

THE TRIBUNE'S EDITORIAL COMMENT

What a Newspaper Will And Will Not, Print

The question arises, from time to time, over what a newspaper will and will not put into its columns. While it would take much too long to thrash that matter out on this editorial page because of so many different situations which can qualify or modify a newspaper's policy, we do occasionally like to clarify our position in some respects.

This newspaper has been rebuffed for publishing the names several weeks ago of a number of Hereford young men for rioting on the streets of Friona.

Now, we'll admit that it would have taken a lot more guts for us to have published names of the boys if they had been from Friona, Bovina, or Farwell, because we would have been personally acquainted with many of them and their parents.

Nonetheless, we see it as our duty to take from the public record of the courts the names of these boys, not for the purpose of ridiculing or "exposing" them, but in the hope that they become more aware of the serious consequences which such action may lead to.

In our opinion, if a boy has any family background at all, he will be utterly ashamed of what he has done to the family name if that name appears in connection with a group of young hoodlums in the community newspaper.

If these young men had only been brought to Farwell and given a sound talking to by peace officers, then released in the hope that they would refrain from such behavior, the names would have never appeared in this publication — even if we could have secured them.

But when a sarcastic, chip-on-the-shoulder gang lands in the county calaboose, is formally charged and fined, then the matter becomes public record.

When discussing what is proper, and what is not proper for our news columns, we always like to go back and study the comments of a wise old Texas newspaper veteran, Ike Ashburn, who is now publisher of Texas Parade magazine.

Some of his comments are not directly applicable to weekly newspapering, but most of them are and he at least gives an idea of what a publisher is often up against. Read this and see if you don't catch a little of how difficult it is to establish a policy:

BY IKE ASHBURN

I always have had an affectionate regard for working newspapermen and have been conscious of their problems because since December of 1909, I have been actively associated with the profession. Universally the members of the newspaper profession have been very indulgent with me and generous in their cooperation with whatever work I may have been engaged in for, to, these many years.

I started to work for the old Fort Worth Record as a newspaper reporter in December, 1909. My weekly stipend was $10, and all my waking and sleeping time belonged to the newspaper. I worked seven a week, subject to duty for whatever time my employer required my services. I, therefore, feel a bond of kinship with all newspapermen from publishers to cub reporters. In the old days there was pasted on the editorial department wall a policy statement: what we would use and what we wouldn't use, what we would say, and what we wouldn't say in the columns of the paper.

I believe that some members of the press should re-examine their obligations to bar from their columns printed matter that is offensive to those persons of even delicate sensibilities. After all, I still consider the newspaper field as one marked by a sacred responsibility and public trust. We did not use words and terms that were not in good taste and not acceptable in polite society.

Because of that feeling of kinship with and admiration for the newspapermen and the newspapermen and the newspaper field, I have been reluctant to voice my extreme criticism and displeasure over much in the columns of some newspapers and magazines nowadays. To say the least some of the editorial content in a few papers borders on obscenity. This everyday talk of lewdness and lecherous acts is most offensive to me. In some of the daily papers there are articles that would not have been tolerated in the hands, much less the homes, of reputable persons as recently as five years ago. There are newspapermen who say, "Let's give our readers what they want to read." But they must be mindful of their sacred trust (according to my way of thinking) of publicizing nothing that degrades or contributes to bestial conduct. I do not think that newspapermen have any right to publish anything that contributes to the degradation of our society generally. An examination of newspapers of the last few weeks reflects numerous terms that were unheard of in polite society up until a few years ago. What it is that is causing the acceptance of those terms now in everyday conversation, I don't know, but whatever it is, I cannot help but deplore it. I denounce pictures of men and women of known low character such as operators and habitués of houses of low and ill fame. Certainly, such stories should not be broadcast for public consumption. Many of these pictures and stories of men and women whose behavior is such as to nauseate every decent person ought never to find their way into print. It is hard to believe that newspapers can justify their publication of garbage can filth and obscenity. I am sick and tired of the use of salacious terms and names of people whose lives and personal conduct are without decency.

