NO-HEADED INVESTIGATION LOOMS AHEAD

WRANGLING IN STATE CIRCLES IS SPREADING

Highway Contracts and Fight on C. I. A. President Attracting Present Attention.

By WORTH S. RAY. Before a special committee appointed for that purpose, L. W. Kemp, former secretary of the Texas branch of the Association of General Contractors, was permitted to air his grievances by detailing his charges against the Texas state highway commission. The A. G. C. met in general convention in Dallas during the week and Kemp wired them requesting that he be heard on the subject, which led to the appointment of the committee. He was heard according to program by a special committee and in their report on the subject the special committee set the seal of its approval on what Kemp had done in starting a probe of the matters involving around the alleged facts he had divulged some time ago to the press of the state.

But the special committee, while approving Kemp's conduct in making the so-called "disclosures" public, failed to censure the Texas organization for taking Kemp's job away from him, so Kemp appears to have made a martyr out of himself in the cause of regular methods of letting road work by the state highway commission.

Injunction at Houston. In the trial of the injunction suit before Judge Monteith at Houston, the contract let by the state highway commission to a certain South Texas firm of contractors at 32 cents per square yard, by the judgment of the court, after the hearing of the facts in the case, condemned in this, that the authorities were enjoined for the time being from proceeding further in the matter. The attorney general was present at the trial of the case, as he said, representing the people of the state, the principal sensation aired at the hearing was the alleged check for $2,500 given to a man by the name of Maddox.

The main question was just what this $2,500 check paid for. There was evidence adduced tending to show that it was an alleged contribution to the Ferguson campaign by the firm of contractors or a member of said firm, although the check was dated in April of this year, long after the campaign for governor was over. There was other evidence that it was payment for "promotion expenses" in connection with certain contracts either sought or obtained by the firm of contractors in question. Since the attorney general was present in court and asked some pertinent questions in regard to the check, it is presumed, with reason, that there will be further disclosures on this subject in some form or other in the near future.

Supplemental Contract. The "supplemental contract" existing between the Houston firm and the state highway commission was introduced in evidence, and the testimony of the various so-called experts and engineers tended to show that the 32 cents per yard highway commission had agreed to pay for the Harris County work was considerably more than what the work would have cost the county as compared with other contracts that had been let by the commissioners court in the past. This, of course, was disputed by the contractors who were getting the 32 cents per yard. In the course of the hearing the attorney general applied the word "unconscionable" to the contract under dispute.

There was also some evidence tending to show that there was no competition in the letting of this contract and the practice of letting road contracts without competitive bids was denounced by the plaintiffs and their attorneys. The grand jury of Travis County met the first of the week and Judge Hamilton instructed the body to investigate all state departments. It is believed that the action of the state highway commission in letting road contracts will be looked into by the grand jury before it adjourns.

Big Guns Behind Probe. It is generally believed that some very prominent political leaders of the state are encouraging a probe into the actions of the highway commission and that they have communicated with the attorney general in regard to the matter and have laid before him certain alleged information pertaining to the methods they believe to have been employed in handling the funds set aside for the purpose of building and maintaining the highways of this state. All kinds of predictions are being made by people who are keeping up with these facts as to the final outcome, and the taxpayers are interested beyond a doubt.

WINTRY BLASTS IMPLY COMING OF JACK FROST

Middle and North Atlantic States Get Rain, Snow and Sleet.

By United Press. Winter stretched his long hand out of the north last night and shook a warning finger throughout the middle and North Atlantic states. Rain, snow and sleet swept over Chicago and an icy breath was blown over cities, hamlets and barns from the Dakotas eastward.

Temperatures ranging from freezing to 40 degrees were reported in most of the states and snow and frost blanketed a large part of the country. New York City was spanked by a near gale, as thousands of workers went to their tasks in heavy overcoats.

Washington suffered the coldest October 10 in 20 years. The temperature dropped 20 degrees during the night. Snow was falling early this morning in many Central Pennsylvania cities.

Unidentified Man and Woman Shot to Death

HAMILTON, Texas, Oct. 10.—An attempt to identify the bodies of a man and woman found in their camp, shot to death, 20 miles north of here, was being made today. A billiard hearing the name of A. N. Baxter, Mason, Texas, was found in the dead man's pocket. The name of a brother was also given.

John Ables, farmer, found the bodies yesterday. Jewelry and money were found on the couple. A discharged revolver was found nearby. Buzzards had begun to collect about the bodies.

Navy Officials Surprised By Mrs. Lansdowne's Evidence

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—The naval court of inquiry investigating the Shenandoah disaster stood at recess today and will continue its work Monday when the first of the technical experts will be heard.

Secretary of the Navy Wilbur has declined to make any comments concerning the charges by Mrs. Zachary Lansdowne, widow of the dead commander of the airship, who accused high navy officials of sending the Shenandoah into the middle-west over the protest of her husband. Although her testimony came as a surprise to the entire navy department, officials are silent, declining even to discuss the case.

The court of inquiry has indicated it will not investigate further the statement of Mrs. Lansdowne, although it is believed Secretary Wilbur will make a statement concerning it later.

"Wolf of LaSalle Street" Goes To Jail

CHICAGO, Oct. 10.—John W. Worthington, the "Wolf of LaSalle street," is on the way to Atlanta federal prison, where he will be placed behind the bars to serve two years for using the mails to defraud. Despite Worthington's protestations that he is at the point of death, Federal Judge Cliffe insisted the order for imprisonment be carried out, so last evening the aged millionaire was bundled on a train and taken to Atlanta.

Worthington has a fortune estimated at $2,000,000.

CITIZENS STATE BANK OF RANGER IS CHARTERED

Will Open for Business Monday. Capital of $75,000 Subscribed by Local Citizens.

O. D. DILLINGHAM President Citizens State Bank.

The Citizens State Bank of Ranger was granted a charter yesterday by the state banking board and will open for business in Ranger in the old Guaranty Bank building at Main and Austin streets, at 9 o'clock Monday morning. The bank was granted charter No. 1,476, according to a message received from Austin.

Officers of the Citizens State Bank will be: O. D. Dillingham, president; W. W. Housewright, active vice president; Hall Walker, cashier; and these three with M. R. Newnam and W. D. Conway will compose the board of directors.

According to a survey of business in Ranger made at the instance of the state bank commissioner, Ranger is entitled to have two banks, that the city is sufficiently large and the business of such importance as justifies two banks.

The Citizens State Bank of Ranger will have a capital of $75,000, all of which was subscribed and has been paid in by local people. It was the desire of the organizers of the bank that it should be a Ranger proposition strictly and they adhered to this purpose.

The directors of the bank are well known business people of Ranger. Mr. Dillingham is head of the Banner Ice Cream company and one of the largest owners of real property in the city. Mr. Housewright, although a resident of the city less than two years, has been remarkably successful as a banker. He came to Ranger from Oklahoma, where he was equally successful in banking. Mr. Walker, besides being a large property holder in Ranger, has also proved himself a successful banker. Mr. Newnam is head of the Oilfield Motor company, owns a large amount of property and is one of the best known business men in Eastland County. Mr. Conway has been engaged in business here as a drilling contractor and oil operator for a number of years and ranks high as a business man.

Labor Plans Boycott to End Child Labor

American Federation Proposes Nationwide Effort to Improve Working Conditions.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 10.—A nationwide boycott of non-union products to eliminate child labor and obtain better working conditions will be launched by the American Federation of Labor. Behind the boycott will be the purchasing power of 4,600,000 members of the organization, estimated at eight billion dollars annually. The help of the women will be sought to make the boycott effective.

It is said that in one year such a boycott would drive out of business all who continued to employ child labor or impose undue hardships on labor.

COLUMBUS DAY IS SET APART FOR MEMORIAL

Ranger Council Knights of Columbus Pays Tribute to Great Discoverer.

Observance of October 11th as "Columbus Day," designated as a holiday in Texas and many other states, is never overlooked by the Ranger Council No. 2123, Knights of Columbus. In recognition of the event, occurring this year on Sunday, the council has prepared the following tribute to the memory of the great discoverer:

It is eminently proper that Columbus Day, October 11, receive the recognition accorded to it by the Lone Star state in setting his day aside as a holiday. We rightly honor the memory of those who are distinguished in history for deeds of valor and heroism. Among the famous figures in the hall of fame, Christopher Columbus rightly occupies a conspicuous place for to him the honor is conceded of having discovered America on October the eleventh, 1492.

