Congratulations, Tania Flores and Rolando Salas, WHS Homecoming Queen and King.

— cwe —
Congratulations, Jorge Porras and Cory McLaughlin on having been named to the Globe-News “High School Football Player of the Week” Honor Roll. Jorge is a Wheeler Mustang and Cory is a Ft. Elliott Cougar.

— cwe —
Wheeler enjoyed excellent weather for the coronation on the courthouse square with lots of Mustang fans on hand for the festivities.

— cwe —
Thanks to Rhonda Meriwether for taking the pictures for me Friday. She did her usual excellent job.

— cwe —
Thanks also to Jack Helton for the rodeo pictures.

— cwe —
One of the pictures Jack sent was of the individuals who helped to make the rodeo possible. Any of these events sponsored by the chamber take dedicated individuals to make it happen. When you see these people, tell them “Thank You”.

I received the following email:

The Time Has Indeed Come!

(Governors of 35 states have already filed suit against the Federal Government for imposing unlawful burdens upon them. It only takes 38 (of the 50) States to convene a Constitutional Convention. ( This will take less than thirty seconds to read. If you agree, please pass it on. ) ( An idea whose time has come! ) ( For too long we have been too complacent about the workings of Congress. Many citizens had no idea that members of Congress could retire with the same pay after only one term, that they specifically exempted themselves from many of the laws they have passed (such as being exempt from any fear of prosecution for sexual harassment) while ordinary citizens must live under those laws. The latest was to exempt themselves from the Healthcare Reform ... in all of its forms. Somehow, that doesn't seem logical. We do not have an elite that is above the law. )

( I truly don't care if they are Democrat, Republican, Independent or whatever. The self-serving must stop. )

A Constitutional Convention - this is a good way to do that. It is an idea whose time has come. And, with the advent of modern communication, the process can be moved along with incredible speed. There is talk out there that the “government” doesn't care

Dear Friends, Yeah! Finally I have a ‘Chee-leader’ Suit. I thought I would never have one. I was going to bed. My mom told me, “Get up, Stormie. We have to go to somewhere.” We went to my ‘Chee-leader’ Stormy’s (Moore) house. You can't believe it! I got my ‘Chee-leader Suit’!

I very wanted my dad to see it, but he was in Houston a long time. It was just me and my mom against the world.

In the morning I got up and

CLASS PICNICS

Along about the fifth or sixth grade, our teacher agreed to let us go on a class picnic. She was wise enough to realize it would require several adults to help her. Somehow, she managed to get three or four people to help haul us out to the place where the picnic was going to be held.

When the day finally arrived, we loaded all our stuff in the cars and we all headed out to the "Sims" farm, north of town. Sweetwater Creek ran through their place and they had a really nice area fixed up for picnicking, not far from it. As soon as we got there, the doors opened on the cars and we pretty much scattered like quail.

Soon, several kinds of games were going on and we were really having a good time. Seems like when there's several boys in any group, there'll be a few who just have to go exploring. You'll never know what's around the bend, unless you go take a look...

Sure enough, down the creek about a quarter of a mile, there was a really good-looking swimming hole. This was a particularly nice sunny day, probably about seventy five or eighty degrees, with very little wind. Should be a mighty fine day for a swim! We hadn't taken into consideration that this was still early May, just barely past winter, yet several of us decided to go skinny-dippin, ("The Magnificent Seven" rides again!)

After testing the water with my big toe, I lost most of my enthusiasm, but after all that blustering about how much fun it was going to be, none of us could afford to back out. So, like lemmings to the edge, we jumped in! I don't think anyone stayed in over ten minutes. All that shivering was about more than anyone could stand. So, we all got out, put our clothes back on, then stood on the south side of some bushes in the sun... hoping to warm up and dry out. After we stopped shivering so bad, we went back where everybody else was and surprisingly, no one seemed to have missed us. Nobody even asked why all us boys had blue lips!

Sometimes, blue lips is the price you have to pay, to avoid being called a "sissy."

Professional Rodeo Returns To Wheeler

The Wheeler Chamber of Commerce 1st Annual T.C.R.A. rodeo is the first professional rodeo to be held in Wheeler in recent years.

Over 400 spectators turned out on Saturday evening to witness one of the best professional rodeos ever staged in Wheeler. Sunday's performance even surpassed Saturday evening's performance with an additional number of contestants competing trying to improve their points and standings prior to the T.C.R.A. finals in the last week of October. There were a total of 126 contestants and among them were a number of the top 15 performers in the National rankings.

