TEMPLE

Love, interest and melodrama are nicely blended in Maurice Tourneur's new Paramount production, "The Bait," which will be the feature attraction at the Temple theatre today only. Hope Hampton, the Texas girl who won film fame almost overnight when she was accorded first place in a beauty contest, is the stellar player. "The Bait" unfolds the story of Joan Grainer, a pretty shop girl who is picked out by Bennett Barton, a master crook, as his pawn in a game to blackmail Warren, a young millionaire. With the aid of his assistants, Barton frames Joan and, after rescuing her on the way to jail, poses as her protector. A chance meeting with Warren at the Follies Bergere leads to a love affair between the young millionaire and Joan. Later, learning Barton's true character, she tries to throw off his influence and, in a series of thrilling scenes, is finally able to thwart and to win happiness with Warren.

The picture abounds in all the beauty of setting and background for which Maurice Tourneur is noted and the story is one of breathless interest. Miss Hampton's performance as Joan is excellent, and Jack McDonald, in the role of Barton, the crook, is more than good. Harry Woodward, Joe Singleton, Rue Eberly and Poupee Andriot are also prominent members of the cast.

'SO EASY' SAYS BANDIT VAMP TO THE POLICE

CHICAGO, May 25.—It's easy for a bandit queen to vamp a sporty autoist.

Marguerite Lawrence, 22 year old, brunette and buxom, smiled as she told authorities just how simple it was. She confessed she had been the "vamp" in eight robberies in which motorists were victims.

"It really was so terribly easy," she told Captain Dennis Malloy. "Sometimes I'd work it alone and sometimes I'd take another girl along. We'd stroll along a boulevard until we saw a real sporty-looking car come along with a sporty fellow in it."

"Then I'd call and ask him for a ride. I always went up to the front seat. If another girl was with me she sat in the back. While I was in the front seat with the driver I would vamp him."

"Finally he'd ask me to go out with him. I'd get real coy and say that if I stayed out late I'd have to go home and tell another girl friend of mine so she wouldn't worry. He'd drive to where I told him."

"I'd direct him to some lonely spot. There, instead of my girl friend would be a couple of boys with revolvers. They'd hold him up and even take his car away from him. Oh, it was so easy."

Two young men were arrested with the girl and they are believed by police to be "the boys" who had the revolvers.

FRANKLIN LANE RECOUNTED HOW HE FELT FACING DEATH

Entered Grim Valley Well Knowing He Might Ne'er Come Out Where in He Went; Had Wondered 40 Years About the "Great Secret."

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Franklin Knight Lane, who intrepidly led a forlorn hope into the valley of the shadow of death, clearly conscious that he might remain among the unreturning dead, dictated to some friends here with whose heart fibres he was closely knit, one week before his death, and five days after the surgical operation from whose effects he died in Rochester, Minn., an extraordinary philosophic psycho-analysis of how he felt about it, of why it happened and how it happened, of his human fears and spiritual expectations, of his divination of the end, his acquiescence and, above all, his unflinching resolution.

Such portions of this remarkable sane study of a gifted man of steady intellect as are not of private significance, are here given:

"It is Wednesday afternoon and I am now sitting up in bed talking to my good friend Cotter. Until yesterday I did not clearly visualize any one thing in this room and did not know that it had a window except that there was a place that noise came through. But I did know that it had a yellow oak door that stared at me with its great big square eye all day and all night. Last Friday you see, about 10 in the morning, I took the step that I should have taken months, yes, years ago. Today, most tentatively, I crawled on to a chair and ate my first mouthful of solid food. But four days ago I managed to shave myself and I am regarded as pretty spry.

Had Viewed Death Often.
 "I have seen death come to men in various ways, some rather novel and western. I once saw a man hanged. And I have seen several men shot, and came very near going out that way myself two or three times, but always the other fellow aimed poorly. I was a newspaper man, and I should have been shot at. There must be public concern in what is printed, as well as its truth, to justify it. That is something that newspapers should get to know in this country. After the earthquake in San Francisco I saw walls topple out upon a man. And I have had more intimate glimpses still of the picture-quest and of the prosaic ways by which men come to their taking off.

"But never before have I been called upon to deliberately walk into the valley of the shadow, and say what you will, it is a great act. I have said during the past months of endless examination, that man with little curiosity and little humor and a little money, who was not in too great pain, could enjoy himself studying the ways of doctors and nurses as he journeyed the invalid's path. It was, indeed, made a flowery path for me, as much as any path could be in which a man suffered more humiliation and distress and thwarting and frustration, on the whole, than he did pain.

