J. T. GULLAHORN NEW PRESIDENT OF RANGER C. C.

Manager Peters Is Re-elected; Pioneers Invited to Return.

J. T. Gullahorn was elected president of the Chamber of Commerce for the next year, at the first meeting of the new board of directors of that body, held Thursday morning. E. J. Barnes was elected vice president and George Sturgis of the F. & M. bank, treasurer.

J. E. T. Peters was re-elected to serve his second term as a manager for the organization.

Two questions which are expected to have an effect on the upbuilding of Ranger were taken up and committees appointed. One of these is the "reparation" of pioneer citizens who moved away during the early days of the oil rush.

It is said that many of the old-timers are anxious to return to Ranger now that the schools, churches and other factors have reached a sufficiently high plane, and the committee in charge of this work plans to assist in every way possible in making their return easy and convenient.

The rural telephone system at one time, it is said, reached practically every home in the district surrounding Ranger. It was built and kept up by the farmers themselves, using the fences and other aids, and connected with the Bell exchange.

This committee will investigate the advisability of rebuilding of these lines, and encourage any more along that line.

Great Britain has asked further explanations and informal interchanges are in progress. The present position of Great Britain is said to be that the proposals are still "skeptical" and very unsatisfactory.

As an outgrowth of the British query yesterday, it is stated that Germany now suggests annuities to extend over a period of fifty to seventy-five years, or even longer, instead of the forty-two originally mentioned. This is declared to be a sample of the "evasive" methods of Germany which cannot be allowed to continue.

The offer is "unanimously regarded" as inadequate, he said, but is being thoroughly examined.

WHY NO UNION LABEL ON GOMPERS' HONEYMOON?

DETROIT, April 28.—The Detroit Federation of Labor today started an investigation into the charges that Samuel Gompers' honeymoon did not bear the union label.

Investigation into the charges against the president of the American Federation of Labor was ordered at a meeting of the local federation last night.

He spent the first two days of his honeymoon in an "open shop" hotel. He and his bride are served with food by non-union waiters. Their food was prepared by non-union cooks.

Their rooms were made up by non-union chambermaids.

These statements and others were made Thursday following the completion of taking the depositions of witnesses for use in the civil suit when it comes up for hearing at Oklahoma City.

The last deposition to be taken was that of A. H. Bowers, who swore that:

Annabelle Edwards and W. L. (Billie) Edwards had a joint account at the Guaranty State bank of Ranger against which they both checked at their pleasure, each with the consent of the other.

The hearings were concluded on Wednesday night in E. Ingram's office. Mr. Bowers, formerly vice president of the Guaranty State bank, affirmed that on frequent occasions he had held conversations with both Billie Edwards and his wife in the bank, at which times they agreed that Mrs. Edwards' checks against the account should be honored by the bank.

Affirmations by Dr. Harry A. Logsdon, W. B. Westgate and Leon Wilson were to the effect that they had had personal knowledge of frequent beatings administered to Mrs. Edwards by her husband, Mr. Wilson testifying that at one time he came upon Edwards beating his wife in their room at the Commercial hotel.

As a result of this chaffertment, Mr. Wilson said, Mrs. Edwards' nose was bloodied and she was otherwise badly bruised.

Cleve Barnes testified that Edwards beat his wife in their room, and that Edwards habitually carried a pistol, and that he had been known to make threats that he would kill his wife.

Kirkley Watson, who roomed at the Commercial hotel, offered testimony showing that Mrs. Edwards worked and cared for the rooms at the hotel, and that upon one occasion while she had her arms full of towels Edwards became incensed at her and knocked her down.

Edwards Had Still? Pruitt in his interview Thursday told a Times reporter Annabelle's side of the killing of her husband. He began by making the startling statement that Billy Edwards had seven whisky stills in operation at the time of his death and that he went back to Oklahoma City with the idea in mind to operate as he had in Ranger.

If then told about the state expecting to prove the alleged death-bed statement of Edwards by Parrish. From that point he led up to the cause of the gambler's death which he stated was indirectly caused by Edwards buying three flats in Oklahoma City and deeding them to his mother, Mrs. Cora Edwards.

Annabelle and her husband quarrelled about this, he declared, and the man went to Duncan, Okla., for a time. When he returned he went to their home and ordered her to leave and it was then that she killed him. However this happened, according to the attorney, only after he had torn a valuable diamond gem from her throat and was otherwise abusing her.

Shoots in Floor. Continuing, Pruitt said: "A gun was lying on a table in the room. After being attacked, Mrs. Edwards secured it and shot one time in the floor near her husband's feet at the same time entreating him to stop. He would not, and she shot him then. The gun contained two bullets instead of the one as quoted by the other side's attorney of Wednesday.

"After this happened, Edwards ran down the stairway, his wife following and went with him to the hospital. Still Loved Wife.

"While there a nurse and a doctor heard Edwards say that it was all his own fault and that he still loved his wife. Before his death he asked his mother to take Annabelle home with her and she replied that she could not take any woman home with her that had shot her son."

In Ranger today, Pruitt declared Annabelle has only one dress to her name because the parents filed an injunction preventing her from touching anything that was in her home. This injunction, he said, would be heard next Monday.

While all those connected with the work which has been going on for the past month feel optimistic as to the result, it will take several days to check over what has been done and pass the result on to Washington for final approval, it is said.

Between 700 and 800 accredited delegates are expected to attend the three-days' sessions.

Attorney Says Edwards Last Act was to Snatch Jewel off Wife's Neck

Billie Edwards was killed after telling Annabelle Edwards to leave his house and after he had mistreated her by snatching a diamond from her throat and telling her that she could not take it with her, according to a statement made this morning by Norman Pruitt, her attorney.

The statement follows that of E. G. Giddings, state attorney and attorney for the parents of Billie Edwards, who are contesting the right of his widow to the property of her dead husband.

The state will try to prove Edwards' alleged death-bed statement by George Parrish, a known criminal and gun man, Pruitt declared.

Edwards is known to have given on this man two guns before the Sweetwater depot robbery, of which Parrish is accused, is another statement that came from the attorney.

These statements and others were made Thursday following the completion of taking the depositions of witnesses for use in the civil suit when it comes up for hearing at Oklahoma City.

LIBRARY WILL START DRIVE ON SATURDAY

Now Housed in New Quarters on Ground Floor Marston Building.

Three rooms have been leased on the ground floor of the Marston building for the public library, a public rest room and for a meeting place for the 1920 club; the Business Woman's club and the Music club and probably other civic organizations.

A drive will start Saturday wherein memberships will be sold to the library association at $1 each. The cards will entitle the holder to use the facilities of the library. With the funds thus obtained it is expected to defray a part of the expense of keeping the place going.

Thursday night the district chairman will meet with the library board to complete plans for the drive. The 1920 club has been working on the plans to secure the rooms in the Marston building for some time. The promoters point out that a rest room is almost essential to the city as well as an access to the books of the library which are now locked in the Red Cross room in the Marston building.

Under the plan to be put into effect, the books will be easily accessible. The women behind the move expect to receive the co-operation of all citizens when the drive for membership starts Saturday.

FRIDAY IS LAST DAY TO SIGN FOR BANK REOPENING

Taking of depositors' agreements to the Starnes plan of reopening the First National Bank will close Friday, unless a telegram from Judge Starnes extending the time is received.

The judge has been away from Ranger since last week and in the absence of instructions, Commissioner Stanford Egan, trustee for the depositors, expects to close that part of the business at the time set. However the bank will be open both at an early hour and until late in the afternoon or evening for the benefit of any depositors who wish to sign up at the last moment.

While all those connected with the work which has been going on for the past month feel optimistic as to the result, it will take several days to check over what has been done and pass the result on to Washington for final approval, it is said.

MAKE CLEAN SWEEP OF LEADER STORE'S BEST MERCHANDISE

Clever Manner In Which Thieves Make Selection of Choicest Goods Lead to Belief That They Must Have Had Knowledge of Interior and Arrangements.

Burglars last night, apparently unafraid of the law, rifled the Leader Store of all its best merchandise to the estimated value of $8,000. In the entire annals of the police force no burglary of such boldness has ever been perpetrated. Nor has there ever been one where more discriminating has been shown.

The workers of last night disdained everything but the highest-priced merchandise which consisted of silks, serges, tricotine and other high grade women's wear, Edwin Clapp shoes and men's silk shirts.

Entrance was made through a transom and then the rear door was unlocked with a pass key and the bar holding the door removed.

Used Truck or Wagon. That the goods were removed by truck or wagon is the natural supposition of the police, but no tracks were found of such a conveyance at the rear of the store.

Oscar Saled, proprietor of the store, has made such a list of his loss as he could. According to his tabulation, it consisted of the following merchandise:

THE LOOT.
Twenty pairs of Walker and Edwin Clapp shoes.
Forty-eight silk shirts.
Twenty-four silk waists.
Twenty ladies' suits.
Twenty serge dresses.
Sixty-five silk dresses.
Nineteen silk kimonos and pajamas.
Sixty dress skirts.
Seventy-two undershirts of the best material.

