SOMETHING IS WRONG.

ty, which now gives that county two district courts. Here are some figures showing how the volume of litigation and criminal business has increased in Eastland county during less than three years:

Civil cases filed during 1917.....	139
During 1918.....	414
During 1919.....	1062
To date, 1920.....	850

Should the rate be maintained throughout 1920, around 1900 cases will be filed this year. This shows an increase in civil litigation of more than 1200 per cent comparing the six months of 1920 with the year of 1917 and presuming the ratio for the year to continue, as it doubtless will do.

During the year 1917 there were thirty-six felony indictments returned. The full list of cases follows:

Burglary.....	8
Murder.....	1
Assault to rape.....	1
Bigamy.....	2
Swindling.....	2
Boatlegging.....	3
Adultery.....	1
White slavery.....	1
Theft.....	4
Rape.....	2
Assault to rape.....	1
Pandering.....	1
Abortion.....	3
Assault to murder.....	1
Total.....	36

During the year 1919 there were 266 indictments returned for felonies, on which indictments 186 arrests have been made, the various offenses being as follows:

Murder.....	17
Boatlegging.....	38
Running gambling houses.....	12
Kidnaping.....	2
Rape.....	1
Robbery.....	15
Swindling.....	2
Bigamy.....	1
Theft.....	67
Pandering.....	1
Forgery.....	8
Burglary.....	11
Bribery.....	1
Total.....	186

The remaining eighty against whom indictments were returned have never been captured. The crimes are of all kinds.

It will be noted that theft comes first with sixty-seven arrests, boatlegging second with thirty-eight, murder third with seventeen, robbery fourth with fifteen, while there have been twelve arrests for running gambling houses, eleven arrests for rape and eleven for burglary.

The year 1919 is used merely to compare it with the full year of 1917. Of course, the court records for 1920 show an increase of indictments and arrests over the same period for 1919.

Swindling Arrests Rare. But please note that there were only two arrests for swindling during 1919; that is, there were only that number of arrests after indictments had been returned or that number of parties indicted for swindling after arrests had been made. Swindling is one of the commonest offenses in the oil field. Right here there is something wrong. Who is to blame? What are you going to do about it? It will make a nice little starter for the next chapter. Be careful how you guess the blame. You are liable to miss it a mile, or such a matter.

Big Throng Enjoys Shamrock Plunge On Hot Holiday

Bathing and dancing were the outstanding features of the July 5th holiday at Shamrock Park yesterday. Early in the afternoon, the bathers began to arrive and toward evening, Shamrock plunge was alive with joyous folks who were out to have a good time and were having it. Toward evening, the dancing pavilion, which the management of the park had kept closed Sunday, July Fourth, was opened and immediately became a rival of the plunge for the honor of entertaining the greatest number of holiday makers. At 8:45 o'clock the committee in charge gave their second fireworks exhibition, the first having been shown the night of July Fourth.

Games at Shamrock park conducted by the carnival were put under the ban by G. G. Hazel, county attorney, when his attention was called to them Monday. He stated that no permission to run open gambling devices had been granted by his office, as was reported to the Ranger police.
Though the American Legion will receive but ten per cent of the profits from the sale of tickets to the fireworks exhibition and none from the gambling, the attraction was advertised. "Under the auspices of the American Legion," members of the Legion composed the private organization promoting the scheme.

P. O. BUSINESS DOUBLE NEEDED FOR 1ST CLASS

A summing up of business done by the local postoffice during the last year shows that no other office in West Texas can compare with Ranger in the volume of business done. Stamp sales alone ran over $75,000 for the year ending June 31, 1920. This is almost twice the amount necessary to secure first-class rating from the department.
Effective July 1, the local office became a postoffice of the first class. There are different grades of first-class offices and Ranger will secure a still better rating than at present, in the opinion of James E. Connell, postmaster, resulting in higher salaries and better service.
A report just compiled for the quarter ending June 31 shows 13,902 money orders issued, to the amount of $235,798.30. Postal receipts totaled $19,328.75. Most of the receipts come from stamp sales. Disbursements were as follows: Clerk hire, $10,076.64; cost of city delivery, $2,860.87. Messenger service amounted to $920.
A year ago the postoffice was inadequately housed, the amount of help was not sufficient to handle the volume of business and service was far from satisfactory. All these defects have been remedied and the service is now on a par with that in many other cities.

Holiday Traffic On Oilbelt Road Sets New Record

Yesterday's passenger traffic over the Wichita Falls, Ranger & Fort Worth railroad broke all records for the road. Over 1,500 passengers were transported between Ranger and Breckenridge. Freight movement shows a large daily increase in both directions from this city.
July 18 has been definitely set as the date for opening through traffic over the Hamon & Kell road into Fort Worth. Pullman service will be established on that date and sleepers set off at Ranger, Breckenridge and other points. The morning train which leaves the local station at about 8 a. m. will arrive in Fort Worth at 2 p. m. and the night train, leaving here at 11 p. m., will reach Fort Worth at 7:15 a. m. The Fort Worth connection will be made over the Frisco, from Dublin.

The survey of the road from Breckenridge north to Newcastle, to connect with Wichita Falls, is expected to be finished in a few days and announcement of townsites and stations north of Breckenridge will be made then.
Jake L. Hamon, president of the Wichita Falls, Ranger & Fort Worth railroad, left last night for Fort Worth after a visit to points on the railroad. Mr. Hamon arrived on train No. 3 from Dublin Sunday afternoon and went to Breckenridge, where he spent Sunday night. He returned here yesterday morning and spent the day in looking after business at the local offices of the railroad. He left over the Texas & Pacific railroad.

