SAVE THE CONSTITUTION

In the face of all the theorists who would like to subject the United States to fascism, communism, collectivism, and what-not, the Lone Star state seems to still believe that the constitution, under whose guidance we grew from an unimportant pioneer nation to a world power within a century, is still good enough.

On June 8, the Young Democrats of Texas went on record as being aggressively opposed to any change which would "destroy the constitution." At the same time, the organization went on record as favoring abolition of child labor, state codes of ethics to cover working hours and wages and other reforms of a social character, which shows that the Democrats are not opposed to change which can be achieved within the limits of the constitution. They simply realize that the kind of reform activity favored by many present-day officeholders would mean the end of state's rights, the rise of a virtual political autocracy, and the destruction of individual liberties.

On the same day, Democratic Governor Murray of Oklahoma, who "always has taken his coffee black and his democracy straight," said: "The United States will disintegrate unless the constitutional safeguards of liberty are preserved. We are already going to Washington for everything. The trend toward centralization of government will lead ultimately, unless checked, to centralization of wealth and privilege and the establishment of only two classes of citizens—the very rich and the very poor."

The statements from the Young Democrats and from Governor Murray will be seconded by other states. The issue is not one of partisanship—it is one of Americanism. Those who would destroy the constitution and discredit our supreme court, would destroy all that the founders of the country fought and bled for, and left us as our most precious heritage—personal liberty unshackled by official tyranny.

"WE MISS YOU, DADDY"

The following editorial was printed in the Rockville, Conn., Journal, about a year ago. Thereafter, to the editor's surprise, it was reprinted by most of the other papers of the state, and was used by highway safety officials, insurance companies, accident prevention organizations, motorists' publications and by others who are fighting the great war against the toll of automobile deaths. Here it is—and any motorist will surely think twice about taking chances after reading it:

"Tuesday morning there was a fatal accident on the Minterburn Hill and when the medical examiner was going through the pockets of the dead man . . . a telegram was found. It was not very long, just the ordinary ten-word length, but it was a message that would make any father happy. It read: WE MISS YOU DADDY. WHEN ARE YOU COMING HOME?"

"That was all. It was a message sent by one of the children of the man who was killed. He had received the message and was home-bound. The clothes were minus money but in his pocket he carried that message.

"Those who have little children, and those who were once little children, can think of the great blow to the child when the father did return home—DEAD.

"Daddy" will be missed by those children in the long years ahead. No longer will they have his support, his earnings, and, more important, his companionship.

"If ever there was a reason for people driving more carefully on the road, it is that they might get in an accident and deprive their own child or some other child of their 'Daddy'.

"More might be written, but just let us repeat those words: 'We miss you, Daddy. When are you coming home?'"

THE ONLY COURSE

How long would businesses or individuals remain solvent if for every dollar they earned they spent two dollars? It doesn't take a financial wizard to know they would soon be in the bankruptcy courts.

At the present time the federal government is spending two dollars for every dollar it receives in tax revenue. It is no excuse to say that the federal credit is still unimpaired, and that the currency is soundly backed with gold.

Neither a nation's currency, nor public or private credit can long remain "sound" under spendthrift practices. The easy way out for a country faced with debt obligations, is currency inflation—but the harsh lesson of history, modern and ancient, is that in every case inflation produces fear, panic, and often complete breakdown of a nation's social and economic structure.

We hear much these days about "controlled inflation"—what isn't heard is that no nation, no matter how wise its administrators, has ever been able to keep inflation within bounds once it was started.

The future financial security of the nation can be assured in but one way—by reducing costs of government to balance income. That may seem old-fashioned to modern financial experimentalists—but, all the pretty theories notwithstanding, it is the only safe and sound course for any nation, or individual, no matter how rich they are.

MATTER OF JUDGMENT

It seems under the constitution that every state has a right to make a fool of itself, and before this Young Democrat-Elliott Roosevelt matter is finally closed, Texas will likely have availed itself of the provision.