Moreover, I know that the moral tone of these United States has been in grave danger of constant descent and much of that has been occasioned by a wave of nauseating garbage can literature. An attempt is made to put a flimsy wrap of justification around that practice and excuse those violations of newspaper ethics and common decency under the overworked term of liberalism (it really is license) and realistic and objective writing. Why can't we talk more about the ennobling things of life and the heroic behavior of decent people without glorifying in words, terms, and pictures, that illicit behavior which was not even discussed, much less blatantly publicized a few years ago?

A bizarre story of filth and corruption in New York involving one of the scions of a wealthy Chicago family and a nineteen year old girl has been emblazoned in great detail in the newspapers over the country. Certainly freedom of the press needs to be defended and perpetuated. But the press has a responsibility to use the blue pencil, and edit out the publications of stories that are not consistent with continued elevation of ideals and morals. The use of such salacious stories and pictures subject the newspaper fraternity to the charge that is interested only in the stimulations of the readers' interests and sales for the monetary gain of the publishers and circulators.

All of us are exposed to enough filth and lewdness in everyday life. But after all, standards of decency should be exploited and glamorized, and not the gains and practices of wrong doers and violators of every code of decency. It is our responsibility, of course, to safeguard those whose mentality and morals are still in the formative period of life.

The use of all such articles ought straightway to be discontinued. Evils and immorality have existed since the beginning of man. But certainly lewdness and lascivious for monetary gain have no place in the reading or discourse of decent men and women. The emphasis on faithlessness and debauchery of nobler emotions of men and women has no place in the pictured word of today. The morals and ideals of a publication are measured by what it prints and what is emphasized in its headlines.

HOP GRAHAM:

What they Thought of Him

With the passing of W. H. "Hop" Graham, hundreds of telegrams, letters, and cards were received by Mrs. Graham. These messages, filled with words of sympathy, are of course too personal for publication.

But there is a vast difference between what an individual writes to a grieving family and words which appear in public newspapers. Since Hop was a newspaperman, we of The Tribune feel it is only fitting that what his fellow publishers thought of him be printed here.

For they, as no others, have been able to tell us what kind of a man the late publisher really was.

From the Dallas morning News Front-page column, "Big D," penned by Paul Crume:

In our day the State Line Tribune was the kind of newspaper where the editor had no august refuge from his 800 subscribers. Every week or so, some such item would pop out in print as, "Mr. Tom Jones Tuesday sheared his sheep and Mr. Brown and Mr. Green." When this happened, each subscriber in Farmer County, Texas would unhitch the work mules, climb into the family Ford and drive into town to show the mistake to Hop Graham personally and "haw, haw" at the editor's discomfiture.

It was the kind of newspaper that was put out in one large room, from an old roll-top desk closely flanked by a 20-year-old Linotype and a proof press furnished by a patent medicine advertiser. It was heated in the winter by a big-bellied old stove, which you lit by sloshing coal with gasoline, retiring across the building and heaving a lighted match, often with spectacularly dusty effects.

It was also the kind of newspaper that always had a boy growing up in the back shop, and for a few years, we were privileged to be that boy. The message came to this desk a few days ago that Hop Graham was dead, and it set us to thinking of those old days and the decent, open-minded—open-hearted man who gave us our first lessons in newspapering.

A country print shop is a good school for a boy, and Hop was one of our better teachers. He allowed a youngster a lot of room to grow.

FOR A YEAR or two, we hand-spiked type, broke down the forms and fed a job press in the Tribune back shop. Our grades in high school English indicated a writing career, however. We had a showy talent for saying the same thing in more and more impressive words than anybody else, and possibly it foiled us. At any rate, we gradually became a reporter.

And we personally exercised freedom of the press to a degree that is dismaying to remember. Let the school board drop a pretty high school teacher at midterm, and there was no "resignation accepted" in the columns of the Tribune. She was fired, period.

Thursday afternoon, just after press time, was often a time when the targets of the stories would descend angrily upon Hop, who hadn't done anything in the first place. He was a gentle, friendly man who liked to please, no fire-eater, but he had his own kind of courage. The visitor would storm and threaten. Hop would reply quietly, with the pained look he wore when he couldn't agree. Presently, he would win.

