Roberson Not Due Monday

By H.V.O.

A motion was filed in 91st District Court Friday asking the continuation of the case set for Monday in which Mrs. John T. Roberson of Ranger is charged with assault to murder with a motor vehicle. The motion was filed by Mrs. Roberson's attorney, John Whiteside, and contained the reasons for the request. The trial, which has been postponed twice before, probably would not have begun Monday anyway because District Attorney Earl Conner Jr., prosecutor, has been out of town most of this week with his wife in Temple. His wife has undergone surgery there. The motion for continuance said in part: "Defendant is physically unable to appear and defend herself on the 3rd day of December because on the 18th day of November, she was involved in an automobile accident near the Lone Star gas plant on FM 101 in Eastland County. "She was in Ranger hospital for three days, it says, after sustaining multiple injuries to her neck, back, arms and shoulder. It also pointed out that a material witness, her husband, John Roberson, is not able to testify because of recent surgery.

Mandamus Filed In Cisco Bond Election Case

A writ of mandamus was filed in 91st District Court Friday asking that the Cisco school board be forced to call another bond election. The writ, filed by Bill Mitchum, named the Cisco Independent school district. It calls for a hearing on the matter.

Mitchum secured the signatures of a majority of the qualified property tax paying voters of the district on a petition, and petitioned the district to call an election to determine whether certain bonds authorized by the voters of said district on Sept. 8, 1962, should be revoked and cancelled, the writ says. The petition was presented on Oct. 16, it said, at a special called board meeting on Oct. 30th, the board passed a motion not to call the election. Mitchum says in the writ that he will show that the board has not given due reason for the refusal. The instrument was filed by Frank Sparks, Eastland attorney. Hearing time and date has not been announced by T. M. Collier.

Pecan Show Winners To Be In State Show

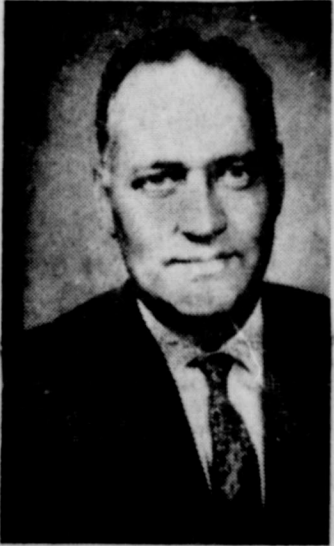

All first place entries at the 10th annual Eastland County Pecan Show, to be held in the Joseph building in Ranger, Dec. 14-15, will be sent to A&M College for the state show to be held early in January, 1963, according to J. M. Cooper, county agent. The County Pecan Show is jointly sponsored by the Ranger Chamber of Commerce and the Pecan Growers Association of the county. A quart of pecans comprises an entry. They may be either paper shell or native seedling, it was explained by J. W. Sims, president of the Pecan Growers Association. All entries must be entered by 9 a.m. on Dec. 14, it was explained by W. T. Eaton and ments and tickets are to go on sale soon. Fry was born in Eastland and began school here in 1935. However, his family moved to Odessa the following year. His father was a butcher. Fry played football for Odessa High and graduated there. He continued his football career at Baylor where he also graduated. Then he went back to Odessa High School as a coach, and eventually became head coach there, turning in some exceptional years, before returning to Baylor as a member of the coaching staff there. From Baylor he went to the University of Arkansas where he coached under Broyles, and when he went to SMU last year for his first university head coaching job, is credited with taking the "Broyles system" to that school. Mrs. Andy Taylor, secretary at Eastland High School, remembers that Hayden's sister, Margaret, played on the then-famous girl's softball team, and that "Hayden was No. One bat boy for the team."

Mr. George stated that he, his wife and three daughters will remain in Eastland for several months before assuming his duties at the Paris branch. Mr. Vieregger and his wife, Jane, have three children, one in college, one in high school and one in elementary school. The Vieregger family will move to Eastland in the very near future. The new manager's family has brought the brick home at 501 E. Conner St., built by Don Pierson Enterprises.

Curry Petition Time Expires

Friday was the last day for the Eastland County Court to rule on the petition seeking Nathan Curry's release from Gatesville School for Boys. Curry, 17, was sent to Gatesville by the court after it found him guilty of burglary in mid-1961. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Curry of Cisco said on Nov. 9th that there had been filed a petition with the court asking a hearing be held "within 20 days" to consider the youth's release. He was arrested after the murder of Mrs. Florence Hussey, Cisco First Baptist Church secretary. He was declared a delinquent at that time by the court. Reports are that the petition was filed at 10:30 a.m. Nov. 9th. Matters pertaining to juveniles are not privileged and may not be examined by the public. It has been theorized that if action does not come from the petition, a writ of mandamus might be filed in 91st District Court, the next higher court, asking the lower court to take action. The petition is said by the attorney for the family to contain four reasons why young Curry should be released. District Attorney Earl Conner Jr. has been in Temple the past few days where his wife has undergone surgery and has not been available for comment.

