CHURCH OF CHRIST NEWS
Ebb Randol, Minister

Speaker for a series of gospel meetings to be at the local church beginning Easter Sunday and continuing through April 13 will be H. H. Williams of Texistine.

Two services daily are scheduled during the week for 10 a.m. and 8 p.m. Sunday services will include Bible study at 10 a.m., followed by preaching and communion at 10:50 a.m., and 7 p.m. Everyone is cordially invited to attend.

Routine business was transacted at a called business meeting Monday night.

Work has begun on paving from the gutter to the sidewalks in front of the building for a parking lot. K. Barnett and Son of Clovis are the contractors for the job.

HAMLIN MEMORIAL METHODIST CHURCH NEWS
Rev. W. H. Hardwick, Minister

A series of Holy Week services have been in progress at the church this week, with MYF meeting each morning for brunch and a devotional and preaching services held each evening for the entire congregation.

Good Friday service will begin at 7 p. m. tomorrow night, and will be climaxed with the observance of Holy Communion. Following the service, all members are invited to attend the cantata, "Seven Last Words" produced by the choir of the First Methodist Church in Clovis, at 8:30 CST. The local choir will be honored with a fellowship hour as guests of the host choir later in the evening.

Easter Sunday morning, the choir will sing two special numbers, and a class of 17 young people will be received into the church prior to the sermon, "The Blessed Easter Faith."

Quarterly conference, which was called for Sunday night, will not be held because the district superintendent has been called away after receiving word of illness in his family. The date of the conference will be announced later.

Sunday evening, B. A. Rogers has organized a quartet to sing at evening services.

Tuesday, at 6:45 a. m., the bi-monthly men's breakfast is scheduled with Dr. I. D. Johnson of Clovis as speaker. Each man is to bring his son or "borrow" a son to take to the breakfast.

March Is Busy Marriage Month

March has been a busy month for personnel at the office of the county clerk in the marriage license division. Most of the licenses that were issued during the month went to out-of-county, and some out-of-state couples.

Among those applying for licenses were George Kenneth Oakley of Clovis and Linda Ann Kiker of Portales on March 15; Roy Vineyard Holloway of Amarillo and Genevieve Clara Aichlmayr of Amarillo on March 22.

From Oklahoma were Anita Louise Pressnal of Mooreland, and Bill Jack Miller, also of Mooreland. Hugh Moseley, county clerk, says that the young man is a nephew of Claude Miller of Route 1, Friona. Rev. E. J. Keith of First Baptist Church, Farwell, read the vows. The license was obtained on March 24.

On March 26, the certificate for marriage was obtained by James Lynn Rodney of Cannon Air Force Base and Sandra Faye Stoddard of Clovis. Rev. C. C. Morgan of Texico Baptist Church, performed the marriage ceremony. Miss Stoddard is a niece of Mrs. Jess Richardson.

Betty Louise Bradley of Friona and Milton Melvin McPherson of Newport, Ore., received a license on March 27.

Monday, March 31, Jerry Don Wieland and Betty Carol May, both of Lackney, obtained a license at the clerk's office.

★ CAR INSPECTION RACE IS ON

When McKillip Motor Co. was designated as official car inspection station in Farwell three weeks ago, little did they realize what a job it was going to be.

On Monday of this week, the official inspection station had checked and placed stickers on the windows of 324 vehicles.

That's an average of 108 vehicles that have gone through the check-up process each week and about 21 or 22 each day.

The deadline for having cars inspected is April 15.

Dr. and Mrs. T. J. Glenn and children spent the weekend, sightseeing in and around Santa Fe. They toured the ski area and visited Navajo tribal ceremonies. The family returned to Farwell early Monday morning.

Visiting this week in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Almer Powell is their daughter, Mrs. Jack Brunson of Amarillo. She has also visited with her husband's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Teel.

Do You Make A Lake An Asset?

by R. V. Thurmond and D. W. Sherrill

Geologists estimate that in the High Plains of Texas there are 37,000 lakes covering at least a million acres.

In 1957 sixty lakes were drained into recharge-irrigation wells. Silt held in suspension in lake water presents a problem;

Recharge wells should have a packer outside the casing at a 30 to 40 feet depth to keep water from coming up outside the casing and caving off the soil around the pump base.

