One hundred and sixty barrels an hour was what the White Oil company's Nannie Walker No. 3 came in at Wednesday, when it hit the deep sand recently uncovered by the Texas Pacific's Stewart No. 2.

These two wells, together with another on the Nannie Walker tract, which hit the deep pay a year ago and was regarded as a freak, prove up considerable acreage as big pay territory, and is expected to cinch the drilling or deepening of several other wells.

THURSDAY IS FINAL DAY FOR STARNES PLAN

Receiving of depositors' agreements to the reopening of the First National bank under the Starnes plan will continue as long as they come around this afternoon, it was announced Thursday morning, but is positively the last day.

It was a noisome place where the pervent, bound and abandoned his little victim, long, narrow cave formed by the dam on one side and the wall of the foundation of the building on the other.

It is cluttered with refuse. Although its opening is directly toward a house perched on the hill on the opposite side of the main road, the depths of the cave are shrouded in shadow even on a bright afternoon.

Locks of the girl's auburn hair, scattered over a wide area in the narrow defile of the cave and finger prints along the rugged clay bank are eloquent if mute testimony to the struggle the little girl made against the efforts of her captor.

The aged Mexican who liberated the girl declared that the man appeared from the west after he had led the child into the road, and that as he drove by in his automobile, headed for the city again, he looked at the girl and laughed.

The girl walked most of the way to town, when she advised her parents of the occurrence.

Several weeks ago, while Ocella was alone with her 5-year-old sister at the family home, 510 North Rusk street, the same man came up behind her and clipped a part of her hair.

She ran into the house and later ran several hours before the police were notified. By that time the man had disappeared and all efforts to locate him failed.

HALL-LOONEY WEDDING IS THURSDAY EVENT

Prettily Staged Affair Is Attended By Host of Society Friends of Couple.

Special to the Times
THURBER, Texas, May 5.—Miss Lillian Frances Hall and Mr. Ben F. Looney, Jr., were married Wednesday night at 8:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Hall. The Rev. F. R. Young of Mineral Wells performed the ceremony.

The home was decorated with quantities of roses and greenery. An altar was improvised of ferns and palms and a canopy of vines and roses from which was hung a floral wedding bell was arranged above the wedding party.

The receiving hostesses were Mrs. James S. Baldwin and Miss Myrah Rhodes. Mrs. Ross Bell presided over the bride's book.

Proceeding the ceremony Mrs. Earl D. Mitchell sang the pre-nuptial song "God Made You Mine," accompanied by Miss Lucile Keith on the violin. Miss Keith also accompanied Miss Rhodes, who played the wedding march.

The bride was beautifully attired in a gown of white chantilly lace over white satin and carried a bouquet of pink roses and lilies.

The dining room was artistically decorated with flowers and a large bell of green in which pink and white were woven. The table with the wedding cake as a centerpiece was prettily decorated in pink and white.

Miss Mary Rhodes, assisted by Mrs. Goodson of Mungin, presided over the punch bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. Looney left for a wedding trip to Greenville to visit the bridegroom's mother and father.

Mrs. Looney wore as a going-away costume a smart suit of navy blue

'IN AND OUT,' IS NAME OF CLUB C. OF C. PLANS

GULF PRODUCTION CO. WHIP BUSINESS MEN, EIGHT TO SEVEN

The "In and Out" club will be a new feature of Chamber of Commerce work in Ranger during the coming year, and the public forum will be made a more important feature of the chamber's activities. Both of these propositions were discussed with the board of directors Thursday noon by William A. Hart, the American Bureau expert who has been here for the last week assisting in getting the new year started.

The "In and Out" club is the membership committee. The chamber this year proposes to enlist new blood just as fast as it comes to town, and not wait until the end of the year. For this purpose a membership committee of twenty will be selected. Each committeeman will hold office until he has obtained one new member for the club. Then he has the privilege of retiring and naming his successor, who also will hold the place until he has signed up a new man. Therefore, the "In and Out" club, if one gets in, it depends on his own efforts when he gets out. Reports of club members will be made at the regular forum meetings.

Mr. Hart also gave a report of his survey of the chamber and its work during the past year. He announced that the chamber under the management and spirit that the association had done a worthy work in making a contribution out of a mere gathering of individuals.

MRS. BIRD DIVS NEW ROOMING HOUSE SITE

Mrs. N. M. Bird has purchased two lots on Austin street, adjoining the police station, and will move the Oklahoma rooms, now in the 300 block on Rusk street, to them. The site was surveyed Thursday morning.

HEREFORD—Thirty wheat growers have formed a local organization of the Texas Wheat Growers' association here and a membership of 200 is expected by May 15, according to C. C. Dodd, secretary of the state organization. The Hereford farmers represent 4,100 acres of wheat in the compulsory pool of the association.

It is expected the widow will make a hard fight for the fortune snatched away from her by the deathbed codicil.

THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE

"Now you are talking about something good to eat" says Billy to Mary Jane

Mary Jane and Billy Stinger

ONE day, when Mary Jane was going to her Grandma Susan's, she met Billy Stinger, the occupine. "Well, isn't this a fine day," said Mary. And Billy said yes, it was. But did she have anything good to eat in that little basket?

Mary Jane said, "I certainly have. I have tea, and allspice and a nice head of cabbage for Grandma Susan." But Billy said, "I said something to eat."

And Mary Jane said, "Oh, I've got a lunch put up for myself, if I get hungry on the road. It's a couple of nice slices of bread, and a whole lot of delicious Mary Jane Syrup spread on it."

And Billy Stinger said, "Well, why didn't you say so before. Now you're talking about something good to eat."

And so they sat under a tree, and ate their lunch and enjoyed it ever so much. For there is nothing better than Mary Jane Syrup on bread, or waffles or pancakes, or for making the finest taffy and caramels you ever tasted in your life.

And then Billy Stinger and Mary Jane went to Grandma Susan's and played peek-a-boo and blind-man's bluff, all the afternoon, till it was time to go home and eat supper and go sound away asleep in the little white bed, near the window where the summer leaves rustled and told Mary Jane wonderful stories all night long.

FLOOD OF GOLD SWEEPING ON UNITED STATES

Amount Is Now $3,001,487,915 and Tide Continues to Rise Steadily.

NEW YORK, May 5.—A veritable flood of gold is sweeping upon the shores of the United States. Already the precious metal in the country has attained the unprecedented amount of $3,001,487,915 and yet the tide is rising.

Financiers attribute this to the fact that the United States is the world's one "creditor nation" and for the equally important reason that the other nations of the world find it well nigh impossible to transact business with this country, by reason of their own depreciated currency.

The precious metal is coming from all quarters of the globe, but the European countries, more particularly Great Britain and France, as well as the Scandinavian nations, are paying heaviest toll.

Much of the gold received from England represents shipments from South Africa to London, while the French and other consignments hark back to the days of the war and in some instances to much longer periods.

For example, Sweden is sending gold received from Germany for war supplies; also bar gold or bullion which many believe to be of Russian origin. By way of the Pacific have come occasional shipments of gold from Siberia where they formed part of General Kolchak's war chest.

South America and Central America also are aiding involuntary contributions to this country's vast holdings of the yellow metal, mainly because unsettled economic conditions in Latin America virtually preclude any other form of payment to this country.

The local Assay Office, a new structure, whose modern equipment includes vaults of five floors below the street level, now holds upward of $1,000,000,000, fully one-third of which had come from foreign countries.

The machinery of the Assay Office here is working at high pressure in an effort to reduce and refine the foreign bullion and coin. Reports that large quantities of the gold are being shipped with apprehension, George E. Roberts, a vice-president of the National City Bank and for years Director of the United States Mint, is quoted as saying:

EVERYBODY OWES U. S. "It is natural that the people of Europe should be sending us their gold. Everybody, everywhere owes us money. The easiest way for them to pay, if they can, is in gold."

Pointing to the reduced international value of the British bank note, French and Belgian francs, the Italian lira and the shilling almost to the vanishing point of German marks and Austrian kronen, Mr. Roberts adds:

"So long as the premium on the gold dollar exists and is general, gold will probably continue to flow here in greater or less quantities. It seems incredible, however, that it can long continue at the present rate."

Paul M. Warburg, a recognized banking authority, now chairman of the newly organized International Acceptance Bank, Inc., says of the gold movement:

"With gold flowing our way, having resulted in an unprecedented accumulation of gold in our country, and with the increasing strength of the Federal Reserve System, it would be plainly up to the United States not to hoard its vast banking strength, but to make it available for other countries for the purpose of once more starting the wheels of commerce going.

"America, having become the gold pivot of the world's countries with strongly fluctuating exchanges in order to do a world trade, would have to lean heavily on American short-term credits. American banks, in granting these credits, could well take upon their shoulders a burden amounting to a billion dollars or more and, to that extent, relieve Europe.

"This would be one of the many measures that the United States would

Under Navy's Guns President Declares Plans to World

Standing beneath the fourteen-inch guns of the flagship Pennsylvania, President Harding is shown addressing the officers of the Atlantic fleet in Hampton Roads, Va. In his speech the President said: "The United States does not want anything on earth that does not rightfully belong to us; no territories, no payment of tribute. But we do want that which is righteously our own, and, by the eternal, we mean to have it. You of the navy are the first line of defense. I wish you might never be compelled to fire a gun in war." Following the reception aboard the Pennsylvania the President and his party reviewed the fleet which has just returned from the winter manœuvres at Guantanamo Bay, Cuba.

have to take in order to bridge the gap now existing between the dollar and other currencies, but on a very comprehensive scale it could safely be undertaken only when political and economic peace would have been re-established in Europe."

