WAGNER FUNERAL IS HELD IN FORT WORTH; BUSINESS TO GO ON

Funeral services for Warren Wagner, oil operator who was shot and killed Monday afternoon in Fort Worth, were held Friday morning at 10 o'clock in that city from the Robertson-Mueller chapel.

That is the best and most important thing about the "Waterland," he said.

"Well, what is it?" asked the curious visitors. "Come below," said he, "and I will show you."

Below went the whole party, and there he showed them how every detail of its plan had been devised so as to facilitate its quick conversion into a troop-carrying ship, with capacity for 10,000 soldiers.

Carried 96,804 Soldiers.

"That is the best and most important thing about the "Waterland," he said. "In a remarkably short time, if need arises, we can make it a troop transport."

He was right. We proved he was right. Between the date of our entry into the war and the armistice, the "Waterland," its name changed to the "Leviathan," carried 96,804 soldiers to Europe.

German foresight and skill in designing this monster liner contributed materially to the success of the biggest transportation job in history—the greatest movement of armed men

FRIDAY—THIRTEEN JINX SCORES WHEN WHITEY 'FORGOT'

Whitey ain't superstitious, but Friday his faith in the materiality of things got a surenuff jolt. Thursday he was lookin' at the calendar and he says to the boys: "Now tomorrow's Friday, and it's the thirteenth, too. 'Course they can't nothin' happen on that account, but just the same I'm tellin' you 'twon't do no harm to be on your toes and keep your eye on the cat, as the feller says. So kinda handle things careful and we'll get by that Friday-thirteen jinx o. k."

Well, Whitey, like the Times foreman, told the boys in the alley a.d. the machine operators and everybody 'bout the jinx, but he forgot to tell Jim, the colored boy who lugs the forms back to the press when they're ready.

And surenuff, almost the first form Jim tackled Friday a few minutes before press time the Friday-thirteen stuff hit him square 'midships and blooey! Away she goes, sport page and all, in a heap.

"Bless my soul and body," says Whitey, "I forgot to tell Jim what we was up against today. What do you think of that?"

FATHER WHEELS BABY 1,000 MILES IN QUEST OF HEALTH

After wheeling his baby son 1,000 miles in a perambulator all over the state of California, James F. Watkins has arrived in Los Angeles happy in the knowledge that the baby, James Jr., is in the best of health.

The little fellow was left motherless shortly after his birth. He contracted pneumonia and the illness left him very weak. Watkins decided that fresh air and plenty of it was all that would save his little son's life, so he "hit the road," wheeling James Jr. in a perambulator. Without funds, Watkins had to work his way throughout the tour in quest of health.

BRICK PLANT STRIKE STILL DEADLOCKED

Company Opposes Arbitration Board and Ranger Paving Contract Remains in Statu Quo.

The right to operate their own business is said to be the issue over which the present strike in the brick plant of the Texas & Pacific Coal & Oil company at Thurber, arose. The strike has been in progress for more than ten days.

The walkout occurred when the contract under which the brickmakers were working expired, and the company refused to sign a similar contract, which it said did not allow it the right to manage its own business, because of the intervention of an arbitration board.

The company offered to sign a contract whereby the men were to receive the same pay and work the same number of hours, but the conditions under which the board operated had to be removed. The brickmakers refused to accept the contract under those terms, it is said.

How "Board" Works.

An example of the methods of the body was given by W. L. Gibson, who recently visited Thurber to see just when he might expect more brick to complete the Ranger paving contract. He said that on occasions a foreman at the plant would discharge a man for incompetency, whereupon the discharged man would appeal to the board.

Workers would be called in as witnesses who would declare that the discharged employee was one of the best men on the job and that he was being persecuted by the foreman. The verdict would usually be that he was reinstated.

Another example that Mr. Gibson cited was that an employee would ask for ten days' leave and would perhaps return in six days and ask to be placed back at work. It would be explained to him that his place had been filled, that he would have to wait until his leave had expired. Under some such circumstances, Mr. Gibson said, the employee would appeal to the board and receive compensation for the remaining four days.

Company Won't Sign.

The management of the company believes that the conditions under which this board exists is working a hardship upon the company and they refuse to sign an agreement incorporating it.

While the strike continues the paving contract in Ranger, which only needs brick for completion, will remain unfinished. There are several blocks which have the concrete base laid and the curbing constructed. When the brick is down on these blocks the paving contract will be finished.

Guards Shoot Two From Tree Where They Were Hiding

Guards From State Penitentiary Battle to Death With Escaped Prisoners After Fleeing Men Kill Six Bloodhounds Pursuing Them.

HUNTSVILLE, May 13.—Two convicts who escaped in the riot at the state penitentiary yesterday were shot to death this afternoon in the woods near Dodge, northeast of here, by two guards, it was reported to the prison authorities at 2 o'clock.

One of the dead convicts is E. A. Franklin, sent to prison from Fort Worth for murder. The other is believed to be Dan Hamilton, a robber sent up from Eastland county for 25 years.

Two guards encountered four fugitives after bloodhounds had run them down. Franklin and his companion were shot out of a tree. The other two escaped. The guards were unhurt in the gun battle.

Five other convicts are reported barricaded in a house at Esperanza, two miles from New Waverly. They are surrounded. One convict has been seriously wounded by rifle firing, it is said. Reinforcements have been sent from Houston.

SMITH WILL PUT X MARK ON BURKETT

Senatorial Candidate's War on Rangers Cause of Former Supporter's Stand.

"If Judge Joe Burkett is the only man in the race for state senator to replace J. A. Russell, resigned, in the election June 4, I will scratch his name. Though I helped elect him, I judge of this district I cannot condone some of his later acts. I know that the state rangers whom he fought so bitterly were the salvation of both Ranger and Breckenridge, and other towns of the oil fields."

This statement came from Judge Jesse R. Smith when interviewed Thursday at Breckenridge by a Times reporter regarding his possible candidacy for the state senatorship.

"I have been solicited by men from all walks of life within the district to make the race," Judge Smith said, "but my personal business is so pressing, I really do not know whether I can spare the time. Among those who have wired me their support if I enter the race are some of the most influential men in the district."

May Make Race. Judge Smith is seriously considering offering himself as a candidate to fill the vacant place and said that he would make up his mind definitely within the next day or two.

In the election wherein Russell was the successful candidate Judge Smith, who was also a candidate, polled a heavy vote, more especially in the northern part of the district. This vote, he said, he received without making an active campaign.

He is a large property holder in Breckenridge and in Palo Pinto county. He owns one of the largest ranches in that section and is president of one of the banks at Strawn.

While having a legal education he said he is not a practicing attorney and if he should enter the race and be elected he would go to Austin purely for the purpose of adding his weight to a business administration.

CARRANZA LEADERS OFFER TO SURRENDER

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—Official advices say Lucio Blanco, Eduardo Fernandez, Ireneo Villareal and Pablo Gonzalez, four former Carranza chieftains, appealed to Obregon for leniency if they surrender. Recently it was reported they were planning a new Mexican revolution from the American side of the boundary.

RELIGIOUS WAR IN MEXICO; FIFTY DEAD.

MEXICO CITY, May 13.—As many as fifty deaths were reported today to have resulted from religious-political fighting in Morela, capital of the state of Michoacan, last night.

Fighting began when a Catholic demonstration against socialistic propaganda was fired upon by socialist sympathizers and a detachment of police, said to have included the chief Vicente Coyt. Many persons were wounded.

HAMILTON PULLED JOB HERE.

