class catastrophe generally affords an opportunity for looters to get on the job and loaf.

 The management of the Liberty and Lamb will be hosts to the association tonight, which will conclude a rather full day.

Friday will close the seventh annual convention. Major Green, president of the association since its organization in Weatherford in 1920, made a brief talk in regard to the election of officers, tomorrow morning, and said if elected he would do his best to serve, as he had always done.

Rounded Up Outlaws.
 Major Green, in speaking about those picturesque days of Texas border life, said that the rule of the ranger force was to get your man alive, and without shooting, if possible, but if necessary to kill, kill promptly. When a lad of about 20 he was assigned to capture part of the West Hardin gang of outlaws. Seven of them were held up in Hamilton and they had instructions to get them, and they surrounded them in their lair and made prisoners of the gang without firing a shot. Seven of them had a prisoner tied to his handle horn, with the rest of the company surrounding them. They rode from Hamilton to Guadalupe without incident, but when they forded the river it was pitch dark, and on the other side they ran into a solid wall of men, who said they were after the prisoners. The prisoners were put in the hands of the sheriff, who happened up, and was a ranger was placed in his place on the saddle, and thus they rode in the center of the group of men bent on lynching them.

The much mooted question of the location of the ranger camp from which Ranger took its name, was settled today by S. S. Boggus of Stephenville, who said that the original camp was on a prong of the Palo Pinto creek, about two miles north of the Haganam property, evidently. Mr. Boggus said he first saw the camp in 1871, and it was an old established camp then. When the railroad came through here the name of Ranger was given to the town, he explained.

RIDES IN BUS.
 Its a far cry from riding horseback through unbalanced trails to riding de luxe in a big West Texas Coach, with all the comforts of a Pullman, but such an experience will be the Texas Ex-Rangers this afternoon.

Through courtesy of Bowen Bros., owners of the West Texas Coaches, Miss Ranger, was parked early in the afternoon in front of the Gholson Hotel, ready to take the visitors anywhere they want to go in this part of the oil fields.

The first trip was to Merriman, to see the old courthouse and after that if they want to ride around, its theirs to command, and Miss Ranger, is off for their pleasure.

MRS. TRUE WRITES FROM CALIFORNIA.
 Mrs. Alice True writes a card from Los Angeles that she has seen the Pacific and was going to Catalina island on the day she wrote. She mentions that Grand canyon was beautiful, and that she will leave Saturday for San Francisco. Mrs. True is enjoying a vacation, and at the same time attending the National Credit Men's association.

ELKS DANCE BIG SUCCESS.
 The Elks of Ranger scored another big success when they entertained with a dance last night, as a splendid crowd responded to their invitations. Gus Coleman's Rainbow serenaders made a wonderful hit. They swung into action at 9 o'clock and went through until long after midnight, with some of the most rhythmical programs heard in Ranger for many moons. There was not a lagging moment—all the time just quick, snappy music. If any doubting Thomases as to the quality of their harmony were present, they had all doubts removed and became converts to the fact that Ranger has as good an orchestra as can be found.

Giving the dance a little bit of color were a number of the Texas Ex-Rangers who dropped in for a while as honored guests and listened to the music and watched the dancing.

MRS. JONES IS RECOVERING.
 The condition of Mrs. Chester Jones of Ranger, who was hurt last week in an automobile accident, is reported as somewhat improved. Mrs. Jones is still confined at a hospital in Coleman and the nurse said last night that she did not know when she would be home.

Alphonse Jones, her oldest boy, arrived yesterday from Kerrville where he has been attending a summer camp, and will stay at the L. L. Neal home for a while, possibly until his mother comes home.

CHURCH SOCIETY EXTENDS HELPING HAND.
 Moved by a report given by Miss Joyce Connelly, city health nurse, at their meeting Monday afternoon, relative to a needy family, the ladies of the Presbyterian auxiliary, at that time meeting with Mrs. E. L. Shattuck in a business and social meeting, agreed to bring an offering for them to their church last night. A good sized contribution was the result of this meeting and was taken to the family today, in an effort to alleviate their suffering. This family has received help before from local organizations, as the father is an invalid and there are a number of children who need food and clothing.

AD LIBITUM HAS MORNING PARTY.
 The Ad Libitum club met with Mrs. Frank Pearsall at Acorn Acres Wednesday morning and played bridge during the cool hours of the day. Attendance Holds Up at Community Revival Meetings

 Ition, and that funds derived from the tuition will go a long way toward covering the expenses, also that the work of the faculty members in the high school took part of the burden off the college.

