tering and I tried in vain to stop this near convulsive state. The ditch was crowded, everyone seemed to have realized at the same time that this was the safest place.

A lot of debris, some from our own anti-aircraft shells was falling toward us.

Suddenly I realized I had a battle station. That scared me more than bombs and machine gun bullets.

I don't remember how I got out of the ditch. As I approached the last plane in a row of observation planes, I saw one of our aviation ordnancemen standing next to the plane using the rear cockpit for a gun mount. He had a .30 caliber machine gun in his hands and something in his sights. He squeezed the trigger and held it. I looked up to see him cut the wing off a Jap plane - as with a torch. The wing fluttered down on Luke Field and the remainder of the plane dove into the U. S. S. Curtiss.

I saw a group of men trying to push a VP-21 PBV into the water. I realized the tractors, usually used for that purpose, must have been destroyed. I walked over and helped shove the plane into Pearl Harbor.

"Some live to die tonight or tomorrow."
"What hath man wrought?" Will the memories of Pearl Harbor be blacker or brighter when he returns December 10?

Simmons spent 10 years of his life in Veterans Administration Neuro-psychiatric Hospitals after the conclusion of World War II.

Since that time, he has written a book, yet unpublished about the attack and the war. The pages of this book contain his experiences, the horror of living a "living death!"

He felt that no one would believe the written word describing that day and the days following . . . yet, today a glimpse of war is being brought into the American home almost daily via television, live from some of the battlefields which just might enable Americans to visualize a small part of what really did happen.

It was obviously empty and drifted crazily into the channel. I wondered why we launched it.

A friend walked up to me and we stood looking at each other. I suppose we were thinking: "You look like hell."

In the middle of all the fire, smoke and explosions, I became aware of the ominous drone of aircraft engines coming from the directions of Hickam Field.

We watched the V-formation and began to look for the bombs to start falling on Hickam. It soon became apparent Hickam Field was not the target - We were.

As the formation came closer, we began to move over a little to starboard - as if this would make any difference.

Suddenly, smoke from the Arizona, a Ford Island fuel storage tank, and other ships, began to drift over our heads. This smoke obscured the Jap target and the formation began to move to their right.

They laid their eggs on Battleship Row.

I turned toward my plane once again in time to see a Jap Zero make a strafing run on "my" PBV. I was directly in the line of fire. I had no time to do anything but fall. I don't know how close the machine gun bullets came to me, but I later discovered powder and bits of concrete in my hair.

I walked on over to a ditch. Several of us threw rocks at low-flying planes.

I looked apprehensively at the Raleigh. She was listing badly. The Utah moored next in line had capsized and sunk. The Raleigh was smoking. Occasionally, flame shot out through the smoke. With the little reason I had left, I decided that since I was somehow alive, Dor-man was dead.

The Oklahoma capsized and sank. The Arizona exploded and settled to the bottom of the harbor with almost her entire crew aboard.

The California was hit severely and rested into the sand in shallow water.

The West Virginia sank in shallow water next to Ford Island. Fire reached the forward magazine of the U.S.S. Shaw and the resulting explosion tore her in half. When the shock wave reached our ramp area, it knocked everybody off their feet.

A hospital corpsman moved past me. I can't say that he walked because his manner of movement was very strange and very slow. I'm not sure his muttering was plain enough to correctly record, but this is what I thought he said:

"Many men are dead in this place, and I watched them die. Some of them were not watched and died in silence.

To qualify for certification, a plant operator must have accumulated a prescribed amount of actual work experience. He must also have attended both regional and statewide short schools at which the techniques of water treatment and waste water disposal are taught, and must have passed an examination given by State Health Department sanitary engineers.

State law requires that at least one operator per shift be certified for competency by health department engineers, but many operators seek certification on their own time and at their own expense to increase their efficiency as key public servants to their community and state.

VOTE FOR COTTON RESEARCH AND PROMOTION

Save your markets, acres, profits

Your vote for expanding cotton research and promotion will really say something.

