AA BOWL COMPLETED; WILL OPEN TONIGHT

At a social outing this week I bumped into and fell to conversing with Frank Pritchett, who formerly was with Golden West Seed here and is now the assistant agricultural agent of Curry County.

Frank snapped his fingers as if seeing me reminded him of something, and pressed a 50-cent piece in my hand. "I owe you this for a classified ad" he confessed.

We didn't remember the business debt, so we inquired about what he had been advertising in The Tribune. It developed that a couple of months back he had placed a small ad in the classified section wanting to buy a cream separator.

The reason for this is that the Pritchett little ones are on a diet of goat's milk by doctor's orders. Frank has his own goat farm to supply the need and the kids get whole goat's milk, but on this diet they were "getting fat as butterballs," according to goatmilker Pritchett. He wanted to cut down their intake of fat without taking them off the special diet, so a separator seemed to be the answer.

Frank says that he got eight inquiries in response to the small ad. One of them came from Muleshoe, and the rest were right around close. I've already forgotten who he said he bought his first equipment from, but I haven't forgotten that he bought two separators instead of one!

The first one was a hand-powered job that came from the Pleasant Hill vicinity. He paid $20 for that machine and thought he got a pretty good deal. Then Perry Owens got in touch with him. Perry had an electric-powered separator he would separate from for a mere $10.

Frank couldn't resist a bargain like that. He snapped it up. Now he's long on separators. He hasn't any more use for two separators than I have for one, but he just couldn't resist such a buy.

This sounds like some of the things I do. It's hard for me to turn down something (whether I need it or not) when I think whatever it is can be bought for a song. That's one of my weaknesses, which is probably as good a reason as any my wife has me on a weekly allowance and is very discouraging about me using my legal prerogative of drawing on our joint bank account.

Frank also confesses that he's never screwed up enough nerve to tell Chris, his wife, that they own two cream separators. This also sounds like my way of operating.

By the way, Frank tells me he ran the same ad in the News-Journal and didn't draw a reply. It would take some research to find out what this means, but it must be one of the following: The Tribune has more readers who have cream separators but who don't have goats.

Most Clovis folks prefer their goat's milk whole and don't want to sell.

Wouldn't you know it. I still haven't gotten things straightened out between Elvis Presley and Dick Hapke. Hap writes the following:

"Not that it makes much difference, but I haven't fared as well, rank-wise, as Elvis during my two-year hitch in the Army. Presley, who now is the idol of thousands of GIs, reached the exalted status of a non-commissioned officer, Sgt. (E-5 pay grade). I'm just a lowly peon, Specialist Four (E-4 pay grade).

"We military men are really rank conscious and I hate to see one of my former colleagues slighted like that. Especially a deserving young American fighting man like Elvis. He had a chance to take the easy way out, but chose to spend his time like most of the other average Joes.

"And he served in Germany, too, one of the few places where today's modern U. S. Army still resembles a fighting force. So, so the old veterans over here tell me."

Co-owner and manager of the AA Bowl is Partin Austin.

Guy Austin is co-owner. He and his wife, Naomi, say all will be working at the business, although Partin has the title of manager.

The newest and one of the most impressive businesses in Texico-Farwell opens its doors to the public this evening (Thursday) if no last-minute hitches develop.

AA Bowl, owned by Partin and Guy Austin, has completed a whirlwind construction program that, after a setback by the severe weather of last winter, has rallied to bring building and equipment together in breathtaking time.

The alley will be open in time to usher in a 16-week summer league schedule, and already teams have been organized for four leagues. The industrial league is scheduled for Monday nights, Tuesday nights will be for mixed couples, and the men's and women's team night will be Thursday. Organized play gets under way next week.

AA Bowl shares an acreage at the east edge of Farwell, near Highway 70-84, with the new location of Radio Station KZOL. The alley faces the newly-completed "Loop" that encircles the city.

The Austin brothers chose a colored steel building to house their business, and the display of color, both inside and outside, is striking. Furnishings inside add much color, also.

