School Board Asks Improvement Bonds

Called for July 29 to Vote Upon Issuance of $15,000 Bonds

Meeting in regular session on Friday, July 5, members of the board of trustees of Wheeler Independent school district considered, among other things, a petition signed by citizens of the district asking for bond election, and ordered such bond election to be held on July 29. Approval will be asked by the board at hands of resident qualified taxing voters for authorization to issue bonds in the sum of $15,000 for the purpose of "constructing and equipping public free school buildings of other than wood material."

The election will be held at the school building in Wheeler, with E. T. Coper as judge and Mrs. A. Hunt and Mrs. J. E. Risner, clerks.

Members of the school board are: W. Barr, secretary; J. E. Willard, J. Garrison, S. T. Morgan, H. E. Johnson, Clarence Robison and E. Herd.

Notices for the approaching election were issued by the secretary of the board and posted early this week. Definite outline of just what improvements to the Wheeler school are contemplated has not been made public. However, it is understood that a gymnasium and enlarged domestic science facilities are a part of the plans. Wheeler schools have needed a gymnasium. With present enrollment, the schools require more accommodations to adequately handle the scholastics.

Then, when the additional students coming into the district by consolidation and transfer are taken into consideration, it is almost imperative that arrangements be made for larger quarters in which to house and teach them. Thirty-seven pupils were recently added to the Wheeler district through consolidation with a portion of Porter district, No. 1. And now, as will be noted in an article elsewhere in this issue, County Superintendent B. T. Rucker will present Saturday, to state authority contracts for transfer of pupils from two nearby districts to Wheeler for the coming school year.

Carver expects to have the enterprise open for business by August 1, if not before. He will retail Phillips 66 gasoline and oils.

Adams Grows Fine Onions, Cabbages

That W. W. Adams, county commissioner, living in the southwest part of town, knows how to do other things than "commish" will be fully attested to by the editor of The Times. Last Friday, Adams brought to this office liberal samples of crystal-white Bermuda onions and Early York cabbages grown in his garden. The onions were large and well developed, possessing a mild flavor; while the cabbages (as usually trimmed for market) would weigh over four pounds per head. Remembering the rather unfavorable spring growing season, production of such vegetables is more noteworthy than in a normal year. It is said, hereabouts, that "W. W. rarely misses fire on having a good garden."

Thanks a lot, Commissioner.

ESSLINGER BUYS ALL OF GROCERY

Purchases Houston's Interest In H. & M. Store—Names It the Corner Grocery

Consummation of a transaction was completed Saturday wherein Roy Esslinger purchased the interest of A. P. Houston in the H. & M. Grocery at the southwest corner of the square in this city. Esslinger is now sole owner of the establishment and has changed the name to the Corner Grocery.

The store was formally opened on March 2 by its founders, A. P. Houston and Ray McPherson. Due to the time required by his service station, McPherson disposed of his interest to Esslinger about the middle of May. The store has enjoyed a very satisfactory business since its inception. Now, with full ownership and management vested in Mr. Esslinger, who has a large number of friends and acquaintances in this trade territory, further expansion is expected.

Lester Red and Coy Hix are assisting Esslinger with the operation of the grocery, produce and allied activities.

It is reported that Houston contemplates leaving Wheeler in the near future and is considering a location in Wellington.

County Club Camp Periods Are Named

Women's Group to Meet at Riley's Pool July 16-17; 4-H Camp July 19-20

The annual Women's Home Demonstration club encampment will be held at Riley's swimming pool again this year, the dates being next Tuesday and Wednesday, July 16-17. This is according to announcement made yesterday by Miss Viola Jones, county home demonstration agent.

"This camp," pointed out Miss Jones, "is for home demonstration women. It is one time in the year when they can all be together, forget their troubles, and really enjoy themselves."

Initial assembly hour is at 5 o'clock in the afternoon of July 16. The women are requested to bring their own drinking water. Those who wish to go in swimming should bring their bathing suits.

Recreation will be under supervision of Miss Louise Rislan, Mrs. Zura Bullock and Mrs. C. Bryan Witt, recreation committee of the council. Different clubs will present stunts of various kinds, principally of a historical nature.

The 4-H club encampment, for club boys and girls who have done their required club work, their sponsors and parents, will be held at the John Cornelius farm home on Friday and Saturday, July 19 and 20, beginning in late afternoon of the first day.

Each sponsor is requested to bring a list of club members and be prepared to check same when desired. All members attending the encampment are expected to obey rules and regulations, which must exist in a group of that size. Those attending should bring their supper already prepared; a drinking cup; food for breakfast, and bedding for the night. Bathing suits will be needed this year by all who care for that sport.

Entertainment for the evening will consist of historical stunts, presented by each club. These will be judged and prizes given. Miss Sadie Lee Oliver, home demonstration agent from Hemphill county, will visit the camp and talk to the assemblage about wild flowers.

Camp will break some time before noon on Saturday.

Wheeler County Has Five Gold Star Boys

Sets Record In State for County Without Special Agent—100 for State

Wheeler county's farm youth organization may point with pardonable pride this year to its achievement, when five young men members of 4-H clubs have received the coveted honor of Gold Star boys. It is noteworthy, inasmuch as this is the only county in Texas to show that number of outstanding boys where a special agent is not employed.

Furthermore, only 29 counties in the state succeeded in placing club boys in this selected group. And only one other in the Panhandle, Carson county, achieved the distinction, placing two boys.

The Wheeler county boys, their addresses and the line in which they excelled, follows:

James Passons, Wheeler; beef calf. Bob Tatum, Wheeler; beef calf. R. D. Purnell, Wheeler; beef calf. Richard Lancaster, Mobette; hogs. Lewis Ellison, Shamrock; beef calf.

As will be noticed, four of these hard-working lads are from the northern part of Wheeler county.

Selections are made on the basis of the work done, completeness of records, economy of operation, profit on investment and the leadership of the boys in their home community. This is considered one of the highest honors granted to club boys in Texas and these boys are to be congratulated on having won this distinction.

The 100 outstanding boys together with the 100 outstanding girls are to be given a banquet at the College Annex during Short Course by the Farm and Ranch Publishing company. This will be followed by a candle lighting ceremony at the stadium on Kyle field. During the candle lighting ceremony, Gold Star pins will be awarded to each of the boys and girls participating. An outstanding speaker on boys and girls work has been selected to speak to the group as the concluding number on the program.

Short Course dates this year are July 27 to August 4 and it will be held at College Station.

In addition to the five Gold Star winners, 12 other 4-H club boys of the county have shown notable accomplishments in their work and will be eligible to attend Short Course.