A Brief Tale All About Dogs' Tails

How would you like to see a parade of dogs marching around the courthouse square to the tune of yap, yap, yap? Crazy, maybe, but before you say anything, just stop and think how many dogs would be in town if the Police did not keep them thinned out. There are approximately 122 dogs killed here per year—or, on an average of one every three days. Where would the citizens go if the police didn't keep the dog population down? There wouldn't be room for the dogs and the citizens both, in time. If the dogs were allowed to run loose from now on, say for three years, how many stray dogs would there be in Eastland? Well at least 366 dogs, as the national reproduction process would make it near impossible to keep count. You might think of that before dumping the next unwanted cur in town. The men who have the unpleasant chore of doing away with the mutt would appreciate it as much as the mutt, by the way.

Jordan's Burglarized

"Enough's enough," says Harry Jordan, who had his drive-in restaurant broken into on two nights this week. A quintet of out-of-county youths were arrested here Tuesday after Harry's Drive-In was burglarized Monday night as well as the Fiesta Bowl. The Porky Pig Restaurant in Ranger was also hit Wednesday night. Jordan lost about $40 Monday night, and estimated between 30 and 40 packages of cigarettes were taken Wednesday night. A more professional crew was believed to have made the Wednesday night break-in. Entry was gained by forcing the side door. The cigarette machine was pried open at the lock. (Jordan had removed all the money from the machine, so the robbers had to settle for merchandise, apparently.) They also broke the lock on the music machine, but it too, was empty of money. A box of tax pennies was left as well as a charity donation box.

'Try Here 1st' Jaycee Signs Proclaim

Residents are being urged by the Jaycees in a concentrated program to "Shop Eastland First." The club is distributing some 200 signs, printed in vivid, "show-up" colors, for merchants to place in prominent places. Club President James Smith announced that the club adopted this project at its last meeting, and will strive to encourage "trying Eastland first" now and throughout the year. The club also has made another entry on their "wanted" signboard, west of town. The sign now reads: "Eastland Wants a Veterinarian."

Fisher will serve as program chairman. She will be assisted by Rev. Haston Brewer, pastor of the host church. Hostesses for the program will be Meses. Turner Collier, E. S. Perdue, Ina Bean, Roy Smith, B. H. Courtney, Darwin Miller, Henry Pullman and W. A. Anderson. Members of the First Baptist Church choir will act as co-hostesses. Ushers will be young people of the church. The public is cordially invited to attend the annual Christmas event.

Sheppards List Climate, Lakes Enticing Features

Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Sheppard gave the climate and the nearby lakes as their reasons for selecting Eastland as their home. Moving here from Stephenville two months ago, the Sheppards have had built a new three bedroom brick home at 601 S. Seaman. The home is decorated throughout in soft beige tones. The living and dining rooms and the den are complimented with brown furnishings with touches of orange, turquoise and yellow as added accents. Additional highlights of the house are the three bedrooms done in orchid, gold and blue. The home also features carpeting, central heating and walk-in closets. Mr. Sheppard is a retired employe of the Atlantic Pipeline Co. and has also dealt in the cattle business. He lists his hobbies as fishing and horses. Mrs. Sheppard's hobby is ceramics. In closing the interview, Mr. Sheppard stated, "We love Eastland and its friendly group of people. We are very pleased with our choice."

The girls' team was victorious with a 59-29 score. Local boys also won their game 49-46. High pointer for the EHS girls team were Judy Seaberry, 30; Wanda Arther, 15; and Kay Morton, 11. On Friday night both teams met Dublin on home ground. The girls were again victors with a 46-30 score. Making high scores were Judy Seaberry, 18; Wanda Arther, 17; and Kay Morton, 11. Sharon Day Day also saw action as a forward. Playing an outstanding game were the following guards, Becky McAlister, Carol McCleskey, Elaine Berger, Sharon Spradling and Carolyn Thomas. The girls play Rising Star Thursday at 3:15 p.m. in the Carbon Tournament. EHS boys were defeated Friday night by Dublin 48-28. At half-time, the score was tied 17-17.

What Does A Conservative Believe?

(Ed. Note: The following article appeared as an editorial in the last issue of Texas Parade.)