EVANGELIST SAYS MAN IS TRYING TO HIDE AWAY FROM GOD

"Like the wild beasts of the Jordan, driven from cave to cave as the flood ascends men are trying to hide away from God with the vain hope that in their retreat they will find themselves secure against the oncoming judgment of the Almighty. Some are hiding in one cave and some in another. There are more isms and systems about religion today than ever before but there's a day coming when the waters of judgment are going to rise, and God pity every soul found hiding away in these man-made retreats. They will see their awful folly and cry out but it will be too late," so declared Rev. Bassett, evangelist, to an audience at the First Baptist church last night.

Mr. Bassett took for his subject the story of the swelling of the river Jordan; how that the animals were driven from cave to cave when the waters began to rise and finally they were trapped and escape was impossible and said that such would be the case of many a man or woman who would not accept the Lord Jesus Christ as their personal Savior. Rev. Von Bruch led the congregation in a song service, using his cornet to augment the singing of the hymns assisted by the chorus choir and by Mrs. Von Bruch on the piano. The meetings will close upon the coming Sunday night. There will be baptism at both services. Sunday's younger folks are to be baptized in the morning and the older ones in the evening.

SECRETARY WALLACE INDORSES PACKER CONTROL MEASURES

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Packer control legislation, the subject of sharp fighting in the last congress, today was endorsed by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace.

Appearing before the house agricultural committee, Wallace declared that the legislation would be desirable now. Many of the complaints against the packers are "fully justified."

Wallace suggested that packer regulation be consolidated in one bureau of the government instead of being distributed between the department of agriculture and the interstate commerce commission as provided in the impending bill.

Chambers of Commerce are successful if they represent the thoughts of the citizenship. Chambers cannot function to their best advantage unless the citizens express their thoughts. It is through the expression of a citizenship's concrete sentiment through the civic organizations that real progress is made.

Those are mere truisms, which have been expressed oftentimes before. But that there is nothing original in them—that they are old enough to have stood the test of practical experience—is the fact that gives them their chief value.

The Ranger Chamber of Commerce is now receiving replies to questionnaires sent its members, asking what should be the major steps in Ranger's program of progress for the coming year. The greater the number of replies received, the more conclusive will be the information. If twenty-five citizens answer, even if they should center on one subject as being of paramount importance, it would not prove anything. If 1,000 citizens answer and give even a substantial majority for one subject as being of paramount importance, then the chamber will have something definite to go on in outlining its program for the coming year. Whatever it does along that line it will have the assurance that it is acting in accord with the beliefs of its members.

There is of course more than one matter that may be attended to. Something of importance might be listed by only one man, because he is of broader vision than the others. Even that suggestion would be valuable.

One of the most interesting things about Ranger is that there is so much to be done here. The way to get them done is for every citizen to get behind the body through which economic progress is fostered.

Send in your answer to that questionnaire.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

Dodging around a motor car the Woman plunged from the curb to the step of the bus just as the conductor raised his arm to ring the bell. "Come on," he said, and steadied her when he started. As she moved up from the step to the platform there was a lead ripping sound. Both turned to see what it was.

"It's just my pocket," said the Woman with relief, disengaging her coat where the corner of the rail had caught it. But inside the bus she ruefully estimated the damage. As she lacked a pin, it might be better to pull out the stitching on the other side and remove the pocket entirely.

A sound at her elbow caused her to look up. There stood the conductor, grinning respectively and holding out a large white safety pin. "Exactly what I need," said the woman. "Does the company provide such with these or such emergencies?"

"No, it's just one I happened to have," he said. As the woman thankfully repaired the damaged pocket, her mind through association of ideas, recalled an usher at a concert who had once come to her rescue in a coughing spasm with a box of lozenges. She reflected that only a few see the really boundless possibilities of service and that the companies fortunate enough to have in their employ such discerning and ready helpers take an enviable place in the community.

Close Harmony.
Seen on Hudson seal dolmans as choice collars and cuffs, they certainly bear little relation to themselves in their original stamping grounds. The woman distinctly remembers the time when one ventured to skirt the sleeping porch up in the woods and her hostess said, "Let it go, for goodness' sake, or we'll have to bury our loaves!" A whirr, a scurry and faint but pronounced whiff left its identity undoubted. It was a skunk errand.

Therefore the woman wondered at the calmness with which Mrs. Out-of-town received the statement of her newly acquired hubby. The bride and groom were part of an excursion party from up State and the woman was helping entertain them at a hotel luncheon.

"Sure thing," Mr. Newlywed vaunted; "I'm fixin' to get out there as soon as possible, and in less than no time I'll be coinin' money on that Island. I'm fixin' to start a skunk farm."

Not a sign of surprise from Wife. "Sure thing, we are goin' to live on the skunk farm!" he explained to a questioner.

Still no movement from his wife. She just smiled at the woman's look of query. "At last, perfect accord!" hought the woman.

Then some one pricked the bubble. "You know his wife is as deaf as a post," some one remarked.