Dauntless Spirit. "Every true American is now filled with reverence at the mention of the name of Christopher Columbus. That dauntless adventurer, whose project to brave the "Unknown Deep" and cross the "Sea of Darkness," finally winning the approval of the Spanish sovereigns, was not to be discouraged in the face of difficulties. Even though the royal command had been read for the preparation of the caravels, no responsive chord was struck in the popular imagination. Even felons who had been offered their pardon as the reward of their services in his fleet felt that life, even behind the bars, was preferable to certain death upon that mysterious ocean, which the most experienced navigators believed to be a boundless and tempestuous expanse, without any opposite shores, embracing a zone so torrid that all living things must die under its heat. But the resistless energy of Columbus, which had subdued the court, did not brook the opposition of the populace, and there finally sailed forth the most momentous expedition in history, whose results were to be felt while humanity endured.

"Four hundred and thirty-three years ago, with the first voyage of Columbus across the ocean, began the new and greatest epic of human effort. What combat of conquerors brave, what struggle of mythological titans could equal this contest of one man against the learning of the ages, the teaching of experience, the judgment of the wise, the warning of the past? Reason, religion, research had alike condemned his theories. Council after council of learned men unanimously frowned upon his claims and laughed him to scorn. Yet he—of mean birth, of limited education, without resources or means—only defied them all, but upon the very steps of the royal throne, in the hour of his direst distress, dictated like a conqueror the terms for the services which he, a pauper, professed his ability to perform.

The spectacle in itself is magnificent as an example of self-belief or self-reliance. It becomes sublime, however, when viewed as the steady course of one whose confidence in himself was based upon his self-imposed mission to spread the light of Christianity among the heathen. If ever mortal man upon this earth gave living proof of the faith within him, that man was Christopher Columbus. In fulfillment of his hopes, he successfully planted the cross of Christianity on the island of San Salvador, October 11, 1492.

Life of Preparation. "His whole life as we read it now, was a steady and progressive preparation for his chosen work." For (Continued on page six)

RANGER JUNIOR HIGH SCHOOL IS PROPOSED

Superintendent Holloway Believes It Is Due at Early Period.

That Ranger will have a junior high school at an early date, occupying the building now occupied by central school and that school be housed in other quarters, was a prediction made by Superintendent S. R. Holloway before 45 teachers of the Ranger independent school district assembled in their first monthly institute in the High school building Saturday morning.

Arrangements were completed at Saturday's session for dividing the teaching body into three sections, which will function in future monthly institutes: The high school, grammar school and elementary school sections. Committees were named to arrange programs for the several sections and supervise the various institute functions as follows: Library committee, J. P. Massey, Miss Belle Jean Mangum and O. G. Lamar.

High school section, J. Pickett, Miss Gladys Pinson and Miss Kathryn Cochran.

Grammar school committee, H. L. Baskin, F. C. Lewis and Mrs. Mae Healer.

Elementary school committee, Mrs. Belle Rutledge, Mrs. Rex Outlaw and Miss Myrtle McQuerry.

The topic of apparent paramount interest at Saturday's meeting was the proposed college extension work, which is being arranged to enable something like 20 teachers and a number of others in Ranger not now engaged in teaching to obtain college credits and take the A. B. degree. It developed that Dean Colby Hall, of T. C. U., who is also president of the society for college extension in Texas, has been applied to for this work and, while expressing the reluctance of the association to recognize this method of credits as a substitute for in-residence work, there is a strong probability that the arrangement will be perfected and indications point to a large class in English, history and education, in Ranger trying for the credits. It was stated that at this time a number of Ranger women are taking extension art lessons under the supervision of Columbia University, which, it was indicated, would not materially lessen the demand for work in these other branches.

Superintendent Holloway stressed the system in vogue whereby the schools are made models of civic institutions and governed by rules similar to the city or state. It appears that Ranger students are encouraged to consider their school relations much as the citizen estimates his relation to society, and a rivalry is being instilled among pupils for excellence in various matters such as cleanliness and upkeep of school property, athletics, scholarship and the like, which, in the words of the superintendent, "makes them want to do it," rather than tell them they must and impose such things as a burden. That the system is working in most cases with splendid results, was the general opinion of the teachers.

TEXAS STATE OFFICERS PUT UNDER CLOUD

Grand Jury Instructed and Member of Legislature Desires to Probe Public Servants.

AUSTIN, Oct. 10.—An informal opinion has been expressed by Attorney General Dan Moody that the constitution authorizes only the governor to call a special session to enact specific legislation. The call of Representative A. H. King of Throckmorton County for a special session to convene November 2 would, under this ruling, be unauthorized. Attorney General Moody has not been officially asked for an opinion, but has expressed himself among friends.

SEYMOUR, Texas, Oct. 10.—A further statement was promised in the near future today by A. M. King, representative of the 118th district, upon his call issued for a special session of the thirty-ninth legislature.

King refused to make any statement at this time or to expand upon his former statement, issued under his signature, except to say: "I shall probably have something to say in regard to the proposed session in a few days."

Regarding the third clause of the statement calling for an investigation of all state departments and state institutions and exposure of state officials if any be found derelict in duty he insisted, "the statement means exactly what it says."

No answer was forthcoming to the question as to whether the highway investigation under way at Houston had any weight in his decision to issue the call for a special session, as implied in the clause calling for an investigation.

"The constitution sets forth that a special session may be called only by the governor and may consider only such questions as shall be submitted by the governor," he said. "However, there is no legal restriction placed on the investigating powers of the sessions. The legislature may be summoned for impeachment services by call of the governor; by proclamation of the speaker upon a signed petition of 50 members, or by any member upon a petition carrying signatures of a majority of the house."

It is said King has 80 signatures on his petition or three more than a majority.

He speaks. Satterwhite said he was without definite information relative to the call.

Purpose of Session.

The call issued by Representative King enumerates the following purposes: "First—To amend or repeal a certain law passed by the last legislature changing the rules of evidence and making it more difficult to obtain convictions for law violations."

"Second—To amend or repeal the law known as the 'search and seizure act,' which handicaps peace officers in their efforts to protect society from criminals."

"Third—To investigate all state departments and state institutions to the end that efficient service in public officials may be commended and unworthy ones, if any, may be exposed and punished."

"Fourth—To tighten the prohibition law so that the sale of 'jake,' 'choc,' and other poisonous concoctions may be stopped."

"Fifth—To investigate the abuse, if any, of official powers and prerogatives by state officials."

"Sixth—To exercise the collective wisdom of the thirty-ninth legislature for the welfare of the people of Texas."

Grand Jury To Act. Regarding an investigation of state departments and state officials as the chief incentive of Representative King of Throckmorton county in issuing his call for a special session of the legislature, John W. Hornsby, county attorney of Travis county, today announced that the grand jury was ready and willing to investigate any state office or state officers, and would, beginning next week, receive Mr. King or any other having evidence to present.

County Attorney Hornsby believes a special session of the legislature is not necessary at this time. "The Travis county grand jury is clothed with jurisdiction to investigate state officers and the present body has already been charged along that line," said Hornsby. "The present grand jury is one of the best ever organized in Travis county and if it starts on an investigation it will be conducted thoroughly. If King will come before the grand jury and produce his evidence it would be the quickest route he could take."

TAX PUBLICITY.
Secretary Mellon is determined to abolish the publication of income tax reports. So far it has done no harm, and has furnished much food for thought and valuable information. Of the 25 leading income tax payers it is found that banking has produced eight, automotive industry five, oil, two, mining, coal, tobacco, traction, talking machines, publishing and grain speculation, one each, and miscellaneous three. It is conclusively shown that the present system of tax-exempt securities has made it easy for recipients of gigantic unearned incomes to dodge heavy payments. When the surtax is removed, as it is liable to be, it will see 14 billions from that small tax and add that much to the tax-exempt list. After all the good citizen pays for what he gets in the way of protection and service, and there should be no secrecy about government matters. There is suspicion aplenty without aggravating it.

The rural club girls will stage a style show, wearing dresses and hats made by them and displayed in the short course they recently took at A. & M. college. A social session is planned by the hostesses, and the place of meeting will be announced later. The year-book for the federation will be ready for distribution at this meeting.

