THURSDAY, OCTOBER 19, 1944

Statement of Senator Tom Connally, Chairman, Foreign Relations Committee, U. S. Senate, October 9, 1944

I have carefully examined the document drafted at the Dumbarton Oaks conference. With the exception of the question of voting procedure in the Security Council, it covers all of the main controversial points with respect to an international organization for peace. That matter is still under consideration and will be acted upon either in an adjourned session of the conference or in the conference of all the proposed members or in the meeting of the nations who are to form the initial organization.

The plan announces the general purposes and plans of the organization to include the maintenance of international peace and security and the employment of effective means to suppress aggression, first, by peaceful measures such as conciliation, arbitration and diplomacy. These measures failing, it provides for the employment of armed forces by the Executive Council. It binds the members of the organization to settle their disputes by peaceful means.

It provides that the organization shall be open to all peace-loving states.

It establishes a general Assembly composed of representatives of all nations who are members and a Security Council composed of four permanent members: to wit, the United States, Great Britain, Russia and China and ultimately France. The Assembly is to elect six other members of the Council with terms of three years each.

An important feature is that non-members of the organization are authorized to bring any international dispute before the Council for settlement. It is provided that an international Court of Justice shall be established and that it shall use as a framework the present World Court, with such amendments or modifications as may be necessary.

It is also provided that any state not a member of the organization if it is a party to a dispute under consideration by the Council, shall be invited to participate in the discussion relating to the dispute.

As a whole, the plan adopted meets with my full approval. Its insistence on the employment of peaceful measures of settlement is of the highest importance. Armed force is to be employed only as a last resort against recalcitrant and defiant aggressors who would disturb the public peace.

It is a document that ought to receive the support of the American people irrespective of party affiliations. It meets the world demand for permanent peace machinery. It expresses the hopes of peace-loving nations that civilization shall provide a method whereby future wars may be prevented and the treasure and the blood of peace-loving states may be conserved.

It follows closely the American plan as framed and discussed in conference between Secretary of State Hull and representatives of the Committee on Foreign Relations of the Senate. Such conferences have been in process for more than a year.

Reba Wofford, Clara Finsterwald, Artie Lee Hunt and Mildred Watts were Pampa visitors Sunday.

Pertinent Paragraphs from Panhandle Press

Talked to a prominent Texan the other day who lives down state where voters are thick. The question was asked him: "What effect is Senator O'Daniel having in this campaign?" The answer was this: "I have never supported or voted for Senator O'Daniel. But I know that he has proved himself honest, and the people have confidence in him. He has increased his radio hook-up from the Southwest to include 37 radio stations throughout the nation. His one aim is to defeat President Roosevelt. He is speaking six times weekly over these radios and is sending his newspaper to thousands of people. He is not taking sides with any local or state organization, but simply showing the short-coming of the administration, and the association of Roosevelt with Sidney Hillman, Earl Browder and other characters who are so distasteful to real Americans. Yes, I believe that Senator O'Daniel will add much weight to the growing avalanche which threatens to sweep Roosevelt from the highest pinnacle of American history down to that of a petty politician who seeks to become political dictator regardless of the cost to the nation." The reader may take this opinion for what it is worth.

In the coming presidential election there will be 85,167,883 potential voters. Potential voters are defined, as you know, as all citizens over 21 years of age.

In 1940, there were more than 79,000,000 voters, yet the total vote cast for president was only about 49,000,000 or 62 per cent of the total potential vote.

Every private citizen has a public responsibility! Let us all get out to vote on November 7.

Fifty-four million proof gallons of booze were made during the August holiday. McLean has been out of corn meal and feed dealers say that grain is almost impossible to obtain, on account of the distillers using everything possible to make whiskey. New grain is coming on the market, but the government is talking about another holiday. The scarcity of sugar might also be chalked up against the booze makers. There would be much more alcohol for war use if there was not so much being used for beverage purposes.

In planning for joyful celebration of Victory-in-Europe day, there is one sober fact which must not be forgotten. There is still a war to be fought, which will keep many men far from home for a long time.

