Rev. Mr. Emtringham, who recently reported to the committee on prohibition, in which the demand was made that the sale of light wines and beer be substituted. This report created nation-wide comment. He will speak on the necessity of a substitute to curb the present evil of the existing system.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Feb. 20.—The general grand jury here today returned an indictment against Clarence Saunders of Memphis, Tenn., founder of the Piggly Wiggly chain of stores with using the mails to defraud in promoting another chain of stores.

$500 REWARD IS OFFERED FOR BURGLARS

Five hundred dollars reward is offered for the capture, with the loot, of the burglars who robbed the Walker-Smith wholesale grocery in Brownwood, Friday night, it was announced at the Ranger house of the company Saturday.

Numerous cases of the cigarettes for which the young man on the billboards announces "he'd walk a mile" were taken and the brand of which it is said "they satisfy" were taken. Although this is a news story and not an advertisement of cigarette brands, it perhaps would not be out of place to say that the "smokes" taken were Chesterfields and Camels.

Talk of Woman's Club Building By Various Circles

Talk of a Woman's Club Building for Ranger is in the air. An impetus was given the move when the Ranger Delphians met with the Eastland Delphian Saturday night, at which time the Eastland club entertained with a Martha Washington Tea for the benefit of their new Woman's Club Building, which purchase was consummated several weeks ago and is being furnished for a club home and community house for that city. No definite steps have been taken but the subject is being broached at various club meetings and discussed by members here and there. Several sites are available, which would be conveniently located and large enough to provide ample grounds, as well.

7 MEXICANS UNDER BONDS AWAIT TRIALS

Junta Is Discovered By Gus Jones Agent On September 10

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 20.—With seven Mexicans under arrest and others to be taken into custody, the latest report of an attempt to start a revolution in Mexico seems to have met with a quick check. The indictments returned by the federal grand jury here, on which the seven men were arrested, were forecast on Feb. 7 by Gus Jones agent in charge of the department of justice in San Antonio. All of those arrested may be released on bonds in the sum of $2,500. The revolutionary junta of San Antonio was organized here Sept. 19, 1925, according to Mr. Jones. Following the organization, plans were laid for buying dynamite machines with which trains in Mexico were to be blown up as the first active move in the belligerent operations. The leader of the movement is said to be making his quarters in New York. Recently several seizures of machine guns, rifles and ammunition of all kinds have been made on the border. Just a few days ago, a big cache was found near Piedras Negras in one of the border towns rifles and ammunition were found in an auto. The department of justice has been on the watch for several months.

SCHOOL NURSE FILES REPORT FOR 2 MONTHS

At a meeting of the Child's Welfare Club of Ranger, Tuesday afternoon, at the Chotson Hotel, Miss Joyce Connally, school nurse, gave her report.

"During the months of January and February, there has occurred among the school children, a real epidemic of colds, accompanied by sore throats and often fever. The daily attendance has been poor, but so far there have been very few cases resulting seriously. I have swabbed hundreds of throats, and talked to various groups advising treatment and stressing the preventive treatment.

"Several have been out of school with chicken-pox and sore eyes, but so far we have been able to prevent an epidemic of these diseases, by sending home at once, any child who might be suspected of developing any of the above mentioned diseases. "I am not entirely satisfied with the care of the teeth, which is manifested generally. The percentage of pyorrhea (which I believe is due mainly to neglected teeth and gums) is still much too high.

Children Weighed. "Weighed and measured children at Central, Young, Cooper, Merri-man, St. Rita's and Tiffin. "Examined forty-five new pupils. "Sent twenty-five or thirty with a slip to the eye specialist; sent to doctor or dentist, 50; talks to school groups, 22; home calls, 98; business calls, 11; conference with parents, 59; first aid cases, 800.

HOLY SEE LOOKS FAVORABLE ON INTERVENTION

ROME, Feb. 20.—The Holy See, it was learned today, looks favorably on efforts of the United States to relieve the persecution of the clergy in Mexico, though it holds that armed intervention would be fraught with disaster. The Vatican will call to the attention of the powers the injustice to the priesthood reported from Mexico but will suggest its own view that armed intervention is not necessary and that there is no attempt to impose religion at the point of the bayonet.

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Feb. 20.—The trail of 12 escaped convicts who broke jail here Thursday was picked up late today when George Harris, a mountaineer, rode into town, with word that he and his wife and three sons had driven off the men when they demanded food.

A posse, tired by long searching in the hills, had just come in for rest and food but when Harris brought in this report they took to the search again in the hope of overcoming the 11-hour lead the desperadoes already have.

DEMOCRATS SPLIT OVER SETTLEMENT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—A wide divergence of opinion exists among the democratic senators over the Italian debt settlement. This was developed in a secret conference called by Senator Robinson of Arkansas, democratic floor leader here today. After a three hours session, the meeting adjourned without any decision having been reached. The attendants on the meeting will take individual positions for and against the settlement on the floor, as they deem best. It was decided to back Senator Walsh, democrat of Montana, solidly in his efforts to investigate the affairs of the Aluminum Company of America, controlled by Secretary Mellon and his brother, R. B. Mellon.

Blair, tonight issued a warning that all income tax returns must be filed under the new law by March 15. The bill will be approved by both houses next week and President Coolidge will sign it before the end of next week. Opposition will be negligible, administration leaders of Congress are certain.

3 BROTHERHOODS REJECT DECISION OF LABOR BOARD ON QUESTIONS SUBMITTED

WOMAN LEAPS TO DEATH IN DENTON FIRE

A leap from the third story of a flaming building proved fatal early Saturday morning at Denton to Mrs. J. H. Cole, sister of Mrs. Robert Mathews of Ranger. Mrs. Mathews, who resides near the Evergreen cemetery, left for Denton at once on learning of the tragedy.

Flames cut off the exit from the rooms occupied by Mrs. Cole in an apartment house near the campus of the College of Industrial Arts. The screams of Mrs. Cole attracted the attention of Joe Fladger, neighbor, who discovered the fire and aroused eight occupants who fled to safety. When Fladger saw Mrs. Cole, the third floor of the building was in flames and the woman was on a ledge. Below was the second story roof standing slightly beyond the coping to which Mrs. Cole clung. Her only chance for safety was to jump to the roof below. She leaped but struck the side of the roof and fell to the ground. Internal injuries proved fatal two hours later in a hospital.

Apparently the fire was caused by a gas stove. The flames were confined to the third floor and the damage was $3,000.

'MA' IS SURE TO RUN FOR GOVERNOR

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—In state house circles rumors are that a number of announcements for state officers will be made in the daily papers, Sunday, Feb. 28.

Among the announcements will be that of Governor Ferguson for re-election. It was further stated that immediately after his announcement, Dan Moody will proclaim his candidacy in opposition to the Fergusons. With Lynch Davidson in the ring, Dan Moody, "Ma" Jim Ferguson, a lively time is expected. Just who will be the Fergusons' campaign manager this time is not known. However, by April 1, the political pot will be boiling hot and bubbling over. Just who will run for other state offices is not known, but it is generally rumored around the capital that practically all of them will be candidates for re-election who have to be elected this year.

Independent Action May be Taken by Road To Effect a Settlement

DALLAS, Feb. 20.—Rejecting unanimously the decision of the United States railroad labor board announced at Chicago Saturday that would serve as a basis for a settlement of the impending strike of 2,000 firemen, engineers and trainmen on the Texas & Pacific railway, the general committee of 38 officers of the railroad employes acted further late Saturday afternoon in preparation for the walkout over the system in the event their demands are not met by the company Sunday.

The conference held during the last half of the week between the labor leaders and rail executives here will be continued independently of the labor board decision. From all indications, however, the negotiations have so far proved fruitless and the strike is growing visibly closer. The ruling of the railroad labor board in Chicago was to the effect that the Missouri Pacific Railway company made the transfer of crews of its employes to the Texas & Pacific railroad on the same basis as to seniority and the right to employment as in previous transfers. The decision was handed down as the result of the dispute between the Missouri Pacific and freight crews recently transferred to its employment from the Texas & Pacific.

SNIPER HITS ANOTHER ONE IN R. R. YARDS

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 20.—Omaha's "maniac sniper" shot and dangerously wounded Ross Johnson, 28 years old, a Wabash Railway detective, at Council Bluffs, Iowa last night. The maniac continued to defy detection today.

Johnson was shot six times with a 22 caliber automatic pistol in the Wabash yards across the river from here. The only evidence left by the maniac was the same left at his other victims, the cartridge shells. At the hospital this morning, physicians said Johnson has only a slight chance for recovery.

The maniac has been operating for a week, during which time he has killed two men, one a prominent physician, and wounded a half dozen others.

