CITY DADS AND ROAD BUILDERS TO HOLD BONDS

Offers of 95 and Better Turned Down in Belief Market Will Rise.

C. W. Arlitt, of the firm of J. W. Arlitt & Co., bond broker, was in the city yesterday and stated that he had offered to place $500,000 worth of the county road issue at 95, but the offer was refused by Fleming & Stitzer, who have the road contract and who are accepting the bonds in payment at par.

Their action, it is believed, was caused by the fact that generally the tone of the bond market is much better. Mr. Arlitt himself admitted that while the market was quiet last month, the general tone was much better and there was some demand for long term bonds. His firm has also offered to take a part of the city's city hall bonds at a price that would almost equal par.

This offer was also refused, since the commissioners believe that a little later the issue can be sold at an attractive price. The offer was on the long term securities.

TEAM LEADERS TALK PLANS FOR ROAD WORK FUND

A whirlwind campaign to raise funds for the Good Roads movement will be made starting Monday, it was announced today. PRACTICAL WOMAN SUFFRAGE

In legislative bodies there is a custom called "pairing," brought into use when men on opposite sides of a question wish to be absent when the vote is taken.

Now a scanning of the poll tax receipts issued here would indicate that since woman suffrage has come into effect, there is quite a lot of pairing going on.

The only logical presumption is that husbands knowing their wives, and wives knowing their husbands, they have consensually or unconsciously decided to "pair" on the various questions.

"Tinker Bob" Stories by Carlisle H. Holcomb

TINKER AND THE GREAT CREATURE.

Tinker Bob was interested to know what kind of a creature it was that the Little Lake made to destroy such a large Bat. Said he: "Where is that Creature that destroyed the Big Bat and spilled his blood over the ground?"

Then the Bat said, "I bet he is listening to the words I am telling you this minute, for he is a very watchful creature and his great mouth is always open waiting for something to eat, and it is so strange to think he eats everything he can get, bones and all. You know we eat nothing but things that are good. If you want to see this fellow you just watch along the shore of the lake and he will appear."

The King of the Forest had never heard of such a creature in all his life. It seemed strange, too, for Old Man Experience had told him everything, but he had never seen such a fellow as the one Mr. Bat described. "I must see this fellow," he said to Lady Duck.

"Quack, quack, I have seen this creature many times and many of my friends have been killed by him. He eats feathers and all and one good-sized duck is only a mouthful for him."

Tinker Bob looked up and down the shore of the lake but he could see nothing that looked to him like a dangerous creature. There were some logs lying half out of the water and half in the water and then there were some other sticks that seemed to be lying half out of the water and half in the water. They were funny looking sticks, too, but Tinker never thought of them being anything else but sticks.

Lady Duck walked along with him and the moment she saw these funny looking sticks, she said: "Quack, quack, there is this creature and there are some more of them." Tinker thought she was seeing things that were not real.

"Where do you see anything that looks like a dangerous creature?" "Quack, quack, don't you see those noses sticking out of the water? They look like long sticks but they are noses and the creature himself is under the water."

The King looked at the noses carefully. "I'll see for myself," said he, and he went close to one of these peculiar looking sticks and tapped it on the end. Well, there was something that happened very suddenly. It was a great splash in the water and the nose went out of sight. But it soon came up again. Then Tinker spoke to the creature: "Come out here till I see you."

That was a strange thing to say to such a terrible fellow, but you know that Tinker is not afraid of anything and that is why everything seems to come to him when he commands it. The creature came out, and who do you suppose it was? Well, it was Mr. Alligator.

To Be Continued.

gun. The problem with which we are confronted and to the solution of which the Southern Tariff Congress can materially contribute, is to prevent industrial isolation on the one hand and industrial submergence on the other.

Your forefathers acknowledged the right of America to protect itself against the dictation and the domination of any foreign power and they fought with our forefathers for the independence of the United States. The independence which they sought was not merely independence of foreign kings and foreign cabinets. They sought also independence from commercial thralldom.