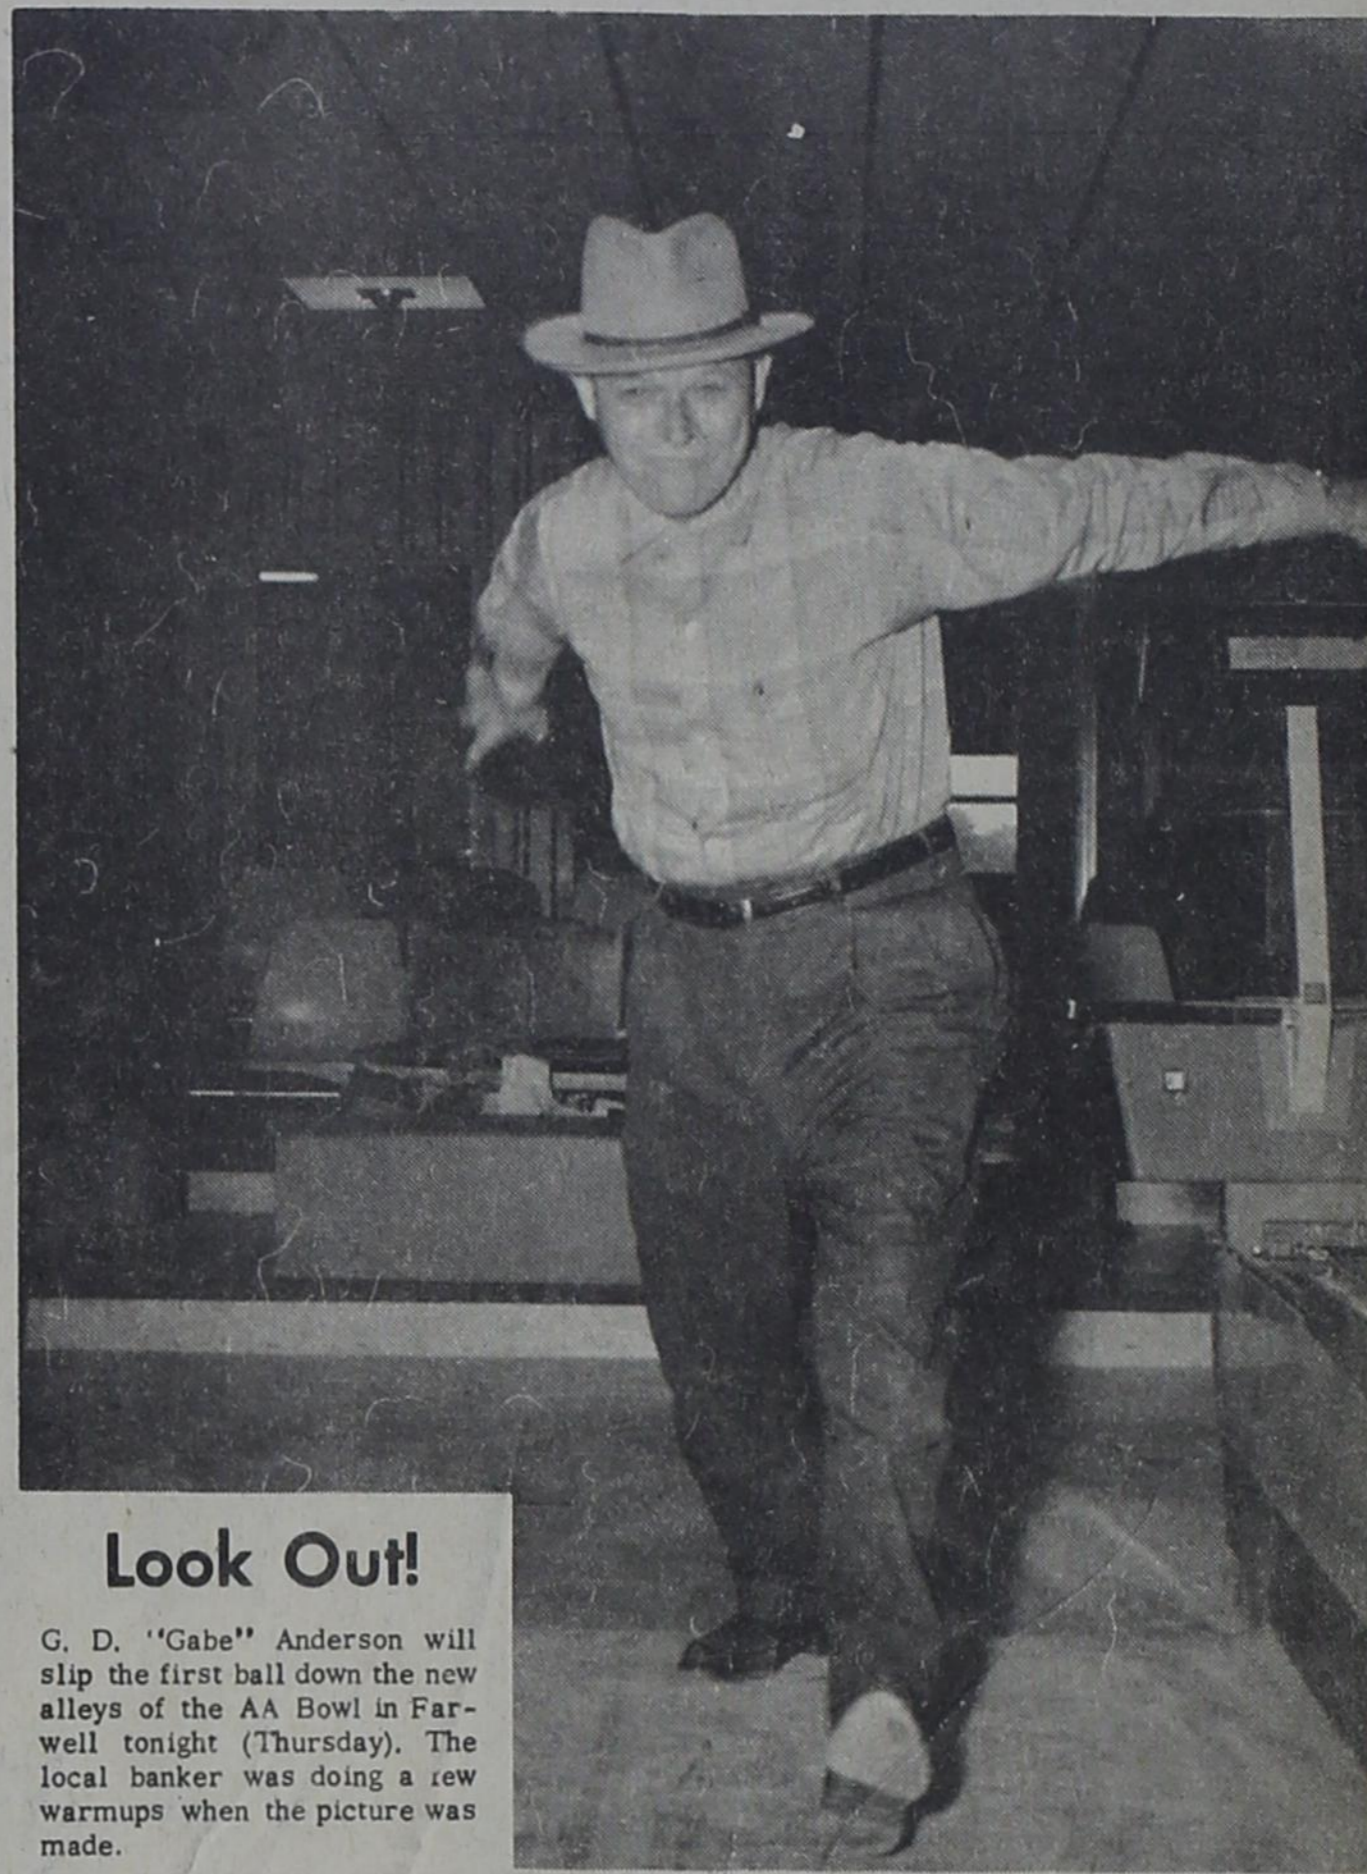

AMF pinspotters were selected, and the business has 12 lanes—a large alley for this size community. The building, which includes a snack bar (operated by Clara Billingsley), offices, spectators seats and storage, is 80x140. Willie Hardage is in charge of maintenance.

The owners have been waging a war of nerves with Father Time in recent weeks. Transportation complications have resulted in shortages of many different things at many

Baugh Featured At Athletic Banquet

"The desire to be the best in any sport, no matter what it is, is what makes an athlete great," said Sammy Baugh, featured speaker at the Farwell athletic banquet Tuesday night.

Baugh spoke the words from experience, having himself become one of the greatest football players of all time. He was named an All-American for three years at TCU, and after graduation played professional football for the Washington Redskins for 16 years.

He set many records in the national football league for passing and punting and still holds several.

Baugh formerly coached at Hardin Simmons University, and is now coach of the New York Titans, in the American Football League.

Baugh told of various experiences he had while playing football, and added humor to his talk with amusing incidents he had experienced on the playing field.

Another highlight of the annual banquet was the presentation of awards to outstanding athletes in the school.

