

More Support for New School Given

More support for the one high school for Eastland, Ranger and Olden has come from Robert M. Isenberg, assistant director of Rural Education of the National Education Association.

Here are some of Isenberg's thoughts on the subject:

Although it is hardly much satisfaction, I am sure you are aware that the problem you are facing is one which confronts many areas throughout the country. Consideration of some such proposal becomes most necessary in every area faced with declining population and continuously rising costs. The sooner some such plan as is being considered by your committee is implemented, the greater the number of children who will benefit by improved educational opportunities.

There is a great deal of evidence to support the notion that it requires about 600-700 high school pupils to permit the offering of a comprehensive program of education at secondary school level with maximum economic efficiency. Such an enrollment will enable a school district to offer with a reasonable cost per pupil a complete program for those with high ability, a productive, useful, and meaningful program for those with low scholastic ability, and a comparably appropriate program for those between the extremes of this ability range. This would enable a district to provide academic, cultural, esthetic, and vocational opportunities of many types with some of the supporting services such as guidance.

This is not to say that such a program cannot be offered by a high school with a smaller enrollment than that indicated.

But as the enrollment is increasingly smaller, the choice must be between a curtailment of program or increasingly higher costs per pupil. Unfortunately, in very many instances, high school programs where enrollments are small are both limited in scope and expensive. People often pay a lot for very little.

Translating these generalizations to what appears to be the situation in Eastland County from the limited information available to me, there are sufficient number of pupils in the county for the organization of at least one really good and comprehensive high school. The proposal you are studying would look from here to have a great deal of merit. Even with continued population decline there would be a sufficient number of pupils for one high school for a number of years.

The largest existing high school (Cisco) has hardly enough enrollment to offer a full range of program—including the variety of vocational offerings increasingly important for young people. If such programs are offered, the cost-student must be high. All of the other schools are in an even more limited position.

It is always difficult for a community to decide to give up its high school. Yet, without exceptions, every area which has involved communities getting together has not only resulted in a stronger district but has been enthusiastically accepted by all. Where such reorganization has been accomplished, it is nearly impossible a year or two later to find anyone who would want to go back to the earlier arrangement. Most express themselves as feeling that they should have reorganized years sooner.

As you may know, there are a number of county school districts in Texas. During the 1959-60 school year there were 32. All but two of them operate both the elementary and high schools of the county. While a majority are located in extremely sparsely settled areas, you will note from the total enrollment figures that a few have enrollments similar to Eastland County. Calhoun County, for example, has an enrollment of approximately 3,500 pupils. All of the schools (one senior high school, two junior high schools, and 8 elementary schools) operate under one school board and administration.

Some of the county school districts include Andrew County, Stephens County, Ector County, Baylor County, Ector County and Menard County.

The formation of a county district does not mean that all children must be transported to a single building. If a complete county plan (involving both elementary and high school pupils) were adopted, each of the separate villages could continue to have a school for their elementary children. All except the smallest would need one. If the reorganization involved only high school pupils as you have proposed, there are also alternatives. For example, with central administrative responsibility and a more extensive use of school buses, it would be possible to utilize the present high school buildings for specific parts of the program. Certain vocational offerings could be operated in one or two schools. An advanced academic program for those preparing for college could be in another. Etc. Thus, even with high school reorganization only, part of the educational program could be provided in each of the communities now operating a high school.

Safety Council Issues Hints For Safe Skiing

Six million Americans going splash-splash—and often flip-flop in the water.

That's the picture as a nation of water skiers nonchalantly skims over miles and miles of waterways—or tries to, at least.

Little information is available on what happens when a water skier is unsuccessful in his attempts to remain upright, since reporting of mishaps on water—America's new-found playground—is far from complete.

While the facts on water skiing accidents may not be handy, you can find plenty of information on the art of skiing in summer.

From the National Safety Council, for example, come these tips for skiing fun:

1. Don't ski if you can't swim.
2. Don't ski at night, in rough water or in shallow or unknown waters.
3. Don't ski near swimmers, docks or other obstructions.
4. Don't ski with an inexperienced boat operator. Make sure an extra person is in the boat to keep an eye on the skier.
5. Never wrap a tow rope around your body. If you start to fall, throw the tow line clear of yourself.
6. Always approach the shore at an angle—never straight in.