After all, it was poor judgment on the part of the Young Democrats in ever naming Elliott Roosevelt an active official in their state organization. It was poor judgment on his part to have accepted the post, and the Amarillo episode was predicted even before it happened.

The fact is the American people, east, west, north or south, resent any semblance of the "crown prince" stuff, and untoward events usually follow, regardless of the well-intentioned motives of those connected.

Elliott Roosevelt ought not be made to resign by Texans—that would be poor taste on the part of Texans, but delicacy might suggest a quiet withdrawal on his part, which would be a display of taste and judgment worthy of the most honorable.—Clarendon News.

The nation has accepted with a sigh of relief the recent supreme court decisions. After all, this nation believes fundamentally in constitutional government. It was willing to accept any sort of government and any sort of laws during a period of unprecedented depression, but once the nation starts on the upgrade, the people want the old form of sound government. BITS OF EARLY-DAY HISTORY ABOUT TEXAS

(This is one of a series of articles taken from the Bexar archives at the University of Texas. This collection, considered the greatest single historical treasure on the North American continent, has been catalogued and is now being transcribed by the university and published to the press for publication.)

SERIES II, NO. 23

It must not be supposed that the people of San Jacinto, decisive in its determination of the independence of the Republic of Texas, and the war between the Mexicans and Americans. Indeed, skirmishes occurred periodically for a number of years between various armed forces of the former combatants. Attacks on Mexican armies were constant. The situation as it existed after the war is graphically described by John Salmon Ford, a realist-soldier-historian, in his memoirs. The manuscript of these memoirs, which have never been published, is in the family archives of the University of Texas. Ford possessed a flair for depicting personalities and for describing atmosphere which renders his memoirs much more interesting than the point of view of the usual reader and from that of the usual catalogue of events.

A goodly number of Mexicans remained in the town and country of Nacogdoches after the battle of San Jacinto. Ford wrote, "It would be difficult to assume that those people always received fair and honorable treatment at the hands of Texans, without an infraction of truth. On the other hand it would be hard to believe these citizens of Mexican origin demeaned themselves blameless-

In process of time a pronouncement was published. The leader in this movement was Vicente Cordova, a man of some means, and considerable influence among his countrymen. The news spread fast. In a few days companies were marching from many counties of eastern Texas. It was the custom in those days for men able to do military duty, to outfit themselves, with arms, ammunition, and provisions. It was usual to meet at the county seat and organize. Elections were primitive affairs. For instance when two candidates were in the field for captain, they were placed some distance apart. At the word 'march' the heads of the respective candidates fell into line by the side of his favorite. A count was made, and the result declared. The captain of the Augustine company was H. W. Augustine.

The different commands were concentrated between Nacogdoches and the Angelina river. We remained in camp about two days. More good feeling and hilarity never prevailed among the citizen-soldiers of any country. Everything was given and taken in good humor. The 'greenies' suffered as usual. A sentinel one night mistook the noise made by a rat, in packing sticks to complete a nest, for the furtive tramp of a savage; and fired. The line of battle was speedily formed—an investigation set on foot, and the truth ascertained. Every once in awhile some one would bawl out—'Who shot the rat?' A multitude of voices would respond—'Purse.' He grew tired of the fun and swore a goodly lot of extra oaths, but the cry ceased not.

'Capt. Augustine's company was ordered to make a reconnaissance between the Angelina and the Neches rivers. The duty was performed without a ny incident occurring of moment. A night alarm caused the command to be placed in line. Lieut. N. K. K. was in charge of the guard. He sported a brigadier general's uniform. He reported—'Something approached a sentinel—he hailed—receiving no answer—he fired. He is sure it was not a woman.' The latter assertion set everyone to laughing; and thus the affair ended.

'It should have been stated previously that Gen. Thomas J. Rusk commanded the whole force. Some field officers were on duty by virtue of their commissions in the militia. Our major was Dr. Alexander G. Hale.

