TEXAS OIL MEN DISCUSS TARIFF

Independent Petroleum President Calls If Bulls Eye In Target Association Is Shooting At

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 28.—A tariff on oil was sounded by an array of Texas oil and business men as the keynote of the semi-annual convention of the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas in session here today to resume discussion of problems of the oil industry.

President Tom E. Cranfill of Dallas, in his formal opening address, said that tariff on foreign oil is the bull's eye in the target the association is shooting at.

"Tariff should be placed on foreign oil for the protection of our people," Mayor C. M. Chambers of San Antonio, said in the address of welcome.

W. C. Stroube of Corsicana responded to the address of welcome. President Cranfill in his formal address was of the belief that major companies should curtail production in the Venezuela field by the same method of proration used in the United States.

Gas In Shaft Hinders Workers Who Battle To Reach Entire Night Shift.

McALESTER, Okla., Oct. 28.—Working in relays and protected by cumbersome gas masks, volunteer rescue crews dug their way today into the Samples coal mine No. 4 where 28 miners, all but one of a recently established night shift, were entombed.

Curley Donley, the 29th man of the shift, was dead, killed instantly by a terrific blast that wrecked the mine late last night and was heard at McAlester, a mile and a half away.

The bodies of four men were recovered shortly after 6 a. m. They were brought to the surface of the mine in cabs from the 18th level which is at a depth of 2,000 feet. No attempt was made to identify the bodies.

Rescue workers said the victims were found in a heap where the deadly mine gas had suffocated them. The rescue party that reached the miners was the same that worked all night digging at the debris that blocked the passages.

Other victims were believed in the 17th, 18th, and 20th level. Little Hope For Men "The only hope that any of them are alive is that they have found a pocket of fresh air and slipped into it," said J. G. Peterbaugh, president of a McAlester fuel company, veteran miner and leader in the rescue work.

FAITH IS BUILDING EASTLAND

Compare the number of business institutions in Eastland today with the number here one year ago and you will see that there are more stores and business concerns in Eastland now than there were one year ago.

Compare the quantity and quality of the merchandise carried in Eastland stores today with that carried one year ago and you will find that the stocks are larger and the quality higher now than then.

Compare the number of people who trade in Eastland today with the number who made it their trading point last year and you will be surprised at the increase now over last year.

There is a reason—in fact there are many reasons—for these facts. One of these is that Eastland is located just right geographically. Another reason is that she is in the center of a network of paved highways and graveled and graded roads, which make it easily accessible to the people of all towns and communities of this and adjoining counties. Still another reason—and a very important one—is that Eastland has awakened to the fact that it must sell itself to others, and is doing it. Having faith in others and faith in their town Eastland merchants have built new stores, remodeled old buildings and stocked them with the best assortment of high class merchandise which they are offering at prices that are not to be excelled elsewhere.

SUPT. BITTLE TALKS SHOP

P. B. Bittle, able superintendent of the Eastland schools, in a brief talk before the Eastland Rotary Club Monday told that organization that the city's schools were being maintained for approximately $6,000 less this year than last year and that just as efficiently. He also told those who had expected a decrease in the number of enrollments in the school this year over last that they were due for a surprise as the enrollments for the two periods were virtually the same.

Mr. Bittle in his talk complained that although the school officials had repeatedly extended invitations to the patrons of the schools to pay personal visits to the school and see for themselves what was being done, a comparative few had ever been inside the buildings or on the school grounds.

HOSPITABLE LUBBOCK

"When you drive into a town, who greets you first? The filling station man who sells you gas, the policeman who answers your questions about the road, or the first hotel or restaurant employe with whom you have contact, of course. If they greet you pleasantly and show more than common courtesy you come to conclusions about the whole town. Your joyous surprise makes you feel grateful to the community at large and you go away singing its praises. Incidentally, you are cheerful about spending your money there."

Somebody in Lubbock sat down and thought that all out and then arose and proposed a "Howdy Stranger" banquet. He didn't invite the bank presidents or the real estate heads. He filled the tables with the boys who sell gasoline and oil and with the girls who bring in the ham and eggs. Bellhops were there in plenty and the police force was represented. And then he unfolded his magic idea that a smile and a friendly greeting are the best possible service that Lubbock could render itself in rendering it to the incoming stranger.

The people at that banquet took it seriously. Alfonso Johnson of the Dallas Chamber of Commerce staff drove up to Lubbock recently and found evidence of it everywhere. Courtesy to him because he was the guest of Lubbock abounded and he became the guest of the city merely by driving inside the city limits. Dallas could profit by one of these "Howdy Stranger" banquets. Courtesy here is noticeable to visitors, but we ought to encourage it. Courtesy is a community asset for which no town ever gets too large. Let's have more of it."—Dallas News.

Dr. H. B. Tanner, secretary of the Eastland Chamber of Commerce, sometime ago, launched just such a campaign in Eastland. He began with the filling station operators with the intention of carrying the campaign to other lines of business in the city. Eastland, like Dallas, needs a "Howdy Stranger" banquet or something of the kind. The foundation for it has already been laid; let's put it over.

