THIS MUSKOGEE WOMAN TELLS ABOUT CHANGE

"I have gained twenty-five pounds by taking Tanlac and I just can't tell how happy I am to get my health back," declared Mrs. Mary E. Love, 440 N. Cherokee St., Muskogee, Okla. "Three years ago while we were living in Rosedale, Kansas, I broke down completely and had to give up my position. My nerves just seemed to collapse, and I became so weak and run-down I could hardly get around. My liver became sluggish and I lost my appetite and didn't seem to want to eat a thing. My stomach was badly disordered and at times I felt almost deathly sick. I slept but little and fell off in weight and went from hand to mouth until I was alarmed over my condition."

"But Tanlac proved to be just the thing I had been needing, and I certainly am glad I took my friend's advice and tried it. Five bottles have restored my health just perfectly. I have been built up wonderfully and feel so well and strong I never will be able to praise Tanlac enough. It is the best medicine in the world and I am at the time recommending it to some of my friends."
Tanlac is sold in Ranger by Phillips Bros. and in Eastland by Butler Drug Co.—Advertisement.

PRISONER'S GIRL STOPS JAIL BREAK

Waistline Prevents Flight, but It Was Entirely Involuntary.

CAMP SHERMAN, Ohio, March 17.—It was only the sheer girl of Orville Wells, fattest of military prisoners, that prevented a wholesale escape of prisoners here recently, military authorities have announced, after an investigation covering the escape of four prisoners.

Wells' act, however, will win him neither a medal nor a pardon, for his assistance was wholly involuntary. According to the story told, three prisoners planned the jail delivery, but at least seven and possibly many more were to benefit thereby.

A hole was made in the second floor of the building used as the jail by removing a tin floor jacket from around a furnace pipe. Prisoners, according to the plan, were to crawl through the wire mesh and slip out low, then out of a window and under the wire fence around the prison.

Expedition was necessary because of the expected advent of inspectors. The aid of a prison sentry was enlisted, authorities say, and this sentry, a boyhood friend of one of the leaders, was to permit the prisoners to pass under the wire unchallenged. Everything moved like clockwork. The leaders left first and lots were drawn as to which should follow. Wells drew fifth place. With his 49-inch girth he stuck in the hole, completely barring escape of the waiting prisoners.

Curses and prayer availed nothing. The harder he wriggled the tighter he stuck. The sentry, fearing detection, gave the alarm. The waiting prisoners pulled Wells out of the hole, but officers discovered the means used, and now the exit to freedom is definitely closed.

Panama Urged to Comply With White Decision

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Urgent request that Panama comply "without delay" with neutral boundary awards by President Loubet of France and Chief Justice White of the United States supreme court in the dispute with Costa Rica is contained in the note dispatched by the state department, March 15, and made public today.

Appointement of a joint commission of engineers by the two countries to define the line of the White award is commended and Panama requested to relinquish its jurisdiction over the territory on the Costa Rican side of its line.

The state department, the note adds, has been unable to find any ground for the contention of Panama that Justice White had exceeded his jurisdiction.

Indication from Panama that it "intentionally to comply with the representations" is asked and the note includes assurance of "true and impartial friendship on the part of the United States for both governments."

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS DEMAND JAZZ MUSIC

GALVESTON, March 18.—Natives of the South Sea Islands of the South seas are importing American phonographs, gramophones, and records to their islands. The first cargo of manufactured products ever to leave this port for the South seas was lifted by the motor schooner Scotia Maiden, which put out of here recently for Papeete, Tahiti.

The Scotia Maiden, which sails under the union jack, will traverse the Panama canal in her journey to the Society group. According to her master, Captain Karl Kohler, the Polynesians have made remarkable strides in the day of Robert Louis Stevenson, whose efforts on behalf of the natives of his beloved Valliava have become a part of literature's history.

DEPPE IS LOVELORN FOR BARRED FIANCEE

NEW YORK, March 18.—Hope deferred is making the heart of Henry George Deppe more than lovelorn if the letter received from him by the Ellis Island immigration authorities yesterday concerning that little matrimonial matter he left with them a week ago, may be taken as an indication of his feelings.

In plain words, Mr. Deppe wants to know when his bride-to-be, Madame Vennet, is going to be loosened from the tangle of immigration red tape and sent by train to him down Pennsylvania way for the realization of their marriage vows.

