WEST TEXAS COWBOYS STARTLE CHICAGO TEXAS PANHANDLE IS ROCKED BY EARTHQUAKE

EARTH TREMORS DRIVE PEOPLE FROM HOMES

Amarillo and Clarendon Feel Two Spasms and Lawton, Okl., Feels One

By United Press.
AMARILLO, July 30.—The flat panhandle section of Texas was shaken by two distinct earth tremors shortly after 6 o'clock today. Reports received here from cities and outlying towns of the panhandle indicate the quakes were general from the western Oklahoma line to New Mexico. No damage has been recorded.

Quakes were recorded at Clarendon coming at 6:05 and 6:10 a. m., neither causing damage.

Amarillo was shaken for 30 seconds at 6:12 a. m. A rapid telegraphic survey of the affected region shows that they were not felt or recorded outside the panhandle country. Seismograph stations at Tucson, Denver, and St. Louis, have not reported any disturbance, according to reports.

The undulations of the earth caused many persons to flee from their homes, due to the novelty of the situation rather than fear.

EARTHQUAKE IS FELT AT LAWTON, OKLAHOMA

By United Press.
LAWTON, Okla., July 30.—An earth tremor was distinctly felt here this morning at 6:15. One woman, who was in Santa Barbara during the recent disturbances there, reported that her bed rocked just as if it was being rocked by a strong man.

AMARILLO MAN BUYS EARTHQUAKE INSURANCE

By United Press.
AMARILLO, July 30.—At least one person took the earth tremors seriously, and when he had satisfied himself of his own safety, took steps to protect his property. A local insurance company reported having written an earthquake policy about 7 o'clock, just an hour after the first tremor.

Mrs. Coolidge to Make Bedspread for Gift to White House

SWAMPSCOTT, Mass., July 30.—A white knitted bed spread bearing the great seal of the United States worked into its center and measuring 7 feet by 5 over all, will be Mrs. Coolidge's contribution to the white house.

The work, which will require 18 months of Mrs. Coolidge's spare time, marks a revival of the old custom of the first ladies of the land, leaving a piece of handwork at the white house as an heirloom to the nation. The custom began with the wife of President Madison and continued down to and included Mrs. McKinley. Most of these historic relics are now placed in glass cases in the white house show room.

When finished, the Coolidge bed spread will be placed on one of the big four posters in the state bed room of the white house.

Mrs. Coolidge has already obtained ten one-pound balls of long South Sea Island cotton, very smooth and silky, for the work.

Young Woman Tanned and Feathered By Women In Louisiana

By United Press.
SHREVEPORT, La., July 30.—Details were lacking here today in connection with the alleged mistreatment of a young woman at Eros, in Jackson parish, by other women early in the week.

A coat of tar and feathers was applied to the victim, who was then ordered to leave the town at once. A. B. Davis, city marshal at Eros, indicated that no charges would be filed.

By United Press.
SHREVEPORT, La., July 30.—The motive for the attack on Miss Mary Simms, 21, formerly of El Dorado, Ark., who was attacked by a mob of 30 women and tarred and feathered at Eros, La., near here Monday, is believed by officers to have been prompted by revenge on the part of one woman in the mob. It is reported that the woman who organized and led the mob to attack Miss Simms, attacked her two weeks ago and ordered her to leave the country because of alleged relationship with her husband. No charges have been filed.

A bounteous picnic dinner was served on the tables under the arbor on the banks of Lake Cisco. Other speeches on this occasion were given by W. D. R. Owen and Mrs. R. H. Bush of Eastland; Sam Murphy of Carbon, Mr. Kitzell and Mrs. Anderson of Cisco and V. V. Cooper and J. N. McFatter, Ranger. The organization was made permanent with much enthusiasm and it was unanimously voted to hold the next meeting at Cisco one year from date. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Police Dog Named "Joy" Is Given to Huntsville Prison

AUSTIN, July 30.—A full blooded police puppy, six weeks old, is the gift of the defense league to the State Prison at Huntsville to cheer the inmates of that institution. The tender of the dog was made in a telegram to the governor from Theo D. Meyer, of Houston, President of the league and it was accepted. The telegram read:

"The Humane Defense League is the owner of a full blooded police puppy six weeks old and we ask you to accept this dog, 'Joy' for all the inmates of the Huntsville prison to be a messenger of hope, whose very presence among the men will be enabling, a loving counselor to cheer the lives of these long prison friends. MURDERERS, TOO LATE, DISCOVER MISTAKE MADE

Beat Wife to Death in View of Man, Believing Him to Be Another.