Dan Hamilton was tried on Sept. 25, 1920, and given ten years for participation in the robbery of the Pine street gambling house early in September. He was one of several men convicted for this affair.

On Jan. 1, while still being held in jail at Eastland, he escaped but was recaptured about a week later.

HUNTSVILLE, May 13.—With twelve of the 40 or more escaped convicts captured, citizens and officials early today were expecting to capture the remainder of the fugitives, who yesterday morning fled from the state penitentiary here after a mutiny in which two guards were shot.

Most of the convicts at large this morning were surrounded by the posse in a clump of woods near Dodge, a few miles north of here. A search was expected to take the fugitives.

Four jail breakers were brought in just before midnight last night after they had killed several dogs which trailed them to their hiding place. Neither convicts nor members of the posse were wounded in the capture.

Capture of the surrounded man was not expected to be made without bloodshed. They are reported to be armed, with plenty of ammunition.

WON'T SURRENDER. HUNTSVILLE, May 13.—Twenty-seven of the forty convicts who escaped yesterday from the state penitentiary here following a mutiny in which two guards were wounded were still at large at 10 o'clock this morning, according to Capt. Jake Herring, warden. Poses with bloodhounds were trailing the men, and capture was expected before nightfall.

The convicts have broken up into two or three bunches and have scattered, but all groups are working east towards the river bottom and the "big thickets" according to information to Herring.

Four men believed to be the ring-leaders in the escape have declared they will not surrender. The men, G. R. Anderson, H. L. Watson, Louis Dodd, and a fourth man, all "lifers," and desperate characters, sent word with Bob Smith who walked into the prison that they would take their own lives before surrendering. Each man was armed with a rifle, revolver and shotgun and plenty of ammunition, according to reports brought in.

The leaders were entrenched in a thicket three miles from Dodge, northeast of here. They killed six bloodhounds last night when the dogs trailed them to the thicket.

Four men were reported seen near Willis, apparently headed towards Houston. All roads were patrolled, and special agents were aboard railroad trains.

TWENTY NEAR HOUSTON.

HOUSTON, May 13.—Twenty convicts have been located near North Houston on the county line it was reported here from Huntsville today. Officers sent from Houston and the prison are prepared to battle with the men.

Keeling, first assistant attorney general and members of the banking board left today for Breckenridge, Texas, in connection with reopening of the closed Guaranty State Bank there.

Plans are under way to reopen the bank and start it again as an institution of the state banking system. The state officials said they expected to see the bank reopened.

NEFF SEEKS TO AMEND DEAN LIQUOR LAW

Would Have Unsupported Testimony of Booze Buyer Sufficient to Convict.

By Associated Press.

AUSTIN, May 12.—An amendment to the Dean prohibition law so that convictions may be had on the unsupported testimony of the purchaser of liquor will be sought by Governor Pat M. Neff at the special session of the thirty-seventh legislature, which convenes in June. Such a measure is included by the governor in his "law enforcement program," which he announced he would submit at the special session. The governor made this announcement shortly before sine die adjournment of the regular legislative session.

The other bills included in the program are the repeal of the suspended sentence law, the Johnson enforcement bill, giving the governor more power to remove elective officers in Texas, and a bill amending certain parts of the statutes of the state so that convictions may be made more certain. Of these measures three were defeated at the regular session, among them being the Dean prohibition law amendment. The fourth was not submitted.

Cause of Break.
The defeat of the Dean amendment caused the break between Governor Neff and the legislature and was the cause of Representative Sid Crumpton's stirring remarks denouncing the governor for his criticism in the newspaper of the legislature's action in killing the bill. Representative Crumpton's remarks were made on a point of personal privilege after the governor's statement had appeared in the papers. A motion was then made to have Mr. Crumpton address printed in the journal of the house, thus expressing the approval of the majority of the members of the house of Mr. Crumpton's talk. This motion met strenuous opposition by the proponents of the bill, but it was strenuously upheld by the opponents of the measure who desired to voice their sentiments against the governor's criticism. It finally carried and the remarks as written by the speaker together with the governor's statement taken from a daily newspaper, and a statement from the newspaper men to the effect that the article as printed was given verbatim to them by the governor, was printed in the house journal.

Neff Criticizes House.
The bill was not defeated on the vote for passage, but died on the calendar. Governor Neff's criticism was directed at the action of the house in adopting an amendment that took the direct intention of the bill out of it. The bill then was laid on the table subject to call and never again was taken up for consideration. It was introduced by Representative Morris of Medina.

The Dean prohibition is not the law which made prohibition effective in Texas, as its name suggests, but is the law passed by the thirty-sixth legislature to aid in the enforcement of the amendment to the state constitution making it unlawful to sell or manufacture intoxicating liquor in Texas. The bill derived its name from the man who introduced it, Senator Dean of Huntsville.

The Dean law has been held constitutional by the court of criminal appeals of Texas. It has been attacked from numerous angles, the latest being from the point that it conflicts with the Volstead act passed by congress and the eighteenth amendment to the federal constitution.

In Local Option Times.

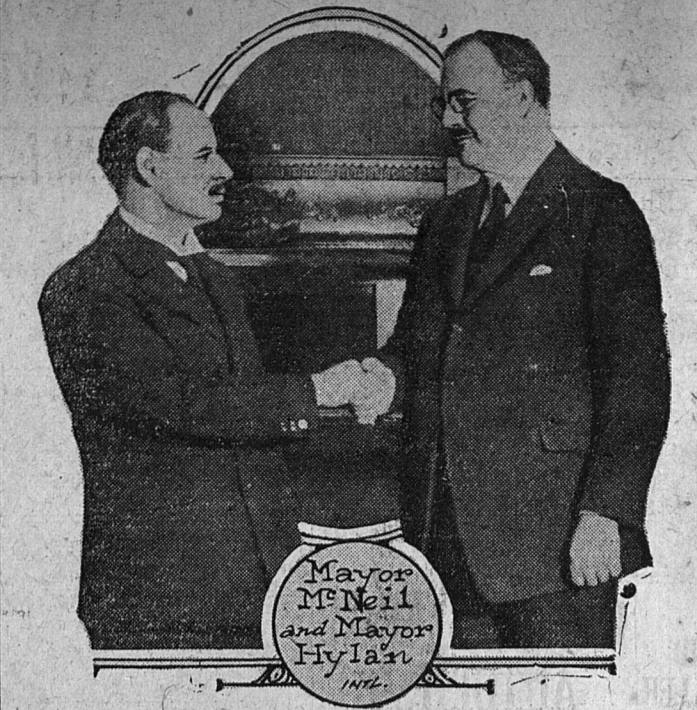

Prior to 1918 local option prevailed in Texas and intoxicating liquor could be sold only in the counties of the state where prohibition did not prevail. The United States was then at war with Germany and the thirty-fifth legislature passed what is called the statutory prohibition law and also the zone law. The latter measure prohibited the sale of intoxicating drinks within a certain distance of army camps, putting out of business approximately 2,000 saloons. This measure was attacked in the court of criminal appeals in the case of ex-Parte Hollingsworth and was held valid by the court. The statutory law was attacked then in the case of ex-Parte Meyer and held invalid by the court. Both of these opinions were written by Judge W. C. Morrow, presiding judge of the court. In the former case Judge Davidson, then presiding judge, dissented, and in the latter Judge Prendergrast dissented.

Ruling on Liquor.

In the Meyer case the appellant was charged with selling intoxicating liquors in the state outside of restricted territory. The court ruled that he could sell the liquor as the legislature had no right to pass a law prohibiting the sale of liquor when the constitution of the state said it could be sold. The constitution was then amended by a vote of the people and prohibition became effective in Texas.