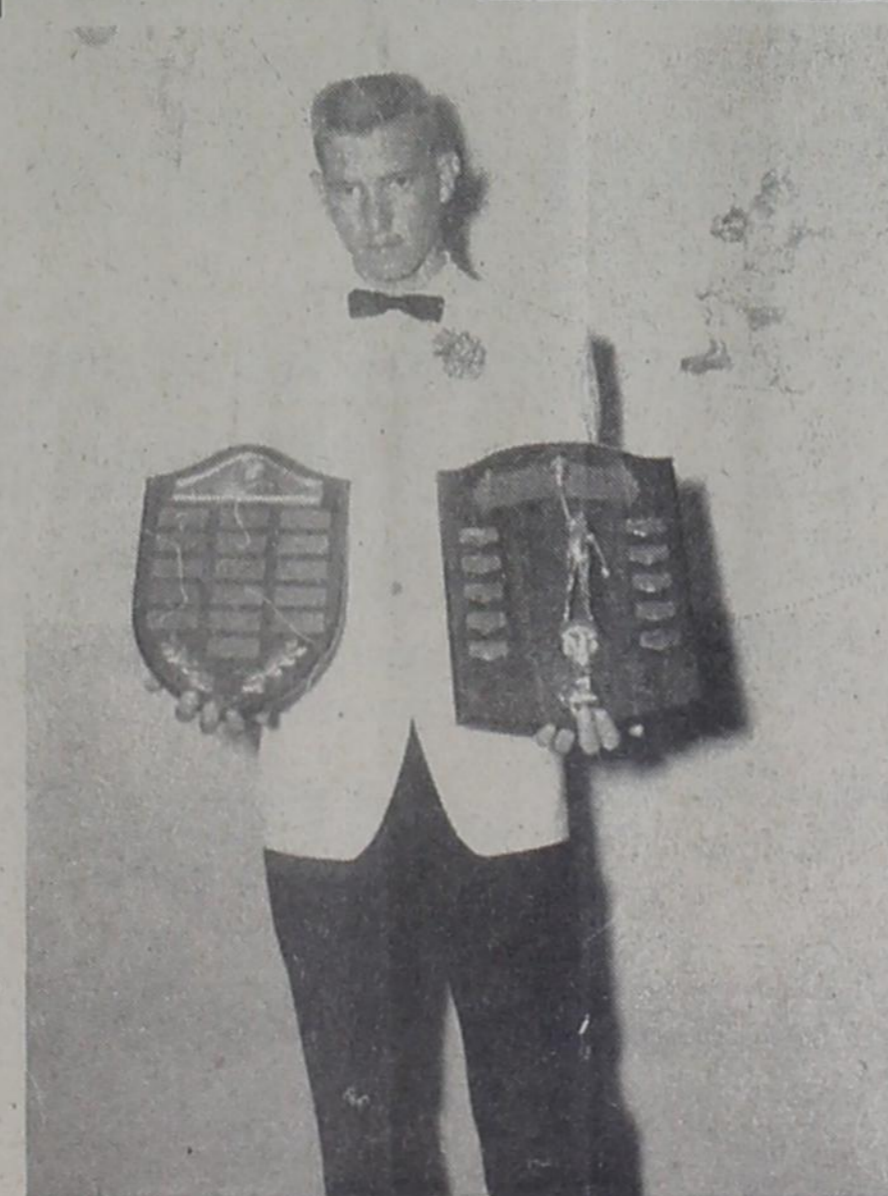

Bob Anderson, president of the local chamber of commerce, presented the Chamber of Commerce award to Mickey Rundell. In order to receive the award an athlete must be a senior, must have maintained a B grade average, and not have made lower than 70 during high school. He must also have lettered in two major sports.

The outstanding girl's basketball award was presented to June Ritchie by the girls' coach, R. B. Tucker. Receiving the outstanding boy's basketball player award was Benjy Dial. He was given the award by boys' coach, Calvin Murray.

Dial also received the principal's award which goes to a varsity letterman with the OUTSTANDING ATHLETE, Benjy Dial, received three awards at the Farwell athletic banquet Tuesday night. He received the principal's award, which goes to the varsity letterman with the highest scholastic average; the outstanding basketball player award, and was named one of the three boys who received the hardest blocker and tackler award.

KZOL Gets Permit To Move Station

Radio Station KZOL, which has sought to move to Farwell from Muleshoe for more than a year, received word this week from the Federal Communications Commission that its request has been granted.

G. D. Anderson, co-owner, announced the ruling this week, and said that although details of just how and when the change can be made effective have not been spelled out, the move will be made in the immediate future.

Theo Rozzell of Clovis put the station in Muleshoe in June of 1958. Anderson became a partner in the business shortly thereafter, and in October the station petitioned the FCC to move its transmitter and offices to Farwell.

A tract of land at the east edge of the city was brought from the Farwell School for the new location. The station will be just north of the new AA Bowl.

Rozzell will continue to manage the station. It is not certain who will comprise the staff when the change is made. Present employees include Marilyn and Snuffy Anderson, announcers; Don Kemp, engineer; Billie King, local news; Smitty Aylesworth, announcer; and Bill Moore, sports.

KZOL is what is known as a "daytime" station. It currently comes on the air at 6 in the morning and signs off at 7 p. m.

Oklahoma Lane Honors Persons Who Donated

An appreciation dinner will be held in the Oklahoma Lane Community Center, Thursday, April 28, at 8:30. The dinner will be in appreciation to those who donated to the community center.

BILL HALL

Services Held For Bill Hall

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon for a former cowboy, public official and businessman, who had watched the progress of this area for almost half a century. He was William W. (Bill) Hall, Parmer County pioneer who arrived in the area in 1915.

Hall, who was in the real estate business at the time of his death, had been ill for about three weeks. He passed away in a Clovis hospital Friday.

Gene Sofford, Vega, former minister here, assisted by Joe Wilson of Clovis, conducted services at the Church of Christ. Interment was in Lawn Haven in Clovis.