Incidentally, Mr. Deppe enclosed $500 in Liberty bonds as a guarantee that the comely divorcee from France will not become a public charge.

Madame Vennet, excluded from the country because of her admissions about her love affair with Lieut. Arlington Deppe, Madame Vennet testified that because of this affair her husband, a French soldier, procured a divorce and custody of their two children.

Passenger ships are operated electrically. The traveling public, shipping men and electrical engineers have been much interested this winter in the steamship Cuba, plying between Jacksonville, Fla., and Havana, not for the reason you think—but because the ship as the first passenger craft to be operated entirely by electricity.

Passengers making the first trip in this new and speedy ship are no doubt under the impression that she was always a luxurious passenger craft offering a pleasant trip to Havana. You may not believe it but this ship and span ship once lay at the bottom of Chesapeake bay, abandoned and almost forgotten. When the war made such demands for ocean-going craft she was raised and taken north to be fixed up, when suddenly the war ceased and there was no need of using the vessel for war purposes.

REAL ESTATE SALES SHOW DRIFT BACK TO FARM IS ON

Associated Press. NEW YORK, March 18.—A real estate firm of nation-wide scope which in the past year sold 4,272 farms, valued at more than $20,000,000, from Maine to California, has made public at its offices here the interesting discovery that for the first time in many years, there are signs of a change in the drift of population "away from the cities and back to the farms."

Recently announced federal census statistics showed that the aggregate population of American cities, when the canvass was made six months or more ago, actually exceeded the aggregate population of the farming districts, a condition unprecedented in the country's history. This is explained by the fact that there was an influx of people from farming communities to the cities especially in the period of abnormal industrial activity during and immediately following the war.

Thousands of farmers and members of their families came to factory localities where, for two or three years, they made big wages. With the slump following the general industrial readjustment, however, these farmers, and, in many cases, idle city dwellers as well, are turning to the farms where labor has long been at a premium.

Percentages Reversed. The records of the firm in question are said to show that during the past twenty years its sales have been made in almost unvarying proportion, two-thirds to farmers moving from one section or state to another and one-third to men from the cities. The present back to the land movement, however, is declared, shows an almost exact reversal of these percentages, that is, two-thirds of the sales are now being made to men from the cities as against one-third to farmers.

The first check in the cityward movement, a member of this firm stated, "springs from available statistics to have come late last fall, with the tightening of industrial conditions and consequently lack of employment

STATE PLANS TO BRING JOBLESS MEN AND JOBS TOGETHER

AUSTIN, March 18.—Introducing the "jobless man to the manless job" is the new line of work taken up by the Texas state department of labor. Beginning April 1, an experienced man will take charge and at first devote his time to placing workers on farms and ranches in the state, according to Joseph S. Myers, commissioner of labor statistics.

Preliminary steps have already been taken to acquaint officials of various organizations and associations of farmers of this matter and that the service will be without cost to them or the laborers.

The present prospects are that Texas will harvest a large grain crop, said Mr. Myers. "To save it a sufficient supply of harvest hands must be made available at the proper time.

Love Laughs as 821-Mile Walk Ends in Jail Cell

CHICAGO, March 17.—It isn't so bad to be in jail if there is a girl outside who loves you. This is the philosophy of Edward T. Young, 21, Bernice Radtke, 20, and pretty, who walked all the way from Philadelphia with him, heartily agrees.

"Do I love him?" she asked with a smile. "I'll tell the world I love him. A woman doesn't walk 821 miles, from Philadelphia to Chicago, with a man she doesn't love."

Young and Miss Radtke were arrested here by agents of the department of justice. Young is held as a deserter from the marines. The girl is out under $5,000 bonds as a witness against him.

The executive committee, with headquarters in Chicago, has chartered the "Nieuw Amsterdam," which will leave New York on June 4 for Boulogne-sur-Mer. Thence they will travel through the northern part of France and the French battlefields to Paris and on to Prague.

Young admitted he had deserted the marines at the Philadelphia navy yard. He and Bernice decided to return to Chicago, and they walked because they didn't have any money.

But there was one subject Miss Radtke did not like to talk about—that walk.

"It is too bad our long journey should end in this manner," she said, "but I'll wait for him a lifetime if needs be."

