Successful Revolution Ousts Dictator; Navy And Army are Factors

By United Press.

ATHENS, Greece, Aug. 23.—Admiral Paul Coundouriotis, former provisional president of Greece, has accepted the presidency of Greece after a successful revolution in which the army and navy under the leadership of General Georges Condylis overthrew the Pangalos government.

Arriving in Athens last night, Coundouriotis, who had been ousted from the presidency in a revolution which raised Pangalos to power received the following message from Condylis:

"I have the honor to inform you that the armed forces have abolished the evil tyranny which has been existing. I offer respects to the president of the republic and pray that he will resume the supreme majesty which you held so worthily and gloriously for so long a time, and by the will of the people."

Within a short time messages began to pour in from the army and navy at distant points, pledging enthusiastic support to the new regime. In a proclamation issued to the people, Gen. Condylis said:

"The country's armed forces have abolished the Pangalos tyranny and entrusted to me the government of the country in order to assure that the liberties of the people are re-established and to apply the program contained in the army and navy manifesto.

"Immediately after the arrival of Admiral Coundouriotis, the lawful president of the republic, I shall form a government of national confidence, and I will communicate as soon as possible to the sovereign people a clear and detailed program which I shall apply closely."

The army and navy manifesto declares that Gen. Condylis has been entrusted with the application of the following program:

"To reinforce the national forces; to establish a health national currency, with strict application of the fiscal laws; to free the people from unbearable taxes on articles of primary necessity; to establish popular liberty; to intrust the presidency of the republic to Admiral Coundouriotis and to proceed in eight months at the latest to free elections in order to confide the power of the chosen representatives of the people."

Gen. Condylis announced that penal proceedings would be taken against all the agencies responsible for the preceding regime, including President Pangalos. A commission will be created to fix responsibility for the conduct of the Pangalos administration.

The downfall of Pangalos was looked for by close political observers since much and growing dissatisfaction had been expressed with his ambitious dictatorship.

RANGEL EN ROUTE MEXICO

By United Press.

SAN ANTONIO, Aug. 23.—That Gen. J. M. Rangel, Mexican revolutionary leader, pardoned by Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, last week, has returned to Mexico, was the belief expressed today by Jacob Rudolph, Rangel's friend, who was instrumental in obtaining his pardon.

Reports from Dimmitt county that charges might be filed against Rangel and others of his party, involving offenses committed several months ago, were recalled with the development.

Rangel had intended visiting in San Antonio and mail addressed to him is being held at the postoffice here.

EVANGELIST WILL HOGG DELIVERS HIS MESSAGE TO A PACKED AUDIENCE

Every available seat was taken at the Hogg meeting Sunday night in Ranger. Men and boys, and some women and small children were standing and stood all through the meeting, many left because there was no seat for them to sit on. It is planned to place more seats on the grounds today and be able to accommodate the crowd tonight. At exactly 8 o'clock the meeting started. Rev. G. D. Robison called the audience to attention and introduced Rev. S. J. T. Williams, manager of the campaign. Mr. Williams came to the platform and led in prayer before he spoke a word, after which he spoke a brief word and thanked the city of Ranger for the invitation and introduced E. H. Martin, song leader, and Miss Bessie Rice, pianist, without any words of either one of these workers the song and music started. The choir was well filled and the singing was above the average for an out-door affair. At 8:30 just as Mr. Martin finished his song of special music, "Don't You Hear the Bells Now Ringing?"

Introduces Self. Dr. Will Hogg came to the platform and without a word spoken by anyone, he said to the large audience: "I am mighty glad to be here. I hope we will have a great meeting and see many souls brought to Christ."

The preacher then read from memory the seventeenth chapter of First Kings and took his text from the eighteenth chapter of the same book, the pulpit stand was moved out of the way as the evangelist uses no notes and has no need of a pulpit stand.

The subject of the sermon was "The Mt. Carmel Revival." He said "God wanted to get a big boy told and He had to have a big man to do the job." At this time the preacher paid his compliments to little, insignificant boot-licking preachers that are afraid of their shadow. He said again, "God was broadcasting for a sure-enough he-man, and Elijah, an unheard of, high-powered mountain" (Continued on page two)

AUSTIN, Aug. 23.—There is a serious danger of the pink boll worm invading Texas cotton belt and causing a great amount of damage, R. E. #### Breckenridge Tragedy Victims Known In Ranger

Mrs. Frank L. Adams, who was shot and killed by her husband, who then ended his own life, in Breckenridge, Saturday afternoon, was formerly Mrs. Earl Roots of Ranger, and was employed at the Paramount Hotel as clerk at one time.