ALTAR SOCIETY ANNOUNCEMENT.
The Altar society of St. Rita's church will meet Monday afternoon with Mrs. George Fenger, at her home on Oddie street. At this meeting plans for the bake sale to be held Saturday will be perfected.

RETURNING HOME FROM TULSA.
Every train brings back some of Ranger's oil men who have been in Tulsa for the past two weeks or 10 days, attending the oil men's association. The Prairie Oil & Gas company was very well represented at the Tulsa convention and all report a splendid time. Among those attending were Messrs. E. J. Wiss, C. R. Walts, A. Neil, E. L. McMillen, T. J. Earnest and Frank Champion.

TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB.
A wealth of floral beauty greeted the members of the Twentieth Century club, Friday afternoon, when they were entertained by Mrs. C. R. Walts, at her home in the Prairie camp. Among these flowers, the regal yellow "mam" was predominant and was the key-note of the general color scheme employed in tallies, luncheon appointments and house decorations. There were only two tables at bridge, some of the members being out of the city, but the games were very interesting and resulted in the high honor going to Mrs. Frank Champion and the low honors to Mrs. G. C. Barkley. A two course luncheon following the games was charmingly appointed and served to Messrs. Saunders Gregg, G. C. Barkley, John Thurman, J. P. Champion, E. L. McMillen, William J. Lowe, E. J. Wiss, J. A. Martin.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. E. J. Wiss.

YOUNG MATRONS' BRIDGE CLUB.
Mrs. Charles Conley was hostess to the Young Matrons' Bridge club Friday afternoon, at her home in the Cooper addition. Guests gathered at 1:30 and enjoyed a delightfully appointed two-course luncheon, followed by an afternoon at bridge. Cut flowers were in profuse evidence, and glowing fires and bright lights made one remember only the good cheer within and forget that outside the first howl of winter was asserting its hoarse tones. Mrs. E. E. Crawford made high score and received a dainty piece of lingerie, and Mrs. Frank Branhany made low score and received a prettily embroidered guest towel. Club members and guests present were: Messrs. Howard Gholson, Charles Milliken, H. A. Logsdon, W. R. Bowden, Frank Branhany, E. E. Crawford, J. T. Gallagher, C. C. Craig, J. A. Shackelford, Hall Walker, Roy Jameson and Garvin Chastain.

Mrs. Ed Maher will be hostess to the club at its next meeting.

All members of the Mission band of the Christian church are requested to be present at a meeting on Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, to plan the year's work. This band of workers was organized last Sunday and the following officers were elected for the year:
President, Juanita Hinman; vice president, Hazel Eaves; secretary, Lillian Dunaway; treasurer, Eula May Perry; reporter, George Clay; pianist, Mrs. J. E. Burns; superintendent, Mrs. W. D. Clay.

CENTRAL WARD P.-T. A. MEETING.
The Central Ward P.-T. A. had its meeting in the primary department last week and the program was opened by Mrs. Johnson. Reports were read from the membership committee and were most gratifying, inasmuch as they showed that about $75 had already been collected on their membership drive, and also that the members of the school were interested and ready to co-operate. Mrs. Rutledge's room won the prize for the primary department and Miss Howdeshell's for the intermediate department. At this meeting a third vice president was elected, namely, Mrs. R. M. Schmuck. It was decided to hold Parents Day at least once a month during the school session, but the day was not set. The new school building that this club has as its goal was not forgotten, and came in for its share of plans. It was, on a whole, a very interesting and profitable meeting.

JUNIOR NEW ERA CLUB TO MEET.
The Junior New Era club will meet Monday night at the Gholson hotel at 8 o'clock and all members of the club are asked to make it a point to be present. The club will study "American Literature" this year and other than this work they have planned a number of social functions and get-together meetings that will appeal to all of its members.

Earl Bender & Co.
Arrange For Loans On Eastland Property
Earl Bender, manager of the Earl Bender & Co. insurance business in Eastland, announces the closing of a deal by the terms of which his company is able to loan money on long term contracts and at attractive interest rates on Eastland business, church and residence property.
While it has only been possible to make these loans a short time, Mr. Bender states that they already have a large number of applications, and that a representative of the company, through whom the loans are made, will be in Eastland the latter part of this week for the purpose of making inspections and closing up contracts on such property as is acceptable.
"By availing themselves of the opportunities we are now able to offer, Eastland people who do not have their homes fully paid for or who wish to finance new business residence homes, may effect great savings as there is absolutely no need of anyone sacrificing his home or other property because he might happen to owe a balance on it," Mr. Bender said.

EASTLAND IS VICTOR OVER BRECKENRIDGE
By J. B. NUNN.
The Breckenridge Buckaroos bowed before the Eastland Mavericks Saturday to the tune of 27 to 3. The game was played in Eastland at Connelley park before a large crowd composed of rooters from Breckenridge, Ranger and Eastland, who filled the bleachers and lined the entire field. The day was ideal for football, being cold enough for overcoats and, in spite of the fact that a cold rain fell all the day before, the field was in perfect condition.

Cisco Baptist Association Closes Successful Meeting
Eastland was chosen for the meeting place of the Cisco Baptist association for 1925. The association came to a brilliant close Friday night. Rev. W. H. Johnson, of the First Baptist church, reports that he attended all sessions except Friday's, but on account of being ill he had to miss Friday. However, Dr. Bob Hodges, a member of the board, was there as a local representative from the First Baptist church, and also I. L. Neal. The session closed one of the most successful years' work in its history, taking all things into consideration, they retained their very efficient missionary, J. J. Ponder, with an increase of salary of $600 per year. All debts are paid and there is money in the treasury. Three new churches were added to the association and additions reported in practically every church represented.
The association includes the counties of Stephens, Shackelford and Eastland, as well as a few border counties.

WRANGLING IN STATE CIRCLES IS SPREADING

(Continued from page one.) ing to say so far as can be learned at this time about the Houston case. None of the supposed candidates for governor have had anything to say up to this time publicly in regard to these matters. Of course, the "outs" are closely following every word uttered and every move made by the "ins," but the sharp-eyed bystander fails to catch any comments by the important element that will finally do most of the commenting when the time is ripe for comments. President Blayney's Case. Another little episode that will have some bearing on the political situation of next year is a very small cloud on the horizon at this time, and that is the threatened deposition of President Blayney of the College of Industrial Arts at Denton. It will be remembered that some two or three weeks ago at a meeting of the board of regents of that institution some 5 members of the faculty complained in writing against his policy of Dr. Blayney with respect to the conduct of this focus state college for young ladies. There were no specific charges filed beyond broad general statements that Dr. Blayney was unsuited for the job he was holding.

A majority of the board of regents refused to take any action in the matter, adjourning to meet again at Austin on the 6th of this month. The sudden and unexpected death of Hon. William Capps, husband of one of the members of the board, caused the board to again postpone its adjourned meeting until October 26. At that meeting the complaint of members of the faculty against Dr. Blayney's administration will again be taken up and considered, unless all signs fail.

Chairman Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald, of this board, may not relish the idea of resuming this wrangle. It may grate somewhat on his nervous system. He would prefer, no doubt, and that the politicians let his board of regents strictly alone, but Colonel Fitzgerald is doomed to disappointment. Fifty-five teachers can hire a good lawyer and make a lot of fuss. They may not get Dr. Blayney's job away from him but they can worry a board of regents ragged before the fuss is over. This matter, too, is contributing to the trend of politics. It will be talked about in the next campaign. It may make or break a good school before it is over, also. The school is now in the hands of a good board and it is to be hoped that they will handle this matter with care.

Money Needed for Cattle. Some three or four hundred thousand dollars, according to Governor Ferguson, is needed to pay for cattle slaughtered in the campaign against the hoof and mouth disease in and around Harris County, and she has asked members of the legislature if they would vote to appropriate the money for that purpose at the next session if it is allowed by her on an emergency warrant. Instantly, a certain member of the house from one of the drought stricken counties in Texas declared that Harris County was no more entitled to this money on account of the hoof and mouth disease than his county on account of the drought. That probably sounded good to some of his constituents, smarting, as they are, under the ravages of a rainless season. The members generally seemed favorable towards the payment of the sums needed, however, on the broad ground that the whole state would suffer unless the disease was instantly checked. And so, the grand old state of Texas is saved once more. But the price of beef went up, anyway.