In his speech, Rev. A. W. Hall told how much would be saved by the parents in keeping the child at home through the first two years.

One of the salient features brought out during the speeches was the commercial value of the institution to the town and the growth of Abilene because of its being a school center was cited.

Board Selected
 The board selected to govern the junior college the first year is made up of the following. School board members, John M. Gholson, L. C. G. Buchanan and Mrs. G. H. Bohning; others, W. D. Conway, E. H. Mills, Frank Champion, Hall Walker, Steve Lillard Jr., Morris Bendix, Mrs. C. E. Maddocks, Marvin Collie and Mrs. R. H. Hodges. These trustees will aid in every manner and the school board and will handle all the funds of the junior college. The board will organize at once and push the drive.

Just as soon as the full amount has been raised, approximately $12,000, the institution will be incorporated.

Ten Payments
 The subscriptions will be made payable in ten payments during the session beginning probably Sept. 1, so that it will be easy on all.

The following subscriptions were announced, M. H. Haganam, $500; Dr. L. C. G. Buchanan, $500; John M. Gholson, $500; G. C. Barkley, $500; Ranger State Bank, $500; Galahorn Motor Co, $250; The Globe, $250; Killingsworth, $250; Hall Walker, $250; Ranger Times, $250; M. K. Collier, $250; J. C. Smith, $250; O. E. Of course, Mr. Hardy spoke most enthusiastically of his home town, intimating that the half had not been told.

Eastlands Fame In Poultry Game Very Extensive

The fame of Eastland county as a poultry raising county is known far and near as is evidenced by the numerous letters of inquiries and calls for speakers to attend meetings of commercial bodies at other places and talk on poultry raising as practiced in Eastland county, received by the Eastland county chambers of commerce.

In response to an invitation from the Hico chamber of commerce, Geo. W. Briggs, secretary of the Eastland chamber of commerce, will go to that city this afternoon where he will deliver an address before the chamber of commerce this evening on the subject of poultry raising, and especially how it is raised and marketed in Eastland county, the home of the Bankhead Poultry Raisers and Producers' Association.

Other than being an experienced and competent man in chamber of commerce work, Mr. Briggs has made a close study for the past several years of the poultry business, having a ranch of his own near Eastland, and the Hico chamber of commerce has made no mistake in selecting him to talk poultry to them.

Child Unaware Mothers Death In Fort Worth

Left at home with friends when her mother, Mrs. Joe Wright, who was critically ill, was taken to a Fort Worth sanitarium Tuesday, 6-year-old Cora Lee Wright does not know that her mother died shortly after reaching Fort Worth. This morning she was making preparations to go to Fort Worth for what she believed was a visit to an aunt, but what in reality, was the beginning of a trip accompanying her mother's remains to Tennessee where they are to be buried.

Kind-hearted friends in Eastland believed it best that Cora Lee not be informed of her mother's death until she could be with her father, who was in Fort Worth, and have the benefit of his consoling influence.

Nash Roadster Disappears From Front of Store

A Nash roadster belonging to the Nash-Ajax Motor company of Eastland was taken from in front of the company's place of business on West Commerce street, Eastland, Tuesday. A description of the party believed to have driven the car away has been furnished the officers, and the car and driver are said to have been seen not far from Eastland yesterday.

According to Manuel Kleiman, manager of the motor company, the car had been sold to a certain party, who gave a check for approximately $800 in payment or partial payment. The check is said to have been turned down for the lack of funds in the account on which it was drawn. Kleiman took the matter up with the purchaser, who brought the car to the agency headquarters in Eastland and was told to leave it parked in front of the building. A few minutes later it was discovered that the car was gone.

The VANITY CASE

© 1926 by G. P. PUTNAM SONS

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Mrs. Prentiss, who suffers from insomnia, sees lights mysteriously appear and disappear in the Heath household next door one night, and the next morning Harbor Gardens, Long Island, is agog with the murder of Myra Meath and the disappearance of Perry, her husband.

House guests of the Heaths are Lawrence Inman and Bunny Moore. Inman might have a motive because he is heir to Myra's considerable fortune, she having cut off her husband in her will. Suspicious points to golden-haired, vivacious Bunny Moore, because of her refusal to answer questions at the inquest.