Five ladies' spring coats.
Detective Murphy of the police force is certain that the robbery happened after 12 o'clock last night.

He was around the store after that hour he said, and all was well. The police this morning were phoning to all adjacent towns to be on the lookout for such clothing and material and locally members of the force are scouring the outskirts seeking some lead by which they may run the burglars down.

High-Class Work. In examining the list of articles stolen, it is thought remarkable by the police that only merchandise of the highest value was taken. According to their theory it would have taken the burglars some time to make such choices if they were not acquainted with the lay of the land. From this theory they are working towards the end that someone who had a good knowledge of the interior of the store engineered the steal.

It is pointed out that with such a plan in mind, a clever thief could make visits to the establishment ostensibly for the purpose of making purchases but in reality to plan rapid means by which to remove the most valuable merchandise.

BRITAIN AND OTHER ALLIES ARE GETTING PEEVED AT GERMANY

LONDON, April 28.—Germany's reply to the British request for amplification of her reparations note was branded today as "highly unsatisfactory."

The British foreign office dropped the matter and will leave it to the supreme council to pass on reception of the German proposals.

The German answer was said to be vague and to throw no light on the ambiguities in the original proposal.

"The time is gone when vague offers can be considered," a foreign official said.

The German offer of 50,000,000 gold marks is "ridiculously below the Paris total," according to this official, and unless all the terms are made clear the Allies will not discuss it.

EASTLAND PREACHER WILL BECOME A MISSIONARY

EASTLAND, April 28.—Rev. John G. Anderson, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, this city, has tendered his resignation to his church board, and will in all probability locate in some one of the lumber camps of the northwest, where he will do mission work, which appeals to him. Rev. Anderson has been executive head of the local United Charities while here, and has done a great work in this connection and will be sadly missed by many of the poor people of the city, as well as others.

FRANCE IS GRATEFUL TO U. S. FOR ATTITUDE

HOW GUNS OF U. S. NAVY PUT STOP TO GERMANS' SHELLING OF PARIS.

Long-distance gun stopped shelling Paris when U. S. naval railway batteries arrived—Freak hastily withdrawn—Navy guns hurled shells seven times weight of enemy's long-range projectiles.

From the standpoint of spectacular sensationalism, Germany gave the world the biggest surprise of an amazing war when, on March 23, 1918, bombs began to fall in Paris.

Bombs from a fugitive visitant airplane were to be expected; but shells from a gun—how could that be possible when the German lines were, at their nearest approach, at least seventy miles from the French capital?

The world was at first incredulous. The shells continued to fall in the city and its suburbs, incredulity gave way to stunned belief. Ten people were killed and fifteen wounded the first day. A week later, Good Friday, March 29, the long-ranged bombardment, resulted in a tragedy which shocked civilization. It could scarcely have been by design, and yet the coincidence of the day and the objective is extraordinary significant for chance.

Kill Seventy-five in Church. On this day of sacred fast, the holiest memorial of the Christian year, while a congregation of devout worshippers—women and children and men too old to fight—prayed in the Church of St. Gervaise, a shell crashed through the roof of the building, killing seventy-five persons, of whom fifty-four were women, and five of these Americans. Ninety other persons were injured.

In all Christian lands people were agast at this slaughter of the defenseless.

The thing that stirred men's indignation was that this phenomenal gun

GEORGIA WILL PROBE CRUELTY TO NEGROES

ATLANTA, April 28.—An investigation into charges of cruelty to negroes in the southern part of Georgia was ordered today by state officials.

This follows reports from the southern part of the state that brutal cruelties are being practiced on negroes.

Governor Dorsey announced the probe would center around one county where two lynchings have taken place recently.

Letters have reached state officials detailing an account of how an negroess was taken from her bed at night and drowned.

"Mobs are riding every night, killing and beating innocent negroes," one letter to the governor stated.

'RED' CALL SOUNDED!

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 28.—Communists in greater Kansas City have sounded a call for a "red" May Day.

During the night thousands of circulars were thrown along the streets and on porches of homes pleading for workers to join in a May Day revolution.

Department of justice officials are worried. This morning plans were being made to frustrate any uprisings that may start next Sunday. The circulars were printed both in American and Slovak languages, and pleaded for the workers to take up arms against arms, force against force without throwing of the United States government the object.

SOLDIER DEAD IN FRANCE WILL KNOW NO RANK

Loeys and Privates to Sleep Together in Death on Equality.

By Associated Press

PARIS, April 28.—No distinctions of rank will be made in marking the graves of American soldiers who died in France, says Charles S. Pierce, chairman of the American commission, which has arrived here to prepare plans for beautifying the four permanent military cemeteries where the bodies of all the American fighters are to be gathered.

"We shall try to make these cemeteries memorials of which all Americans will be proud," said Colonel Pierce. "Early in the discussions we decided that regardless of rank and position each grave should be treated in the same manner and given equal attention. The only variation permitted will be on the uniform headstones. On the top of these relatives may inscribe any religious emblem they wish so long as it does not interfere with the uniformity of the stone.

"No special monuments will be permitted. All the Americans died in the performance of their duty and, no matter how heroic individuals may have been, the feeling of the nation seems to be that all should be accorded the same honor.

"It is impossible to say now just what form the beautification will take but money will not be spared in making the cemeteries the most imposing in the world. Congress has appropriated $1,000,000 as a preliminary sum for this work with a promise of more. It is probable that $3,000,000 will be expended.

"The task of removing the dead will be completed by the end of October. The bodies of those soldiers who are to rest permanently in France will then be concentrated in the four cemeteries. This work, together with the development work we intend to do, probably will take one year more."

The commission which is an advisory body to the secretary of war and the quartermaster general of the United States army, is now making surveys of the American cemeteries. Later the commission will formulate plans for a permanent cemetery for American soldiers in London.

"WINE" AND WOMEN AND SONG! THREE ARE IN JAIL, TWO MEN BEWAIL THE MONEY NOW GONE

There was something to drink; there were some girls; perhaps a little singing.

And then! Two men, Messrs. X and Y, complained to the police that they were jontly and severely losers of a sum estimated from $800 to $1,000.

The girls, red of lip, and pink of cheek—drug store red and pink—and a third man, Mr. Z, is in the city jail. The girls swear by all that is good, bad and indifferent that they never saw the money. But they accuse the man of trying to inveigle them into stealing it. He promptly denied their statements.

In the meantime the money is still missing.

The girls declare that they checked in at a local hotel last night and met Mr. X and Mr. Y. The men were drinking, they said. Mr. Z approached them and told them that one of the men had a roll and a diamond and for them to steal it and he would meet them at a certain spot later and they would "divvy." "Nothing doing, big boy; none of the crooked stuff for mine," one said she replied.

All of this is supposed to have happened at about 2 o'clock last night. The women also stated that Mr. Z told her that Mr. Y had done him a dirty trick and he wanted to get even. Mr. Z, on the other hand, denied everything they said beyond the fact that he was in the hotel with the men, having gone to the ball game with them yesterday afternoon.

So far as he knew, he said, they only had $250. This knowledge was gained, he declared, through acting as stakeholder on some bet at the game.

I. C. C. HEARING ON RATE CUTS COMING MAY 9

By United Press

DALLAS, April 28.—A hearing on proposed reduction and readjustment of freight rates on public road building material will be held by the Interstate Commerce commission in Austin May 9 on petition of the Texas Railroad commission, Railroad Commissioner Mayfield announced here today.

"Hundreds of thousands worth of road building in Texas is being held up because of high rail rates on stone and gravel," Mayfield said. "The recent 35 per cent increase in freight rates made transportation of all materials prohibitive. In many cases cost of transportation is greater than the cost of material.

"Many counties which voted bonds for a certain amount of mileage cannot carry out the construction because of the increased cost of rates."

Mayfield said representatives of counties, cities and state highway departments and road contractors are expected to attend the hearing.

HARDINGS ON YACHT, GIVE ATLANTIC FLEET A GOOD 'ONCE OVER'

By United Press

ABOARD THE PRESIDENTIAL YACHT MAYFLOWER, April 28.—To the crashing of 21-gun salutes, President Harding, as commander-in-chief of the navy, today reviewed the Atlantic fleet returned from Cuban waters, from the bridge of his yacht, the Mayflower.

The fleet, gaily decorated with flags, crews lined up at attention on spotless decks, moved by the presidential yacht at stately speed. On the Mayflower's bridge the President with Mrs. Harding at his side peered through field glasses from time to time to get a more detailed view of the spectacle.

THE LEATHER MEDAL WINNER.

"Was there any excitement at the shore last summer?" asked Esther.

"Yes," replied Dolly. "One day as I was sitting on the pier a man who couldn't swim fell off. I ran to where there was a coil of rope for just such purposes and threw it to him."

"Perfectly great! And pulled him out?"

"No, I didn't have anything to pull on. I threw him the whole coil."

GULLAHORN IS RANGER'S 'MOST BEAUTIFUL MAN.' ROTARIANS WIVES SAY

Jack Gullahorn is the most beautiful man in Ranger, so voted last night at the annual meeting of the Rotary club by the women present, at the dinner held at Lone Star hall. Their decision was made because of "his winning smile and perfect figure."