Grand Chancellor Knights of Pythias To Attend Meeting

The Knights of Pythias of this district, which includes the lodges in Eastland and adjoining counties with possibly a few exceptions, will meet in convention with the Eastland lodge Monday night. It is expected there will be a large attendance. Among those who will have part on the program are Mayor Williams of Cisco, Editor Cockrell of Gorman, L. T. Woodall of Breckenridge and Grand Chancellor Max Krauskopf of Pecos. Following is the program: 10 a. m.—Lodge call to order, L. T. Woodall, D. D. G. C. of Breckenridge.

Welcome address, Fred Coleman, Eastland. Response, Mayor Williamson, Cisco. "Our Home," Max Krauskopf, G. C., Pecos. General discussion, good of the order. 1:30 p. m.—"Friendship," J. W. Cockrell, Gorman. "Our Dokeys," L. A. Freeman, G. V., C., Fort Worth. "Our Pythian Goat," John W. Mackey, Breckenridge. Good of the order. Report of all lodges. 7:30 p. m.—Conferring rank of knight. All members and visitors requested to be present.

FOG ON PUGET SOUND CAUSES WATER CASUALTIES

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 10.—Shipping casualty continued today, following 48 hours of the heaviest fog on Puget Sound for years. The ocean-going tug C. Monarch was sunk during the night in a collision with the French steamer Venon off Port Townsend, Wash. The crew of the C. Monarch were taken aboard the French ship. The Admiral Dewey and inter-coastal steamer Texon collided with minor damage done. The Canadian Pacific passenger steamer Kathleen, with 900 passengers aboard, went ashore, but was freed later after some damage was done to the rigging.

Menus for a Family

BY SISTER MARY Breakfast—Stewed prunes, cereal, thin cream, baked omelet with tomatoes, crisp whole toast, milk, coffee. Luncheon—Noodle soup, cottage cheese and carrot sandwiches, baked rice pudding, milk, tea. Dinner—Cream of celery soup, broiled pork chops, candied sweet potatoes, creamed cauliflower, pear salad, lemon jelly cake, graham bread, milk, coffee. Pork chops can be broiled over or under a fire or pan-broiled in a hot iron frying pan over the fire. Always cook pork until "well done" whether it be roasted or broiled. CANDIED SWEET POTATOES. Four medium-sized sweet potatoes, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-3 cup melted butter, 1-4 teaspoon salt, 1 tablespoon lemon juice. Wash sweet potatoes and cook in boiling water for 20 minutes. Drain and peel. Cut in lengthwise and arrange in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle sugar over each half and pour over melted butter and lemon juice. Bake in a slow oven for one hour. A dripping pan is convenient to use for candying the potatoes. Increase the heat for the last few minutes of cooking to color the syrup and potatoes. (Copyright, 1925, NEA Service, Inc.)

Vanderbilt Defeats Texas Longhorns, Score 14 to 6

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 10.—The Texas university Longhorns went down in defeat this afternoon before Vanderbilt, 14 to 6. Early in the second quarter, the Commodores scored when McKibben, Vanderbilt's left tackle, grabbed Wright's fumble of a long punt and sped over the goal. By straight football, the Texans then came within five yards of Vanderbilt's goal line. Rufus King punched the Vanderbilt's line for a lone Longhorn score.

In the fourth quarter, a Vanderbilt lineman broke through and blocked Thompson's kick, recovered by the Texans behind their own goal, thus giving the locals a two-point advantage. Nonplussed in the last few minutes of play by a series of Vanderbilt passes, the Texans allowed Vanderbilt to slip over for another touchdown. Vanderbilt's line withstood the Texans' attempt to smash through time and again.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

BULLDOGS LOSE TO SIMMONS' SECOND TEAM

Score Is 2 to 0. Game Is Played in Deep Mud.

And still there is no real hope on the Ranger Bulldogs. They lost to Simmons college scrubs in a tight game Friday, playing on a field covered with mud in a downpour of rain with the north wind whistling, by a score of 2 to 0, a single touchdown costing them the tie they seemed to deserve. Still all, Ranger fumbled the mud ball (which had a football inside it) the worst. So the score didn't tell such a false story after all.

Very early in the game, before and after Short got put out with a Charlie-horse, the Ranger players seemed to be overawed by their giant opponents, the Ranger players seemed to be over-awed by their giant opponents who outweighed them by an average of 17 pounds to the man, let the Simmons bunch carry the ball into dangerous territory and then, fumbling, let them get the touchdown which counted two. After that they tightened up, held the heavy line, let them in for very few first downs, got a few themselves and reduced it all to a see-saw back and forth with no other score during the three and a fraction quarters.

Nothing but straight football was played. Anything else invariably resulted in failure. Very few punts even got by, the opposing team—either team—easily blocking the daut of mud the punters tried to kick over. End runs, there were practically none. Forward passes, which the few Ranger fans who braved the elements and saw the game hoped to see developed, were tried hardly at all and when they were they were just so much time and distance lost. It was one buck line and all pile up in a heap until sometimes spectators saw 22 long lumps of animated mud and sometimes it all looked like one big lump.

Individual plays of the feature sort were lacking. It was team work from start to finish—heavy team work—nasty, muddy team work—cold, yet, sorry team work. And except for the fact that the Ranger players will have to learn to hold a wet ball a trifle better than they did, nothing in the entire game gave dopsters dope, except the outstanding fact that these Ranger Bulldogs can hold a heavy line on a muddy field and will, no doubt after yesterday's hard lesson, learn to hold the ball too—even though it be a mud ball.

The real feature of the game—the one encouraging feature—was the way members of the pep squad—a number of them—and a number of

WASHINGTON WINS Third Game In World Series

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—W. D. (Young) Stribling of Atlanta, won the referee's decision in a 10-round bout with Sailor Hoffman here this evening. The sailor was no match for the Young Georgian and took one of the worst trouncings of his career. Stribling had the better of at least eight rounds. By United Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10.—Bill McKechnie, manager of the Pirates, will make no protest on the wild baseball game Washington won from the Pirates in the world series here today. He said he would abide by the decision of the umpire.

McKechnie was queried by several persons who asked if he meant to protest to Judge Landis or any American league head over the game, fraught with frequent squabbles over umpire's decisions. Judge Landis was appealed to more than once during the game to compromise differences between players, but refused to take a hand, advising that the umpire's decisions would have to be obeyed.

Texas A. & M. and Sewanee Play Tie Game, Score 6 to 6

By United Press.

DALLAS, Oct. 10.—The Texas Aggies and Sewanee university fought to a draw, 6 to 6, on the State fair gridiron before 7,000 spectators this afternoon. The tallies for A. & M. came early in the second quarter when Denby blocked a Sewanee kick and recovered behind the goal line for a touchdown. Sewanee was unable to score in the first three periods, but in the fourth quarter pushed the ball to the Aggies' two-yard line by two long passes and Mahoney Hit the Line for a Touchdown.

Although Mahoney, Sewanee's back, changed shoes for a drop kick which would have meant victory, his efforts fell short. Hunt of the Aggies likewise failed to kick the winning goal. The game was featured by a mixture of daring plays. Sewanee kept the ball in Aggie territory most of the game, but because of Wilson's long punts was unable to score more than once. Sewanee's numerous failures to win by attempted field goals probably cost them the game.

Prizes Awarded In Various Contests In Observance Fire Prevention Week

Fire prevention week was observed in Ranger in a manner to impress its lessons on young and old. Under the direction of a committee from the Ranger Chamber of Commerce, a committee, consisting of C. E. Madocks, Marvin Collie, C. E. May, Fire Chief Murphy and Wade Swift, visited all the schools and addressed the pupils on the necessity of preparedness against fire by the observance of vigilance and precautionary measures.

A prize of $25 offered by Madocks, Collie and May to the merchant who decorated a show window in the best manner to teach the lesson of fire prevention was awarded to W. E. Davis. The committee on awards, composed of Mrs. Duffer of the 1920 club, Mrs. Buchanan of the Delphians and Mrs. D. L. Jameson of the New Era club, decided the window was the most impressive. The Joseph Dry Goods company, Killingsworth-Cox & Co., J. C. Smith, and the Tharpe Furniture company, also had beautifully decorated windows. Mr. Davis announced he would give the money to the High school pep squad fund.