Myra Meath was a peculiar woman. She never used cosmetics, never wore colors. She had a mania for collecting glass, and it was a rare old whiskey bottle that was the instrument of her death. Candles were burning at her head and feet when a maid discovered her body and nearby was a card marked, "The Work of Perry Meath." Strangest of all, she was heavily made up and dressed with gay colors.

The strangest thing about Heath's disappearance is the fact that all the windows and doors had been locked on the inside the night before and were found that way in the morning. Finger prints of Bunny and Inman are found on the bottle. A vanity case has strangely disappeared and physicians determine that the rouge was applied to Myra's face after death.

At the Country Club, the murder is discussed by Sam Anderson, Heath's rival for the club presidency; Al Cunningham, who is trying to solve the case, and others. Some believe Heath the murderer. Others, including Anderson, disagree. Cunningham, believing Bunny Moore is concealing something, calls on Mrs. Prentiss, who tells him of the mysterious lights. Todhunter Buck, Mrs. Prentiss' nephew, suggests that Perry Meath also may have been murdered.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

That evening Larry Inman and Bunny dined alone. It was an ordeal, but they had agreed that it was wise for them to keep up the ordinary routine of the house as far as possible, and be ready at any moment for the return of Perry Meath.

As a matter of course, and also because there was need for a master, Inman assumed the head of the house, while Bunny naturally filled Myra's place in affairs of domestic detail. Bunny's eyes filled as she remembered the gay party at the table the night before, but she conquered her emotions, and contrived to manage a little light conversation with Inman.

"We have to face the situation," he said, gravely, "and we may as well do the best we can to keep—"

"Keep the home fires burning," Bunny said, with an effort to speak lightly.

"Yes," he responded, "against Perry's return."

"Where is he, Larry?" Bunny said, for Herrick was momentarily out of the room.

There was a note of intense anguish in her voice, a hint of tragedy that was breaking her young heart.

"I don't know, Bunny," Inman said, but he did not look at her. "It is very hard to know what to do. Unless he comes home soon, I shall have to look after some of his business matters for him. A note of his falls due tomorrow and such things should not be neglected."

"Oh, no, of course not. Do attend to it, Larry—if he doesn't come tonight. Where could he have gone?"

"Bunny, you know Perry is a law unto himself. He may have gone away last night, before—before Myra died. She may have known all about his going, and said goodby to him and all—after you and I went upstairs. It wouldn't be an unheard-of thing."

"No, I suppose not. But in that case, he'll see about the—crime, in tonight's papers, and he'll come right home, of course."

"Yes, of course."

But again, Inman did not look at her. He seemed to avoid her eyes, and turned his glance aside when he spoke to her.

"What about Myra's will?" the girl said, suddenly—so suddenly that Inman gave a start.

"Why the lawyer, Hart, is away. He's expected home in a day or two. He will doubtless come as soon as he hears the news."

"Are you Myra's heir?"

"I don't know, Bunny. You heard what she said to Heath last night. If I am, I shall be glad, for the money belongs in our family, and Perry can always make his own living."

"Yes, is this house Myra's too?"

"Her money was used to build it, but I'm not sure who holds the title. Don't talk about such details—things are bad enough without dragging in money matters."

The death of Myra was a tragedy that sank the whole household in gloom. But Heath's absence was treated as merely part of the usual routine, and whatever these two might think about it, they must assume his impending disappearance.

They were not confidential, this pair, they were at one in preserving a calm exterior and a courteous attitude.

Dinner over, they went into the lounge for coffee.

By a common, though unspoken impulse they avoided the studio.

All that remained of beautiful Myra Meath had been taken away by the funeral director's men, but plans for the obsequies were in abeyance pending Perry's return.

But though the studio had been restored to its usual condition of orderly informality, it was and would ever be a room of horror to any inmate of the Heath household.

So Bunny, a crumpled and pathetic little figure, sat in the corner of the big davenport, and Inman stalked about the great room, cigarette in one hand, and coffee cup in the other.

They were full of unrest, both of them, but could not bring themselves to talk of Myra.

"I wish I could go home," Bunny said, plaintively. "Won't they let me go, Larry?"

"I don't think so. It seems a corner's verdict is far from final in the minds of the police. They don't seem inclined to make a move, though, or let anybody else make one, until Perry comes home."

"Are they doing anything to find him?"

"Yes—in a stupid, bat-blind way. They telephoned to the dealer who often sell his pictures, and the man said he hadn't seen Perry for two or three weeks. A fat lot of good such hunting does."