Survivors include his wife; six children, Mrs. Irene Ott, Weidon Hall and Mrs. Mack Finley of Amarillo, Mrs. H. B. Bell and Freddie Hall of Clovis, Raymond Hall of Hayward, Calif.; and two sisters, Mrs.

A pair of Corvairs recently recorded 00.0 and 00.0 miles per gallon in the 2061.4-mile Mobilgas Economy Run. That's certified proof that Corvair skimps on gas costs. It saves other ways, too. different times. On Monday, they were still "sweating out" the last shipments—60 balls, 200 pair of rental shoes, and 200 pair of shoes for resale. The items arrived Tuesday.

The Austins plan to open this evening at 6. They will open for business at 8 a.m. each morning every day after that, except Sundays. AA Bowl will be closed all day Sunday.

Customers will determine the closing hours. "We'll stay open as long as folks want to bowl," says Wilma Austin, cashier.

G. D. Anderson, local banker, is due to throw the first ball down the alley tonight.

Saturday night will be recognized as the official "open house" and the public will be invited in to see the new business, and also take advantage of the free bowling which will be offered for that evening only.

In league play, team sponsors put up $7.50 per team, and furnish shirts for team members. The individual players pay $1.20 to bowl each night, plus a 50-cent "kittyfee" which goes into a fund for trophies, prizes, and other team promotions.

A new bowler's average for the first time will be 151. Handicaps are used to help make matches more even, although as in other sports, the odds are on the side of talent.

The Halls resided in their present home on Third St. in Farwell for over 25 years.

Hall worked for the old syndicate for about three years, then was foreman of a ranch out near Lazbuddie for several years.

He went into the grocery business in 1922 and remained in that vocation until 1928. He served as sheriff for four years, from 1931 until 1935, then went back into the grocery business and remained in that occupation for 16 years, until 1951. Since that time, he had been in the real estate business.

THE HIGH PLAINS FARM AND HOME

Crackdown Imminent On Water Wasters

In a recent meeting of the board of directors of the High Plains Underground Water Conservation District it was decided that a procedure would be adopted to strictly enforce the district's rules against waste of irrigation water.

The district has in the past approached the problems of waste from an educational standpoint, preferring to present facts about the underground water and its efficient use rather than invoking more harsh and drastic methods.

However, the willful and habitual waste of water by a minority of irrigators has become increasingly more serious. With the continued decline of the underground water level in the southern High Plains area, coupled with increased public opinion against willful waste, the water district has come to the conclusion that the time is now upon us to supplement education with strict enforcement.

In the future, violators of the district's rules concerning waste will be notified that they have 24 hours in which to correct the situation and stop the waste. This does not mean that the district would want any farmer to stop irrigating, but only to put a halt to continued waste.

The notice will be delivered to the farm operator by a deputy sheriff, constable or by some other official person in the county where the waste has been observed.

At the end of the twenty-four-hour period, district personnel will check to see that the irrigation water is under control and is being retained and used on the land where it is produced.

Should the waste continue beyond the twenty-four-hour period granted to the violator by the district, then legal action will be taken through the courts to stop any further waste.

By far the large majority of area irrigators recognize that their underground water is one of the most precious of all resources, and they care for it as best they can; however a minority continue to promiscuously run water off their land into roadways, creating not only a situation described as waste in the rules of the water district but also a definite public nuisance and a hazard to human life. The multitude of reasons why underground water should not be wasted have all been discussed in much detail.

All who are even remotely interested in conservation can explain why waste is detrimental to continued prosperity in our area. Even the school boy knows that waste is a bad practice. All are aware that water should not be wasted, but rather it should be put to beneficial uses.

Put an end to any waste that originates from your land--do it today.

Report Safflower Prospects Poor

With planting time nearing for a relatively new Parmer County area crop, T. O. Lesly reports that prospects this year for the crop, safflower, are poor.

Lesly, who farms near Lazbuddie, is president of the Farmer's Union.

"This year they are urging it on dryland," he says of the companies selling seed.

"The P-1 variety, that we grew last year, doesn't yield enough for irrigation. It didn't respond to irrigation," Lesly says this variety usually produces the best crop where it is seeded and watered the lightest.

Lesly is trying to get some seed for a new irrigated variety of safflower, Gila (pronounced hila), which was developed and tested in Arizona and California.

"There are very few growers in Parmer County since we don't have any dryland," he knows of only one farmer, Wiley Bullock of Lazbuddie, who plans to plant dryland safflower. Bullock will have about 20 acres.

If Lesly is able to get irrigated seed, he and one other farmer will have small acreages of about 20 acres each.

Main growing areas in Texas are Crosby, Hockley and Hale Counties, Lesly says. He thinks there may also be some of the crop in the south of Bailey County.

"Last year I had about 17 or 18 acres," Lesly's yield on the oilseed crop was poor last year, netting him only about 700 to 1500 pounds an acre.