The bucking stock provided by one of the best Rodeo Producers in this part of the country in Alan and Janice McCloy combined with an outstanding professional Rodeo announcer, Ken Stonecipher, proved to be a very entertaining and first class show for those attending.

The remodeled rodeo arena received many compliments from the performers and spectators. The Rodeo Producer was especially helpful in the process as he visited the facilities ahead of the event to make recommendations that would provide a more functional and safe environment for the event. Alan's parting words were, "you guys did a good job." The Rodeo Committee and several volunteers spent many hours in upgrading the facility in order to meet the requirements of the T.C.R.A.

The Wheeler Chamber of Commerce would like to thank all of those who contributed to the success of this event.

 Men do not get breast cancer.
The Truth
 Quite the contrary. Each year it is estimated that approximately 1,700 men will be diagnosed with breast cancer and 450 will die. While this percentage is still small, men should also give themselves regular breast self-exams and note any changes to their physicians.

The Myth
 A mammogram can cause breast cancer to spread.
The Truth
 A mammogram, or X-ray of the breast, is one of the best tools available for the early detection of breast cancer. It CANNOT cause cancer to spread, nor can the pressure put on the breast from the mammogram. Do not let tales of other people's experiences keep you from having a mammogram. Base your decision on your physician's recommendation and be sure to discuss any questions or concerns with your doctor.

The Myth
 Having a family history of breast cancer means you will get it.
The Truth
 While women who have a family history of breast cancer are in a higher risk group, most women who have breast cancer have no family history. If you have a mother, daughter, sister, or grandmother who had breast cancer, you should have a mammogram five years before the age of their diagnosis, or starting at age 35.

The Myth
 Breast cancer is contagious.
The Truth
 You cannot catch breast cancer or transfer it to someone else's body. Breast cancer is the result of uncontrolled cell growth in your own body. However, you can protect yourself by being aware of the risk factors and following an early detection plan.

The Myth
 Knowing you have changes in the BRCA1 or BRCA2 gene can help you prevent breast cancer.
The Truth
 While alterations in these genes in men and women can predispose an individual to an increased risk of breast cancer, only 5% to 10% of patients actually have this mutation. This is not an absolute correlation. Like your age or having a family history of breast cancer, it's a factor you just can't control. But you can let your physician know, perform regular breast self-exams, and focus on the fact your chances of not having this disease are greater than 90%.

The Myth
 Antiperspirants and deodorants cause breast cancer.
The Truth
 Researchers at the National Cancer Institute (NCI) are not aware of any conclusive evidence linking the use of underarm antiperspirants or deodorants and the subsequent development of breast cancer.

Wah-Lah! My Dad was home and he brought me shoes to wear with my 'Chee-leader Suit'! I was so happy!
It was a great day! All the kids walked to town to see the queens. Mighty and the 'Chee-leaders' were very good! The band played for the football boys. I very love the girls in the pretty dresses!
The football game was the best! I love those guys!
One day I saw Ms. Bass (Mrs. Dorris) at the football game. You can't believe it! She is going to have a baby! I think it's a boy or something. I hope she will let me hold her baby. I very love babies!
I got to hold a baby at the ballgame. He was so cute! (Jeffery Terrell ..Keri Marion Terrell's little one)
The rodeo was awesome! One of my cowboys (Dustin Hunt) rode a wild horse. He didn't even fall off. Hadlee (Gomez) rode her horse very fast around the barrels. She is good!
Alexis (Puryear) and I had a fun time watching the rodeo. Shantell (Meek) took us to the jump house. It was great! Then Wes (Campbell) took us to chase the calves. It was a bunch of kids, Alexis and I couldn't catch the calf, but oh well, we had a fun time anyway!
Giselle had her birthday at the playground. It was a happy day! That's it.

Recovery Act To Help Rural Communities

Agriculture Secretary Tom Vilsack today announced funding for 89 projects to protect public health and the environment by improving water quality and public sanitation services in 32 states and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. Vilsack made the national announcement while touring a water system improvement project funded through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (Recovery Act).

"Safe drinking water and reliable waste systems are basic necessities for all communities," said Paco Valentin, USDA Rural Development Texas State Director.

"Funding under this announcement will provide the means for rural communities to improve or construct water and wastewater systems for many residents, while creating or retaining jobs in rural areas."

Today's announcement provides $445.3 million for 89 water and wastewater infrastructure projects in local communities through the Recovery Act. The projects announced in Texas total over $24 million. To date, USDA has announced $3.26 billion in Recovery Act funds for 884 water and environmental projects across the nation.

