LAMB.

When Is Woman Most Highly Honored by Man?

Is the truest expression of a man's love for a woman an offer to bestow his name and fortune upon her? It is a question which has caused considerable argument, due to a doubt raised by Dr. W. Griffith in his latest production for the screen, in which the hero renounces all effort to win the girl of his choice, that she may go to a man he deems more worthy of her.

In the production, "The Idol Dancer," which will be the attraction at the Lamb theatre, beginning today the renunciation is one of the dramatic thrills of a love story as beautiful and as wild as the South Sea Isle on which the scenes are laid.

LIBERTY.

Wild Animal Serial a Thriller.—Natives and Animals of African Jungle.

The most weird, strange and certainly the most thrillingly sensational screen offering of recent years is soon to burst upon the excitement-loving public in the form of a fifteen-episode serial production, "The Lost City," a story of the African jungle and its never-ceasing thrills and adventures, featuring the beautiful and daring Juanita Hansen, who is supported by George Chesebro and a big cast of clever screen talent, will begin its run at the Liberty theater tomorrow.

LONE STAR.

"Mrs. Temple's Telegram" Has Bryant Washburn As Star.

Amusement seekers will welcome the news that the delicious humor of the old stage farce, "Mrs. Temple's Telegram," has been transferred to the screen by Elmer Harris and that Bryant Washburn will appear in the photoplay version at the Lone Star today.

The plot concerns the misadventures of Temple, when he failed to come home one night and invented a friend called Brown in order to explain his absence to Mr. Temple. But Brown and his wife, and the pal whom Temple induced to pose as Brown injected themselves into the mess, and there was a riotous mess, out of which Temple extricated himself in a most novel manner.

Wanda Hawley is the leading woman in this delightful comedy, and Walter Hiers and Sylvia Ashton are among the favorites who help along the fun. James Cruze directed the picture, which is a Paramount Areraft.

Chas. L. Buttomer Made Fire Chief by Commissioners

Charles L. Buttomer has been appointed chief of the fire department by the city commission. Buttomer has been acting chief since the resignation of Ed S. Smith several years ago. Chief Buttomer is 26 years of age, and said this morning that he was practically reared in a fire hall.

For four years he was regularly employed by the fire department at Kansas City. Before coming to Ranger he was located in St. Louis.

Chief Buttomer began work in the Ranger department as a fireman on May 1. On the second day of his employment he was promoted to the position of captain. When Smith resigned he became acting chief. He has under him ten regular firemen and five volunteers. The volunteers only work when there is a serious fire.

The city commission in meeting yesterday also approved the paving certificates for the paving of the business section. They were signed by the mayor and city secretary.

The certificates are made payable to the McKenzie Construction company and are payable in three yearly installments. They are issued against the property abutting the paved streets.

NEGROES PLEAD GUILTY, PAY FINES THIS MORNING

Twenty negroes who were arrested several days ago and charged with disturbing the peace, reported this morning for trial in the police court.

Because the city would have had to obtain forty-two witnesses who had signed a petition complaining of the negroes, the matter was compromised by City Attorney Dudley and R. M. Todd, who appeared in behalf of the defendants.

Todd agreed to pleading guilty to ten of the cases if the others would be dismissed. The proposal was accepted. The total fines were $177.

At the time of the arrests a dance hall between Austin and Marston streets on Cypress street was raided at the direction of Pat Singleton, assistant chief of police, and thirty negro men and women were taken. Ten paid fines when taken to the police station. The remainder were released upon R. M. Todd making bond for their appearance.

The raid was brought about through complaints of citizens living in that neighborhood.

Alex G. Armstrong of Pecos, who has been here for the past several days, left yesterday for Waco.

TINY TOUSLE HEADS BUILD TOLL BRIDGE; REAP MANY NICKELS

Two tiny children, a tousle-haired boy and a curly-haired girl of undoubted Scotch ancestry, have been operating a "toll bridge" at a point on the creek which runs past the Hamon & Kell railroad offices. A cut made by railroad engineers to carry flood waters left the old path across the creek at this point hard to negotiate.