Are you a liberal or a conservative? This is an every-day question in Texas. The answer is important, especially to politicians, for from it they can cast their political horoscopes.

But a meaningful answer is hard to come by. First, one must define terms. And there the trouble begins.

In the game of political semantics each player writes his own rules. This tends to make the game intriguing, but confusing.

Except along the frenzied fringes of the left or right, the division is not always clearcut. A typical Texan may be "conservative" on some issues; on others, "liberal." On balance, most of us swing to one side or the other.

Conservatism in modern politics is not so much an ideology as it is an attitude, a state of mind, a mingling of background and temperament brought to bear upon political questions.

With due deference to high-placed liberal spokesmen, conservatism is much more than a repository of political clichés, stereotyped views, and economic myths.

It is a more or less conscious philosophy of approach to the complex role of government in our hazardous, exciting, challenging time.

The one dependable constant in our day is change. Change overtakes us in such a breathless rush that even the adventurous are bewildered.

The Conservative faces up to the inevitability of change in things material, technological, scientific, and sociological. For that matter, our most ardent disciples of material change are the daring innovators, the chance-takers, the purposeful dreamers and crafty engineers of "conservative" Big Business.

While joining, and even leading, the Cavalcade of Change, the Conservative retains respect for some of the things that already are. He is inclined to accept existing institutions that have not been found inferior, and he stoutly defends a form of government that has been found superior. He is wary of change for the sake of experiment; he is opposed to change for the sake of change.

He believes that some things do not change. These are the things of the spirit, which encompass his religious beliefs, whatever they may be, and his image of freedom. The American idea is a spiritual as well as a political concept. Living in a free country is a spiritual as well as a physical experience.

A JEFFERSONIAN AT HEART

The Conservative is a traditionalist. He sees his government as a structure of principles inherited from wise forefathers and developed by experience. Thus he still reads rich meaning into such expressions as "constitutional government," "rule of laws and not of men," "government by consent of the governed," "limited and balanced powers of government." These, to the Conservative, are not merely interesting quotations from dusty volumes on the shelf, but permanently valid directives to the servants (not the rulers) of the people.

The abused term "states' rights" retains virtues in his mind. Jefferson said it was the original intention "... to make us several as to ourselves but one as to all others." The Tenth Amendment concerning reserved rights has not been repealed, merely eviscerated. If the "general welfare" clause in the Constitution covered as much ground as modern Liberals claim, the compass could have stopped with the Preamble.

The Conservative values, as an intrinsic protection against human fallibility, the carefully conceived doctrines of the division of powers among the several levels of government and their several branches.

He values the deliberate processes of parliamentary law and law-making, and our sometimes tedious safeguards of life, liberty and property. Like the Founding Fathers, he recognizes the needs of impulse.

He distrusts the judgment and sometimes the motives of those who urge sweeping "reform" which have not been tested by time and public opinion.

He is dubious of efforts to legislate morals and "improve society" by manmade law.

In short, the modern Conservative, regardless of his inherited or adopted party level, is at heart somewhat of a Jeffersonian Democrat—a seer of Monticello in a space helmet.

REPUBLICANS AND DEMOCRATS

Like Jefferson, the Conservative identifies as battered but surviving fortresses of liberty: (1) local and state governments, (2) an independent judiciary, and (3) national political parties.

Government is most responsible to its masters, the people, when it has to confront them. The Conservative believes in transacting public business at the effective level nearest home.

He is thankful for a system of courts which takes its authority from the Constitution and not from the Executive or the Legislature.

He believes in a two-party system of nominating public officials, with each party acting as a goad and a check upon the other.

None of this means that the Conservative is satisfied with things as they are. He recognizes that local government fails valuably upon occasion to uphold its responsibilities. In that case the responsibilities must shift to the next level, even though the structure is weakened.

He is critical of courts which strain at legalistic gnats and seem more eager to write law than to interpret it.

He often finds himself at odds with both major parties; indeed, he has difficulty in distinguishing between them on a basis of conservative principles. He sees the Republican toga worn by Tower and Goldwater in the Southwest adorning likewise the shoulders of Javits and Rockefeller in New York; he sees the Democratic blanket stretched to cover such odd bedfellows as Wayne Morse and Harry Byrd. And he wonders. Clearly, the Conservative cannot be identified by party label. Party affiliation is more likely to be an accident of birth and geography than a deliberate ideological choice.

Nevertheless, the Conservative believes that the two-party system, with all its vagaries and traumas, is more responsive than a welter of splinter parties. He lives in the somewhat forlorn hope that political evolution will bring, some day, a genuine choice along party lines.