HAIR MARKET GOOD: "CLIPPER" WAS BUSY.
International News Service.
LEAVENWORTH, Kan., July 6.—A "Jack the Clipper" was arrested here, Roy B. Gott of Oskaloosa, will face trial. Recently, according to the police, Gott has been doing the "clipper" act, and as a result several young Leavenworth women are short of their treasured tresses. In each instance they lost their hair in picture shows which seemed to be Gott's favorite hunting ground.
When arrested Gott had the hair of one girl in his pocket. A parcel he was preparing to ship contained locks from a number of women's heads.

MONSIEUR COULON, BALD HEAD AND ALL, IS HOME AS FLYWEIGHT KING OF FRANCE

Coulon and cartoon by Jean Routier in La Boxe and Les Boxeurs, French magazine, depicting Johnny's victory over Juhard.

Johnny Coulon is champion again. The veteran little scrapper came out of his ring retirement a few months past and sailed away to Europe to seek fame and fortune. He is back again with the title of flyweight champion of France by virtue of his two-round k. o. victory over Emile Juhard, the champ, in Paris a while ago. French boxing critics were profuse in their praise of Coulon's "master punch" which laid Juhard low.

Harding Clashes With Penrose on Plan of Campaign

WASHINGTON, July 6.—Senator Penrose, Republican boss for years, chief director of Republican national conventions and the man who, more than any other, dictated the selection of Senator Harding as the presidential nominee, has met defeat in his first attempt to dictate the national campaign. Senator Harding announced he would adhere to his "front porch" campaign plans despite interview with Senator Penrose, printed in this morning's papers, calling for a more aggressive method.

The nominee has been felicitated and assured of support by many former Progressive leaders who have been called to see him or asked to join in aiding Republican victory.
In announcing that he would adhere to his plan, Senator Harding said he was convinced the people of the country wanted "deliberate utterance."
Senator Penrose described the "front porch" campaign as a thing of the past. He said modern methods of transportation and travel "and progressive political ideas among the people have changed their attitude in this respect." He expressed the belief that Senator Harding would lead an appeal to travel over the country.
After reading the interview Senator Harding said:
Harding Won't Change
"It is not surprising that there are differences of opinion as to the most effective way of running the campaign. I would feel sorry if we all had the same view."
"I have not had an opportunity to talk to Mr. Penrose personally. I recognize the merit of his statement. On the other hand, the country is calling for deliberate utterance, and that is the reason the 'front porch' campaign is so appealing to me."
The "front porch" campaign meets the approval of Chairman Hays of the Republican national committee, Gov. Coolidge and others.
Senator Harding discussed the Penrose interview after spending the morning with Coolidge and Hays. The three were closeted several hours.
Gov. Coolidge took breakfast with Senator and Mrs. Harding at their home. The candidates posed for the movie men. They were photographed eating breakfast, shaking hands and in various other attitudes.
In front of the Harding residence, the presidential nominee stopped to pick a four-leaf clover, which she placed in the lapel of Gov. Coolidge's coat.
Wants Vice-President's Aid
Following their conference at the capital later, Senator Harding issued the following statement:
"Gov. Coolidge breakfasted with me this morning, and we have agreed that we will base the campaign on an appeal to restore party government as a constitutional substitute for personal government. The governor and I have each served as lieutenant governors in our states and we have both learned from experience how possible it is for the second official in a state to be a helpful part in a party administration. I think the vice-president should be more than a mere substitute in waiting.

"In re-establishing co-ordination between the executive office and the senate the vice-president can and ought to play a big part, and I have been telling Gov. Coolidge how much I wish him to be, not only a participant in the campaign, but to be a helpful part of a Republican administration. The country needs the counsel and becoming participation in government of such men as Gov. Coolidge."
Gov. Coolidge said:
"It is not a new experience for me to campaign with Senator Harding. We have been campaigning in Massachusetts together for years. I suppose he is better known to me than any other member of the senate, outside our state.
Coolidge Will Co-operate
"I am here to co-operate with my associate. We have many problems ahead. Many men have many remedies. The best remedy is the observance of the constitution and the laws, not their enforcement, mind you. I am not now speaking of that. Of course, the government will enforce the laws. That is far from enough. There must be a return of public opinion toward a self-control by the people, toward a great and overmastering desire to observe the law. When that is done the other problems will fall away—there will be peace, prosperity and progress."
The Republican nominees shook hands outside Harding's office with twenty-four school girls from Corning, N. Y., and several other who congregated in the corridor. The line was presented to Senator Harding by his bodyguard, and by the Senator in turn to Gov. Coolidge.
The candidates were greeted by David V. Howell, 86 years old, of Monroe, N. Y., who said he had voted or worked for every Republican presidential candidate since Gen. Fremont in 1856.
Before returning to Boston, Gov. Coolidge urged the interstate commerce commission today to provide relief from the coal shortage for New England.
Chairman Hays referred to Senator Harding as "the motorman of this campaign."
Senator Harding devoted some time today to the preparation of his speech of acceptance, discussing financial and business conditions with George M. Reynolds, a Chicago banker.

PINE ST. HAS FIRST BLOCK OF WHITE WAY

Work was started today on the first block of what may be extended into a "white way" system for Ranger. Eight light clusters, with ornamental iron posts and three light globes to the post, will be in stalled on Pine street, between Austin and Marston streets. Four will be on each side of the street.

D. R. Merchison, E. A. Rindold, M. H. Smith, J. B. Aimes, Leon Wilson, the Republic Supply company and Elmer Lawrence, all property owners of the block, contributed the money for the light system. The project was developed and the subscription raised by C. Q. Rodgers and other members of the Western Electric company, with offices on Pine street. Mr. Rodgers will have charge of the work of installing the lights. He is contributing his time and expert services free of cost.
Under the terms of the arrangement, tenants of the buildings along the block will pay the cost of the light current. Mr. Rodgers stated this morning that an effort will be made to secure a special rate from the electric plant for the street lights.