It will say you believe in positive action, not just talk, to reduce the all-time record cotton carryover. It will say you know the only way to get more cotton used is with research to produce better products and promotion to sell them. Your vote will say you don't want further acreage cuts—you want to keep on growing cotton at a profit.

The only answer to highest carryover ever... lowest acreage since 1872

Expanded research and promotion are cotton's only hope. With these same two tools, producers of higher-priced synthetic fibers have taken a total market now equal to nearly 7 million bales of cotton. They have gained over 2 million bales in the last 2 years . . . and new plants are scheduled with capacity equal to another 3.5 million bales.

Growers also can use these tools effectively. Experience has proved it. The only problem is to get enough money to use them on a big enough scale.

New legislation makes that possible. It enables farmers to vote, in a Beltwide referendum, on establishing a uniform assessment of $1.00 per bale for research and promotion. The law provides that individual farmers who do not want to participate can have their assessments refunded.

Funds from uniform collection will attract other money—more than two times as much on the average.

This plan originated with farmers. Thousands of growers and 61 cotton organizations across the Belt have endorsed it—overwhelmingly.

All projects must be initiated by grower trustees elected by cotton farmer organizations. Other provisions give equal assurance of producer control.

We, the undersigned, strongly endorse and recommend this uniform collection plan for research and promotion. We urge you to join us in working and voting for its approval in the upcoming referendum.

Help yourself to greater markets, acreage, profits

LIBRARY News

Pre-school Children's Story Hour was held at the Muleshoe Area Library this Wednesday morning, with 14 children attending. The library flag was raised, with Leslie Bryan White leading the pledge of allegiance; then the children sang the song, "We Love our Flag."

This morning the youngsters picked out their books to take home with them, first. A singing game was played, and the story was another old favorite, about "Rumpelstiltsken."

After the story, all the children worked on their posters. Each time they come to Story Hour, they get to put a sticker on, and when completed, they have the poster to take home. There were several who came for the first time today. Those attending were: Joy Dean, Traci Walker, Lavayne Lloyd, Fonda Griffin, and Carol Griffin, daughters of the Eugene Griffins; also: Mike Mills, Sheryl Dunham, Regina Burden, Wesley Cook, Leslie Bryan White, Chris Jansa, Bonita Roming and Robert Ames, along with Johanna Green. The Library will continue to have story hour on the first and third Wednesdays of each month. This morning's storyhour, was a bonus, since we had 5 Wednesdays in November. All children, are cordially invited to come and enjoy storytime at the library.

Fields, Ricky Barrington, Johanna Shelton, Terry Field and Ronald Scott provide actions. The drama concerns parents looking backward when their children were babies, were then grown and graduated and the girl married and the boy was sent to war. It boils down to the fact that parents have taught their children how to live and the physical things of life but have failed to give deeper emphasis of life and most important, how to die. Walter Baice will give closing comments. Members of the Trinity Baptist Church's choir will assist the choir of the First Baptist Church with special music. The pastor of the Trinity Baptist Church, the Rev. Troy Walker, will give the scripture and prayer. Special music will be rendered by the Springlake Sextet composed of Delpha Banks, Allyn Jones, Becky Parish, Ann Bearden, Lynda Pakard and La Crecia Washington.

ONIONS—Now that a nip of frost is in the air, medium size onions come into their own. Parboil the whole onions, after removing the outer skin, in boiling, salted water for 15 minutes. Drain and arrange in casserole dish and pour over a favorite barbecue sauce. Bake until tender. This makes a delicious dish to serve with pork roast or ribs.

Magann Lamb Gives Recipe for Ambrosia

Magann Lamb, who is head of the news department and in charge of the woman's department at Radio KMUL, has a recipe for ambrosia, which she feels would be interesting at this particular time of the year. Miss Lamb is a pledge of the Epsilon Sigma Alpha Sorority; member of the AAUW, Wesleyan Service Guild, West Texas State University Ex-student Association member, Publicity chairman of the Friends of the Library, Lubbock Theater Committee Membership Committee member, and a member of the First Methodist Church.