The economic life of the country is made up of private business enterprises, and the public consists of aggregation of private individuals. So it is no criticism of protection that benefits private business and private individuals. That must be the result as that is the object sought. But protection should be given in such manner that broadly speaking the benefit received by any private interest should not be disproportionate to the increased public service which that private interest renders by reason of the benefits derived from such protection.

Diversity of Interests. "We have a great diversity of interests which we are all entitled to consideration. This will require a very careful adjustment. In making that adjustment all must remember that each must support the other. In the long run all are interdependent.

The real concern of the nation is not merely in the erecting of great factories. It is in the building of manhood and womanhood. The interest of the government in national revenue, national defense and the welfare of the people. The greatest revenue comes from the greatest production, not the greatest imports. National defense depends upon the skill of our people and the diversities of our industries.

The welfare of the people depends upon opportunities for employment and our ability to pay good wages. These are the objects toward which the nation should direct its industrial policy. These are the objects toward the consummation of which the whole nation invites the welfare and effective cooperation of the south."

There is hardly a person who is lacking in specific shoe education. Even growing children have their shoe preferences, and their likes and dislikes are considered by indulgent parents.

Now, where did this vast population learn so much about shoes? The answer is simple: Through Reading Shoe Advertising.

Advertising has developed the shoe sense of everybody who can read the English language intelligently. It has stripped shoe manufacturing of its secrets. It has taught the public how shoes are made—of what they are made.

The best old shoemakers could do—working early and late—was to turn out a few pairs in a week. This made prices high without adding much to durability or quality, while the shapes were ungainly—their appearance clumsy.

Now you can choose from a score of lasts. There are a variety of styles from which a selection can be made, and it is the truth that Americans wear better and more graceful shoes than any other nationality in the world.

The demand for good shoes—created by advertising—stimulated the inventiveness of New Englanders and they devised machinery that duplicates—more rapidly and more accurately—every movement of the old-fashioned shoemaker.

The best of leather and the best of "findings" are used. So much expensive labor is saved that substitution of inferior material is unknown among reputable manufacturers.

It is almost impossible nowadays to buy a pair of "poor" shoes—certainly not from a reputable dealer who advertises. The highest grade footwear can be had by everybody. Shoe discomfort has been dispelled by advertising.

And this newspaper has been an active participant in the advertising of prominent local shoe dealers and national shoe seminators of shoe facts. The manufacturers are constant features of its advertising columns.

So it is that shoe dealers who have quality shoes to sell find our family of readers sensitively responsive to their advertising.

The great amount of shoe advertising which appears in this newspaper during the year reflects but one of the many elements of interest that its advertising columns hold. Read it carefully and continuously and profit by the information it gives—the savings it makes possible.

NITRO BOSS REPORTS FEB. 5; WORK ON PARK MOVING ALONG; GOT 'OPENER' TICKET YET?

Sled Allen, boss of the Nitros, is here today, talking matters over with the club's directors. He will start in on the job of rounding up next season's athletes on Feb. 5, it was decided this morning. Incidentally, he will supervise the work on the new park and see that things move along.

The stand at Municipal park is virtually demolished and a large part of the lumber is on the new grounds in Hodges' Oak park. Work of putting the grounds in shape also is under way.

Nearest Town.

It was decided this morning that the stand will be placed in the southeast corner of the grounds. That's the corner nearest town.

Right field will perhaps be a little short. There will be no home runs inside the fence in that direction. But there will be no two-base hits over the fence, either. The magnates are firm on that. It won't be necessary, but if it were, they'd build a few derricks along that wall and hang net wire on it, so that any Babe Ruth could get a round trip for knocking the pellet over it.

The ticket sale progresses. It seems to be one of those sales where no holla-balloo is needed. There are about a dozen men out with tickets in their pockets, and when they meet a friend, something like this occurs:

"Hey, Slim, wait a minute. Gimme five dollars; got something for yuh."
 "What for?" counters Slim.
 "Ticket for the opening game. Need the money to move the park."
 "Same," says Slim, making a side pocket gesture. "Gimme one."
 Sometimes they take two.

If you haven't been rapped yet, and don't think you have a friend in town who'll take your money, take it up to the Chamber of Commerce and tell 'em what it's for. They'll see that it gets to the proper party.

