TRUNK MURDER VICTIM KNOWN TO RANGER MAN

Mrs. Katherine Leroy Had Half Brother at Lacassa.

Mrs. Katherine Jackson Leroy, whose mutilated body was found in a trunk which had been expressed from Detroit to New York City, had a half brother who worked near Lacassa, in Stephens county several months last winter...

Mrs. Leroy's maiden name was Katherine Lou Fondren. Her father, Mammont Fondren, died when she was six or seven years old and later her mother married Alfred Vaughn, a farmer...

Mrs. Leroy married K. M. Jackson, a farmer of Sturgis, Mr. Cooper is well acquainted with the Jackson family, whom he characterized as "nice folks."

The last time Mr. Cooper saw the ill-fated girl was a little over two years ago, on the occasion of a visit to Mississippi. This was before she married Jackson.

Police have instituted a nation-wide search for the slayer of Mrs. Leroy and numerous arrests have been made, but so far no definite clue leading to the discovery of her slayer has been uncovered.

THE TRUNK MURDER

HARRY JUST ESCAPED A SURE 'NUF FUNERAL

(By International News Service) WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 2.—Buried in a sand pile, in a wooden box, four-years-old Harry Hoffman narrowly escaped death. The lad and a number of playmates were playing "funeral." Little Harry was the "corpse."

Harry was nailed in a box, which his playmates dragged to a sandpile. Then the youngsters made merry as they heaped sand upon the "casket."

The noise of the children attracted Mrs. J. Warnick, who went to the sandpile to find out what the little folk were doing.

Scoping the sand from the box, she tore off the lid and found little Harry unconscious.

The lad was soon revived however.

League of Nations Will Register and Publish Treaties

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Sir James Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the League of Nations, has just notified the members of the League that an office for the registration and publication of treaties has been set up in accordance with the terms of the memorandum approved by the council of the league at its meeting in Rome in May.

"Article 18 of the covenant of the League of Nations, reads: 'Every treaty or international engagement entered into hereafter by any member of the league shall be forthwith registered with the secretary-general and shall as soon as possible be published by him. No such treaty or international engagement shall be binding until registered.'

"And the council of the League of Nations declared in its memorandum of May 19, 1920: 'Publicity has for a long time been considered as a source of moral strength in the administration of national law. It should equally strengthen the laws and engagements which exist between nations. It will promote causes for distrust and conflict. Publicity alone will enable the League of Nations to extend a moral sanction to the contractual obligations of its members. It will, moreover, contribute to the formation of a clear and indisputable system of international law.'

"A treaty will have legal existence after it has been presented for registration by the parties concerned, to whom a certificate of registration will be delivered.

"In addition, in a second register a page will be reserved for each treaty. All relevant information will be entered therein: signatures and ratification by the parties and if necessary, subsequent accessions, or withdrawals.

"Certified extracts from this register may be delivered to states, tribunals or individuals concerned.

"The treaties will not only be registered, but also published. They will appear in a special section of the official journal of the League of Nations, through which they may become known to all.

"Moreover, the council of the League of Nations, actuated by the spirit of Article 18, has authorized the secretary-general to register and to publish treaties concluded between countries not members of the league, should they request it. The League of Nations thus hopes to realize, within the limits of possibility, the system of open international engagements."

Can Georges Carpentier defeat Jack Dempsey?

James J. Corbett, conqueror of John L. Sullivan, the greatest of his generation, Willie Lewis, for years the idol of the American ring, Jack McAuliffe, the world's undefeated lightweight champion, and Joe Jeannette all agree that the idol of France has more than a Chinaman's chance of capturing the world's heavy-weight crown from Dempsey.

They arrived at that decision after giving Georges the critical once-over at his two first ring appearances after his arrival in this country to star in "The Wonder Man," the Robertson-Cole Super-Special, which is coming to the Opera House.

Lewis, who ought to know something about it, having given Carpentier the most sensational fight of his career, does not stop at discussing the possibilities of the outcome of a Carpentier-Dempsey meeting. He declares with positive assurance that Carpentier will knock out Dempsey and he is willing to bet money on his hope.

He points out that the French boxer was fighting Klaus, Papke, Dixie Kid and Jeanette when he was in his teens. With the wealth of ring experience he has gained in fourteen years of fighting and his natural speed and ability, Carpentier should beat Dempsey, Lewis says.

