This was not detected until arrival at Lindau where boxes of paintings valued at 6,000,000 marks were discovered while securities valued at 800,000 marks were found sewn up in mattresses. T. & P. EAGER TO BREAK UP EMBARGO JAM

Will Reroute Freight by Way of Cisco and Dublin.

"The Texas & Pacific freight will do anything to help the rail situation in Breckenridge, it will deliver cars of Breckenridge to the Hamon & Kell road at Ranger or it will route them by way of Cisco to be delivered to the M. K. & T. to transfer to Dublin, thence over the Hamon & Kell line into Breckenridge," was the gist of a statement made this morning by J. W. Knightlinger, division superintendent of the Texas & Pacific, when asked concerning the attitude of his company toward the embargo which has been placed against it by the Hamon & Kell interests.

Mr. Knightlinger also stated that if business demanded it and arrangements could be made with the Cisco & North-eastern, which is now within four miles of Breckenridge with its track laying force, the Texas & Pacific would institute through freight and passenger service from points east into Breckenridge.

Mr. Knightlinger declared that his company had eighty-five loads of freight in its local yards awaiting shipment into Breckenridge but they could not move them because they would not be received by the rival concern.

In discussing the embargo, he declared that it came under the head of "new business" to him and he did not understand it. The superintendent declared that the railroad commission had the making of the rates and that it would be impossible for the Hamon & Kell interests to collect forty-five per cent of the revenue for freight delivered to them at Ranger to be transferred to points on the new road. The answer was given to a question as to whether the Hamon & Kell interests were holding out for forty-five per cent of the revenue.

Mr. Knightlinger declared that as he viewed the matter the embargo was issued in order that the rival road could collect revenue over its entire length since it does not exist against the Frisco at Dublin.

He gave it as his opinion that the action of the Hamon & Kell road was placing a severe loss of revenue upon Ranger which would be gained by Dublin.

The superintendent declared that his company was an ardent supporter of this city and did not want to take any action that would injure it in any manner. In the course of the interview, Knightlinger took occasion to say that from August 1 to 7 the Fort Worth division of the Texas & Pacific had operated 200 passenger trains and 198 of them made their runs on schedule time.

When questioned as to improvements planned for Ranger, he declared that he had no information on the matter since all such work was handled through the office of the general engineer.

AFTER LANDLORDS

(By International News Service) CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Gouging landlords in Chicago are to be called to account for their outrageous profiteering, judging from plans prepared by nearly a score of recently formed tenants' protective associations. DIRECTORS O. K. AUDIT ACTION AFTER PARLEY

Work of Committee Leading to Ringold Arrest Approved.

The action of the audit committee of the Chamber of Commerce which led to the arrest of E. A. Ringold, city tax collector and assessor, was endorsed last night by the directors of the chamber after a discussion that lasted for more than an hour.

The motion, taken from the minutes of the meeting as made by Edward Maher and seconded by Dr. W. C. Palmer, was that "the report of the audit committee be accepted and its action approved and the committee continue the work as it sees fit." After the discussion which followed the endorsement was made unanimous.

Complaint Indictment. As explained this morning, the action of swearing out the complaint against Ringold by H. S. Cole, A. Davenport and E. J. Barnes, charging him with embezzlement and altering tax receipts, for which he is now under bond to the total amount of $5,000, was not the action of the Chamber of Commerce but was the action of individuals.

The audit committee from the Chamber of Commerce is composed of H. S. Cole, ex-officio; E. J. Barnes, Dr. W. C. Palmer and R. H. Hodges. This committee was acting jointly with a committee from the Rotary club.

This joint committee first asked that it be allowed to have the books of the city audited at the expense of the two organizations. Following the report of this audit the city commission was requested to have a thorough audit made of the city's books. This second audit led to the charges being preferred against Ringold.

Directors Present. Directors of the Chamber of Commerce who were present at the meeting were H. S. Cole, president; F. D. Bostaph, W. E. Burk, C. C. Chenoweth, A. Davenport, M. H. Hagaman, R. D. Lincoln, Edward R. Maher, J. E. Milford, J. B. Owens, Dr. W. C. Palmer, E. B. Ried, M. H. Smith, R. C. Stockman. The remaining directors, E. J. Barnes and Dr. R. H. Hodges, were out of the city.

PERFUMED LETTERS FOR BUSINESS MEN

LONDON, Aug. 19.—Some clever business men are using scented notepaper to make sure that their communications will reach the proprietors of large establishments whose patronage they seek. It might be entirely confidential.

