Bing Plays Priest's Role In Popular "Going My Way"

Bing Crosby's been on the Road to Morocco, Road to Zanzibar and Road to Singapore — but now he's on the road to fame in Paramount's captivating motion picture, "Going My Way," arriving Sunday at the Ritz theatre.

Of course, Crosby long ago was included in the charmed circle of the famous, but more for his velvety vocalizing than anything else. From here on, the "groaner" isn't sitting back to let others take laurels in the acting profession — he's put his own ear in the Hollywood waters and has come up with the finest catch of the year. He plays Father "Chuck" O'Malley, and the way he plays him elicits rave notices from reviewers.

There's nothing lacking in "Going My Way," critics say, for the heart warming story is acted out by one of the most competent casts and has Leo McCarey at the reins to handle direction. Bing's brother priests are Barry Fitzgerald, the kindly, temperate whimsical Father Fitzgibbon and Frank McHugh, genial and enthusiastic in his role as Father O'Dowd. They, too, Rise Stevens appears throughout the film as a famous opera singer, (which she is), rendering the "Habenera" aria from "Carmen" while the Robert Mitchell boys choir captivates audiences, according to reports, when the group joins Bing in several selections.

The simple but eloquent story relates how Bing is sent as "trouble shooter" to Fitzgerald's parish and immediately confounds that conservative priest by instituting innovations which to him are seemingly radical. His first act is to placate Gene Lockhart, bank proxy who holds the mortgage on the parish. The latter's son, played by James Brown, figures in the act, too, for he falls in love with Jean Heather, a young girl set on the right trail after receiving some sound advice from "Father" Crosby. The golf course scene is one of the shining examples of the temper of "Going My Way." It is said, for the laughs and chuckles become howls as Fitzgerald indulgently lets himself be taught the science of the game by Crosby and McHugh.

The actor all the way, in fact, is characterized by a display of human qualities which alternately moves audiences to laughter and tears. A grand variety of songs is incorporated into the picture with three new tunes by Johnny Burke and Jimmy van Heusen heading for the hit parade. They're "Swinging on a Star," "The Day After Forever" and the title song, "Going My Way." In addition, "Ave Maria," "Adele's Fidelity," "Silent Night" and other immortal melodies are sung.

The Robert Mitchell Boychoir shines in many of the musical numbers as the group blends its voices with Bing's and Rise's to give movie-goers a grand example of harmony. This is the chorus which first made its mark in "Love Affair" with Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer, rendering the hit tune from that film, "Wishing" in "Going My Way," the choir gets an even greater opportunity to display its talents by singing a number of hymns.

State Presents Mystery Thriller

The entrance of a murderer in to the home of a normal, middle-class American family, as their long-cherished "Uncle Charlie," sets off a story of fear and suspicion in the best Hitchcock manner. It is a tense film for all of its 108 minutes, with excellently sustained character and mood, and promises to grip audience attention to the final frame at the State theatre today and Monday.

The screenplay shows in its economy of word and scene the care that Thornton Wilder, Sally Benson and Alma Reville have taken with "Jordan McDonnell's" story. The presentation and performances of supporting and featured players carry the unmistakable brand of Alfred Hitchcock, of "Suspicion" and "Saboteur."

The warped mind of the criminal dominates the scene. His ruthlessness and frantic dread break through the veneer of charm and confidence which he has assumed and arouse the reluctant doubts of his niece. These are confirmed quickly and overwhelmingly by the appearance of detectives, the small details which escape his notice, and his own over-zealousness to cover his tracks. With her realization of the hideous truth, the film is a struggle between her desire for justice without hurting her family and his determination to silence her at any cost.

Joseph Cotton is excellent as the murderer, cool and malevolent. In the role of the niece, Teresa Wright adds another to her growing list of fine characterizations. Patricia Collins is impressive as the mother, who remains oblivious to all but the delight in rediscovering her brother. And Macdonald Carey, Henry Travers, Hume Cronyn, Wallace Ford and Edna Mae Wonnacott are all very competent in smaller roles.

Photography and musical background are cleverly attuned to theme and mood, and the background is enhanced by the realism of the setting, many scenes having been filmed on the spot in New York and Fresno, Calif. Jack Skirball produced.

Wacky Capitol Theme Of Fast Lyric Comedy

Out of "war-wacky" Washington, short of rooms .. men .. everything .. except laughs; where there are four gals to a bed .. eight to a bath .. ten to a man .. 20th Century-Fox has fashioned the year's surprise laugh picture, "Ladies Of Washington." The picture opens Sunday at the Lyric Theatre, with Trudy Marshall, Ronald Graham, Anthony Quinn and Sheila Ryan in top featured roles. The fun files in this hair-pulling, eyebrow-lifting, rib-splitting comedy about "woo-woo" Washington women.

"Ladies Of Washington," directed by Louis King and produced by William Girard, boasts more fun, more laughs, more romance than has been packed into a film in a long, long time. The picture is a hilarious tale of our national capital under pressure of war — and on the serious side, glorifies the women of our nation's armed services.

The cast of "Ladies of Washington" includes some of the nation's foremost beauty contest winners who are making the Hollywood grade with astonishing box-office results, even though many have only had minor roles prior to this picture. Judging from preview reports, their performance convinced audiences that a girl can be feminine, eye-filling and in uniform for her country all at the same time. There's lovely Trudy Marshall, famed cover girl, who played the WAVE sister in "The Sullivan" and now portrays a SPAR in "Ladies Of Washington." Jo-Carroll Dennison, "Miss America" to all the world, is the Texas-born brunette who plays "Frieda," the girl who never throws herself at a man — she tackles him! There is "Miss Milwaukee," otherwise Doris Merrick as she's billed for her screen career. She's the eye-filling blond with green eyes who made such a hit as the nurse in "Heaven Can Wait," and in her current role as "Amy," really goes places. Jackie Paley, Beverly Whitney, Robin Raymond, Barbara Booth and Lillian Porter are some of the other lovelies whose performances give the film an aura of provocative beauty and entertainment. They all play gay young things — SPARS, Marines, and even cabbies — and there's never a dull moment in their lives from Washington dawn until midnight, around the fast-moving capital clock. There's more fun, more laughs, more romance than you've had in a long, long time, awaiting you when "Ladies Of Washington" opens Sunday at the Lyric Theatre.

MACHINERY SWEETENS OUTLOOK FOR PRODUCERS OF SUGAR AND COTTON

BET PRODUCTION LINE—This harvester digs sugar beets, elevates them to the slicing knives which cut off the tops, then dumps beets in a bin and saves the tops for feed.

GREENVILLE, Miss. — Cotton, often blamed for all the South's troubles (depending on its five or 25-cent price level) has laid down the shovel and the hoe in favor of the grease gun and the sulky with the gasoline motor on top.

Planting, cultivating and picking, once tasks for field hands and share croppers, now are being done better and cheaper by machinery. The experts say cotton's future depends largely upon mechanization.

J. Winston Neely and Sidney G. Brain of the Delta Branch experiment station writing in The Mississippi, farm research publication say:

"The extent to which cotton can successfully compete with synthetic fibers will be determined mostly by the ability of farmers to produce a low-price, high-quality product.

"The preparation of land, planting and cultivation have been mechanized. Labor for hoeing and picking is the greatest production cost. The high price of this labor, and its uncertain availability make production of cotton hazardous."