'The line of march was up river to form a junction with the main body. We halted at Lacy's ranch, if memory serves; a large farm on the road from Nacogdoches to Washington on the Brazos. The house was on an elevated spot—overlooking a considerable extent of territory. It is on or near the town of Alto, as the writer has been informed. We remained here about two days. In the evening of the second day news was received that a body of 400 Mexicans and Indians was not far off. That night we moved back on the Nacogdoches road, and encamped in a lot of timber, surrounded by prairie on every side. The position was good for defense, but lacked water. Regularity, order and silence was observed as we marched along by fours. Not many hours before, the road was not sufficiently large to prevent men from falling out of a column of twos. All was quiet during the night.

'The next morning we resumed our march by twos. Very soon a large body of men was seen coming across the prairie in our direction. They were supposed to be enemies. The order was given 'front into line.' We moved at a gallop. An elderly gentleman, Mr. Shofner, seemed to feel the necessity of going into battle with a full stomach. He detached a piece of dried beef from the cantil of his saddle and made a vigorous effort to fill his mouth. The ground was 'sliding,' his horse began stumbling, was unable to recover, and fell a long distance—leaving the rider on the ground behind him. The prostrate man made a desperate effort to finish his meal. It did not take long to learn the force in sight was Gen. Rusk's main command.

'That day or the next the trail of the enemy was followed. The command passed by the house of Bowles, the celebrated Cherokee chief. He was standing at a short distance from his house, a comfortable appearing log cabin, conversing with some of our officers, perhaps Gen. Rusk. An interpreter was present. His face had somewhat the contour of a Caucasian. The nose was rather on the aquiline order. He impressed one with the idea that he possessed force of character, and great firmness. He denied all connections with the movement set on foot by Cordova and his Indian allies. As far as his people were concerned, we were induced to form a different opinion very soon thereafter.

'The enemy moved up country, not far from the valley of the Neches. In time they divided. The Mexicans headed more to the westward. The army followed the trail trending to the right. It grew smaller as we advanced. Men reported Indians traveling on foot to their homes. On reaching the Neches Saline there was scarcely anything visible to follow. The general impression was that the Cherokees, at least, had abandoned the cause of the pronunciamiento, yet the evidences of their hostility were undoubted by us. This caused many a prudent man to consider the danger of having a people, about half civilized, possessing property, arms, and munitions of war; and harboring hereditary enmity to us; living as our near neighbors, really in our midst. It seemed to many very like a situation destined to culminate in bloodshed and disaster, when a fair opportunity presented to inflict them upon us. What was most dreaded was the terrible fate in store for the families exposed to the operations of savage men who would make slaves of their sons and mistresses of their daughters.

'The army disbanded at the Neches Saline. The men turned their faces homewards, with strong presentiments that the enterprise they had undertaken was not abandoned, but suspended, and would be completed ere long, as an act of necessity, of self protection, dictated by imminent, impending dangers.'

FREQUENT DELIVERY OF CREAM VERY IMPORTANT

By BYRON A. BASSEL
 State Department Agriculture

It is very necessary that cream be delivered as often as possible for two important reasons: (1) cream under four days old possesses a natural aromatic flavor that is very desirable and which disappears with age; (2) holding the cream too long results in the development of many off flavors which tend to lower the quality of the product. These two points should be discussed separately.

In regard to the first one, that is, the natural aroma and flavor possessed by cream when it is fresh, it is very important that this virtue of the cream be preserved. Butter made from cream less than four days old and which has been properly cared for, will possess a distinctive natural flavor which cannot be duplicated by any means of processing. Four day delivery coupled with our present method of grading by taste, smell, and sediment tests, would be desirable due to the fact that we would receive the fresh cream with its natural flavor preserved without having any off flavors or odors, and without being grossly contaminated by extraneous matter.

In regard to the second reason for frequent delivery of cream I would like to discuss briefly some of the flavors which develop from holding the cream too long. The discussion of these developed flavors is taken partially from Extension Bulletin No. 109 of the Michigan State College of Agriculture.