"But here was a path the end of which I could not see, was not compelled to take it. My very latest doctor advised me against taking it. I could live some time without taking it. It was a bet on the high card with a chance to win, and I took it. At this point occur details regarding the preparations for the operation with a note of the fact that a general anesthetic could not be applied on account of the patient's heart, which "had been cutting up some diodes." The statement continues:

"Tanlac has been such a wonderful help to me during the last four years that I feel it my duty to relate my experience for what it may be worth to others," was the statement made by Paul Snodgrass, 229 West Capital street, Little Rock, Ark. Mr. Snodgrass has been in the fancy grocery business for the past thirty years, and is well known and highly respected.

"When Tanlac was first introduced in Little Rock, to the best of my recollection four years ago, it certainly was a piece of luck for me, for I was in an awfully run-down and weak condition and the medicine fixed me up fine in almost no time. At that time I had no appetite and what little I did eat seemed to do me more harm than good, for it just would not digest properly and caused me no end of trouble. I could scarcely sleep any and always felt so tired and worn out I couldn't half-way attend to my business.

"But in a little while after I started on Tanlac I could eat just anything I wanted and was soon back to my normal health and strength again. Since then I've kept Tanlac on hand and always take a little when I feel the least bit out of sorts. It fixed me up fine after I had the 'flu' and then recently I've been taking it to build me up and have actually gained fourteen pounds in weight. I only hope my statement will lead others to try Tanlac, for I believe it's the best medicine in the world."

Tanlac is sold in Ranger by Phillips Bros. and in Eastland by Butler Drug Co.—Adv.

Thousands Have Stopped Their Itching with S. S. S.

Many of the fiery, itching skin troubles that afflict humanity are due solely to disorders of the blood stream, and can be remedied only by correcting these irregularities.

Itching afflictions of this kind should be treated only with medicines that drive from the blood those poisonous impurities that nature should have cast out, but has not. Outside applications may assuage the itch itself for awhile, but they do nothing for that which causes it.

Thousands of skin sufferers have found their nerve-racking troubles ceased after taking S.S.S., the famous old herb remedy, for awhile. They found the impurities which caused their itching eliminated, and their blood enriched with millions of wholesome, red corpuscles.

If you are afflicted with itching skin troubles, don't suffer the maddening torture longer, but get a bottle of S.S.S. right away from your druggist.

Start taking S.S.S. immediately, and if you would like expert individual medical counsel, write a detailed description of your case to Chief Medical Advisor, 869 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Georgia. He will give it to you free.

3 OKLAHOMA ATTORNEYS ARE BANQUETED

Ranger Men "Sit in" Around Board in Honor of Visiting Legal Lights.

Three prominent lawyers from the state of Oklahoma were honor guests Tuesday night at a banquet given by Judge J. E. Ingram. The visiting attorneys are Forest L. Hughes, county attorney, Oklahoma City; Ben. Williams, chairman of the bar commission, Oklahoma City; and G. Giddings, of the firm of Giddings & Giddings, who are said to be among the best criminal lawyers of the state of Oklahoma. A dozen or more prominent attorneys and laymen from Ranger and Eastland were present. A five course dinner was served at the Lone Star banquet hall by Chef and his assistants. Judge Ingram was both host and toastmaster and he called upon everyone for respects. The responses ran the gamut from the seriously tragic to the tragically comic. However the honor guests who all claimed Texas as their native state, made the principal speeches, and they all eulogized Ranger and the host of the occasion with whom they have been friends for years.

Mr. Hughes declared in such a city as this where the population had been gathered from the far ends of the earth, was the necessary element for making a great city. He likened it to Oklahoma City in the respect, and declared that it was the cosmopolitan population of that place that had made it continue to expand in the face of all difficulties.

Mr. Giddings also compared Ranger with Oklahoma City and declared that those who had the hardihood and the backbone to stick to their guns would come out winner in the end. Twice in his experience he said Oklahoma City had faced much more serious setbacks than was facing Ranger now and in each case they were overcome.

Mr. Giddings in a moment of vivacious description held his audience almost breathless as he depicted a few seconds of the war record of Mr. Hughes, who he said enlisted as a buck private when he could have entered a training school and gone as an officer.

Hughes a Fighter.
During the morning fighting the speaker declared that the captain of Hughes' company asked for sharpshooters, and presently fifty yards in advance of the company he saw Forest Hughes standing alone in the open with bombs bursting all around him. "He had a rifle to his shoulder," Mr. Giddings declared, "and as calmly as he had shot squirrels in his younger days in Texas he was shooting German snipers from an adjacent tree."