He never backed water, and we knew that he stuck up for us often when we had done something he, himself, would not have done.

Once though we printed some pointed comments on the laziness of a certain gigantic farm hand who was loafing around town, and Hop couldn't help. The guy was shrewd enough to know just where the comment had come from. We solved this fearlessly by keeping a city block between us and the farm hand for three days.

He SELDOM bawled you out. Instead, he would go to work silently at a makeup stone with a troubled, disappointed look on his face that was more of a reproach than words. This he did the time we failed to write a story about a

Memorial Day 1953

For pennies, you can keep a light aglow in your home. But the price to keep this torch of liberty aflame is so great as to be almost beyond comprehension.

This torch that says "this is Freedom's cradle, this is Liberty's home," has been kept aglow by men and women who have given their lives that its beam may never be dimmed.

This light must never fail.

local prizefight. Our excuse was that the fighters didn't finish the match. The spectators ruined it midway in the third round by pitching a big gang fight in the school gym.
This was inexcusable in his books. He did a lot of jobs for the town that nobody else wanted to do, but mostly he did the thing that takes more honesty and work and courage than anything else. He put out a good newspaper.

(Bert Neelley, neighboring editor-publisher of the Friona Star):
Two veteran Panhandle newspaper publishers have signed "30" since our last publication.

W. H. "Hop" Graham was better known to most of our readers; he had been linked with Farwell and Farmer County activities since the mid-twenties, and his passing is felt as a distinct personal loss by many of us.

Van W. Stewart of Perryton preceded Mr. Graham in death by only three days.

This writer commented in the MMM column of Mr. Stewart's contribution to the newspaper field and state-wide activities; the lines were written Monday morning before the passing of our neighbor Hop Graham, and we can only add this postscript at this late hour that Mr. Graham is equally missed—his accomplishments and service are matters for record.

(From the Canyon News' editorial page, written by Clyde Warick, himself a distinguished weekly editor.)

THREE NEWSPAPER MEN DIE
Three of our good newspaper friends have died during the past week.

Van Stewart of Perryton and Sam Roberts of Haskell both died of heart attacks Sunday. While both have known of the disease and had warded off the disease for months, it eventually caught up with them. Van had stayed in the harness and worked previously. The death of these men came as a shock to newspaper people over the area.

W. H. Graham died Wednesday in a Clovis hospital. He had been flown to Dallas last week for an operation following illness of more than two years. During this time he has been in several clinics and undergone several operations. The Newsman is saddened by the death of these fine fellows, who have done so much for printing of better county newspapers in this area.

Peace be to their ashes.

(From the Amarillo Daily News' editorial page):
HOP'S SECRET
A country editor has great opportunity to serve the people of his community.

Hop Graham took full advantage of the opportunity for service.

For 27 years, an editor and publisher of The State Line Tribune, he was "Mr. Newspaper" to the people of Farwell and Texico.

Actually, the term "Mister" seems a little stilted. The Farwell editor was "Hop"—to his children and to the people of his community. There was mighty little formality to editing as done by the Graham method.

Hop's typewriter was likely to be set on any convenient case in the shop, and he turned out copy between turns at the mechanical chores and advertising business which are part of the routine of most country editors.

But there was nothing casual about Hop's aim of turning out a readable, bright weekly paper. It was an aim he sought to accomplish without stooping to gossip or rumor stories.

A "big" story, to Hop Graham, was not worth the price if it involved unnecessary injury to some of the persons involved. Hop passed up a good many "big" stories, but he never dodged a story if he felt it was in the public interest.

The Panhandle press—and Panhandle people—suffered a loss last week in the deaths of two weekly newspaper editors. Van Stewart of Perryton and Hop Graham of Farwell were big men in their communities. They exemplified the best in the country editor tradition.

(We feel it might also be proper to mention that a senate resolution in memory of Hop was introduced by Sen. Andy Rogers. Although rather lengthy, it is an accurate summation of the life of the late publisher.)