GEORGE DEATH PROBE OPENED BY MEXICO

TIA JUANA, Mexico, Feb. 20.—The investigation of the death of T. M. N. George, Atlanta cotton broker, was revived tonight by the Mexican authorities on the pressure of American influence.

Criminal Judge S. Urias ordered the jailkeeper of Tia Juana jailed after two prominent men declared they saw him roll George to the floor of the prison, breaking his skull. The American was allowed to lie in a pool of his own blood, suffering from his wounds, until morning, and then he was taken across the border to San Diego where he died, it is claimed.

AGRICULTURAL COUNCILS.

Co-operation is the keynote of success in the upbuilding of towns, counties and states. Co-operation is a Latin derivative and means working together, team-work. The various cities of Eastland county can co-operate in a campaign to develop this county agriculturally. Eastland county is blessed with one of the best demonstration agents in the state. The home demonstration agent also stands among the top liners. The various towns and communities can materially aid these missionaries of diversified farming and home economics in their work by giving them hearty and whole-hearted co-operation.

Some progress has been made. But the surface in co-operating and developing the agricultural, horticultural and animal husbandry possibilities of the county. The organization of agricultural councils in every town and every school district will materially aid in the development work that is contemplated. Lecturers could be obtained to meet at these various councils and lecture on some phase of development that would bring that certain community up to a higher level. At these meetings, the farmers of the neighborhood could thrash out their problems. The Bible says in the council of many there is wisdom.

The state department of agriculture will send speakers to any town where institutes are held. The Fort Worth Stock Yards company will send Colonel French, an authority on animal husbandry and the needs of this section of Texas. These meetings could be held monthly in one of the towns. For instance, one month, Eastland would be the place, another month Ranger, then Cisco, Rising Star, Gorman, Carbon, and Desdemona. In this manner the entire county would be benefited. This should be taken up with R. H. Bush and something done immediately.

Some successful farmer or several successful men in various lines of agriculture could be induced to attend the meetings of the local councils that may be held monthly in the schoolhouses over the county. The various secretaries of the chambers of commerce in the county will gladly fall in line and help the county agent organize these councils.

With their organization will come greater diversification and more intensive methods in use. With these organizations there will come the dairying branch of farming. If the farmer will buy the cow that will produce the milk, the market will be found the same as it has been found for poultry.

Goat and sheep raising will get an impetus, and with it will come improved methods of teaching agriculture and the establishment of agricultural courses in all the schools that will be real courses. The fertilizer question can be discussed. In fact every branch of farming. The result will be that in a year or two, Eastland county will be exporting products that now she is importing. The Times is anxious to hear from other members of the press in the county on the subject, the organization of agricultural councils and greater co-operation.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy, also, all play and no work makes Jack a poor boy.

WHEN TO FEED DOGS
 No one knows how many dog owners spoil their pets by their manner of feeding them. If given too little food and drink, a dog may be forced to turn scavenger and work up regular free-lunch routes among the neighbors. On the other hand, if fed too often, or whenever the owner thinks about it, a dog gradually comes to have food on his mind all the time. A grown dog should be taught to expect food only once a day, and then all he wants. Naturally this should be in the evening after he has done his exercising.—Fred C. Kelley, in Hearst's International-Cosmopolitan.

VESSEL HIT BY A SHELL OFF CUTTER

HALIFAX, N. S., Feb. 20.—With her spars damaged by shell fire, the British schooner Eastwood, reported that she was fired on by United States revenue cutter while enroute to the northward from the states. The captain's cabin was punctured, himself, was not injured.

Plant Vegetables According Plans Made of Garden

Efficient vegetable growing demands planning in advance for best results and putting the plan on paper, no matter how roughly, as a guide when it comes time to put the seeds and plants into the soil. Store the plan after planting for reference next year to arrange for a rotation of crops, as cabbages and turnips should not grow in the same place succeeding years and neither should peas and beans.

It is best to make the plan to scale on strong paper which can be tacked on the side of the barn or garage or on a convenient fence post for reference when actual operations on the ground begin. By laying out the amount of space to be planted, assigning the length of row to be given to each vegetable, it is an easy matter to select the amount of seed necessary for the garden, to make a hit-and-miss job, and the gardener finds himself confronted with a collection of seed packets and wonders just where he will put them.

Study the exposure of the plot set aside for vegetables in regard to sun and shade. Plant the tall growing vegetables such as corn where they will not shade lower growing plants or, if it is necessary that they give some shade, place the rows so that it will be for the least practicable portion of the day. The first practical move towards making a better garden is to space accurately between the rows to permit of easy cultivation with a wheel hoe or with hand tools. To narrow rows soon become overrun with weeds and an effort to hoe them out clips the vegetables on either side. It is better to waste space in the ground between rows than to have it too narrow. Plants in crowded rows do not have sufficient root room for their best development.

The seed packets contain accurate directions as to distances that may be followed to advantage.

Students Work Way Through German Colleges

BERLIN, Feb. 20.—Unknown here before the war, students who work their way through college are now frequenting German universities in thousands. The appearance of the "self-made student" in Germany can be attributed directly to American influence. It was the American Student Relief organization which stimulated this custom in Central Europe by making its relief conditional upon the student's acceptance of employment in Germany has been revolutionized. As a result, university life with the creation of the new type of "Werkstudent."

Before the war, German students were usually simply the petted offspring of fond parents, who supplied them with funds, paid their tuition fees and "nursed" them until they were graduated and securely settled in business or professions. Thus, most German students lived on their parents' money until reaching the age of 25 or 26.

This was considered natural and right, and it was never regarded as exceptional that a university career should be the exclusive privilege of the wealthy classes. An occasional poor student besides the war had to fight against bitter social prejudice, as well as economic need. A complete change, however, has followed in the wake of post-war economic hardship in Germany and the premium which the American Relief organization placed upon the students' economic independence.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—The Mexican note in reply to the latest American protest against the alleged alien land and petroleum clause, was received at the State department today. SHADOWS OF COMING SHOWS AT THE CONNELLEE THIS WEEK

Ben Lyon, Viola Dana and Hobart Bosworth in "Winds of Chance"

After four months of traveling, locations and studio shots, Frank Lloyd has completed the filming of Rex Beach's epic of the Alaskan gold rush, "Winds of Chance." It will be First National's offering at the Connellee Theatre next Monday. "Winds of Chance," handled in the same big way Lloyd filmed the memorable "The Sea Hawk," represents the most pretentious exterior photoplay ever filmed on the West Coast and is also the most accurate and dramatic drama of its type to be undertaken. Lloyd took his company, comprising such well known players as Anna Q. Nilsson, Viola Dana, Ben Lyon, Victor McLaglen, Dorothy Sebastian, Hobart Bosworth, Claude Gillingwater, John T. Murray, Philo McCullough, George Nichols, and Larry Fisher, to eight locations representing more than 13,000 miles of travel, and his locations were typical of Alaskan during four different seasons. They varied from the wildest rapids in Western Canada to scenes on top of a mountain range at an altitude of over 9,800 feet. "Winds of Chance" is one of the most popular and dramatic narratives which have come from the pen of the virile Rex Beach and deals with the adventures of seven unique characters, all participants in the struggle for gold—Peteon, the giant French packer; Pierce Phillips, an American boy who falls a victim to sharpers and is forced to earn his way to happiness and success; Countess Courteau, an energetic woman whom Philip loves; Sam Kirby and his daughter Roulette, bent on making one more stake and then enjoying life but who meet unexpected reverses, and Tom and Jerry, two inseparable but incessantly fighting prospectors.

COMMERCIAL AVIATION IS IN NEW ERA CALIFORNIA SHIPS CASKS OF OLD WINE

By JOSEPH S. WASNEY (United Press Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON, Feb. 20.—A new era in commercial aviation opens Monday when Henry Ford, Detroit automobile manufacturer, begins operating two commercial air mail lines, one between Detroit and Chicago, the other between Detroit and Cleveland.

Both routes will connect with the government operated transcontinental line and will speed up mail between the three cities and Detroit and surrounding territory to the Atlantic and Pacific coasts.

The first plane will hop off from Chicago for Detroit on February 15, at 8 a. m., and make the trip with a cargo of United States mail in about three hours. The return trip will start from Detroit at 3:15 p. m. On the other line the mail plane will leave Detroit at 10:40 a. m. and start back from Cleveland for the home hangar at 2:30 p. m. Ford will operate the lines for six and three-fourths cents an ounce of mail carried. The government charges 10 cents. But in addition to mail the airships can carry freight and passengers for the contractor's personal profit and the automobile magnate is expected to enter the public in transportation of merchandise and passengers.

