News Of Class 43-4

Lt. Schwarber Decorated For Sinking Two Jap Transports

Braving an anti-aircraft barrage "so intense that it jarred the plane all over the sky", the B-24 bomber on which 1st Lt. J. A. Schwarber was bombardier was flying from its New Guinea base when the lieutenant sent his bombs down on a 7,000-ton Jap freighter in the Bismarck Sea, sinking the enemy vessel, part of a convoy of three cargo carriers and two destroyers headed toward Kavieng, New Ireland. Lt. Schwarber's bombs — two 1,000-pounders — hit the port quarter and scored a near-miss near the starboard fantail of the ship.

A month before he was awarded the Air Medal for sinking a 10,000-ton transport, he also holds the D.F.C., the Purple Heart for serious wounds received March 1 over Cape Gloucester, New Britain, when five other crew members were killed, and six clusters to the Air Medal.

First Lt. Paul B. Schmits has been an instructor at the Childress school since March 1943. Holder of the Air Medal with clusters and the Purple Heart for wounds received in action over Gelsenkirchen, Germany, in November 1943, 1st Lt. Marion M. Walche of New Orleans, La., has been a prisoner of war since February 21, when his plane failed to return to its English base.

Missing in action since December 16 over New Britain, Lt. Douglas H. Wright of Dearborn, Mich., had seen the fighting in the vast reaches of the Southwest Pacific from his base in New Guinea before his plane failed to return from a raid.

Lt. Robert W. Bennett of Georgetown, Ky., was a bombing instructor at Sioux City, Iowa, when last reports were received from him.

First Lt. Richard E. Wotring of Barberton, Ohio, was navigator on a bomber in the Pacific theatre until he was reported missing following a raid on Truk in the Carolines April 2.

"Health excellent, food very good, clothing sufficient" is the message sent by Lt. James B. Scarborough of Macon, Ga., to his family from Stalag Luft I, Germany, where he is now a prisoner of war. His flying fort went down November 30 while Lt. Scarborough was on his 7th mission. The targets were believed to have been production centers in the German Ruhr valley. The lieutenant wears the Air Medal with one Oak Leaf cluster.

Lt. Don Camp of Marion, Ind., has been stationed at Boca Raton Field, Fla., for several months as an instructor, and, so far as is known, has received no combat action.

Although his pilot, co-pilot, navigator and engineer had all managed to make their way back to the base in England, Lt. Abe W. Rosenthal of Binghamton, N. Y., was still officially listed as "missing" since his plane was shot down over France February 4. Four other crew members have been reported prisoners of war, so it is probable that Lt. Rosenthal may also be a prisoner. Fellow crew members reported he was not wounded and uninjured when he bailed out of the plane.

The Air Medal with two clusters had been awarded to 1st Lt. James B. Wall of Florence, S. C., at his 8th Air Force base in England, where he was last reported several months ago.

Lt. Clarence E. Wilkinson of Akron, Ohio, was killed in a crash at Creedmore, Texas, in July 1943, while a student officer at the San Marcos navigation school. At the time of his death he was making his last flight before receiving his rating as a navigator.

Lt. Terry Gallenard of Longmeadow, Mass., had made four missions when he was temporarily slowed down by an attack of appendicitis which sent him to a hospital. He has resumed flying, however, and has no doubt completed the major part of his missions by this time.

Navigator on a B-24 operating from England, Lt. Michael Yurkowsky of Akron, Ohio, has been missing in action over Germany since January 30.

Army Cook Shoots Seventeen Nazis

By SID FEDER
WITH THE AMERICAN BATTALION ON THE ARNO RIVER, Italy, Aug. 1 (AP) — As its choice for the "Sergeant York" of this war, this battalion suggests Sgt. William Montooth, a lean, rangy Tennessee who not only is the same old news to the Germans that the famous sergeant was in 1913, but has known the original for several years and lives near Sergeant York.

Sgt. Montooth used to meet Sgt. York quite often when he went to chicken fights back home, since he had to pass the York house to get there.

Montooth didn't like his assignment, as cook and barber in the army, so when his battalion was preparing to assault Hill 634 known as Monte Vaso, in one of the bloodiest chapters of the Italian offensive, he finally got himself out of the pot and pan department and into the infantry.

When the shooting was over, Montooth's score was: 17 Germans shot, at least eight being dead; two machine-gun nests destroyed, a number of American wounded carried out of shellfire; two Germans captured; a group of 18 wounded Americans reformed into a column and shepherded back to safety.

As a result, Montooth has been promoted to sergeant and has never returned to the pots, pans and clippers.

In Turn Captures Eighty Germans

By WES GALLAGHER
WITH THE U.S. FIRST ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 1 (AP) — A Pennsylvania private who was captured and in turn took 80 German prisoners of his own told today how air force fighter and fighter-bombers utterly destroyed a two-mile German armored column.