NEW YORK, July 30.—Two shadowy outlines appeared in the window of the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Louise Leonard early today. Mrs. Leonard, aroused by a noise, was terrified. A moment later strong arms held her powerless and then saw her husband beaten to death with hammer and heard the thud of the blows.

NATURALLY THE JUDGE LIKED NOT BEING CALLED A MONKEY

DALLAS, July 30.—A sweet young thing who had won the sympathy of court room admirers, and who was incidentally charged with vagrancy and fined, allowed her impulsiveness to "cost her" the other day, when she offended the judge.

Sympathizers had talked the judge into remitting her fine and letting her go because she had a good face, and when one stranger who thought well of her looks went over to tell her about it, she surprised him with her attitude.

"You go tell that old gonilla to pour it on me and see if I give a damn!" she told him.

But he didn't have to tell the judge. He heard it. And being a judge with the natural amount of dignified bearing, he objected to the allegation that he might have been a direct descendant of Adam.

Her request to have it "poured on" her wasn't disregarded. The judge kept the money.

FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE FOUND IN HARRIS COUNTY HERD

HOUSTON, July 30.—United States expert, Dr. Marion Innes, of Washington, announced today that cattle in Dr. William States Jacobs' ranch were suffering from the foot and mouth disease. He ordered the original herd of 100 head killed and their bodies burned today.

A rigid quarantine of cattle in Harris county has been ordered. Federal and state experts say they believe the plague will not spread from the ranch where it was found.

Captain, Mate and Crew of Civitan Club Working In Ranger

Judge L. C. Gorton, having organized a Civitan club in Ranger, of which he is president, vice president, secretary-treasurer, board of directors and membership, has started at once along a line of civic work which he expects to make as effective as civic work done by the Ranger Rotarians and Ranger Lions.

This energetic member of the Civitan club has begun his long program by cutting out the weeds that were growing alongside the Masonic building at Elm and Kusk streets in the space between the sidewalk and the curb. Crossing the street, he then removed some of the weeds that marred the approach to the postoffice. The sun poured down on his head, protected only by a broad-brimmed hat, and perspiration poured from him until his thin shirt clung to him like a bathing garment, but he worked undaunted.

According to Judge Gorton, the Civitan club in Ranger has a luncheon every day. "We eat what we want when we want it" might be the club member's motto. The Lions club having undertaken the care of the streets, the Rotarians of the boys, and both together of the parks, the Civitan club will see to the suppression of the weeds and has made a beginning.

BRYAN'S BODY ARRIVES IN WASHINGTON

Great Crowd Awaits Coming Of Funeral Train; Mrs. Bryan Shows Sorrow

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Surrounded by loving members of his family, William Jennings Bryan returned to Washington today on the last lap of his pilgrimage to the grave. The funeral train which bore him from the Tennessee mountain village where he died arrived here at 7:40 o'clock this morning.

At the journey's end of the Commoner's last journey a tribute awaited that showed how close he was to the hearts of the people. Approximately 1,000 persons crowded the great station to bid the body farewell. A large detail of police patrolled the station and a mounted squadron kept vehicles moving in the streets.

The body was not taken from the funeral car until all passengers had left the train and the platform had been cleared. The crowd kept growing steadily in numbers, and ropes were stretched to keep them away from the casket. All classes were represented, clergymen being noticeable among them.

Mrs. Bryan showed plainly the effect of her sorrow. Her face was pale and lined. She wore deep mourning and a thick black veil.

News Notes Gathered In Eastland County

The First State bank of Cisco has nationalized and in the future will be known as the First National.

Farmers in the territory southwest of Cisco between Stanton and Cisco report a good rain last Tuesday afternoon. In some parts the fall is reported to have been as much as one and one-half inches. The territory covered was limited, however.

The business and professional men of Rising Star have raised a fund approximating $1,000 with which to improve the road from that town to the Crosscut oil fields.

John Allen, farmer of the Nimrod community, reports that thieves are stealing his garden truck from his truck patches. A few nights ago he says he lost several dollars' worth of cabbage, tomatoes and other such vegetables.