The design of the posts and lights is artistic and the effect will be pretty. The cost is not prohibitive, Mr. Rodgers says. Property owners in other blocks have signified their willingness to raise money for an extension of the system.

BUYERS SHOULD GET BILLS OF SALE WITH USED AUTOMOBILES

In view of the fact that so many complaints have been received by Secretary of State James R. Noland of Colorado from purchasers of used automobiles, to the effect that they have been unable to obtain a bill of sale or certificate of ownership, the secretary has issued a general warning to all intending purchasers of used automobiles, setting out that such purchasers should refuse to pay money for used cars and should refuse to accept the delivery of a used car unless the parties selling same furnish either a certificate of ownership or bill of sale, and all assignments thereof, if any, since March 19, 1920.
The state motor department, Secretary Noland adds, or any county clerk in Colorado will be glad to pass upon the regularity of all these documents. The penalty for purchasing a car without a legal bill of sale, etc., calls for a fine $500.

Nitros Nab Both Ends of Holiday Program 5-3, 2-1

SCOUTS TODAY, TOMORROW

The winning Nitros, with five straight victories behind them, tie into Manager Carson's Scouts again today, and tonight when they are on the road again, for three up series with Abilene.

Holiday fans who thronged Municipal park yesterday saw the winning Nitros tighten their hold on first place, make it five straight victories in a row and eleven games out of the best twelve.

It was done by the so-called weak end of the batting order, as they performed yesterday, it is not fair to call it the weak end. All of the pinch hitting, most of the hitting and all but one of the scores were made by the last five men out of the duzant.

Though both games were deservingly Ranger victories, some credit is due Charlie Barrett, formerly in Nitro, and apparently still with a warm feeling for his old home club, Charlie, now pitching for the Scouts, doing us into three runs of our total of seven.

Two of those he heaved into our half of the score were the first game and the last, the first was the one that secured the post-game, for victory, on Thursday.

The second game was more than matched the first, for Smokey Barrett, a catcher that he was under the eye of Charlie Barrett, injury lawyer for the St. Louis Cardinals, was wild, which is a terrible new trait to him. Usually he comes thru a game with no passes, or one or two.

Yesterday just re-proved it. Yesterday just re-proved it. Yesterday just re-proved it. Yesterday just re-proved it. Yesterday just re-proved it.

Why Jim Smiles. Nick Carter, recovered from the illness of Saturday night, went out in the first game. It was the third game he has pitched for the Nitros. Likewise, in the same connection, it might be mentioned that not an injured pitcher, was scored by his out curve and inshoot and drop, as you might say. The three tallies that the Scouts hung up were presents from one and another of the Nitros.

Manager Carson and his boys had some trouble with Empire Sorrells. In the first frame up, disagreed with Sorrells on called third strike and Fagg played the rest of that game outside. Johnson took his place at short and Jim three Neely out at the plate, but Penn dropped the ball.

Ranger evened it up in the second, on Tate's hot smash to third, a theft of second while Kotelzniek was untangling himself to pitch and Mason's two-base drive past third.

Mason, who played the snappiest game at second and at bat that has been seen in these parts for some time, made his one boot in the fourth, giving Faye a life, after one was down. Johnson singled him to third and Earnshaw rolled out a punt that scored him.

The last gift came after one was out in the seventh. Chapman singled and Sneeze Kotelzniek followed with a single to center. Chappie went for third as Mooney was slow in playing the ball, and Dude's throw went wide. Chappie scored and Kolly reached first. He was caught in a snappy chase when Thrash hit to Joe, Jim and Penn assisting in his demise.

Wilyum was the means of tying the score, two all, in the eighth. Kotelzniek, for the opening blow of the frame, Kotelzniek wild pitched him around.

Griesenbeck robbed Mooney of a hit by a unemanet one-hand stab to start the sixth, and then dived off Jim, without help. Tate walked. Loydace, beat out a tap to Tim. Mason walked. With the sacks jammed, two out, Chappie let a pitched ball by him and scampered after it. Tate dashed home, and Chappie's throw went by Kotelzniek, his hands advancing one peg. Then Kolly heaved Loydace home, on another past Chappie. Chappie recovered it and wild heaved it back at Kolly. Tit for tat, Mason scored. It was well it happened that way, for Wilyum whiffed.

Clopp's two bagger, which bounced off Earnshaw when he made a game try and Mooney's hot smash to short started another rally after two were down in the seventh. But John King was lying for Jim and sacked his drive to center. Boyer Wild This Time.

high. That thought was his ruin. Mooney relayed quickly to Jim and Faye went to the bench. Thrash walked, but Earnshaw rolled to Jim and was out.

In the third, Smoke got in a bad box. He walked Chapman, who was sacrificed to second by Billings. Chappie got third when Boyer took a throwback from Penn with one glove and let it go away. Fagg walked and stole. Neely relieved the tension by locking to York and Boyer fanned old John King. He passed the fourth and fifth nicely, one to two, three, with three Scouts nipping, Clopp, Loydace and Mason.

Loydace pried the lid off in the Nitro fifth with a double to the left. Mason followed with a punt that arched far shore and was hit head on by Earnshaw, the first out. Boyer cracked out a single for the first run of the game and took second on the throw-in. Mason being out at the plate in a close play, with a perfect pop by Neely. York leaped one that Faye watched pass and Boyer went to third. York stole and Chappie threw to center field. Smoke scoring, Clopp singled, but was out in a double steal. York trying for home as String made it for second. String made a mistake, running out of line.