"LITTLE MARIE" MADE RICHES BY SELLING PEANUTS

International News Service.
NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 19.—It was learned that Mrs. Dominica Zazzali, keeper of a fruit and peanut stand in Newark for thirty-seven years, who died recently, left property worth $185,000. Tax officials in Newark verified her ownership of forty tenement buildings.

Mrs. Zazzali was a well-known character, and persons who passed her stand during her business hours, which were from 5 a. m. until midnight, often noticed her counting her peanuts, instead of weighing them. She, however, was not a miser and was never known to call for the rent, but would wait until her tenants brought her the money.

In the last seventeen years Mrs. Zazzali had only raised her rents once, and then the increase was only $1. Children in her neighborhood were always glad to see her, for she had a nickel or a dime for everyone less than ten years old.

COMMUNITY CENTER APPROVED

AUSTIN, Aug. 19.—Favorable reports have been made to President R. E. Vinson of the university of Texas and to John A. Lomax, secretary of the ex-students association, on the proposition of establishing a community center especially designed to meet the social and group needs of the students of the university.

James E. Pearce, associated professor of anthropology in the university, and Dr. Charles W. Ramsdell made investigation of the plan as it has been put into effect at the University of Michigan. At that school, the only one known in the country to have carried out the idea on so complete a scale, the students' center, erected and equipped at a cost of a million and a quarter dollars, has solved the distressing problems arising from a scattered student body and the unwholesome social conditions.

SEEK SUFFRAGE IN JAPAN

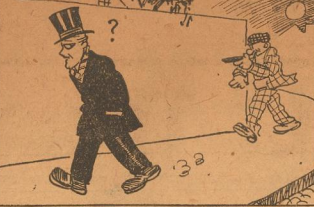

TOKYO, Aug. 19.—Advocates of universal suffrage in Japan have not abandoned the struggle and are frequently holding mass meetings in behalf of the project. The speakers denounce the government for turning against the will of the people, who they assert, demand an immediate general franchise.

The house of representatives was dissolved early this year following an attempt of the opposition party to introduce a general franchise bill. At a subsequent election the Seiyukai or government party obtained a clear majority.

Flirting With Fame

Emma Goldman

(Tomorrow—Champ Clark.)

By LARRY SMITS

NOTE—This is the tenth of a series of articles calculated to give more or less intimate side lights on the personalities of the great and near-great. Each article presents the impressions and observations of a newspaper reporter in the presence of the booted, spurred and belted—likewise the hooted, sturred and pelted—Editor.

A woman too deadly in earnest to be an inconsiderable personality, and too meteoric in the flights to which her dream took her to be normal was Emma Goldman when I met her first as a student in 1911. Later I came on her again, in Chicago, and again the quality of serious determination that she displayed set her apart from the group of radicals which was always about her and who impressed the observer either as frauds, notoriety seekers or idlers, curious for a new sensation.

By outward appearance an obscure school ma'am, dowdy in dress, plain in appearance, rather quiet in speech, but with a firmness that could be developed to sway impressionable students, or hair-brained radicals. From behind the glasses she wore, however, came the glance that rested briefly on the person looked at, passed through him and on to strange distances that only the visionary understands.

It is the look found in fanatic religionists, in men who play hazardous games for big stakes, in most people whose moves are dominated and dynamited by a terrific idea.

Despite that general outward mein, but in accord with that occasional glance, a turgid spirit worked within her, and in her lectures, many of which led to her arrest, she would reach a high emotional pitch. I heard her talk but once, then on Sex and Art, an erotic discourse having little to do with her political creed, or lack of it, and only spiced here and there with dashes of the doctrine which moved her in her strange travels.

It was with a feeling of bewilderment that I first looked on the woman accused of having incited the Haymarket riots and by some to have caused the death of one of best-beloved of presidents. She looked too much like so many women one might see at a state teachers' convention.

A serious interview with her, a fragment or two of the lecture which University of Wisconsin students heard and once or twice that gaze into far and weird distances made me change my idea.

Her emotional reactions were so intense that news of the illness of a friend would cause her to go without food for two or three days.

She was so deadly in earnest; so throbbing with the belief that anarchy was the salvation of humanity; so untiring in her preaching of it, when the police permitted, that a reporter could not meet her without regretting that a more worthy cause had not gained her as an apostle.

BELIEVES H. C. OF L. NOW ON DOWN GRADE

International News Service.
CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—That old H. C. L. is now on the down grade is the belief expressed by Professor C. S. Duncan, of Boston, formerly professor of political economy at the University of Chicago.

"In my opinion, the peak of the cost of living was reached in June of this year, and, from now on, I think we will witness a gradual downward tendency in prices," declared Professor Duncan, who is chief investigator of the National Industrial Commerce board.