E. C. Martin, state club agent, is anxious that all boys and girls chosen for this honor be present during Short Course to participate in the ceremonies.

Mac's Service Station Offers Free Lemonade

Beverage Will Be Served at Opening In New Location, East Side Square, Saturday

"Come one, come all, and drink free lemonade to celebrate the opening of our service station Saturday in its new location at the east side of the square," invites Ray McPherson, proprietor of Mac's Service station.

As was announced through these columns recently, McPherson decided to vacate his present quarters in the Clay building at the southeast corner of the square, and leased the Gunter building, just north of the Lott hotel. Considerable additional room has been built to accommodate the various departments of the business.

Moving of the station equipment and stock is being made in preparation for the opening Saturday, when the public is invited to call and enjoy ice cold lemonade. Everybody is welcome; men, women and children; no purchases are necessary in order to obtain the free drinks.

"We'll furnish the lemonade and the cups," declares McPherson, "and if any of the boys want to use funnels they'll have to furnish their own."

REPORT SHOWS BUSY YEAR FOR WHEELER COUNTY CLUB WOMEN

Demonstrators and Co-operators Kept Records, Built Closets, Made New and Renovated Garments Valued at Surprisingly Large Aggregate Sum.

That the club women of Wheeler county have been busy is shown by the following report received this week from Viola Jones, County Home Demonstration agent of this county.

The five Class II Wardrobe demonstrators have each kept an individual clothing account of their wardrobes for the past year, and these show that they have spent altogether $227.96 for clothing, which means that on an average they have spent $45.58. There are 18 members in these demonstrators' families. The five mothers have spent $204.88 for clothing, the four fathers $124.71, five boys $79.31, two girls $22.50, and the one baby $6.72. Three coats were bought for $58.85, one coat was made for 20 cents valued at $2.00. The demonstrators had not bought one ready-made cotton dress but had made 36 at a total cost of $18.89, which were valued at $48.25; made 32 undergarments and pajamas

Rucker Summarizes His Office Activities

County Superintendent Reports on Local Education Setup—to Study at A. & M.

Coincident with his departure this morning on a three weeks absence, most of which will be spent at College Station, B. T. Rucker, county superintendent, supplied The Times with a summary of achievements by his office and an outline of future plans. Accompanied by Mrs. Rucker, the first stop will be at Mineral Wells for a brief visit with relatives.

From there Rucker will go to Fort Worth for a conference with Julian Montgomery in regard to securing a 45 per cent grant to aid in building a model home economics cottage and two class rooms at Briscoe. Superintendent Jim H. Dyer of Briscoe, will assist in presenting the application to Montgomery.

On Saturday, Rucker will go to Austin with contracts for transfer of all scholastics of Locust Grove, district No. 19, and Pleasant Hill, district No. 25, to the Wheeler Independent district for the school year of 1935-36. A contract for transferring scholastics of Myrtle, district No. 15, to Allison (Highland) district is also carried by Rucker. These contracts will be presented to the state superintendent for his approval.

Rucker will go from Austin to College Station, where he will be located three weeks while taking a special course for county superintendents at A. & M. college.

The superintendent's report further recites that Porter, district No. 8, was recently divided and portions consolidated with Wheeler, Magic City, Twitty and Plainview, Wheeler receiving approximately 19 sections of land and 37 scholastics.

The board of Wheeler county school trustees, in a series of meetings on May 18, June 27 and July 9, have worked hard to classify the county schools in accordance with state requirements. The board, asserts Rucker's report, is to be complimented upon its untiring effort to the end that Wheeler county boys and girls may have the privilege of graduating from a first class high school after having finished the grades in a standardized grade school.

With only two exceptions, all rural schools finished this year's term with either eight or nine months. The last apportionment of state available funds has been made and should reach the depository within a few days. Next year's apportionment of available funds will be $17.50 per scholastic.

If federal aid is received by those who have applied, the schools of Wheeler county will be in better shape financially than they have been for several years.

"By honest co-operation on the part of school officers, Wheeler county's schools can be made as good as any in the state," declares the report, which concludes with: "We earnestly solicit your co-operation."

FISHERMEN RETURN FROM WEEK'S STAY AT COWLES

Melvin Howe, F. B. Craig, Glen Porter, Wheeler, and Claude Carnes of Shamrock, returned Saturday from a week's outing and fishing trip, spent near Cowles, N. Mex. Nice catches are reported although fishing was not so good as in other years, due to riled and overflowing streams fed by heavy snow deposits in the mountains.

JULY 15 IS DEADLINE FOR POOL CERTIFICATE ACTION

Joe Meharg, assistant cotton control man at the county agent's office, declared today that July 15 is the final date for re-entering exemption certificates left over from last year in the special pool.

Meek Buys Insurance Agency of Weatherly

Completion of the deal is announced today whereby C. J. Meek, manager of the Title Abstract Co., obtains ownership of the local insurance agency operated for some months past by C. R. Weatherly. This line is designed to fit in with the abstract and real estate activities of the Title Abstract company organization.

Weatherly states that he plans to move soon, possibly by Saturday, to Amarillo, where he has accepted management of the branch office of the Mid-Continent Life Insurance company. His duties will necessitate considerable travel over the territory, which includes Wheeler, where he will call at intervals.

Road Building for This Area May Not Come In Some Time

Van Stewart, Perryton Editor, Charges Amarillo Interests With "Hogging" Panhandle Road Program — Scant Hopes for North-South Road to Get Anything in Near Future

Receipt of a wire last week from Van W. Stewart, editor of the Ochiltree County Herald at Perryton, concerning the announced highway improvements as published in an Amarillo newspaper, is acknowledged. The telegram, which arrived too late for use in last week's Times, reads as follows:

Join me in editorial this week protesting Panhandle highway program as announced in Amarillo News of June 29. Six counties out of 28 in the 18th district get the entire allotment. Note all highways to be improved lead to Amarillo. Note no improvement listed for gaps on No. 83. Have commissioner's court and civic organizations protest to highway department and Marvin Jones against Amarillo "hogging" the situation.

VAN W. STEWART,
Perryton, Texas.

Amarillo parties were quick to deny the charges. T. E. Johnson's column in Sunday's issue of the Globe-News made "light" of Stewart's contention, declaring that the Panhandle road building program is not "settled." The writer naively admitted that the designated roads do "happen" to lead to his city, but hotly denied that the program was made up in Amarillo.

His contention is that the program was concocted in Washington and only "concurred in by the Texas highway commission." Johnson asserts that the projects chosen were selected because of their prominence, which is easier to believe than that Amarillo did not materially influence the selection of projects.