Marvin Collie gave a prize of $2.50 for the best slogan, which was awarded to J. C. Smith, who displayed the slogan, "To forget is unforgettable."

Another prize of $15, offered the student in a Ranger school writing the best theme on fire prevention, was awarded to Janet Yonker over 19 other contestants.

A prize of $10 for the best fire prevention picture was awarded a picture turned in without the name of the artist, merely containing an address, 918 Oddie street.

40 years,' he said, 'I have been seeking out the secrets of nature, and wherever ship has sailed, there have I voyaged.' Since his fourteenth year, 23 years had been spent on the ocean, and he had fared to Guinea and to Iceland. All the knowledge he had acquired was utilized for the demonstration of his theories. These theories led to the glorious event of 1492, which we are called upon to commemorate on October the eleventh.

"His character won the respect of generations immediately succeeding. For as DeBry quaintly wrote in prefacing his "Voyages," published in 1595, and referring to the portrait of Columbus therein presented, which was by Jan Van Eyck, and in truth the portrait of one possessing such excellences deserves to be seen by all good men, for he was upright and courteous, pure and noble-minded, and an earnest friend of peace and justice."

"This brief but pregnant reference will enable us to see how the all-wise Ruler of the Universe could entrust to Columbus the great cause of the humanity. The cause depending on the discovery of this fair continent was involved in the fortitude, perseverance and spirit of the solitary stranger, already past the prime of life, when the pulse of adventure beats full and high. If sinking beneath the indifference of the great, the sneers of the wise, the enmity of the masses, and the persecution of a host of adversaries, high and low, he had given up the thankless pursuit of his noble vision so far in advance of the times, what a hope for mankind had been blasted. But he did not sink. He shook off his enemies as the lion shakes off the dewdrops from his mane.

"While civilization endures, may the name of Christopher Columbus be emblazoned as in letters of gold on the memory of every loyal American in recognition of the greatest benefaction which the spirit of exploration, of discovery and of enterprise has given to the world."

The American Accent in MEN'S AUTUMN CLOTHES.

As far as changes in styles in men's clothes for fall are concerned, there are radical differences between those worn last spring and those made for this current season.

Probably the most widely noted difference is the shaping of clothes to adhere more closely to the lines of the body—clothes that give the average wearer that athletic look. In other words the mode is a bit more body tracing than heretofore.

That means there is a decided variation in the modeling lines from those of six months ago. Coats are, for the most part, along wedge-shaped lines with ample trousers and broad lapels, fairly short coats and waist effects.

Makers are predicting an excellent season for browns. Among them will be warm browns, colors of a more sombre shade than the suits of the last four seasons. Blue tones are also favored.

Trousers Slightly Narrower

To conform to the body tracing idea, the trousers are a bit narrower than they have been. From the knee to the bottom there is only an inch difference, but at both points the dimensions are slightly smaller than last spring. That means that the drape of the trousers is much neater than before and approach the conservative lines.

THE STORY SO FAR:

May Seymour, whose husband, Dr. John Seymour, killed himself because of her love affair with Jim Carewe, returns to her home town after a year's absence.

She comes late one fall night to the home of her lawyer, Dick Gregory, and Gloria, his wife. She tells them how the ugly story of her past has followed her everywhere. And so she has made up her mind to go to Europe where no one will know her.

She turns over her house to be sold to a wealthy widower, Ulysses X. Forgan. And she begs Dick to sell her bonds for whatever they will bring. All she wants, she explains, is enough money to dress the part of a wealthy widow for the next few months, and "land" a rich husband.

A week later, with $8,000 in $500 bills in her bag, May goes to Atlantic City for a rest before sailing for Europe. There she meets Carlotta Frothing, a grass widow, and her friends, Herbert Waterbury and Dan Sprague.

They all go to Adoree's little supper club, and are joined by Francie Lee, one of Adoree's "hostesses." Waterbury explains that such women as Francie earn their living by dancing with unattached men in these places.

Waterbury asks May to let him take care of her $8,000 for her, but May refuses to give it up. However, she promises to put it in the hotel safe. Waterbury makes love to her, and she feels sure that she is in love with him.

The morning after the party at Adoree's she buys a $800 black pearl ring on her way to breakfast at a Boardwalk restaurant. There she meets Francie Lee, and Francie tells her that being a "hostess" is the most terrible job in the world.

There was no one in it but a woman who sat drinking orange juice at a table by the window, when May entered. This woman looked up, and May saw that it was Francie Lee.

She walked over to her. "May I sit here with you, Miss Lee?" she asked. "No one introduced us last night. Perhaps you don't remember me. I was with Herbert Waterbury's party at Adoree's, I'm Mrs. Seymour."

"I remember you perfectly, Mrs. Seymour," Francie Lee answered in a cool, low voice. "And I'd like you to have your breakfast here. I hate to eat alone."

A little waitress in pink linen took May's order of dry toast and coffee. When she was gone May leaned across the table.

"Miss Lee," she began in her friendliest manner, "I think your job of being hostess in a supper club must be awfully interesting. Won't you tell me about it? I should think Francie Lee's face hardened in a slow, mysterious way. "You do, do you?" she asked in her well-bred voice. "Well, let me as she answered. "In another five years I'll look about 40." May could only shake her head. "I was on the stage when I first came to New York from my home town in Ohio," Francie said. "Adoree was in vaudeville then, and I was with her. Then she started her midnight supper-club in New York, and it was such a success that she gave up the stage for good."

May was in demure gray when she met Waterbury in the lobby.

"I remember the place," May Seymour broke in. "I went there one night three or four years ago with my husband." "Well, Adoree noticed that a great many men came alone to the club," Francie went on. "And she hired me and two or three other girls she knew to sit at their tables and talk to them—entertain them, you know."

"I'll say this for Adoree—she's like a mother to us. She always sees that we get home safely. And she's made a rule that none of us meets the men patrons outside the club." Francie's dark eyes grew darker as she paused for a second. "Goodness knows, we never want to see them again! We're about ready to pass out of the picture after four or five hours of trying to dance and talk to a lot of fat old men!"

"But, at that, it wouldn't be such a tough life if it weren't for the drinking we have to do." May's lips curled at that in a disdainful smile.

"But you don't have to drink with them, do you?" she asked. "Not unless you want to? And if it's such a terrible way of living, why don't you go back to the stage?"

"Well, I did try going back once," Francie said, gloomily turning her glass around and around in her hands. "But there's so much more money in this hostess job."

"We get our tips just as waiters do, you know," she went on frankly. "Sometimes a party will give a girl as much as $50 if she's been bright and entertaining. Of course, a lot of men are tightwads and think $10 is enough for talking your head off

Two Major Advantages Studebaker Alone Offers

1-One-Profit Value 2-Unit-Built Construction

THERE are (as you probably know) only two manufacturers who actually build their cars complete — make all their own bodies, engines, clutches, steering gears, differentials, springs, gear sets, axles, gray iron castings and drop forgings.

One of these is Ford—in the low priced field. The other is Studebaker in the fine car field.

Because we eliminate the extra profits and overhead that many other manufacturers have to pay to outside parts and body makers—we are able to use finer materials and workmanship—yet charge no more than competing cars.

But there is another side to One-Profit manufacture—a feature that no careful buyer can afford to overlook.

Under this One-Profit policy the entire car is designed, engineered and manufactured as a complete, coordinate harmonious unit in Studebaker plants. Being Unit-Built it functions as a unit. And this adds years to its life—gives you scores of thousands of miles of excess transportation—greater riding comfort—minimum repair costs—and, finally, higher resale value.

Examine the Standard Six Coach closely—make detailed comparisons with other cars—and you will understand the full meaning of One-Profit value.

A Coach of quality

It is called a coach only because it is the lowest priced closed car ever sold by Studebaker. But it is a quality car through and through.

Do not buy this coach with the expectation that you'll have to trade it in at the end of a year or so. It's not a one-year car.

Instead, it has been honestly built to give you scores of thousands of miles of dependable service.

Notice the durable wool upholstery. See the heavy ornamental hardware; the plate glass windows and windshield; the fine trim to hide all tacks; the clock and gasoline gauge on dash; automatic windshield cleaner; stop light; locks on ignition, steering gear, door and spare-tire carrier—all operated by a single key.