The two children, five and seven years old, built a bridge of planks two days ago, and since that time have been collecting a levy from pedestrians who use the path.

It was easy enough to step around the bridge or over it, or to cross the creek at a place a little farther up. But when two small children were demanding pay for a public improvement, who would be miserably enough to refuse them a nickel.

This morning a catastrophe overtook the bridge. It was washed down stream on the freshet. Since lumber is scarce and high, it will probably not be rebuilt without recourse to a bond issue.

District Court

EASTLAND, May 19.—The case of W. S. Moore vs. Dr. J. V. Jenkins was placed on trial before a jury. This case was begun eight years ago. A jury on the first trial awarded a verdict for the defendant. The case was carried to the court of civil appeals and there the verdict was affirmed. The case was then carried to the supreme court on writ of error. Here the court reversed the case and remanded it to this court for a new trial.

The plaintiff is trying to have set aside a sale and deed by a sheriff to defendant on the theory that he had an agreement with the plaintiff that only the defendant would appear and bid at the sale. The plaintiff claims that an agreement was made with the defendant and that the defendant violated the agreement. Hence this suit is brought to set aside the sale and the sheriff's deed.

The armory at the University of Illinois is claimed to have the largest, unobstructed floor space in the world. It is 400 feet long and 225 feet wide.

BURNING TARPAULIN DISTURBS FIREMEN'S REST

The covering over the cement being used by the paving company on Marston street became ignited in some unknown manner about midnight last night. The fire department was called and found the fire department covering smouldering in several places.

It was removed from the cement and extinguished.

JOHN-A-DREAMS

XXII. THE MESSAGES OF HORROR DREAMS.

Yesterday I warned you against attaching any importance to so-called "nightmares," which, not real dreams, are caused by mental or physical distress and have no slumber-meaning. Today I shall speak of horror-dreams, which emanate from your sub-conscious fore-knowledge of the future and which are unfulfilling messengers of events to come. It is, of course, impossible to put into words the innumerable shapes which such premonitions may assume, or to recite the thousands of episodes and incidents in which they may be molded. I can only mention a few, hint at others and offer to interpret any of these visions which may disturb your peace of mind—

From the vastly deep
From the threatening clouds,
There came to my sleep
Clad in ghastly shrouds,
Belted with despair,
Serpents in their hair,
Shapes of fear and fright
To disturb my night—

Distorted humans, cripples, goblins, creatures of frightful aspect, violent noises, all these may figure in such dreams. Often the sleeper believes himself chased pillar to post. Now and then he sees dead faces or headless bodies. I have heard of one dream where a row of naked corpses, without heads, sat in judgment upon the frightened dreamer and like a man accused of crime he was brought before these ghastly apparitions to hear his fate. Experience and research have taught me that not the nature of the apparition, nor its action, is the fact to be interpreted, but rather the conduct of the dreamer. If he stands powerless, rooted to the ground with nameless fear, awaiting what he believes to be terrible judgment, while the horrid image doth unfix his hair,

And makes his seated heart knock at his ribs
Against the use of nature . . .

then the sign is evil and portends grave danger and the likelihood of misfortune that can not be warded off. If it seem, to him that the frightful shape finally grasps and holds him, even though there is no physical touch, the message is complete and all struggle against fate will be in vain. But if, at the crucial moment, some manner of escape is suggested by the dream, even though the nature of this deliverance is so indistinct as to make full understanding impossible, then the period of peril will be short and no lasting consequences need be feared. If, on the other hand, the sleeper seems to struggle bravely against the attack, or if he advances boldly, or if he at least makes an attempt at defense, then will the danger of misfortune not only pass, but the impending dark hour will be followed by great triumph and success.

'Tis well, my soul shakes off its load of care;
'Tis only the obscure is terrible.
Imagination frames events unknown.
In wild fantastic shapes of hideous ruin.