J. E. T. Peters was voted to be the homeliest man, this award of merit also being given him because of "his winning smile and perfect figure."

Election of directors was the chief business of the occasion. John H. Moran, Jels F. Castellaw, M. H. Smith, E. J. Barnes, J. T. Gullahorn, C. O. Terrell, W. E. Burke, M. K. Collie, H. R. Gholson, H. S. Cole and R. B. Waggoman were elected to compose the directorate for the next year. Officers are elected by the directors. Cole, Gullahorn, Barnes and Waggoman are hold-over members of the board. The others are serving their first term.

After the dinner and business meeting, the gathering was devoted to social purposes, dancing being the principal feature of the evening. Practically every member was accompanied by his wife.

MEXICAN GENERALS CAPTURED, PLANNED REVOLT, IT IS SAID

MEXICO CITY, April 28.—President Obregon today directed that steps be taken for the extradition of two Mexican generals captured yesterday by American authorities while crossing the Rio Grande.

Military authorities here were confident that the captures had nipped a revolutionary plot. Two of the generals captured were Gen. Candido Aguilar, son-in-law of former President Carranza, and Gen. Francisco Murguia.

MANY GERMANS TAKING STAND AGAINST WAR

By Associated Press
 PHILADELPHIA, April 28.—Conscientious objectors to war service in Germany have formed a union with more than 10,000 members, each of whom has signed a pledge that they will neither take up arms, produce war material, nor receive money or aid in any way in what they characterize as the "organized murder of subjects of other countries or our own countrymen."

This information comes from Howard W. Britton, a member of the Society of Friends from West Chester, Pa., who recently attended a public meeting in Berlin held under the auspices of the "German Union of Objectors to War Service."

"I expected to find a dozen or so long-haired persons sitting about a table, and instead I found a hall, jammed to the doors with about 800 people, the air tense with suppressed enthusiasm," said Mr. Britton.

One of the speakers said the organization was formed by German war prisoners in England after they were permitted to return to Germany.

A student who was a speaker at the meeting declared that there was great need in the universities for a spiritual awakening, since the old military party was still strong there and demanded revenge on the enemy.

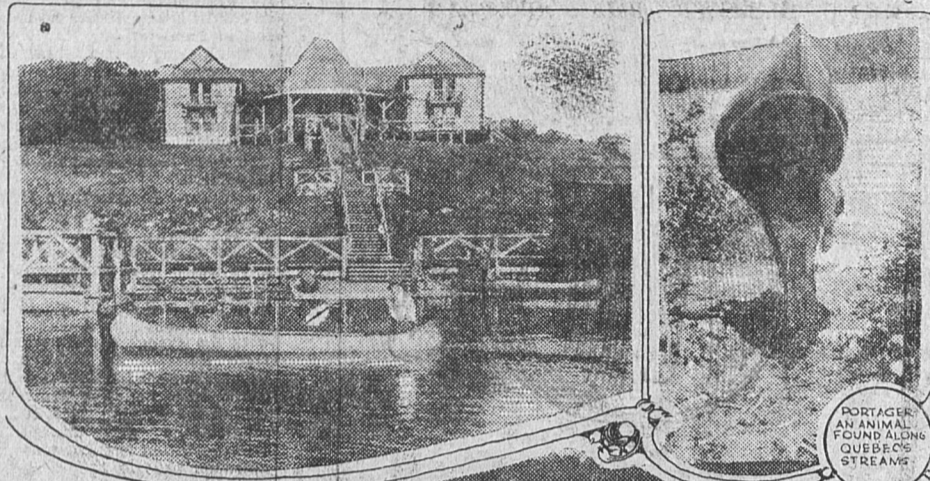

Another speaker said that the Germans who had permitted themselves to be driven into this war had brains that were nothing but soup, poured into their heads by others. "Militarism, mamonism, egoism and all that goes with the Wilhelm idea must disappear," he said.

Dr. Helene Stoecker, of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, said that the education supplied by the German state is drill, not education. "Instead of bringing hidden qualities to the surface it hammers lies into the brain," she said. "If the 'educated' are taught only how to exploit humanity, it were better that mankind remain as ignorant as the Russian peasant."

LOVERS OF OUT-OF-DOORS ARE EAGER TO PITCH THEIR CAMPS AMONG THE PINE-CLAD LAURENTIAN MOUNTAINS OF QUEBEC

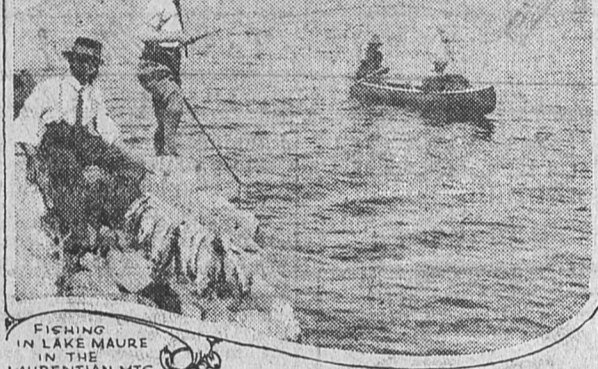

CLUBHOUSE AT LAKE CHAPLEAU

"Unless all signs fail, there is going to be one of the biggest 'back to nature' tourist seasons this year that Quebec has ever known," says one of Canada's leading sportsmen. He sums up the reason for his prophecy thus: Quebec province is one of the nearby districts where a man, who wishes, can get a real outing with good camping and fishing."

Present day interest in outings across the border has been greatly stimulated as a direct result of service overseas. Both in the United States and in Canada the statistics of war have shown that the physique of the soldiers was enormously improved by their regular life and outdoor work while in military camps. Recruits who came in hollow-bested and stoop-shouldered soon became upstanding front-chested soldiers, full of ideas of real men.

Peace has not erased the memory of these transformations. Men who went overseas have become converts to the back-to-nature philosophy and camping life. They begin preparations for their trips to the woods long before the first hint of Spring is abroad. Quebec, criss-crossed with innumerable trout streams and dotted with lakes stocked with all sorts of fish; Quebec, with her millions of acres of primeval forests; Quebec, with her beautiful Laurentian Mountains holding scores of delightful camps and resorts; Quebec, just across the border, ready with guides and outfitters to care for all who seek sport, rest or recreation in her wide domain, calls enticingly to those who know the joys of outdoor life.

Whether it be for a long canoe trip among the intricacies of the Kipawa, Gatineau or St. Maurice waterways; a permanent camp in the Lac Nemouque district of the Laurentians, or a set-up and knock-down and gone-the-next-day camp of a hiking party, the time allotted always proves too brief and the devotees of back-to-nature find themselves anticipating next year's outing even as they turn reluctant feet homeward.

MAY DAY FETE TO BE HELD AT YOUNG SCHOOL

Citizens of Ranger are invited to attend May Day exercises to be given Friday night at the Young school auditorium. It is announced a good musical program has been arranged for the entertainment of those who attend, and the teachers and pupils of the city schools have worked long and faithfully to make the affair a success.

The front curtain and stage hangings are in place and will add much to the pleasure of the occasion, it is believed. This is the last social to be given this school term and it is hoped a large crowd will be present.

Home-made cake, ice cream and home-made candy will be sold during the evening.

TURK WOMEN DISCARDING THEIR VEILS

By Associated Press
 CONSTANTINOPLE, April 28.—The command of the Shiek-ul-Islam, Vicar of the Sultan, ordering Turkish women not to appear on the stage, is being ignored by them. The German-Austrian and allied occupations of the city, together with the loss of husbands, fathers, and brothers, and the press of poverty, has brought a new freedom to Turkish women. This is daily seen by their clothing.

They wear their veils still, instead of a hat, but turned back and tied into a pretty knot, after the manner of their Russian refugee sisters.

Because of the high price of cloth, Turkish women no longer wear a multitude of garments, designed in old-time to hide the outlines of their figures. Both veil and dresses are a deep sea blue, instead of the dull conventional black once the custom. Some affect the homespun brown dress, the becoming garment designed by Halide Hanum, the Nationalist woman leader.

These changes have dissipated the mystery which once enveloped the Turkish woman and Americans here find that she does not differ in looks very much from others. On an average, they are not so good looking as the American woman. The difference may be said to lie in their timidity. Even this quality is dissipated quickly when they come in contact with foreigners, as is the case in the mixed receptions given at the Constantinople college for girls, maintained here by Americans. At such receptions the Turkish girls and women talk brightly and cleverly with American naval Rheumatism—A remarkable home treatment given by one who had it. In the year 1893 I was attacked by muscular and sub-acute rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally I found a treatment that cured me completely and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy or eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism, to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it, and it has proven itself as only those who are thus afflicted get rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, One Dollar, but understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free. Don't delay. Write today. Mark H. Jackson, 11236 Durs-ton Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Jackson is responsible. THE MERRY JOURNEYS OF MARY JANE

Right there before her eyes was a little old man peering away at a tiny pair of shoes

Mary Jane and the Little Old Shoemaker

ONE day Mary Jane took a walk away into the forest and all of a sudden she heard something pounding and pounding—and it wasn't Peter Pecker, the woodpecker, either. Finally Mary Jane came to the side of a hill, and there was a cave in it.