High Acid or Rancid Cream: Such cream is very sour and often bitter in taste. It is caused by use of unclean milk pails and dirty separator, by lack of proper cooling, by mixing warm and cold cream together, or by holding at a high temperature.

Yeasty or Foamy Cream: Such cream has a characteristic yeasty pungent smell and fluffy, foamy body. This defect is brought about by uncleanliness, by failure to hold the cream at a low temperature and by exposure of the utensils and cream to dust laden air.

Cheesy Cream: Cheesy cream has the taste and smell of an aged cheddar cheese. Such flavor in cream results from unclean utensils, dirty separator, low butterfat content and to holding the cream for a long period of time.

Bitter Cream: Bitter flavor may result from storing cream at low temperature for a long time or may be a flavor carried over from the milk.

Tallowy Cream: This flavor results from unclean production and holding for a long period of time at a low temperature and especially in the presence of light, particularly the direct rays of the sun.

Fishy Cream: This flavor develops in cream held for a long time at a low temperature and is very objectionable.

Many cream producers have the mistaken idea that holding cream for a long period of time tends to increase the butterfat content. It is true that the butterfat test on a batch of cream held over a period of time will be higher, but this increase in test is due to the evaporation of moisture from the cream and does not mean that the butterfat content is any greater. The butterfat content will remain the same, although there will be a variation in the weight of the cream itself due to evaporation. Delivery as often as possible, at least every four days, will pay the producer dividends because his cream reaching the market will be of high quality and in such condition that a true representative butterfat test can be made on the same.

Other news releases will be sent out at intervals dealing further with the production and marketing of high quality milk and cream.

THE AMERICAN WORKER

A fair deal for labor has always been a cardinal principle in this country.

Temporary economic upheavals should not blind us to the fact that the wages, working conditions and living standards of American workmen, skilled and unskilled, are by far the best in the world.

The labor leader who attempts to stir up dissension in time of crisis, and make impossible demands upon industry, is the honest worker's worst enemy.

A good example of that is provided by a large metal mining company, which, like all such concerns, is finding the sledding hard these days. About 10 per cent of the company's workers belong to a union whose leaders attempted to call a strike which might have deprived the other 90 per cent of their jobs. The union demanded that the company grant a six-hour day, a 30-hour week, the closed shop, a minimum wage of $1.00 per hour for underground workers, and similar things which, in view of conditions, would have bankrupted the company.

Fortunately the strike call failed to carry by a single vote. Had but one man thrown his influence the other way, hundreds of men would now be out of work, because a handful of arrogant labor "leaders" wanted to show their authority.

Members present were Mesdames Oglesby, Blocker, Patterson, Worley, Pope, Bradstreet, Powell and Walker; one new member, Miss Lucille Pope; a visitor, Mrs. N. Pope, and the hostess.

"Last year every time it came a sand storm I would have to take everything out of my closet and dust it," said Geneva McNeill, clothing demonstrator for the Briscoe 4-H club, "but I decided I would make a closet where I would not have to do this."

The first thing Geneva did was paper the walls of her closet with heavy building paper. Then she made three shelves out of an apple box, a shoe rack out of a broom handle, and two hat racks out of a broom handle and bucket lids. She then painted all these fixtures and made a door for the closet, which makes it much better during dusty weather.

In remodeling her closet Margaret Reynolds, first year club member and clothing demonstrator for the Allison 4-H club, has removed boxes of canned fruit that were stored there, made pockets for the door, a shoe rack, six hat racks, a tie rack and then painted these, Margaret said, "The renovation of my closet cost $1.70, but we think that it is worth it."

Dinky

That little rascal, Jackie Cooper, will be at the Rogue, Friday and Saturday to steal your heart away with his youthful antics. If you love your own children, you are sure to love Jackie. He is so human, so real, so all-boy, that you cannot resist him. You will recall seeing him in such pictures as "When a Feller Needs a Friend," and "The Champ." His latest picture goes by the name of "Dinky," and it is sure to cause a national sensation among the theatre-goers. It is a very new picture, and the manager of the Rogue theatre is to be complimented upon his securing such pictures as this one. It is entertainment for the whole family. Also a jam-up, good, two reel comedy featuring Hal LeRoy.