The Rust brothers of Memphis, and Charles R. Berry, here, are putting the screws on the picking-cost boogey. Rust mechanical pickers are working in Arkansas, Oklahoma, Texas and Tennessee, and the new Berry picker, invented by Mr. Berry's father, awaits release of war materials to go into quantity production in St. Louis.

The federal experimental gin at Stoneville, Miss., recently announced that cotton harvested by mechanical picker "maintains the same high strength as hand-picked cotton."

As to cotton chopping, a back-breaking chore from the old days, Mississippi state agricultural specialists say the Coltharpe chopper straddles the cotton row and rotating hoes beneath do in a few minutes a cultivating job that ordinarily takes hours.

Experts also are talking about an implement which weeds completely and cheaply with fire.

A salad sandwich will make a pleasing change in the lunchbox. Chop or grind raw vegetables, such as carrots, celery, cabbage, and turnips. Season well with onion or garlic and salt and pepper. Mix in enough salad dressing to hold the vegetable mixture together and spread on whole wheat bread.

F O R T C O L L I N S, C o l o . — America's war-vital sugar industry is all set for a seven-league stride toward simplified, mechanized production aimed at eliminating the sugar tariff and making the nation independent of foreign sugar sources.

E. M. Mervine of the staff of Colorado State College, former government sugar beet expert and a leader in mechanized beet farming, says better seed and new planting and harvesting machinery could cut at least $20,000,000 annually from sugar beet growing costs.

"This would allow American sugar to compete successfully with foreign sugar without the present tariff of about three-tenths of a cent a pound," he says.

"Likewise it would shed the industry of expensive, back-breaking labor. The United States produces only about one-third of its sugar needs. Simplified, cheaper methods might spur farmers to grow all of the sugar we need."

Mervine found the labor and machine cost of growing an acre of beets was around $77. Using machinery exclusively he has produced beets for $48.65. Labor was reduced from 119.02 man hours to $7.45. Back-breaking "stoop" labor was eliminated.

About one-half of the nation's 700,000 beet acreage was planted with segmented seed this spring, the first time it was available in large quantities, says Mervine. Sugar beet seed actually are a tough pod, containing a number of seeds. Recently a method of crushing the pods and recovering single seeds was discovered. These are called segmented seeds.

Single, segmented seeds may be planted accurately by machines. This, in itself, could save the farmers about 3,500,000 man hours of labor worth 50 cents an hour or $1,750,000.

These machine-planted, accurately spaced seeds enabled Mervine to use a blocking and thinning machine that eliminated all hand labor.

The food canning industry, which in normal years rolls out about 13 billion cans of edibles, actually began in the days of the Napoleonic wars.

Wages And Taxes Will Run Price Up On New Refrigerators, Cars

By STERLING F. GREEN
WASHINGTON, Aug. 5 (AP)—The first new cars, refrigerators and washing machines will cost 20 to 35 per cent more than their pre-war counterparts, a survey of government and trade sources indicated today. Radio sets will not increase so sharply, but householders can expect a postwar trend to better quality receivers embodying war time improvements, industry spokesmen reported. Wage increases, higher material costs and taxes account for the bulk of the expected price rises. The Office of Price Administration, while inclined to doubt that prices must climb to the full extent claimed by industry, nevertheless indicated it would avoid any price clampdown so severe as to obstruct the rapid reconversion of industry when the time comes. OPA is preparing for issuance before August 15, it was learned, of a statement of policies to govern the pricing of items newly restored to production. The timing is intended to coincide with the new government policy, effective on that date, of permitting limited manufacture of civilian goods in plants where the work will not interfere with the war effort.

Son Of Coahoma Couple Across

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Phinney of Coahoma have received word that their son, Lt. Harry L. Phinney, an ordnance department officer, has landed safely in England. Lt. Phinney is a graduate of the 1938 Coahoma high school class. He entered service in January 1941 at Ft. Bliss and was assigned to Randolph Field at San Antonio where he served four months. He had another four months at Lowry Field, Denver, Colo. before being assigned to Victorville, Calif. where he was transferred from the ordnance department from the air corps. Admitted to officers training school early in 1943, he was sent to Aberdeen, Md. where he received his second lieutenant's commission three months later. He had stations at Atlanta, Ga. and Moultrie, Ga. for a year before being transferred to Greensboro, N. C. where he was made a first lieutenant prior to being shipped. In England he said he was meeting up with many of his former friends.

Market Rallies At Week's End

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (AP)—The stock market today stepped out of a losing week with low-priced motors again rallying and numerous leaders suffering from a mild selling freeze. Pivotal stiffened in spots today without getting anywhere on balance and, as in the previous session, junior automotive issues noted at under $10 accounted for more than one-quarter of the two-hour turnover of $463,130 shares compared with 231,260 a week ago. The Associated Press 60-stock average was off .1 of a point at 54.2 and for the 6-day stretch showed a loss of .5. Graham-Paige, the fastest sprinter of the week, jumped 1 1/2 to 5 1/2 today, a high for the past several years, and since Monday was up 2 5/8. Others ahead in the final session were Hupp Motors, Hayes Mfg., Packard, General Motors, U.S. Steel, General Electric, Southern Railway and Standard Oil (N.J.).

Crippled Children's Representative Here On Brief Visit

Martin Ricker, representative for the Texas Society for Crippled Children, visited here briefly Thursday for conference with local leaders in crippled children's work. He reported work over the state was progressing satisfactorily and that his first experiment in a crippled children's camp worked out well this summer. He hoped for an enlargement of the program next year. The problem of the society is not one of raising funds alone, he said, but also one of educating the public to the benefits available to unfortunate children. "This does not mean that aid is restricted to children with an apparent physical deformity, but to those with heart involvements and other less apparent afflictions. The main thing is to get at these while the child is young for it is then that corrective measures may mean the most," said Ricker. While here, he conferred with Mrs. L. E. Jobe, county chairman for the state society. Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carpenter have returned from Dallas where Mrs. Carpenter has been undergoing treatment. She is reported to be improving. Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Carpenter, who came home with them, are remaining for a short visit.

Continental Preparing To Spud Deep Test

Continental Oil Corp. No. 1-D W. R. Settles, the first Ordovician oil test for the Howard-Glasscock area in 10 years, is rigging up and is due to spud within a few days. The test is located in section 131-28, W & Nw. Plans are to take the test to a depth of 11,000 feet. Trouble appeared to be the order for several wells drilling in the Big Spring area. John B. Hawley, Jr. No. 2 Thompson, section 14-34-1s, T & P, had cleaned out to 3,275 feet, 12 feet off bottom when the brake band on the spudder broke, causing tools to fall into the well. Northern Ordinance Co. No. 1 Spaulding, section 7-32-2n, T & P, had trouble with circulation but was drilling at 5,580 feet in black lime Friday. The well is in northwestern Howard county. After changing pulleys, Northern Ordinance No. 1 Clayton & Johnson, south central Borden county deep wildcat, was resuming drilling at 8,523 feet in hard lime Friday. It is in section 32-31-4n, T & P. Cosden No. 1 Foster, section 29-30-N 1 & P, was drilling at 2,350 feet in lime topped at 1,961, about normal for the area. The test is almost on the Mitchell county line. Nearby the Ray Oil No. 1-B Road, northeast quarter of section 48-20-1s, T & P, was reported in time at 2,170 feet. Four miles to the north, Hunt Oil No. 1 A. L. Wasson was fishing at 860 feet. Location is in section 19-29-1N, T & P. Masnolia No. 122 Foster, 8,000-foot southwestern Mitchell county wildcat, had set 9 5/8-inch string at 2,900 feet. It is located in section 17-29-18, T & P. Derrick was being built for the Warren Pet. Co. No. 1 Chester S. Jones, northwestern Mitchell county wildcat which is to test the pay picked up in the Vincent field from 4,400 to 5,500 feet. It is located in section 9-29, H & TC. Northern Ordinance plugged one well in Callahan, the No. 1 Hennessy, as a dry hole at 4,932 feet. Lee Harrison No. 3-A TXL, section 8-30-1s, T & P, outpost to the East Howard pool, was drilling at 1,300 feet. Lee Harrison No. 3 TXL, in the same section, was waiting on orders at 2,989.