"I know this story is true because it was told to me by one of the three men who wormed their way on their stomachs to Hughes and dragged him back into the lines."
During the evening many references were made to the late Jake Hamon commendatory to the highest degree. "Whatever his faults," Judge Ingram declared, "he was a man of men."
Mr. Giddings returned to Oklahoma City last night. Mr. Hughes went to Dallas where he will be present at the wedding of his brother, Maury Hughes, who is county attorney of Dallas county. Mr. Williams Wednesday was in Des Moines.

Among the other speakers were J. A. Fraser, Fred Drienhofer, W. R. Fleming, Sanford Dean and Mr. Warfield of Ranger and Judge E. A. Hill and Robert Grisham of Eastland. Music for the occasion was furnished by the Majestic theater orchestra.

TORREON, Mex., May 24.—Agriculturists and botanists believe they have found at last the home of the pink boll worm and that it is not in cotton alone. The worms thrive in "negro plant" and in apocynum and amargoda weeds, which grow in fertile soil in the cotton lands.

Planters are destroying the weeds, burning or chopping them down and disinfecting them, in an effort to kill the worms. The pests played havoc in the Laguna cotton district last year, ruining half of the crop.

SUBMARINE ARMADA TO BE GREATEST WEAPON IN NEXT WAR, SAYS INVENTOR LAKE

By DAVID M. CHURCH, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 25.—The next war may see great submarine battles with armadas of U-boats fighting beneath the surface of the sea.

This is broadly hinted at by Simon Lake, inventor of the submarine, in a communication addressed to members of the Senate, urging a broad extension of the submarine building programme for the United States. Lake disclosed that there are plans now on file in the secret archives of the United States Navy for warfare by submarines against enemy submarines.

"The submarine has not yet reached its full development," said Lake. "There are other features that may well be added to further their effectiveness and increase the scope of their usefulness."

"In my humble judgment it is the only weapon that can be safely relied upon to keep foreign fleets from our shores. Every other weapon is visible and can be met by another of its kind; the submarine is invisible, and if made noiseless and provided with holed and invisible automobile torpedoes or with proper mine-planting facilities, no other type of ship that floats on the sea or in the air can meet it on equal terms. The cost of the submarine is slight, compared with other vessels. Did the six hundred millions spent on aircraft get a single German submarine? No. According to the official reports, the best defense against the German submarines was other submarines. As soon as war was declared between our country and Germany I sent several plans to our Navy Department as well as to some English naval friends. I outlined how submarines could be used for a defense against attacking enemy submarines. Some of these plans were later put into practice. They proved effective, but if they had been fully carried out the loss of ships near the English coast would have been very much reduced. Those plans, I presume, are still on file in the secret archives of the Navy Department, where they may remain without further discussion, so far as I am concerned."

U-Boats Undeveloped.
Lake firmly believed that the German U-boats were not beaten in the World War.

"Many people think the submarine was mastered and driven from the sea," Lake declared. "Hundreds of millions were expended and lost on barages and large fleets of travelers, submarine chasers and other ships to offset the sinkings caused by these German submarines; and the submarines captured by these vessels were only one or two disabled submarines, and those sunk were insignificant in number and cost in comparison to the surface ships lost. England lost ships, cargoes and men without number. Untold fortunes paid tribute to the awful power of destruction of the submarine."

"In spite of the expenditures of billions on destroyers, submarine chasers, mines, airplanes and barages the submarine continued to inflict the seas."
"The strategy of war made it good tactics to claim destruction of submarines in unlimited numbers, but the war history records no such events as were claimed during hostilities. Much has been made of the fact that no American transports and troopships were sunk by submarines. The writer understands that history records that the Germans felt it better not to sink American troopships and saw their error in thinking that they could conquer the world through frightfulness.

"America Was Spared."
"To quote the statements of one high American naval officer who was active overseas, 'Germany decided it was bad policy to sink any of our troopships, as that would further alienate us when it came time to make peace and resume trade relations,' so the orders went out to spare American troopships; in other words, as this officer stated, 'They could have sunk our ships if they wished, but they had lost their guts and did not have the nerve to carry out their former programme of frightfulness. According to the Bridgeport Telegraph of April 23, 1921, Admiral Sims said: 'If Admiral Von Tirpitz had had his way in the high councils of Germany we would now be speaking German with a decided New England accent' and he also said he believed airplanes and submarines would be the master weapons in future wars."

"The submarine has not lost its power over other types of craft. It is just as deadly as when I first appeared before the House and Senate Naval Committees many years ago and foretold the events that history has now recorded during the war with Germany."