A gate valve to shut off lake water is recommended over the flap valve. Lake water should be shut off at least once each day and pump started to clean out silt and mud.

Lake Water for Direct Irrigation Water from about 600 lakes was pumped directly onto cropland in 1957. This lake water is warmer than well water.

Each farmer with a lake on his farm could use it in such a way that it would be an asset rather than a liability.

or using the lake water directly on crops, it would pay to move enough dirt to make a channel to drain the water to one portion of the lake so that the lake could be drained or pumped dry from one location next to the bank.

Were it not for the expense of moving dirt, it would pay to concentrate the entire lake water into a small area to cut down on surface evaporation.

If the farmer has his own dirt moving equipment, some work done each year channelling and providing pit on one side of the lake, spreading dirt removed over the balance of the lake bed would be a rewarding work, and reclaim land for crops rather than for water storage.

Tag Sales Indicate More Cars in County

Monday was a busy day for employees of the office of county tax assessor-collector, as they wrote automobile license receipts for last-minute buyers of license plates.

Deadline was the first of the week for Texas car owners. Although a final count had not been tabulated by the office on Tuesday afternoon, employees estimated that 2745 auto plates had been sold, and 560 commercial tags had been issued.

Last year, over 2540 automobile licenses were sold, which indicates that there has been an increase of 200 cars in the county over the 1957 total.

NEWS FROM THE FARM BUREAU

By RAYMOND EULER

"Counties and communities throughout the nation are spending unprecedented sums for new school room construction, and efforts are being made to increase teacher's salaries and to improve the over-all conditions of our schools.

"We recognize the need for continually improving our educational system. Through the more than 2600 County Farm Bureaus in 48 states we are giving constant study to the educational programs of our schools."

The two above paragraphs are a portion of a letter from American Farm Bureau Federation to Senator Lister Hill of Alabama, chairman of the Senate Labor and Public Welfare Committee.

There are still some people who do not understand that the government is not the best market for farm commodities. Because of variation of general cotton grades in some areas, it is hard to believe that the average market price for cotton has been above the government support price every year but one since cotton has been supported.

We are glad to note that some who a year or two ago would not discuss the supply and demand, due to price differentials, situation, are now incorporating this consideration into their proposals for improving the orderly marketing urgency.

Table titled 'TEXAS NORMAL YIELDS OF UPLAND COTTON - 1957' showing yields per harvested acre for counties from 1952 to 1956.

These figures prepared by the USDA show conclusively that Parmer County has been leading all counties of the irrigated High Plains in cotton production, yield-wise.

Parmer Tops Plains In Cotton Yields

By W. H. GRAHAM JR.

Parmer County farmers have undisputable claim to the title, "Best Cotton County on the High Plains." They can prove it with authentic figures taken since irrigation came to be important in producing crops on the Plains.

The table accompanying this story shows the yields of lint cotton in this and other counties on the Plains through the years. No "official" figures are out yet on 1957, but it is almost a certainty that the farmers of Parmer County have done it again this past year.

This week the Plains Cotton Growers Inc. published a report, based on tabulations taken by the Bureau of the Census of the U. S. Department of Commerce, that set the 1957 Parmer County cotton crop at 52,364 bales.

The yield figures which are shown in this report have nothing to do with the quality of cotton, which can certainly be an important factor as regards price.

Parmer County farmers were hurt on grades just like all other Plains growers, but not so much as those to the east and south, where the wet, cold weather that hampered maturity of cotton and harvesting was concentrated.

Swisher and Castro Counties, both of which have larger cotton allotments than Parmer, fell off drastically in lint yield last year.

629 bales, Castro 40,365.

Lubbock County, which is the champ of them all for volume, ginned 204,934 bales in 1957. Their allotment was about 203,000 acres, which put their acre yield right at a bale.

Lamb, another big producer, dropped to 143,488 bales the past year. They have an allotment of around 200,000 also. Hale, which, the chart shows, has been Parmer County's closest competitor in yields, slipped from 174,387 bales in 1956 to 166,881 bales.

What gives Parmer County these good figures?

There are several main and many less important reasons. Parmer County's land is "new" and virtually every acre of cotton planted goes under irrigation.