Postal receipts were up again for July with a total of $10,251. This ran the total to more than $75,000 for the year. This means that the $120,000 total of last year is almost a cinch to be exceeded this year. Building permits of $55,605 for July boosted the year's total past the $108,000 of last year.

Soon the board of equalization will go into session to consider renditions for school valuations. There is more than a good possibility that valuations will be carried at 100 per cent.

Hershey Thinks Dads Past 30 Draft-Proof

HELENA, Mont., Aug. 5 (AP)—Barring unforeseen developments there is little likelihood that fathers over 30 will be drafted for military service before the war ends, Draft Director Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, said today.

General Hershey, in Montana during a 10-state tour, told a press conference:

"The emphasis is on the 18-25 year old group, but fathers under 30 can expect to be called if they are not in an essential industry. This gives the over 30 group little chance of being called unless the war takes an unforeseen turn."

"Agriculture" he said, "has the greatest 18-25 age reserve of any group and young farmers can expect to be inducted in increasing numbers following the fall harvest."

Burkburnett Boom—

CINCH DRYHOLE BLEW IN FOR 3,000 BBLs., LAUNCHING BOOM

Editor's Note—This is one of a series on highlights of Texas oil in connection with the 25th anniversary of the Texas Mid-Continent Oil and Gas Association.)

A severe drought gripped Northwest Texas in 1918 and S. L. Fowler, who owned a farm just north of Burkburnett, wanted to move; but his wife said, "I believe there is oil under our land and I won't agree to dispose of it until it is tested."

So the Fowler Farm Oil Company was formed. Fowler put in $1,000; Walter Cline, who had a rig that was idle, agreed to drill the well for an interest; and the farmer's friends subscribed $50, $100, even $200, until $12,000—the amount Fowler estimated it would cost to drill the test—was raised.

Oil had been discovered in the North and North-Central Texas district at Petrolia at a depth of 300 feet, with production ranging from three to 40 barrels a day, the crude beginning to move to market in 1904. Early in the century, Tom Waggoner was drilling a well for water on his immense ranch and hit oil near Electra. "D—the oil; I want water for my cattle," he said, and it was not until 1911 that development really got under way there. Burkburnett had witnessed the finding of oil in 1912 when the Schomaker, three miles west of town, came in for 50 barrels and a moderate flurry resulted.

Back to the Fowler well. There was already a dry hole to the west of the farm; another to the east; and, on the south, beyond the town, was a third "duster." The wagon hauling the rig timbers bogged in the sand, 50 yards short of the location, and Fowler said, "Unload 'er here." To hold down expenses, he dug the slush pit himself. During the entire time of drilling, not a single company's scout visited the well.

Early on the morning of July 26, 1918, "Red" McDowell of the crew ran into the Fowler yard, yelling that the well had come in big during the night, filled the available storage and oil was running down the cotton rows. The wildest that couldn't be anything but a dry hole was a 3,000-barrel gusher!

Then followed perhaps the most intensive oil boom that Texas ever witnessed. So lightly had the well been regarded that almost none of the land was under lease. The town itself was immediately south of the Fowler farm and there were hundreds of owners of lots, each of whom wanted a well on his bit of land and as high as six or eight wells were drilled in a single block. Within three months, nearly 200 rigs were running in the town—in front yards, back yards, behind stores, alongside the depot. The depth was not great, so a well could be drilled quickly and at comparatively small cost.

Burkburnett climbed to a population of 15,000. Wichita Falls, 16 miles to the south, soared past 50,000. The oil exchanges in the two cities were the scenes of excited speculation. Diamonds, huge diamonds, were on every hand—or at least on lots of hands. Size, regardless of flaws or quality, was the chief characteristic desired. As high as $5,000 was paid for the enormous stones and the owner gesticulated with the hand on which the sparkler was worn.

Hotels were crowded. There were cots in alleys; a circus tent became a dormitory; you paid 50 cents to spend the night in a hotel lobby chair. So desperate were some in Wichita Falls for a place to sleep that they bought Pullmans and, at night, made the trip to Fort Worth and back, reaching Wichita Falls early next morning!

Dressmaking Rivalry Slated To Run High On School Campuses Come Fall

By DOROTHY BOE
AP Fashion Editor

Home dressmaking has the "senior" set in stitches. Sew-dobs are turning out jumpers, jerkins, skirts and beanies with war production efficiency, and decorating them with trick buttons, braided and stitched effects that they have learned on their own little sewing machines. The girls have found that they can stretch that clothing allowance a long, long way if they make their own — and local sewing centers throughout the country report enthusiastic teen-age classes.

Not satisfied with making their own dresses, jumpers and skirts, the girls are branching out as amateur fashion designers by turning out complete accessory wardrobes to match—hats, handbags and gloves all come in for their share of attention from the needle and thread brigade.

Their favorite outfits are the classic choccigirl styles — simple jackets and skirts, jerkin outfits and jumpers. But the trimming details reveal a professional touch. The girls make use of felt appliques, unusual buttons, braid and trick stitching to provide spice for their home productions.

Dressmaking rivalry is slated to run high on school campuses this fall.

BUTTON DRAMA highlights this back-to-school outfit. Colorful plastic buttons decorate green felt beanie and bag to match braid trim on flannel dress.

EASY TO MAKE is this five-jumper of cherry gabardine, trimmed in stitched plaid braid, done on the sewing machine. Wide straps meet in a deep V at waist.

Cosden Chatter -

By MRS. BOBIE DOBBINS

To give you a Big Spring boy's version of the invasion of France, we quote from a recent letter received from Lt. J. F. Eggert, a former Cosden employee. I landed with the first wave of infantry on D-Day, H-Hour, and it was one imported piece of hell. We ran head on into a German Division that was on anti-invasion maneuvers on our beach. For several hours they kept us pinned down on a seven foot strip of sand. The tide went out and washed away our dead. Still we remained pinned. Finally we got organized—better to die inland than on the beach—was the motto, and up and over the cliffs we went. It seemed to me as though I was the only one on top that cliff. Little by little, however, I could see a man here, a man there, then the platoons, then the companies, then the battalions, and out of chaos comes organization. After that it was easy. The masses started moving and we actually overran the Germans. As I look back on the beach now, and see unlimited piles of ammunition, food, and weapons, and then remember the kids that ran toward enemy pillboxes, I thank God that I came from a nation that has boys with guts and people back home that keep us supplied. The shoe is on the other foot now. We have the men, the equipment, and a nation behind us. It's time for the Hun to worry, and I don't envy him his position. We understand that Lt. Eggert has received a decoration for his part in the invasion and the days that followed.

SELLERS LASHES AGAINST CHARGES

HOUSTON, Aug. 5 — Attorney General Sellers has opened his run-off campaign with a challenge that voters choose between the two candidates on the basis of their records.