Developments since the "grass caught fire" tend to substantiate rather than discredit Stewart's claims. Holding forth as a sop that "further highway developments may be expected in the future," appears to be the best Amarillo partisans have to offer.

Nothing reassuring for this section of the "upper Panhandle" is found

AN INJUSTICE

If what is announced in the Amarillo News of June 29 is true concerning the Panhandle allotment of $2,000,000 is to be spent in six counties on highways leading into Amarillo, and the other 22 counties of the 18th district are to receive none, then a grave injustice has been done the rest of these counties.

We are inclined to believe the Amarillo News is premature in making this announcement, but if such is the case, every civic organization and every commissioner court in each of these 22 counties should enter a strong protest against such allocation, and hold out strongly for their just share of the fund.

While Tulla is in the southern extremity of the Panhandle proper it is classed in the Lubbock highway district, but nevertheless it is in the 18th district and wants to see every county in the district treated fairly, and is strongly opposed to seeing the Amarillo highways receive the entire allotment designated for all of the counties of the Panhandle.

Let's be fair.—Tulla Herald.

in the caustic comment of Carl Hinton, secretary of the Amarillo chamber of commerce, who recently returned from Washington, when he curtly announced:

"If the people of the Panhandle will just 'keep their shirts on' they now have the best opportunity for not only a connected system of federal highways, but also for lateral or farm to market roads. Gaps on highway No. 4 (Texas No. 83 through Wheeler), and on No. 60, west of Hereford are on the program definitely * * * for 1936. But cannot be designated until the money is forthcoming. We do know this—if the USUAL ALLOCATION of federal

BILLS ARE COMING DUE

Have you ever noticed how easy it is to establish a charge or termination account in a department store?

But no matter how easily the credit is obtained, or how small the payments, they come due regularly and if not paid—well, the law just takes its course and the debtor suffers.

The people of the United States are just now waking up to the fact that they have been on a gigantic spending spree. Never did they use their public credit so freely. But the day of reckoning is here. The charge accounts are coming due and the payments will have to be made.

Just as the unwary customer is talked in to spending more than he can afford by the super-selling ability of the expert clerk, so have an unwary people been talked in to spending more than they can well afford to pay, by the silver tongues of the politicians.

In the latter case, however, the people thought they were going to be given something for nothing—that the billions of dollars handed out in the name of "relief" and "recovery" would be taken from somebody else's pocket.

But the dream has ended. The tax-gatherer's hand is going right down into John Jones' pocket to take out the money to pay the charge account, for the "gifts" to Jones.

A new tax-raising bill has been thrown into the lap of congress, that will have a tremendous effect on the earnings, the savings and the estates of every citizen. For camouflage and publicity purposes, it is designated as a "share the wealth" or "soak the rich" tax program. The Portland Oregonian says:

"This is but the beginning. The government Santa Claus is about to be withdrawn. Gradually he is to become overshadowed by another figure. This one will appear to the taxpayer ere he plays out his part, like a government Shylock. There is no other way.

"Good old Uncle Sam is going to make the rich pay and pay. Nothing is said about making other people pay. But that will come later. We are all going to pay—pay through the nose and pay till it hurts, in increased federal taxes down through the lower brackets. Our tax bill during the next generation is going to be a thing high, wide and handsome, and at the same time fearsome. It is not going to fall lightly anywhere. It is going to fall heavily on all who have incomes, in whatever brackets."

Charge accounts of the government (tax bills) become due just as do charge accounts of stores (private bills). There is no difference whatever in principle—but there is a great difference in fact, in that the government, if you fail to pay your tax bill, can use more harsh and ruinous methods on the individual to force payment than can the private store. There is no leniency shown by the tax collector. He collects your taxes, or he takes your property.

and property damage, amounted to three and a half billion dollars.

Accidents are responsible for more deaths to persons between the ages of five and nineteen than any other cause. Among persons of all ages, only three diseases result in more deaths than do accidents.

These are facts that should make the public pause, think and remember. The waste of accidents, both in lives and materials, is complete and irrevocable. It cannot be repaired. And it is almost entirely unnecessary.

Of all forms of accidents, those caused by the automobile are of course the most serious. Between 1913 and 1934 motor vehicle deaths increased from 4,227 to 36,000 a year, while other kinds of accidents dropped from 78,233 to 65,000. That is largely due to the increased number of cars in use—but the fact remains that at present motor accidents per thousand gallons of gasoline consumed, are on the rise. The reckless driver is becoming more reckless—the incompetent driver is becoming still more of a menace to all who use the streets and highways.

The automobile accident record is in striking contrast to that of industry, which has made magnificent progress in reducing both the severity and frequency of accidents in even the most hazardous factory operations. The war on accidents is every citizen's war, and every citizen should "join the colors." Thousands of lives, to say nothing of billions of dollars, are at stake—and your life and your dollars are among them.

GOLIATHS AND DUMB ONES

While the Goliaths toss uneasy in their swivel chairs, there are small Davids in the backyards of business trying out their slingshots, and some of them are getting to be pretty good, a recent "food for thought" item in a house organ avers. Right now is a great time for a dumb guy who doesn't know anything about the gold standard, the profit motive, taxation, inflation and such to be afraid. Great times for men who know only enough to believe and try and keep working!

Nothing can stop the economic tide that is sweeping in—nobody's administration nor drouth. Starved markets, pent-up demands and desires of long, fearsome years, all combine to make reaction to economic laws as certain as certain. Great times ahead for the dumb cluck.—Floyd County Hesperian.

PROMOTING CONFIDENCE

In its current monthly survey, the Guaranty Trust company of New York says the death of NRA has helped free business of the fear of punitive measures and has promoted confidence that is the foundation stone of recovery.

"The attitude of government toward business should be one of constructive assistance, not one of restriction," it stated.

"The time has arrived not to alter our constitution but to permit business to solve its own problems, as it has in past depressions, free from political domination that has spread uncertainty, undermined confidence, and brought discouragement.

"Certainly by this time it should be realized that the government's hurriedly conceived plans to accomplish both recovery and reform by the same stroke not only have been unsuccessful but have led to such confusion and have so weakened the confidence of business men that they have largely defeated their own purposes and have prevented natural recuperative forces from asserting themselves.

"It is also time for the people of the nation to call a halt to reckless government spending.—We have had two years of planned economy and wholesale government spending, which have discouraged initiative and private business and have placed heavy burdens, present and future, on the shoulders of the taxpayers.