Magann's hobby is working with alcoholics and their families. Following is her recipe for Ambrosia which has been a family traditional recipe for many years, according to Miss Lamb.

2 coconuts
6 oranges
1 large can of crushed pineapple
1 cup crushed pecans

METHOD
Drain the milk from the coconut and crack the coconut removing the inner and outer shells. Put the coconut through a food grinder and peel the oranges, removing all membrane. This is very important as the membrane will make the ambrosia sour. Cut the orange slices into small pieces and combine the coconut, oranges and pineapple. Let juice in pineapple and add coconut milk as needed to moisten the ambrosia. Stir in the nuts and place in refrigerator until serving time. Serve as a holiday dessert with cake or may be used as a salad. Will serve approximately 15.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights

by Vern Sanford
TEXAS PRESS ASSOCIATION

AUSTIN--Gov. John Connally in 1968 and $16,139,826 in 1969; has released his budget proposals for the public health agencies, mental health and retardation and for the Youth Council.

Recommendations for public health and tuberculosis control include salary adjustments to that top-flight personnel might be attracted; funds to raise salaries to conform with the general pay raises for state employees; money to assure enforcement of food and drug laws; funds to implement the Air Pollution Control Board program; funds to expand the State Health Department building in Austin; and a fund to train personnel to staff public health facilities 55 state-supported colleges and universities enrolled 248,711 regular students this fall, representing an increase of 22,300 students -- or about 10 per cent -- over last fall.

Biggest gainers, percentage-wise, were Stephen F. Austin, Nacogdoches (18.7 per cent); Southwest Texas State, San Marcos (17.3 per cent), and West Texas State, Canyon (15.6 per cent).

Big growth in junior colleges was noted at Henderson County, Athens; Texas Southmost, Brownsville, Pampa, Carthage, and South Plains, Levelland.

The 1966 enrollment figure approximately doubles the number of students in the college and university system 10 years ago.

SEGREGATION DECLINING--Segregation in Texas schools is on the way out.

All but four of Texas' 1,303 school districts have filed intentions to comply with the 1964 Civil Rights Act with the U. S. Office of Education, says the Texas Education Agency.

Out of 283,426 Negro students enrolled in state schools, a total of 84,575 are in substantially integrated schools.

Of the 1,875,352 white pupils tabulated, 718,537 were on integrated campuses, and an additional 401,497 were on campuses having a small percentage of Negroes. There were 504 on campuses having a predominantly Negro enrollment.

"Of the 754,814 white pupils on campuses without Negro pupils, 285,321 resided in school districts having no Negro pupils," the report said.

Major sanction against a district failing to comply with the Civil Rights Act is the loss of funds under the Elementary and Secondary Education Act, which this year totals a little more than $66,000,000 for Texas schools.

RETAIL SALES UP--Texas' retail sales surged upward five per cent during October, mainly because of a 16 per cent increase in the durable-goods sales, according to a report by the University of Texas Bureau of Business Research.

October durable-goods sales totaled $514,000,000, up $71. million from the same month in 1965.

fore the infestation, the number was normally three or four per week, and during the epidemic's height, that jumped to over 190 cases one week.

PLAINVIEW--Ground will be broken for the Wayland College $500,000 auditorium in a ceremony scheduled at 1 p.m. Monday on the building site, Dr. W. Neil Record, assistant to the college president, said.

Construction of the building is to begin immediately, Raymond Jameson, Plainview contractor, has been awarded the contract for the auditorium. The auditorium is to be completed within 400 calendar days.

Among special guests for the ceremony are to be Mrs. John L. Herral, Abernathy, donor of funds to build the half-million dollar facility; Oliver Bier, Plainview, president of the Plainview-Wayland Board of Development; Horton Howell, Lockney, chairman of the executive committee of the Wayland College Board of Development.

