Husband Michael undergoes successful kidney transplant

Pam Haseloff: God answers prayers

by Leesa Patterson

Three years ago, Michael and Pam Haseloff of Farwell received some of the most terrifying news they could get: Michael's kidneys were failing.

"I was scared to death," recalls Michael. "I wondered if I was going to die. It was really scary."

After speaking with a renal doctor, things didn't seem so bad. But, when it rains, it pours. On Oct. 14th of 1999, that same month he became a renal patient, Michael underwent a quadruple by-pass on his heart.

He recovered from his heart surgery, but he still had to be hooked up to a dialysis machine for 8 hours every night to do the functions his kidneys normally would have done.

"I felt like I could have done something to have helped it," said Michael in reference to his kidney failure. "I knew I had diabetes and I could have taken better care of myself."

Unfortunately, it's hard to see the future until it happens. The Haseloffs tried to keep a positive attitude throughout all of this.

"We weren't as bad off as some people," Pam, who is a Parmer County Justice of the Peace, pointed out. Before being able to do dialysis at home, Michael had to go to a clinic where they saw many individuals missing limbs and far worse off than he was. "It makes you thankful," Pam said.

It was finally determined that Michael would need a kidney transplant. A once healthy tan had been reduced to a grayish pallor. Michael was constantly exhausted, frequently just coming home and falling asleep in his chair within seconds. Even traveling was a huge hassle, so he wouldn't.

"That's no way to live," he said. "It's hard."

Then, on June 4th of this summer, just 15 months after being put on the waiting list, the Haseloffs got "the" call.

"It was the first and only call we got. They called at 9:30 that morning and said if we could get to Lubbock by noon they might have a kidney for Michael," Pam recalled. A kidney had been donated that morning, and Michael was selected as the backup, just in case the first patient selected wasn't a compatible choice.

Once they got to the hospital, the medical staff took 14 vials of Michael's blood for testing. Ninety percent of the time the organ will go to the primary choice, leaving

Accountability ratings given for area school districts

The Texas Department of Education has announced its annual school accountability ratings.

Exemplary ratings are given to schools with 90 percent of more of the student body in each student group passing all sections of the TAAS test, a 94 percent or higher attendance rate, and a dropout rate of 1 percent or less.

Recognized ratings are given when 80 percent of students pass the TAAS, with 94 percent attendance, and a 3.5 percent or less dropout rate.

Acceptable ratings are given when 50 percent of students or more pass TAAS, with a 5.5 percent or less dropout rate.

Here's how our area schools stack up:

Farwell School District -- recognized; Farwell High, exemplary; Farwell Junior High, recognized; Farwell Elementary, exemplary.

This was the first time ever that Farwell Elementary earned exemplary status.

What is your position?

As I write this, terrorism continues throughout our sad world.

The suicide bombings in Israel are plain sickening.

After their first wave, Israel sent in tanks to the Palestinian areas. I wrote at that time that you can't fight terrorism with tanks. That appears to be the case, unfortunately.

And that is just one part of the worldwide war we are involved in, whether we like it or not.

What I have come to realize is that there are several points of view involving terrorism.

Scenario 1: Some folks feel that the terror threat is over with, since we kayoed Al-Qaeda and the Taliban in Afghanistan.

Scenario 2: Some folks believe the terror threat is minimal, due to increased surveillance by our federal agencies.

They feel that the worst the bad guys can do, for example, is to try and bomb a building.

Scenario 3: Some folks (including me) believe the terror threat is major and that some day the terrorists will have the capability of causing severe damage to our nation, using biological, chemical and/or atomic weapons.

I sure hope I am 100 percent wrong.

As of this moment, August 2002, I would say that Scenario No. 2 is probably correct.

But I fear that down the road, the Scenario No. 3 would look to be real, mainly because of the support that Moslem extremists get from Arab leaders like Saddam Hussein.

Appearing before a congressional committee recently was a former leading Iraqi scientist who told of mad dog Hussein's plans to have atomic weapons available in two to three years.

And Hussein (who we have to remember is nothing more than a thug like Al Capone) has two hatreds: against Israel, and against us.

Banter

Can the Iraqis, working with Al-Qaeda, smuggle an atomic weapon into the U.S.? Are our borders that porous?

If you feel that's possible, than what should we do? Wait til it happens, or take appropriate methods to defend ourselves now.

Well, you know where I stand. But I am probably in the minority.

In a previous column, I supported the use of assassination in this war, and I was criticized by several folks for that.

I just would like to point this out: we used assassination in World War II, and also in the Vietnam War.

So all I was doing was to support past American wartime policies.

And there's the rub: some folks feel we are at war, and others don't.