A boxing match at Cisco tonight is to be the first of a series of four bouts that are being sponsored by the Cisco post of the American Legion.

C. M. Root et al. No. 1 Noble well, 6 miles southeast of Eastland, which came in some time ago as a big gasser and then was thought to have been ruined by the breaking in of salt water, is reported to be producing oil at present.

Deputy oil supervisors for the Electra, Graham, Cisco, Breckenridge, Wichita Falls and Eastland districts met Tuesday at Breckenridge for a conference, which was presided over by H. E. Bell, chief supervisor at Austin. The purpose of the meeting, it is stated, was to determine just what territory should be included in each individual district. This will be announced later by Supervisor Bell.

Chestnut and Smith have seven straight victories to their credit, having won all of the last seven games played. Eastland has a good team, too. In fact, they are very nearly matched, consequently a fast and hard-fought game is expected. It is probable that many of the Chestnut and Smith admirers will be in Eastland to see the game.

WHISKY IS CACHED UNDER RABBIT TRAP

Police Have the Liquor, But Do Not Know Who Placed It Where Found.

Police authorities today are in possession of six quarts of whisky which came to them in a roundabout way, and two alleged bootleggers are free on a $500 bond with the likelihood that no charges will be filed against them in the justice of the peace court. Two men arrested by the police when they were inquiring about a certain bird trap on Ranger heights, refused to acknowledge ownership of the whisky and the police are holding the liquor to see if an owner will be located.

The whisky was found in a bird trap by the son of a resident of Ranger heights. The trap had been set for birds or rabbits and was evidently known to the two alleged bootleggers, who placed the whisky under the trap. Some time after finding the whisky and turning it over to the police, the boy, who lives near the location of the trap, was questioned by two men about the bird trap, its location and purpose, but no mention of whisky was made.

However, the police arrested them. The lad remembered the two men and the number of their car. Taken before Justice of the Peace L. C. Gorton they were put under a $500 cash appearance bond, pending investigation of the case by the police. The men claim to have no knowledge of the liquor and said they were merely asking questions relating to a bird or rabbit trap, which they were curious about.

In a recent letter to Miss Beulah Speer, Eastland county superintendent, Mr. Marrs makes a correction of the dates for holding the examination, which should be Aug. 14 and 15 instead of Aug. 17 and 18.

SPECTACULAR GUN BATTLE IS BLOODY AFFRAY

Two of Bandit Gang Killed, Two Wounded and One Escapes.

CHICAGO, July 30.—James Woods, leader of five desperadoes that yesterday perpetrated Chicago's most spectacular gun battle and attempted robbery, was taken into custody today and confessed. Woods was arrested when he walked into a hospital and asked to be treated for bullet wounds. He was the second of the gang to be captured alive. Two others were shot to death by policemen and one is yet at large.

Two Texas cowboys, one a full-blooded Cherokee Indian who swaggered when he walked along the street, and three Chicago badmen, staging a battle with pistols and shotguns, women screaming, knocked down and fainting, policemen firing at the fleeing bandits, and an automobile chase through seven miles of congested traffic with a dead man at the finish, were incidents related to the police today by scores of witnesses.

F. B. Rowkey, a hotel clerk, was shot down by Tex Court, the Indian, in the office of the hotel where court had registered. Witnesses said Rowkey had offered no resistance and was shot simply because Court had become enraged when a girl had slammed a door in his face. Boasting that he was full of liquor, he thrust his gun through the grating. "We're from Texas," he belittled, and all in the corridor put their hands up.

The hold-up was a combination of wild west daring and the cunning of Chicago's gunmen. Court and Joe Holmes, cowboys from the K. K. ranch, near Sweetwater, came to Chicago and planned the raid with Woods, "Flew" Nelson and another badman. Court was slain by a policeman as he was fleeing. Holmes was cornered in the hotel kitchen as he tried to escape and beaten into insensibility. His gun had jammed, which may have prevented his wounding or killing the officers. Nelson was killed in the basement of a house seven miles away after a mad automobile chase. Woods was captured this morning without offering any resistance when he applied at the hospital for treatment.

Hundreds of police today are looking for Coe Mellenbach, 24, of New York, said to be the fifth member of the gang. Woods said he knew the man as Mellenbach.