OUR SPLENDID NEW COURTHOUSE

Eastland county's magnificent new courthouse continues to attract attention to Eastland and Eastland county. Watch the average tourist as he slowly winds his way through the city and many times you will see him circle the public square, bring his car to a stop at the curb, and, with his entire party, go into the building and inspect it.

The Telegram has had numerous requests from other counties which plan to build new courthouses, for information about the Eastland county courthouse, what it cost, what it is constructed of and what kind of a campaign was conducted to get it. The last request for such information comes from the Sherman Democrat. The Telegram, cooperating with the Chamber of Commerce, always furnishes such information and in addition extends an invitation to those inquiring to send a delegation of citizens to Eastland to inspect the building.

WHAT ABOUT SHEEP AND GOATS?

The movement started some time ago by County Agent J. C. Patterson to bring sheep and goats into Eastland county in sufficient numbers to stock all farms suitable for them, continues to gain momentum but is not moving rapidly enough. There is need of concerted action in the matter and without it, the proposition has poor chance of being put over successfully.

It appears to the Telegram that this sheep and goat business would be a good job for the Eastland County Chamber of Commerce which organization was so enthusiastically organized some months ago, but of which there has been but little said since the organization was perfected.

PENDING CHANGES IN CONSTITUTION

Texas has 1,250,000 qualified voters. They are interested in the pending changes in the constitution of the commonwealth. Our state constitution is of the vintage of 1876. It is moss-covered and antiquated. Former State Senator Edgar Witt, who will be elected lieutenant governor in November, is chairman of the committee directing a campaign of education in order to inform all qualified voters of the importance of adopting the pending amendments. There will be five voted on Nov. 4 by the men and women of Texas. Senator Witt in a recent address favored the provision for a continuous session of the supreme court instead of the nine months session as now which will provide delays inevitable should the amendment be defeated. He advised that the 17 West Texas counties in which the University of Texas land is now located should be allowed to tax those lands for county purposes, since county improvements enhance the value of the lands. He warned the voters that unless the permanent university funds can be invested in other than state or national bonds, as at present provided, the university will suffer a heavy financial loss in 1933 when the federal government will recall most of the liberty bonds in which the university money is now invested and issue new bonds at a lesser rate of interest.

He further reminded the voters that the amount of state bonds is insignificant and he is of the opinion that no more will be issued. Referring to the proposal of a 120-day continuous session of the legislature instead of the present 60-day session and several 30-day called sessions, he declared that the adoption of the amendment would save time now spent in organization, save money for the taxpayer and produce wiser and more well considered laws for the people. Lastly he discussed the matter of raising legislators' pay from $5 a day to $10 a day and reducing mileage allowance from 20 cents to 10 cents a mile, which he predicted would save money for the state and be more equitable toward those selected to make the laws of the commonwealth.

All five constitutional amendments are said to have the support of ex-student organizations of Texas as well as the board of regents of the university and the institutions of higher learning. They have the active backing of many newspapers as well as the endorsement of men and women who are prominent as well as active in all fields of endeavor and who are familiar with the needs of a new Texas and a new civilization. Texas has a population nearing the 6,000,000 mark. Texas is forging ahead as a manufacturing state. Texas is one of the great mineral producing states of the sisterhood. Texas is the greatest of the agricultural and meat producing states. It is a producer of hides and wool and mohair. Its cities and towns are growing at an amazing rate. Constructive laws are needed and constructive men should make them. This calls for the adoption of the amendments to the constitution which are so greatly needed at this time in a commonwealth functioning under a constitution adopted almost 60 years ago.

ARE WE REALLY LOYAL TO EASTLAND

This day and time when the smaller towns—or at least many of them—are struggling for existence, much is heard about "home town loyalty," and there are many who practice it. Also there are many who do not practice it themselves, but who expect the other fellow to do so, especially if that fellow is a customer of theirs. Do you belong to this class? Do you spend the money you earn in Eastland in the city with the merchants and other business concerns who made it possible for you to earn it? Let's help ourselves by helping the other fellow.

Two Minds With Bua Single Thought!

By the Political Analyst

When Col. W. E. Easterwood of Dallas, chewing-gum magnate, paid the French fliers, Coste and Bellonte, $25,000 for flying from Paris to Dallas, his exploit and publicity brought back to mind at Austin an incident in which he received his military title.

Mr. Easterwood is a full-fledged lieutenant colonel, and is in the state service. His title was conferred upon him by his fellow-townsmen, Barry Miller, while Lieut. Gov. Miller was serving as governor of the state. Gov. Miller issued his commission and established the Dallas aviation enthusiast and philanthropist as a high-ranking military man.

The commission honored Col. Easterwood's feat in sponsoring the Hawaii flight, first successful flight from the Pacific coast to the tiny islands far out across the water. By coincidence, one of the army fliers who piloted the big bombers to Austin for the municipal airport opening recently, was Maitland, one of the Hawaii flight pilots. He said he was ready to start in the air service, stationed at Kelly field.

Texas may expand its national guard to include anti-aircraft units and thus be able to confer militia titles upon still more of its air-minded sons.