SENATE RESOLUTION NO. 281
In Memory Of
Mr. W. H. "Hop" Graham
WHEREAS, on Wednesday, May 13, 1953, Almighty God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to call from this life W. H. Graham of Farwell, Farmer County, Texas; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Graham was an outstanding citizen and civic leader in his community, who had been associated in the newspaper business since 1909 and had been editor and publisher of the State Line Tribune at Farwell for twenty-seven years. He was truly a traditionally great newspaperman who loved being a country editor; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Graham was born May 13, 1891, in Dundee, Archer County, Texas. His passing on his sixty-second birthday after an illness of two years is a great loss to his family, his community, and his newspaper profession; and

WHEREAS, Mr. Graham was affectionately known to his host of neighbors and friends in Farwell and Farmer County as "Hop" and he continued to publish his column "From the Hopper" in The Tribune regularly during his long illness; and

WHEREAS, He was a member of the Methodist Church for many years where he had served on the Board of Stewards. He also had served on the Farwell School Board, and during WW II was Chairman of the Farmer County Selective Service Board; and

WHEREAS, because of his many years of successful activity and demonstrated abilities in his professional work, Mr. Graham was elected President of the Panhandle Press Association in 1939; and

WHEREAS, in the passing of Mr. W. H. "Hop" Graham, his community, his county, and the tri-state area have lost a faithful and devoted citizen and a Christian who contributed greatly to the welfare of his fellow man; and

WHEREAS, it seems appropriate that this Resolution should include an extract from Mr. Graham's weekly column wherein he wrote:
"I have always heard and definitely believed, that if you are a good neighbor, you will have good neighbors. But I never will believe that I have been the good neighbor that our neighbors have been to us during my trying illness;" and

WHEREAS, he is survived by his wife, the former Miss Arrie Black whom he married in 1951; a son, W. H. Graham Jr.; and a daughter, Mrs. Vance Crume. He is also survived by one sister, Mrs. Blanche Shull; one brother, Mr. L. W. Graham; and two half-brothers: Harmon Graham and Master Sgt. H. Lee Graham; and

WHEREAS, it is the desire of the Senate of Texas to pay tribute to the memory of this outstanding citizen of Texas; now, therefore, be it

RESOLVED, that as an expression of our sympathy and, as a tribute to the useful life of this distinguished newspaper man of Texas, copies of this Resolution be mailed to the surviving members of the family; and, be it further

RESOLVED, that a page be set aside in the Senate Journal as a memorial to him; and that when the Senate adjourns today, it do so in memory of W. H. "Hop" Graham.

Plans for Dairymen Offered By Jones
Plans should be made now, says Joe Jones, County Agent, to provide the dairy herd with ample pasture and forage during the next 12 to 15 months. At least one acre of sudan for summer grazing, six tons of silage and two tons of hay for each cow in the herd, should be the minimum goal set, he adds.
The first step in the forage production program, believes the agent, is to collect and submit soil samples for testing not only from crop land but pastures as well.

Soils, he says be over or under fed the same as a airy cow and the only accurate way for determining what is needed in the soil, is through soil testing.