The War Department has recently published its plan for demobilization of troops in Europe. Faced with the fact that some men will be needed for mopping-up and police work, and that many more must be sent immediately to help finish the Pacific War, the Army did not take the easy road of simply assigning certain units to each and the rest to civilian life. It went into the field and asked the men for their opinions. The result is a plan regarded as fair by soldiers themselves, but more difficult to apply.

Release from service will depend on the man's individual priority rating, based on length of combat service, wounds and awards, and on dependents under eighteen. It will take time. The sifting of these millions of records, the planning of transportation, and then the retraining for civilian life, are long processes.

Thousands of relatives will wonder why Johnny next door came home when their Tommy had to go from Europe to the Pacific. They need not do so. The plan which causes such differences was asked for by the men themselves, and will be worked out as fairly as possible by the Army.

As for the Navy, it cannot demobilize soon. The biggest part of its job will be just beginning VE-Day, far from European waters.

Many a man gets so much advice at home that he refuses to heed it when he hears it on the street.

Are you a paradox? A paradox is a business man who throws a Justin boot at his Beg Ben alarm clock, rolls off his Ostermoor mattress onto a Congoleum rug, hops into his B. V. D.'s, runs his Gillette razor over his Mennen-lathered face, consumes a hurried breakfast of Shredded Wheat and a cup of Postum, lights a Chesterfield at his store and then tells the advertising solicitor of a newspaper:

"Advertising doesn't pay; it never sold me anything!"

YOUR ELECTRIC RATES HAVE BEEN CUT!

What important household item costs less now than before the war? Electricity! While other costs are still going up, your electric rates "took a cut" last month, to new low levels. Bills since the first of October have been figured on the new rates.

As a matter of fact, electricity really offers you double savings. While general living costs are up about 25 per cent above pre-war costs, the price of electricity has not gone up at all. That's saving No. 1. Now your household electricity has actually gone down in cost—saving No. 2. Any way you look at it, electricity is the biggest bargain you can find today.

Not only does your electricity cost less, but it furnishes you the same efficient, dependable service that you have become accustomed to. Pre-war quality at less than pre-war prices makes electricity the "bright spot" of your family budget. When new appliances again become available, you can enjoy using them freely, at lower cost than ever. Meanwhile, lower rates are not just a post-war promise. You are receiving the savings right now!

Just a few more samples from the book:
A Texas editor received a letter asking "How long cows should be milked."
He replied, "The same as short cows."
Broncho Bill saved a lot of lives one time — he shot the camp cook.

This is a Texas story — even if it did happen in New York City. The chief figure was the famous (or infamous) slave-driving city editor of the old New York World. The foreman of a Texas ranch had eloped with the ranch owner's daughter and they were in Manhattan on their honeymoon. The city editor sent a reporter for an interview.

The groom met him at the door, cussed him out, blacked his eye and threatened to kick him down the steps if he came back. The reporter went to a telephone in the lobby and reported the treatment he had received and the threat that had been hurled.

The "chief" banged his fist on the table as he shouted into the telephone, "You go back and tell that blankety-blank that he can't intimate me."

Driving that's easy on passengers and cars is one far-reaching good outcome of War!

Handling the wheel and pedals like a professional became a wartime necessity. It favored the car—and quit scaring the rear-seat riders. Now it's a great point of pride. Yet an even more envied proof of fine car-sense is to own an engine that isn't showing its age. That demands sparing your engine from acids; from fiercely corrosive acids inside. You can do it by having your engine OIL-PLATED. All you need is a change to Conoco Nth motor oil... oil that OIL-PLATES.

In the extra-limited seasonal driving that's now the rule, your engine "hoards" a surplus of acids. Every explosion adds to these acids. You don't drive enough for engine heat to eject them safely. But they won't go biting right through OIL-PLATING! This highly corrosion-resistant surfacing is attached all over your engine's fine inner finish as if by magnetism—an effect you must credit to costly pioneer research, responsible for the special ingredient in popular-priced Conoco Nth oil, patented.

You can't apply keener intelligence to the car that must last you, than to equip it with an OIL-PLATED engine—simply by changing to Conoco Nth oil for Winter. Your Mileage Merchant's Conoco station knows your correct grade. Go now. Continental Oil Co.