And what it fears creates.
If the dreamer cries out, this means that there will be helpful friends at his side in the hour of his need. If he is silent, or unable to produce a sound, he may resign himself to the fact that, when he asks for their aid those whom he considers friends, will turn from him. If the dream, after having been vivid and intelligible, suddenly fades into a meaningless blur, with only occasional flashes of coherent episodes, he will, before long, indulge in needless worry and anxiety, only to find that he has been duped by groundless fear. If he dreams that, as a result of his experience, his hair has turned white, he will receive wonderful, happy news. If it seems to him that others, besides himself are involved in the danger, then the sign refers to these others and in no wise to him.

In the next chapter I will tell you of Rosh and Skin.

John-A-Dreams will be glad to interpret dream experiences sent to the Editor of the Daily Times, by its readers. No replies will, however, be given privately and no fee will at any time be asked or accepted. It is distinctly understood that there can be no guarantee when such questions will be answered, though every effort will be made to satisfy inquirers within three or four weeks.

A SIMPLE HOME DINNER.

- Kettle Roast
- Mashed Potato
- Spiced Beet Salad
- Peas
- Coffee
- Orange Cake

Kettle Roast—Five pounds of beef, one small onion, two cups of water, one bay leaf, a small bottle of tomato catsup. Take for this roast a piece cut from the rump. Brown the onion in a small piece of suet, put in the meat, turning until all sides are nicely browned. Add two cups of water and boil slowly until half done, then add the bay leaf and the bottle of catsup; boil until tender and serve on a meat platter with the gravy poured over it.

Spiced Beet Salad—Let sliced cold cooked beets stand over night in vinegar then in the morning, put them over the fire with the vinegar, a short piece of stick cinnamon, one clove, and a pinch of mace; allow to boil for five minutes, then set aside to cool in the liquid. When cold, drain and serve on lettuce with French dressing.

Orange Cake—Cream three-fourths cup of butter, add slowly two cups granulated sugar and cream together. Sift together two teaspoons baking powder and three cups pastry flour; add one tablespoon of this flour to the creamed butter and sugar, then add four unbeaten eggs, one at a time, putting in one tablespoon flour before breaking in each egg, and continue adding the flour alternately with one cup of milk. Flavor with one teaspoon of orange extract. Bake in two pans in moderate oven about thirty-five minutes—or until the cake shrinks slightly from the edges of the pan and is firm to the touch. Frost with the following frosting:

Orange Frosting for Orange Cake—Mix together the yolk of one egg and one tablespoon of water; add one-half teaspoon orange extract and enough confectioners' sugar to make it thick, enough to spread.

Another good Orange Cake is the following:

Old Dutch Orange Cake—Two cups granulated sugar, two and one-half cups flour, one-half cup cold water, two teaspoons baking powder, yolk of five eggs and whites of four well beaten, pinch of salt, juice and rind of one orange, juice and rind of one lemon. Mix together the sugar, eggs, lemon and orange juices, salt water, and add the flour after it has been sifted with the baking powder. Bake in three layers. Spread the following

Filling for Old Dutch Orange Cake—filling between the layers and on top: Beat the white of one egg to a stiff froth and add the juice of one orange and the juice of one-half a lemon; stir until enough to spread, sweetening to taste with powdered sugar.

BONES OF DECEASED CELESTIALS GO TO CHINA

COLUMBUS, Ohio, May 19.—In accordance with an ancient custom, over 300 boxes of bones of deceased Chinese are being shipped from this country to China for final burial.

Chinese residents here, together with their fellow countrymen in all parts of the United States, are observing the custom which calls for disinterment of their dead brothers every twenty-five years and the sending of the bones to China.

Lee Lock, of Cleveland, head of the Chinese tong in this district, directed the work of opening the graves of ten Celestials here, removing the caskets and preparing the skeletons for shipment.

Hong Ye, Pittsburgh tea merchant, one of the six members to perform the service in this country, prepared the bones for overseas shipment by removing all flesh, placing them in little air-tight zinc boxes and then sealing them.

Upon arriving at Hongkong the boxes will be distributed throughout China to their final resting places.

a life-long ambition at last—to wear a New York Giants uniform. As coach and assistant manager of the Giants, Evers is in his element. He intends to wind up his baseball career with the New York club and it is whispered along Broadway that he may some day be handed the managerial reins, for McGraw is planning to retire from the ranks of manager and devote his time to the business end of baseball.