The Dean law was passed to aid the enforcement of this amendment and is

EASTLAND WILL HAVE WATER SUPPLY FOR ALL PURPOSES SOON

Special to the Times.

EASTLAND, May 11. — The city water mains will soon be connected with Lake Bradford, a fine body of water, three miles north of the city. A pumping plant and the laying of pipe lines is now nearing completion. When this is accomplished Eastland will then have connection with three splendid lakes, to say nothing of her wells south of town, which will afford an ample supply of water for a town of 50,000 people, if necessary.

Lead and zinc are absorbed by the soil near the mines and poison the plants, making the land unproductive.

WOMEN'S POISE AND COSTUME MENTAL GUIDE

Lecturer Says Dresses of Modern Day Are Ruinous to Sex.

By International News Service.

WELLESLEY, Mass., May 13.—"The costumes conventional in the past seven years which have made the flat chest effect and slouch so popular among women have a ruinous effect upon the posture and consequently the health of girls," said Dr. J. E. Goldthwaite in a lecture at Wellesley college.

"Costumes are deliberately planned without regard to health," the doctor declared. "The costumes are fashioned by Paris designers to suit the needs of the French coquette and to emphasize certain physical characteristics. They are copied and brought over here for unsuspecting and pure girls. The French lady does not puzzle on what the French coquette does, but our American girls do. When one is walking down the streets of Boston one cannot tell by dress whether the girl is true or not."

"There are two things which designers change most with the times. They are the waist line and the feet. High heels and costumes which demand a corset that does not permit an erect, queenly carriage are dangerous.

"No woman should neglect beauty, grace and all the elements which bring out the charms which are her right. But no woman should feel like a frump who has traipsed herself to stand erect and wear the dress which will permit it."

"The moral and spiritual state of the mind is expressed in the carriage. It is the college woman, the educated woman, who should set an example to her other sisters. But more often she is forgetful. We have only to go back to the Greeks and the Egyptians to prove the beauty and value of costumes which allow an erect, queenly posture."

Dr. Goldthwaite also made a plea for dress reform to lessen the deplorable immorality of the present day. "The future of mankind is in the hands of the college girl. She may teach other girls to do with less restraint what she does, or she may set an example of fineness which will help boys in college," Dr. Goldthwaite said.

LAREDO, May 12.—An excursion party of 275 persons, mostly of German and Bohemian birth or ancestry, passed through here enroute to Mexico City. The excursion was a pleasure trip, they said.

"Take-all," a new wheat disease, is said to be very destructive to wheat in Illinois and elsewhere in the Middle West. It is supposed to have been introduced by the planting of Australian wheat imported for food purposes.

ONE FACTORY WHERE GOLDEN RULE APPLIES

No Time Clock, and Employees Have Justified Faith in Their Integrity.

By Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 12.—The only inflexible, workable, industrial and economic law of the universe today is the Golden Rule, Arthur Nash, Cincinnati manufacturer, declared tonight in an address before the twenty-first annual session of the Congress of Disciples of Christ, now in session here.

Mr. Nash, speaking on "The Golden Rule in Business," told of the organization of the A. Nash company, of its incorporation in 1916, and how it had solved the industrial problem by the practical application of the Golden Rule in its own institution.

"I come not with a sermon of theoretical panaceas," he said, "I come with the narrative of things accomplished, and I am forced to relate such in the first person."

Giving what he termed a "bird's-eye view of a factory where the Golden Rule, God's economic law, holds sway," he presented the following facts:

Avoided Strike.

During 1919, the year known as the year of strikes, out of the thirty-one clothing manufacturing firms in Cincinnati his company was the only one unaffected by the strike.

During the year of non-production the company increased its output more than 1,000 per cent. The company has no time clock in its factory and places absolute confidence in the integrity of its employees.

Mr. Nash explained how the profit-sharing plan had been laid before the employees as the only basis for arriving at a just wage scale and how this was unanimously adopted. He also recounted numerous incidents to illustrate how the spirit of fair play and self-sacrifice had invaded the entire plant. One of these incidents occurred during the extreme industrial depression near the close of 1920, when the employees of the company voluntarily offered to give their jobs for one month to the most needy of the unemployed clothing workers of Cincinnati.

Mr. Nash declared he was not advocating profit-sharing as a solution of the capital and labor problem and particularly condemned the system of profit-sharing that had for its motive the erection of a barrier against trade unionism.

"Labor unions seem to me," he said, "to be physicians of industrial ills. Their mission seems to be, when they find an industrial body that is sick to try to cure it of its ailments. I think even the most autocratic of our industries will admit that in many cases the circulation is bad for their industries. The little members of their industrial bodies are not receiving sufficient flow of life's blood to keep them in a healthy condition."

MICHIGAN FARM BUREAU TO RUN 4 WOOL MILLS

LANSING, Mich., May 13.—Manufacture of blankets and suitings is assuming such proportions that the wool department of the Michigan state farm bureau contemplates adding a fourth mill to those now making farm bureau virgin wool products, it was announced here recently. It is planned to make up 25,000 blankets this summer for the fall trade. Growers will realize a big return on this venture.

The wool department has taken over a portion of the main offices at the farm bureau headquarters for a show room. Blankets and suitings are on sale there. HONOLULU POLICE GUARD WOMAN SAID TO BE HUSBAND KILLER

HONOLULU, May 13.—Precautions to prevent the suicide of Mrs. Lydia Southard, 28, of Twin Falls, Idaho, held here as an alleged feminine "Bluebeard," were taken today by the Honolulu police.

They said they had information which caused them to fear Mrs. Southard might take her own life.

"I did not poison my four husbands or my brother-in-law. They died natural deaths, and I have physicians' certificates to prove it."

According to information received here the husbands alleged to have been poisoned were: Robert C. Dooley, William C. McCaffey, Harlan C. Lewis and Edward S. Meyer. The other man was Edward Dooley, brother of Mrs. Southard who was arrested Wednesday at a boarding house where she was living with her fifth husband, Paul Southard, is specifically charged with the murder of Meyer, her fourth husband in Twin Falls, Idaho, on September 7th, 1920.

She is being held incommunicado in the city jail.

Mrs. Southard arrived here from Los Angeles on January 25th. She made numerous friends here who characterize her and Southard as "nice, quiet people."

CUSTER'S LAST FIGHT WILL BE HONORED BY HOLIDAY AT EL PASO

EL PASO, Texas, May 13.—June 25 has been designated as regimental day for the Seventh cavalry, stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas, in commemoration of the battle of Little Big Horn, in which General George A. Custer and his entire command were killed by Indians. The day will be a holiday in which special programs and exercises will be held.

Speeches honoring General Custer and his men will be made at the memorial. At the time of the battle of Little Big Horn, General Custer was a lieutenant colonel of the Seventh cavalry, hence the general order permitting June 25 to be observed as regimental day by the Seventh cavalry. The Seventh has in its possession the painting of the battle scene and a complete history of the regiment, which are kept in the adjutant's office.

11c COTTON AT GALVESTON IS NEAR LOW MARK

Is Within 4 1-4 Points of Lowest Figure During Panicky Days of War.

By Associated Press.

GALVESTON, May 12.—When middling cotton receded to 11 cents a pound here recently it sunk to within 4 1-4 points of the lowest figure recorded during the panicky days of the world war. The low tide of middling, according to records of the Galveston cotton exchange, arrived on Oct. 20, 1914, when that grade of the staple was quoted at only 6 3-4 cents.