Mrs. Henry Heck, Plainview, president of Women for Wayland; Dr. A. Hope Owen, Wayland, president emeritus, and Mrs. Owen, Lubbock; Plainview Mayor M. B. Hood, and Charles Young, executive vice president of the Plainview Chamber of Commerce.

Members of the board of trustees, administrators, faculty and the Wayland student body are to attend.

Smart Pupils

The professor of chemistry was giving a demonstration of the properties of various acids.

"Now," he said, "I am going to drop this fifty-cent piece into this glass of acid. Will it dissolve?"

"No, sir," replied one of the students.

"No?" said the demonstrator. "Then perhaps you will explain to the class why it won't dissolve."

"Because," came the answer, "if it would you wouldn't drop it in."

I'm Fine

There is nothing whatever I can be, I have arthritis in back and knees And when I talk, I talk with a wheeze, My pulse is weak, my blood is thin.

But I'm awfully well for the shape I'm in.

My teeth eventually had to come out, And my diet I hate to think about.

I'm overweight and I can't get thin— My appetite is sure to win. But I'm awfully well for the shape I'm in.

The moral of this is that the tale we unfold— That for all of those who are growing old

It's better to say "I'm fine" with a grin than to let folks know the shape you're in!

by Mrs. Pat Barnett

People And Faults

One of the great lessons to be learned in life is that all of us, no matter how great the esteem in which some of us are held, have our faults. The perfect human being has not yet been born, nor should anyone expect to encounter him.

The key to mental happiness—or one of the important ones—is the realization that we must overlook the faults of our friends, and even our enemies, and do our best to appreciate the good qualities and bring out the best in our fellow man. The realization that we also have our faults and that therefore we must make amends—even at times when we think we are not in error—is important to keep in mind. The key here is to realize that we must sometimes make amends, or make apologies, or forgive others, when we think we have done no wrong. Obviously, if we never made this confession except when we thought we are wrong, we would live life only from one side and, quite often, would not make apologies when they were due.

Hi-Plains Happenings

Farmer County Game Management Association, in cooperation with local businesses, is sponsoring the second annual Pheasant Hunting contest Dec. 1 - Dec. 7. Winner of the contest will be determined by the persons bringing in the longest pheasant tail feather. The association has separate contest setup in Farwell, Bovina and Friona, prizes to be awarded in each town. -----State Line Tribune-----

A resolution commending the Dumas High School coaching staff and players for a "fine football season got unanimous approval Monday night at the regular sessions of the Dumas district school board of education. The Dumas staff is made up of Bill Spann, head coach assisted by Jimmy Thomason, Tom West brook, Fary Ward and Bud Miller. -----Moore County News-----

A marathon session for the Morton City Council, Monday, ended with a resolution "finding and declaring that there exists a need for the housing authority of the city of Morton to function." This means basically that the council has found a need for an urban renewal program. -----Morton Tribune-----

Floyd County farmers received over eight million dollars for their grain sorghum and soybean this year. It was the biggest soybean crop in the history of the county. Over 408 million pounds of grain sorghum were harvested. Soy beans, a relatively new crop for the county turned out 568,157 bushels marketed at county elevators at an average price of $2.68 per bushel. -----Floyd County Hesperian-----

Feeding Themselves

As the United States passes from the Thanksgiving season to Christmastide in the midst of unparalleled blessings, it is not amiss for Americans to remind themselves that there are vast areas of the globe where the human situation is sadly otherwise.

Take India. It contains an estimated 450,000,000 people and is deemed to be growing at the rate of 10,000,000 to 12,000,000 new mouths yearly. For several years a number of its richest provinces have been undergoing one of the worst droughts in India's history.

Only an endless flow of food from without can apparently tide the Indians over until the season for another (and hopefully better) crop has come. Yet there is at the moment a rising chorus of concern in India over whether that food flow will continue in the volume held necessary.