In rural Texas, two projects have been awarded funding under this announcement. The Sharyland Water Supply Corporation in Hidalgo County has been selected to receive an $18,580,000 loan and a $3,451,000 grant to construct an 8.0 MGD water treatment plant. The new plant will serve a population of 19,331 with 16,000 connections.

Stephens Regional SUD in Stephens County was awarded a loan for $2,305,000. Funds will be used for installation of 441,000 lin-

President Obama signed The American Recovery and Reinvestment Act of 2009 into law on Feb. 17, 2009. It is designed to jumpstart the nation's economy, create or save millions of jobs, and put a down payment on addressing long-neglected challenges so our country can thrive in the 21st century. ## Wheat Researchers Study Wheat Diseases

Wheat researchers combine forces to battle major disease (Big-picture look being taken on wheat streak mosaic virus)

Wheat streak mosaic virus is the most prevalent disease in the southwestern wheat producing region of the U.S., according to a Texas AgriLife Research scientist.

Dr. Charlie Rush, AgriLife Research plant pathologist in Amarillo, is assembling several teams of scientists to work on the disease from every aspect: vector to diagnosis and mapping to control.

"There are other diseases of concern, but wheat streak mosaic is always found somewhere in this wheat growing region, and every couple of years, we have an epidemic of it," Rush said.

Several issues cause the disease to be more problematic, he said. It is hard to distinguish the disease from drought or nutrient deficiencies because the symptoms often look very similar in all three. Also, the vector is so tiny it can't be seen in the field, so the disease is already present before it can be detected. And there are no chemical controls for either the insect or disease.

The disease doesn't just affect grain and forage yields, but also has a very negative impact on the ability of the wheat plant to use irrigation water, Rush said. Therefore, irrigation applied to diseased wheat wastes time, energy and groundwater.

Through a Texas Cropping Systems grant, work was started about a year ago to look at the factors that impact disease incidence and severity, primarily at the vector, which is the wheat curl mite, Rush said.

In this project, the focus is on trying to understand the dynamics of the wheat curl mite and what conditions cause it to move, said Jacob Price, a research associate working with Rush.

"We are monitoring the movement of the wheat curl mite where it lives on natural rangeland and Conservation Reserve Program grasses and monitoring movements on the southwest winds in the early spring and summer to wheat," Price said.

He said they want to find out where the mite populations live between seasons and if there are environmental factors that perpetuate the movement of the mite and the subsequent wheat viral diseases.

This project includes working with two private producers, as well as on the research farm, Price said. Grass is collected from the fields and the wheat curl mites are washed out and then tested individually to determine if they are carrying the wheat streak mosaic and triticum mosaic viruses.

"In doing so, we can find natural populations of wheat curl mite and determine where the diseases already exist in an area," he said. "Then we will use environmental data to determine if there are certain conditions that cause the mite to move and transport the disease to newly planted wheat fields."

In a separate study, Price planted an area of a wheat field in July and allowed it to become infested with the virus-carrying mites. Now he will plant the remainder of the field to wheat and monitor the movement.

"We want to know how fast they move; how high the populations are when they move; and how quickly we see disease development after a population of mites enters the field," he said.

Hopefully, Price said, this will help determine environmental factors that prompt movement and allow researchers to inform producers of the likelihood of high wheat streak mosaic infection in any given year.

"This will then allow producers to take certain precautions, such as delaying planting until the mites are no longer moving," he said. "Along with the new information and continued cultural practice of destroying volunteer wheat, we can help limit the risk of general wheat virus infection."
This information could help scientists design future research in pesticide application for the wheat curl mite, which is unknown at this time, Price said.
A separate project under way, funded by the Ogallala Aquifer Program, involves AgriLife Research and scientists with the U.S. Department of Agriculture-Agricultural Research Service at Bushland.

"We know from our previous work that wheat streak mosaic interferes with root development in wheat and restricts water-use efficiency," Rush said. "We also know that wheat streak is progressive and moves across fields."
"What we haven't been able to do," he said, "is to water one area of a field without wasting water on the area damaged by the disease."
Valmont Irrigation has been working with variable-rate nozzling systems for pivot irrigation units that will allow producers to adjust the amounts of water applied in different areas, Rush said. But the system needs a map of the field to tell it where to and where not to water.

"And if it is wheat streak they are dealing with, it's a moving target," Rush said. "So we have to get to a situation of real-time mapping."
Drs. Steve Evett and Susan O'Shaughnessy, USDA scientists at Bushland, have been working with remote sensing attached to the irrigation system to create these real-time maps.
But Rush said the system can't determine if the bad patch is due to a biotic stress, such as greenbugs or wheat streak mosaic, or if it is drought-stressed.