Incidentally, Rex Outlaw and Ralph Stockman and M. H. Smith and Gullhorn and a lot of other birds have some which they will swap you for $5 bills, one for each.

TURMOIL IN GOTHAM WHEN MIGHTY MR. BABE RUTH HEADED FOR SOUTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 29.—Mr. Babe Ruth, the famous basketball player, marched majestically through the Pennsylvania station with a shotgun on his shoulder.

Behind him ploughed a variegated array of citizenry, eager to have a peek at Mr. Ruth, the celebrated horse player, and to favor him in every manner possible.

One sought to remove the shotgun from the shoulder of Mr. Ruth, the far-famed picture actor, but was easily resisted. Several porters struggled in the wake of the throng, bearing the baggage of Hon. Ruth, the well known moving picture actor.

It was an impressive scene in every respect. Mr. Ruth, the distinguished Nimrod, was going hunting. He was headed for the thriving little depot, and two (2) general stores at Thalimann, Georgia.

From Thalimann he will be transported to Dover Hall, the picturesque estate at the junction of the Turdine and the Bear rivers, where baseball generally goes hunting.

Very Rough Animals.
 Dover Hall is sixteen miles from the city of Brunswick, Georgia. The estate consists of three thousand acres of piny woods, wherein roam the furious coon, the deadly opossum, the ferocious quail, the wild turtle dove and the rambunctious deer, to say nothing of the saw-toothed wood tick.

Your Uncle Wilbert Robinson, manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Jeff Pfeffer, one of his pitchers, and Colonel Crowley, of six-day bicycle fame, are already here. The train bearing Mr. Ruth, the renowned horse runner, paused at Baltimore after leaving here yesterday long enough to load on Carl Mays, Harry Buschick and other persons.

manager of the Yankees, fortuitously saw him coming the day before.

At that time Mr. Ruth, the splendid first baseman, had a high power rifle. He had heard he was going hunting, and it bore the idea of Mr. Ruth, the hustling center fielder, to do everything he does thoroughly, he had purchased the most destructive weapon he could think of next to his bat.

If you uttered a high power rifle on the premises of Dover Hall, you would probably hit eighteen or nineteen hot-blooded Southerners over in the next county. You see shotguns down there, and any man is dangerous enough with a shotgun, to say nothing of Mr. Ruth, the wonderful left fielder.

Mr. Barrow Takes Mr. Ruth's Gun.
 Mr. Barrow, gently but firmly removed the rifle from the paws of Mr. Ruth, the marvelous eater, and substituted the shotgun. That is why Mr. Ruth fought off the friendly advances of the crowd who wanted to carry his shotgun through the station. He was afraid they might give him a bow and arrow.

The Seaboard train was loaded down with rich people desperately seeking to escape the hot summer here this winter by going to Florida. They dropped their golf bags and rushed forward to get a close-up of Mr. Ruth, the demon wood-chopper of Massachusetts.

A stranger in the station was attracted by the gathering throng and sought information.

"What's all the shootin' about?" he inquired. "What kind of a night is this?"
 "Why," said an eager New Yorker, "Babe Ruth's goin' hunting. You know Babe—the famous pastime. He's goin' somewhere or other to kill something or other—Crackers, I hear. They tell me Georgia is just overrun with Crackers, and that's where Babe is going. Oh, you Babe!"

"Well," persisted the stranger, "who are them funny looking guys who are following him into the train? What have they got to do with this business?"
 "Going to help him carry in the Game."
 "Them?" said the New Yorker. "Oh, them's baseball writers and other people. They don't amount to nothin'. They're goin' along to help Babe carry in the game he kills. Oh, you Babe!"

"Well, seems to me this is a lot of fuss to make about a guy," said the stranger. "What's this Ruth done, anyway?"
 "What?" said the New Yorker. "Why, don't you know Babe's the guy who cost us $137,500? He's the most expensive guy in baseball, and them St. Louis guys are a lot of liars."