Smoke was in trouble in the sixth. Fagg opened with a single. Neely walked. King advanced them both with an out inning by the boy and Griesenbeck watched the third strike over. It a fit of temper, he flung his bat over the fence, damaging a car parked outside, not because Sorrells called a bad strike on him, but as he admitted later, because he let a no noled up a foul fly to Clopp and Pemberton scored after the catch. King singled to center and Chappie dashed for the plate with the home run.

But Duke Mooney hit long a five that was the event of the day in the third. It came on the perfect hop to Penn who pulled it to Chappie and the game was over. Boss Charlie Barrett, Cardinal pitcher, had to admit that the fling was a humdrum.

More, he admitted Jim has a good club and is a prize manager. But he knew that. Yesterday just re-proved it.

Why Jim Smiles. Nick Carter, recovered from the illness of Saturday night, went out in the first game. It was the third game he has pitched for the Nitros. Chet Boyer went out in the second game and the big smoke dealer had lots of stuff, but was a little nervous. He felt the glance of the ivory hunter upon him and issued more passes in the one game, of seven innings, than he has in all of his games previously. He gave free transportation to seven Eagles. In this way he got into several bad jams, but pulled out of all of them.

The Eagles went hitless until the sixth. In the second, with one out, Smoke walked Faye, who stole and thought about going to third when Penn's throw was

NITRO NOTES. Mason played second base in a way that recalled the days when Jim was there. At that point, the entire field is all to the merrily. Here's what Mason did. In the first game, first round, he knocked down a hot grounder off Faye's bat, one-handed, and flung out the Scout. The Scout third baseman had a hit coming on it. Griesenbeck was on second and might have tallied had the ball gone through. And—

In the second inning, he handled one from Kotelzniek in almost the same territory, a hard chance, though not as nearly impossible as the first. He stopped King's wallop in the ninth, and though it went for a single, Mason, playing far back of first and wide of second, showed that he was covering the ground.

He took one on Billings for the third out, in the fifth frame of the second game, of the same sort. Tim Griesenbeck was chased out of the game for his exhibition in throwing away his bat. Faye took his place at first.

At bat, he two-based over the Nitros' first run, walked once and scored another and beat out a tap in the ninth of the first game, in the second, he got the Nitros' first hit and showed out a well done hunt that went for a hit and advanced Loydace in the winning inning. In the first game he batted .067 and in the second 1.000.

Clopp pulled a spectacular catch on Thrash in the third inning, first game. He went far back after it. Mooney had a similar play on Neely in the fifth. He caught the ball going back. Loydace made it completely by the most breathless catch of them all when he went back toward the fence and over to the foul line to commit highway robbery on Neely in the seventh.

Jack York furnished the fielding high spots, however, by a double play unassisted, in the eighth frame, first game. Faye drove high and hot over Jack, but Jack pulled it down with his glove hand and doubled Griesenbeck. Jack was hitting in hard luck, though he got his single in one at bat in the fifth inning, second game. Three times he drove out to John King, who was laying for his old manager and once Faye robbed him by taking a drive that had whippers on it as it seemed by third. Had it been a scant foot nearer the foul line it would have been a two-base hit.

When Tim Griesenbeck heaved his bat over the fence, in a small-boy wrath at taking a third strike in the pinch, the Judge inquired his name. When it was made known, a faint smile near the press perch remarked, "Well, that makes it easier to understand. Mebbe he got to brooding over it."

Tim is not long back in the game since his broken thumb improved. He is not hitting, at his clip yet and not taking any chances behind the bat, but playing first. Before his injury, he was a first-rate catcher—one of the best in the circuit.

When Umps Sorrells whisked off the plate at one stage of the second game, some queering fan was heard to ask, "Whattye do that for? You don't look at it after it is dusted."

The scorer was called into official play in the second game, to decide if York scored before Clopp was called out for running out of base line in a double theft. The decision was that he did not, which was the way impartial bugs saw it. But this business of deciding matters of that nature better rest with the ump, generally speaking. Sometimes the fans might not agree and the scorer is in no hurry to realize on his insurance. It happened that Sorrells had his back turned, to get the play on Clopp at second and could not watch the plate and second at the same time.

Manager Tom Carson of the Scouts also tried to drag the b.b. reporter into it on whether or not the count was three and two on Mason when the last ball was pitched to him in the sixth round, first game. But that was none of the scorer's business. That's up to the ump and if he don't know, ask the bat-boy of the visiting club, or Fat.

Tom has had the Scouts just ten days and they are showing considerable fight. He was manager of the Waco club in the Texas league and has had player experience with Chattanooga in the Southern and in South Atlantic and Pacific Coast time. He was a bang-up catcher when he played.

Loydace looked bad when he tried the squeeze in the fourth, first game. One down, score 21 for Cisco, and tying run on third. He missed it on the third strike. The double-jointed blow which started the winning rally, fifth inning, second game, looked as good as the other looked otherwise.

Tate made Kotelzniek look foolish when he snared second in the sixth frame, first game. The southpaw, with all the advantage in holding a runner on first, let Judy take second right under his nose. It was so sure that Chappie didn't even try the throw.

EAGLES HELP OUR BOYS; DROP TWO GAMES ON HOLIDAY

Spical to The Times. ABILENE, July 5.—Old man Jinx hovered over the Abilene Eagles today and they dropped both games of a double bill to the Gorman Buddies, the first count being 5 to 0, and the second 1 to 0.

Bunching of blows in the second frame of the first game and these coupled with an error on the part of the locals put over four counts, which were sufficient to clinch the matter.

