Joint Choirs To Present

Local weather has been anything but Christmas-like lately. However, the weather guessers are calling for the possibility of snow by the end of this week. As far as we are personally concerned, snow is an item on the winter bill of fare that we can do without. We can appreciate a change to cool weather; we can enjoy a rainy spell; in fact, a few days of wind are not too bad to endure -- but we do not like snow. Have considered, of late, of going further south and further west, but find these areas recently have been the snow belt. Therefore, we will just stay in the Twin Cities and enjoy Christmas with or without snow.

One of the things that helps us to enjoy Christmas in our community is the Christmas festival air created by the many beautifully decorated homes in Texico and Farwell. A drive down the gaily lighted highway and a tour through the residential sections of Farwell and Texico can add to your awareness of the Christmas season. Many of the decorated homes are very beautiful and quite impressive. We heartily recommend that everybody take time to tour our two towns this Christmas season and find yet another reason to be glad you live in the Twin Cities. * * * *

It has often been said by the left-leaning liberals that they must drag the conservatives screaming and kicking into the 20th century. We have always viewed this as so much political hogwash that many of the more intellectual "pinkos" like to spread around for the unwashed masses. Now, I feel that just maybe I may have been dragged into the 20th century of transportation. Weil, maybe not dragged so much as kicked by John Santa Fe. After writing many lines opposing the elimination of rail passenger service and havtion, we say to Uncle John: Keep your passenger trains, keep your high priced dining cars, keep your senile and grumpy conductors; in short, I'm a flyer now. On second thought, maybe we should not be too hard on the railroads as they have to put up with the most oppressive and restrictive system of labor unions of most any industry. We think that the job in railroading will go the way the job has gone in coal mining; down the automated mechanized drain. John L. Lewis and restrictive labor practices drove coal practically off the market and restrictive labor practices eventually will kill the archaic beast known as a railroad. However, by then we will have won the "War on Poverty" and nobody will have to really work and we can all live on love, charity, and government-printed promises (inflated money).