He charged his opponent would have cut old age pensions substantially if an amendment introduced by him in the senate had been accepted; that his opponent filibustered against an anti-loan shark bill which passed and under which he has obtained convictions; that his opponent's criticism of his (Sellers') suit against Swift and Co. merely brought the point Sellers was fighting an alleged conspiracy to control the price of cottonseed. He also offered to withdraw from the race if he lost.

Ohio, last week. Lechman had served overseas with her husband, 1st-Sgt. Paul J. Drouet, for 21 months, and has been returned to the States on rotation plan for further assignment. He said when he left Italy that Sgt. Drouet was well and working hard at his job in the Signal Battalion of the Tactical Air Command.

Ward has been received that Clarence C. Bell, Daniel J. Greenwood, and Leemon Bostick are all in the same barracks at the U. S. Naval Training Station in San Diego California, where they are taking their boot camp training.

Harry A. Brown, formerly chief engineer at Cosden and now with Universal Oil Products in Chicago, was a visitor in the office Friday.

Plans Outlined For Drive To Lower Rates On Wool Shipments To Boston

By PAUL BOLTON
Herald Correspondent

AUSTIN, Aug. 5 — Plans for a drive to obtain lowered freight rates on wool and mohair from all states to the principal processing area, at Boston, were outlined today by Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson who represented Texas at the recent Salt Lake City conference.

The War Food Administration, which called the meeting at the request of the Sheep and Goat Raisers Association, will carry most of the burden of preparing the case for the Interstate Commerce Commission and the states hoped to have the case ready for ICC trial by next March.

Thompson pointed out that Texas, the largest producer, is in a more favorable position for shipments to Boston — where 96 per cent of the wool and mohair goes — than other states lacking the rail-water or truck-water combination; but during the war, bottoms have not been available for water shipment, bringing home to Texas producers the inequities in the rate structure.

Exhibits presented at the Salt Lake City meeting presented the now familiar picture of freight rate absurdities and incongruities.

For instance, to ship a carload of citrus in boxes — a highly perishable product — from Brownsville to Boston, costs $1.16; a carload of wool in the gross, over the same line and distance, $2.25, per hundred. From Sweetwater, a 25,000-pound carload of cotton may be shipped for $1.08 per hundred; wool in the gross would cost $2.08. From El Rio the rails will haul a carload of vegetables to Boston for $1.26 per hundred, but must have $2.25 for wool. A carload of hides and pelts will move from San Angelo for $1.27 per hundred while the wool rate is $2.12.

Texas produced 65,031,000 pounds of the product last year, more than the combined production of the next two states Wyoming with 31,502,000 pounds and Montana with 31,359,000 pounds.

Vitamin Program Eases Hay Fever Misery

Relief of stuffy, irritating hay fever discomfort with the help of Vitamin C—this is the news that comes from the laboratories of a leading Ohio college.

Whether the vitamin helps to control the allergy itself is uncertain. But its effect on the symptoms is indicated by this amazing record—22 out of 25 sufferers in the original test reported marked relief.

Amounts of Vitamin C found effective are 3 to 7 times greater than the ordinary diet provides. For these increased amounts, Wheatamin CEVIGARDS are suggested as a convenient, high-quality product. CEVIGARDS provide pure Vitamin C in tablets made with a natural B Complex which provides added nutritional values.

Cevigards are so generous a source of Vitamin C that only five tablets daily need be taken during the "hay fever season." It may be helpful to begin treatment a week before trouble is expected. Then, if decided relief is not obtained, the dose may be doubled for a few days. Smaller amounts may be sufficient for children.

Give yourself the benefit of this high-quality product. Get genuine CEVIGARDS — and a free Hay Fever leaflet — at Collins Bros. and Walgreen Drug Stores in Big Spring. (Adv.)

Under the War Department general regulation concerning marriages in foreign theatres, both officers and enlisted personnel must have formal permission from their commanding officers before taking this step. How to get this permission in the European Theatre of Operations is described by a sergeant in the Woman's Army Corps in a letter home to friends. She writes from the viewpoint of her own organization but the same system would be applicable to G. I. Joe.

"Don't ever try to get married in the European Theatre of Operations," she advises. "First of all, you must write a long letter in strict accordance with the proper Army circular. Attached to your letter and signed in triplicate, must be a letter from your fiancé certifying his willingness to go through with the ceremony.

"Then, you have a mimeographed form to fill out and you must produce its mate signed by the party of the second part (your fiancé). These forms require notarization before a duly authorized person and each form must contain one of the standard sets of reasons for wanting to wed. This collection is given to the immediate superior of the person involved and from there, it travels all the way up through channels.

"Upon reaching the proper terminal, the papers are held in abeyance for two months. If approved finally, the whole file is returned with the proper flourishes to the prospective bride or groom, which ever you happen to be. The prospective date of the wedding is o-a 3 August 1944 as provided in Cir. 41, Hq., ETOUSA, 17 April 1944. Translated this means the romance has stood the test of time (three months), that it is sanctioned by higher military authorities, and that the wedding may take place on or about August 2, as provided in Circular 41, issued by the Headquarters of the European Theatre of Operations, United States Army, on April 17, 1944.

The imposed delay has not operated to keep down the wedding rate but rather to give time for taking serious thought about entering marriage, reports this same member of the Woman's Army Corps. Four G. I. weddings have enlivened the history of the WAC group which landed in Naples last December despite the three months interval. This same period of waiting between announcement of intentions and the ceremony, applies also in the Mediterranean Theatre, North Africa and Italy.

Soldier's Life Saved By Metal Back Bible

McALLEN, Aug. 5 (AP) — A pocket Bible given him by relatives when he left for overseas duty with the first U. S. Cavalry 15 months ago saved the life of Sgt. Frazier B. Guinn during the invasion of the Admiralty Islands and he has sent the shell-shattered volume home as a keepsake. A well-aimed Jap bullet tore into the book, went clear through its pages and came to rest against the metal back of the Bible, denting it.

Christopher blanked the world champions with five hits in the nightcap.

BOSTON, Aug. 5 (AP) — Tex Hughson became the first major league pitcher to chalk up 17 victories this season as the Boston Red Sox today won a 6 to 2 victory over the Washington Senators.

Coaches Expect Big Attendance

WICHITA FALLS, Aug. 5 (AP) — The largest attendance since the war started is expected for the annual Texas High School Coaches Association Coaching school which opens here Monday, according to W. C. O. Harris of Fort Worth, Association president.

Harris said 250 reservations had been accepted at headquarters and at least 50 more coaches were expected to ask for rooms tomorrow.

Although 30 mentors had already arrived — two full days ahead of the opening of the school — the majority of the coaches are expected to come in tomorrow afternoon.

Sessions of the school open Monday morning with Jeff Cravath coach of the University of Southern California, and Bobby Dudd, assistant coach at Georgia Tech, as chief instructors.

Cravath and Dudd also will coach the all-star squads with Bobby Cannon, coach of Edinburg High, and Howard Lynch, coach of Amarillo High, assisting.

Other instructors will be Dell Morgan, Texas Tech.; Blaine Cherry, University of Texas; Sammy Baugh, Washington Redskins; Jewell Wallace, football coach of San Angelo high school, state champion; Stanley Thomas, coach of Sunset (Dallas), state basketball champion, and R. J. Kidd and Roy Bodechek of the Texas interscholastic league.