And listen to McAuliffe: "Don't forget that when Dempsey faces Carpentier he is going to look the fastest fighter of the generation squarely in the eye. Carpentier makes the fastest fighter look slow. And with his speed he carries a wallop that is a haymaker. When he hits 'em he hits 'em hard. What's more Georges is a fast thinker. I think he's causing Dempsey worry right now."

After watching Carpentier fight four fast rounds in the "movies" last night the writer is forced to come to the same conclusion. It is easy to understand why they call Georges "the idol of France" after seeing him go through his paces both as a fighter and as an actor. Georges is a perfect picture. As a writer said recently, he has more boxing truly a manly art of self-defense than Carpentier's boxing is about as artistic a treat as the writer has had in many a day, and the visitor from France apparently packs a wicked wallop.

But what impressed the writer most was Carpentier's physique. Although he seems slight in his street clothes, he looks altogether different when he is stripped. His massive legs and magnificent back and arm muscles dissipate the illusion of slightness and show the man as he really is, a compact, swift-moving, sure-hitting fighting machine. And, after all, he is not much smaller than Dempsey. The measurements accompanying this article show that:

CARPENTIER	DEMPSEY

Majestic Theatre Opens With 'Pan' Vodevil Sept. 1st

The Majestic theater on Rusk street is nearly completed and will be opened by its lessors, R. D. Lincoln, T. W. Temples and their associates about September 1, with high circuit vaudeville and first run moving pictures.

Twelve hundred and fifty chairs have been received for the new play house and will be installed in the next few days. The scenery for the stage is now being hung.

The building is about 65 by 100 feet on the ground floor. Above is a balcony that will seat several hundred people. The walls are twenty-seven feet high in the rear and twenty-two feet in front. Decorations are in cream colors, relieved by small red designs.

When the show is in operation an orchestra of several pieces will be employed.

The two upper stories of the building will be used as a hotel.

Truck Service to Shamrock Plunge Starting Today

Truck service to Shamrock park will start this afternoon, under the park management, and a small truck, with fourteen or fifteen passengers capacity, will make three trips hourly from Main and Austin streets to the amusement park and swimming place. A charge of ten cents will be made each way. The trips will be made on the even hour, at twenty minutes after and twenty minutes to the hour.

The eight-block walk from the central part of the city to Shamrock park and the exorbitant rates charged by the service car drivers has kept many persons from visiting the park regularly.

THE MILITARY MILL STONES.

Why Americans in general do not like army life will be explained in part when a general courtmartial convenes at Galveston.

A captain in the National Guard is dead—killed by a sentry's bullet. The sentry in the guardhouse for firing the shot which killed the captain. He would have been in the guardhouse if he had not fired the shot.

The circumstances of the killing have not been published, but it is probably the result of orders which rigidly fixed the limits of the sentry's initiative.

Private Tyler was acting under these general orders without qualification, he had no option but to shoot. Military discipline held him to the exact letter of the law.

It is an unfortunate occurrence. It is hard on Captain Robertson to die in the prime of life. It is hard on Private Tyler to be incarcerated and tried for a crime which it is probable that he did not commit.

JOHN-A-DREAMS

LXXXI. DREAMS OF MELANCHOLY

Quite often does it happen that in our dreams we have the feeling of being sad, not because some particularly depressing dream vision makes us so, but because it is an emotional dream which engages our minds and, whether we remember its development or not, the feeling of sadness not only remains but is predominant in our recollection.

Do not think that they always portend real sadness. On the contrary: Take for instance the dream in which music or singing produces a feeling of depression.

"I can suck melancholy out of a song," says Shakespeare, and thereby he meant the quiet contemplation which may be called melancholy, yet is really only a form of cheerfulness.

Mostly such dreams are the forerunners of imaginary ills: A mere commotion of the mind, over-charged With fear and sorrow; first begot in the brain.

Do not, then, be alarmed, neither at the dream nor at the thought of apprehension which will come to you in the succeeding waking hours, or in the inclination to look upon small troubles as though they were great misfortunes.

"These pleasures Melancholy give, And I with thee choose to live."