"TEXAS"

"Texas occupies all the continent of North America except the small part set aside for the United States, Mexico and Canada. Texas owns all north of the Rio Grande, the only dusty river in the world; also the only one with possible exception of the Trinity which is navigable for mud cats and pedestrians.

"Texas is bounded on the north by twenty-five or thirty States, on the East by all the oceans in the world except the Pacific, and on the South by the Gulf of South America, and on the West by the Pacific Ocean, the Milky Way and by the sidereal universe.

"If Texas were chopped off loose from the rest of the United States and the Panhandle, it would float out into the ocean, as it rests upon a vast subterranean sea of fresh water.

"Texas is so big that people in Brownsville call the Dallas people Yankees, and the citizens of El Paso sneer at the citizens of Texarkana, Texas, as being snobs from the effete East.

"It is one hundred and fifty miles farther from El Paso, Texas, to Texarkana, Texas, than it is from Chicago to New York. Fort Worth is nearer to St. Paul, Minn., than it is to Brownsville, Texas.

"The chief occupation of the people of Texas is trying to keep from making all the money in the world. The chief pursuit of the people of Texas was formerly Mexicans, but now it is land buyers, steers and Texas crop records.

"The United States with Texas off would look like a three-legged Boston terrier.

"Texans are so proud of Texas that they cannot sleep at night. If a Texan's head should be opened the map of Texas would be found photographed on his brain. This is also true of his heart. Unless your front gate is eighteen miles from your front door you do not belong to society as constituted in Texas. One Texan's gate is 150 miles from his front door and he is thinking of moving his house back so that he will not be annoyed by passing automobiles and peddlers.

"Other Texas landlords have whole mountain ranges and rivers on their ranches. One Texan has forty miles of navigable rivers on his farm. If the proportion of cultivated land in Texas were the same as in Illinois, the value of Texas crops would equal that of forty-seven other States.

"Texas has enough land to supply every man, woman and child in the world with a tract five feet by twenty and have enough left over for the armies of the world to march around the border five abreast.

"If the alfalfa grown in Texas were baled and built into a stairway it would reach the pearly gates.

"If all the hogs in Texas were one big hog, he would be able to dig up the Panama Canal in three roots.

"If all the Texas steers were one big steer, he would stand with his front feet in the Gulf of Mexico, one hind foot in Hudson Bay and the other in the Arctic Ocean, and with his tail brush the mist from the Aurora Borealis. Some State!"

WARTIME BREAKFASTS, 1917-1944

The new leaflet "Eat a Good Breakfast" just published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture will recall to many an American housewife of the older generation another wartime leaflet on the same subject—"Start the Day Right," issued by the Department of Agriculture in 1917.

A glimpse of the yellowing pages of the old leaflet, now to be found in historical files of libraries and perhaps forgotten in some attics, brings back memories of "meatless," "wheatless," "sugarless" days, of "war breads," and of some of the first widespread teachings in nutrition.

The old leaflet lists just three main foods for breakfast — fruit, cereal and milk, instead of suggesting the present-day idea of a more adaptable pattern for this meal based on age, activity and the foods eaten at other meals in the day.

Many of the fruits suggested in the old leaflet are among those that have been short in civilian supplies in the present war — bananas, for example, and dates, raisins, dried apricots and dried apples. In the last war bananas and dates were imported regularly because military shipping was on a small enough scale then to allow space for bringing in such foods to civilians. Dried fruits were plentiful for civilians then because military demands were not taking so much of the supply as they have in this war.

But the old leaflet made no mention of some of the favorite present-day breakfast fruits — citrus fruits, for example, and tomatoes. The citrus industry had only begun its tremendous expansion. Many housewives were unfamiliar with grapefruit at that time and still considered oranges a luxury or holiday fruit. Canned fruit juices, now so popular for breakfast, were only beginning to come on the market in contrast to the present when Americans drink them at the rate of almost 8 pounds per capita per year. As for chilled tomato juice as a breakfast beverage, such a suggestion in the year 1917 would have surprised and probably dismayed almost any American housewife.