The legislature will hear a request to convert Camp Mabry, near guard encampment site at Austin, into a military branch of the university. The war department is said to be ready to start it with instructors, and to put in an anti-aircraft officers' training school. When that is done, the state will be entitled to expand its militia service by adding several units of this branch, to be officered by men training at Camp Mabry.

Comdr. Hal Brennan of the American Legion has declared his enthusiastic support of the plan.

Pink bollworms caused a session of the legislature in 1920, and that session has been blamed for preventing the election of Ewing Thomson of El Paso governor. It set up regulation machinery to keep out the dangerous pest.

A meeting of the bollworm commission will be held in Dallas this week, to take down the last remaining quarantine regulation, and to free 10 West Texas counties of restrictions.

But the state has not yet made provision to pay cotton growers of the counties for cotton they were forced to destroy.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON—If John P. Frey becomes the next secretary of labor, succeeding James J. Davis, the country is likely to hear a lot about the five-hour day which some labor leaders propose as the most adequate remedy for unemployment.

Frey is secretary of the metal trades department of the American Federation of Labor and lately has been the most prominently mentioned among those being considered by President Hoover for the Labor Department post. At the recent A. F. of L. convention in Boston he offered the five-hour day resolution. In a report to the metal trades department he suggested that industry should run on the basis of two five-hour shifts, five days a week. If employers did nothing toward stabilizing employment, the report said, there might arise a strong demand for government regulation for that purpose.

Is a Conservative

Frey is a distinctly conservative labor leader. The most likely reason for his appointment as secretary is thought to be that while his ideas are not sufficiently radical to worry anyone he is not reactionary enough to arouse as much opposition as two or three other labor leaders who have been suggested for the job. If he has small breadth of vision, he is at least considered honest, sincere and industrious. As chairman of the federation's resolutions committee he used to be Sam Gompers' right-hand man at conventions, but he was ill during the Portland convention in 1923 and Vice President Matthew Wolf grabbed that place and held it subsequently. He is a fierce opponent of public ownership and a strong believer in cooperation between labor and capital. He has written considerably on labor inflections and recently wrote a widely discussed article claiming Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes as a friend of labor on the basis of his various supreme court votes. He is a Republican, but has not used his position as a labor leader in political campaigns. He would be delighted to get Davis' job. He is 69 years old.

Folks in the Labor Department thought for a while Hoover might name Wolf, who is not exactly popular with the progressive element in the labor movement. But lately labor people here have heard that Wolf was making too much money to be able to afford the honor, considering the uncertainty of tenure after 1932.

Others Are Considered

Both William L. Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters' Union, and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, have been considered. Each has been described as the hard-boiled type of labor leader. Each has actively supported Republican campaigns despite the A. F. of L. non-partisan policy. Each now heads a seriously weakened union. Carpenters have been doing poorly during the building slump. Lewis still has control of the anthracite miners sewed up, but his bituminous organization is said to be very weak.

Hoover once had the idea of replacing Davis with W. N. Doak, vice president and Washington representative of the railroad trainmen's brotherhood, to take office March 4, last year. But the other three railroad brotherhoods objected and the idea was dropped, although Doak has since been mentioned as a possibility.

Frank Morrison, secretary of the federation for about 35 years, has been urged by printers' and other unions, but is not considered seriously.

Mud Pie Menu Not Uncommon

CHICAGO, Oct. 27.—The mud pies that children often make could be eaten with enjoyment by many adult persons in various parts of the world, according to facts revealed by "Geophagy," a book by Dr. Berthold Laufer, curator of anthropology at Field Museum of Natural History.

Dr. Laufer has made extensive research in geophagy, which is the practice of eating clay, loam and other types of soil, and has published the results of his studies throughout many countries in both ancient and modern times. His investigations began with records of earth eating in China.

Traces of the custom have been found in Indo-China, Malaysia, Polynesia, Siam, Australia, India, Burma, Siam, Central Asia, Siberia, Persia, Arabia Africa, Europe, North America, Mexico, Central America and South America.

As a rule not every kind of earth is eaten, says Dr. Laufer, but only those kinds which command themselves through certain qualities of color, odor, flavor, softness and plasticity.

Geophagy occurs among the most civilized nations as well as among primitive tribes. It bears no relation to climate, race, creed or culture. It is a habit that occurs among individuals and not among any particular tribal, or social group.

The women of Spain, says Dr. Laufer, once believed the eating of earth was an aid to a delicate complexion and the ladies of the Spanish aristocracy in the 17th century had such a passion for geophagy that the ecclesiastic and secular authorities took steps to combat the evil.

Always use best oil—say expert mechanics

When you consider how much you paid for your sewing machine, vacuum cleaner, lawn mower, washer and other expensive devices, don't you think it foolish to try to economize on oil? The very best costs only a few cents a year—and is really cheaper in the long run.