However, there is one such dream which forebodes lasting and miserable care. It is the vision which takes you into nature's realm when it seems as if everything you see, water clouds, mountains and fields were overcast with a mantle of sorrow.

Over the twilight groves and dusky caves, Long-sounding aisles, and intermingled graves, Black Melancholy sits, and around her throws A death-like silence and dread repose.

Her gloomy presence saddens all the scene, Shades every flower and darkens every green; Deepens the murmur of the falling floods, And breathes a browner horror on the woods.

Such visions must not be confounded with those which show nature, no matter in what mood, without the accompanying feeling of soul-sadness. Each is in a class by itself.

A most fortunate dream, one followed by deep unfathomable pensiveness which, appearing like sadness, is really the highest ecstasy of silent love, is one in which the dreamer, without being unhap-

EFFICIENT HOUSEKEEPING

A CHILD'S BIRTHDAY PARTY THAT COSTS THREE DOLLARS.

"I have saved three dollars," writes a reader of this column who signs herself "Working Mother," especially for my little girl's birthday, which comes the last of August. She is nine years old and has never had a birthday party, so I am going to spend this money on a party instead of on a present.

"I am very angry," cried the Hunter. "I went to my garden and found that my cabbage leaves were nearly all gone. I know who did it and if I catch them out anywhere, I'll kill them sure."

"Pray tell me who the thief might be?" said Tinker Bob coolly. "Don't you know? Well, the thief is that King Rabbit that lives here in the Forest," said the Hunter. "And if I catch him out anywhere I'll fill his hide full of shot." The Hunter was very angry.

"Don't you remember when you tried to shoot him once before and he stood perfectly still but you could not hit him?" the King laughed. "Yes I remember about that, but I have a better gun now and it won't be good for him to come out and stand up now for I am in practice, and he'll be a dead Rabbit. But that isn't all I missed from my store house."

"Do tell me what else you missed from your food supply," said Tinker. "Missed!" said the Hunter. "Someone has been carrying off my potatoes, and it will not be well for me to see him either."

"Who do you think is guilty of carrying off your potatoes?" "I think that Woodchuck that lives near the oak tree at the Forest edge is the one that has been helping himself to my potatoes."

"But you are not sure about that," said Tinker Bob, "and I'm sure that you're very wrong about it, for Mr. Woodchuck never eats potatoes."

"Just then about a hundred yards away, Jack the Rabbit stood up on his hind feet looking the Hunter right in the face. "Bang, Bang," the Hunter fired all of his shells—but Jack stood there unmoved and unharmed. Tomorrow—The Hunter and the King py, yet seems unable to shake off a feeling of thoughtfulness which keeps her lips sealed for hours after the dream vision has passed, though she is again in the full noon-light of everyday life. This is the emotion-significant of Pale Melancholy, still, retired.

With eyes upraised like one inspired; And from her wild sequestered sear. In notes by distance made more sweet. Poured out in mellow thoughts her per- sive soul.

To see others sad, without there being specific reasons for their melancholy, is a sign of weighty events which make all concerned more thoughtful than they have been in many months. To see one person steeped in apparently sad thoughts is a sign of mistrust, a bad sign, because the canker of suspicion which is growing in his or her heart may be justified by the dreamer's actions.

In the next chapter I will tell you of Dreams of Games.

HOT ENOUGH.

Replying to a million jays, my dulcet voice I hereby raise, and admit—though not with glee—that it is hot enough for me. I meet these jays at every turn; then watch me sizzle, sear and burn, and they behold a wilted bird reduced to streams of melted lard, and they inquire, the whole blamed crew, "Well, is it hot enough for you? And I assure them as I flee that it is hot enough for me. I've always been a bear for heat; I don't suppose you'll ever meet a gent so madly fond of sweat, and sunstrokes as my one best bet. Death Valley is my native place, and on that desert's burning face I used to play, when but a child, with rattlesnakes and all things wild. And there I learned to love the heat, and look upon it as a treat. And in the stoke-hold of a ship I shoveled coal one ocean trip, and gloried in the ardent heat, as I danced around on smoking feet. But I admit, and I allow, I've had enough of warmth just now. I do it hoping that the jays who weave around me all my days will can that query, moulty-blue: "Well, is it hot enough for you?"

