MRS. HAMON NOT OKLAHOMA G.O.P. COMMITTEEMAN

James Harris of Waggoner to Fill Place Made Vacant by Shooting.

International News Service, OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 21.—James Harris of Waggoner is today Republican national committeeman from Oklahoma, succeeding Jake L. Hamon, multi-mil-lionaire who recently died in Ardmore from the effects of a gunshot wound.

Pending the official confirmation of his appointment by the national committee, that is expected to follow the convening of that body in the course of the next year, Harris will act as chairman of the state committee and virtually national

The nomination came after a turbulent meeting here. Part of the leaders were aligned on the side of Mrs. Hamon, widew of the late Jake L. Hamon, after a few friends of the latter stated that they thought it befitting that Mrs. Hamon be appointed to fill her husband's place United States Senator-elect J. W. Harreld wired his support of Mr. Harris, just before the balloting took place, thus assering the election of Mr. Harris by a vote of 49 to Mrs. Hamon's 27.

RESPONSE PROVES RANGER FOLKS WANT TREES; ANSWER FROM NURSERY TOMORROW

A substantial response came Monday to the proposal in Sunday's Times that a quantity of trees would be ordered and sold to citizens at the cost of handling. Most of these applica-tions asked for the selections named in the Times as being favored by old-timers—maple and black locust—but requests were received for several other varieties, including sycamore, mulberry, pecan and lilac, and some for fruit trees.

However, it will be impossible for the Times to fill all or-ders of every description, as we are not nursery agents. The object of the Times is to promote the planting of trees along the streets, as other beautifications will naturally follow their own accord, and any demand will be gladly catered to by houses in that business. But the Times' purpose is to encourage the first step in home beautifying. Accordingly, it must restrict its aid in securing trees to one or two varieties, and a telegram was sent to the nur-sery today relative to the prop-By tomorrow an answer should be at hand stating positively what trees are at hand and the exact price at which they can be furnished, with other details. However, in keeping with the advice oqured, black locust and silver leaf maple, as representing the majority opinion will be the trees selected, if they can be obtained. Among those who called at the Times yesterday was Super-intendent Sheppard of the Gates Oil company, who wants some maple trees to further decorate his home in Hillcrest addition. Mr. Sheppard's old home is in Detroit, and he says any kind of a maple will look good to him. He was enthusiastic for the campaign as being a long step toward making Ranger a town that will attract the families of those who follow the oil game in this and neighboring pools. He believes that building and beautification can attract families here who otherwise will continue to remain in Fort Worth and other towns, and in proof of this cites his own case. Mr. Sheppard's fam-ily resided in Fort Worth for two years, until one day he got to rambling around and discov-ered that Ranger had real homes occupied by real people. That encouraged him to build and move his family here, and he said such a trip would convince many other men in the same line of business, and the planting of trees will make these homes easier to find.

Remember, if the nursery proves able to furnish the trees at the prices and under the con-ditions previously related, the Times will back its belief that the people of Ranger want trees, by ordering a shipment to be sold at cost to the citizens. But because all civic experts indorse uniformity in street trees, it will order only two kinds, which probably will be black locust and silver leaf maple. If you prefer other varieties, they can be obtained from the nurseries, but if you agree with the popular judgment, and want to plant these varieties, fill in the cou-pon below and mail to the Times.

OLDEN, Dec. 21.—The Guarantee

State Bank building was badly wrecked this morning at 8 o'clock and its cashier, Mr. Harris badly burned when an explosion occurred immediately after he had opened the vault door to begin the day's business. Mr. Harris has not yet made a statement but the only logical explanation that is offered is that gas had accumulated in the vault and exploded when he ignited a match to see his way about. This explanation is weakened by the fact that the vault contains no gas lines. However, one does pass underneath the vault but is buried under a quantity of concrete.

BADLY BURNED The condition of the cashier is not considered serious, though he was badly burned about the face and body. Evidence of the force of the explosion is borne out by the cracked walls of the brick building in which the bank is housed. The glass of many of the windows is also shattered and lies scattered about over the floor and the ground out-How the injured man escaped with his life is a marvel that has not been explained since he was in the storm center of the explosion.

Constance Talmadge says that she would rather take the part of a poor working girl than portray any other character, because at one time she expected to become a stenographer herself.

"I would have studied stenography had it not been for Norma's entrance into motion pictures," she said. "Then the picture bug hit me. I got into the habit of accompanying my sister to the studio and one day had a chance to earn five dollars as an extra girl. I was very glad, as I believe in girls earning their own living. That is why I am so sympathetic towards the working girl, for lefel that I am one of them at heart. Constance Talmadge is poorer from a standpoint of dollars and cents than eve before as the heroine in "Good References," her latest First National starring vehicle, which will be shown at the Temple theatre today.

As Mary Wayne, Connie finds herself in Journeys' End, a boarding house where the dear old landlady, with a sixtytour bust, makes a wild clutch for ing her fair young boarder's net capital

Worse than that, she tries to get a job veals. but all the boys behind the mahogany desks are stony-hearted about young ladies who want to be stenographers and who have no references.

How Mary Wayne breaks into a run of good luck that begins with her pal being taken sick, leaving a job open for someone to fill and giving Mary an opportunity to borrow a set of references, is cleverly portrayed by Miss Talmadge in her own whimsical and inimitable

Markets Made Marriage

When a man marries be quickly discovers the need of innumerable things be had never thought of before. And the butcher, the baker and the cabinet-maker have a new home to supply.

It would be interesting to know how many merchants, if any, have ascertained the number of marriage licenses granted in this city and county during the year.

This information can be used to advantage in sending sales forging ahead because practically each license represents the establishment of a new home in the merchant's immediate territory.

Right here is a fact overlooked

Some merchants say: "How could it pay us to keep on repeating the story of our goods and service?"

If they could reach every pos sible customer with one advertise-ment, and it people didn't forget, and if competitors weren't con-stantly bidding for business, there might be no object in "keeping everlastingly at it.'

But because every possible customer does not read every adver-tisement, and because people do forget, and because competitors are constantly pushing for business, repetition is necessary.

And because a score of new homes are coming into existence every day, continuous advertising brings increased results.

Perhaps some people knew of your goods or your store five or ten years ago. Since then new generations have come into the market The boy of today is the man who will sign the checks tomorrow.