"We should make 2500 to 3000 an acre to make as much as maize and be easier on the land and water," Lesly says.

"Last year, we started planting about the middle of April, but best results came from some planted later.

"It is a crop that will make if you have moisture when you start," Safflower is used in paints and varnishes. It is the only oil that will not stain or turn yellow in paint. It is also recommended in cooking for people who have heart ailments.

Lesly says the crop has a short growing season of about three months. It harvested with a combine like milo.

"The Farmer's Union is marketing the safflower that will be grown through the Farmer's Union Co-op. The Co-op will market seed and put a mill in if the number of acres justifies it.

"Safflower is not an expensive crop to raise. Seed cost $12.50 for 100 pounds. Recommended planting rate is about 10 pounds for dryland and 18 to 22 for irrigated."

A pre-watering and one follow-up is all the irrigation that is needed, Lesly says. Fertilizer required is about the same as grain sorghum.

Current market price of the seed crop is $62 a ton. Lesly says the distance to the mills has kept the farmers' profit low.

"The same mill could probably mill sesame and soybean. A hot dry climate is needed to raise safflower. Most of the safflower was hauled out last year."

Safflower seed is a small seed about the size of apple seed with a white hull on it before it is processed.

Parmer County area farms have been sliced open in many places during the past 10 years, with natural gas feeder lines and underground concrete tile lines. The caliche-topped mound of dirt left by a ditching machine is a familiar sight.

Gas Line Crosses Parmer

Many strange-looking machines are necessary to efficiently install a large distribution line such as is now crossing the Parmer County area.

Cutting a 10-yard swath from the northeast to the southwest corner of Parmer county is a section of what will be a 2500 mile long natural gas pipeline. Work in this county is already finished. Workers of the Houston Construction Company, that is laying the line for Trans-

Western Pipeline Company, have moved on into Curry County, N. M.

The line originates near La Verne, Oklahoma and will, upon completion in about three or four months, end in Los Angeles, Calif.

Although it is hardly discernible from the ground, the path, left by the fresh earth on the recently covered pipe, from the air resembles an extra wide dirt road cutting across wheatfields, pasture and recently cultivated fields.

The last section of pipe to be laid in Parmer County was set down just after noon Saturday.

One worker at the work site just adjacent to the state line said the line would not interfere with cultivation or irrigation since the construction crew was running water in the pipe ditches to pack the loose earth down so further sinking would not occur.

The line probably will not interfere too much with cultivation; however, it could possibly result in some difficulties in wheat watering. This has apparently already happened since only a few of the wheatfields the lines crosses had been watered, or were being watered. About a dozen large Caterpillars, dozers and other large construction vehicles and a number of large and small trucks were being used by the pipe laying crew.

The Houston company had planned to do most of the field work during the winter so it would not interfere with farmers' work, but severe weather kept them from working.

High winds and blowing dust hampered workers some Saturday as they were winding up the work in this county.

For best results, select fresh, tender vegetables right from the garden while they are at the right stage of maturity for eating.

Other factors that influence quality are preparation, packaging, freezer loading and length of storage.

Latest information on how to freeze, and how to cook frozen foods is given in extension bulletin, "Frozen Foods." Get a copy from your county home demonstration agent's office.

To repair loose bindings on rattan furniture, soak them in warm water, rewind carefully and tack. Coat with clear varnish or a clear penetrating tung oil sealer.

Redwood furniture can also be finished with a tung oil sealer. The kind designed for outdoor furniture will dry in the presence of moisture, according to the specialists.

Replacements of sail cloth and canvas covers for director chairs and butterfly chairs can be found ready-made, or you can make them yourself if you are fairly skilled at sewing jobs. Plastic backed vinyls, webbings and easily washable fabrics are available by the yard for use on different kinds of outdoor furniture.

An apple a day may keep the doctor away, but it takes an orange a day--or its equivalent--to provide the vitamin C recommended for maintaining good nutrition, according to extension foods and nutrition specialists.

A food consumption survey carried out by the U. S. Department of Agriculture showed that among more than 6,000 U. S. families whose food purchases were studied over a week's time, one in four was not receiving recommended quantities of vitamin C.

Citrus fruits are rich enough in vitamin C to yield a day's supply in one average serving such as a whole orange or a half grapefruit. Potatoes, tomatoes, peppers, brussels sprouts, and cabbage, as well as greens such as spinach, mustard and turnip tops also contain vitamin C. Top Corn Hybrid Yields 86 Bu. In Halfway Test Corn yield tests at the High Plains Research Foundation during 1959 included a test of thirty-eight hybrids and a comparison of three hybrids at four different planting dates.

Since the production of corn on the High Plains is increasing, there is more demand for information concerning adapted varieties and production practices. The hybrid corn yield test conducted at the Foundation showed a wide range of adaptation among hybrids by the variation in yields from 30.2 to 86.2 bushels per acre. Likewise, the date of planting test varied from 53.1 to 95.7 bushels per acre between two planting dates.