Mary peeped in carefully,—because you've got to be awfully careful of bears and things in caves,—and there, right before her eyes, was a little old man, peering away at a tiny pair of shoes. He was Old Willie Wimple, the fairies' shoemaker.

Mary Jane sat down and talked with Willie Wimple a long time about Fairy Goldy-Shoes, and all the other fairies she knew.

And finally they got hungry. So Willie Wimple got up and went to his cupboard in the back of the cave, and what do you think he brought out? A great, big can of Mary Jane Syrup, and a loaf of home-made bread. Mary Jane was hungry. So she ate three slices before she got through.

Then they told stories until it was time to go home. And Willie Wimple took her by the hand, so she wouldn't get lost, and brought her safely to the road that led to her own little home.

TOO MUCH SCIENCE.

"Is the liar to become obsolete?" Scientific men confess they have invented some sort of chemical compound which they insert in an apparatus and leave "sticking" around the office for these sorts of fellows.

Of course there are many who make light of the so-called invention and say it can't be done, etc.

But that's what they said about Robert Fulton's steamboat just before the propeller blades churned the rippling waves of the Hudson and made the first steam voyage.

We all confess the liar should be put hors du combat.

He serves no good purpose.

We like the truth teller, of course? But that's the other fellow.

As for ourselves, oh, well! We'd rather retain the priceless privilege.

But some of these mornings when you come down to the office and your boss asks if you had a party the night before and, your toes quaking and your eyes reddened, you ejaculate from simulated insult:

"Heavens, no!"

Then the chemicals begin to work in the apparatus in the boss's desk. They turn alternately blue and yellow. The boss knows you're a liar. He has an accurate "liars' ouija board."

As much as we love the truth when it is to come from the other man, we hate to have to tell it all the time ourselves. Therefore, we fear that such an apparatus, if it becomes practicable, will never get far, because it'll be soaked hard.

And, anyway, we believe this is taking too much advantage of the free moral agency. We do not believe in legislating or chemicalizing a man into doing right.

It seems that in the United States we have the standard of living so high now that by the time we get our automobiles, silk shirts, dancing clothes and diamonds, and pay our income tax, there's not enough left to procure the necessities of life with.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

Wearily from hunting, the Very Modern Girl wandered into the little shop with the French name, and then her face brightened. Here was the very hat she had in her mind's eye; she recognized it as being the one ever before it was fitted to her head, and then—oh then there was no possibility or shadow of a doubt. It was her hat. Just the style and color she affected, with a smartness of line not easily acquired. But the price! There was the stumbling block. Five dollars more than the limit she had set even in her wildest and weakest moments.

The friendly blond saleswoman with superabundant curves bent her persuasive powers to the sale. "I understand, dearie, but couldn't you meet us on the price? I wouldn't ask you to come very far. I'm artist enough to hate to see you go out without that hat. You look so pretty in it." The Girl could feel herself slipping, but managed to appear more determined than she really was. "No," she said, with tired frankness. "I have so much to buy now—suits, shoes, gloves, everything, and my budget simply will not stand stretching."

The interested saleswoman disappeared a moment, then came back beaming. "It's all right," she smiled. "I've arranged for you to have the hat at your price. I understand just how it is, dearie. I'm a working girl myself and I know where you end if you pay five and ten more on every thing you buy. I certainly admit you being so honest, dearie, and I'm glad to help you out. Frankness gets us every time. It's these big bluffs our girls can't stand. Maybe they think we don't spot 'em. They'd die before they'd own up they couldn't pay the price, so they pick flaws in the hats. I know 'em 'ways talkin' about bein' 'shampooed' and 'manicured,' when all the time we know they wash their own hair and every Saturday night get out their little manicure set and do their nails. Here's your hat and your change, dearie, and here's my card. I love to wait on ladies like you. Yes, dearie, the veil is with the hat. I cut it real liberal—a yard and a quarter anyway, but I only charged you for a yard. Call again, dearie. I know you're going to be pleased with that hat."

She was off to a waiting customer, and the Girl went out with a smile on her lips and a glow at her heart, even while she wondered how many times that day the same scene with but slight variations had been enacted.

Childhood's Faith in Friendliness.

As the Woman boarded the subway train at Times Square she involuntarily glanced at her watch to see if it really could be the five o'clock rush hour. The train was crowded to be sure, but brilliant red and blue balloons, clutched tightly in small fists, lent a festive air, and the treble of the childish voices rose above the usual din. Then the Woman remembered that the circus was in town. The train might almost have been a special for returning circus goers so redolent was the mental atmosphere of the sawdust ring.

And so it must have seemed to the small girl smuggled against her mother's shoulder, an air of blissful respect in her drooping blue eyes. The Woman made for the empty seat next her, but a stout-looking middle-aged individual reached it first and soon became engrossed in his paper. Could such a person, mused the Woman, ever have been a little child who shrieked with delight at a clown's antics?

The small girl prattled on about the raptures of the afternoon, but finding Mama unresponsive she turned to the sour-faced stranger and piped conversationally. "I liked the elephants best, didn't you?"

Not So Cryptic After All.

Of course one expects something different from the Orientals—that's why the Woman wondered when she passed a Chinese shop in upper Broadway early one morning before business hours and saw tucked in the lower left hand corner of the show window a sign that announced, "Nothing today." Curiosity led her past the same shop next morning. The sign was changed. It read: "12 qts and one cream."

DOG HILL PARAGRAPHS

By GEORGE BINGHAM.

NEW YORK, April 28.—What does a man cherish more—his wife or his pocketbook?

This question is suggested by a survey under auspices of the Savings Bank association of New York state. The investigation showed:

That only 79 out of 1600 husbands trusted or loved their wives sufficiently to deposit joint bank accounts upon which either may draw.

That "joint accounts" decrease alarmingly, leaving only 10 of the sides are hollow, presumably for the purpose of fastening to it a spiced sapling for a handle.

Inquiries from over the United States testify to the general interest in the relics discovered at Torrance, according to Dr. C. L. Edwards, scientist, who has the articles on exhibition in Los Angeles.

"The deposits which we are uncovering are estimate to be at least 1,000,000 years old and all tend to show that at some time animals larger than those found on any other part of the globe lived in this district," said Dr. Edwards. "Representatives of the Smithsonian Institution and other scientific institutions of the country have visited the pits and examined the evidence of a former age, stating them to be of great value in amazing scientific information."

TINKER BOB STORIES

By CARLYSLE H. HOLCOMB.

MR. SPARROW SEEKS REVENGE.

Even the Beautiful Creature of the King's Desire was anxious to get to the place where only a little while before they had seen Red Robin and his mate building their house. Of course Silky the wonderful monkey did not understand after he learned more about the forest creatures. What do you suppose they saw as they looked into the tree? Well, this is what Tinker Bob said anyway:

"That's just what I expected. You can't leave him alone a minute or something's wrong." Even then Silky didn't know what the King meant.

"O King, I don't see what the trouble is. He seems to be sitting in the tree quietly. What do you think is wrong?" Silky was puzzled.

"Well," said Tinker Bob, "I'll ask him and then you'll soon see. Mr. Sparrow what keeps you, so long? Why are you not coming to the Palace with the Robin family? I thought something must be wrong and for that reason we returned to see where you were. Tell me about it."

Now this put Mr. Sparrow in a terrible fix, for he knew if he told the King of the Forest a false story that something would happen to him that would be unpleasant. But he had to say something so this is what he said: "I can fly much faster than the Robins and I thought I would be there in time to hear all that was necessary to know, Chip, chip, chip, chip." Then he hesitated for he couldn't think of anything else to say to the King—that he thought would do to tell.

Silky could not understand yet, although Mr. Sparrow seemed to be acting peculiarly and with every hop was getting farther away from the place where they first saw him on their return. "Are you sure," asked the King, "that there is no other reason for the delay?"

"Chip, chip, chip, chip, O King I don't like to say this but I will say it to you. I don't like to travel with anyone who does not like my clothes, and the Robins don't like my gray suit, so I waited."

"The Robins Don't Like my Gray Suit"

"Are you sure there is nothing else that keeps you from coming along with the Robins and Silky and me? I think there is something you have forgotten to mention." Then Mr. Sparrow began to be afraid, but Silky the Monkey did not understand even then.

"I think the reason you stayed behind was to have an opportunity to destroy the house Mrs. Robin was building," said Tinker Bob. "Then Silky looked into the crotch of the limb and saw that the house had been destroyed and the twigs and straws and hairs had been scattered. 'Well, what do you think of that?'" he cried.

We will see what the King thought of it tomorrow.

Tomorrow—Jerry Returns.

"They would like to trust each other but just can't quite bring themselves to the point," said Henry Sawyer, president of the New York Citizens Savings bank.