I find that simply amazing. While we go about our normal lives, thousands of extremists, abetted by some Arab leaders, are plotting day and night to do real harm to us.

One side believes it's at war (the extremists), while the other (us) doesn't.

As President Bush so aptly put it, it's a war unlike any other that has ever been fought.

Okay, folks, it's time to remember the kids who head off to college.

Every year, we get a couple of dozen parents or grandparents who take out newspaper subscriptions for the college kids.

The cost is $22.50 for nine months (through May of next year).

A lot of folks come in each year late in the fall to sign up their kids, who really miss all the news from home. The cost is the same -- $22.50.

So it's a lot better to get their gift subscriptions right from the get-go.

Your kid will truly appreciate your thoughtfulness.

Each year at this time, I find folks to help with our area football coverage.

Mike and Peggy Goettsch will be covering the Farwell Steers away games this season; I will be at the home games.

only a 10% chance Michael would get the kidney, but the medical staff didn't want to take any chances.

At 4:30 that afternoon the Haseloffs got some of the best news they'd heard in a while. The kidney was going to Michael

The surgery lasted from about 11 p.m. to 2 a.m. After the transplant Michael's immune system was incredibly low. Few people were allowed to even see him.

After about a day and a half, Michael began to feel the results of his new kidney. He had to spend an additional 21 days in Lubbock for various tests and to be monitored, just in case his body rejected the organ.

It didn't.

After his surgery, the doctors informed Michael that his kidney had come from a 7-year-old girl who had been in a car accident. "It was pretty hard to handle where it came from," said Michael, but he was very thankful for the gift of life her family had given him.

It should take about 6 months for Michael's new kidney to grow to fit his body size. He must also remain on anti-rejection medication for the rest of his life. Even skipping a dose could have serious consequences.

After a year, Michael should be able to go back to work on a regular basis, but as of right now Michael is able to help his family with their farm.

"I think it's kept him from getting bored or depressed, since he isn't sitting around all the time. I know it's kept me sane," laughed his wife.

Michael has recently even been able to go swimming with his grandchildren, something he hasn't been able to do in 5 years.

The Haseloffs have felt like the people of Farwell have been such a blessing throughout this whole ordeal with fundraisers, support, and countless prayers.

"God answers prayers, I know," Pam said as she smiled at her husband well on his way to recovery and a normal life.

Jeffery Seaton and Sterling Via

Seaton, Via capture rodeo championships

Two Lazbuddie cowboys won the championships in the High Plains Junior Rodeo Association.

Sterling "Spud" Via was the champion team roper (header) in the 13-15 age division.

He is the son of Jan and Guy Walt Via, of Lazbuddie.

Jeffery "J.T." Seaton was the champion calf roper in the 16-19 age division.

He is the son of Rickie and Jimmie Dale Seaton, of Lazbuddie.

Farwell Steers 2-a-day football workouts will start on Aug. 9.

They will be held from 8 to 10 a.m., and 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., said Coach Jacob Thompson.

Cloud-seeding opposed

The Bailey County Commissioners have passed a resolution opposing cloud-seeding.

It's based on some county farmers believing that the cloud seeding has resulted in cloud dissipation, rather than rain enhancement in the county.

Friona man dies in accident

Robert Bretado, 46, of Friona, died in a one-vehicle rollover on the night of July 31 on Parmer County Road 19, north-east of Friona.

He was a passenger in a vehicle driven by Ester Castro, 42, of Friona, who fractured her arm, according to the Texas Highway Patrol.

Your electric water heater may be giving you the cold shoulder.

It typically takes an electric water heater longer to heat up water than it takes an LP-gas heater with the same size tank. Sometimes a lot longer. So while others are enjoying a nice, hot shower, your electric water heater may be giving you the cold shoulder. Of course, speed is only one advantage. Because Philgas is a very efficient way to heat water, it can cost you less than electricity. Shower after shower. Month after month. LP-gas also uses considerably less natural energy than electricity. And conserving energy is something we are all concerned about. So when you've got a job to do around the house or farm, give us a call. Because if Philgas will heat water better, imagine how well it can do a multitude of things better than you're doing them now with electricity.

Texico high school counselor hired Robbie Allred, of Clovis, will be the new Texico High School counselor, said Supt. R.L. Richards.

Ms. Allred taught for nine years in Clovis and has a counseling license.

She replaces Janice Jenkins, who resigned last month.

There were six applications for the post.

This leaves one Texico position unfilled as yet:

music teacher/band director, following last month's resignation by Ellen Reighley.

It's difficult finding a qualified music teacher at this late date, and Dr. Richards is looking into hiring a kindergarten through 8th grade endorsed teacher to handle the post.