"In proportion to the cost the gains in business during the last few years have been exceedingly small.

"To what extent private business will be permitted to play a leading role in the process of recovery depends, of course, on future legislation; and the more cautiously the government proceeds, the more confidently private business will go ahead."

The survey characterized the supreme court's recent ruling as "one of the momentous decisions of the court's history. It reaffirmed the fundamental principles upon which this nation was founded and gave assurance that bureaucratic planned economy cannot prevail against the constitution.

"Unless further restrictive legislation is attempted in defiance of the principles laid down by the supreme court, natural recuperative forces may assert themselves with less hindrance than in the recent past."

The shortest wheat harvest in recent history has started in Deaf Smith county. Last Saturday J. W. Alexander brought the first load of the golden grain to the city, delivering it to the Pitman elevator. Alexander's grain, grown on an irrigated tract, tested 62½ pounds to the bushel and brought him a premium of 15 cents per bushel, making the selling price 87 cents.—Hereford Brand.

The new state makers are busy again. They would take 46 counties in the Texas Panhandle and 23 counties of the Oklahoma Panhandle and make a state which they would call Texlahoma—a good sounding name. Texas and Oklahoma lawmakers probably will smile at the plan described, as they have at many others submitted.—Miami Chief.

Last week Gus Gunstenson, who lives three and one-half miles east of Wellington, found that his windmill had mysteriously stopped pumping water. He pulled the pipe and found a horned frog in the bottom of the work barrel. Gunstenson said that about half of the frog's body had been forced through the small opening about the size of a pencil. The well is about 40 feet deep and the frog was trapped in the end of the barrel about 20 feet under water. Gunstenson is puzzled as to how the frog ever became trapped in the barrel at this depth.—Wellington Leader.

Who Do You Want to Drink It?

Recently a minister and a business man were talking and the latter said, "Well, I think we must let liquor stay for a while longer, and it will bring its own doom, and then the people will rise up and vote it out again."

He was asked, "Well, brother, who is to drink it? Are you going to drink it?" He said, "No, you know I am a teetotaler, and would never touch the dirty stuff."

"Well then, have you a wife who is going to drink it?"

"Of course not; she hates it too."

"Well, you have a son and a daughter who will drink it?"

"Indeed I have not. It would be the last thing I would want my child to do."

"Well, then do you want your employes to drink it?"

"No, indeed, for I would discharge any one of them who drank."

"Well, do you want the man who owes you an account to take the money that rightfully belongs to you and spend it for liquor?"

"No, and I would not give credit to that man any longer if he did."

"Well, would you like for the engineer on the train which you ride to drink it?"

"Of course not. I would never ride on a train if I knew the engineer would be allowed to touch a drop."

"Well, then, would you want to meet a drunk man driving his car on the highway?"

"I would want to go in the other direction."

"Well, let's see, who would you like to see drink it?"

He answered, "Well, I admit it is so bad, I do not want anyone to drink it. I WILL STOP IT RIGHT NOW AND VOTE AGAINST IT AND NOT WAIT ANY LONGER. I have seen enough of its evil!"

THE PANHANDLE

I followed the trail of the pioneer,
It led to a primitive land
Where the wild mustang and long-horn steer—
Where antelope and fleet-footed deer
Then roamed these hills and plains.
Here buffalo bones by the thousands lay—
Just mute remains of those great herds
That grazed this land from its early day,
Till selfish men did wilfully slay
All but those that Goodnight saved.
And the panther here, on his nightly prowl,
Would strive to kill his hapless prey;
While the big gray wolf would likewise prowl
And rend the air with fearful howl;
But the cowmen came to stay.
A vision was born in his noble heart,
When he came to these hills and plains:
An empire, here, he would boldly start,
Believing others would soon take part,
And build where millions could live.
That vision came true, after years of toil,
For the Panhandle has today:
Numberless farms with deep fertile soil;
Numberless wells with rich flowing oil,
And cities and towns worth while.
—JOHN B. VANNY,
McLean, Texas

Kentucky Kernels

It has been a long time since Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey have visited in Wheeler. However, you will remember them as an ace high comedy team. Their latest picture, Kentucky Kernels, which comes to the Rogue, Friday and Saturday is guaranteed to be one of the funniest and best from this team. If you do not get plenty of laughs from this one it will be just because you CAN'T LAUGH. You will only have to imagine Bert and Robert as two blue-blooded aristocrats from 'Ole Kentucky' and then you will know that you cannot miss this one. Then, there is that adorable Spanky of Our Gang Comedies who all but steals the show from the boys. He, alone, will be worth the price of admission. And to round out the program, that stuttering printer of Cimarron, Roscoe Ates, will entertain you in a two

Roberta

Here is the one you have been waiting to see. You saw Gay Divorcee. You liked it. Fred and Ginger were swell. Horton was a scream. The whole show was a wow. And now comes Fred, Ginger, Edward, and Irene Dunne in "Roberta" which is just as good as the former, and some who have seen it say that it is better. Now, personally, we do not see how that could be possible. But be that as it may, we do know that it is good, clean, wholesome entertainment. It is a show of shows, and will please all who see it. To miss it would be one regret of a well spent life. And further, there will be a negro vaudeville in technicolor, which will be well worth your while. Aw flooie—we forgot to tell you the date is next Monday and Tuesday at the Rogue. Now wasn't that dumb?

Gunter Finds Lost Pen Quickly at Small Cost Through Use of a Wheeler Times Wantad

A wantad, run one week at cost of 15 cents, recovers a $10.00 fountain pen

Effectiveness of advertising in this NEWSPAPER is again fully demonstrated

During the spring term of district court, Terrill Gunter, deputy in the collector's office, lost a $10.00 lifetime Sheaffer fountain pen on the streets of Wheeler. Due to an error in imprinting his name on the pen it read "T. L. Cutler" instead of "T. L. Gunter." A local citizen, J. N. Green, found the pen. Not knowing anyone by the name of Cutler, Mr. Green assumed it belonged to a stranger who might have been passing through. Had he known it belonged to Mr. Gunter he would have returned it promptly, of course.

Because the 4th fell on Thursday, The Times was issued a day early, going into the postoffice Wednesday night and to city subscribers early Thursday morning. Mr. Green took his paper home and read it, noting the wantad column, as so many people do. Friday he called on Mr. Gunter and said: "I saw your advertisement. Here's the pen."

Last Tuesday, after the loss of another pen, Mr. Gunter asked a representative of The Times if we thought a wantad might locate the lost articles. He was informed that results couldn't be guaranteed, but the paper would do its best. Gunter wasn't too optimistic but said he was willing to "try it once, anyway," since the cost would only be 15 cents.