In connection with the event the Post Office has issued a new air mail stamp which will have its first use on the Detroit to Chicago and Detroit to Cleveland lines. The issue is printed in blue ink, the central design represents a map of the United States showing rivers and mountain ranges.

On each side of the stamp is an airplane in flight, one traveling east, and the other west. Across the top in white Roman letters are the words "United States Postage" with the words "AIR MAIL" directly beneath. Ornamental brackets appear at each side of the stamp. Postmaster General New has awarded nine air mail lines to private firms for operation. The start of the Ford routes marks a new epoch in mail transportation that will ultimately shorten the mail time between all the great cities of the country.

FIND FORTUNE IN DIAMONDS IN POP BOTTLE

By United Press. OKMULGEE, Ok., Feb. 20.—The smile of Dame Fortune turned to an ill bred snicker at Okmulgee citizens recently and an old broken pop bottle, half buried in the cinders near the railway station in the old dame's monument to a huge joke. A deputy sheriff had arrived from Florida to get Ernest Jamieson, arrested at Henrietta and return him to Miami, where he was wanted for complicity in a big diamond robbery. The deputy with his prisoner were waiting for a train when Jamieson pointing to the pop bottle half buried in the cinders told him that it marked the place where $23,000 worth of diamonds were buried. The deputy dug them up and took them with him to Miami.

Mr. Newton announced that he would make a motion to recommend the bill to conference with instructions to kill the clause, which would then lower 1921 estate rates in effect upon all estates which have not yet paid their tax.

All estates of millionaires, who have died within the last year would receive the benefit of the rate. A profound optimist is a man who pays his dues regularly in the bartenders union.

Indians Observe Native Ceremony At Chief Wedding

By United Press. ALBERT BAY, B. C., Canada, Feb. 20.—What was declared the last native wedding ceremony to be held by Indians of this section occurred here recently. For many days the Indians from distant points came here for the marriage of the daughter of the native chief to a younger chief. The bride was shut within her father's house and her friends and relatives gathered to protect her from the gay young Lochinvar who was coming from the sea to get her. The groom's party crept up in the blackness of the night until close to shore, then, stripped and painted for war, plunged into the icy water and swam ashore.

The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted

By DOROTHY A. F. MARCELL

Copyright, 1925, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"THE WIFE WHO WASN'T WANTED" with Irene Rich is a picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

John Mannering, district attorney, rushes to the apartment of Jerome Wallace, his opponent in the coming election, to find his wife, Eileen, there. He accuses her of having been present at the raid, that night, of a notorious inn and she does not deny it. Young Bob Mannering, their son, is in jail, accused of manslaughter in having caused a woman's death in an automobile smash. Wallace was a suitor of Eileen's before her marriage.

CHAPTER XI—Continued

"You did this thing, so that your lover might beat me, eh?" "No," she cried, and again and again, "No," while she tried to press her hands to his lips to stay the words he could not unsay.

Past all reasoning, he thrust back her hands and faced them both. She wild with fear and Wallace with a twisted smile upon his lips.

"You might have waited until morning. Then, you might have learned that, tonight I resigned." He made a gesture towards Wallace, the hatred in his tone bitter, biting. "You have a clear field, now."

"D—n you, d—n you both," he cried and made for the door, but only to pause and, turning, point his finger at Eileen. "You've put him in office, d—n him. But, thank God, I can still fight. I'm going to fight him and save my son." Then, Mannering was gone. Like some demented creature, Eileen followed after him. Through the hallway, into the street, she rushed madly, to come finally to filled the air with the rich odor of resinous pine and hemlock. On the other, the wide reaches of a river, silvery beneath the rising sun, stretched away. Yet, Red was not interested in the lumber industry, nor was he given to faring forth upon the water. Taxi cabs, tires, carburetors and passengers summed his world. At the moment, a passenger who rode on and on. Suppose this one proposed to continue on forever? In Red's mind there arose a vision of an extraordinary taxi cab journey. One that would send him on through the years with that motionless sad eyed passenger always behind. Send him on, until he became an ancient bearded man and she a toothless hag. It might seem that this would be the acme of success to one of Red's calling. But he had no such feeling. Rounding a curve, there lay before him a village nestled in the midst of the forest on the bank of the river. At sight of the town came resolution. A novel one too in a taxi driver. He turned and shouted at Eileen. "Say—don't you want to stop at this next town?"

She turned to gaze at him, her face blank, as if she had difficulty in locating herself, to finally nod wearily. As a man who sees himself relieved of a burden, Red drove on, to finally stop before a little hotel, weather worn and dilapidated. He helped Eileen out of the taxi and she stumbled partway up the steps leading to the rickety porch, where she paused, lacking the strength to proceed.

Intent upon ridding himself of his passenger, Red moved on to the door and thundered, clamorously upon it with his fist. For a few moments there was no sign of life, then steps sounded within, the door was opened and a sleepy landlord in his shirt sleeves appeared.

"This here lady," said Red, "she's sick and wants a room."

"I dunno," responded the hotel man doubtfully, scratching his towlsed head. "Don't nobody but lumberjacks an' mill hands stay here, an' what's more this ain't no hospital."

"She ain't," said Red hastily, "she ain't what you'd call really sick, just tired. What she wants is just rest and she ain't a bit particular how she gets it, so long as she gets it. What's more," he continued, speaking with marvelous confidence upon a subject which had caused him no little personal misgivings, "she's got lots of money and ain't caring about what she pays for anything, so long as she gets it."

Before so fair spoken a recommendation as Red's what innkeeper could remain obdurate, what one long hesitate? Certainly the doubts of this one were promptly dispelled. Hardly had Red ceased speaking than the hotel man, all courtesy and attention in his rough way, was ushering Eileen into the house, up the stairs and down a long hall into a plainly furnished room. There he paused to regard her kindly, if curiously.

"Anything else, ma'am? What we got ain't much, but all you got to do is to holler an' it's yours."

Her senses numbed with grief and unutterably wearied by the events of the night, Eileen shook her head, hardly aware of what the man had said. Too dazed had she been to be aware of other things, too. That she had given Reddy a bill of a denomination which had lifted his tried soul from the slough of despond to the heights of joy was a thing to which she perhaps would have given little heed had she realized it. But had she known of Diane Bledsoe's presence, and, above all else, her extraordinary behavior Eileen would have found food for much thought.

For Diane had seen and recognized Eileen, early as it was, that morning. Out for a morning horseback ride, Diane had cantered up just as Reddy had assisted Eileen from the taxicab, and she had paused uncertainly on the hotel steps. The sight of Bob's mother waiting there had affected Diane strangely. Turning white as a sheet, she had swayed so far in the saddle as to almost lose her seat. Recovering herself with an effort she had swung her mount about and applying the whip to the mettlesome beast had fled the town.

Towel Collectors Take Heavy Toll From The Hotels

DALLAS, Feb. 20.—One of the many functions of a hotel is to serve as a "clearing house" for sheets and towels.

On the average, the Adolphus Hotel here loses about 350 towels a month to guests who like to take "souvenirs" along when they check out.

After visiting a few hotels, the average "collector" finds his suitcase getting heavy so he usually leaves a Texas or a California towel on the floor of some New York or Michigan hotel while some other traveler leaves Ohio and Oregon towels at the Adolphus.

Hotels are kept busy returning towels to each other.

In some nicer rooms, guests snarl towels and fake sheets instead—even a blanket. The Adolphus misses about 50 sheets a month this way and half a dozen blankets.

The most popular souvenir is any sort of a card upon which are printed rules of the hotel and statements regarding "beating hotel bills."

Chamber maids at the Adolphus have found many prohibition enforcement notices from hotels all over the country—usually with some supposedly "witty" erasure or addition, to suit the mood of the collector.

People have been talking about the weather for a long time, but no one has ever done anything about it.

"This here lady, she's sick and wants a room."

the car in which he had that moment seated himself.

"John," she sobbed piteously, "let me in, let me in."

His answer was to signal the driver to go on.

White and distraught, she was left on the curb staring after the departing car, a wife who was not wanted. Dially dazed, faint, half conscious of what she was doing, she turned to move away. And passing her own taxi, its driver spoke to her. Like one in a trance, she climbed in at the door he held open for her and sank limply upon the cushions.

"Where to, now?" said the driver, and he had to repeat his question again and again before she answered him.

"Drive," she said, wearily. "Just drive—and drive—and drive."