Back in the old days when the Cubs and Giants staged their hottest battles for the National league flag Evers was a Cub. As a Cub he fought the Giants tooth and nail, and it was none other than the Trojan who was responsible for the loss of the pennant by New York in the waning season of 1908, when he figured in the famous Merkle incident. Though he has always been arrayed against the Giants in the past Evers has long been a sincere admirer of John McGraw and has waited many years for the chance that came to him this spring. That he will make good with the New York club is almost certain. Despite his temperamental characteristics he is an asset to any ball club and there is no denying that he ranks as one of the smartest players in the game today. The signing of Evers put a quietus to rumors that Christy Mathewson was being groomed to take the managerial reins. Matty himself is getting ready to retire from the game, but he will be retained by McGraw as long as he cares to remain with the team, for he is a past master in the art of coaching young pitchers and McGraw will never forget the things he has done for the New York club.

Evers has been playing big league baseball for many years and, with the exception of the seasons of 1918 and part of 1919, his services have always been in demand. In 1918 he was in France for the Knights of Columbus and last year, after signing with the Red Sox, he was asked not to show up in uniform between Barrow and Evers, it is said on by Manager Barrow. The differences good authority, were purely technical and had to do with tactics on the ball field.

The Trojan joined the Chicago Cubs in 1902. He was only a kid and Manager Frank Selee of the Cubs, did not believe he had a chance to win a regular berth. But Evers had both nerve and ability and soon demonstrated his worth. His long and successful record speaks more eloquently than any eulogy that could be written about him. Here is Evers' complete record:

Faith Basis of Healing Power Says Hickson

By MARGERY REX
 Written for International News Service.
NEW YORK, May 19.—Though thronged to its doors, Trinity Chapel was very quiet, the only sound being the low murmur of the organ and a few voices. On the white altar candelabra gleamed and a few flowers were faintly fragrant. A rather short, thick-set, ruddy faced man walked out from the altar to the steps leading down to the main part of the church, where he stopped to speak.

This man in business suit looked very much like a banker or broker. At first glance one would never guess him to be James Moore Hickson, layman, of the Church of England, and healer.

But his voice is inspiring. His presence is reassuring to the ailing who await him. The claim is made that his touch has healed many.

Scores of children, lame, crippled and injured, await him. Many more, rosy cheeked, with no apparent trouble, wait too.

And it is the children that Mr. Hickson meets first of all. They form a long line up to the altar, where the healer lays hands on their little heads, saying a prayer, and whose later a minister, of the church gives them a benediction.

Heavy steel braces are seen on many thin young legs. Many little feet are not feet, for they carry a burden of a shoe with a heel and sole perhaps four or five inches thick, too aid a shrunken leg.

Many cures are said to be effected among children. As Mr. Hickson explains, there is no opposition, conscious or otherwise, in a child's heart, no malice or ill will for fellow beings, and to be cured we must approach the healing power expecting to be cured, believing as a child believes.

"That is what we all need," the healer said. "In the subtle selfishness of today nothing more nor less than the faith of a child is necessary to help us."

"To be able to heal others there must be first of all great faith in God, then desire to help fellow men, and the will to heal. God wants all His children to have perfect health, to be every whit whole."

"Man must be free. In this free country man may get be enchained by the evil in his own heart. We must close every avenue for evil to enter. We must shut out everything but God."

"He always healed. He never left sickness behind Him. But many need spiritual healing, too, and spiritual ill-health is the worst and most oppressing of all."

The gift of healing was first discovered in James Moore Hickson when he was a lad of 14, in England, his birthplace. Another child, a relative, being ill, the young boy laid his hands on him and he was cured. This was repeated with other cases, and Hickson's parents then helped him to give his life to that great work.

Mr. Hickson is the representative in this country of the Christian Healing Mission of England, of which he is the founder. He came to New York in the summer of 1919 and has during the past year traveled all over the United States.

"I have often been asked why I haven't entered the ministry," he said today.

"I feel that I can do more good this way, being footloose and able to travel about the country from city to city giving aid to thousands."