She had only been married to Adams for a few months and her little daughter, who was in the room with her at the time of the fatal shooting had only been with her a short time, as she had been spending a part of the past year with her father's mother, in Weatherford.

Mrs. Adams is said to have been raised near Strawn and it is reported that the funeral will take place there.

The Breckenridge American gives the following story of the tragedy: Frank L. Adams, tool dresser for the T. P. Coal and Oil Company, shot his wife of a few months, to death and then ended his own life with three bullets from the same gun near Woodson about 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon, according to reports from that city late Saturday night.

Adams and his wife had been married but a short while, according to reports, and had been living at Woodson only a week prior to the tragedy. A 5-year-old daughter of Mrs. Adams, by a former husband survives.

The tragedy took place at the home of K. B. Dawes, where the family had rooms. (The Dawes family was at home when the shooting took place.)

CALLES FIRM IN POSITION WITH CHURCH

Efforts Will Be Made To Get Religious Laws Changed by Chamber

By United Press.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 23.—The Catholics of Mexico today had a vision of peace and a compromise in the struggle between church and state which has spent its fourth week with opposing forces leaving at last reached a point of conference. So far their positions remain unchanged.

The government's victory has been firmly established today and for that reason President Calles was unable to receive the church's preliminary advances for the elimination of some of the alleged misconceptions pending the result of the bishop's campaign for legal relief from what they describe as "anti-religious" laws.

Priest Registration. The president informed the prelates that registration of the priests as required by the new regulations was only for administrative purposes and that the government did not intend to interfere on the questions of dogma or religion.

The Episcopate accepted this declaration and announced that as soon as the churches had fulfilled these legal requirements, there would be no further objection to renewing church (Continued on Page 2)

Good Samaritan Act to Kittens Is Disastrous to Man

Playing the good samaritan act to a bunch of discarded kittens on the Bankhead Highway was disastrous to a young man recently. Some one who had more kittens at their house than they deemed necessary had dumped a sack of them on the highway not far from Olden.

A young woman and a young man coming along saw the sack of kittens on the highway, and the girl evidently moved to compassion at their plight, prevailed on the young man to get out and lift the sack out of the way of passing cars. He did. Just as he reached to get the sack and kitten became unruly and while he was struggling a car came up, hit him in the rear, and threw him and the sack which came opened and spilled the kittens to the side of the road and then the kittens got their ire up and began scratching and biting their benefactor, who was almost covered with the furry animals he had tried to befriend.

The ungrateful kittens were left to their fate, as far as an observer of the comic movie could tell and what he said and what he said are only a matter of conjecture.

DENTISTS CONVENTION OPENS TODAY

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 23.—A closer relationship between the sciences of dentistry and medicine is expected to result from the deliberations of the Seventh International Dental congress, which assembles here today.

Dentistry's development as a factor in preventative medicine and its ever increasing importance in disease diagnosis has done much to bring about this relationship, in the opinion of the 15,000 delegates from 21 nations who are here for the sessions.

The present meeting is the first world assembly since 1914, when the sixth congress gathered in London, and its deliberations were summarily suspended at the outbreak of the world war. The last international congress in this country was held in St. Louis in 1904 coincidentally with the Louisiana Purchase exposition.

Dental science was expected to be accorded recognition as companion in the warfare against disease by famous medical scientists who are guests and speakers at the congress. Oral hygiene, in the hands of dentists, has been hailed by them as the (Continued on page two.)

100 CHRISTIAN SECTS OPEN CONFERENCE TO CONSOLIDATE BELIEFS

BERNE, Switzerland, Aug. 23.—Fifty religious leaders representing nearly 100 Christian denominations in every section of the world, met here today to perfect plans for a world conference to smooth out interdenominational differences.

Today's gathering, known as the "Constitution Committee," expects to draft a program of topics to be discussed at the great world conference on faith and order to be held in August, 1927, at Lausanne. Recommendations and suggestions from 87 nation-wide autonomous churches have been submitted to the committee whose chief duty will be to organize these views and prepare a program for the orderly procedure of the world conference.

"The baneful consequences of present divisions among Christians are clear to all and the hopeful feature of the situation is that Christians everywhere are realizing this," said the Rt. Rev. William T. Manning, Episcopal bishop of New York, a member of the committee, in discussing the aims of the movement.