CHAPTER XII

Reddy Gear, taxi cab driver, yawned, nodded and straightened up with a shiver as the chill air of the early morning struck in to his bones. Mechanically, he swung his taxi over to speed by the lumbering bulk of a great truck with but few spare inches between himself and disaster. He frowned, but with never a thought to the exigencies of traffic. These were in the day's work and he had other perplexities. Unused to profound cogitation, they lay heavily upon him. In his perplexity, he gazed moodily about him. On the one hand, a great forest in all its primal grandeur skirted the road and with her present husband, a civil war veteran.

When the wife of Congressman Harvey, she was entertained by Presidents Harrison and Cleveland.

Her grandfather, Thomas Morris, Ohio senator, obtained General Grant his appointment to the United States military academy.

$10 for the Best Letter

A Case of Keen for a Good One.

To the Reader of This Ad:

(A Letter from Gus Coleman)

This is confidential. I don't know a great deal about advertising. I want to sell KEEN DRINKS.

WHAT IS THE BEST WAY TO GET PEOPLE TO TRY KEEN DRINKS?

Write me a letter, harding your answer to the above question and if I think it is the best letter I receive I will give you $10.00.

I know that they are a good bunch of drinks; that they are sweetened with pure sugar; that only pure distilled water is used in their manufacture.

I know that they are not a substitute for any drink on the market; that they are a pure food drink with a flavor for each individual taste and blended to please the most fastidious.

What I want to do is to make others want to know that and I believe there is someone who will read this ad that can tell me how to do it.

Even if you don't get the $10 I will send you a case of Keen if I think your letter is worth it, but I am the judge of the contest.

The only persons barred are those engaged in or employed by advertising agencies or newspapers, because if I wanted expert advise I wouldn't have to advertise for it.

This offer closes whenever I think all letters are in and the winner will be announced in next Sunday's paper.

8 NEW WELLS GOING DOWN, RISING STAR

The pool opened up a week ago South of Rising Star by the gusher of Barney Carter, Ranger operator, and Cowboy Evans, operator of Cisco, is witnessing intense activities, no less than eight operations being under way.

The No. 2 and No. 3 Dunn of Carter and Evans are saddling. These wells are one location from the sensational No. 1. The States Oil corporation of Eastland is starting the No. 2 Allen, an offset to the north of the Dunn No. 1 and is preparing to drill to the east of the gusher, on the Allen.

Carter & Thomasson are down 1,000 feet on the H. L. Stapp near Bird's store in Brown county in new territory and Carter's test on the W. B. Wheeler, four miles southeast of Rising Star and about the same distance east of the Carter and Evans producers, is drilling.

E. M. Thomasson of Denver, partner of Carter, arrived in Ranger yesterday, accompanied by Mrs. Thomasson and his secretary, Miss Ruby Cook, and they went out into the field with Mr. Carter to see the holdings of the company and the new activities.

"RED" GRANGE MAY CAUSE A FOOTBALL WAR

By HENRY L. FARRELL (United Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Feb. 20.—Invasion of the New York field by Red Grange's professional football team, or any other team without a National League franchise, will result in a football war that will be of serious consequence to the future of a young sport.

Tim Mara and Billy Gibson, prominent New York sportsmen, have a National League franchise that entitles them to territorial rights in the entire metropolitan district and they succeeded in having their fellow club owners reject an application that Grange made for a team to play in the Yankee Stadium.

If Grange goes through with his plans to organize another New York team, he will be called an outlaw by the league. He will call himself an independent with the right to dispute the authority and the jurisdiction of the league.

Some critics have likened the impending situation to that which developed in baseball several years ago when the Federal League went out to fight the National and American leagues, but there is a vast difference.

Organized baseball held the upper hand and wielded the whip because its authority was established by a ruling of the United States Supreme Court. The major league also had a tremendous financial advantage in the possession of a larger treasury and in the ownership of large playing fields in all the big cities.

With these advantages organized baseball won the battle but it cost both factions millions of dollars. It also convinced capital that organized baseball is impregnable—for many years to come, at least.

The outlaws of football, however, probably have just as much money and jurisdiction as the organized league because it had never been recognized by such as high source as baseball was.

Unless the baseball club owners get together and make some kind of an agreement about the use of their parks for football, the outlaws will have no legal obstacle to the leasing of baseball fields or other playing fields and as long as they have a place to play they will be in a position to compete with the organization teams.

NO. 2 PETTIT, 100 BARRELS AT 1500 FEET

The No. 2 Pettit of the Robert Oil Corporation in the Olden field has been completed and is estimated as a 100-barrel producer in the 1,500 foot sand.

It was shot late Friday with forty quarts of nitro-glycerin. As the well is only a short distance from the Bankhead Highway, men with red flags were stationed on the road to signal motorists of danger just before the shot was set off.

But one car, occupied by several ladies, did not heed the warning and were just opposite the well when the shot exploded and their car was drenched with oil. The well is just south of the brick highway just before the curve in the road is reached in the western edge of Olden.

Carranza Buys Radio Equipment In Dallas Mart

DALLAS, Feb. 20.—On his way to Mexico City after a business trip to New York, Rafael Carranza, nephew of former President Carranza, stopped off in Dallas to buy batteries for radio equipment.

Carranza went to New York for the Mexican government to purchase a large number of radio sets that will be used in military barracks over Mexico to aid in educating the Mexican soldiers and to help in keeping up the morale of the troops.

"We hope by the use of radio to help keep down the revolutionary movement in our country," said Carranza.

Magnolias Ready To Open Season; Meeting Today

The Oil Belt Baseball association will be formed at a session in Ranger this afternoon. At 2 o'clock, in the directors' room of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, representatives of Eastland, Breckenridge, Thurber, Ranger and perhaps Cisco and Abilene will assemble.

John McGarvey, of the Magnolia Petroleum company at Olden, one of the greatest fans in West Texas, declares that the Ranger Magnolias this season will capture the Oil Belt pennant.

"White, a star of last season, will again be the catcher and manager, and Ox Rainey, the great slugger, will cover first again," state McGarvey.

Dutch Casion, formerly with the Wichita Falls Spudders, will disport around the keystone cushion, and Weeks, with the Waco Tigers last season, will cover short. Dean, who formerly played in the T. & O. league will be our third sacker again this season.

"To do the hurling we will have Clark, who was the star pitcher for the University of Texas last season—and everybody knows the classy teams that Billy Disch always turns out at the state university. Hale, the sensational slow-drop pitcher, will work for us again this season. Clark and Hale will take turns in the outfield.

Robinson and Jarrett will handle the other two outfield assignments again. Both can hit and field. Then we will have our veteran utility man, Rosenberg, back again."

BULLDOGS PLAY TIGHT GAME OF SPRING FOOTBALL

The Ranger High School Bulldogs opened the 1926 Texas football season with an exciting game Friday, viewed by a fair sized crowd.

Coach Blair Cherry divided his candidates for the next fall's team and formed two elevens for the purposes of the game, as the climaxing event of the two weeks of spring training in the gridiron sport that he has had in progress.

The Maroons emerged with the victory over the Whites, 19 to 13. The showing of quite a few lads on each side demonstrated that Ranger will have a formidable team next autumn.

The first score came late in the opening quarter when the White safety man fumbled a punt and the opposing side recovered on the two-yard line. Buster Mills plunged the ball over and then kicked goal, giving the Maroons the lead, 7 to 0. In the second quarter, a blocked kick that was scooped up by Mills for a pretty and shifty gain was followed by another touchdown, Whitehall carrying it over and the Maroons led, 13 to 0.

But if the Maroons had dominated matters for the first two quarters, the Whites certainly took control in the third period when Swofford, at fullback, displayed fair speed and a rugged power in smashing through the line, stifarming and shaking off tacklers. He marched the ball down the field for 60 yards and when the quarter ended, the oval was on the Maroon nine-yard line.

In the final period, Swofford lost no time in making a touchdown and then dropped kicked goal, making the count 13 to 7.

The only long spectacular run of the game was made a minute later by Mills who raced 60 yards around left end for a touchdown.

The Maroons kicked off and the Whites, with Swofford doing most of the ball-carrying, swept down the field in a series of plays for another score just before the game ended.

There were some beautiful tackles, lots of good line material in evidence and some brilliant work by backfield men and the fans left the park feeling optimistic about the Bulldogs of '26.

MISSING MAN RETURNS HOME TO GET MONEY

ATLANTA, Feb. 20.—One cold night, 38 years ago, J. A. Smith stepped from his house in College Park, telling his wife he would return shortly with a load of fodder.

She never saw him again. But each night before she retired she opened the door and peered into the street, straining her eyes for sight of her husband and the load of fodder.

This was revealed in municipal court here when Smith, now 78, suddenly returned and demanded a share of the money raised by public subscription for the family of his L. H. Smith, who was one of six firemen killed while fighting a cotton warehouse blaze.