LITTLE BENNY'S NOTE BOOK

I was setting on our front steps watching the fellows play base ball in the street, me not getting in on account of expecting to hear our supper bell ring any minute, and all of a sudden Skinny Martin yelled, Cheese it, cheese it.

Meaning Flatfoot, the Cop, turning around the corner and starting to wawk down looking mad, and the fellows all stopped playing and ran a mile a minute, me jest keeping on setting there thinking, I aint going to run, he cant do anything to me; I wasent even playing how can he do anything to me?

And I kepp on setting there and Flatfoot kepp on getting nearer and neerer and I kepp on getting nervisser and nervisser thinking, O well, I wasent in it, Im innocent, wat rite have I got to worry?

Which just then Flatfoot stopped going past and made a grab at me and cawt a hold of the back of my blouse, saying, Ive got you this time, you dont need to think you can put anything over on me by setting there like a statue in the park.

WY, wats the matter, wats the matter, wat did I do, I wasent in it, wats the matter? I sed, and Flatfoot sed, You was in it, because I seen you in it, you come with me.

And he pulled me off of the steps and started to take me to the patrol box, me saying, Hay wats the matter, I was setting there all the time, you can ask anybody if I wasent, certeny I was, wats the matter?

You can tell that wats the matter stuff to the judge, sed Flatfoot. And he took me all the way to the patrol box, me feeling worse and worse and wishing more and more I had ran too, and Flatfoot sed, Well, Ill leave you go this time if you promise never to play ball in the street again.

Which I did, being easier to promise than to tell him how innocent I was all over again, and he left me go. Proving no matter how innocent you are, you're lucky if you dont haif to prove it.

WOMEN TRAVELERS CANT RIDE BOOTS OF SHIPPING BOARD

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 2.—Travel in the Levant has become so difficult that hotels in nearly all the larger cities are crowded with persons waiting for steamers and railway accommodations. Strikes in Bulgaria, Serbia and Italy, together with the lack of through trains and the impossibility of getting checked baggage through because of theft, have forced travelers to rely chiefly on steamers to French ports. The steamer lines have also been badly disorganized by the labor troubles and most ships are days behind their schedules.

Although the United States shipping board has many ships into Constantinople and the other large Near East ports, it has no regular passenger sailings, and women are not permitted to travel on most shipping board boats unless they are in government service. Consequently Americans have great difficulty in getting through sailings to America. Major E. E. Booth, who was formerly with the shipping board in Paris, has been transferred to Constantinople as director of shipping board affairs in the near east and is endeavoring to get changes effected which will make travel easier to and from America.

F. C. Tobey, representing the Harriman line, which is about to establish sailings to the black sea, was in Constantinople recently and said that it is likely that line will establish monthly passenger sailings from New York to the Levant.

Dents can be smoothed out of automobile fenders with a few tools consisting chiefly of a clamp and a number of padded blocks and rollers.

RUBE BENTON NOW A PROUD FATHER

Rube Benton with his one-day-old daughter. Rube Benton, pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, is a proud father. It's a girl. This was a surprise for the Bentons, and they had no name picked for her. Her weight at birth was nine pounds six ounces.

RECOVERY ON WAY IN WAR-DEVASTATED REGIONS OF FRANCE

Several phases of Germany's failure to fulfill treaty requirements to France were cited by M. Loucheur. He said that instead of the minimum delivery of one and two-third million tons of coal monthly, France had received in seven months only an average of 671,300 tons.

PARIS, Aug. 2.—"France is on the way to recovery," Eugene Schneider, the ironmaster, told the delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce at its dedicatory session in the Sorbonne. He supported his optimism with figures on the reconstruction of the devastated regions. These showed that 2,412 factories employing 235 persons were operating in the invaded departments. This, however, was compared to 3,363 factories employing 608,000 before the war.

He gave two general indications of growing industrial force. First, the diminishing excess of imports over exports with a marked increase in the exportation of manufactured articles, and, second, the increasing excess in various taxes over the receipts estimated by the government.

Reclamation of the war-torn farm land, necessary to reduce the country's onerous importations on foodstuffs, was said by M. Loucheur to be encouraging. He said the devastated regions would produce two-thirds of a normal crop this year.