In Their Footsteps.
Mark does not share in his family's rage for learning—most decidedly not. He goes to school because eight-year-olds have to, but far be it from him to indulge in any enthusiasm over his studies.

Father and Mother though are quite different. They're both B. A.s, and Mother is this year taking her M. A. in the same course Father took six years before he achieved his Ph. D. and a professorship in vocational psychology. Who knows what may lie in the offing for them both in the way of L's and D's and "sich."

Their topics of conversation bore Mark and he is often moved to expostulate. Really, parents should have more consideration for their offspring. One night he burst out in desperation: "Oh, Mother, you said you wouldn't talk about conditional complex any more!"

But yesterday he clattered excitedly up the back stairs, calling: "Mother! Mother! I had a conditional complex today!"

"What was it, son?" "I just knew Kitty wasn't in the cellar when I came up, but I shut the door tight behind me the way I always do, just as if she had been there!"

And Mother assured him it was a perfect example.

Suspicion.
The old man stopped pruning the old apple tree in order to watch the approach of the Early-Rooseveltian Lady and her younger sister.

"Won't you stop a bit and talk with me?" he called. "Two such fine girls that you are!"

There was a view as well as apple trees, and the old man and the girls were not loath to rest on the blackened stone wall.

And where may ye be from?" asked the old man, gratefully. "Do ye come from New York, now?" "I've been in New York myself. And what are two such fine girls doing all by yourselves out here?"

"We are walking to White Plains," said the Early-Rooseveltian Lady's sister.

"And ye'll find the Rosedale trolley that'll take ye straight there just at the foot of the hill," volunteered the old man happily.

"But we're not riding. We're walking," they protested.

His face and his admiration fell. "Sure, ye're not walking because ye have to, are ye?" he inquired suspiciously.

TINKER BOB STORIES
By CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB.

SILKY MEETS MAJOR AGAIN.

"I never supposed that birds had so much trouble," said Silky the Monkey, as he and the King of the Forest were walking through the woods toward the Palace. "If I had known that I would have let them alone. But you see I thought they were living a life of joy and happiness and that's the reason I used to tease them and the Southland."

"You haven't seen the half of their troubles. That's the reason they have wings to fly with so they can get away from their enemies." Then Tinker Bob halted. There was a forest creature coming toward him.

"Now, who is that coming this way?" asked Silky, "he seems to be in a hurry. My goodness I never did see so many creatures before. This forest is full of them, and they seem to follow you everywhere you go."

"You see Silky, you have been interested in yourself only and how that you have come to see that there is someone else in the world who should be given attention, you are surprised. But that's the way with all of the forest dwellers, when they see the need of giving someone else a chance they begin to think the forest is a great place."

"Who is that fellow coming yonder?" asked Silky, as he watched every move the creature made. "Have I ever seen him before?"

"Oh, that's Major Pole Cat. I suppose he has a message for me. Yes, you have seen him."

"O, King," cried Major and he came close enough to speak. "You must hurry to the Palace as quickly as you can. There is great excitement through that section of the forest. Silky the Monkey was a little shy of Major for he could not forget how Major had tried to catch him and how Major had showered him with the poison liquid. "So this is the fellow who tried to hug me, is it?" continued Major looking at Silky anxiously.

He Climbed the Nearest Tree and Hung on a Limb by His Tail.

"This is Silky the Monkey," said Tinker, "Come up and shake hands with him. You will find him a most noble creature. He only wanted to hug you because that is his way of showing his love for those whom he meets."

"I am sorry I tried to hug you," said Silky as he stretched forth his hand and grasped Major's paw and shook it so vigorously. In fact he shook it so hard that Major could scarcely hold his feet on the ground.

"I am glad to meet you Mr. Monkey and I hope we will know more about each other when we live together this summer in the forest." Then Silky was so happy to think that he had made a friend that he climbed the nearest tree and hung on a limb by his tail. Then he swung to another limb and so on till the King called him down, and they hurried away to the palace.

Josephus Daniels Tells Story of American Navy's Exploits in World War

By MORRIS

looked toward the time when a strong fleet in the Pacific should give the same assurance on that coast as the Atlantic fleet gave to the eastern coast. Manifestly this assurance could not be granted until the Panama canal was opened and the navy was big enough to organize two powerful fleets so equipped that, by means of the canal, they could be united in a few days.

Protects Both Coasts.

The large increase in the number of destroyers (we will soon have 300 of the largest and best in existence) and the completion and commissioning of new dreadnaughts and other craft have made possible what the protection of our coasts has long demanded—the maintenance of powerful divisions of the American fleet in both the Atlantic and the Pacific. The wisdom of this policy has been questioned by those who have not taken the pains to understand the plans and organization and by some officers who think Jersey City is the western frontier of the United States.

If the Panama canal had not been completed this new organization could not have been adopted wisely. It was mainly for the purpose of making easy and quick passage of our naval forces through the canal that the people were willing to invest so much money in building the canal. In fact, the real reason the canal was built when it was can be traced to the voyage of the Oregon around South America in 1898.