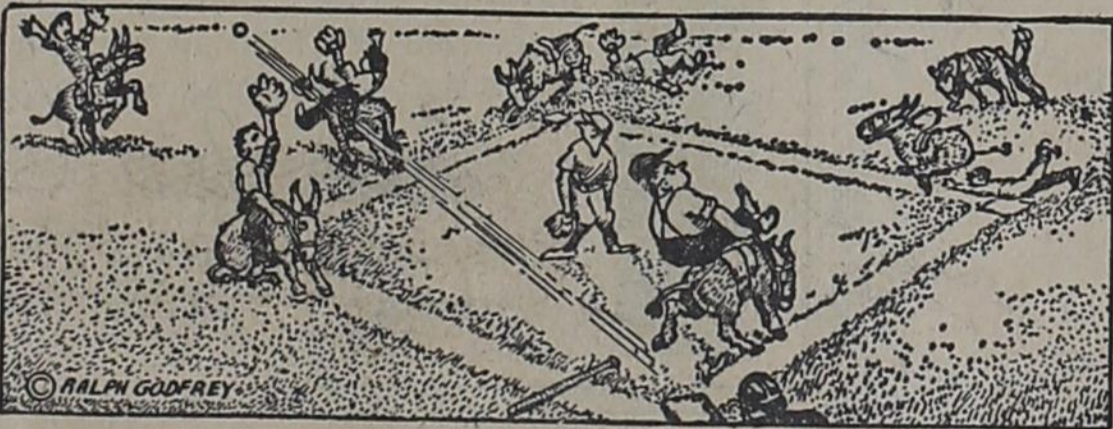

Competition and milk prices, says Jones, are factors which are now calling the signals in the dairy industry. To meet the situation, operations must be made more efficient. The dairyman, he says, who puts in to practice the known methods for cutting cost will continue to make a profit from his operation.

In addition to growing most of the roughage at home, another mighty important consideration for the dairyman is the growing of replacements for the herd. It takes as long to raise a heifer as it does to build a battleship, so do a good job, advises Jones.
Correct height for tennis net is three feet.

Texico-Farwell WMU Meets Monday

Members of the Texico-Farwell Baptist WMU met Monday afternoon for a business meeting in the basement of the church. Mrs. Milton Poteet was in charge of the business, in the absence of Mrs. Kelley.

A change was made in the time for the meeting, with meeting scheduled for 4 p. m. each Monday afternoon. It was voted to have business and social meets in the homes on the fourth Monday of each month. Next business and social meeting will be in the home of Mrs. Roscoe Burris, with Mrs. Anson Bowers as co-hostess. Next meetings of the group will be at the church with Mission Study by Mrs. S. G. Billington.

ESA Members Feted With Mexican Meal

Rosa Roberts, educational director of Theta Rho Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Alpha, was hostess to a Mexican supper for the members at El Monterrey in Clovis Monday night. The supper was the concluding social function of the past club year. Members attended a movie following the meal.

During the summer months, one social meeting will be held each month, and regular sessions will be resumed in September. Dorothy Quickel will be hostess to the first summer social when she honors ESA with a supper in her home June 8. Also on the agenda for the month of June is a Father's Day breakfast, at which members will honor their husbands and their fathers.

Present Monday night were Sylvia Watkins, Wilma Liner, Margie Crooks, Gloria Miller, Elizabeth Kaltwasser, Nell Walling, Iris Thornton, Julia Symcox, Dorothy Quickel, Gladys Kaltwasser, Dardanella Helton, Jeanne Graham, and the hostess.

Attend Production

Among the local people who attended the performance of "Kiss Me, Kate" in the new Marshall auditorium in Clovis Thursday night were: Jeanne Graham, Nell Walling, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Faville, and Mikala, Mrs. Ira Levins and Susan, Pat Aldridge, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Johnnie Williams and Joan, and Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Roberts.

TO BE MARRIED

Mr. and Mrs. Asa Smith of Lariat wish to announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Joy, to Leamon Stancell, son of W. M. Stancell of the West Camp Community.

Wedding rites are planned for June 1 at 7:30 p. m. in the home of the bride. Although the ceremony will be attended only by relatives and close friends of the couple, an invitation is extended to all friends to attend the reception which follows.

Here on Business

Warlick Thomas, student at Abilene Christian College, was in Farwell last week to take care of various business matters. He arrived on Thursday, and returned to Abilene on Saturday.

Warlick was a member of the class which was graduated Monday night, May 25, at the school. He plans to attend law school in Austin next year.

Couple Married 25 Years: Have Lived In Four Countries

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hanneman were hosts last Wednesday night to about twenty-five people at a celebration of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

Long tables were covered with huge hams and everything that goes with it, and various kinds of cake and coffee finished off the bountiful meal.

Rev. W. B. Gummelt gave a short talk in German to the group. Mrs. Harry Jesko provided the flower arrangements for the tables.