The steering mechanism is especially designed for easy driving with the big balloon tires

These are all features that you can easily see. But down underneath that glistening coat of metallic enamel you'll find the same quality of materials and workmanship that are out in the open.

The sturdy frame for the body is built from the fine northern ash and hard maple. Slam the door and the sound says quality. Underneath the upholstery you'll find two layers of washed, quilted cotton, one layer of genuine curled hair and extra long springs closely held together by small coil springs. This is the identical cushion and seat construction used in the highest priced cars.

Long resilient springs made of special chrome Vanadium steel give greater buoyancy and protection from road shocks.

The crankshaft is completely machined on all surfaces to eliminate vibration. And the motor is the most powerful in any car of this size and weight, according to the rating of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce. It is a motor built for smooth, trouble-free service at 5 to 55 miles an hour—not for excessive speed or spectacular stunts.

The body is smart in appearance — yet provides ample room to seat five passengers in real comfort. Ample room to enter or leave without disturbing occupant of folding seat.

Make comparisons before you buy

These are advantages made possible by One-Profit manufacture. Check them off point by point—in comparison with other coaches.

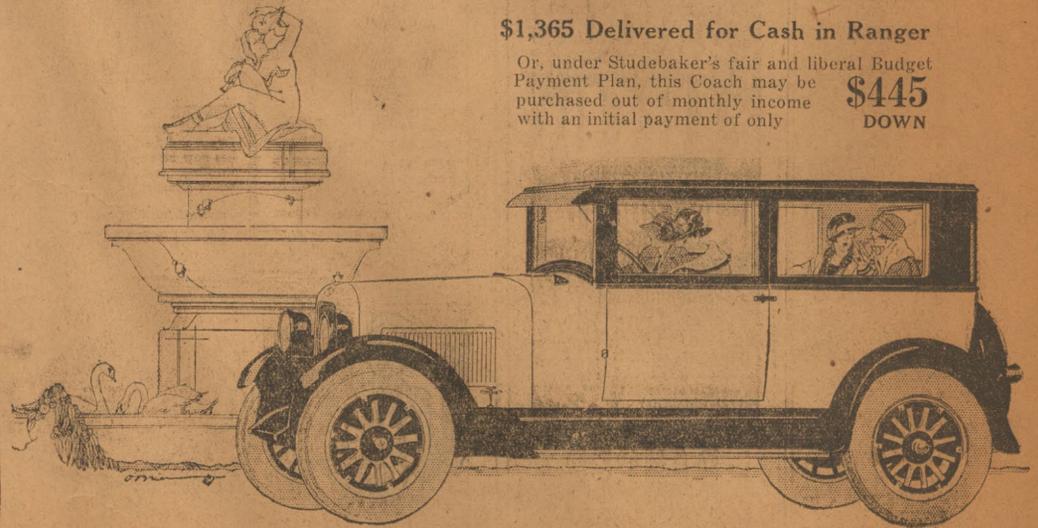

Only after you have seen this One-Profit Studebaker with its Unit-Built construction, will you realize why it offers a value that cannot be obtained in any other car. It is the automobile equivalent of Pullman transportation.

The Studebaker policy of "no yearly models" is a further protection to owners. Under this policy Studebaker cars are always up to date—we add improvements from time to time and do not save them up for spectacular annual announcements which make cars artificially obsolete.

Come in—let us demonstrate the Standard Six Coach without obligation on your part.

and dancing your feet off for a whole evening.

"There's one man who comes down here sometimes with some of the members of his law firm. And he gave me this."

She held out her arm to show May the diamond bracelet upon it.

"That is, he gave me one like it," she said. "I had to pawn the real one a while ago, when I was stony broke. But I'll get it back, I suppose."

"I suppose you're wondering what sort of a girl I am, to take presents from a man," she said calmly. "And as a matter of fact, May was wondering that very thing."

"Well, I'm just as decent as I was when I left Mt. Vernon, Ohio, 10 years ago," Francie went on. "But just the same, I figure that if anybody's around passing out diamond bracelets, I've a perfect right to one or two of them, myself!"

She looked meditatively at May for a moment and her eyes softened. "Ever been in Mt. Vernon?" she asked.

May shook her head.

"Prettiest little country town in the world," Francie said quietly. "All green lawns and white houses—and church bells on Sunday night. You know the kind of town I mean, don't you?"

"Well, I sang in the choir of our church, and everybody said I had a voice. So I made up my mind to go to New York and go on the stage."

"Landed there when I was 18—green as grass, just a fool little kid with a big ambition. And when I finally landed a job with Adoree's company I thought I'd licked the world."

She shrugged her shoulders, and gave a short laugh.

"It's taken me 10 years to find out that I was licked before I started," she sighed.

"But even if you went back home now, you'd be dissatisfied, wouldn't you?" May asked. "You really love the bright lights and the jazz and all the rest of the life you lead here."

Francie gave her a long, searching look.

"You're all wrong, dearie," she remarked. "If I'd stayed in Mt. Vernon and married the town plumber I'd been happy. No, you needn't smile! I really was engaged to a plumber back there."

"Jay P. Jones is his name—nicest fellow I ever knew. Say, he'd look like a prince beside these bracelet buyers that drape themselves over the cabaret tables!"

"Well, if that's the way you feel about him, why don't you go home and marry him?" May asked, sensibly. "That's the smart thing to do, it seems to me."

Francie shook her head. "No," she said. "I went home last year for a couple of weeks. I called him up and he came to see me—once. I waited for 10 days, but he never came again. I guess he was afraid of me—the way I talked, and the kind of clothes I wore. They're pretty straight-laced out in Mt. Vernon you know. It's a 9 o'clock town, all right!"

She got up and held out her hand to May.

"Forgive me for hanging my hard hat on you, don't you?" she asked, smiling. "I really don't know what made me tell it to you—I usually keep my troubles to myself!"

May pressed her hand. "Perhaps it'll all come out right in the end like a fairy tale," she said. "You know—that and so they married and lived happily ever after, stuff."

A hard look came into Francie's eyes.

"I'm a fraud not," she answered. "My man's going around with my younger sister, now, they tell me she's a sweet little kid—the kind of girl I would have been, maybe, if I'd stayed at home where I belonged. Well, there's no use crying over spilled milk, is there?"

And she was gone.

May sat there at the little blue table, staring out at the ocean, her chin propped in her hands.

What would 10 years of knocking around the world do to her, she wondered.

"Ah, but she wasn't going to knock around, from pillar to post! She was going to marry a rich man and settle down to be a good wife to him!"

Her thoughts returned to Herbert Waterbury. She sighed as she thought of last night—of that heavenly moment when he had held her in his arms and kissed her.

"Well," she made up her mind, "I think I'll go out and buy myself a few clothes. I wonder what his favorite color is."

Then she remembered her role of Wistful Widow. And she bought a filmy gray chiffon, a lavender crepe, and a stunning black velvet dress in a little shop near the Marlborough-Blenheim.

"I ought to knock Herby for a goal in that dress!" she told herself as she tried it on.

It was 6 o'clock when she returned to her own hotel. She was tired, and there were circles under her eyes. So she telephoned downstairs for a cup of bouillon, had a hot bath and went to bed.

She was awakened by the ringing of the wall-telephone in her room. It was broad daylight, and the sun was streaming from under the half-lowered blinds.

"Good morning, Merry Widow," came a deep masculine voice on the telephone. "This is Herbert Waterbury. Would you like to motor over to Philadelphia for lunch with me and Carlotta?"

"I'd adore it!" May's voice thrilled. "When do we start?"

"Half an hour. Can you make it?"

"Meet me in the lobby in pre-acknowledged 30 minutes!" May laughed. She tingled with happiness that flooded her like sunshine.

She was all in demure gray when she met Waterbury in the lobby.

"Dressed like a Quakeress, in honor of Philadelphia, I see!" he said, surveying her from head to feet. "And the prettiest Quakeress who ever quaked."

"I'm not quaking, thanks!" May answered under her breath, as Carlotta came up to them, followed by Dan Sprague.

Waterbury and she sat in the back seat of Sprague's long, low Mercedes, as they sped along the smooth highway toward the Quaker City.

"I've a herd of cows finer than those," Waterbury remarked, as they passed a wide green field where a herd of Holsteins grazed.

"You?" May asked, "are you a farmer?"