Although fresh fruits were suggested by the old leaflet "to keep the body in good health," no mention was made of their vitamin value. Vitamin research was still in its early stages. Much of the present knowledge of the vitamin C value of many fruits, for example, has been acquired since the last war.

The cereals suggested for breakfast in the old leaflet reflect the contrast between grain supplies in this country now and then. Wheat enough for our army and allies was one of the big problems then. Civilians at home were urged to use other grains, especially corn, rice and oatmeal. "Corn helps us feed the world," a familiar slogan in the last war for the home front, appears on the pages of this leaflet. Corn meal mush, hominy grits, boiled rice and oatmeal were suggested as breakfast foods for the family table as were "war breads" made of these grains, all in the effort to spare wheat. In the present war wheat has been one of the abundant grains and cornmeal has often been scarce in civilian supply, because of the heavy demand for corn to feed animals supplying meat for the armed forces and lend-lease. In the last war rice was still being imported from Asia. Since then the country has changed from rice-importing to rice-exporting and has been supplying rice to allies who formerly imported from Japan.

In urging the use of whole-grain cereals for breakfast the 1917 leaflet agrees with today's nutrition teachings, but with today's wider knowledge the B-vitamins, as well as the energy value of these foods, are stressed. Moreover, today's breakfast eater has a choice of whole-grain or enriched cereal foods. Enrichment is a development of recent years, hastened by the wartime nutrition program.

The emphasis on milk, especially for children, in the old leaflet also agrees with present ideas. However, in the meat-shortage days of the last war when the country had the problem of supplying enough meat for the army, milk was stressed for its protein value — its similarity to meat. Today it is emphasized also for its calcium and riboflavin which subsequent research has shown to be its outstanding values.

THE CAR IS 1-A BUT THE TIRES ARE 4-F

Be sure to get both Tire Saving and Car Saving Service

D-DAY IS HISTORY. And V-Day may well be, by the time you read these words!

But as a recent editorial in the September 9 issue of Collier's points out: "If we don't baby our cars and tires along as carefully as we can, the ominous fact is that we can run into a serious motor-transport breakdown on the home front."

The blunt words of the editorial echo what Phillips and its service station men have been saying month after month, beginning even prior to Pearl Harbor.

We quote it because some few motorists may have thought that our insistent emphasis on tire and car care was motivated by self-interest rather than by our patriotic sense of duty. So again we say, in our country's interest and in your own, be frugal with your dwindling stock of tire and car miles. Visit your Phillips 66 Service Station at least once a week for tire and car-saving services.

Phillips Tire Saving Service includes checking air pressures . . . inspecting for nail holes, cuts, and bruises . . . examination of the tire carcass to warn you when re-capping is necessary and still possible . . . crisscrossing with the spare every 3,000 miles.

Phillips Car Saving Service includes inspection of battery, air filter, and anti-freeze protection . . . regular lubrication of every friction point specified by the maker of your car.

With tires for A-card motorists not promised before mid-1945 . . . with cars wearing out and disappearing from the road at the rate of more than 5,000 a day . . . you must Care for your car For your Country, to help prevent a crisis in domestic transportation.

Drive in at any Orange and Black 66 Shield, the sign of famous Phillips 66 Gasoline and Phillips 66 Motor Oil, and you will get the patriotic cooperation and aid of the Phillips 66 Service Man in making your car and tires go farther and last longer.

There's a Shortage of Copies of The Dallas Morning News—But NOT of Our Desire to Serve!

The crucial shortage of newsprint paper has forced a curtailment of the supply of copies of The Dallas Morning News to our dealers in this county. Only a small part of regular shipments is possible until we are permitted by Government Authority to increase our consumption of newsprint.

Distribution for the present will be made from drug stores and newsstands, unless your agent can arrange otherwise.

We realize, with deep regret, that some of our old-time readers are not able to get copies of The News. We trust they will understand and bear with us while we're making every effort to restore service.

In the meantime, although many patrons will not have The News delivered to them temporarily, their names are still on The Dallas News' Big Book and we look forward to serving them again.

Thank you.