Quoted at 13 cents a pound on the day following the outbreak of the world war, the course of middling ebbed and flowed during the succeeding months, the figures zig-zagging as did the fortunes of battle on the western and eastern fronts in Europe. An Aug. 3, cotton exchanges throughout the country voted to suspend spot quotations because of the uncertainties due to the war in Europe. Business was resumed, however, on Sept. 16, and middling was quoted at 8 1-8 cents. The notation was made on the books of the exchange here that "because of practically no demand, no quotations were made on grades lower than middling." On Sept. 17, middling rose to 8 3-8 cents, from which point it gradually declined until on Oct. 20, the same year, it touched its lowest mark, 6 3-4 cents a pound.

With the dawn of the new year middling showed a trifle of strength. On March 1 it was quoted at 8 1-4; on April 17, 10 cents; July 10, 8 1-2; Aug. 12, 9 cents; Aug. 28, 9 1-2 cents; Sept. 28, 11.9, and on Oct. 4, 12 1-4 cents. On Jan. 5, the first day of trading in 1916, spot middling was quoted at 12.45 cents, and on May 9, it first touched 13 cents.

From this time onward the staple showed a continual gain. On Aug. 3, middling was quoted at 14; Aug. 29 it touched 15; Aug. 31 it reached 16, and on Oct. 14, middling was quoted at 17 cents. Four days later it had risen to 18 cents.

The day following the presidential election, on May 5, middling cotton was quoted at 18.1 cents a pound, and on No. 14, 20 cents. Then the market receded, carrying middling downward to 14 1-2 cents a pound on Feb. 2, 1917.

The first trading day following the entry of the United States into the world war saw middling priced at 20.25 cents, and on Aug. 6, middling brought 27 cents. The highest point reached by cotton in 1917 was attained Dec. 28, when middling was chalked up at 30 cents. On January 3, 1918, the grade brought 31 cents, and on Sept. 3, 36.35 cents.

The peak achieved by the South-great product was registered in April, 1920, when middling went to 43 1-4 cents a pound, its highest price recorded in the United States since the Civil war.

PER SHOWS KANSAS LOSES ON RAIL RATES

Red Cake Goes Texas to and Cheaper Than Kansas to Kansas.

BASCOM N. TIMMONS
Staff Correspondent.
INGTON, May 12.—Urging a repeal of the 6 per cent.
clause of the Esch-Cum-Senator Capper, of Kansas, ate speech, cited numerous in Texas and Oklahoma in his contention that the rail-rates are exorbitant.

"At the same time sheep from our ranges, fruit from Florida and California, vegetables from Texas and the South, hay and oats and other products of the West, have been sold in the big market for less than enough to pay the freight, consequently enormous quantities of these home-grown products are being allowed to rot because it does not pay to ship them.
Barely 25 per cent. of the Texas cabbage crop will be marketed. Freight charges on a car of cabbage from Harrington, Texas, to Hastings, Neb., were $425. The growers received less than $75 for their labor.

"Our attitude toward the railroads should probably be more sympathetic than condemnatory. Most of those misguided men who in the past exploited the railroads and used them to exploit the people have gone to their final reckoning. The present situation demands helpful team-work. The roads are too much a part of our vital life to make it pay to belabor, injure or cripple them in any way. Nor can the present rates be defended or allowed to stand. They are suicidal, as injurious to the roads as to the people."

LISBON, May 11.—An incident which may suggest a characteristic of Marshal Joffre occurred at the imposing funeral services held over the two unknown Portuguese soldiers whose bodies were brought from France recently and placed in the Cathedral of Batalha.

The ceremonies were attended by the great French marshal and by other allied commanders.
Joffre was easily the most notable
escorted the soldiers' biers from the railway station. He marched behind the coffins with the other allied generals, walking with a slight limp and carrying his ebony and silver marshal's baton in his hand.

Flowers were showered on him from the windows and once, when the acclamations became especially overpowering, the hero of the Marne visibly affected, lifted his baton with a sudden gesture and pointed it toward the detachment of mutilated soldiers from the war who preceded him, indicating that the plaudits of the people should be for them.

CUSTOMS COLLECTOR AT GALVESTON SEEKS TO STOP BOOZE SMUGGLING

By Associated Press.
GALVESTON, Texas, May 13.—
A campaign to put an end to the smuggling of foreign-owned and operated vessels has been inaugurated by Fred C. Peast, collector of customs here.

The practice of bringing in illegal liquors, according to the authorities, has become widespread, sailors on almost every steamer flying a foreign flag adding to their income by acting as buyers for distributors in the various ports of this country. The sailors, it was said, frequently make as high as 1,000 percent on their contraband liquor sales.

Customs officials here declared that the master of any vessel from which merchandise or liquor is landed illegally, is liable to a fine of $400 for each offense and that, if the commodities so landed do not appear on the ship's manifest in proper form, the master is liable to fines in addition, equal to the value of the goods landed. In addition to this, it was pointed out, the ship itself is liable to seizure to insure payment of the fines for which the master is liable, and can be held in port until settlement of such fines is made.

BOMBING THE INDIANA—While the controversy rages between the air and naval experts of the Government over the merits of the aerial bomb and the battleship, tests are going on with the old battleship Indiana as the target. An International staff cameraman, J. A. Brockhorst, succeeded in getting pictures from the air, showing the bombs ex-

CISCO WANTS MORAN ROAD RUN OVER DAM

EASTLAND, May 12.—A committee representing the Cisco Chamber of Commerce, headed by Claude C. Wild, was in Eastland today in conference with the commissioners' court of Eastland county, looking toward the changing of the Cisco-Moran road so as to have it go over the dam of the new lake being constructed north of Cisco.

It was pointed out by the committee that the location of the new road is such that the back water of the lake will overflow it, and make it impassable to traffic. They seek to have the route of the road changed so that it will go over the dam. In order to do this it will be necessary to erect a giant steel bridge that will cost $75,000.

The Commissioners and County Judge approved of the general plan as submitted by the committee and authorized the carrying out of same, conditioned upon the cost, with the understanding that it was not to cost the county any more than as originally planned. The committee gave the commissioners every assurance that in the event of additional cost the citizens of Cisco would take upon themselves to supply same.

An order was made for the survey of the new route, and the result of this survey is to be reported back to the commissioners' court.

MRS. MILLS SAYS SHE'S JUST FULL OF NEW ENERGY

"Tanlac certainly came up to its reputation in my case—it's just wonderful what it did for me," said Mrs. Venia D. Mills, 304 1/2 Broadway, Muskogee, Okla.

"Before I began taking it I was so weak and run down and got so little rest at night I could hardly get up in the morning, and all during the day I just dragged myself around. I had no appetite, and what little I did force myself to eat caused me great distress afterwards. My housework became an awful drudgery to me, and I was so listless and worn out I took no interest in anything. It's just awful to feel that way all the time, and I grew low-spirited and discouraged. A friend wrote me from Branch, Ark., my old home, telling me about what Tanlac had done for her and, lucky for me, I took her advice and gave it a trial.

"It is certainly a grand medicine. I am only starting on my third bottle, but I feel as well and strong as I ever did and instead of that draggy worn-out feeling I am full of life and energy and feel bright and cheerful all the time. I would not be without Tanlac for anything, and I am going to keep on taking it for awhile to make sure my old troubles are gone for good."