3-in-One, a scientific blend of mineral, vegetable and animal oils is made especially for lubrication of household devices. It cleans and protects as well as lubricates. 3-in-One costs more to make than ordinary oil but it costs less to use. If you know what expert mechanics know about oil, you'll never use anything else around the house. At good drug, grocery stores, in 15c and 20c bottles and cans. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Adventure enters the life of Celia Mitchell, 17, when she learns that her father she has supposed dead and wealthy. She leaves her unpretentious home in Baltimore to live in New York with her father, John Mitchell, and her legitimate grandmother, Mrs. Margaret Rogers. Celia's mother is a widow, having divorced Mitchell and remarried later. Barney Shields, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore he promised to be loyal to his

MOM'N POP

By Cowan

Mitchell asks Evelyn Parsons, wealthy widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons considers Celia a means to Mitchell's affections though she is jealous and at once begins to scheme to get rid of the girl. She introduces Celia to Tod Jordan, a fascinating but of dubious character, and does all she can to encourage this match. Lili Duncan, socially prominent, comes to Celia's party. Mitchell learns Jordan is paying attention to her and forbids her to see him. Celia offends her grandmother and the elderly Mrs. Mitchell feigns illness and departs for a rest. The girl goes to Mrs. Jordan's Long Island home for a quiet visit. Jordan calls there frequently. Mrs. Parsons lunches with Mitchell and he tells her he has investigated Jordan's past and that a young man is a gambler. She does not pass this news on to Celia.

Next day Celia, Lili and Jordan attend the races and there Celia encounters Barney Shields. Shields employed by a New York picture service. She meets him next day and they have dinner together. Shields asks her if she still loves for him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXIX

Barney Shields' firm gaze held Celia's. She could not look away. In the depths of Barney's eyes Celia could read intention and a challenge that was terrifying. She could not evade, would hurt, but there was no way. She had to tell Barney the truth!

He was waiting for her answer. "I know that I promised—" she said. "You mean there is someone?" "Barney—I—yes, there is." Neither of them spoke. Shields was looking down at the table. Very steadily, Celia watched him, afraid of what she would do when he lifted his head. She was miserable with the knowledge she had caused suffering and had done nothing to relieve it. "I'm sorry," she said in a low voice, "but I had to be honest with you."

He was looking at her now. The smile seemed to have widened. Barney's manner was composed, the laughing light in his eyes faded. "Well—that's that! Thank you for telling me, Celia." A waiter placed food before them. Celia felt as though she could not swallow a mouthful. It was soup, thick with vegetables and savory. She took a spoonful and found it appetizing.

"No. That is—not really. You either doesn't approve of Tod, or mean he doesn't really know me. He'll feel differently just as soon as he gets over his prejudice. I'm sure of that." "I see." A rush of compassion swept over Celia.

"Barney, I can't stand it to have you talk like that. We've been friends so long! Oh, I've felt miserable because I promised to wait for you and then—well, you see you didn't wait and I met Tod." "There's something about him, don't you know. At first, I tried to defend it, but I didn't like him. Then I went swimming and almost drowned and he saved my life. He's been wonderful. I still like you a lot, Barney, but Tod's different. Do you see how it is?" "I see all right!"

The mocking quality in the words was unceasing. "Don't talk like that! I can't stand it. Promise we'll always be friends. Good friends!" "That's young man's eyes were watering.

"If that's the way you feel about it you can count on me," he said. "Who is this—Tod, if I may inquire?" "Tod Jordan's full name is 'Joe'." "Joe? Lots of dough?" "No. That is, well, I suppose so. He doesn't have an office or anything like that." "Just does parlor tricks, huh?" "Barney, do you think that's nice?"

Figures In Capital Murder Trial

mother, but Barney had little news to tell. He had seen Mrs. Rogers a couple of times after the girl's departure. He had called to say goodbye before coming to New York, but there had been no answer to his knock. When Celia inquired about her mother's health, he answered that Mrs. Rogers looked "about the same as usual."

It was not altogether satisfactory. "I wish I could see her," the girl said. "You know how she is. If anything was the matter she'd never let anyone know." Shields tried to be comforting. He inquired about the places Celia had visited and how she spent her time. "Ritzy, all right!" he concluded. "Well, you won't have much time to waste on a guy like me." "Don't say that, Barney. I want to see you often." "Oh, it's probably just as well if you don't. I expect you're pretty busy with this fellow Jordan taking you to parties and teas. Anyway, it'll take me a while to get well sort of work things out." They had dessert and black coffee, and after they had finished Shields took the girl in a cab to the station. It was early, but she was anxious to reach Larchwood before there was any possibility that Mrs. Parsons would be there. When am I going to see you again?" she asked as they stood what she needed. Celia wished Tod Jordan would come and take her somewhere. She wanted to dance, to hear Jordan make love to her and forget that down deep in her heart something was hurting. It couldn't be that she loved Barney, of course. Barney had never affected her with that hypnotic spell she felt when Jordan took her in his arms. She had been a child without the faintest notion of what love meant when she promised to wait for Barney Shields to make his fortune.

Jordan telephoned at 9 o'clock and at the sound of his voice Celia forgot that she had been unhappy. He had met friends and was unable to get away for the evening, he said, but would come to take her driving the next afternoon. Jordan added something that made the girl's cheeks flush. As she put down the telephone she was singing softly.

A little later Evelyn arrived home. She made hasty apologies. The bridge tournament had been a disappointment because she and her partner had lost. Mrs. Parsons was an expert player and unable to accept losses at cards with good grace.