Another option being looked at is sharing Farwell's new band director.

Lazbuddie community discusses sup't profile

The Lazbuddie School Board met on July 30 to discuss the pending open superintendent's post.

Supt. Hardy Carlyle has resigned, effective Nov. 30.

The board and state school board group are working together on getting a replacement. Tom Jarboe, former Friona School superintending, is heading the search.

So the board met with Jarboe to discuss the superintendent profile. In other words, what kind of a person does the school board want?

On July 28, Jarboe held a public meeting at the school cafeteria to get input to the same question from community residents. More than 15 folks attended.

This week, Jarboe was to meet with non-professional staff and professional staff in separate meetings on the same topic.

Orientation, cookout set

There is going to be an orientation for preschool students and their parents at the Life in Christ Academy in Lariat on Tuesday, Aug. 13 at 6 p.m.

There will be a cookout at 7 p.m. for those attending.

There are positions still available for the 4-year-old classes for the coming school year. There is a $35 registration and a fee of $80 a month. For more information call Tina Symm at 825-2410 or 825-3074.

'You have to be careful,' warns Ruby Meeks

by Leesa Patterson

What can be more fun than staying the night at Grandma's house? Ruby Meeks was keeping her granddaughter, Tasha, and her friend, Kayla Sanders, on Monday, Aug. 5th. The girls would also be sleeping at Ruby's house that evening.

It seems like August in West Texas is the hottest month of the year. Because of the heat, the girls decided to cool off in the small pool in Ruby's back yard. After swimming, the wet towels were deposited on the bathroom counter and forgotten as the girls went on to play some other game.

It was dark in the house, except for the beacon of the occasional night-light. Ruby had discovered that her night vision wasn't very good, so she decided keeping night-lights in almost every room of the house seemed very logical just in case she had to get up in the night. All was quiet, with the exception of the occasional giggle or light footsteps that often come with a sleepover.

Around 2 a.m. Tasha and Kayla came rushing into Ruby's room telling her that they smelled smoke. "I thought it was probably an electrical problem with the neighbor's air conditioner or something," she recalled. "I told them to go back to bed."

The girls left Ruby's room and returned to the other side of the house where they were sleeping. Ruby was jolted out of bed quickly by shouts coming from the bathroom near the room the girls were sleeping in.

After they had gone swimming one of the girls had left her towel on the bathroom counter, near a night light. During the night, the damp towel had caught on fire. Tasha was quick enough to douse the towel in the sink to keep the fire from spreading. The girls had discovered it before any real damage was done.

"It was a good thing the kids smelled it," Ruby said. "I don't think I would have." Fortunately, no damage was done, with the exception of several holes burned through the towel.

Mrs. Meeks wanted to warn others about the dangers that can be associated with night-lights. "You have to be careful," she warned.

LIVE CATTLE: Cash cattle trade for $63 again this week. There seems to be very little resistance to lower bids each week? This market made new highs for the move up from the April low just last week and prices have traded back down into a sideways range. Seasonals are strong for a move up between August 1 - 14 over the last 10 years. Look for one more shot up over the next two weeks.

FEEDER CATTLE: Prices continue to move within a sideways range as cash prices have remained strong. At this time, future prices are trading discount to cash. Support lies $75.40 basis the August and October contracts. A move back to $79 resistance will require a large move up in fed cattle prices or lower corn prices. Look for another shot higher over the next couple of weeks.

CORN: Prices have moved higher on fears of "hot and dry" weather in the Mid West. The weather has been changing about as fast as the prices. Trends are still pointing higher, but any change in weather will be quickly reflected in price. Most estimates have now dropped to an 8.9 billion bushel crop this year. Targets are $2.72 basis the December contract.

SOYBEANS: Fundamentally, weather has had much less impact on beans than corn prices. Soybeans have failed to break out to new highs this week, but prices have still remained strong. Support lies above the $5.30 level and resistance above the $5.60 level basis the November contract. Weather will be the driving force behind prices. Weather in August will have more impact on beans.

WHEAT: Prices followed the rest of the grain complex on Thursday when prices exploded off the open. This market failed to hold and sold off later the same day. Long term charts still have projections close to the $3.90 level. It will take lots of help from higher beans and corn to get prices there over the next term. Long term, prices may move higher later in the year?

COTTON: Prices are still in a consolidation and have been here since last June. Support is around 45 and resistance is around the 50-cent level. A move above the topside could take prices up to 53 cents while a move below 45 would push prices down toward 40 cents. Out of two major analysts' predictions, one predicts 60-cent cotton, while the other predicts prices down to 40? We'll see...