U. S. FACES TIDAL WAVE OF IMMIGRATION FROM EUROPE
NEW YORK, May 12.—The United States faces a tidal wave of Europeans seeking to enter this country before the new restrictive immigration laws become effective. Commissioner Frederick A. Wallis, who made this statement in an interview with the United Press today, added that "it probably will be" in effect a race between congress and the immigrants.

"Reports from Europe indicate that people who planned to migrate to America at any time within the next year are now frantically abandoning everything and beseeching the American representatives there to vise their passports, Wallis said.

LAMB.

The one thought uppermost in the mind of the reviewer after seeing Bert Lytell today in "A Message From Mars" at the Lamb Theatre, where it began a run which will continue for one more day, was the need of meeting all his friends and acquaintances to them the excellences of the picture and give them the injunction not to miss seeing him.

Bert Lytell is brilliant as ever, versatile as ever, putting into his work a verve and a distinction which make him easily the unrivaled star of stars. Each picture one sees him in shows a new side, yet in this, his latest, even his most devoted admirers will be astonished at the dazzling perfection of his work.

As Horace Parker, the wealthy young Englishman who is the personification of egotism, no fault can be found with Mr. Lytell's interpretation. Parker's complacency suddenly comes to an end when he finds he has a visitor from Mars. Saddled on to him, a visitor invisible to the world but visible to him. The messenger tells Parker that until the regeneration takes place, he is condemned to haunt him. Then the fun and the tragedy begin; after vainly trying to get rid of the unwelcome guest by many subterfuges Parker suddenly goes through London town, seeing the checkered patterns of life, and finally winning salvation with the breakdown of his hard self-satisfaction.

This picture, a Maxwell Karger Production for Metro, was adapted by Arthur Zelnor and Arthur Maude from the successful stage play by Richard Ganahoney. Arthur Martinelli did the bewitching photoplay and M. P. Staulcup the wonderful designs. Praise must be given the able supporting cast, which includes Raye Dean, Maud Milton, Alphonz Edhier, Gordon Ash, Leonard Mudie, Mary Louise Beaton, Frank Currier and George Spinl.

WHY GIRLS BOB THEIR HAIR IS REVEALED BY U. OF T. STUDENTS

Special to the Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, May 13.—Students in the news-gathering and reporting class of the Department of Journalism at the University of Texas get a goor taste of the experiences of "cub reporters" in their work throughout the course when they have assignments covering the university neighborhood and university activities. Especially during the spring term when the members of the class take turns as "city editor" are the embryo reporters subject to vagaries supposedly typical of city editors.

One young woman of the class was recently assigned by an acting "city editor"—male of course, and of inquiring frame of mind—to find out why girls bobbed their hair. The resulting story shows extensive research into the momentous subject, and is quoted in part as follows:

"Why did I bob my hair? Because I think it is absurd to trouble yourself with fixing long hair. This is one step toward masculine freedom that I intend to take."

This was the reply of a certain athletic and strong-minded young woman student of the university. Others of the Sisterhood of Bobbed Heads gave answers as unique.

"Foolish!"

"Foolishness, pure and simple, made me cut my hair," said one disheartened maiden.

"The style of fixing the hair in big puffs, which made it necessary rough-comb it a great deal, just ruined my hair. So I decided to bob it to get it thick and even again."

"I bobbed mine just because the others were doing it."

"I like to shock my family, and I certainly succeeded when I had my hair cut. Dad was simply frantic."

"I thought my hair would be more becoming if it were bobbed. If you're little you can afford to look cute."

Now She Can Sleep.

"I was just so tired of having to get up early every morning and comb a great long mop of hair. I can now sleep until almost time for my nine o'clock class."

"I bobbed my hair on a bet. Five pounds of candy was the consideration."

"I broke my arm roller-skating, and had to have my hair cut because I couldn't fix it up for a long time."

Finds A Thrill.

"The most thrilling part about bobbing your hair," related one girl, "is going down to the barber shop to have it done. Two of my girl friends went with me, and the minute we stepped into the shop and told what we wanted, patrons and employes got wildly excited. Everybody just stopped what they were doing and stared at me while I took my hair down and combed it out. The man who was to cut my hair had to pin portions of it out of the way, and he was so awkward with his pins. I felt awfully embarrassed, and when he had just one side of my hair chopped off I could have wept. There was no going back then, but I felt so funny and bald."

It's All Wrong.

"Believe me," said one girl whose head was covered with a mass of short fluffy curls, "all this business of saving time and energy by cutting your hair is false. Why, I spend lots more time on my hair than I used to, because I have to roll it up every night and fluff it out in the morning, in order to have it in style. I wish they'd wear it like Buster Brown does."

"For one thing," joined in a little brunette, "you may think boys like bobbed hair, but as a rule they don't. All my boy friends nearly had fits when I appeared at school one day with my hair bobbed. I had an awful time getting them in a good humor again. They seem to think that upon bobbing your hair you automatically become a feminist and forget how to cook and darn socks."

NEGROES' NIGHT SCHOOL.

The negroes of Ranger have organized a night school. The Bible and the English language will head the list of studies to which the students will devote themselves.

It is understood the negroes of this city were prompted to this move by their own desire for a better knowledge of the Bible and because they feel the need of more intimate familiarity with the forms and usages of the language of their country.

Having in mind both the economic and social aspects of the possibilities of a voluntary move of this nature on the part of the negro citizens, the Times sees much to elicit favorable, even laudatory comment.

Only good can come of any movement toward a higher education and night schools offer about the only opportunity for many who are forced to labor hard throughout the day and to earn their bread by the sweat of their brow.

It is a move that could well be emulated by white persons, some of whom could profitably make some such a move for a betterment of their social and economic conditions.

In their efforts to enrich their minds with a better knowledge of the language and the Bible the negroes should have the support of every citizen.

They have asked that employers of members of their race in the city urge them to attend the school. This should be done without fail in every instance.

The ambition to acquire "more light" is a mark of progress and the Times is glad to see it exemplified in this announcement of what Ranger negroes are doing.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

It was with a sigh of weariness that the Successful Business Girl, tossing her bundles carelessly on the floor, flung herself into the Woman's easiest chair and said weakly: "Make my tea very strong and very, very hot, please."

The Woman did both and then said: "Busy season?"

"No. This is a slack time, and I haven't been near the office today. I've been shopping and I've had a fitting at the tailor's and I've stood hours while the dressmaker draped things on me. And the end is not yet. Tomorrow I buy hats. That is the worst of all!"

Now the Successful Business Girl is always well groomed. Quality she insists upon, but quantity she means little to her. So the Woman was surprised. Then, eagerly: "Not a trou-serau, is it?"

The Girl shook her head in negation. "But it might as well be," she said. "I'm spending much more than I can afford. When I pay the bills, I'll wish I never promised to go home for my vacation this year."

The Woman has never been to the town from which the Successful Business Girl hails—but she feels she knows that particular Gopher Prairie in the Mississippi Valley. So she was amazed to learn that it was for a two-weeks' visit there the Girl was buying so many clothes. She was soon enlightened. "In New York," said the guest, putting down her teacup, "I get along very well with two suits for the office, and three frocks for parties. But on theme—well, the last time I went I learned my lesson. My family hated to hurt my feelings, but I knew they were disappointed that I didn't have more clothes. They have always been talking about my working, for in our town a girl whose father is a leading citizen doesn't work. She stays at home, goes to the country club, drives the car, works in the Red Cross, and eventually marries. I wouldn't accuse my family of bragging about me, but they do tell people what a fine position I have and without stating my income give the impression that it is large. So when I go home without a lot of clothes everyone looks sceptical. Good gracious! Did that clock strike four? I simply must run over to buy me an evening wrap I saw at a little shop around the corner. I'll never really need it here—but for the honor of my family it is going back home with me."