Working with express speed the county grand jury met today and returned true bills against Jack Wilson, James Woods and J. W. Holmes, the latter of Texas, and Mullenbach of New York, connection with the spectacular raid on the fashionable Drake hotel yesterday. They are charged with the murder of Frank B. Rodkey, clerk at the hotel.

Mullenbach is still at large, while Wilson and Holmes have confessed to participating in the robbery. Considerable of the loot has been recovered. Hotel officials estimate the loss at about $7,000. State Attorney Crowe promised triple hang as an object lesson to criminals whose bold depredations have given Chicago the name of the "Gripe Capital of the World."

Police questioned Russell Scott two times given 11th hour reprieves to see if there was an relation between him and the Drake hold-up men. Wilson said that the card found in his pocket and used by R. Scott belonged to Mullenbach and that he did not know anything about it.

NEEDED A "BRACER" TO REFRESH HIS MEMORY

DALLAS, July 30.—Memory training would be fine thing for this guy. Or a little more temperance might do just as well.

When Plainclothesman Williams answered a call from a room at a local hotel, the visitor told him a story of woe, explaining that he had lost his wallet with $135 it contained, and that he was "cleaned out, without a chance to fight back."

They searched the room thoroughly, and the poor loser offered the officer a "bracer" to help him bear up under their mutual grief. And when he had sustained himself with a few strengtheners it seemed to affect the clarity of his perturbed mind. He remembered that he had left the money with the hotel clerk.

HE DRINKS WHAT HE WANTS THEN BECOMES VERY SAD

DALLAS, July 30.—"I was so hot I thought I would die befo' I got to the water cooler. Then I almost knew I was going to die after gettin' to it," a negro told doctors at the Emergency hospital where he was being treated for stomach cramps.

The darkey has learned finally, at 28 years of age, that one can overheat and cool off instantly. He says so.

STUDEBAKER Special Six Coach
 $658.70 down and 12 monthly payments of $109.80 each

Why the One-Profit* Coach Excels
 —it is engineered and built complete by one organization—Studebaker. It is a perfectly co-ordinated, harmonious unit. This means better performance, greater comfort and increased mileage at an accepted coach price

AN AUTOMOBILE, like any other highly specialized machine, runs more smoothly—lasts longer—gives greater satisfaction—when its thousands of elements are carefully co-ordinated into one harmonious unit.

Obviously, a better car can be produced when all vital parts are designed, engineered and manufactured by one organization.

The Studebaker car is built on this "one-profit" principle. Not only all the engines, but also all the bodies, and all the axles, gear sets, differentials, springs, clutches, steering gears, gray iron castings and drop forgings are manufactured in Studebaker plants. This is not true of any other automobile in the fine car field.

The Studebaker, therefore, being built as a unit—functions as a unit—with all of the advantages of unit over assembled construction.

"Coach" in name—Coupe in quality
 The Studebaker Special Six Coach is an outstanding example of the finer quality made possible by this "one-profit" principle of motor car manufacture.

This automobile is really a fine 5-passenger coupe, but is called a "coach" because it carries the lowest price at which an enclosed car has ever been sold on the famous Studebaker Special Six chassis.

In this Coach fine grades of upholstery are used. You'll find the same quality of workmanship and materials in all hidden places that you see out in the open.

Many of the superiorities of this Coach are invisible—and therefore all the more important. But here are some you can easily see and check against competing cars: gasoline gauge on the dash, 8-day clock, automatic windshield cleaner, rear view mirror, door pockets, rear window curtains, ash receiver, trunk rack, ornamental pull-cord, cowl ventilator, stop light, dome light; tire carrier locked by the same key that locks door, and the splendid coincidental lock to ignition and steering wheel. Lights are operated from a switch on the steering wheel which is left free for this convenience by the elimination of the spark lever. In all Studebakers the spark is automatically controlled by the speed of the motor.

In its insistence upon comfort, this car is typically Studebaker. There is comfort in the extra heavy cushions—in the big springs—in the full balloon tires for which steering gear, fenders, etc., have been specially designed—in the ease with which passengers may enter or leave the rear of the car—in the extra large windows and windshield.

You can buy all this style, comfort and performance at the price because this is the only "one-profit" coach on the market today.

Buy now—no "yearly models"
 You may buy this Coach today—or on any day of the year—with the assurance that there will be no "annual announcement" to make it artificially a "last year's model."