BUFFALO, March 18.—Mrs. Fila G. H. Bathrick, Niagara Falls, claims divine guidance in writing hymns. She has composed thirteen hymns thus far completing the last one New Year's day. She has been confined to bed for seventeen years, her body being paralyzed with the exception of her right arm.

Mrs. Bathrick lies in bed and with the aid of a mandolin pick on the end of a penholder picks the strings of an auto harp on which she tries out the tunes and sings the words she has composed.

"The writing of the music and words of my hymns just comes to me," said Mrs. Bathrick today. "I cannot explain how sometimes the music comes first and then the words, but each comes all at once, and I do not have to puzzle over them."

Mrs. Bathrick, who celebrated her forty-seventh birthday last week, knew nothing of music before she began her hymn writing.

SEEKS A SIT-DOWN JOB

WASHINGTON, March 17.—"Uncle Charlie Patten, the White House gardener, whom President Harding brought with him from Marion, worked so hard getting the grounds in shape for the President's Sunday afternoon walk that he has a sore ankle and is beginning to look with covetous eyes on some job where he can sit down part of the day."

"Uncle Charlie" is 70 years young and during spare moments compares the present appearance of the executive mansion with what it looked like when he marched past in the Grand Army review. He is one of the President's real favorites.

MANY PROBLEMS FACE OREGON

His Bank Plan, Oil Policy and Land Policy Are Opposed.

MEXICO CITY, March 18.—Mexicans or others who expected President Obregon to use a ruthless hand in ruling the nation have been disappointed in that respect in his record for the first three months of his administration. He has met several uprisings in different parts of the republic with energetic military measures, but the shootings at sunrise which have been predicted have not been recorded.

Nevertheless, at the end of three months, he is not menaced with any apparent revolutionary element which seriously threatens his control. Disturbing factors in several of the Mexican states have been pacified, and even Francisco Villa, from his ranch home at Cuernavaca, is sending post cards to government officials which are described as being "intensely humorous and indicating loyalty to the present regime."

Some of President Obregon's efforts to solve the economic and industrial problems with which his administration is faced have suffered defeat. His banking scheme was rejected by the chamber of deputies. His critics complain that he has failed to outline a definite policy regarding control of the oil fields, one of the disturbing factors in Mexican affairs.

Obregon's agrarian law has been so bitterly opposed by the Catholic church, the dominant religious sect in the republic, that the archbishop of Mexico has called upon his parishioners to resist it to the utmost.

One Hundred Dialects.—The problem of assisting the millions of peasants is one of the chief industrial questions. These poor natives must first be given work to enable them to live, and then must be educated. Speaking more than 100 dialects, they form a mass of heterogeneous population that is not easily molded into a national unit.

Federal commissions are now investigating Indian life, which embraces the bulk of the population with a view to assisting them in fulfilling their immediate needs. Schools are to follow, and the necessities of life have been made available.

Although confronted by these tasks, President Obregon has been compelled to absent himself from the national capital at times either on account of illness or to rest. When he has been able he has spent sixteen hours a day at the palace. He arrives there without escort or guard, passing through the streets with but few attendants, and hundreds of foreigners who are here to join in the general clamor for concessions.

At night he romps with his boys or plays billiards, despite his loss of one arm. He meets on an average of 100 persons daily at the palace, and in the newspapers several days ago announced for being unable to meet more.

Unlike his predecessor, Carranza, who was never known to give a direct answer, Obregon replies to all questions, but keeps to himself his plans for the future.

Oil Grants to Britain Revoked

WASHINGTON, March 17.—A concession involving approximately 7,000 square miles of potential oil fields in Costa Rica, granted by the old Tinoco government and held by British interests, have been revoked by the new Costa Rican government.

Advices today to the state department said the Costa Rican congress on March 7 voted by a 24 to 10 majority against recognizing the act of the Tinoco government.

The concession originally was obtained by Amory & Sons, an American concern, and subsequently sold to the British interests, reported to include the son of the British premier, Lloyd George.

Nation's Credit on Sound Basis

By FRANCIS H. SISSON, Vice President Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

WE may arrive at a better understanding of the problems presented by the present stringent credit situation perhaps if we recall some of the important factors that have created present conditions. The tremendous losses caused by the World War, of course, were primarily responsible. To meet the emergencies of war the people of this country sent billions of dollars in food, fuel, munitions and loans to Europe.

with an aggregate of more than two billion dollars in bonds, notes and stocks.