Now The Times submits, with becoming modesty, that the foregoing is a case of GETTING RESULTS. The paper has always maintained—and expects to continue to do so—that NEWSPAPER advertising . . . in The Wheeler Times . . . does GET RESULTS. Naturally, results cannot always be expected so quickly and so definitely as in the instance above mentioned, but this newspaper—with its almost 100% coverage in the city together with its splendid rural circulation—affords the BEST means for display and wantad advertising to be found in northern Wheeler county.

If you, dear reader, want to buy, sell or rent; if you have lost or found something; if you have something that is sakable which you no longer have use for, why don't you try a wantad—at 5c per line—in

WINTER RANGE

By ALAN LE MAY

WNU SERVICE

THE STORY THUS FAR

CHAPTER I—Kentucky Jones, veterinarian, attends the inquest, in the town of Waterman, into the death of John Mason, banker and financial mainstay of the district, which supposed to have been accidental. The daughter of Campo Ragland, owner of the Bar Hook ranch, where she met death, to Kentucky's mysterious death, to Kentucky's mysterious death, to Kentucky's mysterious death.

CHAPTER II—The verdict is accidental death. Sheriff Hopper, apparently dissatisfied, invited Jones, known for his shrewdness, to investigate the case. Jones has decided to do that on his own hook and refuses to work with the sheriff. Bob Elliott, owner of the "88" ranch, adjoining the Bar Hook, apparently saw Jean pass the night before, and starts an altercation. Jones knocks him out.

CHAPTER III—Bob Elliott, with a lawyer, drives his cattle on the Bar Hook range. Lee Bishop, Ragland's ranch boss, expostulates, and McCord, Elliott's foreman, insults him. Presently the insult was an excuse for him in "self defense," but Bishop is warned and a tragedy is threatened.

CHAPTER IV—Reporting Elliott's taking his cattle onto the Bar Hook range, Bishop and Jones are astounded by Ragland's indifference. Bishop urges Ragland to try to influence Jean to leave her father. Jones, sensing that the girl is, for some reason, under a severe strain, offers sympathy. He tells her Elliott was the one who pulled the trigger at the ranch, which Jones has got rid of. The reaction mystifies him. Zack Sanders, who look at the Bar Hook ranch, is dead, evidently murdered.

CHAPTER V—Sheriff Hopper, investigating Sanders' death, announces knowledge that Mason also was killed. Circumstances would seem to involve Zack Jones in the crime. Jean Sanders shows evidence of the strain under, but despite their increased affection for each other, she hesitates to give Kentucky her confidence.

CHAPTER VI

It stood alone, the shooting of Zack Sanders, a crippled ranch cook, who had passed with little notice. The obvious—and at the same time extremely elusive—connection between the killing of Sanders and the death of John Mason stirred new talk throughout the length of the rimrock. Even while it was generally supposed that Mason had died by the accidental discharge of his own gun, a member of the rimrock cattlemen had been stormy and insecure. Now suddenly they were asked to accept the news that Mason's death had been no accident; that the redoubtable Old Ironsides had been murdered by parties unknown.

Twenty-four hours after Lee Bishop discovered the body of Zack Sanders under the snow, the whole rimrock knew both the discovery and its meaning. Fully as many people turned into Waterman for the inquest upon the shooting of Zack Sanders as had gathered for the Mason inquest. But this time the people showed a different mood. The death of Mason had left the cattle people stable, but dazed and uncertain. The proof of murder turned them into a revelation to arouse a certain amount of criticism and dispute; but had under-estimated the difficulty of this position at least 75 per cent.

There had sprung up among the cattlemen themselves an even more uncertain situation. The circumstances of Mason's murder had made the Bar Hook the focal point of the general disaster. The inquest's prompt and bold decision of Elliott's threatened 88 now promised to make the Bar Hook the focal point of the sequel. Whatever could be said against Bob Elliott, he was showing now that he could make a killing that popped like a black-and-white whip. The 88's first drive of the winter was already spread all over the hills of the Bar Hook range, cutting heavily upon the feed that the Bar Hook Herefords would need long before the spring. At present, of all times in his career, Campo Ragland chose this to go into the feed. It appeared to be a black and white funk. The boss of the Bar Hook was habitually red-eyed now, and the curve of his forehead was no longer a bland majestic sweep. He looked as if he might at any moment spit red hot pebbles. Campo's unaccountable vacillation was breaking the morale of his riders.

The day after the inquest Kentucky Jones came in. "Are the others back?"

"Not yet," she commanded. "Come here," she commanded. "I have to talk to you."

"Just a second." He went to the phone and belled the gunsmith at Waterman.

Old Mark Ferris, Wolf Bench gunsmith for more than twenty years, knew most of the guns in the Waterman rimrock; and Kentucky had talked to him the day before in an effort to trace the ownership of the gun found in Zack Sanders' hand. It had seemed to him odd that Zack, who owned no gun belt, should have been led to wonder if Zack could have been forewarned, and had perhaps borrowed the weapon. If this were true he wanted to know whose gun Zack had borrowed. Therefore he had set Ferris searching through his records for the serial number of the questioned gun, in hope that the old gunsmith could recall to whom the gun had been sold.

Presently Mark Ferris' voice came over the wire, querulous and faint, "I can't find any record of that gun," he said. "I don't believe I ever sold that gun, Kentucky."

"You must have sold it," Kentucky insisted. "Look here Ferris—this is no joke! Look again, will you?"

"All right."

Kentucky hung up and went to sit opposite Jean at the table where she was at work.

"I suppose by this time," she began, you have no end of theories about what happened here."

"I used to know an old lion hunter, name of Old Man Coffee," Kentucky told her. "Whenever a killing or something had everybody else balled up, they used to send for Old Man Coffee. He didn't always unravel the trail; but he seemed to see through a lot of things that fooled other folks. And I once asked him how he did it."

"He said he made things easy for himself by never having a theory—he just kept hunting up facts, and when he had enough to give him the answer there wasn't any theory about it—he knew. Me, I think Old Man Coffee's way was a good way."

She stopped work and studied him. "I can't make you out," she said at last. "You mean—you have no idea of your own who killed Mason—or Zack Sanders—or why?"

"Child," he said, "how long is it going to be before you tell somebody—anybody—what you know?"

She looked at him suddenly as she answered; and he knew that she lied to him, bravely, and with open eyes. "I haven't the least idea what you mean," she said.

"All right. But I ought to tell you this—if I stay here much longer, I'll know who killed Mason—and why."