"And even after mutual trust has gained a slight foothold and a joint account is agreed on, desperate controversies arise over the much-mooted question: 'Who's going to hold the bank book?'" was apparently of no practical value for military purposes. Its use lay wholly in terrorizing the civilian population of Paris by slaying the helpless. It was an attempt to weaken the heart of France, to break her spirit and resolution. It was hoped, doubtless, that when news of what was happening to the women and children at home reached the men at the front it would shake the wonderful morale which had held at Verdun and on many another desperate field of encounter.

For five months Paris endured the horror of this menace. No one knew when the shells would fall, or where, but the city went about its business and kept its courage.

Nemesis in America.

Meantime, over here in America the Nemesis of the great German cannon was in preparation.

The United States navy was at that very time building long-range guns, with this difference of purpose and viewpoint from the enemy: that our objective was a weapon which would be effective from a military standpoint; which could accomplish definite destruction within the combatant lines of the foe.

The German gun was a freak. It may be questioned whether it has significant value for future warfare. It was interesting as a demonstration of what can be done in hurling projectiles through space; it was terrible as a further evidence of the heartless cruelty of Teutonic militarism; but whether it counted anything of greater usefulness to the practical science of artillery than Jules Verne's story of the gun which dropped a projectile on the moon is open to debate.

The development of guns and shells for use in the event of possible future wars—which, pray God, the world will be spared—is more likely to follow along the lines on which American experiment and achievement have moved.

Three 1,400-Pound Shells.

The new United States navy guns were being built on plans which would make them the biggest ever placed on railway or other mobile mounts—300 feet more powerful than any artillery then in use for military purposes on the western front.

Although their range was considerably less than that of the German monster, they were made to fire a shell very much bigger and more destructive. The German gun threw a 9-inch shell, weighing about 200 pounds. The American guns were built to throw a 14-inch shell, weighing 1,400 pounds—and, when they got into action, they did.

The first mount, complete with its huge 14-inch naval gun, rolled out of the shops on April 25, 1918, less than a month from the time of the Good Friday slaughter in the French church. Tested at Sandy Hook, N. J., five days later, it proved a complete success. It hurled its immense projectiles more than twenty-five miles.

If four guns had been built in Paris we could have had them at the front in three days. They were made to move by rail, and to be ready for almost immediate action. But they had to get to France first, and the difficulties of fighting a war 3,000 miles away were impressed upon us by this necessity for transporting them.

No Ship Big Enough.

No ship was big enough to carry one of them set up. Each had to be taken to pieces before loading.

The last of the mounts was completed May 25—a new record for quick construction.

But getting a ship to take them over was no easy task. The first ship assigned was so badly battered up that had to go into dock for repairs; the second ship—the Texel—was sunk by a U-boat near our coast. It was June 29 before the New York Navy heavily laden with material, sailed for France.

The guns were received in France with amazement. There was some expressed lest the attempt to transport them to the front by rail might result in their crippling transportation because of their tremendous weight. But the fear was needless. News of their coming, doubtless, reached the Germans.

The proof of that is found in the extraordinary thing that happened next.

Stop Shelling of Paris.

The German mastodon of guns had been registering on Paris with fair regularity. By a series of nice calculations and daring observations its position had been located in the forest of St. Gobain, on a plateau north of the Aisne.

South of the Aisne was the forest of Compiegne, and to this place of concealment the American guns were headed. With their twenty-five mile range they would be able to search out the cover of the German masterpiece.

They were barely under way before the shelling of Paris ceased, and when battery No. 2 reached its position in the forest of Compiegne about August 21 it was greeted with the news that the day before the Germans had hastily withdrawn their pet. From that day until the armistice no more shells fell in Paris.

The Germans knew that the giant freak could not stand up under the fire of the 14-inch, 1,400-pound shells which the United States navy guns were preparing to drop in its neighborhood, and displayed that discretion which has been named the better part of valor.

Tribute to American Genius.

The story of the work accomplished by the United States naval batteries in the latter weeks of the war, in the days which were crucial and held victory or defeat in their hours of anxiety, is a story that would bear detailed telling. Following operations with the French and American armies from Soissons to Verdun shelling bases, ammunition depots and railway yards they wrought destruction far behind the German lines, cutting communications and disrupting their transportation system, playing a conspicuous part in the taking of Laon and Tergnier in the Meuse-Argonne offensive, in shelling Montmedy and Longuyon and in cutting the German main artery between Metz and Sedan. They remained in action to the end, their last shot falling into the German lines at almost the very moment when the armistice ended hostilities. Their record was a triumph of American genius and naval efficiency.

MUCH GOLD ON SUNKEN SHIP TO BE SOUGHT

By Associated Press.

LONDON, April 28.—Another attempt is to be made this summer by the admiralty to recover the remainder of the bullion lost when the armed liner Laurentic was mined and sunk off the north coast of Ireland in 1917.

The salvage vessel Racer, together with the Canadian drifter No. 1, will undertake the salvage work for the third summer.

The Laurentic went down in 20 fathoms (120 feet) of water four miles off the coast of Donegal, carrying gold bars to the value of between $10,000,000 and $15,000,000.

Four years of pounding by Atlantic gales have reduced the wreck to a shapeless mass and each year the ship has been more difficult. Last summer the divers found that about 250 tons of hull and deckplates had settled on the strong room, where the gold was stored, basking it in.

The Racer is now equipped, in addition to every possible contrivance for aiding divers, with a "recompression chamber." A diver can reach the bottom in half a minute but after prolonged immersion at 20 fathoms below the surface, half an hour has to be allowed for raising him because if brought up too quickly he is likely to collapse. The great pressure at 20 fathoms saturates the system with nitrogen gas but in the recompression chamber the nitrogen can be eliminated gradually.

MERMAID FROCK STARTLES ENGLISH

By United Press.

LONDON, April 28.—The freak fashions which inevitably accompany springtime madness promise this season to surpass anything that has gone before in the way of daring and novelty.

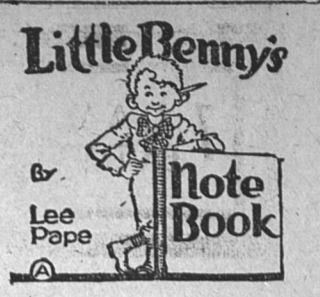

Dame Fashion has been having a confab with Father Neptune and the net result is decidedly "fishy."

One of them is the mermaid frock, which is a close fitting affair entirely composed of paillettes which overlap one another in the approved fish-scale style. These paillettes are of iridescent shades of silver, green and blue. No trimming or ornament of any kind is worn with the frock and corsets are doffed so that the sinuous mermaid effect is complete.

Another fishy fad is the girle composed of painted sea shells. With this is worn a head dress of similar design, or, maybe, of tinted pearls.

For those whose systems cannot assimilate too much sea-breeze, a few Hawaiian modes is likely to excite most comment in the Hawaiian skirt. This extends from the waist to just below the knee and is composed of coarse, matted, hay-colored fringe and has the ragged primitive effect of the garments of South Sea Islanders.

This afternoon in school Miss Kitty told the class about writing short stories, saying, "Now I'm going to give out paper and I want you all to try to write a short story on any subject. Remember, they must be short and they must have the element of surprise in them. Now I want to see how many of you can have a story done by the time I finish marking the spelling papers."

FROM CHICAGO TO NEW YORK BY DAYLIGHT

By United Press.

MILWAUKEE, April 28.—America's largest air "Pullman," also the largest in the world since the recent wrecking of a great Italian plane which was to have been used in traffic between Italy and the United States, will take to the air early in May.

Alfred Lawson, south Milwaukee airplane builder, whose giant liner two years ago sailed over a greater part of the eastern half of the country, is only waiting for favorable weather to test out his liners that will carry mail under government contract between the two cities. The test will be made early in May.

Lawson's liners will begin a new era in air transportation, and his fastest planes will cut twelve hours from the present fastest railroad time between New York and Chicago. Under his government contract Lawson will have his plane make stops at Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, Penna., and Fort Wayne, Ind.—three stops between New York and Chicago. Day planes will start in the morning at 6:30 a. m. and are scheduled to arrive at their destination at 5:00 p. m. Night planes leave the terminals at 10 o'clock and are scheduled to arrive at their destination at 6:00 the following morning, making New York and Chicago eight hours apart.

The giant liners are capable of carrying 6,000 pounds of dead weight. The government contract calls for 1,500 pounds of mail and the planes will carry 4,500 pounds of human weight, if the twenty passengers the plane can accommodate weigh that much. The planes are fitted with all the comforts one expects on America's best trains—berths, diner, wash rooms, etc. Nothing is being spared for the comfort of the passengers. If this type of plane proves successful many more will be in the air before fall.

GIFT OF BLOOD TO SAVE WOMAN'S LIFE A FAILURE

Special to the Times.

EASTLAND, April 28.—Miss Zenith Van Hoose, private secretary to Sam D. Pounce, president of the Security State Bank & Trust Co., died at the Whittington sanitarium last evening as the result of an operation for appendicitis, and her remains will be taken to Coleman, Texas, her former home for interment. When it became known that she was very low, and the attending physicians stated that a transfusion of blood was the only thing that would possibly save her life, Jack Oates, cashier of the Security State Bank, volunteered and gave a pint of his blood in the effort to save his coworker, but without avail. Deceased lived with her mother and sister, Miss Margaret Van Hoose, who is employed by the Oil Cities Electric company.