A previous test indicated that lodging also varies greatly with planting date. Therefore, the right combination of adapted varieties and optimum planting date could result in high yields and decreased lodging.

One of the hazards of corn production on the High Plains is lodging (as a result of the southwestern corn borer) which generally occurs at maturity. If corn could be harvested mechanically before lodging occurs, corn production could be more profitable. This would mean that moisture content of the grain would be high (about 25%) and would have to be dried. These are problems which need further study.

These tests were conducted on Pullman Clay loam soil, which was in grain sorghum production the previous year. Seed bed preparation included deep breaking to a depth of ten inches, followed by disking and listing on forty-inch centers. All plots in both tests received 95 pounds of nitrogen per acre in the form of ammonium nitrate (33.5% N), sidedressed June 17.

A severe hail on June 22 damaged the plants considerably, which decreased yields an estimated ten per cent.

All plots were hand harvested in September and later threshed separately with a combine. Moisture percentage for each hybrid was determined and all yields were then adjusted to 14 per cent moisture.

HYBRID CORN YIELD TEST

This test, made up of 38 hybrids, was planted April 17 in two-row plots twenty-two feet long and arranged in a randomized block design with four replications.

An application of 3.68 inches of water was applied to secure uniform stand on all plots. Two subsequent irrigations of three inches each plus 15.75 inches of rainfall from April through August made 25.43 inches of moisture available during the growing season.

Yields reported in Table 1 are based on 56 pounds of shelled corn per bushel and are the average of four plots for each hybrid.

Yields of 38 corn hybrids tested at the High Plains Research Foundation during 1959.

Stilbestrol Shows Effect In Calves

Choice Hereford steer calves implanted with 12 milligrams of stilbestrol when approximately three months of age averaged 19 pounds more per steer at weaning time than their non-implanted mates. Too, A. A. Melton, animal husbandman, at the Trans-Pecos Experiment Station, Balmorhea, said the implanted calves had an advantage in condition which was reflected in a slightly higher grade.

Forty-one choice Hereford steer calves were implanted and the same number not implanted in the test. The implanted calves weighed 521 pounds per head at weaning time, about October 1, 1959, compared with 502 pounds for those not receiving the implant of 12 milligrams of stilbestrol, Melton said.

In continuing the comparison, one group implanted as suckling calves was reimplanted with 24 milligrams of stilbestrol on November 19. This group showed a daily gain of 1.12 pounds from November 19, 1959 to February 24, 1960. Another group, first implanted in November, had a gain of 1.16 pounds daily. The group implanted at any time gained 1.03 pounds daily, Melton said.

The steers will be placed in drylot for fattening about May 1 and implants again used to provide comparisons between 3, 2, 1 and no implants, respectively. The steers are expected to reach slaughter weights by August or September.

The mechanical shovel makes quick work of dragging soil back into the trench in a cover-up operation. The operators become very proficient in the use of the unique device.

As seen from the air, the pipe is laid in the open trench by men and machines. It is a highly specialized, systematized operation with no wasted time and effort.

THE PARMER FARMER

By W. H. Graham, Jr.

Even though relations between the United States and Cuba continue to be more than just a little frayed at the edges, it appears that the great furor stirred up about a month ago over the Cuban sugar situation is going to die down. As a matter of fact, we haven't noticed the subject in any newspaper within the past week. The U. S. and Cuban sugar agreement will be renewed probably for four years and it does not appear at this time that there is any possibility for a revolutionary break through for domestic beet sugar producers. Even the president of the United States Beet Sugar Producers advocates renewing the agreement with Cuba under which that government is guaranteed a good price for about one-third of the sugar requirements for the United States.

This appears to be just another one of those ridiculous situations that appear whenever governments attempt to regulate the interchange and exchange of commodities.

Walter Rogers, our congressman, is at bat for us in the sugar beet problem. He introduced three bills last week which would all help establish sugar beet raising on our irrigated farmlands--which need new crops badly.

Rogers proposes that the quotas for domestic production be increased and that acreage restrictions be removed. The wording of the bill is such that acreage for new areas (with fewer than 20,000 acres) would receive priority. Doubtless he is thinking of Hereford and their hopes for a mill there if 20,000 acres can be drummed up.

In spite of Walter's good intentions, there is little likelihood that this legislative relief will come to pass. The administration is not disposed to a drastic overhaul of the sugar program right now. In fact, even inland sugar beet producers want the act continued without any great changes.

The best we can hope for is a modest, but regular increase from year to year. In spite of Fidel's tantrums, Uncle Sam isn't going to junk the old program overnight.

More politics and farming. They just don't mix well.

It is true that farmers have been criticized unjustly for many things over which they have little or no control. It is also true, however, that farmers as a group do have their shortcomings just as is the case with any major economic segment.