Also, Parmer County has the natural advantage of a better climate for growing cotton in what is considered a "normal year."

Then, in poor years, such as the last one, Parmer County is less susceptible to rain, foggy weather, cloudy days, and storms than the South Plains.

SOIL CONSERVATION DISTRICT NEWS

As soon as time and weather conditions will permit, the Soil Conservation Service plans to conduct some irrigation studies here in Parmer County.

Proper water management is becoming more and more important to all the farmers in this area; especially to those who have a limited supply of irrigation water.

Farmalls are right for any job, they really eat up the acres, but are easy on the fuel. Phone or come in soon—we will show you what we mean.

want to utilize all the rainfall that they can.

Crops usually produce the highest yields when they can easily obtain moisture from the soil throughout the entire growing season. An application of water before it is needed will result in extra irrigation cost, excessive leaching of plant food, and in some cases harmful effects on the crops.

Some factors to be considered that will bring about more efficient use of irrigation water are: the storage capacity of the soil, the kind of crop that is being grown, the stage of growth of the crop, and weather conditions.

Decent Weather Is Back

Sunny skies this week ended one of the longest winter and spring "soupy" spells on record for High Plains farmers.

The wheat has ample moisture, at least for the next week or two, and spring field chores are running behind.

Wheat is jointing and some heads are being formed. The soil temperature is at last beginning to head upward and cotton farmers, always itching to get their seed into the ground, are beginning to get "that feeling."

Agriculture on the national level is uncertain this spring, but High Plains farmers are purposefully moving ahead for another crop year.

Only 12 Days Left For Car Inspection

Roughly, 1 out of 5 Texas autos have not been inspected as required by state law and there remains but 12 more working days prior to the inspection deadline on April 15.

Colonel Homer Garrison, Jr., Director of the Texas Department of Public Safety, said today that some 700,000 motor vehicles must still pass through the inspection lines prior to that date if their owners are to avoid being handed tickets for violation of the Motor Vehicle Inspection Law.

"It is still possible," said Garrison, "for the State's 4500 licensed inspection stations to handle the last minute rush provided that motorists take their cars immediately in order that there will be no delayed period between the handling of one vehicle and the next."

The Public Safety Director pointed out that every minute of the inspection stations' time will be at a premium between now and midnight April 15, and that waiting lines will be in store for those who wait as the deadline draws nearer.

Vice-President Nixon has emphasized that the jobs of more than 4,500,000 Americans depend upon foreign trade, and that we exported some $8 billion worth of non-military goods last year. He quoted Cordell Hull as saying: "Either goods will cross borders or soldiers will."

Care Required In Returning Ranges In Shape

by Joe Jones, County Agent

With the good subsoil moisture already in storage, native grasses have a real opportunity to make a big comeback on the range land. During the past few drouth years, most all of our ranges in the Southwest have been overstocked and have gone way down in forage production. This in turn has decreased the amount of beef and lamb that can be produced per acre. Until ranges are brought back into a productive state they cannot produce as they did before the drouth.

Management following drouth is more important than during a drouth. In a very few days ranges will green up, and far too many people will fail to take a good look at the plants giving the green cast to range land. In most instances it will be weeds and annual grasses. These are not the plants that will produce and pay off through the year.

In most instances seeds and root crowns of the more desirable grasses are in sufficient numbers to re-establish a good cover of desirable grasses such as grama and bluestem, but good management must be followed if this is to come about.

1. Experience and research show that a deferred rotation system of grazing will probably result in the most rapid rate of range recovery with a given rate of stocking. The critical period in grass development is during active growth and heading out. Part of the range should be rested during this period to allow seedlings to become established and older plants to gain strength.

2. The amount of use should be regulated to prevent damage to grazed plants in a weakened condition.

3. Make provisions for temporary pastures like sudan to allow your range plants to make badly needed growth during the favorable growing season.

4. Remember the time to defer grazing of your ranges is during the peak growing season. More good can be accomplished during this period than all the remainder of the year.

5. The time to prepare for the next drouth is during the more favorable years when a forage reserve can be grown, and plants put in the optimum state of productivity.