Co-Pilot On Rickenbacker Flight Says Supernatural Force Saved His Life

"There were no heroes out there on the Pacific with us," says Capt. James G. Whitaker, co-pilot on the plane in which Eddie Rickenbacker was a passenger when it was forced down in the Pacific.

"All I saw was eight guys trying to save their own lives and seven of them did," he said.

Captain Whitaker was a visitor at Big Spring Bomber school Saturday, talking to all officers and many enlisted men and civilian personnel.

"Brother, I don't think it. I know it," the officer said in response to question of whether he thought it supernatural the way their lives came to be saved.

"I'm this sort of a guy," he said. "All my life I didn't go to church. All my life I don't go for that kind of stuff. But now I go to church. Now I know. Like the time an island was a half mile away and I was dead tired and I couldn't hold any more."

So I held the oars in my hand, and all at once I'm rowing only I'm not rowing. It was this way—the oars were in my hands, but I wasn't doing anything. I couldn't — didn't have the strength.

As I said I never was a religious sort of guy, but there it was. We were on the way to the island and my hands were on the oars, but it wasn't me doing the rowing. It was something else. Understand that, it is a good thing to remember. Don't sell it short.

Pro-Gridders On Increase

CHICAGO, Aug. 5 (AP) — Some 430 pro gridgers — a number which compares favorably with pre-war turnouts — have begun sites to prepare for the opening of the national football league season next month.

The Washington Redskins and Brooklyn Tigers were scheduled to start official practices tomorrow at San Diego, Calif., high school and Hardin Simmons college, Abilene, Tex., respectively. The Redskins arrived in camp this week and are expected to have about 43 players on hand. The Tigers, formerly known as the Dodgers, were preparing for a squad of 60 men — largest in the 10-team league.

The National Football league reported the largest advance ticket sales in its history and officials looked forward to a banner season which possibly might equal or surpass last year's attendance mark of 1,151,016 — a record average of 28,073 per game.

Bob Falkenburg Staves Off Bid By Tut Bartzen

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Aug. 5 (AP) — Robert Falkenburg, brother of the Hollywood movie star and cover girl, Jinx Falkenburg, won the 29th annual junior singles tennis title today, defeating Bernard Bartzen of San Angelo, Tex., 6-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-2, in the tournament finals on the Kalamazoo college courts.

A furlough from the army air base of Merced Field, Calif., enabled the six foot-three inch Californian to retain the junior crown he won last year and to back up his fourth national tennis title.

Falkenburg took a set to figure out his Texas opponent's style of play today, failing to win a game. In the ninth game of the second set he broke through Bartzen's service and went on to win 6-4. He virtually duplicated that performance in the third set and then added the 6-2 clincher.

Buddy Behrens, 15-year-old Fort Lauderdale, Fla., lad, raced to a 6-2, 6-0, decision over MacDonald — Mathey, also 15, of Princeton, N. J., in the title match in the boys' division.

Pre-Draft Teams Play For Benefit

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 (AP) drive for funds with which to build living memorials for the country's heroes of World War II gets under way in the Polo Grounds tomorrow with a baseball game in which pre-draft players from east of the Mississippi river will play a similar team from the west.

Fourteen newspapers east of the river selected the outstanding young player in their districts and the athletes were brought to New York by Esquire magazine, which is underwriting the event along with the Blue Network. The western squad, also of 14, was chosen similarly.

Mei Ott, manager of the New York Giants, will guide the westerners while Connie Mack, boss of the Philadelphia Athletics, will do the master-minding for the easterners. During the past week, Carl Hubbell of the Giants and Ira Thomas of the A's, have been in charge of the rehearsals in the Polo Grounds.

Tragedy Of Rome Is In A Broken Young People

ROME, July 27 (Delayed AP) — The tragedy of Italy is not in its ruined cities, or even in its bankrupt character, but in its younger generation. It has turned against itself, it feels cornered and trapped.

Italian girls do not want to marry Italian men and the men themselves all too often are walking the streets looking for jobs that are not there. There is a lot of talk about the rehabilitation and the future but most of them have a pretty realistic idea of what the next 20 years in Italy will be like, and they are frightened.

Then the Yanks came into town with an easy grin, and perhaps something of a swagger, and it was only human nature that most young girls here should look on them as Gods.

And that is a part of the trouble. They want to get married, these pretty Roman girls. Not just for the sake of a husband but so they can get away.

There is some justification for the pessimism abroad in this land. Laborers are earning less under the Allies than they did under the Germans. One effort was made to raise the scale but General Sir Harold Alexander, commander of the Allied forces in Italy, set it aside.

Meanwhile, some people are going hungry. One immediate result of this was an increase in the communist line.

There is an article in the current issue of the two-page weekly, Cantachiaro, giving you an idea of the metamorphosis that has come over Italy and its younger generation. It tells of the man who strung along with fascism chiefly because he was too weak to fight.

Then came the capitulation. His only son had been killed in battle. Little by little he sold his household effects — to get enough food for his daughter and his wife.

The time came when his daughter became the family's only support. She began to stay away from home all day and now sometimes she stays away all night. When she comes in the morning her pocket book is usually filled with packages of American cigarettes, bars of American soap and candy. She has money too.

As for herself, she's all right. The article says she has a nice color in her cheeks because she rides around in the fresh air in so many automobiles, but she never smiles any more.

Snapshots May Play Key Role In Treason Case

DENVER, Aug. 5 (AP) — Snapshots of three Japanese-American sisters in the arms of two German prisoners of war will constitute an important part of the government's evidence when one of the nation's major treason trials if this war opens Monday in U. S. District court.

The sisters — Mrs. Tsuruko Wallace, 35; Mrs. Florence Shilve Otani, 33, and Mrs. Billie Shitara Tanicoshi, 32 — are the defendants, facing a possible death sentence if convicted. The Nazis — Corps. Heinrich Halder, 31, and Herman August Loescher, 31, both former members of Rommel's routed Afrika Korps — are the government's star witnesses.

The Nazis enjoyed only two days of freedom. Then FBI agents intercepted them at Watrous, N. Mex. In Halder's possession, the indictment charges, were pictures showing the Germans embracing the women, who worked on the same farm near the internment camp.

A grand jury charged that the defendants gave the prisoners food maps of California, Nevada and Colorado, a railroad timetable, clothing, flashlight, money and an automobile. The fugitives, it said, had planned to find their way back to their fatherland via Mexico and South America.

Serum Of No Avail As Bite Victim Dies

SHREVEPORT, La., Aug. 5 (AP) — J. O. Leach of Beaumont, for whom a Barksdale Field plane flew anti-tetanus serum from Dallas to Shreveport in midweek, died early today.

Leach, 33, was bitten by a black widow spider about three weeks ago. He contracted lockjaw. When he proved allergic to anti-tetanus serum derived from horses, rabbit serum was flown from Dallas. In addition to anti-tetanus serums penicillin was administered, but pneumonia developed.

Point Of Disagreement Preparing For V-Day

By FRANK GRIMES
Herald Staff Writer

It is inconceivable that any community larger than a broad plain in the road has sat around on its hands the last two years and failed to make any sofa of plans for cushioning the community against the shocks of postwar readjustments. If any community has failed to draw plans for quick execution, it has done itself and its people, its veterans and its workers who have been away in warplants an irreparable injury.

It is obvious that the first shocks of readjustments must be absorbed locally — by cities by precinct, by counties, by states. Such federal aid as may be forthcoming — and it will be forthcoming only if there is a complete breakdown of local effort and enterprise — cannot be expected for the first 12 to 24 months after V-Day.