Particular concern is felt over what New Delhi believes is the inexplicable delay on President Johnson's part in signing the authorization for the shipping of an additional 2,000,000 tons of food grains.

Although American officials are reported as saying that 700,000 tons of grain now await unloading at Indian ports, New Delhi's concern continues. And this is a measure of how perilous the Indian Government believes the situation to be.

No one in Washington apparently doubts but that the agreement will soon be signed and that the United States will do all within its power to help stave off famine in India. This is not, in fact, the main question. What is most seriously in question is how long the United States will be in a position to come so massively to India's help.

As is well known, the last several years have seen a startling cut in what were once the vast agricultural reserves in American storehouses. Recognizing this, Washington has authorized a 15 percent rise in wheat acreage. It is expected to authorize an additional 10 percent before too long.

But will this be enough? Washington is beginning to have its doubts. And thus the pressure is rising for lands such as India to make even higher efforts in the direction of higher agricultural output even if this means sacrificing cherished plans for industrialization.

Something must be done, America, grateful for its own bounty, will not refuse to help the less fortunate. But even the American horn of plenty is not bottomless. It is imperative that some means be found, and found without delay, to enable lands such as India to eventually feed themselves. -----Christian Science Monitor-----

Capital Idea

Seven out of 10 Americans want to reduce federal government spending to control inflation.

Eight out of 10 express concern about inflation.

Two out of three say they have been hurt by it.

One-third feel they are worse off financially than a year ago.

These are some of the results of a national opinion survey taken early in October by the Opinion Research Corp., Princeton, N. J. The Study was commissioned by the National Association of Manufacturers.

Given a choice between the two, 71 per cent of the respondents favored a cut in federal spending rather than increased taxes (7 per cent). Compared with earlier surveys, the latest ORC poll also shows that there is growing concern about inflation with its consequent rising prices and reduced purchasing power of the dollar.

Almost half (48 per cent) of the respondents report they are "greatly concerned" and this concern is evident in all segments of the population, regardless of age, occupation, educational level, or where they live.

Six of 10 said they are fighting their own private war against inflation by changing shopping habits . . . cutting down, buying cheaper foods, substituting, designating heretofore "necessities" as "luxuries."

The survey also demonstrates effects of inflation are being felt more seriously by the elderly and those with lesser education. More than 4 in 10, 60 years and older, report they are "worse off today" than a year ago.

Respondents sometimes talked of holding two jobs—even three—in their efforts to stay above the rising tide of prices. More than twice as many people blame inflation on the government than on any other group. Twenty-eight per cent said they feel government is "most responsible" for inflation, compared with 6 per cent blaming business, 10 per cent blaming labor, and 13 per cent themselves. A rising 41 per cent admitted they don't know where to lay the blame, although there is much less uncertainty expressed about what to do about it.

Since last spring and reflected in previous ORC surveys, there has been an increase among those favoring federal spending cuts.

-----Sunday Oklahoma-----

Expensive Federalism

Rep. Melvin Laird, R-Wis., is not a fan of "creative federalism," the new problem-solving game that is catching on in Washington. He says Wisconsin taxpayers put in $1.46 on federal grant-in-aid programs for every $1 they get back.

Wisconsin wouldn't kick, he says, if the grants were doing a good job. A new 527-page volume from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare lists 190 programs designed to alleviate everything from crime in the streets to disease in the slums. Yet "crime continues to rise, education continues to be inadequate, slums continue to exist and grow worse, more Americans go on the welfare rolls, and government services on the state and local level continue to be under-financed and in many cases ineffective," Laird says.

The reason the federally contrived programs are doomed to failure before they begin, Laird declares, is that "the proponents of special federal aids fail to realize that a general solution devised in Washington may very well help the situation in Milwaukee, but that same solution may compound the problem in New York."