He is Pvt. Anthony Blazus, Jr., of the Second Armored Division, whose home is Fredericksburg, Pa.

A German patrol captured him at St. Dennis le Gast as he manned a machine-gun post and took him north toward Roncey where a German column was planning to break through the ring of armor around them and flee south.

big self-propelled guns and behind them stretched out for two miles a string of vehicles bumper to bumper.

"There was a German high officer standing in the road giving directions to the column," Blazus said. "He had red tabs and was a general of some kind but apparently was very drunk. All the other officers were running around giving him Hitler salutes.

"Then the planes came."

"The Ninth Air Force fighter and fighter-bombers raced up and down the column, with cannon blazing and bombs falling until the whole two miles was just a tangle of bodies and wrecked vehicles. Then they moved off to

Brother Of Local Wowan Killed In Berlin Bombing

LT. WAYNE HARDWICK

Lt. Wayne T. Hardwick, formerly reported missing in action, has been reported killed in action over Berlin May 19, according to information received by his sister, Mrs. Pete Banks of Big Spring.

The officer, who formerly attended school in Big Spring, had been in the army air forces five years. He was a staff sergeant in the ground crew before he entered bombardier-navigator school in Monroe, La., where he received his wings Oct. 16, 1943. He was married the same day to Juanita Peacock.

He was stationed at Fayette, Ardmore, Okla., and Grand Island, Neb., before he was sent to England in February. He completed 22 missions over Germany, France and Belgium and was awarded the Air Medal and three Oak Leaf clusters.

Survivors include his wife, of Monroe, La.; his mother, Mrs. K. T. Mitchell of Sipe Springs; three sisters, Mrs. Jim Millican of Sipe Springs, Mrs. Blain Hughes of Odessa and Mrs. Banks, and two brothers, Edd Hardwick of Odessa and Leon Hardwick of Richmond, Calif.

Mrs. Banks is visiting his widow in Monroe.

KANSAS CITY (AP) The Australians are the best jungle fighters in the world, the Japanese are second and the Americans no good at all, in the opinion of one Japanese taken prisoner by the Americans. "First, the American cut down the jungle," he said. "Then he fight."

Ohio Scientist Finds Vitamin Treatment for Hay Fever Distress

News of vital interest to thousands of hay fever victims comes from an Ohio college laboratory, where Vitamin C has been used with amazing success to check the distress and suffering of hay fever.

Under scientific observation, 35 annual sufferers were given this vitamin in generous amounts. All but 3 experienced relief from their usual discomfort — ranging from marked improvement to almost complete absence of unpleasant symptoms.

The eminent scientist in charge of this study believes Vitamin C may help the body get rid of excessive histamine, a substance held to be responsible for the nose and eye irritation in hay fever attacks.

Wheatamin CEVIGARDS represent a convenient way to obtain pure Vitamin C in the amount reported effective. The vitamin is incorporated in tablets made with a natural B-Complex base which provides additional nutritive value. Ask for CEVIGARDS by name — and get a free leaflet giving full directions at Collins Bros. Drug and Wholesale Drug Store in Big Spring.

New Suds Product Being Introduced

A campaign introducing a new product in soapless suds is being inaugurated today on a wide basis. The product is a modern detergent (cleansing powder) that contains no soap or alkali, but which removes dirt and foreign matter and creates an abundance of luxuriant suds even in the coldest and hardest water. Chemists explain that it simply breaks up and dissolves all grease, leaves no dishpan ring and washes away all cooking odors from utensils. This is the secret of the detergent. However, in the laundering of fabrics, it will cleanse without removing natural oils of the fabric (such as in woolen garments) because it is not a soap and does not contain harsh alkali solvents. In hard water areas, which apply here or less to all of West Texas and which applies to Big Spring, the detergent seems to work wonders by producing instant suds. Millions of pounds of synthetic soaps are being used by the army and navy to overcome difficulties of washing in hard water and now this is being made available to civilians in the form of Soapless Suds, a product that washes so well dishes require no drying.

In Uniform

Second Lieutenant Nelson M. Henninger, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Honninger of Pocatello, Idaho, has been awarded a second oak leaf cluster on the air medal for continued meritorious achievement in aerial flight operations over enemy-held Europe. Lt. Henninger, pilot of a B-24 Liberator, graduated from the Big Spring High School in 1937. Promotion from Second to First Lieutenant for Maurice A. Halladay, son of Dr. H. V. Halladay of Big Spring, was announced recently at headquarters of the San Francisco Port of Embarkation, where Lt. Halladay has been stationed since February of this year.