Since coming to Eastland she had made many friends by her genial disposition, and many womanly qualities of heart and mind.

GIRL, 15, SEIZED ON RETURN WITH ADMIRER'S BODY

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio, April 28.—Anna Prasey, 15, alleged to have lived for a week in the woods near here with Jack Knight, 19, who was killed by a policeman in Beaver Falls, Pa., Tuesday night, was arrested here today, when she returned to Youngstown with Knight's body.

After bad weather had driven the pair from the mattress and blankets which formed their only shelter in the woods, they went to Pittsburgh, the girl told police. From there they went to Beaver Falls.

JACK YORK'S SWATTING SPREE GIVES NITROS SIXTH STRAIGHT

First Sacker Hits Homer and Single Which Gives Ranger Three Runs; Tightest Battle Yet Staged at Park;

Jack York hired a press agent yesterday. Hired him with three knockouts of four times up. Gave him a bonus in the shape of a home run which bounded over the boards right where W. E. Davis' sign advertised that it will cost said W. E. Davis one Elgin watch for every ball that goes over it. In addition to the salary and the bonus, there was the blow into left field which put Ranger's sixth consecutive victory on ice. On top of that Jack was the leading lady in one of the strangest and most scientific double plays that Nitro fans will see this season, and he handled eleven chances in all without a bobble. And on top of that, he gave the press agent a cigar.

But then Jack can afford it. He got the watch, you know. And if he did have a trained rock lying out in right center, it's an inexpensive sort of pet.

Earned Publicity. As a matter of fact, Jack is entitled to more publicity, as principal performer of an all-star cast, composed of eighteen ball players, divided into two teams of nine men each, straight down the line.

Being a star, Mister York didn't really come on until the scenario was well under way, although he did participate kind of casually as a sacrifice to Clapp's advance in the first frame. But that was not his real making entry. Nope, that was reserved for the second frame, so that everybody could roar their heads off when "Teet" Tolar, playing right field in place of Lovelace, could amble over to his left and make a miraculous stab at Bechtol's liner. It was a kindly deed of Tolar's, as otherwise board would be missing a ball from the park. The reason of Teet's entry into the fray, by the way, was Singleton's charleyhorse, which moved Lovey over into center. Of that, more elsewhere.

Spotlights! But to get back to Mr. York, with Mr. Tolar as main support. Episode one of the second reel was a swat to left by one Kizziar, good for two bases. Episode two was a bunt by Milam on which Kizziar made third base by less than a sheet of onion skin. Now, camera! Kizziar on third, Milam on first, Whitehead at the bat. Whitehead propels Hill's serve into right field, it dropping into Tolar's hands as if it were a hot potato. When Kizziar bluffed a dash, Milam saw the throwing movement and beat it for second. But, lo! Teet snapped the ball to Jack, standing about ten feet from first toward the box. His throw to Murphy trapped Milam between first and second. Kizziar edged off, with the dual purpose of making for home or drawing a throw to save Milam. Finally he was almost half way. Then Jack began walking across the diamond, leaving Milam as he wished. Kizziar was too far off to make a dash in either direction. So he stood still almost until Jack tagged him, evidently desiring for Milam to make third. But Milam considerably stepped at second. He was taking no more chances. That he went to third on a passed ball when the signals got crossed up and scored on Kemper's hit to right was a kind of anticlimax, but didn't spoil the thrill of a most unusual play.

That one run led of Abilene's lasted just long enough for Mr. York to change his glove for a club. This required an inning during which occurred no event of major importance, except Kemper's error which allowed Clapp to reach first after two were out in the third. Then Mr. York and war club strode to the plate. And smote. A line drive which struck one in deep right center and with one hop cleared the wall. Thus giving Ranger two runs, Mr. York a watch, Mr. Davis a free ad, and the press agent a cigar and something to write about.

Eagles Tie It. The one-run lead that established, lasted until the sixth, when Bechtol lifted a double over Clapp's head, went to third on Kizziar's infield out and scored on Milam's line drive which Lovelace made a gallant try for, but missed.

The tie lasted until the ninth, when, with the stage properly set, Mr. York again appeared. Preceding his appearance, Allen had singled sharply to center and hiked for first with a grin showing around the back of his neck, and Charley Clapp had lined his third safety to the outfield, putting Red on second. Jack wasted no time. He had having collected his watch, he had none to waste. So he belted one of Hollis' offerings to left and sent Pitcher Red Hill scampering across the plate with the winning run.

What was the score? That's just figgers. Read 'em for yourself:

Score: ABILENE. Players: Hendrix, rf, 4 0 2 0 0; White, 2b, 4 0 0 1 0; Bechtol, cf, 4 1 1 0 0; Kizziar, 1b, 4 0 3 10 2; Milam, lf, 2 1 1 1 0; Whitehead, 3b, 4 0 0 3 2; Kemper, ss, 4 0 1 0 1; Lewis, c, 4 0 1 6 1; Hollis, p, 0 0 2 2 0. Totals: 34 2 7x25 11 1.

Score by innings: Abilene: .010 001 000-2; Ranger: .002 000 001-3. Summary: Two-base hits, Tate, Kizziar, Bechtol; home run, York; sacrifice hits, York, Milam 2; stolen bases, Tate, Lewis; struck out, by Hollis 6, by Hill 4; bases on balls, off Hollis 3, passed ball, Allen; double play, Tolar to York to Murphy to York; left on bases, Abilene 6, Ranger 8. Time of game, 1 hour and 45 minutes. Umpire Wakeland.

PLAYING IT OVER

Angelo tomorrow! The Bronchos aren't up to very high. They got off to a bad start and have been ridden three series to date, but they still are going strong, as witnessed by the game at Mineral Wells yesterday, which was about as pretty as the combat here. The Bronchos are figured, in the dope floating around the circuit as contenders when the sun once begins to shine and a little oil of preparation loosens up the muscles of the venerable Luke and some of his ancient warriors. There's Frankie Truesdale, for instance, who probably was the best second baseman the Texas league ever saw, and who has been in and about the big show for years. These old boys can still play ball when they get warmed up under the genial rays of the Texas sun. That's one reason baseball is better in these parts.

York was back in the game, as noted elsewhere, but Singleton remained out on account of his strained leg. He expects to get back in there today. Johnny was forced out Tuesday when his charleyhorse got to throbbing in an attempted steal of second. He stuck in the game for an inning, but the next time he came to bat he fell every time he swung and could hardly get up. Many of the fans have been amazed at the speed with which John goes around the bases and at the startling slides he pulls. But few of them know he has been doing this with a knot on his leg as big as one's fist.

Shortstops have a hard time on Nitro field. There's hardly a day that one player or another doesn't mess one up down there, when it is not really the ground isn't hard enough to give the ball any bounce, and nearly every grounder just skims along and about the time the player gets it, it takes an erratic bound and the player fozzles. Three misses were registered there yesterday. Kemper's cost Abilene a run, Harding's didn't count.

Charley Clapp continued his hitting attack yesterday, getting three out of five. No two went anywhere near the same spot. One laced only a foot or so of clearing the wire in right field. It hung for a moment, then dropped, and Charley was held to a single.

RANGER HIGH BEATS OLDEN SECOND TIME

Ranger High defeated Olden High Wednesday for the second time, the final score being 11 to 6. Brown pitched seven innings. Pellerin one. Ranger led all the way, the bulk of Olden's scores coming when Pickens, Olden's pitcher, hit a homer with the bases full.

GAMES WANTED

The Breckwalker baseball team has been organized and a letter from its manager says it can "handle a game with any team anywhere, any time." Clubs desiring a game are asked to write J. B. Gronthorn, Breckwalker, Texas.

G. C. Benedict is manager of the Magnolia Company team at Olden, and would like to book games with amateur clubs around this section, he tells the Times. Mr. Benedict says the team is "pretty fair, but not world beaters." Managers can get in touch with him either by letter or phone at the Magnolia Company, Olden, phone 9007.

Dempsey Has Advantage Over Carpenter, Comparison Shows

Anatomical comparative statistics show Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion boxer, will have an advantage over Georges Carpentier, the French European champion, on every point when they step into the ring on July 2 at Jersey City, N. J. The above illustration shows the make-up of the two champions.

JACK BRITTON TELLS HOW IT FEELS TO BE KNOCKED OUT

By HENRY J. FARRELL (United Press Staff Correspondent.) NEW YORK, April 28.—Lying helpless on the floor of the Coliseum, with Battling Nelson standing over him in the twenty-first round, Joe Gans said to have been one of the saddest spectacles of the ring. "Pictures of that scene painted for me by spectators are a sort of premonition," Jack Britton, world's welterweight champion and the greatest of present day boxers, said here recently.