Smith was identified by his sister, Mrs. Martha Ham. He also told the court the maiden name of his wife and the names of their six children. Judge L. F. McClelland and finally convinced and awarded the aged man $502.85 of the subscription money, the balance going to a daughter.

When questioned by the court, Smith offered no reason for his extended absence, but said he had been living in Shelby county, Alabama. His daughter said she had not seen him in 38 years and at the hearing was not positive that the man was her father.

Merchant Goes Into Bank, Check Floater Flees

Only a check for $1 but it caused a ripple of action to sweep across the business section of Eastland late Friday afternoon.

It all came about in this wise, according to a report made to the Retail Merchants' association: A man entered a store and presented a check for a dollar. The merchant said that he would just step into the bank which was nearby to make sure that the check was O. K.

"But the bank is closed—it's after 5 o'clock," the man said.

"Yes, but I can get in the side door," the merchant replied and left the store. Hardly had he done so when the man hurried out the door, got into a truck which had stopped nearby with another man at the wheel, and the two departed from the city without any further ceremony.

Merchants Seek Strike Damages From Shanghai

SHANGHAI, Feb. 20.—Indemnity of at least $6,000,000 for the losses occasioned by the stoppage of business through the general strike in Shanghai last summer is being demanded by Shanghai's Chinese merchants. A telegram was recently dispatched to the Ministry of Foreign Affairs at Peking urging that this amount be claimed from the foreign powers.

RISING STAR BRIEFS

RISING STAR, Feb. 19.—No arrests have been made in connection with the burglary here last Sunday night of the Ghornley garage at which time $1,000 worth of automobile accessories were taken. News has reached Rising Star of the death of Will Haynes, formerly of this community, who was crushed to death at his home in Callahan county last Friday. Mr. Haynes was hauling wood and while enroute home after dark started to get out of his wagon to open a gate when the horses became frightened and threw him under the wagon which ran over him.

Many Cases Of Grippe Reported In Ranger

Local People Urged to Use Vigorous Measures to Combat Any Further Spread of Deep Grippy Colds.

FNEUMANIA IS CHIEF DANGER Grippe Attacks Weaken Body's Resistance to Germs of Pneumonia—All Colds Should Be Treated Promptly.

Deep grippy colds have been unusually prevalent here this winter. The situation is fairly general throughout the States. In some sections these colds are called "influenza," but the majority of health officers report that they are much milder than the original epidemic and resemble more closely the old-fashioned la grippe. They are usually accompanied by a headache or aching feeling over the body, "running of the nose," sneezing and frequently by gastric and intestinal complications such as hiccoughs, nausea, diarrhea, etc.

Colds are too often neglected until they have lowered the vitality sufficiently to permit the lurking germs, which cause pneumonia, bronchitis and influenza to attack the body.

Don't Take Chances
The only safe plan is to attack a cold right at the beginning. A hot foot bath, a laxative, a sweat and a vigorous application of Vicks Vapo-Rub at bedtime over throat and chest will often break up a cold over night.

For hours after Vicks is applied the vapors of camphor, menthol, eucalyptus, thyme and turpentine, released as vapors by the body heat, are inhaled directly into the infected air passages. At the same time it warms and stimulates the skin like a poultice, "drawing out" the soreness and pain.

It is an obstinate cold indeed that can resist this direct, double action. Vicks Vapor Steam

If the air passages are badly stopped up, try the "teakettle and tent" treatment. This method—fully explained in the directions—consists, briefly, of vaporizing Vicks in a teakettle and arranging a newspaper "tent" over the patient's head so that the combined warm steam and medicated vapors can be inhaled.

Mothers especially appreciate Vicks for the frequent colds of children, as it can be used freely and often, without disturbing the digestion—you "just rub it on." Over 21 millions jars are used yearly.

Edward C. Koester, a convic at Mich., has filed in the Chicago courts a will purporting to be that of the late Edwin B. Jennings, multimillionaire, which leaves all of Jennings' $6,000,000 estate to Koester. Koester alleges that his mother, now dead, was a sister of Jennings' wife.

Elder J. W. White of Sealy, Texas, will be here Sunday and will occupy the pulpit at the Church of Christ. J. W. Elkins has just let a contract for a brick business house to be erected on the lot now occupied by the Stovall Grain store.

SUPERSTITIONS ABOUT PLANTING MAY BE SOUND

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 20.—Ancient superstitions regarding the advisability of planting crops when the moon was in a certain phase may turn out to have a sound basis in scientific fact. This surprising statement was made here at the convention of the southern section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by Dr. D. T. McDougal, one of the world's chief authorities on plant life. Dr. McDougal pointed out that while moonlight is reflected sunlight it is peculiar in that it consists of what scientists call Polarized light. Ordinary light consists of light waves vibrating in all directions. Polarized light consists of light vibrating on one direction only.

CHINA'S OPIUM FIGHT CURBED BY MILITARY

SHANGHAI.—More than 4,000,000 people in China are now pledged to participation in a campaign to suppress opium, according to reports submitted at the annual meeting of the Anti-Opium association. Tong Shao-yi, former premier, who presided at the meeting, bitterly arraigned provincial militarists who are forcing farmers to plant opium in order that they may be able to levy high taxes. He urged ostracism of all engaged in the opium traffic and concluded with a plea to "build more jails for opium dealers and more hospitals for addicts."

SPRING HAS DECIDED IN FAVOR of THESE

—The decisions have been made—the modes are set—the styles are fixed—and now we are displaying the most individual of these creations. New in material, new in treatment, adhering with strict smartness to the most exacting demands of Fashion. See our showing now!

HER SUIT

—The Bobby Suit has taken the "style stage" by storm. It is very new and very strict in its individuality.—It is indeed popular in Florida right now. Many of these suits are in tweeds. The wrap-around suit with its short length skirt and the double breasted two button coat makes it very boyish. New colors are featured in these suits.

HER DRESS

—Scalloped—pleated, flared and with long sleeves—and you have the creation that has been raved about so much. Pleats are used so many different ways, in full panels that hang over in half, full or part length, inserts that add fullness to the skirt, sleeve bustles and many other ways. They are important. Quite often the fullness of the skirt is gained by a flaring of the material bordered in scallops. Solid colors in combinations with prints, and in all prints represent the favored mode.

HER COAT

—Equally as smart must be her coat. New materials take away the drab remembrance of a dull and past season. Colors, too, are new, running almost to extreme lights with rose, grey, tans, greens and blues favored. Light rows of fur or embroideries embellish them with rare charm. Circular skirts and scallops add much variety to our showing.

Plant Lice Live All Winter On Old Dead Stalks Famous Bazaars Of Constantinople Selling Cheap Stuff

The most persistent pest in the garden is the plant louse or aphid. You can't start after them too early for they live all winter and stand below zero weather, ready to thaw out and start acting with the first breath of spring. Clean up all dead stalks of plants known to have been infested last summer and burn them.

Although the most prevalent, plant lice are most easily controlled, and there is no good excuse for having them in quantity. If you have them at all you will have them wholesale. Nicotine compounds in the form of spray or dust are sure death to those intruders. A spray is necessary and tobacco tea made from cheap cigars or cigar clippings is effective. Nicotine in commercial forms, of which Black Leaf 40 is a standard, is a convenient form, a small portion mixed with water according to directions slaying lice wholesale.

There are some 200 odd different kinds of plant lice ranging in color from the common green to black through reds and browns. Their life history is interesting. Female aphides hatch in spring from eggs laid in autumn. Some females hold over and lay a new crop in the spring. These spring hatches are females without wings which soon mature and give birth to females like themselves instead of eggs. They all soon grow up and produce generation after generation.

By JOHN O'BRIEN (United Press Staff Correspondent) CONSTANTINOPLE, Feb. 20. — If the sultan came back to power and despatched a trusted Vizir to the far famed Bazaars of Stambul to lay in a fresh stock of Kashmir rugs, silken shawls for his favorite, trinkets of gold and silver and precious stones, perfumes of Arabia, ivory and ebony jewel cases the Vizir would be forced to return and report: "All out of stock."

War and the economic ruin which followed had a lot to do with this state of things. The modernization of Turkey accounts for the rest. Nobody can sell what the people don't want or cannot afford to buy. Western products of everyday utility have taken the place of primercaks and costly articles of luxury.

Same as West. In the immense vaulted streets covering three or four city blocks which comprise the bazaars and fill the same role as the American department store you now find a display of merchandise different in scarcely any respect from the average store in a popular section of a city like New York, Pittsburg, Chicago or San Francisco. Camel caravans still plod wearily over the Persian and Arabian deserts bringing higher vast stores of delicately woven tissues, carpets from Bagdad, woods from Asiatic forests, gold and silver ornaments, spices and perfumes. But they are not for the Turks. They are for the markets of Amsterdam, London, Paris and New York.