Governor's Wife Claims She Keeps 21-Room House

LINCOLN, Neb., May 24.—Efforts on the part of the wife of Governor S. R. McKelvie to hold a "show me" party at the executive mansion have so far failed. A little while ago one of the news syndicates carried a story how Mrs. McKelvie, without any domestic help, cared for a home with 21 rooms in it, and had time also for writing, moving picture scenarios, painting and participating in club and public affairs such as a Governor's wife must attend.

This aroused doubt among a number of women in Fremont. The wife of former Congressman Stephens said Mrs. McKelvie would confer a great blessing upon all housekeepers if she would impart her secret. The wife of Editor Frank Hammond was clearly skeptical. She averred that it takes just as long to peel a potato or bake a pie for a Governor as for a man who works.

Others expressed the opinion that it couldn't be done and one right; that she probably sent out her washing and ironing, had in a seamstress and a cleaner and was a good patron of the delicatessen; that the story was beyond belief, if their own experience in much smaller houses was worth anything; that it was a trifle difficult to pare potatoes with one hand and dust with the other, and that if she averaged 40 telephone calls a day her baking would be sadly interfered with.

Asks Doubters to Call.
Mrs. McKelvie, with imperturbable poise, came right back and invited all of her doubting Thomases to come down and be shown. She wrote a letter to the editor of the Fremont paper and said that she would be very glad to show them that she does even more than the story said she does. Unfortunately, the ladies could not come, they wired back, and the McKelvies are just starting for a summer outing the mystery remains unsolved.

"Too bad," says Mrs. McKelvie. "I think they owed it to the people of State to carry the thing. I can demonstrate that housekeeping by system is the solution of a domestic help problem. My one purpose in inviting the ladies to my 'show me' party was to show that there is no excuse for persons living beyond their means. I think the patriotic need for service, labor, conservation, etc., is even greater than it was during the war."

"If I, with all my outside interests and duties, can keep my home, perhaps some of the wives of other wage-earning husbands will realize that they can also, without loss of any dignity. We all did it because we thought we should do it, during the war. Well, so can we do it now, if we want to and need to. The banks will probably tell you that most of us need to. OLD ORDER CHANGES
HOMELY RELISH
NOW HAILED BY SCIENCE AS FOOD.

That butter was the best cooking fat has long been a secret of the innermost heart of every good cook. She knew that when all else failed she could depend upon butter for giving the fine flavor, the crisp shortening, that she most desired. But withal she considered butter an extravagance and at the prices that have prevailed for many years, a real luxury.

Now comes a new world-known authority, as McCollum of Johns Hopkins University and declare that butter for cooking, entirely different from being a luxury, is a real necessity in the cooking of any family where there are growing children and a very desirable part of the diet of any family of adults.

For butter contains "vitamines"—that mysterious, recently discovered property of some few foods which makes children grow and grown folks feel well.

The housekeeper, then, who gives her family plenty of butter on the table as a spread for bread and biscuits, and who uses butter in large quantities in her cooking, is not only supplying their food needs with a food that, reckoned in terms of calories and the more familiar food values, is exceptionally reasonable in price, but is also providing an exceptional source of "vitamines," the growth and health-preserving element which makes children grow and grown folks feel well.

Creamery butter when made in a modern sanitary plant, from rich cream, handled through snow-white, spotlessly clean machinery, with every process guarded and checked by experts, with every care taken to insure and protect its purity, flavor and wholesomeness, offers an unusually valuable and concentrated food, as well as providing an exceptional source of "vitamines," the growth and health-preserving element which makes children grow and grown folks feel well.

not profess to be a good cook, they would have had to take their chance. My only proviso was that they make a public report of their visit. That is, if they should say I am a poor housekeeper I would not retort, and if they think a Governor's wife ought not to do it, all well and good.

Says Labor Is Dignified.
"I believe that labor dignifies position, and I will not be a slave to either possessions or position to the extent of living a purely empty and artificial life. This constant saying that a thing can't be done puts the wrong idea in the minds of the wives of men of modest means. It keeps the wrong thought before young wives, and those who must labor a bit will presently imagine themselves wronged and contract bad cases of self pity."

The McKelvies are well-to-do. As Governor he draws $7,500 a year, and as publisher of the Nebraska Farmer $10,000 additional, besides sharing in its profits. Necessity does not compel her, therefore, to do her own housework.

"I ACCEPT."

"Socrates said to those who stood by after he had drunk the hemlock, 'No evil can befall a good man, whether he be alive or dead.' I don't know how far from that we have gone in these 2,400 years.

"The Apothegm, however, was not apposite to me, because it involved a declaration that I was a good man, and I don't know any one who has the right to so appreciate himself. And I had come to the conclusion that perhaps the best statement of my creed could be fitted into the words 'I accept' which to me meant that if in the law of nature my individual spirit was to go back into the great ocean of spirits my one duty was to conform.