"You—you're sure of that?"

"The facts I have are very few," he said. "I don't know where they lead. But already I know they lead a clear straight trail. The facts are too distinct and clear to be pointing more than one way. Those two men killed at the same time, but by two different calibers of guns; this house being searched; the fact that the two were killed at almost the same time, but were found lying nearly sixty yards apart—each thing stands out sharp as the slot of a deer in the snow. When those facts are finally fitted together nobody will ever be able to blur them so that there's any doubt."

"If you're going to turn yourself into a spy—" Jean began hotly. She stopped, checked by the steadiness of his regard.

Kentucky Jones said gently, "Who are you shielding, Jean?"

She straightened and stood looking out through the clear space in the middle of the frosted pane. Her face was passive, but her head was up with a fine proud carriage, and her hair was smoky flame. "I'm glad it's over with," she said at last. "Sooner or later you were bound to ask that, of course."

"I'm sorry, Jean." She looked at him hard. "It's nearly noon," she said. "In a few minutes the riders will be coming in. Tell me this, Kentucky; if you were boss of the Bar Hook, could you save the brand?"

"I only know one way. It's a way that most men would hesitate to take."

"And what is that?"

"To feed Elliot his own medicine. It would mean more riders; all of them tough, trouble-hunting men. It would be their job to run those 88 brand cattle back where they came from; and run them again next week, and the week after, and every time they come—run them till their bones rattle, and half of them are muzzled-down in the snow. But if a man thinks he might be squeamish about seeing empty saddles come in—then he might better hesitate some, before he takes that way."

"Would you?" she asked him. "Would you hesitate?"

"If it was my brand—no."

"Listen." She leaned toward him, her hands on the table. "My father isn't going to fight."

"Not now, you mean?"

"Not now, nor later, nor ever."

"Jean," said Kentucky, "is it you that's keeping him from making his fight?"

She hesitated, as if she truly did not know how to answer. "Yes," she said uncertainly at last. Then after a moment she changed it. "No," she said. "I kept Campo out of a fight once; maybe it was a fight that he should have made. But it's out of my hands now, Kentucky."

"You sure don't give me much to go on," Kentucky said. "But I'll say this: if ever he's going to make his fight, now is the time; every day that he puts it off makes it harder in every way. If he puts it off long enough Elliot will have every chance to win."

A look of forlorn desperation came into her face. "If the Bar Hook was in your hands—do you think you could make a fight that would stand Elliot off?"

"Are You Trying to Sell Me the Bar Hook?"

"Are you trying to sell me the Bar Hook?"

"What good would that do? There isn't a cattleman in the world who would be fool enough to buy the outfit now. But even if we did sell it, that would be almost as bad as to lose it altogether. Campo is rooted too deep in Wolf Bench cattle. If he loses the Bar Hook he'll never amount to anything again. You can't understand that, for you've never taken root. But Campo—I'd almost as soon see him dead."

"Then—?"

"Listen," she said intensely. She dropped her elbows to the table, bringing her face nearer his; and her words came tumbling out in an intense whisper. "I own a fifth share of the Bar Hook, in my own name. There's no question of selling the brand. But I could sell you my fifth share. Take it in the form of so many hundred grade steers—you to make the cut; or in any form you want. Would you take it?"

He stilled for time, puzzled. "How much are you asking?" he said.

"One dollar," Jean answered.

He stared at her. "And a string to it?"

"This delivery will not be until next spring; and the cut will be based upon the valuation of the cattle on the range at that time."

He rolled a cigarette, considering. "See if I get this straight," he said. "You're offering me your share of the Bar Hook to make the fight that your father won't make—or can't make. Is that it?"

"Yes," she said. She was very pale. "Lee Bishop can't do anything—he's just a hired foreman and can only carry out Campo's orders. But if you own part of the cattle, with winter grazing rights on the Bar Hook range—then you're justified in protecting your own interests, even though Campo doesn't defend his. I don't think Bob Elliott will fight; I think he'll let his cattle drift back to their home range. But first he has to know he's up against a man that will fight him clear into the ground."

Kentucky sat studying the slow blue tendrils of smoke from his cigarette. "The deal won't be questioned," Jean said. "You're known to have enough money to buy into a brand if you want to. And nobody can look at you without knowing that whatever you set your hand to you'll fight through some way—maybe just for the love of fighting, for all I know."

Kentucky Jones grinned, but the grin was very faint. He was pitying the girl as he had never pitied anyone in his life. There was a forlorn desperation about her scheme which told him, better than anything else could have done, how heavily events had pressed down upon this girl. In effect, Jean Ragland was offering him all the tangible assets which she controlled to serve as a gun-fighter, and a leader of gun-fighters. Yet to the best of his belief she was justified. There was nothing imaginary about the encroachment of Elliot; and if Campo persisted in his unaccountable state of paralysis the Bar Hook brand was done.

"What's Campo going to say to this?" he asked her.

"I'll take care of Campo."

Kentucky Jones found himself deeply stirred. Yet he would have thought himself a fool if he had accepted such a proposition only to please Jean. One consideration alone urged him to agree. He was anxious to talk to Bob Elliott; and he felt that the basis she suggested would give him every advantage in this.

"I'm not going to turn you down," he said at last. "But I can accept only on certain conditions. First, that too strenuous an objection is not made by your father. Another is that if Campo Ragland later decides to make his own fight, or if for any other reason I'm no longer needed, then I can withdraw, and the deal is off."

"I accept that," she said.

"Another condition is that the price of one dollar be changed to read: 'One dollar and such other consideration as the buyer shall consider proper, according to the state of the market upon delivery.'"

She objected vigorously to that; but since at worst it conceded him what profit he might consider justified, she at length gave in. She offered him her hand, closing a bargain which placed him in the most curious position he ever had occupied in his life.

"Jean," he said. "I'm going to ask you one question, and I want you to answer it. Do you know who killed John Mason?"

"No," she said instantly. "Kentucky, I swear that I don't know that! I thought I knew, until Zack Sanders was found; but now I'm just as sure that I was wrong."

"I won't try to get you to tell me," he said, "what you evidently don't want me to know. But, Jean, I tell you this: the time may come when I'll need your help and need it bad. When that time comes, I want you to remember that perhaps I wouldn't be in this if you hadn't asked me in."

"I won't forget."

He got up and jerked on his coat. "I'm going to see Bob Elliott," he told her.

The back of her hand flew to her mouth. "Now?" she said faintly.

"It's as good a time as any, isn't it?"

Jean Ragland turned white. "Then go on. You—I guess you know I wish you luck."

"I might need it," he admitted.