"Well, I've a farm up near Pittsfield," Waterbury answered. "But I don't spend much time there. My little daughter likes it. But our real home is in Brookline. Here's a picture of it." He handed May a snapshot of a great Georgian house.

"I didn't know you had a daughter," May exclaimed, drawing away from him. "Now, don't tell me you have a wife, too!"

"GALLOPING FISHES" AT PLAY

WITH AL G. BARNES CIRCUS

Here's a whole school of "galloping fishes" and they think the clang of the dinner bell is the sweetest "flapper."

"Which means yes—when translated in the king's English," interprets Al G. Barnes. "You have to feed seals to know them and, if you feed them, it is surprising how quickly they learn about you."

Mr. Barnes, who feeds them often and who taught them their feature stunts, marvels at their uncanny knowledge of human nature, as you will marvel when the Al G. Barnes big four-ring circus comes to Ranger, Wednesday, Oct. 21.

These educated seals and sea lions are only a part of the big wild animal show, which will include everything from a trained flea to an elephant—not forgetting to mention also the greatest movie star of them all—Joe Martin, himself, and the most gigantic circus sensational feature of the age, "Pocahontas at the Court of Queen Anne," with three tribes of Indians in the big cast—Washoes, Escopidoes and Apaches.

Athletics and will report to them next spring. Pate was surprised when informed that he had been drafted by Connie Mack, but said, "Sure, I'll go."

Pate was a favorite with local fans and was with the Panthers when they played the Eastland Tigers in Eastland, Sunday.

"We Show the New Things First"

ON THE RANGE AT RANGER

By THE FENCE RIDER.
(Items for this department must be phoned in to the Fence Rider, by 12 o'clock daily in order to insure their insertion. Don't be bashful. Jingle the telephone bell.)

"That's some man you butted into," someone remarked to one of the team's players at a recent game, referring to T-Bone Shell. "Man, nothing!" the hurt one replied. "He's not a man. He's a horse!"

Wise farmers who are raising the stuff to maintain man are not going to overlook the fact that it takes both dirt and water—soil and moisture—to keep man going. All of which ought to mean that these underground sources of water all around Ranger are going to be utilized for irrigation purposes to make the farms green and fruitful. This section is known to be an offshoot from that great sheet water reservoir and all these years lying down on the job or sleeping, while the great opportunity to water the crops goes by, does not argue that we are going always to sleep. It's almost time to get up. Somebody set the alarm clock and let's open our peepers and go to using that water for every acre it can be made to cover.

That Ranger man who has a sign on his car, "A million laying hens by 1849" is a far-seeing fellow. Of course he means the feathered kind. And that's not an impossible ambition to realize, once we utilize all this good idle soil and this good idle water to raise the stuff to feed the chickens. It may yet be an even race between the forty-niners of this century and the last which makes the richest strike—the gold hunters or the chicken raisers.

Ranger is a city of flowers, green vines and pretty foliage. The Fence Rider, in all seriousness, alluded to some of those pretty, clinging vines the other day and escaped with his life. But really, when a business place imparts that home-like atmosphere by letting pretty balsam fir vines (is that what they are?) run all up and down the screens enclosing its porticoes, and lawn after lawn abounds in wool plants, fire plants, roses, pinks, cosmos and the like to adorn them and stay green as they do until late autumn and sometimes late winter, it is worthy of notice. Wouldn't some of those up-north people who shiver and look out on bleak, barren lawns enjoy just one day in this balmy Ranger climate when it really and truly gets cold up there? The prattle of children's voices, the redolence of flowers, the twitter of bird songs—these are things which make it a glad privilege to dwell in the sunny southland.

"If it wasn't for wire, Texas would fall to staves," remarked Mike Beauford, farmer, out at the gin the other day, as he wired in his hind gate and started back to the farm for another load of strict middling.

Anent the revival of vaudeville in Ranger, one citizen and city officials could tell them a lot they don't know in the old days. That citizen is City Commissioner Raymond Teal. He quite vaudeville exactly 32 years ago, after playing in such well known circuits as West's and I. Harvey. Names not very familiar to you? That's because you weren't keeping up with such things at that time. Mr. Teal is a living illustration of how a man can do the shows at the show age and develop into a real business man in his maturer years.

Five Football Teams Promise to Make Good Showing

By FRANK B. BRIDGES.
Athletic Director, Baylor University.
Written Expressly for the United Press.

WACO, Oct. 11.—The football race in the Southwestern conference this season should be a horse race, with five of the seven teams bunched for the lead, in my opinion. Which of these five will emerge winner depends largely on the breaks and on the development of potential material possessed by each of the schools.

Strengthened by a splendid line and a super wealth of brilliant back-field material, Texas University should easily be one of the leaders in the race. Coaches Doc Stewart and Bill James should experience little trouble in moulding this material into a championship machine.

Rice Institute is due for a championship this season and with their splendid squad of veterans and new material, Coach Heisman is due to bring them through somewhere near the top. Heisman declared that he would give Rice a championship in three years and this is the year.

Southern Methodist University, with a fast team of players, made up of a few veterans and stars from that sensational freshman team of last season, should be around the apex of the race.

Coach Bible at Texas A. and M. will have a veteran team intact and, with one of the best defenses in the country combined with an excellent offense, there is no reason why it should not make a dangerous bid for the title.

Baylor University is by no means out of the race, but they have a desperate campaign coming up. The injury to Jack Sisco in the Notre Dame game cost heavily and the players have not yet shaped themselves into a unit. The Bears are due to be high up in the race but they face a great psychological obstacle.

Texas Christian University has a young team and an uncertain one, so it is not known what they will do. The Frogs may flash into a splendid team and nose out some of the leaders.

Arkansas University has many of their veterans returning and they should have a good season.

However, in my opinion, the real battle for the championship will be a neck and neck race between Texas, Rice, Texas Aggies, S. M. U. and Baylor.

MAMMOTH-SIZE ANIMALS WITH AL G. BARNES 4-RING CIRCUS

Who should worry? "Prohibition, the question every small boy, who doesn't worry us, so long as we can get lots of 'aqua pura,'" trumpets those thirsty elephants coming to Ranger, Wednesday, Oct. 21, with the Al G. Barnes big four-ring circus. "Wonder how many buckets the darn things will want this year?" is In addition to the elephants, the small boys may also have to carry water for Lotus, the largest and only blood-sweating performing hippopotamus in the world; after which they will have an opportunity of seeing the gigantic and newest circus feature, "Pocahontas at the Court of Queen Anne," the extravaganza that opens the big program this year. Three tribes of American Indians will be included in the cast, in addition to more than a hundred pretty girls from sun-kissed California, all of whom have appeared in some of the latest motion picture productions of the season.

MANUFACTURE OF CASINGHEAD GASOLINE BECOMES BIG INDUSTRY THROUGHOUT RANGER TERRITORY

Approximately 4,000 of the 12,000 people living in the city of Ranger derive their sole subsistence from the natural gasoline industry, as the manufacture of gasoline from rich casinghead gas is generally designated. About the same number living in other parts of Eastland county derive their sole support from that industry. Some 50 per cent of the natural gasoline of the county is produced in and around Ranger, approximately 30 per cent at Desdemona and 20 per cent at Eastland. All of which figures are taken from a recent industrial survey and they go to emphasize the rapidly growing importance of this comparatively new industry.

The above figures are based upon five inhabitants to one employe—the usual ratio. The actual number employed directly in this industry in Ranger and environs, is approximately 750 to 800 and the number in the entire county is approximately 1,500. This does not include numerous special ca inspectors, handlers of freight by the railroads growing directly out of the casinghead industry, including consignments of mineral seal oil shipped in as a necessary adjunct in the manufacture, compression or blending of the natural gasoline and various construction crews, lumber haulers and others who move the timbers to the wells and assist in the construction and improvement of the various plants, warehouses and other necessary structures. It will be seen that the estimate is conservative.

Gas Varies In Richness.
There are in Eastland county at this time, approximately 1,500 wells producing casinghead gas, about half of which are in the immediate Ranger vicinity. One Ranger company alone manufactured 6,710,000 gallons of natural gasoline during the 30 days ending July 1, 1925.

The richest gas in the county is at Desdemona. Some wells there have been known to show as high as 16 gallons to the thousand feet of gas, which is said to establish a record for the nation. Many wells have shown as high as eight to 12 gallons to the thousand feet and six gallons is not an unusual figure. However, wells are operated profitably in the county showing not exceeding four tenths of one gallon to the thousand feet. The general run is from two to six gallons, a preponderating number of the wells running below four gallons to the thousand.