Laird's point is well taken. The problems of Dallas are not the same as the problems of Chicago. Poverty may exist in both places, but the solution here may not solve a thing there. The ones best situated to handle the problems in Dallas and Chicago are the city councils and administrative staffs of the respective cities. They need money, to be sure, but they do not need restrictive guidelines from bureaucrats thousands of miles from the scene.

So that Dallas and Chicago may deal effectively with their problems, both need more tax revenue. The best place to obtain it is in Dallas and Chicago, because the shorter the distance traveled by the tax dollar, the less the shrinkage.

In Wisconsin's case, the federal government is charging 46 c on top of every dollar collected for grant-in-aid programs, and the overhead only compounds the revenue problems everywhere in the nation.

Abandonment of "creative federalism" and its $14-billion federal tax bill in favor of local taxation for local problem-solving would appear to be the shortest and most desirable route between the two points in question. -----Dallas Morning News-----

Miss Massey, Mr. Calvert Repeat Vows

Ann Arnold Massey, Abilene, and Carlos Stanton Calvert, Dimmitt, were united in marriage in the Woodlawn Church of Christ in Abilene Nov. 19. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Massey, Abilene, and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos Calvert, Dimmitt. Officiating at the double ring ceremony was Anthony L. Ash, minister of Minter Lane Church of Christ.

The bride chose a wedding gown of Romaine crepe with an empire bodice overlaid with re-embroidered alseon lace and featured a scalloped neckline and sleeves. Her detachable Camelot train of lace tanded in crepe was caught at the shoulders with flat bows.

A headress of satin cabbage roses held her fingertip veil of illusion, and she carried a white orchid encircled by Stephanos.

Serving as maid of honor, was her sister, Jane Massey. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Michael Calvert, Abilene, sister-in-law, of the groom; Mrs. Don Flynn, College Station, sister of the groom; and Barbara Clarke, Abilene and Nancy Coleman, Dallas, cousins of the bride. The best man was his brother, Micheal R. Calvert, Abilene and groomsmen were Ronnie Campbell, San Antonio, cousin of the groom; Gary McCaleb, Abilene, cousin of the bride; Walter Rockwell, Austin, Jerry Pipes, Fort Worth, Don Flynn, College Station, Bill Andrews, Abilene and Jim Key Waxahachie, Gregg Calvert, the groom's brother, was junior groomsmen.

Alfred Alexander was the organist and Rick Wickman provided musical selections.

In the houseparty at the reception which followed the ceremony were Mrs. A. M. Coleman, Birmingham, Ala., Kay Surber, San Angelo, Mary Spradlin, Clovis and Mrs. Jack Clarke, Mrs. Paul Brownlow, Beverly Ball and Mrs. Jack Andrews, Abilene.

The new bride chose a gold tweed suit with lizard accessories for a wedding trip. The couple are now at home in Austin.

A YOUNG FAMILY'S ESTATE--Couples with minor children should make wills to provide for guardianship of their children. They should provide for someone to serve as guardian in the event both parents die in an accident or other cause. When parents don't plan for custody of their children, family discord and separation of children sometimes occur.

14 GIANT SYNTHETICS PRODUCERS ARE TAKING COTTON'S MARKETS

HOW CAN 500,000 FARMERS FIGHT BACK?

The Farmers' Answer: 'Expand Research & Promotion'

With huge research and promotion expenditures, synthetic fiber firms rapidly are taking cotton's markets. As a result, the carryover is at an all-time record. Acreage is the lowest since 1872--down 30 per cent on the average for 1966.

But farmers have developed a way to fight back. It enables them to pool their resources to mount a hard-hitting research and promotion program to save cotton markets, acreage, and income.

Self-Help Plan Brings Beltwide Acclaim, Support

The farmer-originated plan gives growers an opportunity to vote, in a Beltwide referendum, on establishing a uniform assessment of $1.00 per bale for expanded research and promotion. Thousands of growers and 61 cotton organizations have endorsed this approach--overwhelmingly. The press is praising farmers for their efforts to help themselves.