LETTER To The Editor

Dear Editor:

In regard to the Farm Bureau "New Look" Farm Program Proposal, I would like to mention only one error in your report: The figures used were for arriving at the 1957 crop price instead of 1959.

Mr. W. L. Edelman, in his letter to you, in the last issue, failed to recognize one very important feature of the New Look Program in question. This feature is the linkage of all feed grains together in a price support program after taking into consideration the relative feed value of each feed in relation to corn. (After eliminating acreage allotments on corn).

The preceding three years weighted average price is somewhat different than the support price as it was, since there was no consideration for the relative value to corn. (By preceding 3 year average weighted price, the 1957 figure would have been arrived at by using the years of 1956, 1955, and 1954.) The corn support would be $1.22 per bushel. After adjustment for feed value related to corn, and other factors, under the Farm Bureau Proposal, the grain sorghum price on a national average for the 1957 crop year would have been $2.18 per hundred weight, compared to the Calculated Parity support price of $1.86.

The objective of the Farm Bureau cotton proposal is to establish price supports on a basis which will assist producers in marketing cotton through the normal channels of trade, expand the cotton market, and expand cotton acreage.

Another feature in the program is that as of August 1, 1958, C. C. C. stocks be set aside and used only in financing the export subsidy program, providing that no sales shall be made from C. C. C. stocks at less than 110 percent of the prevailing support price for cotton.

This program would create conditions that would let the market operate normally. The support price would be a floor instead of a ceiling. The price support couldn't be used as a price fixing device as it now is. It wouldn't be based on an arbitrary formula, nor be left completely to the discretion of the secretary of agriculture.

I would like to point out to Mr. Edelman that the farmer would have a real choice in the cotton referendum this fall under the new program: Your regular allotment and support price, or a slightly lower support price with increased acreage allotment. This would at least be a choice compared to what we have voted on in recent years.

Taking the present cotton situation, the supply being short on some grades, the market is expected to be above the support price this fall. Then the farmer will be in an advantageous position to benefit by increasing his acreage. Also, increased acreage for cotton should help the grain sorghum price, due to less acreage left for its production.

Sincerely yours,
Gilbert Kaltwasser

Playing catch up may lead to a disaster. Farmers over Texas will take to the fields with a rush once conditions become favorable. The Texas Farm and Ranch Safety Council passes on the word of warning: "Don't try to cram more hours into a day by overtaxing your physical capacity. Many fatal farm accidents are caused by fatigue which dulls the reflexes and leads to the taking of chances that could mean serious trouble. Don't throw safety aside for haste. The life you save may be your own."

Onions as far as the eye can see is the sight on the J. T. Ford farm east of Farwell. Ford, his brother, and sons are planting about 100 acres of onions this year in another big effort to cash in on the risky vegetable market, which sometimes pays off handsomely. These sprouts need water, and will be irrigated this week.

Early cultivation is started on the tender young onion crop by breaking the soil down the middles between the beds. You can't see them in this picture, but the onion plants are there just the same, taking root in the High Plains soil.

Corn Agreements Good Until May 1

The sunny weather of this week is really appreciated by farmers who are still holding corn from last fall. And that includes a substantial percentage of the 1957 growers.

This spring has been a record so far as high humidity and cloudy days have been concerned. In normal years, farmers have no trouble drying grain naturally. This year it has been different. The corn was wet when it was harvested, and much of it is still wet—from 15 to 20 percent moisture content.

Because so little of the corn has been eligible to go immediately into the loan—or on the market, for that matter—most has been placed under a "purchase agreement" with the government. That means that for a slight penalty, the government will still accept delivery for the loan up to May 1.

May 1 has sounded like plenty of time to most farmers. But it's less than 30 days away now and the corn is still in the turnrows. Most farmers believe they still will make the deadline.

Others have expressed the opinion that they think even if a wet spell returns the government will move the deadline back on account of special circumstances.

Police officer: "Hey, slow down that truck. Don't you have a governor on it?"

Bewildered truck driver: "Governor? No, sir. He's back at the capital. That's fertilizer you smell."

THE PARMER FARMER

by W. H. Graham Jr.

Politics and farm program planning are sure to be a lively mixture this year. We already have evidences of that. The "freeze the prices" farm bill now vetoed by President Eisenhower is a good case in point.