Many Ranger Firms Put Branch Houses in Town of Leeray

Special to The Times.
LEERAY, Aug. 2.—Several of the leading merchants of Ranger, recognizing the importance of Leeray as an important business point are opening branch houses there. The California Fruit Co., of Rusk street is erecting a large two-story frame house on the corner of Main and Fourth streets and will carry a full line of all kinds of the best produce and fresh fruits. The White Dry Goods Co., is also building a large store building and will carry a full line of dry goods and ready-to-wear. Their building is located on Commerce street east of the townsite office. Davis and Luckwald, Ranger jewelers, are also building on Commerce street and will carry a full line of jewelry and musical instruments. Jones-Cox Hardware company already has a large store in operation filled with hardware and furniture, also located on Commerce street. The Wagner Supply company of Ranger, has opened a supply house and is doing a good business. The Lincoln Tank company, of Ranger has purchased a large piece of trackage and is putting in a branch house. The E. J. Barnes Lumber company, of Ranger, has one of the largest lumber yards in Leeray. Ranger business men are wide awake to good openings for business. "Another good well came in today," is almost a daily saying in Leeray. There are more than 150 wells drilling in sight of Leeray and new rigs are being erected daily. Building continues to go on as fast as material can be supplied, though some trouble is being experienced in getting brick and cement for the brick buildings in the course of construction. Deeray will soon be a cement sidewalk city. Many are putting down 14 foot sidewalks in front of their places of business. The Cisco & Northeastern railroad went under the supervision of the Texas Railway Commission on Aug. 1. It is now operating trains as far as Parks Camp and expects to be in Breckenridge in the next few weeks. On account of the heavy traffic, two freight trains have to be run almost every day to take care of it. The passenger business requires two passenger coaches.

SPANISH BREEDERS' DISAPPROVE MEETING MEAT COMPETITION

By Associated Press
MADRID, Aug. 2.—Livestock breeders in Spain have begun a campaign against the suggested introduction of extensive quantities of cold-storage meat from Argentina and Australia. They forest with the rapidly increasing number of refrigerating vessels available the probability of importations on a large scale from the two countries named, and with the realization of this prospect the reduction to vanishing point of the huge profits they have been making ever since the outbreak of hostilities in 1914. Spain is not a great consumer of meat, the average consumption attaining only approximately forty-five pounds per capita annually. For this the consumer pays dearly, probably even more than the French, for the herds have been diminished to a large extent by exportations at high profits during the war. Designed by a Chicago structural engineer, a new type of roof fore buildings is supported by steel trusses that can be shipped in sections and erected by unskilled labor. Experiments with a mixture of equal parts of benzol and alcohol as automobile fuel showed it to have an efficiency as compared with gasoline of 12.5 to 15.

RANGER PULMOTOR CALLED TOO LATE TO SAVE DROWNED GIRL

Miss Helen Smith, 18 years old, was drowned and three others girls came near drowning Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock in the Clear Forks of the Brazos near Ellisville. The girls were in bathing and strayed into deep water. A bystander saved three of the girls, but Miss Smith was drowned before she could be rescued. In answer to a call, E. F. Adair, ambulance driver for John E. Milford Undertaking company, went to Ellisville with a pulmotor Saturday night, but he arrived too late to be of service. Miss Smith's home was in Ellisville.

Punchboard Plan Certain Winner if Police Don't Kick

A system was figured out Saturday night to "beat a punch board." Only one factor can keep this particular system from winning. The police may "crab" the plan. The system is to find a moment when those in charge of the board have their backs turned, then lift the board with the prizes intact. Saturday night this plan, in one case, was followed successfully. At Cannon's place, a confectionery on Rusk street, a punch board holding $30 in gold coins was stolen while Mrs. Cannon, who was in charge of the shop, was busy serving the wants of several patrons.