Recent developments have indicated the possibility that the European war may be over almost any week now. When the German people and the old-line German generals decide that there is nothing to gain by holding out longer, Germany will give up in spite of anything Hitler and his cut-throats can do about it. If 70,000,000 people decide to go on a sidown strike, that's that. We do not believe the German people can "take" an invasion of their own soil.

When Germany is knocked out of the war, there will be an immediate cut-back of war production in this country — certainly as much as 40 percent, possibly as much as 65 percent. That means millions out of jobs and most of them heading for home. They will be accompanied by the first discharges of our 11,000,000-man fighting force — older men with families, limited service men, troops who are worn-out and in need of rest. As the months advance this trickle will reach flood proportions, until within a year or two after Japan is beaten our armed forces probably will be reduced by 550 to 75 percent. (No more than that if we are wise.)

Twenty million people from warplants and armed services must be reabsorbed in industry, agriculture, trades and the professions within one to five years after the last shot is fired.

The burden on each community to absorb its own will be terrific. And the time to make plans for this task is right now, not next week or next month.

Every town should be ready at any moment to take up the task. Local improvements — street paving, storm-sewer construction, park development, and other quick-starting works should be ready to go on signal. That which can get under way soonest should be readied first.

The question of finance naturally is going to Considerable community speculation has resulted from the resignation of the chief of police, together with the assistant and two other members of the staff during the past week. There is always some question in the public's mind concerning any resignation of high officials and certainly this interest is stimulated by the grouping of resignations in any spot or at any one time.

Explanation given by the city manager, to whom the resignation of the police chief was handed, and that concurred in by the chief is that there was a disagreement on matters of policy. This being the case, it is a legitimate and commendable cause for submitting a resignation and an ample one for accepting it.

Under the city manager form of government, the set-up most ideally approaches that of a business enterprise large enough to be departmentalized. The manager becomes the administrative head of municipal affairs. He is responsible to the city commission, elected by the people, and in turn departmental heads are responsible to him. Thus, policies adopted at the top should find their way in proper order to translation in the various departments.

According to the manager (there is no statement from the chief on these points) the policies over which the tempest blew were: 1) A policy requiring rewards earned by any member of the department to be pooled, and 2) absolute cooperation with the provost marshal's department at the air base. There were other operational details which doubtless entered in but these are listed as the major points of difference.

If the policies involved are not proper, the citizen has his right of petition and question to the commission. If that body concurs, it has power to suggest policy changes to conform. If it does not, ultimately the only power of authority with individuals would rest in the ballot. If the policies involved are deemed right, then the whole procedure has been properly pitched, for in governmental operation as well as in business there must be responsibility.

Finally, if the occasion for separation of four good men from a good department is not based on disagreement over policies, then we have been misled by both parties concerned.

be a big headache. Steps should be taken right now to take care of that angle as far as the community is able.

So let's be ready to face V-Day with a stockpile of work ready to go on a week's notice. Let's be ready to put returning local men to work as quickly as possible after they reach home.

We need a clearing house, a sort of work council, to take stock and to direct the program. Building projects by individuals and firms should be ascertained, plans for expansion listed, every stone turned to create jobs and start the readjustment ball rolling.

If we don't, as a community, get busy at once on this angle of postwar planning, we'll live to regret it. It will be too late with thousands of men looking for jobs. We can't depend on Uncle Sam.

The Thrill That Comes Once In A Lifetime Today And Tomorrow

THE SWEET POTATO SOLO

Ernie Pyle: Commanders Have A Heart; They Give Reunited Brothers A Day Off

By ERNIE PYLE
SOMEWHERE IN NORMANDY — (by wireless) — One afternoon a couple of soldiers came around our camp to tell me about the strange experience that had just happened to them. They were brothers, and the night before they had run onto each other for the first time in more than two years.

They are Corp. John and Pvt. Edward O'Donnell of East Milton, Mass. John is an artilleryman and has been overseas more than two years, all through Africa and Sicily. Edward has been overseas only a couple of months. John is 22 and Edward, 19.

The first Edward knew his brother was in the vicinity was when he saw some soldiers, wearing the patch of John's division, getting ready to take a bath at an outdoor shower the Army had set up.

He asked them where the division was and then began a several hour hunt for his brother. John was attending an Army movie set up in a barn when Edward finally tracked him down. They sent in word for John to come out. When he got about half way out and saw who was waiting he practically knocked everybody out of their chairs getting to the back.

Their commanding officers gave them the next day off and they just roamed around with their tongues wagging — talking mostly about home.

That same afternoon another soldier came by to say hello because his name is the same as mine. He is Pvt. Stewart Pyle of Orange, N. J. He is the driver in a car company, and now and then he gets an assignment to drive some very high officers. At least that will give him something to talk about to his grandchildren.

Private Pyle is married and has been overseas nine months. Try as we might, we couldn't establish any relationship. That might have been due to the fact that my name isn't Pyle at all, but Count Sforza Chef Dupont D'Arctagnan.

Our family sprang from a long line of Norman milkmaids. We took the name Pyle after the Jones murder cases in 1739 —

January, I think it was. My great grandfather built the Empire State Building. Why am I telling you all this?

Department of Wartime Distorted Values — The other day a soldier offered to trade a French farmer three horses for three eggs. The soldier had captured the horses from the Germans. The trade didn't come off — the farmer already had three horses.

And — at one of our evacuation hospitals the other day a wounded soldier turned over 50,000 francs, equivalent to $1800. He'd picked them up in a captured German headquarters. The Army is now in the process of looking up regulations to see whether the soldier can keep the money.

In the very early days of the invasion I said in this column that Capt. Ralph L. Haga of Prospect, Va. claimed to be the first chaplain ashore on D-Day.

Well, I got into trouble over that, because he wasn't. If I'd had any sense I would have known better myself. The first chaplain on the beachhead were those who jumped with the paratroopers and there were a batch of them — I believe 17, altogether. They were in Normandy hours before Chaplain Haga touched the beach.

As one bunch of paratroopers wrote me, "Our chaplains had already reneged their first consolation service in France before Chaplain Haga got his feet wet." So all credit where credit is due.

One afternoon several weeks ago I went into Cherbourg with an infantry company and one of the doughboys gave me two cans of French sardines they'd captured from the Germans.

Right in the midst of battle is a funny place to be giving a man sardines, but this is a funny war. At any rate, I was grateful and I put them in my musette bag when I got back to my tent that night. I forgot all about them.

The reason I mention it now is that last night I got a hungry spell, and was rummaging around in the bag for candy or something and ran onto these sardines. They tasted mighty good.

Hollywood — Hect's Paranoia; Sturges Turns Comedy

By ROBIN COONS
Hollywood — U ILY NUP NU HOLLYWOOD — Ben Hecht was going over his script for "The House of Dr. Edwardes" with co-stars Ingrid Bergman and Gregory Peck, who will make it under Alfred Hitchcock's direction.

"This story deals with what used to be called lunatics," Hecht began. "Now they're known as paranoiacs." He beamed on Peck. "That's you," he said, and went on to discuss psychoses, psychiatry, psychoanalysis, neuroses, and other pleasant ramifications of his theme. "Now, is everything clear?" "All but one point," grinned Peck. "What made you get us into this?" "That's obvious," said Hecht. "Paranoia!"