As he reached the door she suddenly called his name, and he turned back. She was staring after him, white-faced. "Are—will you be armed?"

"I don't know. We'll see."

He was wondering, as he saddled a fresh pony, if she had commissioned him to kill Bob Elliott.

The buildings of the 88 were made variously of adobe, clapboards, and square-hewn logs.

Bill McCord stood in the doorway of the barn as Kentucky Jones came up. Kentucky had a feeling that he had been seen and watched from a long way off.

"You want to see me?" McCord asked.

"I'll talk to your boss, if he's here."

Bill McCord rolled a crooked cigarette from one corner of his mouth to the other. "All right. He's up at the house." He did not offer any accommodations for Kentucky's horse.

Kentucky rode to what appeared to be the main door of a squat adobe which a glance of McCord's eye had indicated. The door opened as he pulled up, and Bob Elliott stood there, looking at him without expression.

"Hello, Bob," Kentucky said.

Bob Elliott leaned against the side of the doorway, lean-shouldered, straight-backed, looking competent and tall. "It seems very peculiar," he said with casual frostiness, "to see you here."

"I suppose so," said Kentucky, swinging down without invitation. "Are you going to ask me in or not?"

"I hadn't thought of it," said Elliott; "is there any special call for it?"

"There is."

"Let's hear what your business is, then."

"It's a little matter of range rights," Kentucky told him.

"In that case," said Elliott, "go back and tell your boss you fell down. I understand my rights on the Bake Pan, and Wolf Bench, too, just as well as he does. And when he wants to talk to me he can come himself!"

"Ragland," said Kentucky, "can speak on his own behalf, what and where he wants to, without advice from me—or from you either. It happens that this time I'm speaking for myself. I came over to tell you that I've bought a fifth interest in the Bar Hook."

Bob Elliott's face went blank with perfectly real astonishment. "You bought a—what?"

"You heard me, I think."

Bob Elliott stared at him for a moment more. "Come in here," he said at last. He turned his back and walked into the house; and Kentucky followed him. "I thought I understood you to say you'd bought into the Bar Hook," said Elliott as soon as the door was shut. "Now what in all h—I can be your idea in that?"

"I was able to buy some hundreds of head of Bar Hook cattle at a very favorable price," Kentucky told him. "I'll make something on those cattle in the spring."

"In the spring," Elliott repeated. "And where did you expect to hold them through the winter?"

"Right where they are."

Bob Elliott stared at him again while this soaked in. Then abruptly, unexpectedly, he turned away from Kentucky Jones and began to laugh, as Kentucky had seen him laugh before in Sheriff Hopper's office at Waterman. He pressed the back of his hand to his mouth and seemed to fight the paroxysm, which shook him as if he had been trying to strangle a fit of coughing. "This is rich," he said at last. "Nothing trivial about this transaction, I hope?"

"Hardly."

"So now naturally you want to talk to me."

"Naturally. Both technically and practically, for the time being I am a part owner of the Bar Hook. More particularly as regards the Bar Hook grazing rights."

"In short," said Elliott, "what you came here to tell me is that your share in the Bar Hook is a fighting share."

"You can call it that."

Bob Elliott lighted a tailor-made cigarette. The ironically humorous glance of his frosty blue eyes had a snap like the flick of a whip. "That girl certainly got you in for something," he said.

"Yes?" Kentucky Jones smiled on one side of his mouth. Until now neither had mentioned the incident in the sheriff's office which had terminated when Kentucky Jones had knocked Bob Elliott out. He held his peace, and began the making of a cigarette; but he thought that Elliott must have known what was in his mind.

"I'll tell you a couple of things for your own good," Bob Elliott went on. "You're butting into a situation that you know very little about, Jones. You seem to think that this little difference of opinion that's coming up now between me and Ragland is something new. It isn't. We've had it all the time. Even without this new crisis brought on by Mason's death, there never could have been room for both the Bar Hook and the 88, in the long run. Sooner or later one or the other would have had to go. Up until now I've been willing to give Ragland a break for the sake of the peace. It just happens that the way things fall out I'm not able to baby him any more. Don't you forget for a minute that the land in question is public domain."

"And that you're entitled to graze half way from you water to his. You'll have to govern your cattle count by that; and we don't want to see one head more."

Elliott made an impatient gesture with his cigarette. "It'll be a long day," he said contemptuously, "when you tell me something about the cattle business in the rimrock, Jones. If you think Ragland has a case—ask Campo why he's sitting back in his corner, and sending you to make his bluff. Ask him. You might find out something you need to know."

Kentucky Jones shrugged. "I can't speak for what Campo will do. I've bought in on the understanding that the land my cattle are on is Bar Hook range—has always been Bar Hook range. I'll tell you straight out, Elliott—I don't mean to have that range forced. And if I have to take my boys and ram your stock right back down your throat, in order to hold my graze, stand from under! It's up to you."

Bob Elliott eyed him speculatively. "I don't think that you're going to make much of a war on the 88."

"I'll make what push I need to, no more—and no less."

Elliott allowed himself a faint smile. "I suppose you know you'll have to fight Campo himself, first?"

"What makes you think so?"

"For one thing," Elliott told him, "because when you hooked up with Campo Ragland you hooked up with a yellow quitter."

"I reckon," said Kentucky, "you might not be so quick to say that to Campo's face."

"You think not? I'll tell you one more thing you don't know about. I understand that you heard Bill McCord cuss out Lee Bishop, and send him home with his tail between his legs. Well, you can take it that Bill was only copying after his boss. Because this range has seen the day when I sent Campo Ragland home with his tail between his legs, under much the same circumstances. And that wasn't so long ago. Not so long ago!"

"This gets no place," said Kentucky. "I told you what I came to tell you—that lets me out. From now on look to yourself. And don't drive cattle into Bar Hook range—my range—without expecting them to come right home to roost in a cloud of yells."

"Suits me," Elliott agreed. "Don't think I've forgotten the sore jaw you gave me in that run-in at Waterman. God knows I never hoped for such a chance to smash the two of you at once!"

Kentucky Jones grinned and turned to the door. "That's what I like to hear!" He stepped out to his horse and threw the reins over the animal's head.

"Go tell that girl," said Elliott from the door, "that her father can't hide behind you this trip—you ain't big enough in size. And—try to make her tell you what she knows!"

Kentucky was ready to admit—to himself—that that parting shot went home. What he could not escape from was the sure knowledge that Jean Ragland did know something, perhaps several things, which he should have known. But he returned Bob Elliott's sardonic grin.

"Come and see me some time," he said; and he went away from there.