Those present were Rev. and Mrs. Gummelt and girls, Mr. and Mrs. Helmer Schaefer and family, Mr. and Mrs. George Danneheim and son, Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Kube and son, Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Zoch and son, Mrs. Harry Jesko, Mr. and Mrs. Ben O. Smart, Carl Zoch, Mrs. Mary Kube, and Rudolph Kube, and the Hanneman family.

The Hannemans were married back in the 1920's at Tari-Verde, Rumania. They had grown up in the same town and had about a year's courtship before their marriage. Young people would get together and sing and have good times.

Mrs. Hanneman was 20 and he was 21 at the time of their marriage. He was a carpenter having his own shop, where he made furniture, windows, and other articles. Asked how he learned his trade, Hanneman said he began working in a shop at the age of 14, and spent three years with no pay, just learning the business.

When he was 17, he went to work in a factory, then began his own shop the next year. His father was a school teacher, instructing the German language.

Mrs. Hanneman was living at home at the time of their marriage.

The young couple lived in Rumania until 1940, with three children, Frieda, Else and Manfred, born there. "But all the people of my country were made to change homes in 1940," says Hanneman, "and in 1942, we went to Czechoslovakia," where Hanneman began all over again with a new business.

They had lived in a colony of Rumanians before that time. "Then the Russians came," Hanneman continues, and once again the family was on the move.

That's when they went to the West Zone of Germany. They remained there until 1952, when they came to America, arriving in March. Hilde, the younger daughter, was born in Germany.

The Hannemans worked on a farm in Lazbuddy until July when they moved to Texico, and he became an employee of the Furniture Mart. Asked what he thought of this country after a year, he replied quickly, "I think all right."

Hannemann still has some difficulty with the language, although he can carry on a conversation

ANNIVERSARY IN THE STATES

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hanneman celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary Wednesday night by playing host to a group of their new friends in this country. The Hannemans are originally from Rumania. Left to right: their son, Manfred; Mrs. Hanneman, Mr. Hanneman, and daughters, Elsa and Hilda.

Have Family Picnic

T. T. Doolittle and family and guests enjoyed a picnic Sunday night in the Hillcrest Park in Clovis. Attendants enjoyed fried chicken and all the trimmings.

Attendants were: Mrs. A. W. Bell of Clovis, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Doolittle, Ansel and Coeta Doolittle and Debbie, Jerrial Doolittle and Billie Hankhouse, Donal Ray Engram and Jean Kleeman, Keith Scott, and Leon, Gayle, Kenneth, and Sue Doolittle.

WCSO Will Have Charge of Service

Members of the WCSO of the Oklahoma Lane Methodist Church will be in charge of the worship service Sunday morning, in the absence of the pastor who is attending the annual conference at St. Paul Methodist Church in Abilene.

Also attending the conference is E. G. Snodgrass, the elected lay delegate. The conference began on Wednesday, and will continue on through Sunday, with about 1000 delegates expected to attend.

This marks the end of the year at the church, and Rev. Willard is completing his second year with the Oklahoma Lane congregation. He states that this has been one of the happiest years of his ministry, and expresses his feeling of good will to all members.

The new church was completed and dedicated during this year, and a total of $20,700 was given to all causes by the church during the year.

To Meet Tuesday

Variety Club will meet Tuesday, June 2, at 2:30 p. m. in the home of Mrs. Carrye Christian. All members are invited to be present and bring thimbles and apron patterns.

Intermediate Classes Have Party Friday

Members of the Intermediate Department of the Texico-Farwell Baptist Church had a party Friday night in the Texico City Park.

Attendants enjoyed a weiner roast and games of baseball during the evening. Sponsors were: Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Tucker, Mr. and Mrs. Barney Kelley, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Whitener, and Jim Grishan.

Members present were: Phyllis Tucker, J. C. Kelley, Garlene Seale, Phyllis Kelley, Betty Findley, Donna Findley, Bobby Goldsmith, Verlene Thigpen, Audrey Hapke, Fay Autrey, Wayne Pierce, Dean Smith, Dickie Lockhart, and Barbara Tucker.