"Yes," said the stranger, "but who's that fat guy struggling along away behind and luggin' his own baggage? Why don't somebody help him carry it, or are they too busy helpin' Babe?"
 "Who?" said the New Yorker. "Oh, that guy! Oh, he's just the guy who paid all that dough for Babe. That's only Cap Huston, one of the owners of the Yanks. Oh, you Babe!"

Training camps will be conducted by the war department next summer for the reserve officers' training corps, composed of students of various educational institutions.

In the final set Mr. Gould's ankle turned under him and he fell. He rose and limped his way through the rest of the game.

FAST BOUT PLEASES FANS AT MOOSE CLUB

"Kid" Wallace and a young fellow named Austin stepped some fast rounds at the Moose lodge's regular entertainment last night. Walter Ehle, Breckenridge Moose fighter, failed to show up, and Austin volunteered to meet the A. E. P.'s middleweight terror in an exhibition. Although only 17 years old, he performed creditably until the seventh, when he decided that as a matter of fun the affair had gone far enough.

After the boxing exhibition dancing was enjoyed by a large crowd.

AEGD FARMER LEAVES WILL PROVIDING FOR HIS SMALL MENAGERIE

SWAN, Neb., Jan. 29.—When Silas Breen, 88 years old, bachelor-farmer, failed to appear at the postoffice for his mail for several weeks neighbors investigated.

Breen's body was found in his home. In the house were found eleven small puppies, one dachshund, two water spaniels, one St. Bernard, eleven bulldogs, three Scotch collies, five Airedales and sixteen mongrels. A total of fifty dogs, thirty-seven cats, a collar infested with white mice and the remains of a dozen canary cages, several broken bowls of goldfish and a barnyard full of animals dying of starvation were among the effects.

Breen had not been known as a reclusive and had appeared to be normal in every respect. He had few visitors and thus his hobby of collecting animals was unknown to neighbors.

In his writing desk was found an envelope containing $4,500 in bills and a note asking that his animals be provided for in case of his death until a home could be found for them.

SAILING VESSEL WAS SEVENTY-FIVE DAYS AT SEA; GOT NOWHERE

By Associated Press
 QUEENSTOWN, Jan. 29.—The hardships of crossing the Atlantic in a sailing vessel in mid-winter were shown by the experience of the Norwegian bark Sirdal, which gave up the attempt after spending seventy-five hours at sea and has returned to this port with her bulwarks stove in and much of her canvas in rags.

Most of the crew were either ill or worn out by fatigue and exposure. Neither vessel nor men were fit for further conflict with angry seas. The Sirdal left Christiansand as far back as Oct. 22, bound for Barbados and carrying only ballast.

Almost from the start she encountered heavy westerly gales but made her way as far west as mid-Atlantic whence she was driven north to the coast of Labrador and then almost over to Iceland. Several times she was thrown on her beam ends, decks were incessantly swept by seas, cabins flooded and rigging so strained that it was feared the masts would go. One man fell aloft in a gale and was killed.

Within the past six months Germany has delivered to France and Belgium a total of 30,000 horses, 125,000 sheep, 90,000 cattle, including 40,000 in calf.

Swamp Baby Is Wild Man's Child, Red Cross Says

LAUREL, Miss., Jan. 29.—According to Mrs. S. M. Dalton, former resident of Laurel, who now resides in Jackson, the 2-year-old girl found in the jungles of Leaf river swamp with Albert Parsons is the child of the "wild man" and his woman companion.

Parsons, who is now an inmate of the Jones county poor house, says the homestead on which he squatted in Leaf river swamp during the administration of Grover Cleveland, has since been his home.

Parsons can handle his knife and fork but the woman eats only with her hands and appears to be incapable of intelligent conversation.

The cabin in which the couple lived was destitute of furniture. A pile of old sacks in one corner served as a bed. Two old pans constituted the outfit of cooking utensils.

ELKS SUPPORT BENEFIT FOR EUROPEAN CHILDREN

Sixty tickets for the benefit to be given Saturday morning at the Temple theatre for the European relief fund, were purchased by Elks who were present last night at the regular meeting of the lodge.