That long trip, watched with almost feverish interest the determination to construct an isthmian canal. Its building had been thwarted time and time again by influential men interested in transcontinental railroads. They thought its construction would so decrease their freight rates more and more as a big merchant marine is maintained, but the business of our country expands so rapidly that there is an abundance of freight for both rail and water transportation companies.

No Toll on Naval Vessels.

It was because the canal was built largely for naval purposes that President Wilson upheld me in my contention with the secretary of war that no toll should be charged for naval vessels going through the canal.

The creation of a string Pacific fleet was the result of long consideration and study. Long before the world war, when Rear Admiral Cameron McRae Winslow was made a full admiral and placed in command of a Pacific fleet, then small and containing no modern dreadnaught, I directed him to make a study of the needs of the Pacific. Other officers were likewise instructed to make similar studies.

As a result in 1914-15, I had decided to organize a powerful Pacific fleet, which could be united with the Atlantic fleet within a few days' notice. The world war postponed its creation. When the time came the expansion in ship construction had been so great we were able to constitute two fleets, each having 185 ships, or 100,000 more tonnage in each fleet than composed the whole fleet which "Fighting Bob" Evans took around the world on that famous voyage ordered by President Roosevelt.

Warning to the World.

With the completion of the ships authorized in the three-year program our navy will have strength unequalled by any other nation; and the fleet, when combined, will be an armada, which will compel respect, and I trust, be a warning to any nation not to emulate Germany's greed for world conquest.

The decision of the navy department to organize and establish a new Pacific fleet of strength equal to the Atlantic fleet is based on sound reasons, both strategic and administrative. The result of having the entire navy organized in two grand fleets, the Atlantic and the Pacific, will undoubtedly greatly improve the efficiency of the navy as a whole, due to the fact that more war problem exercises on a large scale can be carried out during a year's work, and these exercises can also be conducted on the two oceans which are on the shores of the United States. In addition the spirit of competition in the results to be obtained in target practice, engineering records and other various forms of fleet exercise and training will undoubtedly produce a fine effect on the morale, and thereby greatly increase the general efficiency.

Navy Not "Divided."

It is a mistake to speak of the navy as being "divided" into two fleets, in the sense that the two fleets are widely separated, and, therefore, do not support each other. The more correct expression is to say that the navy is organized in two great fleets, each composed of the same number of divisions of the various types of ships which go to make up that tactical organization called a fleet.

This is true because the Panama canal permits the two fleets at all times, to be in close touch with each other. Either fleet could be sent from the main strategic positions or one coast to those positions on the other coast, within comparatively few days, and as this period is less than that in which an enemy of any important strength could attack either one of our seacoasts, it is evident that in no way does the two-fleet organization weaken the protection of either of our coasts. As a matter of fact, this plan of organization greatly increases the protection of each coast, and it that way the protection of the nation as a whole.

The protection of either one of our long seacoasts not only depends upon the ships themselves, but it also very materially depends upon the establishment, size and location of naval bases and navy yards, which must exist for the maintenance of the fleet in war as well as in peace, and it is evident that such bases will only be properly developed when they are used by a large force of ships during times of peace.

Mahan Principle Not Violated.

There can be no question that as a general principle the policy enunciated by Mahan is sound, viz: That the division of a naval force weakens the strength of the entire force, as it enables an enemy to attack one of the parts of the force so divided. The result of the division of the English navy in the revolutionary war, and of the Russian navy in the Russo-Japanese war illustrate this principle is only violated when a force is divided and so widely separated that the two or more parts of the force can not support each other. For instance, the two Russian fleets, one in the Baltic sea and the other in the China sea, during the Russo-Japanese war, were so widely separated that they could not support each other, or one go to the assistance of the other, before the enemy could attack.

In the new organization of the American navy, as pointed out above, these two fleets, the Atlantic and the Pacific, are not so widely separated as to be unable to support each other. They are, in fact, so situated at all times that one can come to the immediate assistance of the other in case of any impending danger of an attack from any enemy's navy.

Can Combine Easily.

The other question of naval activities is whether the two fleet organizations would materially interfere with the tactics of the combined fleet should the two fleets be brought together to operate as one force.

In both the Atlantic and the Pacific fleets we have an equal number of division units of the ships of different classes, so that should the two fleets come together, either in the Atlantic or the Pacific ocean, both of them can combine immediately into one tactical fleet, making a homogeneous whole without the slightest difficulty. Instead of two or three divisions, there would be some twenty-odd divisions. In addition, the two fleets of battleships, there would be eight divisions. This combination of two fleets into one has been entirely foreseen and will be carried out in exercises with the two fleets combined into one.

The division of the two fleets bear certain serial numbers, so that when they come together each division has its assigned place in the battle formation. Orders have been given definitely designating which one of the fleet commanders would be in supreme command of the different units of each fleet, and they know in advance of juncture exactly what the position of their divisions of ships would be in the battle formation of the combined fleet.