This period was also characterized by extraordinary demands on the part of foreign countries for American goods. It was to be expected, however, that with the progressive industrial recuperation of the recently belligerent countries there would be a reduced demand eventually for American goods in those markets. And domestic buying could not be expected to continue indefinitely on an extravagant scale. Accordingly, in order to forestall the possibility of an extremely dangerous industrial situation in this country, it became necessary to check the further expansion of credit in general.

The logical corrective for threatening over-expansion was the raising of discount rates by the Federal Reserve Banks, accompanied by a purpose to restrict credit accommodation to those borrowers whose collateral gave promise of retaining safe margins of value under conditions of probable commodity price recessions. The application of these means has helped to bring about a more normal business activity without an intervening period of widespread and sustained depression.

Yet, despite the tremendous increase in commodity prices and wages, it is noteworthy that the cost of money has increased, on the average, less than twenty-five per cent. In the face of greatly increased operating expenses and losses, inevitable in business reaction, the bankers have been ultra-conservative in fixing rates. Money has been the cheapest element in business enterprises.

It is the function of the banks to vitalize credit by productive processes and make it of use to the community. The first and highest duty of bankers is to put available credit in usable form and to distribute and apportion it for the good of the whole community. In discharging this duty bankers must exercise their best judgment and of prices which the state of production and consumption requires.

The fact that the inevitable readjustments have thus far been effected without really serious difficulties gives promise that there will be further gradual readjustments with a more prompt resumption of normal prosperity than would have been possible had the process of credit expansion been unbridled.

The speed with which approximate stabilization in business is to be brought about will depend largely upon developments abroad, particularly in Europe. Industrial recuperation in eastern and central Europe has been slow in the two years since the armistice, and in many other countries, including some in which post-war recuperation and readjustment have made gratifying progress, there is now a slackening of business activity comparable to that in this country.

This condition is a fundamental factor affecting our foreign trade. Inasmuch as our productive capacity in general is greater than is required for domestic needs, it is extremely important that our export trade be fostered during the remainder of the transition period. The financing of our export operations, in fact, will continue for some time one of the chief concerns of American bankers.

The banks as a whole are in a sound condition and the necessary machinery and organization are at hand to provide for the readjustment of an orderly domestic business readjustment in a period of declining prices.

The Federal Reserve System was established in November, 1914, but not until June, 1917, shortly after our declaration of war, was there adopted the present requirement that all legally prescribed reserves of member banks should be kept in Reserve banks. The real strength of the credit position of the banks depends, of course, upon the character of the paper they hold, its liquidity and intrinsic worth.

Through the operation of the Federal Reserve System, however, a large part of the paper held by member banks has been given a liquidity which was formerly unknown.

The present strength of the Reserve System is indicated by the potential, but unused, capacity for further credit expansion by the Federal Reserve banks through their members. On December 3, 1920, the Federal Reserve banks held gold reserves of $2,022,675,000. Of this amount, $1,743,582,850 constituted part of the required reserves against deposit and note liabilities, leaving $279,092,150 of free gold (free gold consists of gold holdings in excess of the 40 per cent required as reserve for outstanding Federal Reserve notes, 5 per cent reserve against Federal Reserve Bank notes, and the amount, which, with other cash holdings, equals thirty-five per cent of the net deposits, required as reserve for such deposits under the Federal Reserve act). Net deposits and note liabilities totaled $3,104,239,000, representing a credit structure about three times the gold holdings, other than free gold, or about 2.7 times the total reserves, other than free gold. If all the free gold should serve to support additional members' reserve deposits in amount 2.7 times the free gold, members' deposits would increase by $753,543,805.

According to the report of the condition of 825 member banks as of November 12, 1920, their aggregate net deposits were about 10.2 times their reserve balances with Federal Reserve banks. If a 10 to 1 ratio of deposits to reserve balances is assumed for all member banks, the potential increase of $753,543,805 in members' reserve deposits represents a potential increase in deposits held by members of about $7,535,000,000.

It is not suggested, however, that any such expansion of the credit structure on the basis of the existing free gold in the Federal Reserve banks should occur. The free gold is necessarily subject to considerable fluctuations, and it would be dangerous to expand credit at any time to the theoretical real maximum limit. The figure is presented merely to show the conservatism with which the problem of bank credits is being met.