Another false line of demarcation is that of "civil rights." Some Conservatives are segregationists; so are some Liberals. The Conservative is apt to be disturbed more by the use of governmental powers to enforce social change than by any inclination of government to assure legal rights to any man.

FREEDOM OF CHOICE

The Conservative flies his colors most vividly when he rides into the battle against "nationalism," "statism," "interventionism," "socialism," or whatever term he uses to describe excessive, unnecessary, unwarranted and accelerating interference by government in his vocational and social affairs.

Thinking as he does in terms of individual liberties, he denies that government is increasingly effective the more intimately it regulates the minute details of human life.

Believing as he does in individual responsibility, he is doubtful of "programs" and "movements" which seek to deal with men in the mass. He believes neither in irresponsible individualism, where the strong can harass the weak, nor in pious paternalism, whose promiscuous "benefits" tend to destroy the moral fiber of the recipients.

In short, he believes that an American citizen should be neither a jungle beast nor a welfare statistic. Rather he should be treated as a free man and given maximum incentives, opportunities and choices to develop his best talents. It is the proper role of government to protect his freedom of choice, not to force a particular choice upon him.

FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY

In emphasizing individual freedom—even, as someone has suggested, the right to be let alone—the Conservative does not waste time in defense of forts long since by-passed. He accepts as political facts of life such things as social security, farm subsidies, public power, unemployment compensation. He may even, with due caution actively approve of them, even while wondering how we are going to pay for them.

His prejudice against Big Government, and for local government, is also tinged with reasonableness. He does not, for example, propose holding competitive city moonshots at the State Fair, or dividing the atomic energy program among the various Commissioners Courts. He recognizes that some of today's problems are so vast and their solutions so expensive that the federal government must take a hand.

The Conservative does ask that the federal government do two things:

1. Stick to national responsibilities.
 2. Pay its bills.
- As a spokesman for the Liberal American for Economic Action (ADA) has said, the Conservative "... is obsessed with inflation ... and with the rituals of the federal budget."

Fiscal responsibility of government is fundamental to the maintenance of a free economy. Persistent budget deficits do cause inflation. So believes the "obsessed" Conservative.

GOVERNMENT AND BUSINESS

The Conservative believes in the American system of market industrialism regardless of how generously or sparingly it has served him personally.

He believes the profit motive must be preserved, for it is the mainspring of the system.

He opposes in principle government subsidies, ceilings, quotas, and other controls, while granting that some leeway is necessary and unavoidable.

He is not afraid of Big Business as such, asking only that it perform responsibly to preserve competition and prevent oppressive monopoly.

He believes that Big Labor has the same rights, comparably, as Big Business, but no more—and the same duty to consider the public interest.

Government should act only when business or labor, either or both, forgets the public responsibility.

He believes that the taxing power should be used for the revenue only, not for political advantage, social reform, or the redistribution of wealth.

He believes that government's participation in business should be minimal, and non-competitive with private enterprise.

He believes that only in grave emergencies should either the executive or the legislative branch of the government interfere in the orderly normal processes of the market place.

BETTER DEAD THAN RED

The Conservative is a total and adamant enemy of Communism, whether the issue be morality, ideology, patriotism or self-interest.

He does not classify himself as a Conservative only for that reason. He recognizes that nearly all Americans, from the most liberal, are against Communism.

While eager to avoid war, he does not believe that the path to peace lies in appeasement or unilateral disarmament.

He regards as a dangerous illusion any idea that the Cold War can be ended by compromise. He sees no Halfway House between the two systems.

The Conservative believes in a reasonable program of foreign aid. He finds it hard to understand why we should send money and goods to Communist countries.

He believes that in our foreign affairs we should seek first, the respect of other nations; then popularity.

He agrees that it is better to be dead than Red. His preference, conservatively speaking, is to be neither.

ON STRADDLING THE FENCE

The Conservative finds little merit in the time worn fence-straddling posture: "I am conservative as to property rights, liberal as to human rights."

He finds it impossible to segregate into one list the privileges and responsibilities of economic free choice and, into another list the other prerogatives of a free man. He believes that neither category can stand without the other.

A nation without economic liberty and stability is ill-equipped to improve the "human rights" of its citizens.

The Conservative believes that our liberties are indivis-

Survivors include one son, one sister of Long Beach, California, two grandchildren and three great grandchildren. Burial was in Garden of Memories of Ft. Worth.

Mrs. Seelye will be remembered here as Mrs. Wade Smith.

We are free, or not.