Statistics collected under his supervision have been used by employers and labor organizations as a basis for settling wage disputes, it is claimed.

"If the railroads and the brotherhoods accept the recent railway wage awards and the men are satisfied, the increased efficiency of the railroads will offset the increase in rates," declared Professor Duncan when asked whether he thought the recent increase in railroad freight and passenger rates would tend to a further increase price and thus prevent a downward movement.

GRAYSON CROPS DAMAGED

DENISON, Aug. 19.—Rain and the cloudy weather have damaged the Grayson county cotton crop during the past two weeks, local agriculturists declare.

Under heavy skies and nourished by a heavy rainfall the boll weevil has thrived and the local cotton as a result is said by farmers to have been reduced at least two per cent.

Galloways Gallop Over Those Resorters Third In Row, 7-1

OFF TO CISCO. Those galloping Galloways are gone today, to open a five-game match with the Cisco Scouts at Cisco. One game will be played, and inasmuch as Lefty Adkins was used to give the Resorters their final beating, Chet Boyer will open today. Double headers Friday and Saturday will wind it up and then the Nitros are back on the home lot, opening Sunday, probably with two games. There are five games to be played with the Eagles Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. These next six days will be busy. Then Mineral Wells again, at Mineral Wells!

As we watched the Nitros drub the Resorters yesterday, 7 to 1, making a clean sweep of the series, a bird nearby pondered to this effect: "How have those cuckoo kept at the top?" And no one had the answer. Another question that might be asked is, "What has kept those Nitros down?" And the answer is: "They have always been a bumbling club, but they have never before had the shortstop they wanted, never before been playing with such sweet union, never before have been able to depend on the pinch poke, never have counted on getting the breaks."

Now They're Started. They had everything yesterday, and didn't need the breaks. With that spirit, and zip, team-play and pitching, with the hits they wanted, there is no comparison between them and the Resorters. It's the Nitros to win, place and show, with the Phitos nowhere. This is no prediction that the second half gonfalon will float from our flag pole, but it is a simple statement that all that can keep the Nitros from stepping out in front is the slackening from the clippity-clip gait they are going.

Resorters' Only One. But one play marred the game, from the Nitro standpoint. In the seventh, when the visitors amassed their only mark, an overplus of eagerness on the part of Tom Lovelace was responsible for the lone run. Byers opened with a single, Knight poked out to Mooney. Dooley hit briskly to right and Tom came in to play it on the short hop. His idea was to hold Byers at second. Instead, the ball eluded him entirely and sought the far outfield. Byers scored. Had Lovelace played it safely, Byers might have been held at second anyway, what with Tom's rifle arm, and Johnson and Stidell's outers would have ended it scorelessly.

Resorters Aces. Red Toner and Johnson, who can be depended on to lose a good decisive game for the Resorters almost any day, divided another defeat yesterday. They had the same sort of aromatic support as was accorded them before. Everyone took a turn at chucking it about, recklessly. Even Dooley, who plays a creditable game as door-tender when he's at himself, dropped an easy throw from Knight. It was poor baseball they played. And it looked worse by comparison with the Nitro stuff.

Thank You Kindly. They did with two in the seventh— gifts, Ezell had whiffed when Jim rolled to second and beat it. Scholz threw him to second. Tate sent a tap toward third and defeated that also. But Meade, now first-bussing in place of Dooley, let it slide out of his mitt and Jim scored. Tate drew up on third. The play was a squeeze and though Jack York's butt was only a few feet wide and short of the slab, Tate was over the plate.

DEMPESEY AND BRENNAN SIGN UP FOR BATTLE

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—(Special)—The Dempsey-Brennan contract for a bout to determine the heavyweight championship of the world provides that the two battlers shall meet in the town which before September 10 offers the most alluring financial inducements. Here are the articles of agreement, as signed by the respective managers of Dempsey and Brennan: "These articles of agreement entered into this day, August 11, 1920, by and between Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight champion, party of the first part, and K. O. Bill Brennan, party of the second part, do hereby bind the party of the first part and the party of the second part to box—rounds under Marquis of Queensbury rules or the rules and regulations of the city and state in which said contest shall be staged. "Jack Dempsey, party of the first part, and K. O. Bill Brennan, party of the second part, do hereby agree to box before the club or promoters offering the best inducements for said contest. The said contest shall be staged before Jan. 21, 1921. These articles of agreement are subject to amendment and are entered into temporarily to give promoters a chance to bid for the said contest. It is further agreed that should the said contest be awarded to a New York club promoter, the bout shall be the first contest in which the party of the first part, Jack Dempsey, shall appear under the provisions of the Walker law. It is further agreed that bids shall be open thirty days from this day and date. "Signed and sealed this day, August 11, 1920. JACK KEARNS, for Dempsey. LEO P. FLYNN, for K. O. Brennan."