In view of our fundamentally sound credit position, therefore, it would seem that what we need above all else now is a stabilization of prices at new levels that will bring consumers back into the market. And not until the readjustment has been carried through the list, and prices of basic commodities, such as steel and coal, recede and general retail prices fall to lower levels, can we find a new starting point.

But stabilization of commodity prices can be accomplished only by greater production at lower costs. In order that goods may be offered to the public at prices which will revive buying. There is still a vast unsatisfied demand for all kinds of products in this country, as well as throughout the world, but prices must become commensurate with purchasing power before business can hope to reach a stable basis. And the withholding of goods from the market, as well as every unnecessary delay in marketing them, lessens the available supply of credit by "freezing" the credit required to carry the goods until they are sold. So, also, do unwarranted strikes congeal credit, as well as interfere with productivity.

We cannot achieve the urgently needed stabilization of business conditions until these retail merchants who are considering only present profits and forgetting that temporary gains may mean permanent losses inter on adjust themselves to the trend of the day, and cease endeavoring to suspend the operation of economic laws.

But, while the readjustment period through which we are passing is necessarily painful, the process is wholesome and beneficial; and, fundamentally, economic conditions in the United States are absolutely sound.

The crops this year have been bountiful. Our transportation facilities have been vastly improved through increased efficiency under private control, which has been equivalent to adding 600,000 freight cars to the railroad service.

Another extremely important factor that is gradually but materially effecting a betterment in our industrial situation is increased efficiency per man among our laborers. The drones are being driven from our industrial beehives. As a consequence, we are beginning to increase our production at lower costs, which, as I have pointed out, is absolutely essential to maintain our export trade and preserve our prosperity.

In view of all these factors, it would seem probable that an improvement in credit conditions will mark the early part of 1921, and that a more and more stable basis for business is in prospect. I should plan accordingly for the next twelve months with vision and courage—vision to see realities, and courage to face them bravely and act.

AMERICAN LEGION SURVEY SHOWS DRIFT BACK TO FARM; WAR VETS OFTEN OUTA LUCK

NEW YORK, March 17.—There were 400,000 veterans of the world war out of work in the United States on March 1 last, according to an estimate received by the American Legion. This is a reduction of about 100,000 from the "peak" of more than 500,000 jobless ex-service men in the country shortly after Jan. 1 last and the Legion reports state there is promise of further improvement.

The survey of the national situation on which these figures are based was made by the American Legion Weekly, official publication of the Legion which states that the unemployment situation as affecting the veterans "appears to have taken a turn for the better."

A chain of employment agencies operated by the Legion in every state has done much to relieve the situation, say the Legion officials. The Legion has been instrumental in organizing work for veterans, in discouraging the migration of unemployed men toward the great industrial centers and has encouraged a movement from cities to the farms. It has demanded that workers who left their positions to go to war should enjoy seniority rights on a par with those of military age who stayed at home.

WAR WAS HANDICAP. Ex-service men have suffered more in proportion to their numbers than other workers, according to the Legion's survey, because of the operation of seniority rules and efficiency standards. Nearly a year is required for the returned veteran to get back to his old stride in industry, according to the testimony of large employers of labor. Another thing that has handicapped the ex-soldier is his restlessness and nomadic tendencies, both products of the strain and circumstances of war service.

Reopening of factories and mills in the textile regions of New England and in the mining and industrial centers of Pennsylvania leads observers in those parts to believe the worst is past, according to the Legion's survey. The automobile centers of Detroit, Cleveland and Indianapolis report a slight improvement of conditions. In Chicago conditions are stationary, it is said.

Throughout the agricultural Middle West a general movement from the cities and towns to the farms is reported. The average ex-soldier had little taste for agriculture when he came back from the war. It was hard to keep them down on the farm after they had "seen Paris." They chose to work in the small factories or stores in the neighboring county seat, where during 1919, jobs were plenty and wages high. When those jobs began to go there was at first an exodus toward the large cities. The Legion strove to discourage this. That movement has about spent itself and farmers throughout the West now report little difficulty in getting help, and except in the larger cities there are few able-bodied ex-service men reported out of work in the Middle West.