Perhaps it isn't the most important thing in the world, but we would like to point out one of the irritations we often suffer when in the presence of a group of farmers is that they never seem to be satisfied with the weather.

Now, being unhappy with the weather has been stylish since the days of Mark Twain, who declared that everyone talked about it but that no one ever did anything about it. As a matter of fact, man's preoccupation with the elements probably dates back a lot farther than that. Just the same, we are of the opinion that farmers as a whole are unnecessarily and often unjustly critical of the things which Mother Nature chooses to send their way.

From 1950 until 1957 we had built up the belief that farmers of this area would never again complain about getting moisture; however, when the drought was broken and it finally did begin to rain a little, we find that is always rains at the wrong time or the rain comes down in the wrong way, or there is too much of it, or not enough of it.

Not only have farmers crabbed about the rain, but we have heard lots of bellyaching already this spring about what a "tough" winter it was and about how a'1 that snow and cold weather had just about ruined them.

Actually, the winter of 1959-1960 has been one of the most beneficial that nature has ever sent us. It is true that many winter time farm chores, such as disking, plowing, fertilizing and other land preparation activities have been unexpectedly delayed because of the severity of the weather. However, the moisture which has been stored in the soil profile that was brought by the snow, sleet and rain this past winter will be of inestimable value to all crops through the growing season this summer.

We have just come through what old timers would fondly refer to as a wonderful "underground season."

In spite of the schedule interruptions and awkwardnesses which this past winter has caused, this writer is of the opinion that we are in a poor position to be complaining about what has been sent us.

Naturally, we can understand and appreciate the disappointments that a farmer is sure to feel when his plantings are washed out or his crops are beaten flat during a hail storm. Just the same, it looks to us as if it would be only fair to remember some of the good things that have been sent our way when the coin turns its other side toward us.

Someone told us the other day they had heard or read the High Plains got more snow this year than did many Rocky Mountain areas including the city of Denver.

Now we don't have any statistics to support this statement, or to disprove it either for that matter. However we are inclined to feel this could certainly be the case. As a matter of fact, we'd be willing to bet if you measure the amount of snow we have received during the winter and compare it with what is an average snowfall for many cities that consider themselves to be in the area of a pretty rough winter climate, we'd be right up there with some of the best. Now whether you think this is something to brag about or be ashamed of, we don't know, but it sure does make good conversation.

A better life for Rural Texans

The Electric Cooperative turned the fabled Little Red School house into a modern training ground for our future rural leaders, and provided many advantages their parents were denied.

On the average, today's rural young people will be bigger and healthier. They will have a longer life expectancy. But they will also have responsibilities.

Their mothers and fathers borrowed money at interest to build their own electric systems in rural areas. In most instances, they are ahead of schedule repaying principal and interest on their loans. But, an expanding population and increased rural industry will require heavier lines and equipment to insure continued good electric service. These rural young people are the future member-owners of the electric cooperative serving their area.

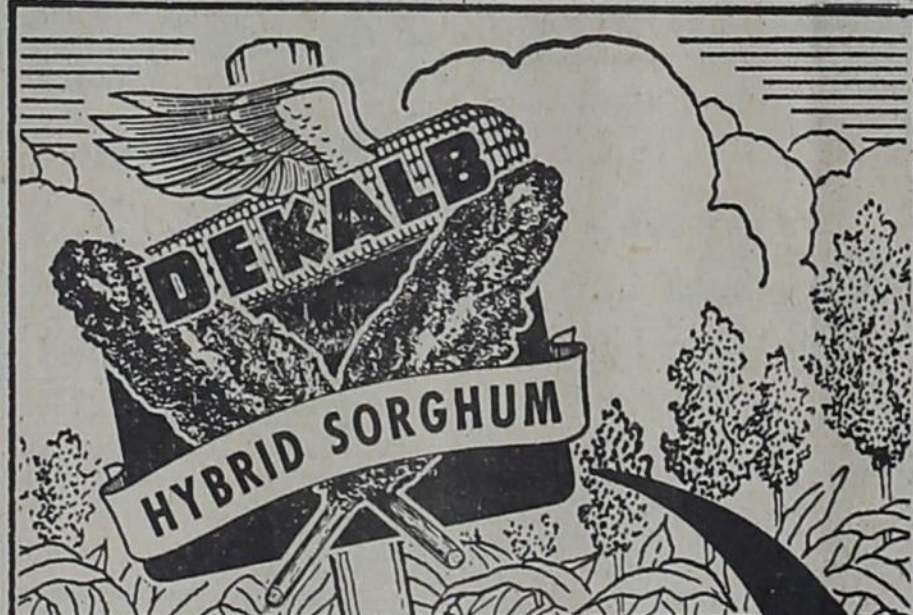

Thanks to the Electric Cooperative, they will be far better equipped, mentally and physically, to assume their share of the continuing task of Providing Partnership Power For Progress.