Carnival

That exotic young lady, Sally Eilers, assisted by Lee Tracy and Jimmy (Snuzzle) Durante, will be at the Rogue, Monday and Tuesday in a light rollicking comedy of young folks. The picture is similar in character to State Fair in which Miss Eilers played with Will Rogers and Janet Gaynor. The very title itself, "Carnival," suggests comedy and gaiety. There is not a dull moment in the entire picture, which is sure to please all. Family entertainment. Also Borah Minevitch and his Harmonica Rascals will be there to add to your entertainment.

GOD AND HIS HIGH HATS

by
MRS. WOODBEE UMBLE

"Orders are orders, young man, so what have you to say for yourself?"

The two men faced each other tensely, one in the prime of life, tall, broad shouldered, handsome, whose every attitude was haughty and self-confident; the other old, more than 20 years past his three score years and ten, but straight and kingly in his bearing; his face usually so kindly was now very stern. He did not have to wait long for his answer.

"I have performed all the commands you gave," answered his companion.

"Listen," the old man commanded and there could be heard the unmistakable sound of livestock, "what does that mean?"

"Oh, that! Well you see those cattle and sheep were such high grade stock that the people brought the best home. They will be fine for sacrifice."

"Why have you not obeyed?"

"But I tell you that I have obeyed, but the PEOPLE saved the best to use in the sacrifice."

"To obey is better than sacrifice, to hear and heed God's voice is better than any thing you can GIVE Him."

The younger man made as if to speak but the other thundered, "Silence, let me tell you what the Eternal told me last night." 1 Sam. 15:16 (Moffatts) and as Samuel talked he saw the look of stubborn pride change to repentance and fear. When he spoke again it was to say humbly: "I have sinned. I really did not obey you or God. I was afraid of the people and listened to them. Pardon my sin and come with me that I may worship the Lord."

Samuel shook his head. "It is too late now, Saul. Let's go back and review your life a little and I think you will see the justice of this decision. I would like to go back beyond your day to my own childhood. The man who trained me was as Godly as any one I ever knew, nevertheless, the first time God spoke directly to me was to give me a message of condemnation for him, not for what he had done but for what he had not done. His sons were greedy and selfish. They did not know their father's God, they did not even want to learn about Him. They were grown before I knew them so I do not know how much he tried to control them but I know he did not do his best for if he had God would not have said that he would punish his household because Eli knew his sons were evil and did not correct them. All He told me that night came to pass before many years.

"Never will I forget that day. The Philistines were fighting our people. Poor old Eli, 98 years old, trembling with fear and anxiety, was sitting on a bench by the main highway in order to see any messenger coming. He was not only uneasy for the safety of his two sons but more so for the Ark of the Lord which they had taken with them, lest it be captured. When his worst fears were realized. It was pitiful. He looked stricken when the messenger told him that Hophni and Phenias, his two sons, had been killed but when the man said the Ark had been captured he collapsed and died almost instantly. The fall was fatal because he was old and heavy but I doubt if he would have survived the shock. His daughter-in-law died that night saying over and over "The glory is departed from Israel, the glory is departed from Israel."

"I thought that was the saddest time I could ever know but it was not. There came a day when the people came to me to protest that my own sons were evil. I had not been careless in training them nor ignorant of their failures. How could I have been, with the memories so fresh of my beloved friend's sorrow and death and that of so many of his family. I had hoped responsibility would help them so I appointed them judges to help me but it did not succeed in doing so and the people, already wanting to be like other folks, demanded a king. It seemed more than I could bear. It would have been bad enough at any time to have them turn from God's leadership but to know my sons were partly responsible was heartbreaking. I knew then as I had never thought to know, how Eli felt that day nearly half a century before, although I was far more blessed had he been, because as I prayed to Jehovah He did not condemn me as He had Eli but comforted me instead, by telling me that it was not the people were rejecting but God Himself and assured me He would be with me and them in as far as it was possible to direct a headstrong group.