"Was there any message from your father?" she asked Celia. "Not while I've been here." "Hm! I thought he might drive down for dinner tomorrow evening. Perhaps we'll hear from him in the morning." Mitchell did not call or arrive at Larchwood next evening. Two days later Mrs. Parsons made an announcement at the luncheon table.

"I think I'll close the house early this season," she said. "The intense heat is over, and really until all these legal affairs are arranged it would be much more convenient to be in town."

Celia looked up, startled. "You mean you're going to leave Larchwood?" "Yes, next Monday. That's the fourth of September. Time to be realizing that fall is almost here."

The girl's face was downcast. "Then I suppose I'm to go back to Grammercy Square," she said slowly. "Nothing of the sort! Your grandmother won't be in town for a month. It wouldn't do at all for you to go back here. Besides, I've plenty of room in the apartment. I thought you'd like it. You'll see."

a great deal more of your father, I should think."

"Oh, that makes everything all right!"

"Sweet child! You didn't want to leave me, did you?"

"No, I didn't!" Mrs. Parsons looked pleased. She took care to repeat this incident the next time she met John Mitchell. And Mitchell, hearing it, seemed impressed.

"Celia's awfully fond of you," Evelyn, he said. "I've noticed that myself. And why shouldn't she be? You're almost a mother to her!"

Evelyn eyed him from under lowered lids. "I only wish I could do more," she said quietly.

The following week saw Mrs. Parsons and Celia installed in the uptown apartment. The girl dreaded leaving Larchwood, but after she was back in the city she found life far different than in her grandmother's dreary mansion.

Mrs. Parsons had many engagements. Celia was allowed to entertain herself as she chose, and there was no dearth of amusements. Tod Jordan became even more attentive. He took Celia on long drives, stopping usually at some country place for dinner. Evenings they say plays or danced.

Mrs. Parsons began ordering her fall wardrobe. Early selection, she said, was important. At Mitchell's request she took Celia shopping and helped the girl select several costumes.

During the first week in the city Celia sent a note to Barney Shields giving him her new address, and asking him to call. She received no answer.

Celia was melancholy for a day or two and then determined to put Barney out of her mind. She was hurrying along Madison avenue one afternoon only a few blocks from Evelyn Parsons' apartment when she recognized a tweed suit ahead. The young man wearing the suit was buying a newspaper.

"The girl paused beside him. 'How do you do, Mr. Shields?' 'Celia!' The broad grin Barney flashed at her was like old times. 'I've been wanting to see you,' she said. 'Won't you walk home with me?'"

"They had gone half a block and were talking eagerly when suddenly Celia noticed a man coming toward them. It was Tod Jordan. (To Be Continued)

Markets

Final Stocks NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—Stocks turned irregular in the late trading today, early leaders easing off while some special issues made advances.

Trading was quiet throughout. U. S. Steel, which had been up to 154, declined to below the previous close of 152 3/4. Selling in this issue was induced by approach of the earnings report for the third quarter due after the close. Weakness in Eastman Kodak was a late feature. The stock reacted more than 7 points to around 183.

Late selling in U. S. Steel had an unsettling effect on the general market. J. I. Case, which had been carried more than 6 points, lost more than half of the gain. Bethlehem Steel met pressure on estimates earnings would not cover dividends in the third quarter, but it rallied late in the day. Indian Refining was a weak feature in the late afternoon.

Am. Tel. & Tel. was held up sharply. Amusements were bid up sharply. They reacted later and some dipped below the previous close. Rails quieted down after an early rise. Coppers made sharp gains as pressure lifted due to efforts to stabilize the industry. Utilities were steady in the late trading.

All Thought Dead—

Early this morning the rescue workers had reached the 500 foot level, digging furiously but progressing slowly through the mass of wreckage that blocked the shaft. Gas retarded the work. Above the men, a line of men, the entrance, were almost 2,000 excited persons. Among them were the families of the entrapped men. They realized there was scarcely a chance that any of the men would be brought out alive. Beneath the workers, were the entombed men, probably dead, possibly fighting for their lives in the gas filled tunnels. Every possible avenue of communication with them had been cut off by the blast. The electric lighting system was wrecked.

Heard at McAlester

Dohley was near the mine entrance when the explosion, believed caused by accumulated gas in the shaft, occurred. His work was to drive the coal cars in and out of the mine and he had just returned from a trip to the 2,500 foot level. He was killed instantly. The explosion was heard distinctly in McAlester and within a few minutes after it occurred roads were filled with running men, women and children. Among them were the rescue workers who had lived in constant fear of just such a disaster.

Scenes of wild confusion ensued about the mine entrance. Screaming women and children formed squads of pickets. The rescue crews were formed rapidly, gas masks procured and the work of digging away the debris began.

Officials of the mine, which is owned by Marshall Dana of Kansas City and is located on Oklahoma state property, did not believe the miners possibly could be reached before noon today. The gas in the shaft was so heavy the rescue crews, even when protected by gas masks, could remain inside only a short time before stumbling out to be relieved by new crews. They worked in squads of ten.