"What do you think they ought to do?"

The little flower face looked up at him wistfully, as if he were the only hope of reliance.

As indeed he was. Poor little Bunny had never before known a trouble or care greater than the misfit of a new gown, or the tragedy of an unbecoming hat. And now, plunged suddenly into a sorrow so grave and terrible, and with no hope of rescue or relief, her dazed brain and stunned heart could scarcely meet the issues.

Yet she was learning. Already she was beginning to see that she must rely on herself for decisions and actions.

Her thoughts flew to the rather nice woman who had that morning offered to help her. Who had even offered her a temporary home—and, who seemed to consider one necessary.

"Larry," she said, suddenly. "I ought not to be here alone with you."

He set down his cup and came and seated himself by her side.

"No, Bunny," he said, seriously "you ought not. To be sure, a situation like this, a terrible crisis of this sort, gives one liberty to break all laws of convention—indeed, it makes convention seem a trivial and futile thing. But, conventions remain, when situations pass. I wish I knew what is best for you to do! I'm sorry to tell you that I know you will not be allowed to go home just yet. Mott is very busy with his inquiries, and he's only waiting a little longer for Perry's reappearance, before he breaks loose with some terrible developments."

"What do you mean, Larry, you scare me to death!"

"Don't be frightened till the time comes—I'll keep you advised and all that, but—be prepared, Bunny, for stormy times ahead."

"What do you mean?" the girl cried. She was ashy white now, and her blue eyes were big and dark with apprehension.

"Larry," she whispered, "you know that awful man said that—our—our finger prints were on that bottle!"

"Yes, I know he did."

"What does that mean, Larry?"

"Well, Bunny, what does it mean?"

But a sudden change came over the queer, elfin child.

She sprang up from the couch, and almost dancing across the room, she seated herself bolt upright in a small, straight chair.

She folded her arms, and her lovely mouth pursed itself into a pout of mutinous rebellion.

"I'm not afraid of them," she said, defiantly. "They can say what they choose, and do what they choose! I'm not afraid! Are you, Larry?"

"No," he replied puzzled at her belligerent attitude. "Why should I be?"

"Ah, why should you be?" she repeated, "why should I be? Why should anybody be?"

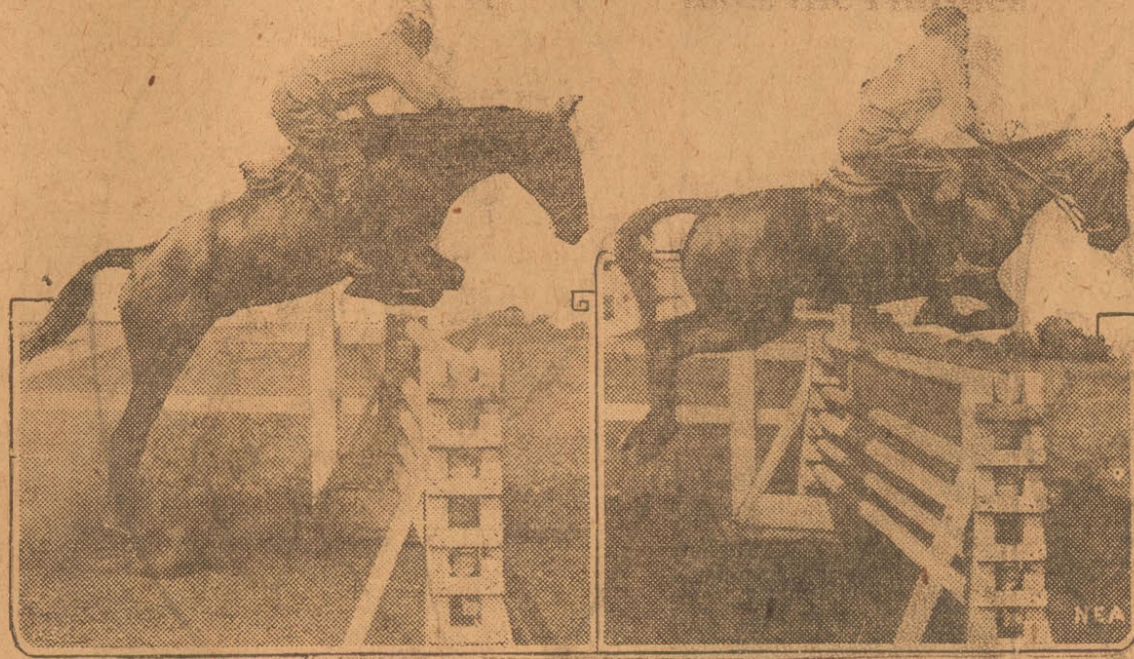

"Bunny hush! You're talking nonsense," Inman exclaimed, a vague fear coming to him, that the matter had affected her mind.