Constantinople remains the greatest carpet market in the world but that is all that remains of the glory and wealth that once centered in this picturesque quarter of the old Turkish capital.

"Come in and take a look. It costs nothing." This is the invariable invitation from the Turkish merchant, squatting at the door of his shop in the bazaar. Despite westernization he still squats and sips Turkish coffee. What has he to sell? Shoddy finery from Lelpsic and London, worthless trinkets from Paris, European clothes, hats and all the rest of the things needed by the Turk of nowadays. The once imperial bazaars are even invaded by the auction rooms and municipal salerooms. Second hand furniture and jewelry are the stock in trade.

This is the natural outcome of the abolition of privilege and luxurious living. The palaces of the Sultan are empty or have become hotels. The pashas who lived in splendid villas along the Bosphorus are in exile. The harems have been liquidated and women for whom nabobs hung rags of fortunes. The wealthy merchants who amassed million after million in providing for the satisfaction of their caprices have retired or have gone abroad. Living in Constantinople is on a scale consistent with the needs of the worker and they are not exacting.

Tourist Trade. Even the tourist trade, in years past one of the most important, is dying out. Perhaps the disappearance of the glamor and the picturesque features of Turkish life has had something to do with this. It is certain, however, that governmental restrictions are the party responsible. One of the largest English tourist agencies has had to retire from the Constantinople field owing to the demands of the authorities regarding the percentage of Turks in their employment, the surveillance of guides in regard to the tales they tell travelers and the things they show as representative of Turkish manners.

Rigorous measures are being enforced by the government regarding the cost of commodities of prime necessity. Meat and vegetable markets are controlled by municipal officials. Ten thousand restaurant and hotel waiters have formed an association demanding the inauguration of a European system of wages and hours of work, including, of course, tips.

Desdemona Feasts Poultry Raisers Of Eastland County

County Agent R. H. Bush and F. M. Spurlin, manager of the Eastland hatchery, were among those in attendance at the dinner tendered at noon Saturday in Desdemona by the business men of that city with the board of directors of the Eastland Poultry Raisers association as the guests of honor. A check, turned over to him by the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, was taken by Mr. Spurlin to the session. The check was for $250 and was Eastland's quota of the expense of the association.

FOREIGN SHIPPERS WASHINGTON, Feb. 17. — The department of Agriculture has enlisted the aid of diplomatic officers abroad in its effort to eradicate the foot-and-mouth disease, according to Dr. John R. Moller, chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry.

At the request of the Department of Agriculture, Moller said consular officers abroad are getting people in foreign countries to substitute excelsior and paper for hay and straw as packing material. This action, he said, is relieving the danger of importation of the disease to a great extent.

Through inspections last year the department condemned 298,000 animals and carcasses together with 1,294,000 parts of carcasses on account of forty-one diseases or conditions and removed them from the food supply. Approximately 33,175,000 pounds of foreign meat were inspected and passed for entry and 91,980 pounds were condemned or refused entry because of insufficient evidence of wholesomeness.

Will Plant Trees In Ranger Arbor Day Afternoon

The Arbor Day program to be given at Ranger High School, will start promptly at 2:30 o'clock, Monday afternoon. The junior class will have charge of the program, and have prepared an interesting one. The speaker will be Judge William Panell of Stephenville. Following the program the domestic arts department will serve tea. Tree planting will be observed with appropriate service during the remainder of the afternoon. Many persons have contributed trees, and others money. The holes around the school yard yawn invitingly, each awaiting its tree. The public is invited to attend this service, which promises to be a splendid Arbor Day celebration.

Ideal Gardening Like Farming Is Using After Crops

The ideal vegetable garden is a mass of growing things from early spring to killing frosts. This is accomplished only by a thought-out and well-timed system of follow and companion planting so that the garden is ready with another crop to go in when one comes out. This is the development of modern gardening which is restricted to smaller spaces than it was a generation ago when enough space was readily available to plant every vegetable on its own individual space and turnips to follow peas constituted the chief attempt at follow cropping.

Now when the radishes are past their prime they are removed for beans, carrots, or some other later crop. Formerly they were allowed to run to seed. The lettuce patch will support a late planting of peas, beans, corn, beets or carrots. Among the pea vines tomato plants can be slipped into place and started on their stakes to occupy the entire space when the pea vines are pulled up after yielding their crops.

is the chief convenience and mainstay to keep the garden continuously at work, transplanting from the seed bed crops of later-yielding vegetables to the places occupied by the earlier ones. Here peppers, egg plants and tomatoes may be nursed along until the settled warmth arrives, when it is time to put them into the garden where some of the earlier crops are on the wane.

Cabbage, cauliflower, brussels sprouts and celery all can be started in the seed bed and be ready to move into the garden as soon as any vacancies occur. Make the garden a continuous performance and leave no ground idle if you would make the most of it.

A few trials will make the follow and companion crop idea a matter of habit, keeping in mind that the cabbage tribe and the bean tribe should not succeed each other or occupy the same space succeeding years for best results. You must pay for your sins, unless you can sell them to some confession magazine and collect for them.

BY TAYLOR

"Lack of space prevents my giving a report in detail of the work I have done or a discussion of the tax problems with which this department is confronted. But suffice to say, in this age, when taxes have become so burdensome, a practical experience will be found one of the most essential qualifications of an applicant for the office of tax assessor.

"Every public official makes a record that either condemns or commends. When he offers for re-election this should be the first consideration of the taxpayers. I am glad to submit my candidacy on this issue. Investigate my record, then if in your opinion my official acts merit your approval, I shall be deeply grateful for your support.

On February 22 the people of the United States of America will observe with fitting ceremony the 194th anniversary of the birth of George Washington. Reverently and with thankful hearts a hundred million people will bow their heads in memory of a very great man whose unselfish devotion to an ideal made possible the building of this, the world's greatest nation.

As is common in the history of all great nations and all great world figures, there has been built up around the name of this great man a fabric of tradition. How much of it is strictly true and how much the product of the historian's embellishment, probably we will never know with certainty. Recently a writer of national prominence has attacked what he is pleased to call the Washington myth. The cherry tree story, he says, is a fable manufactured out of the whole cloth; and besides George Washington was far from being the faultless character he is pictured. And he offers historical documents in proof thereof.

What matter? Even if these things are proven—and it is not admitted that they are—the fact remains that George Washington was one of the world's noblest figures. That he was human; that he had faults; that he made mistakes, as all men have done—these things are certain. That he was unswerving in the high attributes of courage, of honesty, of patriotism and of unflinching devotion to the unselfish principles for which he stood—these are the things whereof were compounded his immortal claim to the tribute of the ages. These are the things that endure.

YELLOW STUB

BEGIN HERE TODAY:

Henry Rand, 55, a business man, is found murdered in a cheap hotel in Grafton. Police find a woman's handkerchief and the yellow stub of a theatre ticket.

Jimmy Rand, his son, goes to Waterton, where the theatre is. The stub is traced to Thomas Fogarty, who says he gave it to Olga Maynard, a cabaret singer.

Jimmy meets and falls in love with Mary Lowell. Later he encounters Olga. She faints when she learns police want her for murder. Mary out with Samuel Church, a wealthy lawyer, sees Jimmy lift Olga into a taxi and misunderstands.

Olga tells police the stub and handkerchief might have come into possession of a man who "picked her up" two nights before the murder. Jimmy receives several mysterious warnings to leave Waterton but ignores them. Later he is attacked at night by two men. He escapes, after seizing a blackjack from one of them.

Jimmy had seized her by the hand. He was leaning toward her. His voice was agonized.

"Mary, you mean you love me?"

But she did not answer. She had turned her head away and was crying.

"Mary, look at me. Look at me and then tell me that you're marrying this man because you love him."

"Don't!" Her voice was muffled, her handkerchief pressed tightly to her lips.

And then again her anger overwhelmed him. He was seized once more with that uncontrollable desire to hurt her.

"I might have known," he said bitterly, "that I had no right to hope. There was a fellow in your office. They call him Mac. He said money would do anything. He was right; it will. This man—"

"Jim, don't. Please don't say any more."

But he went heedlessly on, the words rushing insanely from his lips.

"This man Church has money—lots of it. He can get anything he wants with it. He got you with it. You're marrying him for his money; that's what you're doing."

"How dare you!" She turned on him, her lips trembling.