Doctor's Orders. The Mid-Victorian Lady had stooped in to ask the Pretty Little Teacher for a donation to the church fair.

"Come right up stairs," called the Little Teacher over the boarding house banisters, and the Mid-Victorian Lady climbed up the narrow stairs to the white and Dresden third floor back, where the Little Teacher, in a rose silk dressing gown and suspiciously knobby boudoir cap, greeted her apologetically.

"I'm getting ready for a dance and I just couldn't come down looking like this. But I didn't want you to go away, so—you don't mind, do you? I look a sight. I've just been lying trying to get a bit of rest. Last week was hectic—two dances and two theatres—and this week has been worse. I'm about dead."

"I missed you at church last Sunday," said the Mid-Victorian Lady, whose seat is just behind the Little Teacher's.

"Oh, yes," assented the girl, with a shake of her pretty head. "I felt so run down last week that I went to the doctor's, and he said I was over-doing and must let up. So I've decided that I'll just have to cut out Sunday morning service, for a time, anyway."

Betty Speaks. In a small suburb, perhaps eighteen minutes from the Pennsylvania station, lives a happy and contented family of three, of which Betty, three years of age, is absolute ruler. On a recent visit the young hostess told the Woman how difficult it was to impress Betty with the fact that she should not quote Martha, the colored cook.

Above their voices, hushed lest Betty overhear, rose the following one-sided conversation in the living room, where Betty addressed the family collectively: "Beauty, get down off'n mother's chair." Then silence for about three minutes, while "Betty the absolute" played with her dolls. Once again: "Beauty, you h-o-u-s-e-d, do you hear me? Get down off'n mother's chair, or I'll tell your daddy when he comes home."

TINKER BOB STORIES

By CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB.

A VISIT WITH MR. FROG.

"Well, so far as I am concerned I will not ride on a ferry that is handled by Billy Mink. I know him too well and he never could get me out in the diver for all of the ferries in the world." Jack the Rabbit was talking to Sammy Squirrel, who happened along and heard Mr. Turtle telling the whole conversation between Three-legs and Mr. Mink.

"As for me, I would rather walk a dozen times to the old covered bridge before I'd ride on a ferry conducted by that fellow. Why it wouldn't be long till he'd have every creature in the Forest killed and their blood sucked out, and then he'd laugh. Oh I know him for he told me once if he ever caught me in the dark he would fix me." Little Sammy chattered away and he didn't care who heard him either.

"I'll tell you what let's do! Let's go see Mr. Frog the Croaker and get him to call on Three-legs the Muskrat. What do you say?"

"That's just the thing to do. We'll tell him that the King wants to see Three-legs and I'm sure he'll be glad to go for him. And too, Mr. Frog and Three-legs are good friends." Away went Jack the Rabbit and Sammy the Squirrel to visit Mr. Frog, the Croaker.

They found Mr. Frog asleep on a log taking a sun bath. "Wake up Mr. Frog, wake up I say," cried Sammy for Sammy was the greatest fellow to talk you ever saw. In fact, Sammy would do all of the talking if Jack would give him a chance. But Jack didn't always do that.

Jack stamped his feet on the ground but never said a word. "He'll never hear that, you've got to call loudly to him for he is a hard sleeper." Nevertheless after Jack had stamped a few more times Mr. Frog awoke and blinked his eyes, to the surprise of little Sammy. He looked about a moment and then he spied his friends on the bank. "Croak, croak," said he. "I'm glad to see you, but what are you doing here?"

"We came here to see if you would go tell Three-legs, the Muskrat, that the King of the Forest wants to see him," said Sammy before Jack had a chance to say a word. But then Jack took another chance and told Mr. Frog all about the little affair.

"Croak, croak, sure thing I'll go tell Three-legs for that Mink, is no fellow to conduct a ferry. He'd even like to catch me if he could." Plunk went Mr. Frog the Croaker into the water and swam away to the door of Three-legs' house.

Tomorrow we will hear about it.

Joseph Daniels Tells Story of American Navy's Exploits in World War

By CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB.

over such a distance that the world has ever seen. It is true the Germans did their best, when they realized the use to which their mighty vessel might be put, to block our employment of it. The plans for conversion, which had been all worked out most carefully and which were among the ship's papers when she first came to New York were spirited away. We had to make our own plans, but that was done without any great delay.

They took the greatest pains to prevent our using any of the German vessels. Before we got possession of them, their engines and machinery were so badly damaged by their crews that the Germans thought they could never be repaired in time to get into the war. American experts estimated that repairs would require from one to two years. But the navy, by using electric welding and other new methods, repaired them in a few months and all were carrying American troops and supplies before the end of 1917. This was a triumph of American ingenuity and engineering skill.

The interned German ships, which we appropriated and rechristened with American names, carried to Europe 537,488 men. The list of these ships with their original and their new names, and the number of men each carried, is worth preserving as a record of one of the most extraordinary instances in history of how a great nation may be hastened to its downfall through instrumentalities which it had constructed for its own aggrandizement. Here it is:

Table with 3 columns: German Name and American Name, U. S. Troops Carried to Europe, and No. of U. S. Troops Carried to Europe. Includes ships like Vaterland-Levathan, Kaiser William II-Agamenon, etc.

Total 557,488. Made Trips Unscorted. The Leviathan carried from 10,000 to 11,000 men on each trip eastward and in 1918, when we were rushing troops to France, she often made this perilous voyage across the Atlantic without cruiser escort, relying on her speed and guns to escape the U-boats.

When Admiral Gleaves came to Washington for his final instructions just before the first troop convoy sailed for Europe, as he was leaving, my office I said to him: "Admiral, you are going on the most important, the most difficult and the most hazardous duty assigned to the navy. Good-by."

That was no overstating it, in an particular. No nation in history has ever attempted to transport so huge an army overseas. It would have been difficult enough under the most ideal conditions, with nothing to hinder or molest.

The German navy could have no greater object than to prevent our troops from getting to France. There could have been no greater victory for them than to have sunk a transport loaded with American soldiers. Allied troopships had been sunk, from time to time, in spite of every safeguard. We were taking every precaution that could be devised, but this was a new and untried task for us—and one on which our whole participation in the war depended.

Words can hardly express the strain of those anxious days when those ships of the first convoys carrying 12,000 troops were running the gauntlet to France; or our relief when we received the news that they had all arrived safely at St. Navarre.

Sailing in a dense fog on June 14, 1917, the first group arrived June 26, the last, the cargo ships, on July 2. The first group, Admiral Gleaves reported, was attacked by submarines the night of June 22, at 10:15 p. m.; the second group encountered two, and a torpedo was fired at the fourth group on June 29. That they had escaped the submarines was an added cause for rejoicing. Not a ship was damaged or a man injured and an officer reported to Admiral Gleaves:

"We didn't lose but one horse, and that was a mule." "The German Admiralty had boasted that not one American soldier should set foot in France," Admiral Gleaves says in his book. "The bluff had been called, and it could not have been called at a more psychological moment."

Had to Work Fast. Getting that first group of transports together was a job. The army had only a few troop ships, none of them fit for trans-Atlantic service. The navy had only three—the Henderson, just completed, the Hancock, and the former German commerce raider, Prinz Eitel Friedrich, which we converted into an auxiliary cruiser and renamed the DeKalb. The army secured fourteen mail and cargo steamships and hastily converted them. It had to be quick work.