If you fall, the experts advise:

1. Stay with your skis—they'll help keep you afloat.
2. Raise your hand to signal the boat operator of your plight.
3. In congested waters, raise a ski so other boats will see you.

The experts also say that consideration for others and safety consciousness go a long way toward preventing water accidents.

"We're not trying to be wet blankets about water skiing," said Ralph Kuhl, the National Safety Council's director of public safety. "We want you to have fun. We just want you to stay alive and healthy to enjoy it."

A golf tournament at Lakeside Country Club got things off on the right foot Friday, and class meetings, which were being held throughout the day Saturday in various places here, were bringing old classmates face to face for the first time in many years in some instances.

They came from everywhere, too. Exes, scattered as by the wind, came in from as far as Alaska for the big show. So far they haven't been disappointed.

Saturday, of course, is the big day. Already Saturday morning the Village Hotel lobby was crammed with people. The square took on a new look as parking places became hard to find and people crowded the streets once again.

Tonight the big event of the homecoming, a barbecue and program at Maverick Stadium, is to be held beginning at 6:30. Judge J. E. Hickman, chief justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, will be the featured speaker. Mayor Cyrus Frost will welcome ex-students and Supt. Wendell Siebert will present two honorary diplomas.

Virgil Seabury Sr., past president of the State Bar of Texas, will introduce Judge Hickman. Joe Gray, Association president, will preside at the event and the Eastland High School band, 70-members strong, will perform.

Saturday night there will be a street dance on the square, and also a teenage dance at the "Y" building.

Homecoming will draw to a close Sunday morning when a special memorial and religious service will be held in the Majestic Theatre at 8 a.m. Rev. W. E. Halenbeck, an ex-student of EHS, will deliver the message.

Directory Work To Begin Soon In Tri-Cities

Local persons will be knocking on doors and calling on business firms in Cisco-Eastland-Ranger during the next three weeks, gathering information and data to be used in the forthcoming directory.

The directory will be published by the Moorhead firm, that has made the tri-city area for the past 20 years.

All firms and homes are asked to cooperate, so the directory will be complete and accurate, by the chambers of commerce in the three cities. Workers will carry a letter of introduction from their respective towns from the Chamber of Commerce.

There is no charge for the listings.

Reemployment Assured for Ex-Servicemen

Members of the armed forces of the United States, or the Public Health Service, are entitled to reemployment rights after they hang up their uniforms.

Regional Director George Dunlap of the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Veterans Reemployment Rights said in Dallas that an increasing number of inquiries from employers and servicemen indicated lack of clear understanding on this matter.

But there's no question of such inductees, enlistees, reenlistees, and reservists being protected for reemployment in their civilian jobs with private business or the Federal Government, he said. Such reemployment rights are assured by the Universal Military Training and Service Act.

First 'Y' Summer Day Camp to Begin

The first summer session of the Eastland YMCA Day Camp will begin Monday and a record enrollment is anticipated.

The first two-week session will end July 1. Day Camp will begin at 9 a.m. and Phil Hewitt will be director. Hewitt said children between the ages six and 12 can still register Monday.

Day Camp, according to Hewitt, is "... living in the great outdoors with competent Christian leaders and participating in camp activities and going home each night." The camp ends each day at 3 p.m.

Campers bring their own lunch each day, but drinks are provided at camp. They are to wear comfortable play clothing and sturdy shoes. They will also need a bathing suit and towel and a sack or satchel clearly marked with the camper's name.

Counselors this year will be Don Wilson, Linda Huckabay, Lynda Edison, Becky McAllister, Gracie Tankersley, Eddie Sargeant and Clark Conner.

Hewitt revealed that this year's activities will include leather crafts, plaster work, baton twirling, a summer concert by the Eastland Band (June 24), and award night (July 15), swimming, archery, trampoline, tennis, air riflery, softball, crafts and many other activities.

Beware of the Terrible Two

Beware of the Terrible Two—traffic and drownings!

That's the caution extended today by the National Safety Council as a forewarning of the top hazards to be encountered over the forthcoming Fourth of July holiday.

Traffic took 276 lives over the Fourth in 1959, and drownings claimed 178 victims, according to the Council. In addition, 65 persons died from miscellaneous causes during the mid-summer holiday. The holiday period will begin this year at 6 p.m. Friday, July 1, and will continue through midnight Monday, July 4.