In the eighth frame of this game Gresset let off with a single and Sturdy's sacrifice fly brought him jogging across the park.

In the second Bill Kizziar's error at first let in the Buddies one run and the only center of the game. The Jinx hovered closely over the badly crippled Eagles in the sixth frame of the second game when Kizziar started in on a squeeze play from third and wrenched his knee and ankle so badly that he was unable to continue on his way. It was the best chance of the game for a score.

Charlie Barrett, Cardinal Scout, Inspects Nitros

Ivory hunters from the big time are making their stealthy ways through the West Texas circuit. Three have dropped off in Nitro town in the last few days. Doyle and Don Curtis, the latter scouting for the Pittsburgh Pirates, sneaked in and out Sunday and Charlie Barrett, veteran rookie snatcher for the St. Louis Cardinals, watched Ranger take a couple from the Scouts yesterday.

He had his eye on Chet Boyer and thought the big boy was at his worst, what Charlie thought of him was good. What he said about him in a fainting bee at the Hotel Theodore last night was not much, for Charlie seemed willing to talk about most everything else but individual Nitros.

The boss searcher of the bushes, formerly with the Browns and Tigers and now again with his old love, the Cardinals, is completing his southern swing of the minors. He has worked the American Association, the Three I, the Southern, part of the Western association and now, after a look at the class of the West Texas league, is down to complete the southern half of the Texas, before winding up the West Texas.

A man of rare judgment (he backed up the b. b. reporter's judgment on the play on the plate in the double theft of the second game Monday), Charlie also is filled with baseball lore.

He knows the gossip of the Western and the Southern, and the rest, knows all the boys you used to know, and can tell you that Bobby Allen Jr. is now mopping up as a cotton broker, while his worthy father still heads the Travellers in the Southern and is doing well, though in bad odor because of his taking on two discards from the Frisco Seals who were let go for cause. He says that good looking youngsters in class AA and class A are as seldom as skid chains on an airplane and that the real hope of the majors now lies out in the younger leagues.

There's a reason for this, as Charlie presents it. He tells it this way: "No new players were developed during the war and the American association, the Southern, and the Western are filled with veterans. I ran through a list of the youngsters in the Southern in the Sporting News and counted just eight. I saw all of them last year. What's the use of looking 'em over again?"

It's in this company that the promising players will be developed. Walter Morris and I were talking over this and I recommended that the Texas league increase its player limit to twenty-one and each club carry five or six youngsters with the idea of giving them baseball knowledge. He says the idea is good."

On the old question of relative speed in the Texas and Southern, Charlie holds that the Texas has

COX FINALLY WINS.

Cox's nomination by the Democratic National convention was surprising in many ways, and resulted from machinations in the party or among the leaders that will probably not be fully explained until the campaign is well advanced.

But even at his most successful period his station was far below the highest Cox had previously attained, 468 on the fifteenth ballot. It was then that his support weakened slightly and although he continued in the lead through more than fifteen ballots, there was a regular decline.

On many of these ballots neither McAdoo or Palmer gained the delegates who deserted Cox; they were obviously going to favorite sons and dark horses. During the evening, however, the McAdoo forces seem to have effected a reorganization and on the thirteenth ballot had passed Cox, who dropped to below 400 votes.

draw. It was well known that Cox forces considered the nomination of McAdoo a national calamity and that McAdoo forces would not, on the other hand, countenance Cox's nomination. As a matter of fact, both forces jockeyed for position in the Palmer race.

date, stoutly claiming for him chances of success. If that organization had anything up its sleeve, it could not have been in very definite form for otherwise the convention would not have run over Saturday night.

What action was taken was abrupt, and surprising. Whether it is wise or not is a question to be determined during the campaign. There are two Ohio candidates in the field. Even the home state of the candidate of each party is to be contested.

tablespoons candied orange peel finely chopped, whites of 2 eggs. Add the ingredients in the order given (sifting together the flour and baking powder) and bake in an angel cake tin.

Ornamental Frosting for Birthday Cakes.—Four egg-whites, 4 cups confectioners' sugar, 1-3 teaspoon cream of tartar. Beat the egg-whites with 1/2 cup of sugar for 3 minutes, then begin adding sugar gradually till half the remainder is used; add the cream of tartar with 1 more cup of sugar and after beating well, containing adding the rest of the sugar gradually till it is gone—when a knife should make a "clean cut" in the frosting. Spread on the cake.

Answer.—Of course the most delightful showers are those which come as a complete surprise to the coming bride. Have the guests gather in your home far in advance of the hour when you have asked the bride-to-be to "run over for a moment" and have them help you hide their gifts in strange places with a ribbon or thread running from each gift to the living room—where the bride-to-be will be invited to follow the ribbons to their termination. doesn't make any difference whether he Major Pole Cat did not care to use any force, so Lady Duck just picked Mr. Black Snake up with her bill and carried him to the light. He protested some, but that made little difference to Lady Duck. And that was just the reason why Dr. Coon liked to have Lady Duck take care of his patients—for whatever had to be done, she never hesitated but always did it, and then it was over with.

Dr. Coon, as well as the King, was surprised to see the Chief so soon. But the Doctor and Lady Duck straightened the dangerous Black Snake out on the ground and Chief Porky sat on his tail. "Major," said the Doctor, "you hold his head while I put a few plaitain leaves in his mouth so that I will not get poisoned."

Then Dr. Coon took the plaitain out of the patient's mouth and Major let his head down and Chief Porky arose from his tail, and Mr. Black went off into the Forest with tears in his eyes.

touches you, your soul will be sined by the destructive fires of temptation, of passion or abandon, and I doubt whether it will be in your power to prevent the contamination. To hear the devil talk, again means temptation; to see him smile, a most dangerous love affair. If the devil threatens you, you are safe—your morals, your character, that evil alignment can not turn you from the right path.