We had not contemplated sending troops so soon. From a military standpoint it would have been better, some experts declared, to have retained the regulars for a while to aid in training the new officers and raw recruits, and not to have begun transportation until we had a larger army.

But war-weary France, grimly holding back the Germans, and England, beset by submarines, needed cheering up. Needed visible evidence that reinforcement was certain, that the Americans were coming, Marshal Joffre asked that some troops be sent at the earliest possible moment—"a regiment or two; if possible a division." He told Secretary Baker that he looked forward to the day when the United States should build up its "splendid army of 400,000 or 500,000."

Secretary Baker immediately began his preparations to send troops. General Pershing was chosen to command the forces to be sent to Europe, and was summoned from the Mexican border May 7. The brief telegram sent him is of such historic interest that I think you would like to see how it read:

No. 1 DIOD 45 GOVT. DI Washington, D. C. May 7, 1917. Major General John J. Pershing, Ft. Sam Houston, Texas. Number 6719.

Repair to this city at once and report to Chief Staff for consultation and on completion of duty return to proper station. Travel directed necessary in military service. By order Secretary War.

McCain, 9:12 A. M. I devoted considerable thought to selecting the officer to command the expedition; for he was also, as it happened, to have general direction of the vast task of troop transportation. I selected Rear Admiral Albert Gleaves then in command of our destroyer force, and I never had reason to regret this choice. No man could have done a big job better; no job was ever better done.

Fleet Totaled 149 Vessels. From this small beginning was built up the great cruiser and transport force which took to France 911,047 American soldiers, and brought home 1,700,000—a total of 2,600,000 carried across the Atlantic. In less than a year it grew to a fleet of twenty-four cruisers and forty-two troop ships, and after the armistice comprised 140 vessels carrying troops, with facilities for 13,914 officers and 348,770 men.

Transporting 2,000,000 United States troops to France was such an immense undertaking that all the shipping we could get, American as well as foreign, was employed. This has led to a little controversy as to how they were carried over.

Of the 194,965 troops which sailed before the end of 1917, 113,428 were carried in American vessels, all but 3,555 were taken in our transports. In January, February and March of 1918, British vessels carried 57,999 United States naval transports, 123,177. Foreign shipping in large quantity did not become available until after the famous "Marné drive" made by the Germans in 1918. Then the most important thing to the allies was getting Americans to Europe, and British "rench" and Italian ships in numbers were furnished us.

British Beat U. S. in May. In April, 1918, 65,553 sailed in United States transports. 47,862 in British ships. In May the British carried more than we did, 137,795 to our 99,561, besides 12,127 carried in Italian vessels. In May, 1918, the British carried 137,795 to our 99,561, besides 12,127 carried in Italian vessels. In the next five months up to the armistice though we carried 520,410 in naval transports and 8,973 in other American ships, British vessels carried 692,931; British-leased Italian vessels, 53,488; and French, Italian and other foreign ships, 32,218.

The records of the cruiser and transport force show that, in all, 2,798,850 American troops were transported to France before the armistice—52,581 in American vessels, 910,047 of these in United States naval transports; 1,066,987 in British ships, 62,446 in British-leased Italian vessels and 52,966 in French, Italian and other foreign ships. American vessels carried 4.25 per cent, 43.75 of this in United States naval transports; British vessels, 48.25 per cent; British-leased Italian ships, 3 per cent,

Little Benny's

I was walking home from school today, being kind of monotonous, and I thawt, G. I think I'll walk backwards for a change.

Wch I started to do, walking 20 steps backwards and then looking around I to see how strata I was walking and then walking 20 more steps, and I kept on doing that till all of a sudden I bumped into something and I quck turned around and it was some man, being a kind of a fat man with thin legs.

Excuse me, I sed, I excuse my eye, wy the mischief dont you walk fruntwards like a regular human being insted of walking backwards and tramping into peoples feet in this manner? sed the fat man.

Excuse me, I sed, and kepp on walking fruntwards as quick as possible, and down at the corner I looked around and the fat man was still brushing off his shoes with his handkerchief, and wen I got in the next block I started walking backwards agen, and pritty soon I bumped into something else, being a thin lady, with a natural mad expression looking even madder on account of being bumped into.

Excuse me, I sed, and she sed, Ill give you a slap in the face, thats wat I'll do, have you got the sents you were born with, walking like a clown in a circus?

No mam, I mean yes mam, excuse me, I sed, and I kepp on walking fruntwards agen as if that was the only way I ever walked, and wen I got in the next block I thawt, Well I'll try it once more and if I bump into one more thing thats the last I'll do it.

Wch I hadent hardly started agen wen I bumped into something else, being a tree and giving myself such a farsee bump on the hed I could feel a lump ware it hit, and wen I got home I gave ma the lump to feel and she started to get sympathetic but as soon as I told her how it happened she stoped and started to get mad insted.

French, Italian and others, 2.5 per cent. Navy Escorted 82.75 Per Cent. But this is only half the story. The purely naval duty, that of escorting these vessels, guarding them against attack by raiders or submarines. Of this, the British navy performed 14.125 per cent, the French 3.125 per cent, and the United States navy 82.75 per cent. Of this total number of troops, 61,617 were under French escort, 297,903 under British escort and 1,720,380 sailed under the escort of the United States navy.

We would not have sent over nearly so many troops as we did if we had not been aided by the British, French and Italian vessels. This was no game, of course. The United States government paid, and paid well, for every soldier transported on a foreign vessel. The aid of the British and French was invaluable and highly appreciated. They should be given full credit for all they did; but this should not detract from the great part performed by our navy in putting through "the biggest transportation job in history."

NEGROES OF RANGER HAVE NIGHT SCHOOL

Organization Completed and Classes Begin Next Tuesday Night; Ask Co-operation.

Helping the negroes of Ranger in their studies of the Bible and efforts to acquire correct usage of the English language is the purpose of the night school for negroes which will open its doors to the members of that race next Tuesday night. The school was organized under the supervision of Rev. G. W. Carraway, pastor of the Colored Methodist church, and will be conducted in St. Paul's Tabernacle. Once each month a pastor of one of the white churches will be asked to address the class. The organizers also ask that all employers of negroes in the city urge their employees to attend the night classes whenever possible.

"The night school will be non-denominational," Rev. Carraway said yesterday. "It will be open to classes every Tuesday night. All that students will need to bring is a Bible, a tablet and pencil. Hours will be from 8 to 9 o'clock. It is our desire to help in every way we can to afford our people in Ranger an opportunity to gain a better knowledge of the Bible and the English language. And we ask the co-operation of the white people to this end."

Rev. Carraway will be Bible teacher and Mrs. M. B. Boyd and Gus Campbell teachers of English. Committee on studies is as follows: Rev. T. C. Nickleberry, Mrs. T. B. Brock, Mrs. Dora McIntosh, Rev. Pitts Miller and Rev. Carraway; committee on finance, George Brock, Eastern Hatcher, Harrison Dixon, James Smith, T. J. Watkins, J. W. Smith, A. B. Long, Mrs. W. Waley, Mrs. W. E. Smith and Will Lester.

"MEDICINE" NOT TO BE HAD, CRYSTAL FALLS PLANS WAR ON SNAKES

Special to the Times.
CRYSTAL FALLS, May 12.—War has been declared on rattle snakes in this section of the country. This action was taken last night at the meeting of the Crystal Falls Chamber of Commerce, after J. J. The continued dry spring is believed to cause the serpents to travel continually in search of water.