Need of Competition.

I learned after several years of service as secretary of the navy that a supreme need is competition. Without competition ships and fleets go stale in periods of long peace.

Place two admirals, the biggest and most ambitious men in the navy—in command of the Pacific and Atlantic fleets. Tell them that once in every year they will come together for a tight simulating war, and you will put all the men in both fleets on their toes to win. The struggle for first place will grow to be the great national contest, far outdistancing the interest of the annual football games between the army and the navy.

By this keen competition, and in no other way, will you make the American navy fit to fight at any time and keep it in the pink of condition. (Another article by former Secretary Daniels will be printed tomorrow.)

SECOND MAN IS ACQUITTED IN GEORGIA LYNCHING CASE

CAMILLA, Ga., May 5.—Will Reeves was found not guilty of the charge of murder by a jury in Mitchell County Superior Court tonight. He was the second man acquitted out of nine men indicted in the lynching of Jim Beal, negro.

The charge was violation of the Mob Violence act, the first prosecution of the kind in the state.

TEXAS HEALTH DEPT' WARNS AGAINST FLIES

Mosquito Menace Also Included in Appeal to Safeguard Citizens.

AUSTIN, May 5.—The Texas Public Health association has issued a warning to the citizens of Texas against the menace of the house fly and the mosquito.

The common fly is sometimes called the typhoid fly, as it causes much typhoid fever. It also helps spread cholera infantum, tuberculosis and many other diseases. To eliminate his menace we must destroy the breeding places of the fly, among which the most important are cess pools and filthy stables.

It takes the eggs a week to hatch, so the rubbish and other breeding places of the common fly should be the malarial mosquito, because by its five or six days.

The ordinary mosquito is called removed or disinfected at least every site the larger portion of malaria is transmitted. The mosquito is also capable of carrying a number of other diseases. The breeding places of the mosquito are stagnant water, lops, dirty troughs, outhouses, spittoons, etc.

To combat this evil no water should be allowed to become stagnant. If it is necessary to have a standing body of water, it should be covered with oil. Other breeding places should be kept in a sanitary condition. When throwing away old tin cans, a hole punched in the bottom will prevent water collecting.

It has been definitely shown that a mosquito can fly only 1-2 miles. After all precautions have been taken the home should be securely screened so that no fly or mosquito can gain entrance, and thus expose the family to disease.

STAMFORD HENS LAYING LARGER EGGS AS PRICE OF "FRUIT" GOES DOWN

STAMFORD, Texas, May 5.—Eggs have dropped to around fifteen cents per dozen retail and Stamford hens are increasing the size of their product in compliance with H. C. L. advocates. G. J. Bates of this city presented a three and one-half ounce egg to the West Texas Chamber of Commerce a few days ago which measures 7 1/2 inches around the long way of the egg and 6 1/2 inches the small way. Eggs usually weigh from 1 1/2 to 1 3/4 ounces. The record egg will be hatched.

CONDUCTOR SUES C. & N. E. RAILROAD FOR BIG DAMAGES

EASTLAND, May 5.—Suit has been filed in the Ninety-first district court by W. F. Griffin, of Harris county, against the Cisco & Northeastern railway, in which the plaintiff alleges that while acting in the capacity of a freight conductor on the defendant road, running between Cisco and Breckenridge, that parts of the train or, which he was riding became derailed, throwing him about in the caboose in such a manner that his left hip and lower limb were permanently injured, and that he suffered internal injuries and shock to his nervous system, of such nature, that he asks for damages in the sum of $20,000, alleging that defendant road was not properly ballasted, and that it was unsafe to run trains over it, therefore he prays for damages in the above amount.

ASK REDUCED RATES.

STAMFORD, Texas, May 5.—An application has been filed by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce with the railroads asking for reduced railroad fares for the Grand Encampment, I. O. O. F., at Stamford, October 10th and 11th.

DOG HILL PARAGRAPHS By GEORGE BINGHAM.

Raz Barlow, who has been wearing a striped shirt for several Sundays, has settled to normalcy.

Sap Spradlen, who a short time ago got mad and pulled himself and his fiddle out of the Excelsior Fiddling Band, and who has since been making his way alone through the realm of music, stood back some distance the other night and heard the Band play. NITROS WALK OFTEN BUT SWAT SELDOM; LOSE TO EAGLES, 9-6

Abilene Pounds Carter for Twelve Safeties, Getting Five-Run Lead in Early Rounds; Many Close Decisions; Harding Back at Short.

Special to the Times

ABILENE, May 5.—The Nitros succumbed to an attack of heavy hitting by the Abilene Eagles at the T. P. Park Wednesday afternoon, losing the game 9 to 6. The game was very slow after the sixth inning, due to the wildness of the Abilene pitchers. The Nitros made their half dozen scores on three singles and a flock of walks.