Considered Safe

Huge bonfires were built around the mine entrance to aid in providing light for the workers. An emergency electric lighting system was installed before morning. The Samples mine, a slope pit, was considered one of the safest and best equipped in this section. It had a daily output of 200 tons. The mine was rock dusted daily. Custerbaugh said, to prevent accumulation of dust. This fact, he said, led him to the belief the blast was caused by gas. The 28 entrapped men were: Vik Vontic, Sam Lovera, B. Lewis, Donny Blue, Isaac Cole, A. C. Hammonds, Monticello Ross.

SMITH TAKES A RAP AT THE REPUBLICANS

Says They Won Presidential Election On Deliberate Misrepresentation of Facts.

PROVINCE, R. I., Oct. 28.—Former Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York continued prosperity, republican administration last night with winning the last national election through deliberate misrepresentation.

Smith spoke at a democratic rally here before some 15,000 persons. Part of his address was broadcast on a national hookup over the Columbia Broadcasting System. Smith declared he did not lay responsibility for the unemployment crisis and business depression upon President Hoover and his administration, but held the republican party responsible for prosperity promises unkept—promises, he said, which the party knew could not be kept.

The former presidential candidate assailed the republicans on three counts—deliberate deceit in promises, continued prosperity, republican administration last night with winning the last national election through deliberate misrepresentation. He presented the following program for improvement of conditions: 1—Economy in government through elimination of appropriations for purely political purposes. 2—A five-day working week. 3—Child labor regulation. 4—Passage of the bill of Senator Wagner of New York for unemployment relief. 5—Amendment of the republican tariff law.

CLAIREMONT, ex., Oct. 28.—Testimony started today in the murder trial of Will Frtts, facing his fourth arraignment in the double slaying of D. W. Hamilton and his son, Earle, two years ago at their farm home near Rochester.

Moody Issues More Paroles

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 28.—A retroactive extension of furlough was issued today by Governor Dim Moody for Joe Bowden, whose one year term for liquor law violation expired on Oct. 1. Bowden had been convicted in Bosque county. He was given a furlough that expired on July 17. Thinking it had been extended he did not return to prison. Finding that Bowden acted in good faith, Governor Moody decided he ought not to have to go back now.

General paroles were issued to Omer Edson, under a five year furlough sentence from Cherokee county, to E. J. Lee, sentenced to two years in Bowie county and to J. L. Faubion, sentenced to a short term from Potter county. Their offenses were not set out in the parole proclamations.

Although her salary as cashier was $75 a week, she lived in a $22,000 home in Rockville Center, L. I., drove a Cadillac sedan and wore expensive clothes, police said. One theory on which they worked was that the woman sought to hold back the marks of time by investing heavily in beauty treat-

MAVERICKS MAY UPSET DOPE IN ABILENE GAME FRIDAY

CONFIDENCE IS ALL TEAM NEEDS TO WIN

After Form Shown in Game Saturday May Carry Locals To Big Victory.

Although they are going up against one of the best, if not the best, team in the Oilbelt District Saturday afternoon when they meet the Abilene Eagles at Abilene, the Mavericks will probably go into the game with more confidence in themselves than they have had so during the season.

After the 20 to 0 defeat of Brownwood on the local gridiron Saturday the Mavericks are in better spirits than they have been during the earlier part of the season and that little inferiority complex which they may have been handicapped has been greatly dispelled through the winning of the game.

It is possible for the local team, they play the kind of ball of which they are capable, to upset the dope in the Oilbelt District because the Abilene Eagles and bring them to a standstill.

With Clark, fleet backfield man, in good enough shape to add the needed punch to the backfield and with the rest of the backfield running better interference than they have displayed all season, it is possible that they can make a splendid showing in the Abilene game.

In the game Saturday the interference that was provided for Clark was as good as any that could be found throughout the district. When he got away for the yard run to a touchdown that was called back, every man on the team was displaying the kind of ball that they can play when occasion demands.

Clark's line plugging was effective against the Brownwood team and with the same kind of determination that was shown here Saturday there is not a line in the belt that could withstand the attacks that were launched.

Spurts are not uncommon in school or college football as evidenced Saturday when Rice defeated Texas by a score of 6 to 0 when Abilene and Sweetwater local Ranger and Mineral Wells to the score.

The Mavericks have had unusual luck this year so far in injuries. Clark, who has been the only regular who has been out of the game and with him back in the lineup the team will be in better condition than they have been at any time during the season.

Eligibility Rule Is Changed By The Committee

BY UNITED PRESS

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 28.—Eligibility is retained for a large number of high school football players, it was estimated today, as the result of a decision of the executive committee of the State Intercollegiate League that the league's new "ten semester" rule was adopted in violation of the league constitution.

League officials said they did not know how many players are affected, but there was much protest.

The new rule would have made a player ineligible after having passed the ten semester time whether he had actually been a school attendant for that period, or not. The league now reverts to its old rule, based on actual attendance. The new rule was held to violate the provision of a year notice of any marital change.

Spur was put on probation after a night hearing on charges of alleged unethical procedure in transfers of players. Protested players had participated in no league games.