"You don't deny it." He laughed scornfully. "You don't dare tell me you love him. You can't. You don't dare look at me and tell me you don't love me."

She drew herself up. "You presume a great deal."

"I presume nothing. I'm stating facts."

She had regained her composure now. She said, trying to wound him. "To be so sure of yourself certainly indicates you are not lacking in conceit."

The barb went home. His face reddened. "Perhaps," he said, "I did take too much for granted. I'm sorry."

At the contriteness of his tone she reached involuntarily toward him with her hand, but he did not see it and she hastily drew it back.

And so he went plunging ahead, still trying his best to hurt this girl whom he loved better than anything in the world.

"I had thought Mac was wrong. I thought there were some things in this world that money could not buy. But I was wrong—I was a fool. You even got me out of the way down at the office. I offended you, and so you had me fired."

She looked at him, startled. "You thought that?" she repeated slowly. "You thought I had you fired?" and instantly he saw he was wrong in accusing her.

"What else was I to think? I found you cold. You wouldn't even speak to me, and that evening the man you work for discharged me."

"I don't think," she said in a whisper, "that Sam Church would think such a thing of me."

"Oh, damn Sam Church!" he flared at her. "I suppose I'm to think he's some kind of a saint. If you want to know my opinion of Sam Church, I think he's a dirty sneak."

"It is hardly the chivalrous thing to do to speak like that of him when he isn't here."

"He lied about me!" Jimmy cried. "He poisoned you against me—the sneak."

"I suppose," she retorted, "you think your taste in choosing friends is better than mine. The lady you were seen with is not exactly unknown to you, is it?"

"Yes," he answered hotly, "and I see her nearly every night. What do you think of that? I'm with her every night."

He rose from the bench and clamped his hat down viciously on his head, his back to her. She stretched her hand out in a little gesture of appeal, but he was not looking.

"Goodby," he said. "You seem to it make?" and walked in.

"I want a job," he said to the girl who advanced to meet him.

"Mr. Porter over there is the man to see."

He walked over. "Mr. Porter, I want a job."

The man inspected him, noted the trim figure and the neat clothing and shook his head. "Sorry, we have no office jobs open."

"I don't care about an office job."

He called up Olga Maynard and asked her to meet him downtown. He wanted to forget.

have made your choice. I only hope you'll be as unhappy as I am." He walked away, without another backward glance, taking long, swift strides.

She sat perfectly still for several minutes, doing nothing but gaze after his departing figure as it strode through the park. Then she bowed her head on her arm and cried as if her heart would break.

"Jim," she sobbed, "you don't care. You don't care, or you wouldn't talk like that."

I'd do anything."

"The only thing we have is driving a laundry truck."

"All right, I'll drive a laundry truck—anything."

Again the man surveyed him. "Say, what's the matter with you? You're not out out for driving a truck. You're a college man, I'll bet a dollar. Aren't you?"

"Yes. Does that handicap me any in driving a laundry truck?"

Mr. Porter laughed. "No, I can't say that it does. What's the matter? Down on your luck?"

"No, I just need a job."

"Drive a car?"

"Yes. I used to sell them."

"All right, I can use you. I can't seem to get hold of a man that's any good. I suppose you'll be quitting just about the time that you know your route."

"I won't be quitting for quite a while," Jimmy said.

"All right. Report for work to me tomorrow morning at 7:30. Your job will be collecting and delivering laundry."

"Thanks, I'll be here." He walked out of the door.

"There's a funny one for you, Miss Caton," called Mr. Porter to the girl who had met Jimmy when he came in. "College man driving a laundry truck."

She looked toward the door that had closed behind Jimmy Rand's back. "I'll say," she answered, and resumed chewing her gum.

Jimmy's job that he had been hunting all morning was waiting for him in the first place he entered after leaving Mary. The irony of it all was that he no longer cared whether he got a job or not.

He plunged through the park without a glance to left or right, his hands stuck in his overcoat pockets, jaw grimly set, head down.

"Money!" he exclaimed bitterly. "Mac was right. All you need is money and you can buy anything."

At the edge of the park he paused and looked backward. But the bench was hidden from sight by the trees. "God help me," he said, "I love her. I can't help it."

He walked blindly on and suddenly found himself standing in front of an electric laundry office. He stood irresolutely for a moment and then shrugged his shoulders. "What the hell," he said, "what difference does

Mary Lowell sat on the bench where Jimmy had left her for fully an hour. Then she went home and called her office to say that she was not feeling well and would not be back for the afternoon.

"Why Mary, what's the matter?" asked Mrs. Lowell. "Aren't you well?"

"It's just a headache, mother. I'll go in my room and lie down for a while. It will be better."

And she went in her room, to fling herself face down on the bed and wet her pillow with tears. On her dressing table was a portrait of Samuel Church, placed there recently by her mother.

Jimmy, after leaving the laundry office, walked without being conscious of direction, back to the park. He was half way through it before he realized where he was. Then, drawn by some irresistible impulse, he walked swiftly over to the bench where he had left Mary.

She had gone, and he sat down wearily. A small handkerchief was lying on the bench, and he recognized it by the perfume as Mary's. He picked it up and pressed it to his lips and cursed himself for talking to her as he had.

"I was a fool," he said. "I had no right to hurt her like that, even though she did hurt me. It's that damned temper of mine. Whatever chance I had I suppose I've lost now."

He took out his wallet and placed the handkerchief in it and then put it back in his pocket. His left hand, fumbling idly in his overcoat pocket, came in contact with the blackjack that he had taken away from the man who had followed him home that night. It had been in his pocket ever since O'Day had left him. He had put it there, intending to give it to the lieutenant the next time he saw him.

He took it out of his pocket and idly studied it. Emery was leaking out of it where O'Day had ripped the stitches. He took his penknife from his watch chain and ripped out the remaining stitches, letting the rest of the heavy emery dust run out.

"It will never hurt anyone else," he said abstractedly. He was suddenly overcome with a feeling of tenderness.

He shoved the now harmless weapon back in his pocket and stood up. It was quite dark.

"Hell," he said, and shook himself together. "Something to get my mind off myself before I go crazy."

He set off through the park at a brisk gait and didn't stop until he had reached his room, a walk of more than a mile. There, after washing and putting on a fresh shirt, he went to the telephone, called up Olga Maynard at her apartment and asked her to meet him downtown for dinner.

"Anything to forget," he said, after he had hung up the receiver.

THE LAST WORD OF FASHION

Always First At

JULIANNA SHOP

Gholson Hotel Building

A new Fashion idea is born—a new style thought conceived—and almost simultaneously it appears in the Julianna Shop, which is only to be expected.

Dresses

Out of their packing boxes they come! A spring parade of dresses so new they might have stepped from latest fashion magazine pages.

Circular skirts are the rule—and they are fuller than ever! But there are many straight skirts, too, with pleats in front—particularly among two-piece dresses!

High collars are distinctly a touch of Spring, 1926, on many "misses" frocks. Several of the two-piece frocks have blouses that fit tight about the hips. Metal thread embroidery is used—but daintily rather than lavishly. Bright colored ribbons and buttons and buckles.

The New Coats

Refreshing new in color, silhouette and fabric! A decidedly interesting choice of coats in the new tan, blue, and green shades and soft rose shades reflecting Spring's love of soft color.

Some striking features of the new dress coats are the lovely quality of materials, so soft! and trimmings of furs and braids and patch work.

For the "tailor-made girl," simple mannish coats of the newest tweeds and twills.

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—The trial of the Hoffman Construction Company's case will not come up at this term of the court, according to the announcement made Thursday. ## WASHINGTON— THE DELIVERER

When America proclaimed its Independence it became free in name only.

Bound by the steel bayonets of Cornwallis, hedged in by the Old Royalist sympathies—it remained for a Great Man to undertake the task of actually releasing the infant Nation from the physical and mental bonds that held it in the grip of the Mother Country.

The man arose! He accomplished his mission! He made America actually free! It is to the memory of this great deliverer—Washington—that we dedicate this day.

Let us in our turn try to follow his examples of courage and unselfishness—for America's sake!

To commemorate Washington's Birthday this Bank will be closed Monday.

Studebaker Sedans

One-Prof. prices—Unit-Built construction—
Powerful Engines—bring big sales increase

STUDEBAKER'S third price reduction since January 1, 1925, made the Standard Six and Big Six Sedans such obvious outstanding values that sales are soaring.

There are sound reasons why Studebaker can give you more for every dollar—better workmanship, finer materials, dependable design, nation-wide service, power, economy, long life and high resale value.

Studebaker's unique facilities

Few motor car "manufacturers" have foundries, forges, etc., to make their own engines—yet one-fifth of the cost of an automobile is in the engine. Even fewer build their own bodies—yet one-third the cost of a car is in the body.