The attack of the Eagles began in the first frame and before Carter settled down, the Abilene crew had annexed five scores, three in the first and two more in the second. Additional scores were made in the fourth, fifth and eighth, piling up a lead which Ranger was unable to overcome. The Eagles hit Carter readily and most of the runs were earned, resulting from the twelve hits by Abilene.

It looked like curtains for the locals in the sixth frame. Hudspeth, who had held the Nitros to one lone by bingle up to the fifth, blew up and walked two men. White jerked him and ran in Munger, a south-paw recruit recently imported from Houston via Cisco. Munger lasted only a few minutes. After he had walked two men, forcing a man across the plate, White sent Brown in to have a try at it.

Fourth Hurler. The Carlsbad northpaw fared no better than his predecessors. White yanked him after he had worried along for a little more than one inning and flocked the bases in the seventh. Hill, who had been used in the Tuesday game, took the mound with the bases full and one man down. He struck out Adkins, the first man who faced him, but Tate had the hit and run signal and scored by sliding into home base. Hill continued to pitch safe ball and the longest game played on the local diamond this season finally frayed out with the Eagles on the long end of the score.

The feature of the game was the catch made by Philipott in the sixth. Harding got credit for a sacrifice fly that should have been a three bagger. The ball rose high in the air and dropped just inside the left field fence, into the hands of the little fielder, who caught it over his shoulder after a long run. The naturally slow game was made still slower by continual arguments on the part of Ranger over close plays called by Umpire Price. Several times, it appeared to the grandstand that the old man missed one.

TEMPLE

Douglas McLean in his latest Thomas H. Ince production, "The Home Stretch," a fascinating story of the race tracks, will be the feature attraction at the Temple Theatre, today and Friday. It is a good, well balanced story, sparkling with comedy bits and containing a number of big punch scenes. An excellent cast is seen in support of the star, including Beatrice Burnham, Margaret Livingston, Walt Whitman, Wade Boteler and Molly McConnell.

The story tells of Johnny Hardwick whose father had followed the races, owned a few good horses, made and lost several fortunes, and finally died leaving Johnny the heritage of a sole racing horse, a fine fast thoroughbred, and the admonition to make one big cleaning and then quit the tracks. The occasion for the big cleaning was at hand and Johnny had staked all his money on Honey Blossom.

The race was on and excitement was at its highest pitch—Honey Blossom was winning and then out in front of the flying horses a little girl toddled. Johnny saw the child and rushed out to save her, running squarely in front of his winning horse and causing him to fall. Johnny lost the race but he won some other things of as much value, the undying gratitude of the man he had befriended, and a fight for manhood. The night after the race some of Johnny's

SEMI-PRO BALL PLAYERS MEET FRIDAY NIGHT

A meeting of all ball players interested in the formation of a strong semi-pro team to represent Ranger in games with nearby towns has been called for Friday night at 8 o'clock, at the Times office. Organizers of the team believe there are enough players of professional and semi-professional experience here to organize a strong team, and they ask all GOOD ball players to be at the meeting.

Most of the games will be played on the road, according to present plans, and it is believed the pastime can be made profitable.

LUKE'S WALLOPS WIN BALL GAME

SAN ANGELO, May 5.—Luke Robison was the big factor in the Bronco victory over Mineral Wells here Wednesday, 6 to 2. Luke pounded Cantrell for two triples, a double and a single in four times up, and either scored or drove in most of the Bronco runs. It was Cantrell's first defeat this season. Kelly, a new catcher obtained from Beaumont, made six putouts and showed a shotgun arm in nipping four attempts to steal.

THURBER-RANGER HI TEAMS WILL CLASH FRIDAY

The strong Thurber Hi team will invade Ranger Friday for a game with Ranger Hi at Nitro park. The game will be called at 4 o'clock. A fast exhibition is expected. Ranger Hi has not lost a game this season on the home grounds and will be out to maintain the clean slate.

SWATTERS WIN SLUGGING BEE

SWEETWATER, May 5.—The locals hit heavily Wednesday and won from Cisco, 15 to 7. Tom Johnston, in four times up hit, two singles, a double and a triple, while Catcher Whitney hit the first home run of the season on local grounds. The game was stopped in the eighth inning to allow the Cisco team to catch a train. It was also played under protest, Manager Billings claiming Umpire Wakefield erred in allowing a run on an overthrow of third base. The attendance was very good.

DAVIS WOULD GIVE STOWAWAYS CHANCE

When Secretary of Labor James J. Davis took two stowaway boys by the hand on Ellis Island, the immigration station of the port of New York, and said: "Good-bye, boys, we may meet again," they did not know what it meant. The boys, with the head of the department of labor, are Kemal Menasset (left), a Turk, and Kyriak Matras, a Greek. Both arrived in New York as stowaways aboard passenger vessels. In truth, the cabinet member had already made inquiry into the official records of these two stowaway boys, whose bright, intelligent faces and polite manners had caught his eye among a hundred other stowaways. Secretary Davis hopes to find a way to have them admitted and said he would be glad to take them out to Mooseheart, Ill., where they have nearly a thousand children of members of the Loyal Order of Moose.