For Studebaker has discontinued the custom of presenting a new line of cars every year. Instead, Studebakers will be kept up to date all of the time. Therefore you can buy this Coach in safety NOW.

*By a "one-profit" car means a motor car that, in its vital parts, is manufactured by one organization—thus cutting out the extra profits and overheads which arise when vital parts are bought from others. There are only two cars that can be thus classified, because —of all the makes of passenger cars built in the United States, only "make all their own motors, bodies, clutches, springs, axles, gear sets, differentials, steering gear, gray iron castings and drop forgings." One of these is Studebaker and the other is Ford.

 Young Matrons' Sunday school class has watermelon feast at 7:30 p. m.

ANNOUNCEMENT.
 The party which was to have been given by the Philathea class of the Methodist church Tuesday evening was postponed on account of the rain and will be given tonight at 8 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. J. McFarland. Members will please take notice.

CHEERFUL WORKERS.
 The members of the Cheerful Workers of the Christian church met Monday afternoon with Mrs. Matthews, of South Rusk street. There was a round-table talk on "What Should a Christian Do About War?" This discussion was very instructive and interesting and many outstanding issues were brought out. Afterwards a social hour followed, during which time the hostess served refreshments. At this meeting it was agreed to have the lawn party, planned some time ago, but abandoned on account of the weather, on Saturday night, on the lawn of the church, at which time home-made cakes, candies and ice cream will be served.

PICNIC PARTY.
 Bass lake was the scene of a happily planned picnic last evening when several Ranger folks motored down for a swim in the lake and a bite to eat. Swimming was delightful and the picnic lunch, spread on the tables that the citizens of Gorman provide for the pleasure of visitors at the lake, consisted of fried chicken, gator, salads, stuffed eggs, sandwiches, pickles, olives, cheese, angel food cake, macaroons, and ice cold watermelon. After the lunch, one of the number entertained the rest of the party with fortune telling. About 11 o'clock cars were packed and the party wended its way back to Ranger. Those participating were Mr. and Mrs. Louis Fleck, Mrs. Early Northrup, Mrs. R. B. Campbell, Misses Mary and Frances Polvogt, Messrs. James McLaughlin, A. W. Taber, John Blower, Norman Blower of Florida, Guy Cummings.

PASTIME CLUB.
 A summer meeting of the Pastime club, Tuesday evening, with Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Craig, was very charming, coming just after the cooling rain of the afternoon. It seems that cool weather is always conducive to good bridge playing and adds a zest to the game, and this affair went off with every indication of wholesome pleasure from the time the first hand was dealt until good-nights were said. Mrs. R. T. Kendrick made ladies' high score and Mrs. A. N. Harkrider ladies' low score, while Dr. A. N. Harkrider made men's high score, and Mr. Frank Brown, men's low score, all receiving very attractive prizes. A salad course was served to the following members and

The FLAPPER WIFE

by Beatrice Burton © 1925 NEA SERVICE INC.

THE STORY SO FAR

Gloria Gordon, beautiful flapper, marries Dick Gregory, struggling young lawyer. Her idea of marriage is good times, good clothes—and no work or children!

Dick borrows his mother's maid, Maggie, to teach Gloria to cook. But she refuses to learn.

Dick has an attack of flu. While he is working at home with Miss Briggs, his secretary, Gloria plans a house-warming. She asks Stanley Wayburn, an actor with whom she was once in love, to be one of the guests. He accepts.

When Dick meets Wayburn he is instantly jealous, although the actor devotes himself to Mrs. Gail. Gloria drinks too much, and faints away while dancing with Dr. John Seymour, whose wife, May, is in love with Jim Carewe. The party breaks up when Lola Hough scolds Bill, her husband, for petting Maggie, disgusted, quits her job and returns to Mother Gregory.

Then Gloria hires Ranghild Swanson, although Dick tells her they can't afford a maid. And she buys $400 worth of clothes. She is trying them on when Dick comes home.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Well, what have you been doing, buying out the town?" he asked. Gloria smiled. "Hardly that, dear-est," she said. "Just a dress or two."

She came toward him swaying like a model in a style-show. Her lips were pursed up for a kiss.

"Kissums sticky mouf," she said babyishly.

Dick kissed her with the utmost gravity.