"No—no, I'm not. I say, Larry, have you looked over Perry's papers?"

"No, of course not! What right have I to do that?"

"Oh, he'll never come back. I thought at first he would—now, I know he won't. And I miss him so—I miss him so—her voice trailed away like a diminishing echo.

Inman sighed. She was such a child.

Yet the next moment she spoke seriously.

"Larry, the lady next door—that Mrs. Prentiss, you know, has asked me to go to stay with her for a while—until I can go home."

"Has she? Why, Bunny, that's the very thing! I do hope you'll go!"

"Are you so anxious to be rid of me?"

"Yes—for your own good. For your own good name. You see, people would talk if you and I stayed here alone. Nor would it make it any better for you if Perry turned up. You must see that! But for you to go to Mrs. Prentiss' would be an ideal plan! Do go, Bunny, do. You can run over here every day you know, to look over Mary's things and all that. Please, Bunny, let me urge you to go."

"Don't attempt to boss me! You know it always makes me obstinate!"

"Well, I'll edax you, then. Go, dear, there's a good girl. You will, won't you?"

"I—I don't know—"

Now, Bunny had immediately and fully made up her mind to go, but she couldn't resist the chance to tease Larry. He was so ridiculously insistent.

Then just at that crisis, the doorknocker sounded, and Herrick admitted tree callers.

FADS OF THE FAMOUS

GEORGE BERNARD SHAW
Chopping up beech logs is George Bernard Shaw's nearest approach to a hobby. He repudiates, as is well known, all conventional forms of competitive sport. For exercise he will bicycle slowly from his summer place to the nearest green-grocers shop for the inevitable vegetables which compose his diet. If he is at the seaside he will swim, in a severe, conscientious way, from the shore to the lifeline and back.

But for fun, England's leading playwright likes to take an axe and split up a section of beech log.

"It is purely destructive," he has explained. "It is tearing down, not building up, and so I like it."

ARE THE CONTINENTS DRIFTING? Scientists May Soon Be Able to Answer Intriguing Question

At the left is a map of the western hemisphere showing the present position of the continents; right is a map showing their position long ago, if Prof. Wegener's theory that these continents once were a great land mass is correct.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Has the American continent been taking a 2000-mile ride? Are New York and London getting nearer, or farther apart? Read this article by a famous American scientist on how science will test this startling theory.

By DR. WILLIAM BOWIE, Chief, Division of Geodesy, U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey

An army of scientists from important countries are preparing to scatter over the world and try to determine whether the continents of the world are drifting—in other words, whether New York is getting closer or farther from London.

Is is the theory of Prof. Alfred Wegener, German geophysicist, that the world once was a single huge land mass, that it broke up and very slowly drifted apart into the continents that exist today, and that these are still drifting like a huge crust of rock over a tarry or plastic bed.

Exact Tabulation. Radio has provided the scientists with a new way of making the test. They will take their positions at strategic observation points and will make their observations in October and November of this year.

The records will be taken by an automatic radio receiving device, or by a photographic recorder, so that errors will not be greater than one one-hundredth of a second. Accurate astronomic observations will also be made.

Then, five, ten and more years from now, similar tests will be made and the signals of former tests compared. The comparisons should show whether the stations have shifted in their longitudes. If so, it would appear fairly certain that the continents are adrift.

Freachman Heads Survey. At the head of this great world survey is General Gustave Ferrie, member of the bureau of longitudes in France and director of the wireless service of the French army. To him all reports will go for coordination and study.

Observers sent out by the United States include officials of the U. S. Naval Observatories at Washington, D. C., and San Diego, Calif., and officials of the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey, E. J. Brown at Honolulu and R. J. Sipe at Manila.

This amount of trouble, time and expense on the part of the major countries is considered worth while because of the importance of the Wegener hypothesis not only as scientific theory, but as an actual guide for navigation and other practical purposes.

Wegener formed this hypothesis after making a close study of the Atlantic shore line of North and South America and comparing it with the opposite shore lines of Europe and Africa. He found, as had others, that the bulges of the American coast fitted more or less accurately into the indentations of the opposite coast, and vice versa.