"The suspense has been awful, but now you can relax. Brian Denley will be mustached, as usual, in "Two Years Before the Mast." Brian plays the author, Richard Henry Dana, and originally was to have been clean-shaven, but his daughter Judith Ann, 15 months old, objected. He says, . . .

Lloyd Nolan is a partner in a Mexican American movie company, producing in Mexico. First production, a musical, is now being edited. . . . The Florida shore-line recreated for "Sunday Dinner for a Soldier" includes some California sand carted from the Pacific beach to the studio stage, — and also some good old California sand fleas that had to be sprayed-gunned to quell an epidemic of red welts on thespian epidermis.

Another Preston Sturges American classic: "Hall the Conquering Hero." It's a sermon in roars, a fable in laughter, and boasts the Eddie Bracken stock a notch higher. . . .

Hitler's Underground Plans

By WALTER LIPPMANN

The energy with which Hitler and the Nazi chieftains are reacting cannot, I think, be explained except on the theory that they are putting into effect a carefully considered plan. Undoubtedly there are many signs of panic in Goering's first broadcast after the bomb was exploded. Goering is a warm-blooded ruffian. But Hitler and Himmler are, to use Hitler's own favorite adjective, ice-cold devils. They are not acting like men who think of themselves as doomed, and are merely preparing to sell their lives as dearly as possible. They are acting like men who feel they still have something to live for and believe that they can still accomplish it.

Not desperation, but a conviction based on a well-laid plan must I think be the reason why their conduct in the face of military disaster and internal disintegration is still so purposeful, so concrete, and so bold. When men in a very tight place act with such practical decision, it is an almost certain sign that they are prepared for it. The contrast between Hitler's behavior and Mussolini's a year ago is striking: Mussolini was the truly beaten man, his energies paralyzed because in his inmost soul all hope was gone. Hitler and Himmler show neither the listlessness of despair nor the aimlessness of the desparate. We must assume that they still have a plan and a purpose.

What plan and what purpose? They are, as I always remember, deeply conscious of 1918 and determined to profit by it. In 1918 the German Army, when it knew it was defeated, succeeded in making the German civilian authorities at home assume the onus of capitulation, and by this means the high command fastened upon the home front the responsibility for the defeat. The German generals were preparing to repeat the maneuver, which would have meant fixing the blame for what is happening and what will happen upon the Nazis who at this time are in absolute control of the home front.

It is against this I believe, that Hitler has prepared himself and is now reacting. He may have some hope that by fighting on, by various trick devices and by bloody resistance, he can last until winter, and perhaps tire out the Allies and divide them. But these hopes are probably secondary considerations as compared with making sure that in the eyes of his followers in Germany, not he but some one else is the scapegoat for the defeat.

In the past few weeks the corps of officers which is recruited from the hereditary nobility have been elected as the new scapegoats. At whatever risk to the morale and fighting capacity of the armies, Hitler has sought to make sure that when the Nazis go underground after the defeat, they will have the necessary explanations and accusations with which to operate their propaganda and conspiracies. If the Nazi movement is to live underground, and exploit to its own advantage the inevitable suffering and frustration of the German nation, it is absolutely essential that it should have an alibi for the defeat.

If this is correct, then we must assume that a well-worked-out plan exists by which the Nazis will go underground. When they do, the remnants of the officers' corps will also go underground, and the active survivors who are not now Nazis will, when they have been deprived of their conspicuous leaders, impoverished by the loss of their hereditary estates, disgraced by the Nazis' charges, and generally humiliated by the defeat, find their way back to a place in the underground movement.

Old conspirators like Hitler know all the tricks of conducting an underground movement, and one of the greatest difficulties the British and the American leaders face in occupying Germany is that none among them has experience, and few much knowledge, of underground politics, and how to detect it, and how to deal with it.

That the Nazi plan in widespread and already prepared, there can be little doubt. It must extend beyond Germany. Calculating men like the Laval and the Quislings are not proposing to die if they can help it. Hitler himself might conceivably think of himself as dying in some great Wagnerian bonfire in order to live on as a legendary hero. I doubt it. But it is possible. The calculating men will have worked out schemes of escape and refuge. There is already some evidence that they have, the most obvious but not the only path of escape and refuge being through Franco's Spain to Argentina.

When the Nazi movement goes underground in Europe and seeks asylum abroad, its object will be of course, a return to power. Living in cellars at home or in villas abroad would hardly satisfy men who came so near to being the masters of the world. They will have provided resources for living and conspiring, first of all money and then concealed connections among the neutrals, the innocent and their own fellow-travelers abroad. . . .

Nothing will test so severely the armen and purpose of the United Nations as the measures they institute for isolating the Nazi underground in Germany and satellite Europe from its connections abroad. Only complete control of all traffic, all transactions, and all communications between occupied Germany and the rest of the world can possibly give them the means of dealing with the problem.

Hitler's actions in the past weeks should bring us to a sharp realization that when hostilities between the armies cease, there will be a long and difficult phase of the conflict, political rather than military — a policing rather than a fighting phase, which still lies ahead of us.

Old conspirators like Hitler know all the tricks of conducting an underground movement, and one of the greatest difficulties the British and the American leaders face in occupying Germany is that none among them has experience, and few much knowledge, of underground politics, and how to detect it, and how to deal with it.

Washington — Ideal Theatre Doesn't Show For Fun

By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON — The most technically perfect movie theater in the capital operates with no ticket booth, no usherettes, no popcorn machines — and all for free.

But you can't go there just for fun. The theater, deep in the air-cooled recesses of the National Archives building, is only part of the "little Hollywood" operated by Archives' Division of Motion Pictures and Sound Recordings.

Stainless steel vaults contain more than 100,000 feet of film ranging from jerky glimpses of President Grover Cleveland to smacking battle scenes of the present war.

John Bradley, head of the division, will arrange special showings of any subject for individuals or groups able to prove a legitimate interest.

"If a farmer comes in and asks to see some special agricultural films, we are glad to show them to him," Bradley explained.

"We'll show a film on silicosis to doctors, but if a farmer comes in and wants to see the silicosis film for entertainment we'd have to turn him down."

Only five days a year is the rule against entertainment relaxed. For the past two Christmas seasons the division has enjoyed lonely servicemen in to enjoy revivals of feature films of long ago.

The war has first call on the division's facilities. The Army, Navy and civilian divisions of government are finding unexpected treasures of information in their recesses. Cooperation with the Library of Congress has widened this particular aid to the war effort. The library is custodian of millions of feet of paper photographic prints of movie film, filed under the copyright law. Technicians at the Archives built a special camera which can photograph the paper tape, reproducing the film in usable negative form.

Looking Backward

The system is ideal when the Navy, for instance, wants some out-of-print shots of naval action in the first World War.

Archives experts, working with the Bureau of Standards and film makers, have cooperated in development of film expected to last from 300 to 500 years.

"When it's nearing its age limit," Bradley said, "it can be duplicated and reduplicated. That ought to be good for several thousand years, and I refuse to worry after that."

The big fireproof storage rooms contain not only movies of every president since Cleveland, but recordings of the voices of all those since Woodrow Wilson.

Among the most highly prized sound effects are cylindrical records, made in the '90s, of Indian war chants sung by tribesmen.

Five feet away are other war chants of much later date — recordings of Japanese and German propaganda broadcasts picked up by U. S. listening posts. The division has 25,000 such recordings.

Hollywood — Hect's Paranoia; Sturges Turns Comedy

By ROBIN COONS
Hollywood — U ILY NUP NU HOLLYWOOD — Ben Hecht was going over his script for "The House of Dr. Edwardes" with co-stars Ingrid Bergman and Gregory Peck, who will make it under Alfred Hitchcock's direction.