ROAD BUILDING FOR THIS AREA MAY NOT COME IN SOME TIME

funds is made for 1936 then No. 60 will be on the program." All of which proves that things are "settled" for the present and slim hopes of further projects appear in the near future, unless a change can be effected in the announced program.

But the people who have been left out at the "melon cutting" are not going to "keep their shirts on" without protest. Even though Hinton asserts he met with the federal bureau and declares that "no one, not even the Texas highway commission, can tell the bureau what roads to pave." All of which sounds like a specious alibi, since the gentleman must not have even said a word about gobbling the gravy for his special ballwick.

A group of interested men from six counties in this region met last Friday at Canadian to discuss the road situation. Harsh criticism of the announced program was leveled at state and federal highway departments upon their apparent intention of spending the whole $2,000,000 in six counties and none in the remaining 22 of the district.

Strong resolutions, copies of which were to be delivered to the state highway department, Congressman Marvin Jones and Senators Connally and Sheppard, were adopted at the Canadian meeting.

HOW COME?

It would seem those responsible for the 2-million dollar road program, outlined at Amarillo last week, considered six counties out of 28 sufficient as representative of this district and therefore should receive the entire road allotment.

There is an animal that takes all it can get regardless of how the other fellow comes out. We would not call anyone by that name, but certain folks appear sometimes to have similar qualities.

If you read the story carried in the Amarillo News last Saturday, concerning the road program, it will become apparent that roads leading into Amarillo were given all the consideration. A transcontinental highway, like U. S. No. 83, was not mentioned. For that matter no gap in this section of the Panhandle was given a line.

The comeback, we suppose, will be that you are getting an underpass, so why cry? Yes, we have been getting the underpass for a long time and it is an old project that we obtained by our own hard work.

As for Hemphill county giving up state highway designations without careful consideration, we recommend that thoughtful consideration be given the matter before any action

EPWORTH LEAGUE SUBJECT IS "LIFE MORE ABUNDANT"

"Life More Abundant" was the topic for discussion at the regular meeting of the Epworth League in the basement of the Methodist church last Sunday evening. Bonnie Adams, leader for the evening, gave the call to worship: "Lost yesterday, between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, for they are gone forever."

Before Ruth Barr gave the scripture reading, the song, "This is My Father's World," was sung, with Mrs. C. J. Meek leading and Helen Gilmore at the piano. Talks for the evening were "More Time on Your Hands," discussed by Kilborn Bowers; "Your Leisure Time Reveals What You Are," Joe Meek; "Do I Live Abundantly in My Leisure Time," Annie Mae Green, and "What Can a Person Do?" Wayland Merriam. Rev. J. Edmund Kirby led the group in prayer, followed by the song, "Work For the Night is Coming," and the league benediction.

Dreaded Araneida Found In Wheeler

Hold on, now; nothing to get alarmed about, even if that terrible sounding word (found in the dictionary) does mean the black widow spider. Not to be outdone by other communities, however, Wheeler has stepped into the limelight this week with two full-grown specimens of the alleged deadly spider and what looks a "jillion" little ones.

Billy Wiley brought to The Times office a grown spider Tuesday, which had been captured near the Wiley home. Harry Garrison has on display at his station an old spider and hundreds of little ones found near his home and safely enclosed in a glass jar. The baby critters emerged from a large case or container discovered close by where the adult was located.

BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL WOMEN INSTALL OFFICERS

Pioneer City Woman Passes Away July 4

Mrs. W. E. Pennington, Resident of Wheeler for 26 Years, Dies After Long Illness

Mrs. W. E. Pennington, 67, passed away Thursday night, July 4, at her home in the east part of town after an illness of several years. She had been confined to her home since October, and seriously ill for the past two months. She was a pioneer citizen of Wheeler, having moved here with her family 26 years ago.

Sarah Parthena Pryor was born in Giles county, Tenn., May 2, 1868, and died at Wheeler, Texas, July 4, 1935, at the age of 67 years, two months and two days. She was married to W. E. Pennington July 20, 1894, at Needmore, Okla. To this union were born three sons, Wayne, Floyd and Lloyd, two of whom, Wayne and Lloyd, preceded the mother in death.

Mrs. Pennington lived an exemplary Christian life. She not only enjoyed attending services at the church of her choice, the Baptist, but was found wherever the gospel was being preached, when her health permitted. She was a devoted wife, a gentle and loving mother, loved and respected by all who knew her. During her long illness and suffering she displayed the highest type of Christian fortitude, maintaining a cheerful attitude and steadfast faith in her Redeemer.

Surviving relatives are the faithful husband, a son, Floyd, and grandson, W. E. Pennington of Wheeler; two sisters, Mrs. Alice Hicks of Tennessee and Mrs. Nannie Azbell of Alabama; also many other more distant kin and a host of friends who mourn her passing.

Funeral services were conducted from the Baptist church Friday afternoon by Rev. A. C. Wood, assisted by Rev. Taft Holloway, the pastor. Two request numbers, "Never Grow Old," by Mrs. Bill Perrin, Mrs. Lee Guthrie, A. C. Wood and Taft Holloway, and "The City Four-square," by Miss Lillian Wood and Mrs. Bill Perrin were rendered.

Members of her Sunday school class in charge of the flowers were Mesdames Minnie Farmer, C. N. Wofford, M. L. Gunter, S. M. Lessor, J. N. Green, J. H. Richards and R. A. Lyle, Wheeler, and Mrs. J. R. Carver, Shamrock. Pall bearers were H. M. Wiley, Fred Farmer, G. O. McCrohan, M. V. Sanders, Roy Puckett and J. N. Green.

Interment was made in the Wheeler cemetery under the direction of the Clay & Beasley Funeral home.

The following poem, highly prized by Mrs. Pennington, was read at the funeral:

WE'VE TRAVELED TOGETHER, MY BIBLE AND I

We've traveled together, my Bible and I,
Through all kinds of weather, with smile or with sigh;
In sorrow or sunshine, in tempest or calm,
Thy friendship unchanging, my lamp and my psalm.

We've traveled together, my Bible and I,
When life had grown weary and death even was nigh;
But all through the darkness of mist or of wrong,
I have found thee a solace, a prayer, or a song.

So now who shall part us, my Bible and I?
Shall isms or schisms, or new lights, why try?
Shall shadows for substance, or stones for good bread
Supplant thy sound wisdom, give folly instead?

Oh no, my dear Bible, exponent of light;
The Sword of the Spirit puts error to flight,
And still through life's journey until my last sigh,
We'll travel together, my Bible and I.