It has been known for years that there is a force, due to the earth's rotation, that tends to pull any land mass, such as a continent or island, toward the equator. The mass would drift that way if it were free to move, if the continents were entirely separated from each other and if they rested on a plastic material like tar or wax.

Originally One Mass. Wegener thought of this also and went further. He figured the continents did more, that they were actually at one time one large mass, on which animals could travel freely, and that they later broke up and drifted apart.

To work out this hypothesis, Wegener had to assume that the continents are composed of material different from that of the ocean bottom; that what he called "sal," forming the earth and its crust, was a rigid mass, while the "sima," or ocean bottom, was plastic like wax or tar; that the great land mass of the world separated along what is now the Atlantic coast, the sal drifted over the plastic sima. But it is known that the crust beneath the ocean is rigid, by the fact that earthquakes occur in ocean areas. An earthquake is caused by breaking of materials, and plastic materials do not break.

Theory's Weak Points. Further on, Wegener accounts for the formation of mountains on edges of drifting continents. He assumes that the resistance of the plastic material or sima to the on-moving continental material, or sal buckles up the front of the moving material.

This, however, appears to be rather poor mechanics for if the sima were weak enough to allow the sal to drift through it, it is certainly not strong enough to push up the edges of the moving sal and form a mountain range.

In any event, though there are many weaknesses in the Wegener hypothesis, it has so many strong advocates that the determination has been made to test it.

This is another instance which shows that scientific men are not willing to accept a hypothesis or theory without testing it thoroughly.

Anchor of Santa Maria On Show At the Sesqui

By United Press. PHILADELPHIA.—Christopher Columbus' anchor which moored his flagship, the Santa Maria, the day America was discovered, October 12, 1492, has been placed on view by the Republic of Haiti at the Sesqui-centennial International Exposition.

The Santa Maria was wrecked off the coast of Haiti in December, 1492, while Columbus was continuing his explorations. Columbus caused a fort, which he named La Navidad, to be built on the shore from the timbers of the wrecked flagship, and left forty-four of his men in it when he set sail in January with his two other ships on his return to Spain. The anchor remained for more than two hundred years embedded in the reef where the Santa Maria struck. It is one of the most prized possessions of the people of Haiti.

try this on your piazza! PULL up a chair and pull out the papers. Borrow a thimbleful of Prince Albert and roll one of the grandest cigarettes you ever smoked. Better still, buy yourself a tidy red tin of good old Prince Albert, because you're going to need a supply of it. Yes, Sir! These cigarettes are cool-smoking... refreshingly cool. They are sweet and fragrant as dew-kissed blossoms. If you have never rolled a cigarette with P. A., you have no notion of how good a home-rolled cigarette can be. Try this better cigarette tobacco today. For variety, try a load of this same wonderful tobacco in your pipe. Prince Albert gets you more pleasure out of a pipe than any other fuel you could feed. Pipe-smokers say P. A. is so genuinely friendly to tongue, throat and general disposition. Try P. A. this way too. PRINCE ALBERT —no other tobacco is like it!

Oil Belts Trim Modern Woodmen In Tight Game, 7-6

In another of those "midnight" affairs that go for a ball game in the Business Men's league, the Oilbelt Motor company edged out the Modern Woodmen, score of 7 to 6. The Woodmen only got one man to first in their half of the first inning while the Chivvies scored five of the coveted tallies. L. Hammett walked. LaPrelle hit one too hot for the Woodman shortstop to handle. Bryant singled to left field. Boyd singled to center, scoring Hammet and LaPrelle. B. Hammett walked. Eyley was safe when Watson booted his roller. Summerral walked, forcing in Bryant. Boyd and Eyley advanced. Boyd scored on a passed ball. Watson was using a new catcher who was having trouble holding his fast shoots. He let in another run when Eyley came in on the second passed ball in this inning. Jonz struck out. Hood lined out to Coalson who raced to second to force Summerral unassisted. Five runs, two hits, three errors. That was all for the Oilbelt until the last of the fifth when they scored two more, Bryant stealing home for the winning run. The Modern Woodmen scored two in the second. Edwards struck out. Coalson drew a free pass to first. Watson tripled against the boards in deep center, scoring Coalson. Abney lined out to first and Watson scored when LaPrelle tried to double him off third, Summerral letting the throw roll through into the weeds. Lemma was hit by a pitched ball, Pace singled to center, but Jay ended the inning by rolling out, catcher to first. Four more were added in the fourth after two were down. In the fifth with a one-run lead the Modern Woodmen hurriedly made their three outs in order to play the full five innings in order for the game to count. But darkness played havoc with their plans and the one-run lead was not enough. Pace in center and Coalson at second played great defensive ball for the Woodmen while Watson's bat was no small factor in the scoring. LePrelle was largely responsible for the Oilbelt victory with two runs in his credit, one, the tying run, was made after he had stolen second and third in the fifth. The box score: Oilbelt—AB. R. H. He's a Real Champion