Motion Pictures May Change Score Of Yale-Army Game

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 28.—The question of whether Army's touchdown, which gave the cadets a 7-7 tie with Yale here Saturday was legal or illegal, was overshadowed today by the return of Albie Booth to the Yale lineup.

The little backfield star, who participated in but one play against Army before he was carried off the field on a stretcher, was released from the university infirmary yesterday in time to run through a signal drill with the varsity. He is expected to be ready for action against Dartmouth Saturday.

The touchdown controversy arose yesterday after a showing of the motion pictures of the game. The film revealed that Kilday was given a boost by a team mate when he crossed the Yale goal line. The rules prohibit such a shove or boost.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—President Hoover today has appointed Major General Merritt W. Ireland as surgeon-general of the army. Ireland's third consecutive four-year term expires Oct. 30.

Physical Fitness, Ability to Concentrate Helped Bobby Jones Win Title Matches

Drank Tea and Sugar "Pick Me Up" During Tournament As Source of Quick Energy

"KING" Bobby Jones, the Atlanta, Georgia, barrister, is the crowned head of goldfom today because he has learned the lesson of physical fitness and the value of a reserve well of energy, ready for use in emergencies.

Resting in the clubhouse at Merion after his smashing defeat of Eugene Homans which netted him his fourth and greatest successive triumph of the year—the American amateur cup—Bobby summed up his phenomenal successes with characteristic modesty.

"It's largely a matter of keeping fit," he said.

"Years ago," he continued, "golf probably saved my life. When I was a youngster I was as delicate a child as you could find. Then I was, to use a good old expression, turned out to grass, and in no time at all my health improved. When I was about six years old I started to play golf and have kept at it ever since. It keeps me out in the air, builds all the muscles of my body, and is a natural way to maintain a normal weight."

Speaking of weight, King Bobby pointed to the harmful reducing diet and eating "dope". "I take anything that agrees with me," he said. "Of course, during tournaments I am compelled not to tax my digestion with food of too heavy nature, so I follow the example of the football squads and partake of light, energizing foods. I take cups of hot tea with several lumps of sugar and a couple of pieces of toast, and find this repeat-light and easily digested. Sugar and tea act as a quick energizer and serve as the 'pick-up' food."

When America's Queen of Sports, I. M. Williams, followed a similar practice, dissolving several lumps of sugar in a cup of water, flavored with lemon, during her matches. The sugar, a concentrated energy food according to science, creates a well-sustained energy needed in athletic competition.

healthy fatigue which any exercise would produce. But when it comes to tournament golf, an entirely new phase develops. The physical strain is present but it is the tremendous mental strain which saps one's energy to the utmost.

"Concentration is necessary of course, and a certain tension. If a mistake occurs there must be the mental provision for retrieving that mistake. In few other sports is the responsibility placed so squarely on the individual. In baseball, for instance, there are eight men to pin faith on to win. In golf it is one

One Never Knows About These Football Games

THE earnest expert who breaks into print these days with predictions about football games is inviting disaster. Once upon a time you could sit down with a pencil and paper and figure out most of the big games in advance. But not now!

Out on the coast the "Big Three" of California already has been overtaken by Babe Hollingberry's Washington State Cougars. The unregarded State eleven beat California and Southern California on successive Saturdays, kicking the dope receptacle all over the place.

Georgia took Yale down the line. Then, down in the Southern Conference, Alabama and ended the long string of victories Tennessee has run up during the last three years.

Vanderbilt went north and handed Minnesota a fancy pasting, after which the Gophers glommed Stanford, which is what you have to call the feat of holding the big Warner eleven to a scoreless tie.

Wisconsin was not figured as powerful until Penn took one of her best teams of recent years to Madison and sustained severe damages.

Dops Knocked Awry

IN many of the games, the dope hasn't meant a thing. Harvard was expected to unioise an aerial attack that would befuddle the Army. As it turned out, the soldiers broke through and stopped the flinging before it ever started. Rockne moaned about the way his team was going to be manhandled by Carnegie Tech. The Tartan line was composed of fire-breathing ogres. It developed that most of the fire-breathing was on the part of the Notre Dame line, which played at a new height of fury.

Purdue seemed strong as the Big Ten started proceedings, but Michigan stepped in with a quar-

Illinois was expected to prove a stumbling block to Northwestern. It didn't turn out that way at all. Northwestern romped over the Illini.

The Navy expected no more than a brisk workout against the Blue Devils of Duke University, who heretofore have not been so very impish. The Navy was swept from its feet by a violent Duke attack.

Cold weather is motor-punishing weather... Now, more than ever, you need the extra protection of this DE-WAXED, EASY-STARTING OIL

CONOCO In cold weather motors usually are hard to start, but Conoco Germ-Processed oil actually makes starting easier!

There are two good reasons for this.

First: Germ-Processed oil is thoroughly de-waxed and does not congeal at low temperatures. Second: Germ-Processed oil does not drain away during periods of motor idleness.

The initial "turning over" process is made easier by the protective lubricating film which is on duty before you touch the starter. The usual 40% to 60% of motor wear occurring during the starting period is greatly reduced. Conoco Germ-Processed Motor Oil gives you safe starting—and quick starting, even at zero temperatures.