The South reports improvement. Dixie has been burdened with a larger quota of winter floaters than usual this year according to reports. Some are now finding farm work in the South, others are drifting north, largely to settle on farms. The Pacific coast, a land where there are the three great seasonal occupations of fishing, lumbering and fruit raising, has been able to decrease the number of jobless veterans by half in two months, according to advices from there. In Washington state there were 7,000 unemployed veterans on Jan. 1, and 2,000 Feb. 1.

Tennessee Senate Will Preserve Jackson Home

NASHVILLE, March 17.—The senate today passed on final reading the bill appropriating $15,000 for the purchase and preservation of the little building in Greenville, Tenn., which Andrew Johnson, seventeenth president of the United States, used as a tailor shop before his entrance into politics. The bill now goes to the governor.

TREXLEY UNABLE TO MAKE APPEARANCE BOND. SHERMAN, March 17.—George Trexley, who shot and killed his wife, Edith Trexley, at the family home in this city Sunday afternoon, had a habeas corpus hearing in the Fifteenth district court Wednesday morning before Judge Silas Hare. Trexley's bond was set at $5,000, which he could not make immediately.

'I Bet Ya' Contests 'Rouse Hopes of Fight Followers

But One Is Smothered in Cooler and Webster Settles Another; at That—"There's a Comeback."

Arguments are great stuff and lead to queer results, usually prefaced with the phrase, "I bet ya."

Just last night, for example, two young men stood on a corner and while the crowd eddied and swirled around them they also eddied and swirled and suffered sea sickness and argued long and hard as to which was the drunker. With deep and owl-like deliberation and precision, each side marshaled its forces and on the fingers tallied the number of bottles of extract, "Jake" and stomach bitters drunk during the afternoon.

Judge Reglar Solomon After cold iron doors of the bastille changed behind them, the battle of half said words still went on. "Great stuff, we call it."

However, in this case nobody got a decision. This morning the judge decided that they were both drunk enough to play $15.70. And yet the hottest word battles comes from those who are cold sober. In none other than this office this very morning two young men went to the mat over the way "carat" or "karat"—take your choice—is spelled. So intensive grew the word battle that the innocent bystander who did not know any difference, would have thought that both of them were custodians of some movie actresses' crown jewels.

Whadda They Care? But expert testimony has it that neither of them owns a diamond and probably never will, unless some dear friend, who does not know the rates allowed by pawn brokers in Ranger, should die and leave them one. After the usual "I bet ya" had passed, the advocate of the "carat" method of spelling was concurred in by one Mr. Webster. Not to be outdone, the loser took a parting shot: "Shucks," he said, "that old bird don't know everything. He's been dead too long."

DRYS WILL SEE NO SICK MEN'S LAGER BENEFITS THIRSTY

Will Ask Action on New Ruling if Dealers "Get Cocky."

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Prohibitionists have reached the sober second thought stage in their consideration of the Palmer decision which enables physicians to prescribe beer in unlimited quantities for medicinal purposes. John F. Keamer, prohibition commissioner, said today that his enforcement crew could easily control the manufacture and distribution of beer. Wayne B. Wheeler said that if the traffickers in beer become too "cocky" the Anti-Saloon league will have congress adopt an amendment to the Volstead act undoing the department of justice decision.

"We are going to make the way of the fellow who tries to divert the beer to beverage purposes as thorny as possible," declared Mr. Wheeler. "If it becomes too troublesome we will get the members of the house and senate from the thirty-nine states that have prohibition codes barring beer to amend the law to stop the traffic in the other nine."

Says Brewers Are Bad Risks.

"Brewers cannot become millionaires making beer under this ruling. I would not advise insurance companies to risk much on them. In the first place they have to make the beer in separate plants; they cannot use near-by factories for it. Then if the brewer violates the law he will lose his permit. The seller and the doctor who prescribes it will meet with like fate."

"But the decision stirs up commotion; that is what I dislike about it. However, we will be on guard and make it troublesome for the brewer."

"There is not much to be said about the beer decision," declared Mr. Keamer. "The language is clear and the meaning apparent. We expect to be very careful in formulating regulations, and until we have promulgated them nothing can be done to make effective the opinion of the attorney general."

No Trouble With Doctors.