"This story deals with what used to be called lunatics," Hecht began. "Now they're known as paranoiacs." He beamed on Peck. "That's you," he said, and went on to discuss psychoses, psychiatry, psychoanalysis, neuroses, and other pleasant ramifications of his theme. "Now, is everything clear?" "All but one point," grinned Peck. "What made you get us into this?" "That's obvious," said Hecht. "Paranoia!"

"The suspense has been awful, but now you can relax. Brian Denley will be mustached, as usual, in "Two Years Before the Mast." Brian plays the author, Richard Henry Dana, and originally was to have been clean-shaven, but his daughter Judith Ann, 15 months old, objected. He says, . . .

What It Means—

Air Bases In Marianas

By JAMES J. STREBIG
WASHINGTON — Conquest of Saipan and invasion of Guam mean a new phase in B-29 Superfortress operations against Japan. They will be more comparable to the Eighth Air Force attacks on Germany than ever would be possible from the China - India - Burma bases in use at present.

Outstanding single advantage in having an island base for the big bombers, military authorities point out, is the improvement in the supply situation. The B-29s in the CBI theater must be supplied by air, an expensive, time-consuming task of limited capacity. Acquisition of airfields in the Marianas will end all that, particularly with occupation of Guam, for Guam has excellent harbor facilities. Guam appears to have a terrain suitable for airfields; in fact indications are that the United States at least had begun building sizeable landing strips before Pearl Harbor.

Saipan does not have port facilities equal to those of Guam, but its terrain is much more adaptable to heavy bomber operations. The raid on the Bonins by B-24 Liberators apparently originated from Saipan, since the map shows no other American-held airfields within reach of land based planes.

Aside from supply, an island base for the big Boeings has a number of important advantages over the CBI bases which are peculiar to long range air operations:

1. Pilots prefer to fly over water on long hops in enemy infested territory rather than over the jungle, because if forced down it is easier to land on water. The planes are well equipped with life rafts and supplies, food and water may be easier to obtain. There is less danger from animals and disease. Most of all, rescue is much more likely. This is particularly true of the B-29, admirably adapted for safe ditching.
2. The possibilities for surprise are much better, since the enemy cannot hide along the route, and the effective range of his detection devices can be reduced by low approaches.

3. Weather is more predictable and navigation is at least no more difficult than over the varying, rugged Asiatic terrain.

4. Bases can be protected more easily with a wide expanse of water around them.

The volume and frequency of B-29 operations against Japan and the Philippines may be limited somewhat by the mere fact of the size of Guam and Saipan. The Superfortress is a huge ship requiring tremendous supplies and ground crews. The ships must be dispersed to prevent heavy damages from surprise attacks. All that requires space.

Last Rites Held For Pioneer Rancher

Last rites for G. L. "Bud" Brown, 83, pioneer resident of Big Spring, were conducted at 6:30 p. m. Saturday at Eberley-Curry Funeral home with Maj. L. W. Canning officiating.

Mr. Brown died at 5:45 Friday morning at his home. He was a pioneer West Texas cowboy and came to Big Spring many years ago, helping organize what is now the First National bank and serving as president several years. He was a cattleman and banker 40 years.

Active pallbearers were Harry Hurt, Bart Wilkerson, Joe Fisher, Shine Phillips, W. J. Garrett, Bob Middleton and Ebb Hatch. Old-timers of the city and several from out-of-town and all members of the Masonic lodge here, of which he was an honorary member, were honorary bearers.

Burial was in the Masonic cemetery, beside his wife's grave.

N. W. McCleskey Dies Saturday

Nathan W. McCleskey, resident of Big Spring many years, died Saturday following a long illness. He was a pioneer banker and insurance man.

Funeral services will be conducted at Weatherford Sunday afternoon, if a daughter of Stockton, Calif., Mrs. George Hope, arrives in time. Burial will be in the family cemetery at Weatherford.

Survivors include his wife, Mrs. Hattie Alley McCleskey; one son, Frank McCleskey of Big Spring; two daughters, Mrs. Lloyd Wasington of Big Spring and Mrs. Hope; and two grandchildren, Sue Caroline Wasson and Larry Frank McCleskey.

Cotton Closes Out On Highest Points

NEW YORK, Aug. 5 — The cotton market closed at the best levels of the session today and gained 35 to 65 cents a bale.

The advance was aided by a scarcity of offerings which came principally through spot house selling at flat purchases and hedging of the new crop.

Tax Holiday In Order On Vets Of Civil War

By PAUL BOLTON
Herald Correspondent

AUSTIN, Aug. 5—Taxpayers of Texas may well get a holiday from the Confederate pension tax when the next legislature meets—a holiday which could become permanent.

For the Confederate pension ad valorem tax, already cut from the 7-cent level where it stayed for many years down to 2 cents, still is bringing in more money than is needed to pay the pensions, to the fast disappearing army in grey and their widows.

The last pension payments out of Comptroller George Sheppard's office showed only 42 Confederate veterans left on the pension rolls.

And in addition to the old men, whose ranks are depleted almost daily by death, there are 1,798 widows on the rolls. The widows draw $30 a month. Another 55 widows are in the home at Austin.

That means that expenditures from the fund are running considerably less than income, even at the greatly reduced tax rate. And the expenditures grow less month by month. A year ago, the pensions — plus mortuary payments of $100 each—amounted to $68,496 in September, 1943. The July payments, just sent out, amounted to $58,786. And, as the pensioners grow older, the death rate accelerates and the monthly need declines in proportion.

So, with the big surplus, which cannot be transferred to another fund, a holiday on the tax seems almost in order.

Howard county's only Confederate veteran, William C. Brooks, is among the five on the rolls who are married and whose wives still live.

Not Even Drouth Can Keep Roy Davis' Mind Off Horses

Roy Davis, sitting in the middle of a spot in northwestern Glasscock county where no general rain has fallen for three years, is only hoping that someday the law of averages will take over.

In addition to other ranching activities, Roy breeds fine Palominos. He returned not long ago from Canada where he delivered 10 horses to S. R. Weaver at Hamilton, Ont. Two years ago Roy shipped Weaver two Palominos sight unseen. The stallion, Diamond Point, won the championship of the horse show near Hamilton while Davis was there and the filly placed first in her class.

One of the smoothest Palominos he has seen lately is owned by E. B. Gillian, also of northern Glasscock county. Gillian showed her to championship of the yearly filly class at the San Angelo horse show and is planning to enter her at Abilene. Chris Schaffer, veteran Glasscock horsebreeder, thinks the filly is as slick as he has ever seen.

Futures closed 25 to 65 cents a bale higher.

Rev. W. L. Porterfield, pastor of the Wesley Methodist church, Rev. H. Clyde Smith, pastor of the First Methodist church, and Rev. Wayne Cook of Stanton are to officiate.

Active pallbearers will be J. Lusk, M. E. Broughton, E. H. Long, J. H. Burchett, Morris Gay and W. Leatherwood. Several friends will be honorary pallbearers.

Mr. Hart was drowned when he fell from a boat. With him in the boat was Glenn Cantrell, who was rowing and whose back was turned to Mr. Hart. About 200 yards away were Milton Broughton and Harvey Clay. Efforts started immediately to rescue him, but the body was not recovered for about two hours.

Mr. Hart lived four miles north of Big Spring.