"I know I'm going out that way some day. I can't keep going forever. I've been in the ring sixteen years, and I haven't very many more years ahead of me. Some day some young 'boxer is coming along and I'm going to realize that it's the last time. "I know just how it will feel, too. —the dizzy feeling in the head, the tolling count of the referee which brings an insane desire to get up without a response from the muscles, the yells of voices at the ringside that sound like a hum far away in the distance. I know just how it will feel, because I came very near getting it once. "Bryan Downey, a rugged little Columbus boxer, was the one who came near getting me. Had he been an experienced boxer he would have finished me easily. "I was going along easy with him, just boxing and letting him wear himself out with his rushing, wild swinging tactics. All of a sudden I went down. I didn't see the blow and I don't remember going. When my head began to clear I found myself on the floor. The referee had just said—"Five," I thought—"What's the matter with that referee, he's starting at five?" I was hurt. It seemed as if a fog had dropped down around me. I heard the voice of the referee counting—"SIX—SEVEN!" Yells of the excited crowd seemed just like a buzz. I wanted to get up but my muscles seemed numb. I felt restless laying there but I knew I had to get up. My head then cleared and all of a sudden I was able to get up before the count. I was still out. I looked across the ring at Downey, wondering what he was going to do. He hesitated, wildly nervous for what seemed like an age. He came tearing at me with both arms swinging and I thought—"Jack, old boy, if you've ever done it, you've got to do it now! "Downey kept shooting at my head instead of giving it to me in the body where it would have got me. I ducked my head, covered my jaw and took them all on the top of the head and shoulders. I got the chance to get in on him and held. He was tired and winded and I hung on him getting rested all the time. The going then sounded and I came back in my corner. "If that boy had only known, I would have gone down. Some day I'm going to have the same thing happen with a smart boxer who will knock me out then I'll go down just like Gans."

FAT AND LEAN PLAYERS TO BE PUT ON DIETS

Ralph Stockman last night was elected leader of the Lean team and Joe Harness of the Fats, and they were empowered to choose and train their nines for the annual championship affair set for Sunday, May 8. They promise to get busy right away, as little more than a week is left for the Leans to get leaner and the Fats to get fatter. Stockman will place his gang on a diet of grapefruit and lettuce, it is said, while the Fats will embark upon a course of beefsteak and other healthful foods.

Sunday's game between the Business Men's team and the Gulf Production Company will be played after the Broncho-Nitro battle, and hereafter all Sunday practices will be held in the afternoon. This will keep several men from getting in bad with the wife, the club believes.

Several clubs have been organized around Ranger in the last few days and it now seems probable that they will combine forces to form a six- or eight-club city league to start its schedule in the latter part of May.

Hot Stuff. Some of the corn liquor being made down South nowadays has a potency all its own. They tell this story in illustration: In the North Carolina mountains two dorkies opened a jug and in doing so spilled a little. On the drop fell on a tumble bug, who immediately dropped his ball, checked his heels to looking up to a bale of cotton the two negroes had been carrying, snorted: "All right, big boy. Let's go."

ROADS COULD SAVE BILLION YEARLY—LAUCK

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
United Press Staff Correspondent.
CHICAGO, April 27.—Details of how organized labor believes railroads of the United States can save over one billion dollars in expenditures annually were described by W. Jett Lauck, American Federation of Labor economist, today in a statement to the United States Railroad Labor board.

Lauck appeared as a witness for railroad unions in their fight to prevent reduction of wages asked by the railroads.
"Highest efficiency in railroad administration will be obtained through a national unified control or a regional control, which will utilize all existing facilities regardless of competing claims," Lauck said. He quoted former Director General William G. McAdoo to show that "there is no question but that great economies are possible under unified management in the direction of comprehensive national plan for transporting products with minimum effort in the shortest line from point to point."
Lauck suggested pooling of repair shops, elimination of circuitous rail routes, unification of terminals, consolidation of fleet offices, universal mileage tickets, standardization of equipment, maintenance of uniform freight classifications, maintenance of common time tables between important points, high demurrage rates and utilization of water routes for relief of crowded rail lines.
Pooling of locomotives and cars were recommended to meet traffic congestion. He said this would be impossible under private control.
Lauck charged failure to adopt economic devices, to standardize locomotives, over-development of motive-power in respect to other facilities, inefficient freight handling at terminals, labor turn-over waste, preventable loss and damage, poor accounting and other alleged extravagances cost the railroads $969,500,000 annually.
"Engine terminals and shops are from ten to thirty years behind the times, rendering them about 50 per cent inefficient," the witness charged.
"The permanent way" of railroads—"classification yards, roadbeds, passing sidings, crossing and water facilities, bridges, signal equipment and communication—has been so neglected as to be another source of waste and inefficiency."
Bridges, it was declared, are in many instances too light to permit the hauling of maximum load trains.
Lauck called for a big outlay in cash, would net millions in savings to railroads each year, Lauck said.
"Lack of proper signal systems means slow handling of trains, according to Lauck. He characterized the system of loading and transferring of freight and baggage as "primitive."
"Freight cars moved an average of 26.1 miles per day in 1917 in comparison to 24.9 miles in 1920," Lauck said. "An increase of two tons per car in the load carried was noted in the same period. There was also an increase of 5.8 per cent in 1917 to 7.7 per cent in 1920, of the number of unserviceable freight cars."
Cars Move Little.
"Freight cars traveling loaded moved two-thirds of the time and were loaded to two-thirds of their capacity," Lauck alleged.
"Scientific train control, standardization of car loading and economic scheduling were recommended as remedies."
"Sadly inadequate and out of date car and locomotive repair shops are at the bottom of low efficiency in maintenance of equipment," the witness testified.
"Hard to mouth procedure," in railroad administration resulted in millions of wasted dollars, according to Lauck. He mentioned as inefficient "wasted labor effort due to lack of proper supervision and looseness of organization," difficulties of distribution of materials and supplies, unscientific policy of laying out yards for lack of planning, absence of accurate records and careless control of water supply.
"Efficient administration would mean reduction of one-third in office expense," Lauck declared.
To secure public sentiment an enormous sum was expended for publicity, according to Lauck.
He thought $100,000,000 annual salaries for executives was too much.
According to Lauck's information, $5,022,500,000 is the estimated capital outlay of railroads necessary for improvements in 1921, 1922 and 1923. He estimated a saving of $1,200,450,000 would result from the economic expenditure of this capital under unified control.

DELAWARE HAS MODEL PRISON IN OPERATION

Every inmate is on Personal Parole Day and Night.

By Associated Press
WILMINGTON, Del., April 27.—A prison where every man is on his personal parole day and night; where guards are few and rules are rarely broken; where life-termers work unguarded outside the prison walls and where punishment when needed is decided on and administered by the prisoners—this is the Newcastle county workhouse, in the outskirts of this city, where a remarkable experiment in penology is being carried out by a warden who believes men the world over are being driven to crime by existing prison methods.
The New Castle county workhouse this month rounded out its first year under the direction of Mordocai S. Plummer, the warden who instituted the "parole system" in May, 1920. There are today 337 prisoners, slightly more than half of them colored.

Crime Is Mental.
Mr. Plummer believes that crime is a mental affliction and that men can be "cured" by proper treatment. He believes that 95 per cent of the men in prisons are morally sound and that only 5 per cent are "incurable." It is his theory that kindly and human interest shown in a prisoner inspire him with the conviction that society is his friend, not his enemy and that he will respond by becoming a useful member of society. In a recent address to the state legislature in behalf of a parole law similar to the one enacted in Wisconsin, he declared:
"Most jails are schools of vice, hotbeds of disease, foul and immoral where abnormal conditions pervert and unbalance the mind, where men become mere elemental beasts and where initiative and energy is sapped."
In the carrying out of Warden Plummer's theory the internal affairs of the workhouse are administered by the prisoners themselves, through an "honor committee" of eight men, whose chairman is a man serving eighteen years for manslaughter and which includes on its membership three "life termers." There are various sub-committees on cleanliness, morals, recreation and other matters.
Prisoners Are Tried.
A prisoner who breaks a rule is reported, tried by the committee, which sits every night, and punishment meted out. This takes the form of partial withdrawal of privileges and, in extreme cases, ostracism by the other prisoners, which it is declared, is the punishment felt most keenly. The culprit is represented by counsel at these hearings and may appeal to the warden, but rarely does.
There are now only six guards in the institution. These are in the main stationed at the doors and carry the keys. The prisoners have their meals and recreation without a guard present, do their work unguarded and leave in batches for work on the surrounding farm with one of their own number in charge. In the tailor shop, 180 men work all day long under the sole supervision of men selected by themselves.
"The prison is scrupulously clean. The men have a band of twenty-five pieces, a glee club, two baseball teams and dramatic societies. They are allowed visitors at any time when it will not interfere with their work, and may be seen in the corridors near the entrance conversing freely with relatives. Gifts are not restricted. "They can bring them dynamite if they want," said the warden. "It wouldn't be used."
Buy at Cost.
In the main corridor is a store where candy, tobacco, soap, toilet articles (including razors), biscuits and novelties are sold at cost.
The prisoners work eight hours a day and have from 5:30 until 8 p. m. for recreation, in addition to having free access to the yard or recreation rooms during the day when tasks are finished ahead of time or are temporarily lacking.
Only six prisoners have attempted to escape under the "parole system." Three of these were recaptured and punished by their fellow prisoners.