"Where did you get all these clothes?" he asked.

"From my generous husband—I charged them to you," Gloria answered. "Now don't be cross, please. I really needed a few things."

Dick frowned.

"But you just bought a new dress last week for your party," he said. "What's the matter with it?"

"Oh, that thing!" Gloria answered, her lips curling. "My old dressmaker made it—It had no style."

"I thought it was beautiful," Dick said helplessly.

Downstairs Ranghild was striking the Chinese dinner gong.

"You know, Dick," Gloria said after dinner as they sat before the wood fire in the living-room, "a woman needs more clothes than a man does."

Dick lowered his newspaper and looked at her.

"How much did you spend today?" he asked.

"Only a little bit over four hundred dollars," Gloria said.

"But wait until you see all the lovely bargains I picked up!" she cried before he had time to answer.

She ran upstairs and dressed herself in the new black velvet dress. Then she put on the cream-colored hat, and dabbed mimosas perfume behind her ears and under her chin.

"Don't I look like a million dollars?" she asked excitedly when she came down, again.

"You sure do," Dick admitted.

"But I want to show you something."

He took a black leather book from his inside coat pocket.

"Oh, don't show me figures, please," Gloria protested. "I don't understand them, and they make my head feel all fuzzy inside."

"These won't," Dick said. "Look here, I haven't four hundred dollars in my checking account! And I'm paying for some telephone company stock that I'm going to give you for your birthday."

"Oh, don't! I don't want it. Give me an automobile, instead!" Gloria cried, clasping her hands. "I've just got to have an automobile! May and Myra and all the girls have one!"

"May and Myra have rich husbands," Dick answered. "You've married a poor man, and you'll have to get used to being a poor man's wife—I'll teach you to drive my roadster, and you can use that to go to your bridge club and lunch parties."

Gloria pouted.

"I don't want that old ark," she said dearily. "I want a little closed car like the one your mother has."

"Give me time, and I'll be able to get things like that for you," Dick replied. "In another ten or fifteen years."

"Ten or fifteen years!" Gloria broke in. "Why, in ten or fifteen years I'll be an old woman! I won't care about parties and beautiful clothes, then!"

Dick laughed at her.

"You'll be a very attractive woman, in your early thirties," he said. "And you'll find that your taste for clothes will be just as strong as it is now—stronger, perhaps."

"In the meantime," he went on looking at her gravely, "you'll have to economize a little. Now, I want you to promise me that you'll never go downtown and run up bills on me again, without asking me about it first—Will you promise me that?"

Gloria looked him straight in the eye. Slowly she shook her head.

"No," she said clearly. "I won't make any such promise—for I know I'd break it. I'm going to have clothes—I won't look like a frump. Don't you want me to be as well-dressed as other women?"

"I can't say that I'm particularly crazy about having a clothes-horse for a wife," Dick answered picking up his paper. "And there's just one more thing I have to say—I can't be worried to death about bills and expenses at home, and do anything like my best work downtown every day."

Gloria smoothed down the folds of her black velvet dress thoughtfully.

"Other men seem to buy their wives an occasional dress or two," she remarked with cutting sarcasm. "And I don't notice that they crack under the strain. Good-night, I think I'll go to bed. There's no use trying to sit up and talk to you when you're wound up for one of your sermons on economy—finally, but I wish I were still earning my $25 a week! Then I wouldn't be jawed to death every time I spend a penny!"

She went upstairs, but not to bed. She spent an hour brushing her hair, polishing her nails, cleaning her face carefully with cold-cream and cold water—putting her new clothes away in sachet powder.

Before ten the next morning May Seymour telephoned Gloria.

"Hello, Lazy-bones!" she said in answer to Gloria's sleepy "Hello."

"I've been up for two hours," May went on proudly. "Bathed Mah Jongg already."

"Did you call me up to tell me you'd given your dog a bath?" Gloria laughed. "I have something better to tell than that myself—I've got a lot of new clothes to show you. Bought 'em yesterday."

"Well, doll yourself up in some of them and we'll go downtown and jazz around a bit," May said. "I'm blue as indigo—and I don't know why. Found a gray hair in my brush, for one thing, this morning! Think of it—gray hair at twenty-five!—What do you suppose I'll look like at forty?"

"Just the way you do now," Gloria comforted her. "Brunets don't fade, May. And there's a lot of good hair eye on the market when you really need it—What time will you call for me?"