It was made clear by spokesmen for the committee that there was no thought as yet of a formal or official union of Christian churches or that the program of closer co-operation was expected to obliterate denominational lines. The chief aim of the World conference was said to be an endeavor to eliminate minor unnecessary differences among Christian churches and to strive for closer coordination.

Five main topics of theology already studied by a sub-committee will be considered by the committee. These are "The Nature of God," "The Church's Ministry," "The Sacraments," "The Unity of Christendom and the Place of Different Churches Within It." The committee plans to organize these subjects into a program of discussion or recommendations representing the opinion of the representatives there assembled. This report will then be submitted. #### NOTED SCREEN ACTOR TALKED ABOUT FISHING

Last Rites Given by The Priests Before Noon; Came As Immigrant

By United Press.

NEW YORK, Aug. 23.—Rudolph Valentino, who came to this country as an immigrant and rose to heights of fame as a movie actor died in Polyclinic Hospital today.

Humbly born, the son of a farmer and former captain in the Italian army, who died with four skilled doctors at his bedside and with country waiting at each word from the sick room, almost as they would watch on a president. Death came at 12:10 this afternoon.

Dr. Harold Meeker, one of the attending physicians who was with the actor through the night and morning, said he believed almost the last conscious words were spoken at 3:30 a. m. At that time Valentino, still thinking he was to recover spoke of things he would do in recuperating and asked about trout fishing.

"Do you have plenty of rods and hooks?" the actor asked.

At 4 a. m. he became irrational and talked mostly in Italian. Two hours later he was semi-conscious, a. c. lapsed into coma at 8 o'clock. From then on he occasionally opened his eyes, when his name was called. He died without pain.

Father Confessio administered the last rites of the Catholic Church to the dying man, since after 10 a. m., today.

Just before he died, Father Deacon of the Church of Saint Malachi arrived in the sick room.

Story of Life. Valentino recently gave the Newspaper Entertainer's association, of which this paper is a member, the following story of his life.

I was born in the little village of Castellaneta, Italy, May 6, 1895, and was shortly thereafter christened Rodolpho Alfonso Raffaello Pierre Filiberto Guglielmi di Valentina d'Antonguilla.

I arrived in New York just two days before Christmas, Dec. 23, 1913. The new land was very strange to me and I was very lonely. In order to find companionship I frequented the cafes. This took all my money but I did learn to dance, which was to be beneficial to me later.

When my funds were all gone I got a job as superintendent of the Long Island estate of Cornelius Bliss Jr. This lasted only a short while, as I showed an irresponsible nature and was courteously dismissed.

Next Job. My next "position" was as an apprentice landscape gardener in Central Park, New York City. After a month of this I went to the civil service bureau to get a regular job, but found I was not eligible because I was not a citizen.

I had no job and no funds. I was forced from one lodging to another. I went hungry and slept in Central Park. One hot summer day I walked five miles to the City Lock for work. Unable to get it, I walked back.

After doing any little odd job that I could get, I finally went to the head waiter at Maxims and got employment as a dancer. This was really the start of my professional career, for I later obtained dancing engagements with Bonnie Glass and Joe Sawyer.

Bennett of Belton, a nephew of Fisher's, had wired Ranger Captain Tom Hickman, at Fort Worth, to join Sheriff Bingham of Belton in the hunt being made for Bonds. It was stated here that no orders had been sent to Captain Hickman in connection with the request.

Peary Discovered The Northern Most Settlement of Man

By United Press.
KINGS BAY, Spitzbergen.—Hardy residents of these islands, only 800 miles from the North Pole, laugh when strangers speak of Spitzbergen as the rim of the earth. To them the real "old north" is many miles further on, among the nameless settlements near Point Morris Jessup, Greenland. There people among the strangest in the world live in primitive conditions known nowhere else.

Commander Byrd, before his flight to the Pole, planned to establish his base among these Eskimos, who number two or three hundred. He may go there in the summer of 1927. If so, he will find them as Peary left them years ago—dirty, hospitable and profoundly content.

Peary was the first man really to become acquainted with them and live to bring back the story. His ship wintered several times at Point Morris Jessup, and some of the natives accompanied him to the United States.

Mrs. Peary also took along a girl, Egrarisaark, who was called "Bill" and exposed for a while to all the advantages of civilization.

The Peary Eskimos pined for their ice and frozen walrus meat and went home. Two of them became prominent in the tribe merely by reason of the tall stories they told. They were eclipsed by one Samik, however, who became a plutocrat when Peary gave him a wooden rowboat in which to fish.