"You know the result that you were Jehovah's choice of a King. How considerate you were of your father that day that he not be worried about you, how humble you were and hid away and had to be sought when you were crowned, and how the people shouted 'God save the king.' You remember the group that gathered round you and went home with you were men whose hearts God had touched. Your first message to the people was that they rally round 'Saul and Samuel' but before many years you became changed. You even dared offer sacrifice; you, who were not even of the priestly tribe. You dared God but I think you were not of a High Hat attitude and He forebore to punish you then.

"One of the tragic things is your unworthiness of your noble son. It grieves me anew each time I think of Eli's righteous life and the sons that lost the glory of the nation and of my own sons' failure. What would I have given to have had Joel, my first born, as loyal to my ideals and as brave as Jonathan or If Abiah had been as unselfish and as pure and chosen his friends from among those who would have helped lift instead of tear down and their friendships become as beautiful as that of Jonathan and David and to think of your life, blessed as you have been with such a son. Strange how you, as your power increased, lost your appreciation of the power and authority of others, insomuch that you wanted to destroy your usually obedient, pure hearted son because, when he failed to hear your command to refrain from food, he merely tasted a little honey. He had disobeyed YOUR orders and must die but you, knowing God's will, have disregarded it and you seem to think you will get by. YOU WILL NOT. What are you or any other man except creatures of Jehovah? Because man, the handiwork of God, does not fall dead or be instantly, visibly punished by his Creator does not mean man has outgrown Him. He that cutteth out rivers among the rocks and His eye seeth every precious thing." Job 28:10 and 24, 'for He looketh to the ends of the earth and seeth under the whole heavens.' Not even our thoughts 'can be withheld from Thee.' Job 42:2. You cannot expect Him to forgive you again and again and let you remain king. The saddest thing is that you will not suffer alone. Your whole family suffers and your son goes down with you."

Perhaps Saul's repentance was genuine but to keep up appearance seemed his chief concern. 1st Samuel 15:30, 35 nevertheless Samuel mourned for Saul and the Lord repented that He had made Saul king over Israel. Israel's first king a "High Hat."

At the Churches

METHODIST CHURCH
J. EDMUND KIRBY, Pastor

Next Sunday morning at 9:45 the churches of this community will have their doors open for church school and preaching services. For a change let me suggest that some of you get up, oh say, around 8 o'clock, get into your Sunday best and surprise some congregation by your presence. It will be a shock to some of the saints to see YOU come, but don't mind that, it does the saints good to be shocked occasionally. After you have come a number of times the saints will have learned their lesson and will wear their shock absorbers, and will soon get accustomed to your presence.

Seriously, the church has but one mission and that is to serve. This church will appreciate an opportunity to help you, and we invite YOU to be present for our services next Sunday. Come prepared to worship, and to receive spiritual strength which no worldly indulgence can supply.

Why starve your soul? It requires spiritual food the same as your body requires physical food. The world will be a bigger, better, and brighter place if you will but accept the service that the churches have to give.

What Is a Security?

Under the new Texas law regarding the sale of securities, the law includes any form of stocks, bonds, mortgage certificates, any form of commercial paper, any certificate or under a profit sharing or participation agreement, lease or royalty interest in an oil, gas or mining property. In addition there are many lesser known forms of securities.

The Texas Securities law which replaced the old Blue Sky law, on May 23, 1935, is broad in its definition of what constitutes a security, according to Secretary of State Gerald C. Mann.

Before purchasing any form of security, such as those named above, the buyer should determine if the person doing the selling has registered with the secretary of state. Emphasis is placed on the fact that in no case does the State guarantee or endorse any security.

But registration is not the exact of responsibility on the part of the seller. Under the law he may be held accountable for representation as to fact made in the sale of a security.