Memorial Sunday at Methodist Church

Memorial Day will be observed Sunday, May 31, at the Hamlin Memorial Methodist Church at the 11 o'clock service.

Rev. Miller H. Stroup, pastor, will bring the message, speaking on the subject "The Shrine of Democracy."

Special music will include a solo by Earl Roberts, who will sing, "The Stranger of Galilee," by Sturgis.

Miss Darlene Sprawls, pianist, will play, "When They Ring Those Golden Bells," by DeMarbelle; "Nearer My God to Thee," by Mason; and "Song to the Evening Star," by Wagner.

The Sunday school hour is 10 a. m. Loyde Brewer, general superintendent.

The hour for the evening worship service is 8 p. m. The Junior Intermediate M. Y. F. will meet at 7 p. m., and the senior M. Y. F. will meet at 9 p. m.

The first meeting of the Official Board of the new conference year will be Monday, June 1, at 8 p. m. New officers will be elected.

The choir will hold regular rehearsal Wednesday, June 3, at 8 p. m.

Training Day Held For Methodist Officers

A training day for officers was held at the Oklahoma Lane Methodist Church last Tuesday, with eleven churches of the Plainview District represented.

Mrs. Vernon Willard was in charge of registration, and at the opening session, Mrs. Gene Snodgrass led the first song. Classes were attended during the morning, and luncheon was served by the Oklahoma Lane women. Mrs. Melvin Sudderth gave the noon meditation, and Mrs. Bill Sudderth of Bovina gave the benediction.

During the afternoon, parliamentary law was discussed and classes were attended. Also a sharing session and preview of 1953-54 studies were given.

A panel discussion was held on dedication of youth to lifetime service and attitudes of parents. A special song was sung by Mrs. A. L. Bandy and Mrs. Tom Lindop. The Oklahoma Lane WSCS presented a skit before the closing song and benediction by Mrs. Johnnie Williams.

RECREATION PROGRAM SET

Superintendent Agrie Jones announces that plans are underway for the Texico Recreational Program, and it is hoped that it can be started June 6. Plans are not complete as to what will be offered in the program, but it is hoped to be a bigger program than ever before.

CONSERVATION NEWS BRIEFS

By Dick Barber

The proper time for row crop planting, is almost upon us. Some of the row crop land has enough moisture for planting, but the soil temperature is still a little too low for best germination. A few farmers are already doing part of their planting. They are afraid they'll lose moisture and will not get any more until too late to plant. This sometimes happens and when it does the early planted crops are the best. Dry land farming in this semi arid country is quite a gamble and probably requires more difficult decisions than any other business.

Carlos Grove of Melrose has started planting 160 acres of Sand Love grass. He had planned to plant an additional 150 acres of Weeping Love grass, but the land began blowing so badly that he had to lift it. He will probably have to wait until he can establish another cover before completing his plans.

Fred Myers who farms the M.A. Snider farm near Weber City is contouring 320 acres of cropland. Permanent guide lines were established by the District survey party. They were placed on the proper terrace interval so that Mr. Myers can build terraces later.

Claude Curry of the Fairfield community has a new irrigation well. This well was developed last week and apparently is a good producer. It is a well over 400 feet deep with the pump set at close to 250 feet.

Well Service

Mr. Irrigation Man: Are you getting only a half-pipe of water right now when you need to water worst? Maybe bailing out your well will solve all your problems. Is your engine using too much butane? We have had experience with all types of irrigation engines, and know how to wean those gas-eaters down so you can have low-cost water.

The above picture shows you the crew of Watts Machine & Pump Company, who are always anxious to give you service you will be pleased with. They make it their business to know how to service your well, so be sure to take your irrigation problems to them.

If your irrigation program is working unsatisfactorily, drop by to see the gang at Watts. They will gladly discuss your problems and recommend a solution. All this is a part of their service, and their advice is given at no charge to you.

"This Hot Weather Put Me to Thinking"

"And the things I thought aren't very pleasant. I read in the paper about the terrible toll Infantile Paralysis took last year. And I remembered that the polio season is once more at hand."