YOUNG PEOPLES' MEETING.

Interest in the young peoples' meetings held every Wednesday night commencing at 7:30, at the Salvation Army tabernacle on South Austin street, is growing by leaps and bounds.

Wednesday night the building was nearly filled with both young and old. A regular old-time song-fest was enjoyed by all. Old-time hymns, mixed with catchy Salvation Army choruses were sung. Some short talks, scripture reading and then refreshments of strawberry short cake and real, red lemonade was served, then benediction and good night.

A special Mothers' Day service will be held Sunday night starting at 8:15 p. m. Readings, recitations, songs and talks, all upon the subject of our mothers, will be rendered. The public is invited to attend these meetings. Captain and Mrs. Mullins, officers in charge, guaranteed they will be interesting and helpful to all.

W.C.T.U. WILL REDEAR "MOTHERS' PROGRAM" FRIDAY AFTERNOON

A "mothers' program" will be conducted by the Woman's Christian Temperance Union Friday afternoon in commemoration of "Mothers' Day," Sunday, May 8. The meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Emma Terrell, 803 Young street and all persons interested in this work are urged to attend. The program follows: Devotional-Mrs. Lantz. Roll Call, quotations on "Mother," Paper-"Frances E. Willard's Love of Flowers and Folks," Mrs. Brooks. Reading-Raymond Milford. Paper-"Why a Flower Mission?" Mrs. Durlop. Solo-Mrs. Overholser. Paper-"What the Flower Mission Should Mean to the W. C. T. U." Mrs. Deffebach. Reading-Biogene Kerr. Paper-"Mother and Home," Mrs. Stevens. Solo-Mrs. May. Reading-Mrs. Terrell. Social hour.

This is the season to say it with pop bottles-Indianapolis Star.

MAN HELD AS SUSPECT IN GROCERY ROBBERY

One man was jailed Wednesday night and a number of others are under surveillance in connection with the robbery of the Walker-Smith Grocery company and other grocery store robberies in Pecos recently, as a result of the efforts of J. B. Ames, chief of detectives, who is working on the case. Baglars backed a truck up to the Walker-Smith company's plant Tuesday night and made off with grocery supplies, consisting mainly of cigarettes, to the value of about $1,000. Charges against the man held have not been filed. Mr. Ames, who spent the greater part of Wednesday night working out clues to the perpetrators of the Walker-Smith and other robberies, is confident that he will soon have the gang responsible behind the bars.

Townley and Gilbert were found guilty July 12, 1919 and sentenced by Judge Dean to ninety days in jail. Execution of sentence was delayed by appeal.

SELECTED AS ENVOY TO JAPAN, IS REPORT

Dr. David J. Hill.

Dr. David Jayne Hill, of New York, former Ambassador to Germany, who has been selected by President Harding as the next United States Ambassador to Japan, according to reports from the capital. No announcement of the selection of Dr. Hill has been made, but it is expected his nomination will be sent to the Senate within a few days. Much time has been spent by the president in scanning the list of availables with a view of selecting one who would be fitted in every particular to fill this important diplomatic post. Dr. Hill was born in Plainfield, N. J., but has spent the greater part of his life in New York state. From 1888 until 1896 he was president of the University of Rochester. He served as Assistant Secretary of State from 1898 to 1903, during which year he was appointed Minister to Switzerland, where he remained until 1905. He then served two years as Minister to the Netherlands. In 1908 he was appointed United States Ambassador to Germany and served until 1911.

PARIS, May 5.—(Jewish Telegraph Agency.)—The representatives of Brazil and Argentina are doing every thing possible to encourage the emigration of Jews to those countries says a report submitted today to the Executive Committee of the Jewish Central World Relief Committee.

The report says there are vast possibilities for Jewish refugees who will proceed direct to these countries, but that at present no funds for that purpose are available.

MYSTERY OF CAVE WHERE THROWING STONE IMPOSSIBLE

PAPEETE, Tahiti, (Society Islands)—April 4.—About twenty-seven kilometers from Papeete—at the beginning of the District of Papara on Tahiti—is a cave called the Cave of Maraa. It is a large opening in the side of the mountain; its floor a pool of clear icy cold water. There is nothing remarkable about it in appearance.

Its interest lies in its being the reputed burial place of a powerful wizard of old the spell of whose enchantments still broods over the cavern.

The particular manifestation which interests passers-by is the impossibility of striking the opposite wall of the cave with a stone although to the eye the feat seems the easiest of undertakings. Most newcomers laugh at the legend and start out with an easy throw only to see the missile drop in the water apparently but a few feet away.

Then they warm to the work and exert all the force that is in them; and, at last, making slings, strive with all their might to overcome the power of the old warlock; but to no avail. The stones drop ignominiously in the water as if some unseen hand had caught them in mid-air and cast them down in the center of the cavern. The reason has never been explained satisfactory.