BOLSHEVIKI CANNOT CHOOSE OWN HOMES

By Associated Press.
RIGA, May 11.—Choice of a home is not permitted in the land of the Bolsheviks, according to persons reaching here from Russia. Everything belongs to the government which assigns living quarters.

Special barracks have been assigned to persons from America as Soviet authorities consider them unreliable rebels that must be kept apart from others. Everybody knows these "Americans" by their sad faces and dismal silence. They do not answer if spoken to in Russian, but their faces brighten if some one appears who knows English, and especially the American vernacular.

"Don't you speak English?" is their first question, followed quickly by the inevitable second: "Is there any way to get back to America?" But there is no way out, for Russia is locked from within.

Mineral Wells Loses West Texas League Franchise

LEAGUE VOTES FOR REMOVAL TO BALLINGER OR BRECKENRIDGE; CISCO GETS ANOTHER CHANCE

Backers Promise to See Club Through Season; Will Move Park to Downtown Location; Bids on Resorter Franchise to Be Considered at Meeting in Two Weeks.

Special to the Times. ABILENE, May 13.—Mineral Wells was given until May 26 to dispose of its franchise to either Breckenridge or Ballinger, by the directors of the West Texas league at a meeting held here Thursday night.

The dropping of Cisco was also taken under advisement but was deferred for the time being on promise of the Cisco backers to see their team through the season.

They will move their park up town and it is thought that this will improve their attendance, although Sunday baseball will be eliminated. It was said that city ordinance prohibits baseball on Sunday in the city limits.

Heated discussions took place when the subject of dropping Cisco came up. They emphatically assured the directors that after their park is moved up town their attendance will increase sufficiently.

MARCONI BELIEVES WIRELESS TELEPHONE WILL SPAN ATLANTIC

LONDON, May 13.—Signor Marconi inventor of wireless, pins his faith to trans-Atlantic telephonic communication by wireless instead of by cable, despite the recent successful experiments in America connecting Cuba with the mainland in a telephone circuit extending 5,000 miles.

"I still think," he said, "that the only satisfactory method of telephoning across the Atlantic is by wireless. At present we can only do a short distance by cable telephone—from London to Paris is as far as we can do now. In attempts to communicate with Spain we have failed. Up to 100 or 200 miles of cable it works. With 1,000 miles or more of cable it won't work.

"Wireless telephony, of course, has not yet been developed to the same extent as the wire telephone, but it is being rapidly improved. We have not done anything like 5,000 miles thus far. We have spoken successfully from London to Rome, and we have got words through to America, but not in a commercial or practical way. At present there are certain disturbances of the waves in space, the cause of which has not been discovered."

CRIMINALS OF NEW TYPE NOW SUPPLANT OLD

Younger School Less Ingenious But Their Crimes Are More Bold and Daring.

By Associated Press. PITTSBURGH, May 13.—A new and distinct type of criminal is supplanting the old class of outlaws, detectives and criminologists representing 350 agencies, were told here recently when plans were perfected to form the International Secret Service association.

This new class, while far more bold and daring, lack the ingenuity of the old-time criminal, it is said. Where criminals in the past indulged in counterfeiting, forgery and swindling games that required patience to execute, the newer and younger generation, ranging in age from 17 to 24, specialize in bank and mail robberies, train holdups, payroll thefts and other daring crimes, speakers declared.

With the object in view of combating these criminals, the association, tentatively formed at Chicago last March, was organized formally here. The organization includes nearly every detective agency of importance in the United States and will maintain offices in foreign countries. A clearing house will be established at Philadelphia through which members may obtain information gathered by individual effort and with the co-operation of state and municipal authorities.

The officers elected at the Pittsburgh meeting follow: J. B. Taylor, Philadelphia, president; F. E. Boke, first vice-president, Toronto, Can.; John E. Ferris, second vice-president, Milwaukee; F. H. Smiley, Chicago, secretary and James F. Quigley, Indianapolis, treasurer.

GEE! LOOK HOW FOCHT WOULD SPEND MONEY

Timmons Tells of Generous Plans to "Do Things" for Washington District.

By BASCOM N. TIMMONS, Times Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, May 11.—It was a regular banquet. There was plenty of food, congenial company, an adequate setting. The real estate dealers of the capitol were dining a distinguished guest—in fact two distinguished guests.

One of them was the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards. The other was Representative Benjamin K. Focht, (Rep.) chairman—very much the chairman, of the District of Columbia committee of the house of representatives.

Paraphrasing, as it is known, the District of Columbia committee of the house of representatives may not mean much outside of Washington, but inside—well, the chairman can get a free meal whenever he wants one. It is the committee that to a large extent controls the appropriations out of which the capitol proceeds on its way to its ultimate destiny, whatever that may be.

Representative Focht, properly dined, properly expansive, and possessing a fine flow of language and a thorough familiarity with the modern terms, "billion" and "million," arose to his feet. The diners pushed back their chairs, acknowledged the introduction by clapping loud and long, and lighted long, black cigars.

Ninevah? A village, Tyre? A hamlet! Babylon? A wayside weed-patch! Beside what Representative Focht intended to do with and for Washington, these communities faded completely out of history's perspective.

The hanging gardens could go hang! A hundred millions? Pocket change for a new school system! A billion? A start on the new hanging gardens! As Mr. Focht put it originally and succinctly: "Gen'lmen the sky's the limit."

They Liked It. All this happened on one night last week. Need it be stated that the guests were appreciative, congratulatory, and passed the cigars again? And that the capitol's new found Guardian Angel—and croesus was the hero of the hour, and got his name in the papers, and that the headlines screamed of the millions and billions and of Ninevah and Focht? It need not. Then—tee, dragged the newspaper clippings of the story into congress the next afternoon, obtained recognition from the speaker and between intervals of laughter from the floor said: "About the first thing I saw in the headlines was 'Focht would give the city $100,000,000.' As soon as I saw that I said, 'Bully for Focht.' He is the most generous, magnanimous man I ever heard of, coming from Pennsylvania, Texas or anywhere else in the United States. Then I learned it was not his money he was going to give, but some one else's money. I discovered the $800,000 was coming not out of his own pocket, but out of the treasury—out of the people's money. I turned back to the paper and read more of what the gentleman had said.

"You remember the old saying, 'before and after taking' and Phillip drunk and Phillip sober.' That is what I was reminded of. Because our friend from Pennsylvania, chairman of the great District committee when he was UNDATED has been quoted as saying there is no five million dollar surplus in the treasury to the credit of the District.

"Yet after the banquet last night, and after being dined, he says this: 'The sky is the limit so far as I am concerned. I come from Pennsylvania, where we are accustomed to spend money. Representatives from Pennsylvania are not in the same position as the people who come from the jackrabbit states of the South and West, where there is not so much money.'

"He says he is used to spending money and therefore would give the District $100,000,000 for schools and spend $800,000,000 to make the Babylonian king, if he could rise, envious of the hanging gardens he would place in Washington."

Representative Blanton, replying to Focht's "jackrabbit" reference, declared: "You could take the whole state of Pennsylvania and hide it in the jumbo district of Mr. Hudspeth."

"There may be jackrabbits there," Blanton said, "But listen. These jackrabbits are not bad at all. There are other animals over the country—even in Pennsylvania—where they raise some almost as long-eared as my friend from Pennsylvania.

"I will tell you gentlemen, why he is used to spending money. He has been sucking the public teat for nineteen long years. It is public money he has been spending—not private money. We fellows from the jackrabbit states of the South are used to spending our money freely, but when we spend the people's money out of the public treasury, we are very careful about it. We do not handle it in $800,000,000 lots."