The Lamb, Majestic and Liberty theatres are joining with the Temple in giving the benefit. The proceeds will be turned into the treasury of the organization headed by Herbert Hoover, which is making an effort to save the lives of starving children of the war-stricken countries.

It is said that millions of children in Europe will die of starvation unless something is done for their relief by the people of the United States.

Lightning Strikes Twice; Mexican Peon Finds Second Silver Mine After Wasting First Strike Millions

PARRAL, Mexico, Jan. 29.—Just at a time when the fortune of the famous Peon Alvarado was getting down to low ebb, the geni of good luck gave him a rub and another with dollars or more is pouring into the lap of the former poverty-stricken peon.

Alvarado was the most-talked-of man in Mexico twenty years ago. He belonged to the laboring class of Mexicans and lived in the poor quarter of Parral. He worked in the mines of this district and obtained a good knowledge of ore.

When an ore buyer was invited to purchase the accumulated ore and the assay was made showing its great value, prospectors flocked to the scene of the discovery. Within a few months Alvarado had risen from the lowest stratum of Mexican life to a man of wealth.

It was the spectacular way in which he spent his money that attracted attention to Alvarado. One of the first things that he did when his fortune began to pile up was to adopt the practice of riding through the streets of Parral in a carriage once a week, with open bags of silver coin at his feet.

He also erected a magnificent cathedral upon the spot where he was born. One day his wife complained of toothache. Alvarado hired a special train to take him and her and the children to Chihuahua, where the troublesome tooth was attended to by a dentist.

About twelve years ago Alvarado built a grand palace of a home upon a slightly spot of ground in the outskirts of Parral. This residence is of marble and it is said to have cost more than $2,000,000. It is furnished and finished with a lavishness unequalled in Mexico.

He bought and placed a piano in every room, and in every room he placed a cage of singing canary birds. Alvarado made little use of the palace as a place of residence. He entertained his friends and callers in a floorless room to the east of the main building.

During the last few years Alvarado has been prospecting for other claims in the Parral district. The good luck he still with him as is shown by the fact that he has just uncovered a body of silver ore of marvelous richness in one of his new claims, called the Hierroza.

It is stated that this property promises to exceed the Pabullo mine in richness and quality of ore output.

BAR CHINESE ANKLES FROM PUBLIC GAZE

By Associated Press. SHANGHAI, Jan. 29.—Even the Chinese women have come in for criticism for wearing short skirts and also for displaying their arms. This criticism applies, however, only to those who have adopted foreign styles of dress.

An edict against the wearing of these styles has been issued by the city magistrate and chief of police of Shanghai. It declares that these fashions make the wearer neither foreign nor Chinese and adds: "Wearers are devoid of shame and frequent public streets without embarrassment. In future all so offending will be arrested and fined."

"I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment I was completely healed, in one month." (Signed) Luther Stephens, R. F. D. 4, Box 55, Raleigh, N. C., July 27, 1920.

DALLAS WIDOW SUED FOR HEART BALM BY SWAIN SHE JILTED

International News Service. DALLAS, Texas, Jan. 29.—For the second time in history here, and while the ink is hardly dry on records of the first instance, a man is going into court in an effort to force the lady of his choice to pay him heart balm.

Claiming that his affections have been toyed with, George M. Freeland, 35, a salesman, wants Mrs. Ethel B. Bass, 35, a widow and a stenographer, to pay him $20,000 for mental anguish and suffering caused by what he says is her breach of promise to wed. His suit for heart balm is filed in the Fourteenth district court here.

In One Year. Freeland's dream of love blossomed forth and withered within a year. "I met her on Jan. 5, a year ago," he said. "We started going together and became sweethearts. I proposed. She accepted me. We didn't set the date for our wedding."

"Last June I gave her an engagement ring which cost me $680. I later gave her an automobile on which I had paid $850. Together, we selected furniture. And I made her the beneficiary of my will."

"Then she spurned me. I loved her. I

Freeland represents in his petition that he suffered mental anguish to the extent of $25,000, with $1,015 added as the value of gifts he alleges he gave Mrs. Bass.