To dance with the devil is an ill omen of yielding to bad advice. To be led by him or to walk with him, falls in the same category—showing a willingness to stray from the path of heart-cleanness. At times it might seem as though the evil spirit had assumed a pleasing shape, so that your fears are set at rest and you are not frightened or disquieted. Yet do the same meanings hold good, for, as Shakespeare says:

"The devil hath power to assume a pleasing shape," and such masquerading, whether in your dreams or in life, should not deceive you. Dreams of hell are rare, when they do occur, they are usually confused and feverish. Never do they portray the future. They refer to the past and the present—they are the forerunners of punishment of sins found out, of penance to be done, for

BEAUTY HINTS

Bleaching Cream. A great deal can be done to modify the effects of the midsummer sun by using a bleaching cream on the face. One of the best is cucumber cold cream, which is made as follows: Cucumber Cream. Almond oil, 4 ounces; Spermaceti, 1 ounce; White wax, 1 ounce; Cucumber juice, 4 ounces; Powdered borax, 30 grains.

Cucumber Milk. Oil of sweet almonds, 4 ounces; Fresh cucumber juice, 12 ounces; Powdered castile soap, 14 ounce; Tincture of benzoin, 23 ounce. Shake these ingredients thoroughly together and keep in a bottle.

Lettuce cream, which is very soothing to a tanned or wind-irritated skin, is made the same way. So is iris cream, which is bleaching. But in this case the 4 ounces of liquid are made by extracting the juice from the fresh flowers and the whitish part of their stems, with enough of the deep purple flower petals added to tint the cream a violet color.

When he arrived at the Palace, Dr. Coon was there, and of course Lady Duck had been there all the night long waiting for Dr. Coon to come. "Now," said the doctor, "you will have to call Chief Porky, for it will be necessary to have some one here to hold Mr. Black Snake's tail, and Chief Pork can just sit on it and that will be all that is needed."

WE CLAMBERED down, THROUGH HEAVY thickets, AND WE rowed the boat, OUT to a rocky ledge, WHERE BLACK bass hide, THEN JOE let out a roar, FOR HIS cigar box, HAD FISH lines in it, INSTEAD OF smokes, AND HE refused with scorn, OUR CIGARETTES, HE SAID they were not, EVEN FIT for bait, HE'D HAVE a man's smoke, OR NOTHING, AND FOR an hour, HE GOT nothing, NOT EVEN a bite, WHILE WE pulled 'em in, AT LAST he grunted, "GIMME A cigarette," AND IT just happened, HIS LUCK changed then, SO NOW Joe swears, THAT THOSE cigarettes, WERE SO blamed good, HE BAITED a hook, WITH ONE of them, AND CAUGHT a whale, PARTICULAR FISH, he says, HIMSELF AMONG them, ARE JUST the sort, THAT THEY satisfy.

SAYS NEED OF AD HAS LONG BEEN IGNORED

LONDON, July 6.-Nathan Straus of New York, told the international Zionist conference here that the Straus health bureau in Palestine had supplied a need that had been ignored for hundreds of years by a criminally indifferent government...

The only problem which took precedence over the health question was the feeding of the hungry for which he said he established a free soup kitchen in Jerusalem which up to now, has been feeding 700 to 1,000 persons daily. Members of the conference returned from Palestine, he said, had told him that his soup kitchen was "the brightest spot in the Holy City."

Mr. Straus reviewed the fight conducted against malaria by the health bureau in and around Jerusalem in 1916 and 1917, which he said "nipped the cholera epidemic in the bud." Clinics were opened in five districts and injection of anti-malaria prophylaxis given to all children while school children were inoculated by nurses sent by the health bureau into districts. In all 30,750 persons were given preventive injections against malaria. Typhoid prophylaxis also was prepared and administered.

More than 38,000 persons were examined to ascertain if they were affected with malaria and where the reaction was positive, quinine was given free of cost. The water in cisterns used for drinking purposes was examined and a museum of hygiene was established. In combating trachoma, Mr. Straus said, the health bureau treated 441,874 cases and an attempt was made to examine the eyes of all children who could be reached so as to identify that disease which was prevalent in Palestine. A Friday hospital for eye diseases was opened and the campaign was extended into the towns and colonies outside of Jerusalem, nurses being sent to various places. Aid also was given to the poor of the Jewish population was expelled from Jaffa. Mr. Straus said that the health bureau had proved its efficiency and that he hoped its services would increase and become greater in the rehabilitation of the Holy Land, a blessing to the people irrespective of race, color or religion.

WANTS YOUTH OF ARGENTINA SENT TO SCHOOLS HERE

Buenos Aires, June 8.- (By Mail)-Young Argentines by the thousands ought to be sent to North American universities, says La Prensa. "In order to assimilate the manners of work, the methods of scientific investigation, the rapidity of scientific and above all of the progress of the Argentine youth who have returned from North American centers of learning."

The character of Argentine energy is not a consequence, continues La Prensa, "of an imitation of the pushing North American life. Our progress is due to our efforts, the effort of Argentines and assimilated foreigners who reside among us. Even the progressive and agile French learned a lesson in celerity of initiative from the United States during the war, says the paper, adding the initiative of Argentines "suffers from that slowness, that excess of criticism, those discouragements and vacillations peculiar to the Latin race."

BAIRD, July 5.-Eugene Carter Bell post, No. 88, of the American Legion collected considerable money Friday and Saturday during the Independence Day celebration, when a combination carnival and rodeo dance was put on.