Since the sensational victory of Fidel La Barba, flyweight king, over the tough George Rivers, experts are touting the Pacific coast lad as a real champion—one of the best of the division ever has had. La Barba, you may remember came into the title by whipping the clever Frankie Genaro last year (the crown going to the winner following the untimely death of Champion Pancho Villa). La Barba now plans to invade the east and show his wares to critical New Yorkers.

Boxing Business Is Rather Quiet; Talent Very Poor

NEW YORK—The New York boxing promoters, especially the little fellows, complain that the current outdoor season has been a terrible bust and that the whole business is on the bum. They do not have to use flattened bank accounts to prove that none of them has been making real money and that some of them will finish in the hole as big dough doesn't come from slim crowds. Poor early season weather was responsible for some of the slump in business but the inferior class of the attractions has been just as much to blame. Jack Fugazy, classed when he jumped into the promoting business as a novice, but put over the only successful big show of the season when he matched Paul Berlenbach and Jack Delaney for the world's light heavy-weight championship. That was one of the few "natural matches" that could be made. They aren't the only good fighters in the game, of course, but they are the only ones that will take a chance with a promoter. Tex Rickard Idle. Tex Rickard has been idle most of the season and when a shrewd business man like he is practically given the game goodbye, there is something wrong with it some place. The boys laughed last winter when Rickard said he was getting fed up with being held up by greedy fighters and managers and was thinking seriously of throwing boxing out as a regular attraction in his new garden. "There are only one or two big matches that can be made," the customers are getting tired paying out good money to see poor matches and they are the only kind of matches a promoter can make without giving the fighters "money," Rickard said. Rickard probably figures he could make more money with a big shot like Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney than he could in a season full of second class shows. Any promoter who can get Dempsey in the ring with Tuney or with Harry Wills is almost certain to finish with a substantial profit but after the matches have been staged there will not be a single card good enough to be billed as one of those "battles of the whatever you want to call it." Delaney Match. The best match of the light heavy-weight class was used up when Delaney took the title away from Berlenbach. They may meet again but it will not draw a half-million dollar gate. The middle-weight division has slumped since Tiger Flowers stopped bouncing around the country and since Harry Grebb started shipping. There aren't many good welter-weights and Sammy Mandell and Sid Terris are the only two light weights who could draw any kind of a house. The featherweight class has promise as it embraces a number of good boys but the fans aren't so generous toward the little fellows. If Bud Taylor knocks over Charley Kossong, the best match in the bantamweight class will be used up. With local talent so inferior, there is a fine field for some good foreign boxers, but there are very few of them good enough to be looked at more than once. The talent on the other side is just as bare or worse than it is in this country and the great things that are being said about some of them who are now in this country is nothing but bally-hoo. They don't have to be great fighters to get over, of course, but they have to have some color. Firpo has threatened several times to come back but he has so much money and such little ambition for work that he hardly will take a chance on any more fights in this country.

Horton Is High Score Man In Weekly Shoot

Jas. Horton was high score man, shooting a perfect score in singles, and getting 23 out of a possible 24 in doubles, at the Eastland Gun Club's regular weekly shoot Wednesday afternoon. L. A. Hightower and J. C. Harrell tied for second place in singles, hitting 47 birds out of a possible 50. They also tied for second place in doubles, getting 21 out of 24. Following are the scores: Singles—Jas. Horton, 50x50; J. C. Harrell, 47x50; L. A. Hightower, 47x50; Mrs. Jas. Horton, 39x50; Donald Kinnaird, 17x25; Mrs. Donald Kinnaird, 43x50. Doubles—J. C. Harrell, 23x24; Jas. Horton, 21x24; L. A. Hightower, 21x24; Mrs. L. A. Hightower, 19x24. So long as you have to walk, don't make fun of the fellow who dries a cheap car. BEDFORD NEWS

Special Correspondence.
BEDFORD, Aug. 12.—Saturday afternoon witnessed a tired but happy crowd of boys and girls returning from A. & M. short course. The pleasure as well as the instruction derived was certainly worth the trip. Comparing the daily routine work done by hand at home on the farm with the great and efficient labor-saving electrical devices there, is wonderful. The bread-mixers, the pie-crust rollers, potato peelers and ice cream freezers all in action at the touch of a button would make the wizard himself look on with wonder.