Change now to this new oil. Use it all winter for motor safety and economy. You always will find Germ-Processed Motor Oil at stations bearing the Conoco Red Triangle.

MODERN WOMAN EXPERT IN MAKING PENNIES COUNT

By ELIZABETH BENSON
Today's housewife exercises sound business judgment in buying. I think women are more interested in making the pennies count today than they have been for years. To me, it has always been an inspiration to see how the women of this country backed up their men-folk when business conditions slowed down. They buy more wisely. They watch budgets closer. They take fewer chances on unknown articles and purchase only the known dependable type of merchandise. I often think that women do more to speed a return to good times than even the big business men. Because good times really depend a lot to putting the family budget on a sound basis. That is the woman's job in this country.

Those present were: Mmes. Cross, P. Corta, Cottingham, M. Q. Taylor, Moorehead, Malarky M. C. Hayes Martin Galley, Bond, Whatley, Nemir, Meredith, Martha Hart, Ashley, Hardin, Fisher, Pierson, and hostess, Mrs. Arnold.

BOOSTER CLASS PARTY POSTPONED
The Booster Class party which was to have been held this week has been indefinitely postponed. A definite announcement concerning the party will be made Sunday.

Cost of Feeding Family Decreases
Within the last year the cost of feeding the family has fallen. Food staples, such as sugar and coffee, are cheaper, and the price of other commodities in general is lower than in nearly a decade. Between July 15 of this year and July 15, 1929, retail food prices decreased more than 9 per cent, as shown by the report of the Bureau of Statistics of the Federal Department of Labor.

In this decrease almost every article of everyday table use is represented: meats, vegetables, fruits, beverages, canned goods, condiments. The dollar is buying more food than it has for a long time—yet it is buying food of the same or better quality. This is a most important consideration to the housewife at a time when she is trying to stretch a dollar as far as possible. The manufacturer of a standard product, known for its unvarying quality and carrying the brand which is his guarantee of dependable merchandise, can never afford, under any conditions, to change the quality of that product except for the better. The business graveyard is overcrowded with manufacturers who thought that could leave half an ounce out of the can, or omit a bolt from the machine, or take an inch off the yard of cloth. They tried it when orders were slackening and they needed an extra margin of profit to meet changed conditions. But it did not work, and it never will—not with women buying, or dictating the buying of 85 per cent of all merchandise sold in America.

The established manufacturer, and the storekeeper as well, must maintain and constantly seek to increase, the quality of his merchandise, if he is to enjoy prosperity. There are, of course, times when he can reduce the price—when raw products are cheaper, manufacturing costs go down, distribution becomes more efficient. But not the quality.

In times of depression there are "wildcat" concerns which do not hesitate to put on the market new merchandise that is "just as good" as the advertised, standard articles. They make it down to a price, not up to a value, and they expect to sell it to housewives who are keeping two hands and two eyes on the family budget. But the quality of the branded product is the same, even though the price may be lower.

Men Prefer Blue, Women Pick Red

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Blue is the most attractive color to men, while women show preference for "warm colors" in merchandise and colored advertisements, Ferdinand Ammuller, Milwaukee, told delegates to the 13th annual convention of the International Direct Mail Advertising Association. Ammuller emphasized the difference in color preferences of the sexes in revealing the results of personal tests. He said 41 per cent of all men chose blue as the color they liked best in all fields of purchase including clothes and automobiles. Red was the next preference and purple third. Red headed the list for women followed by purple, blue, green, orange and yellow.

Reindeer May Give Alaska New Business

SEWARD, Alaska, Oct. 27—The reindeer industry promises to become one of Alaska's greatest opportunities for development, replacing old prospecting with which the territory has been associated so long. The chief obstacle in the development of the business has been lack of capital by herd owners and herders. Sawyer pointed out that with the meat prepared by this process it could be shipped all over the earth for table use. His survey, he said, revealed that there are 1,000,000 reindeer in Alaska tended by 250 herders and that the herds are increasing with astounding rapidity. Nickel Charity Has Been Flourishing For Fifty Years
By Jane Hunter Holloway
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW ORLEANS.—One of the oldest and most unique charities in the country has been flourishing in New Orleans 50 years. It is one of "Step up and get your nickel, lady" every Saturday in front of Simon Gumble and Company, cotton firm, on Gravier street.

A crowd of 100 or more old women, black and white gathers before the office of the company, knowing that at 9 a. m. a young woman secretary will come out of the door with a bag of nickels and give one to each of the gathering. This philanthropy, begun 50 years ago by Simon Gumble, founder of the firm, is carried on today, after three generations, by his grandsons, Lester and Joseph Gumble. Since the charity was first started, approximately $10,400 in nickels has been distributed. The same faces are seen there year in and year out. Some recent presence of newcomers. "It's not like it used to be," said one old lady. "These new ones that come in, push and grab so."

"Yes, suh," said an old negro woman, who has been getting her Saturday nickel for years. "De nickel show heps out I buy my 'baccy wid it. Gawd bless de man dat give de nickel." The custom will be carried on as long as the firm exists, the Gumbles say.