We Compliment Cotton Farmers On Their Business Approach

Clearly, the plan is based on hard and sound thinking. All projects must be initiated by grower trustees elected by cotton producer organizations. Other provisions give equal assurance of farmer direction and control. Any individual farmer who does not want to participate can have his money refunded.

We recognize that cotton is the economic lifeblood of our business and our community. We are happy to offer any assistance we can give our farmer friends as they work for approval in the referendum.

Why then did consumption of non-cellulosic fibers such as Dacron and Orlon jump from 2.9 million bales in 1960 to seven million bales in 1965 while cotton was sustaining a 24 percent decline in its share of the domestic textile market?

RESEARCH, PROMOTION KEY The answer could come, Brown said, from the fact that synthetics spend $135 million annually for research and $70 million for promotion, compared to $26 and $4 million paid out by the cotton industry for the same purpose.

"Most of cotton's revenue goes into efforts to improve production with little being utilized for research and promotion.

"A cotton grower may spend as much as $70 a bale for insect control, harvesting and ginning, and this, by no means, represents his total production... then if this cotton is not made into sheets, shirts, dresses and other useful items, it doesn't do anybody any good. So why not spend another dollar per bale to help make the cotton bloc one of the hardest hitting groups," he said.

America has 14 major synthetic producers and 500,000 cotton growers.

Brown said the program, if approved, would be carried out in this manner: A national committee would be formed with one representative from each cotton producing state. A state would have one additional member for each million bales of cotton produced. Texas, holding five seats, would be the most powerful.

The committee will receive revenue, with the money being held in escrow. Each grower would have 90 days to file a written request for return of his $1 per bale.

A group of trustees would be elected to appropriate funds. They would be "cotton men," with no government officials involved.

None of the money would be used for salaries, office space, etc. The elected board members and trustees would receive a travel allotment, but not salary. Brown added that a majority of the men probably would not accept travel expense.

The Secretary of Agriculture would have veto power on expenditures. Brown explained that this was necessary as a safeguard to assure that expenditures were "kept within the limit of the law."

A quote from James Warren concerning the act is:

"Public Law 89-502 or the Cotton Research & Promotion Act for December 5 thru 9. This act, as written, I cannot support. Research & Promotion of cotton is not the question, the administration of the act is the big problem. We already have to many people running the farmers business. Its about time for us as the producer to handle and manage our own problems. Under the referendum, the Secretary of Agriculture will manage them."

Morris McKillip has this to say:

"Public Law 89-502 - Every cotton producer knows that cotton needs research and promotion. This to me is not the issue, Public Law 89-502 gives the Secretary of Agriculture the final say, even to veto decisions made by the board elected to represent cotton producers. This commonly called $1.00 a Bale Check-off, passage of the bill can be decided three ways as stated in the bill. 1. By 2/3 majority in favor 2. By 2/3 majority against 3. By a simple majority voting yes and these voters voting 2/3 of production. I am in favor of voting a straight yes or no on all issues, local or national. I suggest that cotton producers study the bill and understand the contents and VOTE."

Comments from another cotton producer, Horace Hutton are:

"Bailey County cotton growers are participating in the Belt-wide referendum to decide whether or not they will assess themselves $1 per bale to finance a greatly expanded research and promotion program built greater markets for cotton.

For the sake of cotton's future, we cannot overemphasize the need for every eligible farmer to vote, to vote "yes", to complete his ballot and to mail it in strict accordance with instructions.

The program which a "yes" vote would put into action is the result of many months of planning and hard work by hundreds of cotton industry leaders.

It was recommended only after lengthy consideration of every practical possibility for obtaining uniform collection of the kind of money cotton must have to mount an effective research and promotion program.

It was endorsed by trustees of the Cotton Producers Institute, by the National Cotton Council Board and delegate body, and by almost 4,000 key growers in 26 leadership meetings across the Belt.

Representatives of 63 state, regional and national cotton producer groups supported it during its consideration by Congress and in the hearings after the law was passed.