Through his wealth, Samik won the hand of "Bill," who after her study abroad was regarded as the tribe's choice.

As the stories here go, Mrs. Samik proved a good wife, unspoiled by her sojourn in the southlands. The last traveler to see her said she had forgotten all her civilized ways and was no more squeamish about what went into the stew than any of her sisters who had not had the advantage of a finishing trip abroad.

Nowadays the only knowledge the tribe has of the outside world is when a chance explorer or Scottish whaler happens to come near enough for a kajak-man to row out and trade some blue fox skins, or when a very infrequent Danish trading agent comes.

They drink nothing stronger than ice water. Their sense of humor is pronounced, though few of their stories are fit for print. Discomfited travelers who have overbalanced a kajak and got thoroughly icky, will have found that a whole camp would roll over with laughter instead of coming to fish them out.

Secret Chinese Society Murders Missionaries

By United Press.
PEKING—A secret society devoted to the killing of foreigners, and bestowing a supposed immunity upon its members, has been revealed in the province of Szechwan through search of the garments of a coolie who was shot after brutally slaying Mrs. Sibley of the local Canadian Mission.

The assailant in most horrible fashion, hacked Mrs. Sibley's head off on the open street in midday. A large crowd witnessed the attack and in typical Chinese fashion, made no attempt to interfere, while the coolie struck her down and chopped her head from her body.

Somewhat later some soldiers threatened the murderer with rifles. Two more soldiers arrived with guns bearing fixed bayonets. The coolie attacked them with his sword. At last they fired two shots at the man's feet and a third which struck him in the stomach and proved fatal.

Search of the murderer's clothing revealed documents showing his membership in a group resembling the famous Boxers. The purpose is eradication of all foreigners from China, and each member is given a sheet of paper inscribed with mysterious characters which are supposed to confer immunity even from bullets.

The day after Mrs. Sibley was killed an unarmed Chinese tried to strangle Miss V. Mammatt, of the Church Mission Society of Chongtu. She was rescued by a rishia puller and the assailant will be tried.

Wealthy Tourists Now Avoid France Agencies Report

LONDON.—France as a playground looks good or bad to Englishmen this summer, according to their incomes, the tourist agencies report.

Those who have not much to spend on their holidays are flocking across the Channel in unprecedented numbers because the low exchange value of the franc enables them to get an unusual amount of luxury and recreation for their English pounds. They are willing to risk any unpleasant experience at the hands of French crowds hostile to foreigners, because they can spend their holidays so cheaply in France.

But those others to whom money is less important, those who were planning to take their motor cars to France for gilt-edge vacations, are cancelling their preparations and staying at home, the Automobile Association declares. The fear of unpleasant collisions with French crowds outweighs for these the advantages of a low exchange for the French franc, the association officials believe.

DR. ELIOT WILL BE BURIED FROM HARVARD UNIVERSITY IN MOUNT AUBURN ON WEDNESDAY

By United Press.
NORTHEAST HARBOR, Me., Aug. 23.—Charles W. Eliot, for 69 years a leader in American educational affairs, died here Sunday. Dr. Eliot was president of Harvard university for 40 years and was one of the most influential men in the country.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at the Union church and the body will be sent to Harvard university, where, on Wednesday, additional services will be said, followed by burial in Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge.

Dr. Eliot was the son of Samuel Atkins Eliot and Mary (Lyman) Eliot. He was born in Boston, March 20, 1834. His early education was received in the schools of that city, and in 1849 he was graduated from the Boston Latin school. He was graduated from Harvard, where his father had been treasurer, in 1853. During his college days Eliot was more than prominent on the rowing teams, and was a member of the "varsity crew" in those days when the students rowed in cedar barges that had been fitted with cushions.

Little had been told of Eliot's activities as a student, except that his specialties were chemistry and mathematics. His rating as a student, however, was always high and he was among the first in his graduating class.

Tutor at Harvard.

Immediately upon leaving college, young Eliot entered into educational work, the work in which he remained during his entire life, becoming a tutor of chemistry at Harvard. Several years later he was offered a position as chemist for a Lowell textile company at $5,000 a year, but refused, saying he had determined to give his life to education. Shortly after this he became assistant professor of chemistry at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at a much smaller salary than that offered him by the textile mill.

In 1858, Eliot married Ellen Derby Peabody, daughter of Rev. Ephraim Peabody of Boston. Mrs. Eliot died in March, 1869. In 1877 he was married to Grace Mellon Hopkinson.