Today On The Home Front Congress Tackles Tough Job Of Reconversion

Editor's note: This is the first of three stories explaining what has been done to smooth America's demobilization switchover to a prosperous peacetime life—and what remains to be done.

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON, July 31 (AP)—The crack of doom in Germany has started congress-into tackling now an uncompleted job. That's the job of getting the whole country ready for a smooth changeover from war to peace when that time comes.

This is what some congressional leaders think should be done by law now:

1. Creation of a central office of demobilization. The head of that office would have full control over all demobilization problems.

2. Unemployment pay, by federal and state governments on a scale more generous than any now in existence, to tide war workers over from the time they lose a finished war job until they find a peace-time job.

These two proposals already have been made by some senators and by James F. Byrnes, head of the office of war mobilization. He says he doesn't want the demobilization job for himself but thinks it should be created.

So far congress has handled only one side of the general problem. It has passed a law that provides for speedy government payment on cancelled war contracts.

For servicemen congress has passed the "G. I. bill of rights" to help ease them back into civilian life and jobs after the war.

But congress has done nothing about the civilians, human side, the vast problem of employment, unemployment and job-changing when the war ends.

There are a number of bills in congress, touching in one way or another on some of the problems outlined above.

But congressmen work by a series of compromises. That's the usual way in which opposing factions can reach agreement. It may take two months to finish the job, or longer.

And yet there are plenty of people who think Germany can not last another two months. What if Germany caves in before congress has finished this demobilization job?

Some congressmen frankly say that thought worries them gravely.

Meanwhile the usual difficulty of getting a bill through congress is increased by the fact that the republicans and democrats face each other jealously now across the abyss caused by the upcoming national elections. If the congressmen let politics get in the way, they may produce a law that is a joke for all practical purposes, or no law at all.

Helping to maintain continuous flights from a transport base in the European theater of operations is F-O Winston O. Harper, above, former Royal Canadian Air force pilot, of Big Spring. His wife, the former Bobba Edwards, and their year-old son, Winston, Jr., live in Big Spring, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Harper, live in Gorman. From the transport base where he is stationed, 2-47 transport planes take off in a constant shuttle flight to dusty landing strips in France and after unloading their material war cargo return with loads of wounded American soldiers. Flight Officer Harper, a graduate of Abilene High school, was employed in the operations of office of American Airlines in Big Spring before enlisting in the RCAF in 1942.

Increased quota for August made possible granting of a larger number of applications than usual when the panel held its weekly meeting Tuesday morning. Figures on number granted had not yet been compiled early Tuesday afternoon.

The announcement applied to applications received up to time of the panel meeting. Additional applications were being received Tuesday for action at next meeting.

Whiskey Makers Busy

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1 (AP)—The nation's distillers began a 31-day "working holiday" today. By the month's end they will have turned out some 40,000,000 gallons of beverage alcohol—enough to produce a full year's normal supply of gin and whisky. For nearly 22 months the distillers have been producing exclusively for war—high proof alcohol that goes into explosives, medicines and synthetic rubber. At the end of the current "holiday" they'll resume that output.

With The AEF—Schmeling Isn't Buried Here

By HAL BOYLE
WITH THE AEF IN FRANCE, July 29 (Delayed AP)—If there is one man in the world Capt. Giddis Wittjen would like to see buried it is Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight boxing champion.

"If I could bury him I could get him out of my hair," he says.

In civil life the captain was a geological draftsman in Hitchcock, Tex., but his army job is to command a company of graves registration unit men who bury the American and enemy battle dead.

His task has been complicated lately by recurrent rumors that "Jumping Max" was killed while fighting with German paratroopers on the American front. Each rumor brings a stream of officers and men—cemetery tourists—eager to view the remains of the beetle-browed boxer.

Hundreds of slain enemy paratroopers have been buried but so far Wittjen and his men have been unable to identify any as Schmeling.

The other day, however, the rumor that the man who once put away Joe Louis had been killed in action became so persistent that military authorities began a check.

To settle the issue Maj. Roy D. Craft, former San Francisco newspaper and aide to Maj. Gen. Charles H. Corlett, took a number of correspondents to a cemetery field where all paratrooper corpses had been collected awaiting burial. There were 160 of them in long rows, heavy with the smell of death.

"This is the third time I have heard he has been killed here in Normandy," said Capt. Wittjen.

Wittjen donned gloves and took Major Craft and the correspondents for a personal check of the 160 bodies which had been lying in no-man's land for two or three weeks.

"We are thinking of putting up a sign at the gate saying 'Max Schmeling positively isn't buried here,'" said Craft after the last body had been inspected.

Cafes Warned To Obey Regulations

Warning that cafes violating sanitation laws must correct conditions immediately was given Tuesday by V. A. Cross, sanitarian of the city-county health unit.