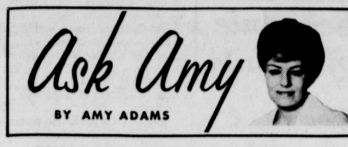

Now it's up to us cotton farmers. The issue is simple: Synthetic fibers, through tremendous expenditures for research and promotion, are taking markets away from cotton handover fist. Cotton stocks have been piling up while consumers have been buying, wearing and using products of competitive fibers.

Acresage has been cut and further cuts are threatened. Shall cotton producers counter this with a self-help program, initiated, financed and controlled by farmers or shall they give up, surrender their markets to their competitors and start growing something else?

RING SHOULD BE SECONDARY!

Dear Amy: Our son who is 21 and in college wants to become engaged at Christmas. He still has a year and a half to complete his education. Although we approve of the girl, we wish they would wait until his education is completed. But the crux of the problem is the ring. His girl wants a ring that is more costly than our son can afford and she won't settle for less. In fact, she offered to match out of her own pocket what our son can afford so that she can get the ring she wants.

My husband and I don't approve of this. We feel she should be happy with what our son can afford to give her. Further, I never heard of a girl paying for her engagement ring! Did you? And we also don't appreciate a struggling college student trying to keep up with "The Joneses".

Dear "Joneses": Girls should not pay for their engagement rings. If your son is mature enough to get engaged, he should be mature enough to know his financial limitations, and his girlfriend should be happy to accept what he can afford to give her. If she loves the boy, the ring should be secondary.

Girls who want to settle down, settle for less. Dear Amy: I am 20 and my boyfriend, whom I plan on marrying, is 25. He is a wonderful guy and is everything I ever wanted. However, there is one thing that bothers me. I come from a very poor family and have always wanted to marry into a close family. He does not come from a close family. In fact, he's never even felt loved by his family. They are all very indifferent and rather cold (brothers and sisters alike). He wants to have his family love him and he tries very hard, but they just don't seem to care one way or another. If he feels this way toward him, I'm sure their feelings for me would even be less.

I would appreciate knowing how you feel about this. Would this be a reason for not marrying him, or if I do marry him, should we have nothing at all to do with his family? Is the family that important that I should let it concern me so much? I will be looking forward to your advice.

WED-FLY ERADICATED-- First infestation of the Mediterranean Fruit fly has been officially eradicated, according to Agriculture Commissioner John C. White.

Lifting of quarantine ended the six-month fight which saw 12,000 acres of land sprayed with pesticides 16 times in the Rio Grande Valley.

Fly traps will be maintained in the citrus growing area as a precaution, but U. S. Department of Agriculture and Mexican quarantine authorities removed other restrictions simultaneously with Texas. Quarantine had restricted movement of uninfested fruit from Brownsville area.

HOSPITAL GRANTS-- State Board of Health will meet on December 11-12 to decide how to allocate the $17,000,000 in federal Hill-Burton grants among the 80 Texas health facilities which applied for over $45,000,000.

This federal appropriation is slightly above the $16,000,000 allocated to Texas for 1966 grants.

These federal grants will be matched with local money for health modernization and expansion programs.

Know The FACTS Before You VOTE ON THE COTTON CHECK-OFF! THE ISSUE IS GOVERNMENT CONTROL OF YOUR DOLLAR

THE LAST "STRAW" ...?

- Cotton's real problem is bad legislation and the planned give-away of export markets.
- The Cotton Research and Promotion Law authorizes an occupational tax on cotton which is unconstitutional in Texas.
- The Law authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to determine how, where, when and if the funds collected are to be spent.
- The cotton board authorized by the law would be a rubber stamp for the Secretary. This is politics.
- Could you really get a refund of your $1 per bale? Read the Law!
- Why must producers pay all of the cost when mills will profit most?
- The Cotton Research and Promotion Act will set a percent for all other agricultural commodities.
- Most bad legislation is passed by poorly-informed good people. Read the Law!