The Conservative will continue to proclaim his concept of a free and responsible individual in a nation that preserves opportunity but does not force it upon him.

The phrase, as he recalls it, is "... government of, by and for the people"—not government in place of the people.

Extra Workers In Holidays To Need SS Number

Students, housewives, and others who plan to make extra cash by working during the pre-Christmas rush were advised to avoid possible delay by getting a social security account number now.

R. R. Tuley, Jr., district manager of the Abilene social security office, reminded students who have never had a social security number to apply for one without delay at their nearest social security office.

Housewives should check their social security cards to make sure that the account is in their married name. If the card is still in the maiden name, application should be made to change it, Tuley suggested.

The key to the benefits which are paid to workers who retire, die, or become disabled is the number on your social security card. Any person who cannot locate his or her card should take immediate steps to make application for a new one by obtaining a form for this purpose at the nearest social security or post office. The new social security card will have the originally assigned number.

H. D. Members Attend Meet

Members of the Home Demonstration Club met Wednesday for the last business meeting of the 1962 year. Mrs. J. D. Hargus, president, presided. Mrs. Jeff Laughlin, secretary, reported on the year's activities.

Mrs. Pounds led the opening exercises followed by a devotion from Psalms given by Mrs. Robert Kincaid.

Roll was called by Mrs. G. M. Hargus and answered with "What I like best about Christmas." Minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved.

Tips were made for the annual Christmas party to be held December 12 with all club members as hostesses. During this party gifts will be exchanged and secret pals revealed.

The Home Demonstration Council Christmas party will be held December 5. Each member will bring an apple, an orange and a banana for a cheer basket to be presented to the Green Acres Nursing Home.

A program on tips for Christmas trees was presented by Mrs. Robert Kincaid, who made one from spoons and ornaments. Mrs. D. J. West displayed a tree made from bottle tops and sequins.

Mrs. M. V. Harrison, hostess for the day, served cookies and coffee to the following members present: Mmes. Robert Kincaid, E. L. Danley, Fritz Huffman, D. J. West, E. L. Orms, C. M. Pogue, H. C. Thompson, H. C. Pounds, H. N. Sherman, G. M. Hargus, J. B. Bryant and Alvi Kincaid.

Holiday Decorating Ideas is Program for Olden HD Club

"Holiday Decorating Ideas" was the program for the Olden Home Demonstration Club, Nov. 26 at the regular meeting. A beautiful centerpiece of a Jewel tree and candle holders were shown by Mrs. Homer Lawrence, and jewel and ribbon trimmed Christmas ornaments were displayed by Mrs. I. D. Perrell.

Mrs. W. P. Edwards presided over the meeting and opening exercise was led by Mrs. J. D. Herrell. The secretary read minutes of the last meeting and gave the roll call.

Mrs. I. E. Tally read a card of congratulations from Mrs. Blanch Miller of Ranger and former member of the Olden Club. Mrs. Miller congratulated the club on the success of the first year and for winning several honors at the Achievement Day meeting.

Plans were made for the club to attend and help with the Pecan Show, which will be held in Ranger, December 14 and 15.

Mrs. I. B. Walker read a letter from the Abilene State Hospital and members voted to send a Christmas box to the hospital.

A committee was appointed to plan and decorate the clubhouse for Christmas Party on December 10, which will be the last meeting of the year.

About Your Health

Healthful nutrition is a year-round job. But as cooler weather comes to Texas, it becomes increasingly important to guard against falling victim of "winter susceptibility."

There really isn't any such thing as "winter resistance" but the fact of the matter is that bodily resistance may be lessened during fall and winter.

For this reason it is smart to continue to observe the rules of good nutrition. The well-fed family receives the basic foods in their daily diet. Food rich in protein should be served at every meal.

Meat, fish, poultry, eggs, cheese and milk are sources of high quality protein. Other sources are cereals, peas, beans, and nuts.

A green or yellow vegetable should be served at least once a day. These contain essential vitamins and minerals and are especially rich in vitamin A. Because it cannot be stored in the body, vitamin C (from citrus fruits, tomatoes and certain other fresh or processed fruits and vegetables) is needed every day.

With the addition of these to round out meals according to tastes and appetites, the well-fed family is provided with the nutrients needed for health and growth.

Breakfast is probably the most important meal of the day because you have gone without for food for such a long period of time. One-third of our daily diet should be eaten at breakfast.

Breakfast is essential to children. Fruit, meat, eggs, or other protein rich food and cereal or bread and butter and milk make a good breakfast.

Three good nutritious meals a day will go a long way toward keeping you fit through fall and winter and all year long.