"It's true that we have now developed a temporary preventative against polio, but precious gamma globulin is so scarce we are sure to have many kiddoes crippled or killed again this year."

WHAT CAN WE DO?

"You have already been asked to give to the March of Dimes. Now, however, you are going to be asked to give blood for our new serum. Aside from this, I'd say the thing to do is to watch out for polio symptoms, and insure the family against possible attack."

PARMER COUNTY FARMERS CHOOSE THE BEST EQUIPMENT.

There wasn't much water to take a picture of a couple of weeks back when the well of J. F. Miller was being installed, but today if you drive past his place northwest of Friona you'll see a really keen well in operation.

This was the second well for Mr. Miller, who knows the value of superior equipment, so he naturally made his choice Layne & Bowler, a main-line pump with a long record for dependable service. The Layne & Bowler Pump, as well as other famous names, can be found at Parmer County Pump Company—where we never compromise with quality.

Mr. Miller's well is 363 feet deep, and his pump is set on 240. The location of the well is about five miles out of town.

Miss Owens Marries J. D. Kelley Sunday

Miss Bertha Owens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Owens of Bovina became the bride of J. D. Kelley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer Kelley of Texico in the First Baptist Church of Bovina Sunday, June 24 at 1:00 P. M.

The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. Jamie Tidenberg. Decorations included white gladiolas and white aster, with potted palms and candles. Two candelabra were on each side of the altar. Soft wedding music was rendered by Mrs. Doris Wilson. Miss Joan Cochran, who wore a white organy dress with red carnations sang "I Love You Truly" and "At Dawning".

Miss Owens was gowned in a baby blue street dress and given away by her father. For her bridal bouquet, she carried white roses on her white Bible. Matron-of-honor was Mrs. Lavonda Carter attired in a white organy dress with rosebud corsage. Best man was Bertha's brother, Don Owens.

Miss Owens was graduated from Bovina High School last week and J. D. Kelley is a graduate of Texico High School. They left immediately for a brief wedding trip to Carlsbad, New Mexico. They will make their home in Pleasant Hill Community on the farm belonging to J. D.'s father, Homer Kelley.

Diagrams Show Effect of Wells

According to an old saying "Two heads are better than one". By similar reasoning, two water wells in the High Plains should supply more water than one well for irrigating a farm; for municipal use, or for industrial supply. In general, that is true provided the wells are adequately spaced as shown in figure 1. However, if some of the wells are too close together, as shown in figure 2, the interference between closely spaced wells may cause so much additional lift and decrease in yield that over a period of years the profits from two wells may be no more than the profits from one well.

Imagine well "A", above, as the hole you might dig near the end of a wheat bin. Reaching the bottom, you are surrounded by the light-shaded cone. In the case of underground water, dotted line "X" is the static water level. The cone itself is the well's "area of influence". . . the circle from which your well draws its supply of water.

ted line "X" is the static water level. The cone itself is the well's "area of influence". . . the circle from which your well draws its supply of water.

Now, see what happens when TWO men dig away at opposite ends of the grain bin. Grain pours both directions from the supply zone between the two holes. In effect, the two diggers are fighting a silent battle with each other for the lion's share of the grain. The same is true of water wells "A" and "B", which are spaced several hundred feet apart.

Interference is a typical subsurface condition where water wells are jammed together. This causes increased drawdown, the point where pumping costs go up. Regulated well spacing, as practiced by the Water Conservation District, can help reduce this interference.

Figure 2 may be the situation as found in a field of water wells. The four wells, spaced too near each other, have a leapfrogging zone of interference. Drawdown increases sharply. Pumping expenses zoom. Often, some wells in a cluster like this have to be abandoned.

done. Pumping rate may have to be reduced.

These "waterbug's eye views" show how easily drawdown can be increased by congested spacing at the surface. Drawdown can be measured at a distance of 100 feet from a pumped well, and has even been known to reach 3,000 feet in some areas. A sharp pencil and some quick figuring will show how money is saved in spacing.