The importance of this production and these plants is better appreciated when compared to the production of gasoline from crude oil. It is estimated that from 20 to 40 per cent of all the gasoline now originating in Eastland county is derived from casinghead gas and manufactured in the county by one of the two processes, in compression plants or absorption plants. The new charcoal method has not yet been brought to perfection in this county, it is said.

Home Industry.

But the comparison does not end with comparison of volume. The manufacture of natural gasoline is essentially and of necessity, a home industry. Crude oil may be, much of it is, piped to other cities and there refined. Casinghead gas must be worked up in the field which produces it. This involves the drilling of the wells, the piping of the gas over short distances to the plants, the erection and maintenance of chemical laboratories, with skilled chemists in charge, the constant employment of field and factory crews, the maintenance of a marketing and sales department with all its branches, traveling salesmen, local marketers, etc., the building and upkeep of car and repair shops, the engagement of expert accountants, a full office force for each plant and various other adjuncts, bringing the forces employed up to the size of a small army.

These people are never fly-by-nights or transients in any sense. They locate at a plant and in a city to stay. They build homes, join clubs, enter into civic and social activities of their respective towns and cities and become well known figures about town. This in marked contrast to the people who "follow the oil fields." This is conspicuously true in Ranger where it is estimated that the casinghead gas production will, in all probability, hold up for from 20 to 50 years even should no other wells be opened up.

Industry Yet Young.

This industry is only a trifle over 20 years old and it has assumed importance in Texas only within the last seven years. Yet Texas now ranks at the third state in natural gasoline production in the United States, Oklahoma and California being slightly in the lead. There are now in the United States 1,144 plants manufacturing natural gasoline from gas, some of which show "rainbow" spray of oil in the gas, from all of which there was produced in 1924, 933,861,000 gallons of gasoline—nearly a billion gallons. Texas produced 186,571,000 gallons during that year, 77 per cent of the nation's total being produced west of the Mississippi river.

There are now approximately 40 plants in Eastland county, the principal ones being operated by the Chestnut & Smith corporation, Magnolia Petroleum company, Arab Gasoline company, Consolidated company, Phillips Petroleum company, Hirt-McDermott Oil company, Office company and Southern Gasoline company. The estimated average daily production in the county is approximately 16,000 gallons. To this should be added the Southern and other plants just over in Stephens county, which are tributary to Ranger.

The gasoline from casinghead gas is of a high gravity, ranging around 80 as against 45 to 50 for gasoline produced from crude oil. It is a high hydrocarbon product—too high, in fact, for commercial use. It is blended with the low gravity gasolines to bring the gravity up to somewhere in the neighborhood of 59 or 60 when they attain their proper standard. No refinery can now be operated economically without the use of natural gasoline, it is said. The buyers of the product are big people—refineries and others—and the marketing of it, a highly dignified process. All the gas from these casinghead wells is conserved, the dry gas, after extracting the gasoline, being turned back into pipe lines and sold to the service corporations for commercial and domestic uses. Certain cracking systems employed by the refineries also require this high gravity product, making it an absolute essential and insuring a ready market for it at practically all times.

The discovery that gasoline could be compressed or absorbed from rich gas as well as refined from crude oils was made early in the present century by Sutton brothers and William Richardson, western oil men, since which time it has grown to its present proportions. It is interesting to note that gasoline manufactured in Ranger is now being used by refineries in practically every oil producing state in the nation and in many nations.

All of the above facts and figures are taken from authentic records except the estimate as to duration. On that, no manufacture was willing to make an estimate. However, decline curves, proved dependability of structure and several other items were taken into account in making the estimate. It was found that wells in five-year-old territory, having reached their settled production, are not materially declining from year to year. It was further found that the richness of their output increases from year to year. In any event, the fact that manufacturers are continuing to build new plants at a cost of from $100,000 to $500,000 (the average cost of a plant being from $30,000 to $45,000 for each million feet gas capacity) is taken as ample proof that these manufacturers at least believe this is one oil field industry that has come to stay. The total cost of erecting all these plants is only approximated, but it seems safe to fix it at six million dollars or more.

Rev. Dr. Randolph Clark, Founder of Texas Christian University, Now An Octogenarian, Continues To Preach

The return of the Rev. H. B. Johnson from Plainview to occupy again the pulpit of the Ranger Christian church, brings into added public notice the career, activities and personality of Dr. Randolph Clark, who, at the age of 81 years, has been filling the pulpit at that church since coming to make his home in Ranger, and who, last Sunday, preached two sermons in Eastland and, will, it is stated, continue to preach and lecture as occasion arises, with no thought of age as a bar to his activities.

The outstanding thing in Dr. Clark's life is his work in conjunction with his brother, Rev. Addison Clark, in founding Add-Ran College, which later became Texas Christian University, now known as T. C. U., one of the largest of Texas universities, recently assisted by a bequest of a portion of the Burk-Burnett fortune. The founding of this school, born of the vision and foresight of these two brothers, contrasted as much as anything in its day to the educational history of Texas.

Dr. Clark is the author of a book of reminiscences in which, very candidly, he gives much space to his father and brother and others, and very little to himself. That act of innate modesty robs the public of much of that interesting series of episodes out of which grew that educational monument to his foresight. Briefly, the Clark brothers, like many other Southern boys just out of the army when the cause of the states fell, cast about for a career, much as the legion boys are now doing. They came to the conclusion that their work was to be distinctly educational. Both were teachers, both preachers. It was but natural that they should choose religious education as their vocation and conceive the necessity for the founding of a school in which to give full scope to that idea.

At the time, Texas was without adequate schools. The dream of the Clark brothers was to see an educational institution where character, religion, ethics and education would stand out. Their dominant idea was to include in the student body all who sought any sort of higher education under high ethical and religious standards, it is said. The inclusion of pupils not yet out of high school or up to high school grades did not trouble them at all. In fact, there were few high schools in Texas at the time, the term high school having a very clouded meaning. Any school which gave opportunity for higher education was "high" to them. Their school was, in reality, what would now amount to a good high school—plus a college. "Preps," they all went at first, the entire student body, preparing for life's work. Shift was made to find tutors for them all as they came in. And they did come—in droves—once it became known this institution was open for them. For many a youth not so well endowed as these two brothers, of college education, had like ambitions with them. The new school was first located at Thorp Springs, in 1873, moved to Waco in 1895, and, after the destruction of its buildings by fire in 1910, moved to Fort Worth, where it stands a monument to these two men, one of whom is now making his home in Ranger with his son-in-law, S. R. Holloway, superintendent of Ranger public schools, and still preaching the two gospels of religion and education wherever occasion arises.

DID YOU EVER STOP TO THINK

By E. R. Waite, Secretary Shawnee, Okla., Board of Commerce.

Irving K. Stone, president of the Duplex Printing Press company of Battle Creek, Mich., says:

That it is time to quite coddling criminals and making your prisons more comfortable and attractive to the crook and degenerate than what he can readily acquire honestly. Many a moron finds he earns good bed and board and an easy time by a well-directed blackjack.

That our growing crime records are indisputable proof that luxury prisons and tender care, paroles and pardons, don't reduce crime but make it attractive. A good chance of getting away with it and "nothing to lose." Imprisonment without punishment is no penalty to the average criminal who is as a rule a homeless wanderer. A nice well-conducted prison with reading matter, etc., and a number of his fellows for company—it's an acceptable respite from knocking about and rustling for himself either honestly or dishonestly—just a vacation!

That it's not good sense to continue trading the lives of good citizens for the questionable reclamation value of criminals in a radio of apparently 10 or 12 good men and true per crook. Are we going to wake up as a people to the bad bargains we are thus making? Are those the investments we want to make for our children and children's children?

That the answer to our crime wave is punishment, quick and sure and severe. General horse thieving in the west stopped when the community made it certain that capture meant death. The frequent murders will stop in this country when for every murderer a murderer surely hangs. Nothing else is sufficient, for while there's life, paroles and pardon, there's hope.

Lesser crimes will be curtailed when likewise appropriate punishment is sure and quick and not until then. The crook will always take a chance. It is the certainty of painful punishment ahead that is deterrent. (Copyright 1925.)