If the president had signed it, he would have been repudiating everything he has said, as he stood behind Ezra Benson for so long. And, in vetoing it, the ire of many farm-state congressmen, even some Republicans, will come down on him.

The USDA has just announced that farm product prices are up four percent over a month ago, and they strongly suggest that the farmer who was the first to go "into the woods" four years ago, is now going to be the first one to come out. If you haven't heard, labor and industry have followed the farmer into rather unprofitable times.

This apparently is reason enough for President Eisenhower to once again stick by his guns and refuse to sign farm legislation he thinks unwise, even though it appears to be poor politics at the moment.

That probably means that agriculture, so far as farm laws are concerned, will be pretty much status-quo for another year. In 1959, however, there appear to be some major changes due.

One thing that this columnist feels has been completely overlooked by all people who are hard at work trying to frame a workable farm program is that price is not necessarily the most important thing in the market place.

While we admit that competion from synthetics and imported products sometimes makes American-produced farm commodities appear high-priced, we do not agree that this completely blocks all sales possibilities.

The curious has only to look around to see examples of this in every-day business affairs. The manufacturer who places in the market place a product that is unquestioned in quality, who can deliver when the product is demanded, and can deliver in the amount desired, always has an edge over his competition, even though this competition may be cheaper.

Bringing the subject closer home to those who think in the realm of agriculture, look what has been done in the processed foods business in recent years.

Housewives no longer buy sacked potatoes just because they are truly a cheap commodity on a dollar-for-food basis. They even have gone past the stage where they insist that all the potatoes be of high quality.

Since an enterprising processor introduced ready-to-mix mashed potatoes, they are buying that product. And they love it, no matter if the potatoes in this form cost five times as much as their raw equivalent!

The same is true for rolls, biscuits, and other wheat-ingredient products. Very little sacked flour is sold today, compared to the per capita consumption of a generation ago. The housewife prefers and insists on ready-to-make products. And she isn't particularly interested in the price, as innumerable studies have proven!

All boiled down, a customer is willing to pay the ASKING price most of the time if he wants the product bad enough. Otherwise, he may BID on what is offered, knowing that he probably can take the commodity on his own terms.

It has been pointed out that the farmer is a rare bird in the sense that he's about the only producer who goes to the wholesaler and says, "What will you give me for this?" Most everybody else states a price for what they offer for sale.

We do not personally believe that the farmer is doomed to such a reverse system eternally. Agriculture, after all, is only an industry. Many others have standardized, placed emphasis on product quality, uniformity, and service, and succeeded. So can agriculture.

The very fact that the number of farmers is decreasing yearly points toward the advantages of organizing farmers as one great industry.

Legislation can never bring this about. It will have to be done by the farmer himself, and this will not be attained any time soon. But it can—and should—come.

This week, we want to correct an old mistake.

Back in November, we ran the recipe for "hermits", a chewy cookie. Not until the past weekend did we learn that the printed result didn't include flour. Truly, it does! We just failed to say so.

We appreciated a call from Mrs. E. W. McGuire, and we learned of the error. Mrs. McGuire's daughter had tried the recipe, and decided it would have to have flour, so she guessed at the proportions. But she wanted to know how much of the ingredient should be used. So we will reprint the recipe here, and hope we get everything into it this time.

HERMITS 6 tbs. shortening 1/2 cup sugar 1 egg 1/2 cup molasses 1 1/2 cups flour 2 tsp. baking powder 1/4 tsp. soda 1/3 tsp. salt 3/4 tsp. cinnamon 1/4 cup milk 1 cup seeded raisins Cream shortening. Add sugar, egg and molasses; mix well. Sift the dry ingredients; add alternately with the milk. Add raisins; mix well. Drop on greased baking sheet; bake in moderate oven at 350 degrees F. about 10 minutes. Makes 3 dozen.

We've had a chance the past week to make some of the recipes we've been "dying to try," while the spouse has been "trying to die." He has had a bad cold and his taster is out of whack, and he doesn't know if the cooking is good or bad. So we can prepare foods that we like and he doesn't care for and he doesn't know the difference. He merely knows if it's hot or cold.