SWEDISH WORKMEN RETURN FROM SOVIET RUSSIA

By Associated Press
STOCKHOLM, Aug. 2.—One hundred and forty-eight Swedes, including thirty women and children, have arrived here by steamship from Russia. Workmen in the party were unanimous in saying that it is impossible to exist in Soviet Russia. Despite the extravagantly high wages paid they said they were insufficient to purchase necessary food and clothing. The arrivals included a number of Swedish Bolshevik metal workers who, some months ago, set out for Russia amidst the cheers of their friends. Some of their countrymen, they said, had been detained in Russia against their will. The only food ration now distributed, the men said, is half a pound of bread. Fish, horsemeat, sugar, butter, tea and other food can only be obtained, they said, through illegitimate trading at incredible prices. A daily income of a thousand rubles, one returned worker declared, would not be sufficient to avert hunger. Most industries have practically ceased, it was said, the great Petrograd works having closed months ago after vain attempts to keep it going. Chancellor Oscar Lundberg, semi-official representative of Sweden, said all foreign legations have been raided and looted and looked like "stables" after having been in possession of Bolshevik soldiers or sailors. All of the members of the party said they were ill as a result of the privations they had experienced.

H. S. COLE RETURNS FROM TRIP EAST AND NORTH

H. S. Cole, president of the Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary club, returned yesterday from a three-week's vacation spent in visiting his family in Atlanta, Ga., and visiting in Cleveland and Chicago. While away Mr. Cole made arrangements for the removal of his family to Ranger and expects their arrival about September 1. H. A. Cole, who was in charge of the Cole Brothers interests in Renner while his brother was away returned last night to his home in Marshall.

Dumb Man Talks Trade With Fakir With Honest Graft

The street fakir stands by the curb on the corner of Main and Rusk streets and indulges in sleight of hand to attract a crowd. Before him on a table are several curious toys and a number of boxes containing unguents. For fourteen hours a day he stands by the curb shouting and performing his tricks and selling the medicated plaster to all who will buy. At night he goes to his bed in the cheapest rooming house in town and counts up his profits and finds that he has made 4.67. "Ah, that was a good day's work," he tells his pal, a beggar who is deaf and dumb sixteen hours out of the twenty-four. "A fine day's work," replies the deaf and dumb man. "I only made $34.21 to-day."

"Yes, but you didn't talk them into giving you anything," remarked the street fakir. "Anybody could take a paper around and stick it in front of a man's nose. They's no art in that. All you need is the signature of a fake doctor that can't easy be located." "You have to be pretty careful though," observed the deaf and dumb man. "I like to get arrested in Eastland last week. I was all tired out from walking and I set down in the shade of an unfinished building and went to sleep and I must a talked in my sleep. When I woke up there was a crowd of blokes gathered around and they looked ugly. I had to leave." "Well, the true art is in talkin' them into buyin' what you've got to sell," remarked the street fakir. "It's a rule of mine never to sell anything for over fifty cents. I was offered a job yesterday selling stock for the Clean Sweep broom factory and I could make $50 a day easy, but the shares is 10 each and so I wouldn't take the job. I'll wait a few months till the shares go down to twenty-nine cents apiece and then I'll take a bunch of them and clean up. It don't make no difference in this state whether you've got a factory or ever aim to have a factory or not, you can sell stock just the same. Most of the stock sold in these parts ain't got anything back of it but the multiplication table. "The main reason I never fool with stocks is that they are too easy to sell. I'd rather sell a man a glass ball magnifying glass that won't magnify and a box of bunion plaster that wouldn't harm no bunion in the world, chargin' fifty cents for one and throwing in the other free. It don't make no difference which one you throw in." "Well, I get awful tired of not sayin' anything," sighed the deaf and dumb man. "Sometimes I would give ten dollars just to get up and holler and whoop like a wild Indian. But I can't afford to do that way. Business is an awful trial, any way you take it." The street fakir lapsed into silence and the deaf and dumb man began humming a little ballad to see if he had forgotten how.

CHURCH A LUXURY.
(By International News Service)
LONDON, Aug. 2.—A church is a "luxury," by ruling of the Northwood Council. Catholics applied for permission to build a church and the Council ruled that labor was needed for house building. They then applied for permission to erect a corrugated iron structure and the Council ruled this out also under the "luxury building" ban provided under the housing scheme.

As an addition to the pocket billiard table a Pennsylvania has patented an electrical device which, when a ball enters a pocket, starts a hand spinning on a dial, the number at which the hand stops being added to a player's score. The recent collapse of a wooden bridge in Pennsylvania under a heavy motor truck was attributed to the fact that the lower timbers of the bridge had been sheathed in tin, which prevented their decay from being seen.