"Oh, about twelve," May said, and rang off.

Gloria set about the serious business of crossing.

She had just finished by the time May honked the horn of her car outside the house at noon.

"If anyone telephones for me when I'm gone, please say I've having lunch at the restaurant with Mrs. Seymour," Gloria told Ranghild, who was cleaning silver in the pantry.

She had a vague idea that Stan might take it into his head to phone her.

"Well, will you kindly take a look at the Fifth Avenue kid?" May exclaimed as Gloria opened the door of the automobile and stepped in.

"That's the best-looking hat I ever saw in my life!"

"I'm glad you appreciate it—Dick all but killed me for buying it," Gloria sighed. "My goodness, to hear him talk you'd think I'd committed a murder instead of buying myself a few clothes."

"That's the way with all the men," May sympathized as the car sped through the sunny streets. "I tell you, Gloria, a woman has to fight for everything she gets in this world! I've broken John of his everlasting ding-donging about bills, though—Every time he razzed me for spending money I turned right round and spent some more—Now he's afraid to open his mouth about bills!"

May set her painted mouth in a straight firm line.

"What does a girl get out of marriage but a few clothes and parties, and a houseful of furniture to keep dusted, anyway?" she went on after a moment. "Nothing else at all—But a man's marriage just doubles his interest in life. He still has his business, and a home and wife on the side! Whereas a girl gives up everything when she marries."

Gloria thought this over. Surely May hadn't given up everything when she married Dr. John. She certainly had not given up Jim Carewe, for instance. They still went around together as they had before May's marriage.

Dr. John was a mystery to Gloria. Didn't he care if his attractive young wife and Jim Carewe lunched together two or three times a week while he, himself, was making his calls?—Or did he care so much for May that he let her do as she pleased, so long as she was content to be his wife?—Gloria couldn't figure it out.

May parked her car outside an automobile salesroom.

After the two girls had shopped and lunched they decided to go back to Gloria's house to look at her new clothes.

Gloria was vaguely unhappy. Somehow or other she had had a wild hope that she would see Stanley Wayburn in the restaurant where she and May had lunched. When she had dressed that morning, she had been dressing, half-unconsciously, for Stan's eyes.

And she had not seen him.

"Look at that blue car there in the window, Gloria," May indicated a glossy little roadster in the window of the show-room across the sidewalk.

Gloria looked. The little car was a beauty.

Its dark blue sides shone like satin. Its trimmings were of polished brass.

"Just for the fun of it, let's go in and price it," Gloria said impulsively. They went in.

"That's our new 1925 model," said the natty young salesman, opening the door of the car so that Gloria could get into it. "The very best buy on the market—$1800 exactly!"

Gloria sat down behind the wheel. The soft springy seats were covered with blue leather. And on the dash was a tiny clock set in dark blue enamel.

"This car drives as easily a onehoss shay. It's an ideal machine for a lady," the salesman said, turning to May.

"You certainly should have that car, Gloria," May said in her metallic voice. Gloria stepped out of the automobile.

That night she asked Dick to buy it for her.

"I don't want any old telephone company stock, Rikky," she said, pleadingly. "And I'm just crazy for this little bus. It's the cutest thing in the world—and it would keep your glory so snug and warm these wintry days—I could even go to market in it every morning, and bring my vegetables and meats home in it!"

That touch about the markets was an inspiration, she knew. For Dick loved the idea of her being a housewife—picking out her own strawberries and rump-roasts in the markets, and bringing them home.

"I want that telephone stock, for you—but there is one way I can buy you the automobile," he said finally.

"How?" Gloria asked.

To add the last touch to a delicious salad...

SEASON your salads with a mayonnaise made with Mrs. Tucker's Shortening.

Just melt two cupfuls of Mrs. Tucker's and pour into lightly beaten egg. Add half a teaspoonful of mustard, a teaspoonful of lemon juice and vinegar, some salt and a pinch of paprika or cayenne pepper. Inexpensive, easy, this makes a delicious dressing.

This is but one of the countless uses for which Mrs. Tucker's is incomparable. A pure vegetable shortening, it imparts a delicious creaminess to all cooking and baking. It has all the richness of butter and none of the heavy greasiness of lard. And it goes further than ordinary shortening.