Most everyone who waited until the last day to buy license plates was in a good mood this week, even though standing in line got a little tedious for some. And the personnel in the tax assessor's office seemed to be in good spirits, although they were running receipts through their typewriters at a rapid pace.

As one of them commented, "These people just wanted to get all the good from their 1957 tags." And a customer quipped, "If I had bought mine early, I wouldn't have had all this 'good company' to talk to," as he took his place in line. But most of those lined up seemed to have the same idea: "This won't happen to me next year."

Have you noticed all the beautiful jonquils blooming in the flower gardens around town? Spring is really here!

And when we asked Cary Joe Magness if he had his car inspection sticker for his ancient Model T, one of the very earliest varieties, Cary Joe answered in the affirmative.

He said the old car stood the test quite well; it did have to have a back-up light or some other little minor addition.

Our two preschoolers say "I love you" when they: Clean up (sort of) their room without our asking them to. Bring their toys and their ideas to Mama for approval or sharing.

The way they say "Mama." And, sometimes, nothing in particular — just a feeling of companionship, a smile, a look, or a wee hand in ours as we go down the front step.

A pat on the back develops character — if administered young enough, often enough and low enough.

LETTER To the Editor

In respect and gratitude to my good friend, Ira Levins, who was defeated in our city election April 1st for mayor, I think his name will go down in the history of this town as being one of the best.

He has worked hard and given his time and money to make this town of Texico a better place for you and I to live in. Some of you didn't see everything like Mr. Levins did. Neither will some of us see eye to eye with this good man Mr. Winegeart after he has been in office as long as Mr. Levins. I often wonder what is a man's reward for working so hard at one of those non-paying jobs. I often think of Walter Freeman, another of our unsung heroes, who without a doubt has given more of his time and money than any other man here in Texico.

He has been mayor and city clerk in the years that his pay wasn't enough to pay for his gasoline just seeing after the cemetery. Here, good friends, is a man who has not only given his time to see that we had a better town to live in, but looks after your resting place after you are gone. I don't think we give these men the credit they deserve. These public servants who work for free, I honestly think when their reward comes it will be from heaven.

I speak from experience as I have been down this rocky road several miles. To the new mayor, Mr. Winegeart, you are a good man. Winning this election proved this. My hope is that the good people of Texico give you their full cooperation because they and they alone are the cement between your bricks. I promise you mine.

To the past and present councilmen and mayors who have worked for us for free, let's all be proud of these good boys, for it is they who work for you and I for nothing. Thanks and gratitude is their only reward. LES MEANS

LaJune Burris Wins Spelling Bee Held Wednesday

LaJune Burris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Burris of Texico, won the Curry County spelling bee at the school Wednesday afternoon. The 13 year old girl is in the eighth grade.

She competed with entries from Clovis Junior High and Melrose. She will be the county entrant in the area-wide spelling bee to be sponsored by the Amarillo Globe News April 26.

Cynthia Spence, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Hagler, spelled down 39 fifth and sixth graders for the title of junior champion and will represent the county in that division of the Amarillo event. She is a fifth grader.

Mrs. Fred Danforth is director of the county bee.

Wallings Attend Graduation for Highway Policemen

Mr. and Mrs. Mitz Walling were in Santa Fe over the weekend where they attended special graduation exercises for highway patrolmen.

Mrs. Walling's brother, C. L. Gunn Jr., was a member of the class and received his diploma. He has not been assigned his duties as a patrolman yet.

Chief and Mrs. Joe Roach feted the guests for the graduation, with a luncheon at their home Sunday.

Crankcase Crisis!

It seems this nice old lady drove into a Phillips 66 Station to fill up with Flite-Fuel. When the attendant checked the dipstick, he found she had only about a quart of oil left in her car. When he pointed this out, she replied: "Fine . . . as soon as I use that up, I'll put in some more!"

Of course the Phillips Dealer explained that she needed five quarts of oil for adequate lubrication!

Now that spring is here, it's time to think about the oil in your crankcase. If you are still using "winter grade" oil, it's time to change it. But why use two, when one will do? Better switch to Phillips 66 Trop-Artic* which gives you the effects of 10w, 20 and 30 grade oils. Compared to old-fashioned oils Trop-Artic Motor Oil can actually double engine life. Drive in today for your spring change-over. *A trademark