HALF GLOBE'S INHABITANTS SEE ECLIPSE OF MOON, DESCRIBED BY DIRECTOR MT. LOWE OBSERVATORY

LOWE OBSERVATORY, MOUNT LOWE, Cal., April 28.—Visible to one-half the inhabitants of the globe, was the total eclipse of the moon, remarkable for the opportunity it afforded scientists in the United States and South America to make observations which occurred last Thursday night and early Friday.

To the average person, an eclipse of the moon is merely an event of passing interest. To astronomers, who, in the case of the present eclipse have known for four years the exact minute it was due, it was an incident of great scientific moment.
With Edgar Lucien Larkin, director of Lowe Observatory, the correspondent spent several hours in watching the moon, or mass of what is supposed to be barren rock, 2,160 miles in diameter, enter the earth's shadow, saw it totally obscured, then emerge with a radiance that gave it an appearance of having had a bath.
The cause of the eclipse was the earth attaining a position directly between the sun and the moon. As a consequence, the sun's light to the lunar body was obstructed.
Mammoth Ball of Yellow.
Early in the evening the moon, as viewed from the observatory, 3,500 feet up the side of Mount Lowe and far above mists and any possible haze, appeared through the telescope to be a mammoth yellowish ball.
As the huge, but very delicate instrument was adjusted to meet the demand of the correspondent's eyes, the glories of the lunar orb came into view. It is 239,000 miles away from this terrestrial ball, yet at night under the powerful lens it seemed to be hanging in space comparatively close at hand.
If the reader saw any of the reproduced aerial photographs taken during the war and showing shell holes in which it appeared to be pitiful landscapes, he has a pretty fair idea of what the moon looks like under a powerful telescope.
Prof. Larkin pointed out prominent craters, such as Copernicus, 56 miles in diameter and 11,000 feet deep; Aristarchus, Clavius, Ptolemy, Kepler and others. The most beautiful of all these was Aristarchus, supposed to have walls of crystals and which had a lustre like a jewel.
Enters Shadow at 10 P. M.
At 10 o'clock, Lowe Observatory time, the moon entered the earth shadow. At 11:30 the total eclipse began and this lasted until 12 minutes past 12. The moon left the earth's shadow, which if anyone has any little bet to decide and wants to know for sure, has an average length of 858,576 miles, at 1:33 a. m.

During the period it was obscured by the earth shadow, the moon had a copper colored appearance. This was caused by refracted light from the sun being around through the 200 miles of the earth's atmosphere and reaching the lunar party. The dust and moisture in the earth atmosphere was responsible for the peculiar color.
At the time of the total eclipse there were only two planets observable above the horizon of Mount Lowe. These were Jupiter and Saturn. Four of Jupiter's moons were plainly visible through the huge telescope. These had a reddish hue as compared to Jupiter's brilliant color. One of the moons appeared very near to the planet.
The three rings of Saturn, which are now turned vertically to the earth, appeared like one tiny thread. These rings are particles of meteoric matter which are circulating about the planet.
Quotes Wilcox Poem.
To emphasize the puny position the earth occupies in the universe, Director Larkin asserted:
"One billion worlds such as ours could come to an end and never be missed. There are three billion suns now known to astronomers. There are millions of nebulae condensing in the ether and in two to four billions of years they will reach that stage."
The astronomer said he had been studying for 62 years, 10 hours a day, and he still has considerable to acquire in the way of astronomical knowledge.
As the correspondent started to leave, Larkin quoted a poem composed by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, March 31, 1893, on the very spot where he stood. It ran:

WASHINGTON, April 28.—About 15,000 cases of Chinese wine—ing ka ny—has been ordered released from customs houses for use as medicine, Prohibition Commissioner Kramer said today.

The Chinese wine, Mr. Kramer explained, was imported before the adoption of the prohibition bureau standard as to the amount of alcohol such preparations might contain.

NICARAGUA REVOLT PLOT FRUSTRATED IN LONDON

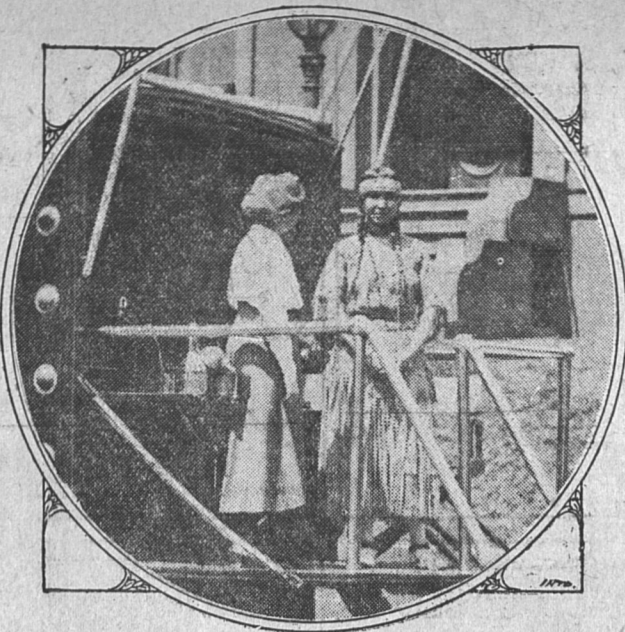

LONDON, April 28.—A revolution plot in Nicaragua has been frustrated here by British customs officials, who have seized the former British gunboat Harrier at Swansea, Wales, just as the vessel was about to sail on a gun-running expedition, it was revealed today.

The leaders were two Venezuelan generals who had been very active between London and Paris. They were shadowed for months.

PARIS NEW RICH INDULGE IN ORGIES WHILE POOR STARVE

PARIS, April 28.—The scandalous imbecility of modern manners in Paris cannot be better understood in contrast to the Seine's 150,000 unemployed than by examining the character and the clientele of the costly diversions and the special houses where the spending luxury-loving minority wastes its nights.

Never in its history has Paris been so crowded with dens where the night can be passed in consecration to wine, women and song—especially the first two. The day is passed when vice operated its nefarious practices behind closed shutters and sound-deadened doors. Now it flaunts itself openly, unashamed and officially tolerated, for all the world to see and judge that which is Paris.

Since the armistice, and particularly in the last six months, the "night holes" have multiplied until now an entire quarter of Paris is exclusively devoted to them.

"American" bars, tango palaces, shimmy salons, supper halls, all furnished in the soft red opulence which advertised vice affects, touch elbow to elbow the streets of this district known throughout the world as Montmartre. Many of the proprietors are former courtesans enriched by their practices since and during the war.

In an eternal delirium one dances, one strolls, one drinks from midnight until dawn, despite the law which says music, dancing and dining must cease at 2 a. m.

The competent authorities, services of hygiene, agents of manners, keep a close surveillance on these "pleasure boxes" by means of spies. The commissionaire who hands you from your taxi, the fat woman who checks your hat and coat, the maitre d'hotel who obsequiously waves you to a table, the waiter pulls the corks of your champagne bottles, even the seductive, languorous creature who seats herself beside you and capitalizes on the arts of tenderness and sham love as did Crysia and Melitta in the days of Aphrodite—any and all of them may be an agent of police, there for the express purpose of keeping the wealthy spenders under a strict watch.

Every night Paris watches the scandal of thousands of automobiles discharging at the portals of these pleasure places, their freight of newly rich and international profiteers, to say nothing of tourists satisfied at last that they are seeing the "real" Paris.

And down in the abyss of misery on the brink of which the profiteers are carelessly dancing are the 150,000 starving unemployed of France.

ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD GIRL SOME SPELLER

MITCHELL, S. D., April 28.—An 11-year-old girl, Hazel Herbst, is the best speller in Davidson county. She won the recent county spelling bee in a field of eight-on contestants, all older than she. She spelled more than 700 words.

"SOMEBODY'S BOY"

GEORGETOWN, Ky., April 28.—A fund is being collected here under direction of Mrs. Ernest Ashurst to provide a marker for the grave of a young man who was killed by a train here April 1 and buried last week without having been identified. The marker will bear the inscription: "Somebody's boy, killed April 1, 1921; buried April 14, 1921."

MAY EXTEND ORIENT RAILWAY IN MEXICO

EL PASO, April 28.—American and English capitalists, officials of the Kansas City, Missouri and Orient railroads, have been making a tour of the company's properties in Mexico with the view of determining the advisability of extending the railroad and making immediate repairs. On their return to El Paso they announced that the company was contemplating improving and extending the lines.

The principal extension would connect the line in a continuous system from Tonolobampo, Sinaloa, to Chihuahua City and up to the border at Laredo, Texas, the road would be kept in good condition, they said, if the recommended improvements are made.

REVISED.

1,650 ASK DECREES, COURT IN LONDON RUSHES CASES

LONDON, April 28.—Precedents in English court procedure are being broken in an effort to dispose of a list of several hundred divorce cases before the recess. A few days ago Lord Birkenhead heard more than twenty cases, the first time the Lord Chancellor ever sat as a divorce court judge. Another unprecedented move was made today when five judges, including 102 undefended petitions. The judges worked in relays. There are 1,650 additional cases.