During the years prior to his election in 1869 to the presidency of Harvard university, Eliot made several trips to Europe. These journeys were followed upon his return by papers comparing educational systems in Europe with those in vogue in America. His articles attracted considerable attention because of their criticisms of what he considered the weak points in the American methods.

Refused Ambassadorship.

Dr. Eliot's fame, not only in educational matters, but in economic, political and social affairs as well, was so great that when he resigned from the presidency of Harvard, he was held in such esteem by the nation that President Taft offered him the post as ambassador to the court of St. James to succeed Whitelaw Reid. Eliot, however, declined the offer. His excuse, as he gave it, was that he preferred to spend the "evening of life in the serenity that is obtained only through freedom from responsibility."

Friend of the League.

President-emeritus Eliot called the

Procrastination Is Thief of Health And Causes Death

By W. A. BRYAN, M. D.
Member Gorgas Memorial Institute (Written for the United Press)
CHICAGO.—Every man and woman, even every child ten years old, knows that an ordinary life emergency arises, which are urgent, requiring instant attention. When the house is on fire they know that action must be taken at once or with the least possible delay. They can see the fire; they know from experience that failure to act means loss of the house.

The same individuals who act so promptly, so intelligently in ordinary emergencies too often show utter lack of intelligence in their action when confronted with an emergency surgical condition in themselves or in the family.

They want to wait; they want to confer with a far away spouse or parent. In other words, they defer. They use none of the intelligence displayed by the most ordinary individual in case of fire. They will wait till tomorrow or until after the wedding.

They question secretly the diagnosis of the most learned physicians and surgeons, and place their own conclusions in opposition to those of the most skillful diagnosticians. They do not believe they have appendicitis or a perforation or an internal hemorrhage, or intestinal obstruction; it doesn't feel quite like what they think such a condition ought to feel.

Surgical skill cannot alter this discrepancy; it can be altered only by the patient accepting the operation at such time as will offer him the best results.

Those who have to do the work, who have to sign the death certificate, are unanimous in their opinion that the layman should use the same rule of action as in case of fire and make up his mind before hand that when these surgical emergencies arise he will act with the same promptness exercised in ordinary emergencies. In the one instance he loses a house that can be rebuilt; in the other, his life.

Seven days placed end to end reach too far to go without resting on at least one of them.

New York Banker Goes To London So He Can Get Sleep

LONDON.—An American, Francis Hyde, retired New York banker, 85 years old and President of the American Bible Society, has come to London "to sleep" for more than forty years.

"I've caught a cold in a Cairo night. I've tosed about in fever heat in Paris and Berlin, and as for New York—" words failed him when he tried to describe New York's summers.

"But you can sleep in London," he went on, "and that is more than you can do in summer in most places. London night temperatures always permit the use of a blanket and an old man can have the sleep he needs without risk of catching cold."

Hyde knows what he is talking about. For forty years he has been met each summer at the London terminus by William Hill, the oldest porter at Claridge's, and William's first job for forty years has been to hang Hyde's thermometer outside the window. The banker has also studied the weather reports at the Kew Meteorological Station for four decades.

The charm of London summers has brought him across the Atlantic 162 times, to the same room in Claridge's which he first occupied in 1899. He arrives regularly in June, goes back to New York in July to look at his mail, and returns to London by the very next boat for the remainder of the summer.

Arrest Leads To Recovery Of 4 Stolen Cars

With the arrest Saturday of Leo Hays of near Cisco, members of the Eastland county sheriff's department, assisted by the police of neighboring towns, have located four of the several automobiles stolen in this section recently. Hays, who is about 20 years of age, is said to have made a statement to officers in which he told of a number of thefts of cars throughout the county. Hays is now being held in the county jail.

Newman Bowman, of near Cisco, was arrested Saturday by Deputy Sheriff Virge Foster and Policeman Tom Jones of Eastland on charges of car theft. It is believed by the officers that Bowman is connected with a number of the recent car thefts that have taken place in this section within the past few weeks.

Saturday officers found a part of the loot taken from the Point Filling station, just east of Eastland, Thursday night. Included in the articles recovered were inner tubes, cold patching, cigarettes, candies, etc. These were found in a cache in the brush about a half mile from the scene of the robbery.

ALBANY.—The Albany Men's Club is boosting the plans for a new sewer system for this city. A bond issue to the amount of $25,000 will be voted for this improvement, half of which was subscribed by members of the club at a recent meeting.