Many have come to see this man with the gift of healing. And the healer has told them that God wants all of His children to have health, that none must look upon sickness or deformity as something sent by God as trial or test.

Perhaps that relieved many sore-hearted ones who had come to hear and be helped. Certainly it explains the sublime smile on the face of one man whose lame child's head had been touched by the healer and upon whose future a blessing had been asked.

Rich and poor come to be healed. A policeman helped another man to carry in a woman made helpless by her fits. Not far behind her in line came another woman, lifted along by her chauffeur and footman.

Here are white-haired aged, and curly-headed youth. White and black mingle, each with faith and the wish to be cured. Many are unable to leave their seats to get to the altar rail. To these, Mr. Hickson, goes, followed by the minister.

Smiles are plentiful here—and many shine through tears.

French Mermaids Begin to Wear 'Trick' Costume

PARIS, May 19.—Whatever the Paris dressmakers put on the backs of evening gowns for the coming summer they have taken away from the backs of the bathing suits. The 1920 season for Deauville and other beach resorts promises some of the most daring models for near mermaids that the sands have ever seen.

One big house is showing a line of one-piece bathing suits that surpassed imagination. The old "V" is inverted. That is, there is a narrow opening at the back of the neck, crossed by a cord. The opening widens down the back, the aperture reaching its greatest width at the waist. To keep the wild, wild waves from washing the whole thing away there are a couple of cross straps. And as a compromise to the dress reformers the fronts of these bathing suits draw closely around the neck. The result will be that the old-time beach fan, looking from a distance, will imagine that a mermaid is emerging from the water whereas she is just entering.

Another season novelty is the painted braid. It will be quite the thing to wear this braid as trimming for dresses. The very chic person, say the dressmakers, will wear braid with the same kind of flowers around her dress, her parasol and even upon her garters.

A few of the big dressmakers continue to show trousers for women, though they are apt to be seen only in mannequins at the races. All this summer's designs are discreetly veiled by black net and then clasped to the ankle by a string of stones.

Heiress 'Pops' the Question to Prince in Record Time

Regina, Sask., May 19.—"Before I had been six weeks in America I received an offer of marriage from a woman reputed to be worth eleven million dollars," said Prince Ion Paleologue, Rumanian commissioner for Canada, a recent visitor here.

"This is a peculiar country," continued the prince. "I had not been in America long when I attended a social function in New York. During the evening a lady approached me, and much to my astonishment told me that I had not only made an impression on her sister, but that I could have her hand in marriage and all her wealth for the mere asking. I may be a prince—that is purely an accident—but I am the most democratic prince in the world. If I had been offered eleven million dollars I might have considered the matter. But they don't do things that way. When a European prince marries an American girl of wealth he simply becomes an ornament in the family. He is no more wealthy than he was before," he declared. "I am not having any, and as an actual matter of fact I married a girl who had not a cent."

YOUTH MAY LOSE ARM THROUGH ACT OF CHIVALRY

BOSTON, May 19.—An act of chivalry in giving up his seat to a woman is likely to cost William E. Egan, seventeen years old, of Brookline, his arm.

Just as an Ipswich street car was rounding the curve at Lansdowne street young Egan arose. The car lurched and he was thrown violently against the window, his arm going through the glass.

HENRY II OF FRANCE FIRST INTRODUCED USE OF SILKEN HOSE

PARIS, May 19.—Husbands have no right to complain about the rising cost of silk stockings, for it was a man who introduced the style that has emptied many a man's pocket-book.

The source of all these troubles was King Henry II, according to J. Baissac, French historical writer. Henry set the fashion by appearing at his sister's wedding to the Duke of Savoie with a pair that aroused the envy of all the guests. After that, to be in the real "set" you just had to have at least a couple pair of real silks.

Under Louis XIV, the dames of the court began wearing fancy silk stockings, embroidered with flowers. Then Mme. de Montespan, a famous beauty, appeared with a pair embellished in silver and gold, with a clockwork device on each knee. Eventually different "sets" at the court adopted different colors. The idea spread to London, where Mrs. Montague organized the famous literary circle known as the "Blue Stocking Club," from which the expression "blue stockings" was derived.