"Lead kindly light," was all the gospel I had. 'I accepted.'—Franklin K. Lane's Last Words.

The words of a "dead game" sportsman and a thorough going gentleman as he looked into the valley of the shadow. Franklin K. Lane shows us much more of his real character in a brief statement dictated to a friend a few days before his death than anyone could from a lifetime of casual acquaintance.

And what a magnificent philosophy! "I accept!" To take the cards that fate deals and play them fairly and squarely, to win if possible, but in any case to accept the decision. It is the philosophy of heroism and of truth and of the man who has dared before to look death in the face without trembling.

Contrasted with it are the cases of the Bergdols, hundreds of them—men who are afraid to "take a chance." They soil their lives with every sort of filth in an effort to beat the game, and at last fall in ignomy and defeat, a warning to those who try to beat the game of life.

"I accept!" To that man life meant that if he transgressed the rule of life he would accept the penalty without attempt at evasion. He would accept the good things of life given him thankfully. If, by application and foresight, he rose above the mob, no snobbish egotism would mar the success of one who deserved it. And in the hour of separations, his philosophy gave him courage, because he had utilized it and found it good.

An anarchist in Italy has been killed by his own bomb. No way has yet been discovered, however, by which a speaker can be compelled to listen to his own speech.—New York Post.

Mother Bergdoll boasts that her son Grover is worth $500,000. That's a matter of opinion. Our own is that the young man isn't worth 15 cents worth of dog meat.—Kansas City Star.

Physicians repudiate beer as a medicine. It is just as well to be truthful about it. Men don't want it for medicine; they want it because they like it.—Houston Post.

Under the blue laws our problem will be the high cost of laughing.—Brooklyn Eagle.

THE SCRAMBLE FOR OIL

As the background for his report on the policy of the State Department in protecting American interests abroad, Secretary Hughes pictures the leading nations of the world in a frenzied scramble for the control of new sources of oil supplies.

It is only recently that the United States has found cause for being concerned with what is going on in Mesopotamia of blessed name. Until now was the average American citizen an obscure place mentioned in the Bible.

Nothing so stirred Senator Lodge to eloquence in pleading with his Republican colleagues for the ratification of the Colombian treaty, which he had so bitterly opposed under the Wilson Administration, as the knowledge that oil had been developed in Columbia and that the British were moving to entrench themselves there before the Americans could establish lawful rights.

Secretary Hughes deals at length with Djambi in the Dutch East Indies, no better known probably by name or location to the State Department until access to its oil fields became subject for dispute than Teschen and its coal mines were to Premier Lloyd George at the Paris peace conference.

How much oil, by the way, are Djambi and Mesopotamia producing? As much as California and Texas, by way of comparison? One of the best things that has happened to Europe is that there is no oil in Upper Silesia that anybody knows of.

WASHINGTON, May 24.—Declaring it was not possible to draft a proposed amendments law, Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the anti-saloon league, told the house judiciary committee Friday that some clerks employed by district prohibition commissioners were making more money in a week through dishonest dealing with fraudulent permits for withdrawal of alcohol than they would earn in straight salaried work in two years.

Wheeler contended that of the 35,000,000 gallons fully 10 per cent was used for beverage purposes. He suggested amending the law so that none of it could be removed until by reciting and denaturing it had been rendered unfit for drinking.

Touching lightly on the question of beer as a medicine, Wheeler presented hundreds of petitions from many states, most of them from doctors, opposing any letdown in the Volstead law under which beer could be prescribed for the ailing.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, who is once delegated to find out "what is whisky?" told the committee, in a ten-minute talk, that there were no medical properties in beer, and that it had never been recognized by the medical profession as a remedial agent.

TIMES' PROOF READER LEAVES WEDNESDAY FOR HER VACATION

Misfortunes never come singly. The Times staff had no sooner reconciled itself to living for two whole weeks without the light of Whitey's smile (for Whitey's gone a fishin' "somewhere in Texas") when the bunch were advised that Hilda, the Times' proof reader, Miss Hilda Frazier, is leaving Wednesday night for not two weeks, but three weeks, for a visit with "home folks."

TINKER BOB STORIES

By CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB.

ANOTHER VOICE.

Jack, the Rabbit, jumped as though some one had hit him with a stone when he heard that peculiar sound near by. He was so wrapped up in what Mr. Song Sparrow was saying that he never thought there might be another creature listening to what was being said.

"How does this come?" asked the King of the Forest. "I haven't seen you before this Spring. Where have you been keeping yourself?" "Put, put, put, put. I have been right here in the marsh," said Red Wing.