Not only does Studebaker make all bodies and all engines used in Studebaker cars, but also all clutches, gear sets, springs, differentials, steering gears, brakes, axles, gray-iron castings and drop forgings.

One-Prof. value

These facilities enable Studebaker to manufacture quality cars on a One-

Profit basis. They enable Studebaker to eliminate the profits of outside parts and body makers. Many major savings are thus effected and passed on to the ultimate buyers of Studebaker cars in the form of higher quality at a lower price.

Unit-Built construction

Studebaker facilities result, too, in Unit-Built construction—in cars designed, engineered and built as units. The hundreds of parts used in a Studebaker car function together as a unit, resulting in longer life, greater riding comfort and higher resale value. Scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation thus are built into Studebaker cars.

Always kept up-to-date

Because all phases of manufacture are directly under Studebaker control, Studebaker cars are constantly kept up-to-date. We add improvements regardless of the calendar—we do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

$1295

Studebaker's lowest priced Sedan—but all quality

THE fine Studebaker Standard Six Sedan illustrated below is a real four-door Sedan. It is upholstered in genuine wool cloth. Carpets are wool. Windows are real plate glass.

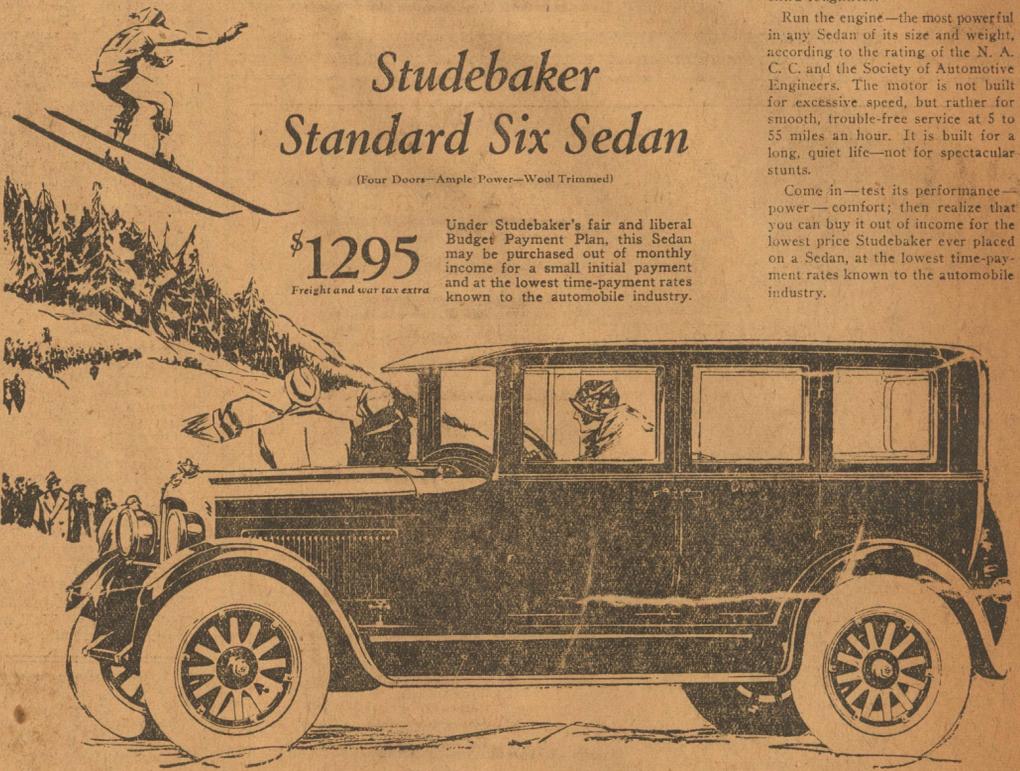

Equipment includes an 8-day clock, gasoline gauge, ash receiver, rear-vision mirror, stop light, air cleaner, gas and oil filters, dome light, safety lighting control on steering wheel, automatic windshield cleaner, coincidental lock to steering gear and ignition, controlled by same key operating door and spare tire locks.

But the most important superiorities of this Sedan are concealed within the framework of the body and in the chassis.

Body pillars are of northern white ash, cross-members of hard maple. We pay a premium for steels of extra toughness.

Run the engine—the most powerful in any Sedan of its size and weight, according to the rating of the N. A. C. C. and the Society of Automotive Engineers. The motor is not built for excessive speed, but rather for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour. It is built for a long, quiet life—not for spectacular stunts.

Come in—test its performance—power—comfort; then realize that you can buy it out of income for the lowest price Studebaker ever placed on a Sedan, at the lowest time-payment rates known to the automobile industry.

USURY DECISION IS IMPORTANT TO TEXAS BANKS

AUSTIN, Feb. 20.—The decision handed down by the third court of civil appeals here on the question of usury in the case of the Dallas Trust and Savings Bank et al vs. J. C. Brashear is one of the most far reaching on that subject ever rendered by an appellate court in Texas.

The decision was written by Associate Justice M. B. Blair. Brashear sued for double the amount of alleged usury claimed to have been paid on a ten year loan of $3,000. Judge is affirmed against the Dallas Trust and Savings Bank for $627, a few cents less than the double amount of $314, and against the Connecticut Life Insurance Company for $984, which is the $477 interest charged. It is reversed and rendered in favor of the United States Bond and Mortgage Company where judgment for $864 had been given in double amount of interest paid.

Exceeds Maximum. The loan contract was so made as to make the interest 9 per cent over the course of ten years but the court finds that the first five years the interest exceeds the 10 per cent maximum fixed by law and is, therefore, usurious on its face on its incipency. The last five years the interest was 7 per cent, under the contract, which made the average 9 per cent per annum. However, the average above 10 per cent the first five years makes it usurious, holds the court, and bankers and money lenders will take notice.

Is rendering judgment for the U. S. Bond and Mortgage Company, the court held that a former judgment made that claim res adjudicatus.

The court's statement of the case under which it condemns the contract as usurious follows:

After stating that it was a $3,000 loan for ten years at 9 per cent the court adds: "But appellant, Dallas Trust and Savings Bank, prepared and required Brashear to execute four notes, numbers 1 to 4, both inclusive, the first three for $200 each, due May 1, 1923, 1924 and 1925, respectively, and the fourth for the sum of $2,400, due May 1, which notes represented the principal loan. These notes provided for interest at the rate of 7 per cent per annum from date, payable at Dallas, on the first day of May for each of the ten years, and provided for 10 per cent interest on the principal and interest after maturity. They were secured by a deed of trust representing the first lien upon 79 acres of land owned by Brashear in Milam county.

Deed of Trust. For the remaining 2 per cent interest due under the loan agreement the bank prepared and required Brashear to execute on the same date of the principal notes, May 17, 1921, five notes designated on their face as interest notes, numbers 1 to 5, both inclusive, due May 1, 1922, 1923, 1924, 1925 and 1926, respectively, the first three being in the sum of $102.67 each and the last two for the sum of $102.66 each, and providing for 10 per cent interest after maturity."

STRAWN BANK BANDITS MAKE THEIR ESCAPE

CAMDEN, Ark., Feb. 20.—Two of the members of the band held in jail here and waiting extradition to Texas to answer the charge of robbery in connection with the hold-up of the Strawn bank last December, have escaped jail. The men who made their getaway were Charles Roberts and John Roberts. The third member of the gang, Fred Stratton, did not escape.

Officers announced several days ago that the men had confessed to the robbery of a bank at Lipan, Texas, and that they had been connected with store robberies in Missouri and automobile thefts in Louisiana.

They were held here on a charge of stealing an automobile.

New Rug Cleaning Machine Installed By Ranger Plant

The Ranger Dry Cleaning Plant has just installed a rug cleaning machine, said to be the only one of its kind between Fort Worth and El Paso, that will take all the worry out of housecleaning. The equipment consists of an electric rotary Super Suction Machine, a platform on which the rugs are placed, an electric rotary Shampoo machine, dryers, and barrels of neutral soap. The rug is laid on the platform, upside down, the vacuum suction machine applied, first to one side and then the other, then the shampoo machine is used, thoroughly shampooing it with neutral soap. This machine gets 80 per cent of the dirt, suds and risewater out of the rug, which is then hung on the large dryers, perfectly straight, so as not to lose its shape.

After undergoing this treatment a transformation in the rug takes place that is truly marvelous.

This equipment will do the work of 14 men and is done at a cost less than one man at the old time method of beating out the dirt can be employed.

Bill in Congress would keep the army as at present. Bills in the mail keep us as at present.