The rodeo were held in an amphitheatre prepared in the Ross pasture half a mile north of the courthouse. Each afternoon stores and other business places were closed from two to four while the rodeo was on and during each evening practically the entire population was at the dancing arena.

The legion fund was raised by a tag sale conducted by girls and young women who succeeded in tagging practically every person at the fair. The twenty-third attempt was made to ride Baldy Ables, the bucking steed, but this cowboy, following the example of his twenty-two predecessors and Don Quixote, rolled ingloriously in the dust, for Baldy Ables is the buckingest animal in the West.

Turn About is Fair Play. The following is told of a late railway magnate and prominent Philadelphia lawyer: "I want you to show that this law is unconstitutional. Do you think you can manage it?" "Easily," said the lawyer. "Well, go ahead and get familiar with the case."

Mother Hubbard's Dog. Mary's teacher one day asked her to draw a picture of Old Mother Hubbard's house, showing Old Mother Hubbard and her dog. Very quickly Mary drew the rough outlines of what was supposed to be a house, placing the crude form of Old Mother Hubbard and her dog. Then, with a self-satisfied air, she handed her finished product to the teacher. "That is very good, Mary," commented the teacher, as she looked at the drawing. "But where is the dog?" "Oh, the dog is in the house," promptly replied Mary.-Indianapolis News.

Ready-Made. Little Betty went to visit her grandmother in the country. Just before dinner she discovered that chicken was to be the principal attraction. "Oh, where'd you get the chicken, grandmother?" Betty asked, excitedly. "In the chicken house," her mother replied. "You remember the chickens you saw this morning, don't you?" "Do you mean the ones I fed?" "Certainly. Well, we killed one of them."

Booze Runners Rush Products Through Woods

International News Service.
ISLAND POND, Vt., July 5.—Hundred of men, many of them armed and desperate, are engaged in smuggling liquor into the United States and Canada, according to customs officials here.

In a small weather-beaten customs office far from the usual run of travel, in a world apart, a world of forest, mountains and silent lakes, a steady-eyed, wiry veteran of many encounters with smuggling bands, told of the activities of the liquor runners. On every hand were woods, and the officer swept his arm outward as he said:

"This border runs for hundreds of miles like this mostly forest, from here up around the state of Maine to the sea. We have a fact that gangs are smuggling liquor across the whole boundary.

"We do what we can—do all within our power; but there should be at least 10 men on border duty alone. I think that customs officers are best able to get the border and know how to keep track on what is going on. The liquor smuggled over the line, to greater extent, is done in packs carried by groups of men, sometimes three and sometimes more. Ahead of the carriers, a man marches alone to give a warning in case of surprise or signs of a suspicious nature.

"Sometimes when there is an unusually heavy traffic another guard follows up in the rear. In some cases these men are armed, in others they are relying on their knowledge of woodcraft to circumvent capture.

"In any event it is a dangerous task. We have had a number of seizures, but the work is beyond the scope of the few men who are engaged in enforcing the laws about here.

"Quebec is a dry country. The liquor smuggled over the line is in many cases contraband even in Canada. We have seized liquor which had neither the Canadian revenue stamp nor seals. Some of the liquor analyzed by our state authorities in Vermont was reported not fit for human consumption. While some sections of Canada have a local option to sell light wines and beers, throughout this section to the north the sale of whiskey is a violation of their laws, as it is a violation of our own."

HORSE RACING IN PARIS ONE REVENUE PLAN

PARIS, July 6.—So many queer looking races (despised outsiders defeating illustrious horses) have been uncovered at the metropolitan tracks since the opening of the racing season that Baron Maurice de Rothschild, himself one of the largest owners in France, as well as deputy for Pau, has brought the matter to the attention of the French chamber. Baron de Rothschild has asked the chamber to pass a law for the suppression of bookmaking in Paris and largest cities in France, the books to be replaced by pari-mutuel booths in the cities.

The French government receives ten per cent on all money taken in at the pari-mutuel booths at the various tracks. As the amounts bet at the different tracks vary from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 francs daily the French government derives from the racing industry a revenue of between 500,000 and 1,000,000 francs per day.

Baron de Rothschild said in the French chamber that more money was bet with the books operating in Paris each day than at the tracks, estimating that 10,000,000 francs per day were wagered in the city alone. This is a net loss of 1,000,000 francs a day for the government. He charged that several races had been run with such flagrant evidence of crookedness that had such racing been attempted in England or America, the owners, trainers or jockeys would have been ruled off the turf for life.

It has been alleged that the bookmakers gather in all the city money in the forenoon, not being accepted under any circumstances after 1 o'clock. This gives the ample time to journey to the race track and, if they find that they are over-loaded on any one horse and stand to lose too much, to use a little persuasion on the jockey piloting the animal.

Jockey Brethot has just been ruled off for life. He was up on Zizanie II, an overwhelming favorite with the public. He did not finish in the money and his bad riding was so evident, he was an apprentice jockey, not an expert in the game of pulling a horse) that the judges summoned him into the stand. He promptly admitted having pulled the horse but claimed not to be acquainted with the man who had made it worth his while to lose the race.

This is one instance out of many which Baron de Rothschild says will kill racing in France unless the government takes stern measures for the suppression of bookmaking in Paris.

FORE! WARREN AND WOODY WOULD MAKE GOOD MATCH

International News Service.
WASHINGTON, July 3.—Warren G. Harding, Republican nominee for the presidency, and President Wilson may be matched for a nine-hole golf match. They use the same links, those of the Washington Golf and Country club, at Jewell, on the Virginia side of the Potomac, and are equally handicapped by the club's professional.