Little Bennis' Note Book MOUNTAINS. A hill is a little short pile of land Ware cows and horses dally. While a mountain is a big pile and the absents of land makes a valley.

"Well, You Are not Usually so Quite," Said Jack, the Rabbit. This was even a surprise to Red Wing, the Black bird, for he did not know that Mrs. Sparrow had a nest in the marsh.

HARDING SAYS BUSINESS MUST HELP TO PUT OUR HOUSE IN ORDER

Patriotic Sentiments Are Voiced By President In Address At Dinner Celebrating 125th Anniversary Of New York Commercial.

NEW YORK, May 23.—The co-operation of every factor of American business and industry to put the nation's house in order after dislocation of war was bespoken by President Harding tonight at a dinner here celebrating the 125th anniversary of the New York Commercial.

will insure real justice among all elements in the community. Industrial Policy. "Turning to industry, our policy must be to give it every facility possible but to keep government outside of participation in business on its own account."

Get Back to Work.

"Assuming that these things may be laid down as fundamentals," he said, "it is for all to get back to work. We must have confidence that things will come right. We have dealt with the greatest problem that humanity ever confronted in carrying on the war."

Must Have Confidence.

"Assuming that these things may be laid down as fundamentals it is time for us all to get back to work. That is what makes our country great is that what will put the whole world back on the right track. We must have the world must have confidence that things will come out right."

World Interdependence.

"It has been said many times, but it cannot be too often repeated and emphasized, that in doing this we will be alike discharging a duty to others and seizing an opportunity for our own advancement. There have seldom been more convincing proofs than we see all around us now, of the essential interdependence of all parts of the world."

Create Demand.

"By this process we shall aim to create renewed demand for the product of our industries, to establish permanent markets abroad for surpluses. We are learning that the immediate need, so far as our own country is concerned, is not so much production as facilities exchange."

CHICAGOAN DRAWS MAP OF DIVORCE

Fashionable Districts Supply Most of Marital Unhappi- ness, Judge Says.

CHICAGO, May 25.—Judge Jesse Baldwin, who for 11 years has heard divorce cases, has made a marital map of Chicago. It shows where divorces are most numerous, and the Judge tells why.

"During the eleven years that I have been on the bench," says the Judge, "I have noticed that the fashionable and near-fashionable districts supplied most of the divorces. Then there are the rooming-house neighborhoods, where family harmony is maintained with difficulty because of close crowding and lack of home comforts."

A district where theatrical artists reside has the fewest divorce cases, according to Judge Baldwin.

"It would appear that the pleasure-loving residents of the apartment house neighborhoods do not care for home life nor for home building," he said. "Therefore, they do not welcome children, and are prone to bring their troubles immediately before the divorce court."

"It is not pleasant to sit as divorce chancellor and see the appalling records of domestic troubles unrolled before you. I cannot help analyzing the causes of the divorce evil, however, and to study the cases I have heard."

The World War was a cause of much domestic unhappiness, Judge Baldwin said.

"When one virtue—and patriotism is a virtue—dominates a people, other virtues are apt to suffer," he said.

CLAN OF LACKLAND MOSTLY "RUFUS J.'S" GATHER IN RANGER

If one visited Lackland's chicken farm and asked for Rufus J., the visitor would probably be requested to distinguish just which Rufus J. he was "alluding at." There are three of them on the farm today. The clan is headed by Colonel Rufus J. Lackland, who is being visited by his son, Rufus J., and his wife and their son, Rufus J. Jr. The visitors are from Fort Worth.

According to the head of the clan, Junior, who is 9 months old, is a "tough kid." He said this morning that he was being "brought up" according to new fangled notions and he himself had a hard time slipping the "kid" some real grub.

Truck Driver Hears Angels Singing as 700 Quarts of Nitro Glycerine Are Spilled

From Cisco Daily News.
Walter W. Campbell (Curley), one of the drivers of nitro-glycerin trucks for the Illinois Torpedo company, is convinced that he will be called from this world by some other method than a nitroglycerin explosion. He missed the best opportunity of his life to go by this route on yesterday morning, when the two-ton service truck loaded with 700 quarts of glycerin overturned on the canyon road to Breckenridge, about four miles from Cisco. The accident was caused by one of the front tires blowing out.

When the tire exploded the right front wheel of the truck turned under the machine and stuck there, in spite of the fact that Campbell was riding the steering wheel with all of his weight and strength, trying to right the truck.

Curley said he could feel the machine leaving the ground and he saw that a smash was inevitable. "I could see the angels and hear the choir singing as I jumped from that truck," said Curley.