To reduce the number of accidental holiday deaths from all sources, the Council—a non-governmental agency founded in 1913 to prevent all kinds of accidents—is conducting an annual campaign aimed at educating the nation about the dangers that can befall unsuspecting Americans . . . whether they're behind the wheel of a car, having fun swimming, or busy in the home.

Some of the dangers in traffic, for example:

1. Trying to drive too far too fast.
2. Driving a car that's in poor shape. (A minor auto ailment can too easily become major under the stress and strain of turnpike driving.)
3. Permitting irritations to drive you into an accident.
4. Driving after drinking.
5. Ignoring speed laws and traffic regulations — which are established for your protection.

To be safe around water, the Council advises:

1. Remember, it's not only swimmers who drown. Persons walking near the water, and persons playing or working in or by water, also are frequent victims of drowning.

2. Know how to swim. Don't swim alone.

3. Practice moderation in swimming—don't try to swim all the way across a lake or river.

4. Horseplay is unwise around water.

Reemployment—

The serviceman must apply for reinstatement in his old job within 90 days from the time of his release from Federal service. If he does that, he's protected, Dunlap said.

Furthermore, he is entitled by law to "reinstatement in his present position in such a manner as to give him seniority, status, and pay which he would have enjoyed except for his tour of Federal service." There is a 4-year limit of service time away from his civilian job.

More information concerning the law or its application in particular cases may be obtained without cost from the U. S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Veterans Reemployment Rights, 1114 Commerce Street, Dallas, Texas.

Sheep and Goat Raisers to Meet In Big Lake

The summer quarterly directors meeting of the Texas Sheep and Goat Raisers Association will be held in Big Lake Saturday, June 25, according to the Association President, Lucius M. Stephens of Lometa. All directors are urged to be present and the members, prospective members, and friends of the Association are cordially invited.

Heading the list of important matters to be discussed are wool and mohair marketing, lamb imports, and ranch labor.

"The increasing shortage of sheep shearers and tentative plans to relieve the problem by encouraging counties to conduct shearing schools will be considered by the directors," says Stephens. The TS&GRA was instrumental in promoting a successful shearing school in Crockett County two years ago.

All aspects of the ranch labor problem will be discussed in the TS&GRA Ranch Labor Committee. The Association is current sponsoring a program to import labor for Texas ranch work from the British West Indies; Tully Pratt of Brackettville, Committee Chairman, urges those interested in contracting these laborers, available to Association members and prospective members, to attend the meeting. As reported by the present users, the BWI laborers are working satisfactorily.

Committees will meet at 10:00 A. M. Saturday in designated rooms of the Reagan County High School, Big Lake, and the general business meeting will convene in the school auditorium at 1:30 P. M. Registration is scheduled Friday from 2:00 until 5:30 P. M. at the Country Club, and Saturday from 9:00 until 11:30 A. M. in the lobby of the high school.

Highlighting the entertainment will be a leg of lamb supper and dance Friday evening and a lamb and goat barbecue at noon Saturday, all to be held at the Country Club.

The Ladies Auxiliary to the Association will meet Saturday morning at 9:30 A. M. at the Country Club.

Who Discovers the Discoverers?

"A professor can never better distinguish himself in his encouraging a clever pupil, for the true discoverers are as comets amongst the stars."

Somewhere in this mighty land of ours, a gifted youth is learning to see the light of tomorrow. Somewhere, in a college classroom or laboratory, a dedicated teacher is gently leading genius toward goals of lofty attainment. Somewhere the mind of a future discoverer—in science, engineering, government, or the arts—is being trained to greatness.

Our nation has been richly rewarded by the quality of thought nurtured in our colleges and universities. The caliber of learning generated there has been responsible in no small part for our American way of life. To our college teachers, the selfless men and women who inspire our priceless human resources, we owe more than we will ever be able to repay. Yet how are we actually treating these dedicated people?

Today low salaries are not only driving gifted youth from other fields, but are steadily reducing the number of people who choose college teaching as a career. In the meantime, classrooms are beginning to get overcrowded. In 1967, if not sooner.

This is a severe threat to our system of education. The way of life, even to our very existence as a nation, needs help—and they need it now!

If you want to know more about what the college can do and what you can do to help, write for a free booklet: EDUCATION, Box 36, Times Square Station, New York