According to George Washington Ferguson and Milton Warner, caddies who usually carry the President's and the presidential nominee's clubs, a match between the two would be one of the most interesting contests ever staged.

A discussion between caddies as to the probable outcome of such a match narrowly missed ending in a free-for-all fight.

"'Deed, boss, ah thinks Senath Hardin' plays better'n President Wilson," declared George Washington Ferguson. "He done made a 90 last week, and that's better'n President Wilson evah made," he stated emphatically.

This remark brought forth a vigorous protest from Milton Warner, who is a Virginian and comes from a line of ancestors that helped make the Solid South solid.

"G'wan, nigger, you're crazy," he yelled. "Senator Harding never saw a 90 since he has been playing golf, and if he can't President any better'n he can golf, I feel sorry for him."

"Aw, he won't be President, no-how," chipped in another Virginian of 13 or thereabouts. "My paw says Mickeydoo'll knock the slats off'n him at the 'lections."

However, the fact remains that Senator Harding is an ardent golf fan, and regardless of how "punk" his score may be he gets a lot of real pleasure and wholesome exercise out of the game.

In addition to golf, Senator Harding, according to his own admission, is very fond of the ancient and honorable American pastime of poker. There is no data on file at the congressional library to indicate what degree of skill he possesses in that department of artistic endeavor.

THE WOMAN WHO SAW

Better Than a Sermon
In the rest room of the Lackawanna station at Hoboken the Woman was huddled a half hour until train time with the aid of an easy chair and a magazine. In the brief absence of the doctor, the place, a motherly colored woman, a detestable from the street, drifted in, trying to efface herself as much as possible in the darkest corner of the room, keeping a wary lookout for the attendant. Her bedraggled satin dress, her fan shoes, down at the heel, were a fitting accompaniment to the watery, penciled eyes and drawn face, with the crimson splash on either cheek.

Hurriedly entered a young girl, going directly to the huge mirror on one side of the wall. Up went her veil, out from her bag came various artificial aids for nature, which she proceeded to use with practiced hand, regardless of on-lookers. Eyebrows received deft, darkening touches, cheeks rouge and powder, while lips were reddened into an approved Cupid's bow.

During the process the wait from the counter had shifted nearer, plainly fascinated. As the artist finished her masterpiece and peered into the mirror critically, inspecting the effect, a soiled hand reached out, touching her sleeve. "That's fine work, dearie!" came huskily with true admiration. "I don't take so much notice these days. But it's the way to get 'em, my dear. Take it from me, I know." The words ended with a chuckle broken by a gasping cough. The young girl drew away with a look of disgust, and the woman slunk away at the sight of the returning attendant, the girl's eyes followed her, taking in with comprehensive clearness the meaning and the howling artificial beautifiers. As the girl passed out, a certain dignity seemed to have replaced the swaggering walk with which she had entered the room a short time before.

The Dramatic Moment
The youthful war veterans in the office were regaling each other with their overseas experiences, and the Business Girl, who often came to hang in when she listens to them, remarked that it must have been a thrilling moment when the Asagutania nosed her way up the bay and assumed the Statue of Liberty.

"Well," laughed the ex-sergeant, "that moment was spoiled for me by a buddy who was an inveterate gum chewer. As we leaned over the rail, hungry for a sign of the old town, he nudged me, and exhibiting a large wad of chewing gum, inquired: 'See this gum? Well, it's been in three countries, but it was made in America, and it's darn glad to be home.'

Test of Success
"Funny thing about success," remarked the Girl from Indiana. "You think it's measured by the things you get in front of or your salary, but I guess the big test is in the clothes you wear home."

The Woman waited with interest for an explanation.

"About the third month I was in New York I had a story accepted and wrote home that I was a success. The folks wanted me to come home and bask in my glory for a week or two, so of course I went. But I didn't get the uproarious ovation I expected. You see I wore the same suit I had gone away in, and no matter what I had done every one felt a little cheated to have me return in the identical little blue serge, even if my eyebrows were entirely different. They expected at least a squirrel coat and a permanent wave."

"I know," smiled the Woman.

"Then I came back and got a salary—forty dollars a week," went on the Girl, "and was convinced personally that I had arrived. But again there was the matter of clothes. Instead of buying sufficed parcels and doctored stockings I was writing home asking mother if she'd throw away that plaid suit I had five years ago and to send on the old blue velvet pretties. I was going to make an evening cloak out of this. After that I couldn't persuade my home folks that I'm climbing fast, because they don't think I'm even within commuting distance of the 'tadder.' And I would like to make a little ripple back in the hinterland."

"Don't you think you can ever redeem yourself?" asked the Woman.

"Only one hope," sighed the Girl. "After rents go down and salaries go up, I'll save for a year or two and then buy all the scandalous, dashing sort of clothes they fear and hope I will buy, and then I'll go home," supplemented the Woman.

"N—no," reflected the Girl from Indiana. "I'll stay in New York. Because if I do all that I would be a real success—and there's no sense in running away from success, is there?"

"Yes, Sleekie Cowarin', Timorous Beattie!"

Goaded to rebellion by the growing impertinence of a mouse family inhabiting the walls of her apartment, the Sensitive Soul angrily baited a trap before retiring. It took a great deal to drive her to this resort, for she shrank from carnage. But when one inquisitive little gray atom hurried right across the library floor and vanished into a crack in the corner, the Sensitive Soul decided that the time for action was at hand.

So the dastard deed was determined upon. The trap was set on retiring. It was one of those cheap but effectively final affairs; either the mouse was caught and killed or missed and merry. Of course, there was the dreadful episode of disposing of the remains, but Heartless Husband didn't mind attending to that.