The only damage to the truck from the smash was a broken windshield. In spite of the fact that the machine was turned over completely the death-dealing load of glycerin was no more disturbed than if it had been so much water.

A truck with a cable and wench on it was sent out and the overturned machine righted and

'INVISIBLE EMPIRE' OF IRELAND KEEPS BRITISH TEETH ON EDGE

DUBLIN, May 24.—A new feature of military administration in Dublin is the success of the authorities in discovering concealed arms and ammunition. Most active in this work has been the F. Company of the Auxiliaries to the Constabulary which, as communications regarding it are always issued by General Headquarters, and not by the castle, must be supposed to be operating by military orders.

After months of almost fruitless searches important finds are being made. Search is not confined to the poorer districts and the most fashionable houses are exhaustively examined. Suspicion is not directed so much against the owners of such houses as against their servants, while in some cases it is probable that neither masters nor servants were cognizant of all that the premises contained.

Dublin has numerous streets of houses each with a stable at the back, relics of the time when the occupants kept carriages. In many cases these stables are to drivers, or to anybody willing to rent them, and several of these stables have been found to contain supplies of revolvers, rifles and bombs. Some houses in the suburbs the glycerin placed in another truck and taken on to Eliaville.

Men who have been in the business all their lives say they never saw a better opportunity for a terrific explosion than this one. The only way they can account for the fact that there wasn't an explosion is the tight rubber pack which is being used in the glycerin compartments of the truck. The cans containing the glycerin are fitted very snugly into rubber upholstered compartments, which in a large measure prevent the jars of the road from being transmitted to the liquid.

"It just wasn't my time to go," is the way Curley explains it. "I will probably stump my toe and fall down and break my neck. I missed the best opportunity of my life of going by the glycerin route today."

have long gardens to the end of which the owners do not often penetrate, and in some of these bombs have been discovered.

Outrages increase. Despite all this activity the official summary of outrages records each week no diminution in the number or character of the attacks made in the city, which have grown in excess of all anticipations.

Apart from the bomb attacks on the military lorries, which have wounded more bystanders than members of the crown forces, the audacity of the Republican Army is manifested every day in exploits, each of them perhaps trifling but in combination showing careful organization and reckless boldness.

Postmen, telegraph messengers and dispatch riders are held up, and their messages captured. It is quite common for the average citizen to receive his letters after some days' delay marked "censored by the Irish Republic," and this is often the case when letters containing valuables have been registered.

Nobody can drive an automobile without a permit, but this interferes little with the activities of those against whom the regulation is aimed. When the republicans want a motor they go and take it. They give in most cases a receipt for it and when it has served their purpose they return it. Even military lorries have not escaped seizure and use by the Republican agents.

Don't Fear Jail. Food stores intended for the military have been captured and destroyed and even the laundry vans have been made a prey and their contents burned within a couple of miles of Dublin castle. The same story comes from many parts of the country and every province can show numerous instances of the same kind of activity as in Dublin. Imprisonment apparently has been ineffectual.

Besides over 2,000 persons in jail under the sentences of the court-martial, there are interested in the various internment camps over 2,600 men, held on suspicion that they would be likely to commit offenses. There seems to be always somebody to take the place of the man in jail.

NELMS RETURNS FROM WEEK'S FISHING TRIP

R. R. Nelms, manager of the Ranger Waterworks company, has returned from a week's trip to Dallas. However Mr. Nelms said himself that Dallas did not see much of him. He spent the majority of the time at White Rock seeking the elusive white perch. It is probable that he has not yet sprung a fish story on his friends.

ITALIAN MISSION CHIEF HELD IN VIENNA SMUGGLING

ROME, May 24.—General Segre, head of the Italian mission in Vienna, has been arrested charged with illegal practices concerning the import and export of goods, so says a dispatch from the Austrian capital.

Thirteen subordinate officers also have been arrested, charged with the same practices.

According to information supplied by the minister of foodstuffs, 33,000 tons of wheat will be shipped shortly to Greece from America, whilst another 35,000 tons will be purchased presently, which should cover the total requirements of about three months.

Conditions in the European markets are similar to those now in this country. The depression there is extending under conditions of the severest competition. Many British blast furnaces and steel works are idle. Wages are being reduced for the first time in several years.

TWO KILLED, TEN WOUNDED IN LABOR BATTLE IN ITALY

ROME, May 24.—A general strike was declared in Civitavecchia today, following a battle between Fascisti and longshoremen, in which two persons were killed and ten wounded. Military forces occupied the city upon the calling of the strike.

THE U. S. CHAIN TREAD
One of the few tires of which it may be said that they deliver economy year in and year out and tire after tire.