"Our rules will have to permit the manufacture and sale of beer for medicinal purposes. Brewers are preparing to take advantage of the opportunity offered by the action of the department of justice. We do not anticipate much trouble with the doctors who prescribe beer, for we have not found physicians hard to deal with in enforcing the prohibition laws. Some manufacturers may go too far, but if they do, and we catch them, they will lose their permits for a year. The decision on beer will give us more to do in those states where prescriptions are allowed; it gives another angle, opens a new field, but if we get proper regulations we will be able to control the manufacture and distribution.

"We have information that a number of breweries are anxious to begin the making of beer to meet the new demand. Of course, when the stuff is once in existence, there will be leaks to improper channels. One fortunate thing from the enforcement officer's standpoint, it does not last long. The difficulty in transporting beer will help us, for we can detect it if it moves in bulk and a pint of beer is no good—it takes a case."

HARDING FINDS THAT "OPEN DOOR" LETS IN TROUBLE

WASHINGTON, March 17.—The "open door" policy begun by President Harding at the White House is causing him much tribulation and forcing him to work nights after each heavy day of receiving hundreds of callers.

With the latching always out, both the President and Mrs. Harding are kept busy every day from 9 in the morning until after dark handling and talking with the men and women who come here on a great variety of missions.

Most of the callers, of course, are job hunters. In the memory of the oldest attaches of the executive mansion there has never been such a line-up following a change of administration.

CAN ONE DISPLAY BRASS KNUCKS AND YET NOT BE RUDE?

If totting a pair of brass knucks in the rear pistol pocket could be construed as rudely displaying knucks, as a city ordinance defines the act, then the question arises:

If a fellow slipped a pair over his good right fist and slammed his next best friend in the jaw, what construction would the city law put on that action?

All of which is a way of saying that Dewey Choate paid $30.70 in city court under a charge of rudely displaying knucks, which were found on his person.

FREIGHT RECORDS BROKEN

WASHINGTON, March 17.—Reports received by the interstate commerce commission show that in 1920 the railroads not only established a new record in freight transported but also in the average of car loads carried per train.

The net ton miles (the number of tons of freight carried multiplied by the number of miles) totalled 445,975,000,000. This figure exceeds by approximately 8,975,000,000 net ton miles the total for 1918, which was the previous high record.

The average number of tons of freight carried by each train in 1920 was 728 tons, a new high point and an increase of ten tons over the average for 1918. The average load for each car during the year was 29 2-5 tons, an increase of 1 2-5 tons.

LEAGUERS TARRIED, ROLLED IN KANSAS MUD BY VETERANS

Non-Partisan Secretary and Organizer Get Warm Reception.

GREAT BEND, Kan., March 18.—Demonstrations against the Non-Partisan League in Barton county culminated in the tarring of A. J. Stevie and O. Parsons, state organizer and secretary of the league, by a band of former service men who took exception to Stevie's denunciation of them. Earlier in the day, former Senator J. Ralph Burton, who has taken an active part in the work of the league in Kansas, was escorted out of Great Bend.

Stevie and Parsons had come to Great Bend to join Senator Burton's party, and they too were taken in charge by the mob, but upon their assurances that they would not return to the country if given a safe conduct out of it, they were allowed to depart. In the afternoon they appeared at Ellinwood, where Senator Burton had also been scheduled to appear, and here Stevie made a speech to league sympathizers. In the course of his remarks, he cast aspersions upon ex-service men, and they heard of it.

A number of veterans, said to be members of the American Legion posts of Great Bend and Ellinwood, came into the latter town and again took charge of the two leaguers Stevie and Parsons were brought back to Great Bend and then taken about three miles out into the country.

New Spring Suit.

Their clothing was stripped from them by the mob of about 200 and a liberal coating of tar applied to each. They were then obliged to roll over and over on the ground until the tar was covered with a thick layer of rich Kansas soil. Their clothes were then returned to them and they were ordered to move on. Nothing has been heard of them since, but it is believed that they departed in an automobile in which they arrived at Great Bend in the afternoon.

Former Senator Burton, who went to Hutchinson last night, issued a statement today saying he would make a formal declaration in regard to "the outrage" in Barton county as soon as he returns to his home in Salina. He was one of the members of the committee that went to North Dakota recently to investigate the workings of the league there, and which has returned to report on conditions to sympathizers throughout the state.

Stevie, who has been engaged in league organization work for several years, is regarded here as a radical.