The Eastland county boys and girls are indeed grateful to the Eastland and Gisco Chambers of Commerce for making it possible in a financial way for them to attend the short course.

Mr. Ellis and children of Leary, Mrs. Walter Rice and children of Ranger and Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Pounds of Pleasant Grove were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. R. W. Smith.

Our protracted meeting is in progress at the arbor. Good sized crowds are attending daily.

Short Dresses At Masked Balls Causes Comment

By United Press.
LONDON.—London society is still gasping over the variety of costumes—some allegedly greatly abbreviated—worn by some of the guests who attended the masked dance given by the Duchess of Sutherland at Hampden House.

Prominent among those in attendance were the King and Queen of Spain, who did not appear in mask dress and the Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince Henry, both of whom appeared in sheik's dress.

Everybody was there and 'everybody' in England means all who count for anything in official big books.

The greatest sensation of the evening was caused when eight of the most beautiful women in the United Kingdom appeared as a rowing crew from Eaton. The crew had a coxswain, Alfred Duff-Cooper, husband of Lady Diana Manners. He shouted orders to his crew as they rowed their cardboard boat across the ballroom floor. They afterwards fell exhausted into the depths of the craft.

The crew consisted of Lady Victor Paget, Lady Brecknock, Lady Ednam, Lady Loughborough, Mrs. Richard Norton, Mrs. Dudley Ward, Mrs. Lionel Tennyson and Miss Poppy Baring.

Cotton Pickers To Get Special Railway Rates

By United Press.
DALLAS, Aug. 12.—Special transportation rates for cotton pickers were put into effect this week by the Texas & Pacific Railway company, L. B. Sandloski, assistant general passenger agent, has announced. Where 25 or more cotton pickers are traveling together the fare will be two-thirds of the regular one-way fare, Sandloski said.

If the number of pickers warrants it, he said, a cotton picker's special car may be instituted, whereby the cotton pickers may be transported to their intended destination without being molested by farmers who try to persuade them to desert their employer.

NINE ROLES FOR ONLY ONE PLAYER

Imagine a motion picture with nine characters all played by the same man!

King Baggot, who directed "Lovey Mary," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture with Bessie Love in the title role, now at the Lamb Theatre, produced a picture like this once.

And he was the picture's sole actor, in addition to writing and directing it.

Until recent years he was as well-known as a leading man as he is now as a director. He has directed many pictures in which he also starred and he knows as much about any angle of the motion picture as any specialist in those angles.

Baggot was born and educated in St. Louis, Missouri, in the same neighborhood as Christy Cabanne, another M-G-M director, and started his stage career there at the age of 18, as a leading man in melodramas of the Suburban Gardens Stock Company.

What Can Pimply Faced Boys and Girls Expect

Nobody knows better than the boy or girl who has been slighted time and again by their supposed "best friend," how humiliating it is to have to stand for such "cutting" things when they know they can expect nothing more as long as they don't look attractive on account of a pimply, blotchy or rough skin.

But such heartaches don't have to be put up with. Any boy or girl who is troubled with these skin blemishes can get rid of them if they will just use Black and White Ointment and the Skin Soap. The fact that they sell at the tremendous rate of more than two million packages a year shows how popular they are. They are economically priced, in liberal packages. Any dealer can supply you with both the Ointment and the Soap. The 50c size Ointment contains three times as much as the 25c size.

Art Treasures Of Dallas Are Destroyed

By United Press.
DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 12.—A tragic echo of the hailstorm that swept Dallas and vicinity last fall was discovered recently when the vault in which $150,000 worth of valuable paintings—the efforts of the Dallas Art association for the past 22 years—were found to be completely destroyed from the result of the hail and recurring rains.

The damage to the art collection was discovered by Mrs. Florence Rodgers when she entered the art building at the State Fair grounds to make arrangements for hanging the permanent collection at the fair.

The canvases were found to be covered in mold and expensive picture frames crumbled at the slightest touch. The mold on the canvases had eaten through the pictures in most instances.