declared that he is in possession of several bids for the bout, but added that he did not feel justified in making any of them public until other promoters had had a chance to get in their bids. Tex O'Rourke, matchmaker of the International Sporting club, was among those present when the articles were signed. Whether Tex was on hand to make an offer or not was not divulged, but it is certain that the international will be in the field for the bout. Also it is equally certain that this club will receive a great deal of consideration from the respective managers. The new club has fully demonstrated its capability to handle a big contest, and if Governor Smith appoints a commission and a license committee in time for the bout, it is almost a foregone conclusion that the International Sporting club's maiden bout in this city will be the Dempsey-Brennan bout.

NITRO NOTES. Fanette Virginia Huffman may claim some credit for the Nitro victory. Before the game she presented the boys with a major league cake, with white frosting, and pink and green dewdaws on it, and a sugar inscription, "Ranger Baseball Club—1920," with the card "Compliments and best wishes for a successful road trip." If they make the road trip with the eclat that decorated their work here, they are entitled to the whole Blue Front bakery. And the radiolite front door key.

After no umps Tuesday, we had a pair yesterday. Markley worked behind the pan and Wakefield on the bases. Mark handed Clapp a couple of rough ones on strikes and they had some heated words. Like this, say: Charlie: Are you troubled with astigmatism? Mark: To the bench, you. C: (Aside) When they get too old to lay bricks, they start robbing ball-players. M: Back to the water keg, windy. C: For a dime I'd smear you, but I never hit a blind man in my life. M: Chase yourself. C: So long, sightless. M: M'm'm. Ham Patterson, owner of Dallas Marines, was here to see the you made cannot be granted. Now to the second class. Your lack of obedience to parents, grown brothers or sisters, other relatives or strangers signifies a discovery on your part that the person whom in your dream you refused to obey is not worthy of being obeyed.

Man's first disobedience, and the fruit Of that forbidden tree, whose mortal taste Brought death into the world, and all our woes.

Man in this case is not a matter of sex, but means "inner" male or female. Such a dream means one of two things. In the first case, it signifies black ingratitude on your part, cruelty, almost brutal disregard of the other's rights.

Hunting Bargains in Ranger

Bargains discovered in trips through Ranger shops and department stores are here presented briefly, for the benefit of Times readers. If any of the articles described meets your needs, you may learn the shop where it may be purchased by calling the Times, telephone 224, and giving the paragraph which tells of your shopping editor the number of the paragraph which tells of your particular bargain.

I walked in a shop this morning just as they were opening a box of those new Spanish girdles and I imagine it was with just this sort of an affair around her waist that the pretty Spanish girls do the fandango the novel writers tell us about. They are made of silk about eight inches wide cut on the bias and finished at the ends with handsome silk tassels. There are dark blue and black ones but of course the ones that look real Spanish are of lively colors. These sashes drape easily and gracefully and are just the thing for the long-waisted dresses which are so good this season. If you are making your last winter's dress do, or fashioning a new one for that matter, one of these girdles will add much charm and style to your frock.

A handsome afternoon or after 6 o'clock dress is a combination of black charmeuse and georgette. The long waist is of georgette, cut on straight lines with round neck and three-quarter sleeves and beaded, front and back, in large designs with bugle beads. A single strand of larger beads is the girdle. The skirt is of charmeuse with a long tunic draped in graceful folds on each side. When you look at this dress you can just see yourself in it at a pretty party or dance with lots of people looking at your dress and thinking how charming you look.

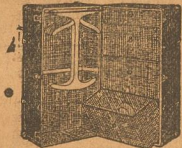

One of the fascinating new street dresses being displayed is of navy blue tricotine. The fashionable long waist is embroidered in an acorn design in Chinese blue and orange. The skirt is accordion plaited with a narrow fold of the material embroidered to match the waist stitched down each side, pannier effect. This frock is different looking with a style all its own.

IRISH CONSTABLES QUIT

DUBLIN, Aug. 18.—Resignation from the ranks of the Royal British Constabulary continue to increase and are now about two hundred a month. Recruits to take the places of the men who quit are now mostly men from England, ex-service men and others attracted by the pay of three pounds, ten shillings a week. Formerly the men came from the Irish family class. Part of the resignations are attributed to the constant "dread" in which the police are forced to live in anxious apprehension of attack. The recruits from across the channel and soldiers specially detached for police duty are nicknamed the "Black and Tans"