The U. S. Chain Tread gives sufficient traction on all ordinary road surfaces. It is probably the handsomest, and by all odds the most popular, of the whole U. S. Fabric Tire line.

Economy rides on U.S. Tires—

If you could get together all the car owners you know, you'd probably find that their tire experiences had been much the same.

Most of them have taken their fling at "job lots," "discontinued lines" and "surplus stocks." Soon or late, nearly all settled back on quality first as the one sound assurance of tire value.

As soon as a man forgets the cut-price tag, and comes to the dealer who concentrates on a full, completely sized stock of U. S. Tires—he learns what it means to get fresh, live tires—not once in a while but every time.

Not merely in the big cities, but in his own home town.

Not merely for the heavy car, but for the medium and light-weight car—a full selection of size, tread and type.

Your U. S. Tire dealer can give you this service because of the service he gets from his neighboring U. S. Factory Branch. There are 92 of these Branches. Each gets its share of U. S. Tires, so that the dealer is always supplied with fresh, live stock.

U. S. Tires sell as fast as they are made. There is no over production. No surplus piled up waiting for a "market."

Wherever you buy a U. S. Tire—you buy a tire of current production, as full of life and value as the day it left the makers.

OHIO CONGRESSMAN SMOKES FORMER EMPEROR'S $2,000 PIPE.

Representative Roy C. Fitzgerald, of Dayton, Ohio, photographed in his office in Washington while taking a few puffs from a $2,000 meerschau pipe once owned by the late Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria. The pipe, said to be one of the most remarkable specimens of meerschau carving in the world, is now owned by L. O. Shank, of Dayton.

There are nine figures on the pipe, illustrating the experience of eight youths with their first try at clandestine tobacco smoking. Several of them exhibit the different degrees of nausea, while the ninth, a little girl, is tugging at her brother's coat. He, unable to stand upright, is being embraced by the leader of the "gang."

The pipe is said to have been presented to Emperor Francis Joseph by Archduke Franz Ferdinand, whose assassination started the world war.

'WEINIE ROAST' PROVES STENOS ARE NOT SO FRIGID AFTER ALL

You know that cool, aloof, indifferent, I-welcome-you-for-the-sake-of-the-boss smile that stenos and other "working girls" hand out when one drops around, ostensibly in search of information or business which she knows you are not after?

You know how it cools one down, shatters any illusion you may have that the damsel is a little bit stuck on you, and all that sort of thing, and kind of hoping she has. And then you leave your "business" attended to, with all the exuberance gone from your footsteps, because she has either scorned or chilled your attentions or failed to see that they were meant for her.

"Oh, boy, but stenos are flinty hearted!" you think, as you exit as gracefully as your individual model of the human form divine will permit.

But that's during business hours. Load 'em on a truck, with feet swinging over the edge. Load 'em in with a proper assortment of "graces," so they will not fall off. Cram the center of the truck with ice cream and weinies crying to be roasted and all that sort of comestibles, and see the difference. Their laughter is of the clear, ringing kind which goes with youthful happiness; their smiles—maybe it's the moon that does it—are tender, and companionable, and understanding. And when our good roads—very good for some purposes—bounce 'em around so that they don't always come down in the same place. How can they remain aloof, and frigid?

The Business Women's club gave a "weinie roast" last night to its husbands and "masculine" friends. And a very fine night it was, with keen appetites to be satisfied by all sorts of dainties, with games and romps to be done, with Sinclair lake to fall into, with one's own cooking to do, with crawfish to catch by the hundreds and put on the girls, so that they might scream and enjoy themselves immediately. Yes, indeed, it was quite a night!

How did they catch the crawfish? Easy. Scattered crumbs in the shallow and turned a flashlight downward. Then scooped them out with a cup.

About twenty couples enjoyed the outing.

SO. PAC. WILL CUT FREIGHT RATES 1-FIFTH

CHICAGO, Ill., May 24.—Reduction of freight rates to meet water competition has been decided upon by the Southern Pacific railway, it was announced here today. The reductions approximate 20 per cent. Permission to make the reductions will be sought of the interstate commerce commissions immediately, according to G. W. Luce, freight traffic manager.

Among the items in which rate reductions are proposed are dried fruits and canned salmon, beans, peas and condensed milk. Dried fruits in boxes would be reduced from $1.66 2/3 a hundred to $1.25, in sacks from $2 to $1.45. Canned salmon would be reduced from $1.16 to 95c a hundred and condensed milk and other canned goods from $1.20 1/2 to $1.05.

Reductions on westbound products are also proposed by the road and permission for those reductions will also be asked of the commission.

The reduction in freight rates decided upon today will affect all transcontinental carriers.
