venture enters the life of Celia, 17, when she learns she has a supposed dead father and wealthy. She leaves her apartment home in Baltimore to live in New York with her mother, John Mitchell, and her aristocratic grandmother.

Margaret Rogers, Celia's mother, a widow, having divorced Mitchell and remarried Barney Shields, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving for his love. Mitchell asks Mrs. Parsons, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young Celia. Mrs. Parsons agrees, convincing Celia a means to win her affections though she is as old as her grandmother. She introduces Celia to Tod Jordan, a man of dubious character, and does all she can to arrange this match. Lisi Dunlop, a prominent, becomes Celia's loyal friend. Mitchell Jordan is paying his daughter attention and forbids her to go to a club and there encounter Brooks, whose marriage does interfere with her flirtations. She shows Celia a diamond ring which she says Jordan has. The man denies this later calls on Mrs. Brooks. She quarrels and afterwards she goes home in the city. She learns from Martha, a trust-tenant, why her parents, John Margaret Mitchell, separated.

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXXV

The color rose high in Celia's cheeks as she waited for the answer. The gray-haired maid looked embarrassed.

"Oh, no, Miss Celia. I couldn't say anything about that. You must have known." The girl persisted. "You're not like other servants, Martha. You're just a companion to grand-uncle. Why, you're with her half the time. Maybe I ought not to ask you, but don't you see how I can't talk to father and mother else will tell me anything. I wish—here Celia turned her head and her voice sounded as if she were near—" "I wish I had never happened!"

For an instant the maid hesitated. Then she came over to the girl and patted her shoulder. "Poor lamb!" Martha said sympathetically.

"Poor lamb!" Celia hid her face against Martha's ample skirt. Her shoulders moved, but there was no sound of sobbing. After a moment she sat up and pined her eyes.

"Did you ever see my mother?" she asked.

Martha nodded.

"It was right after they were married," she said. "I remember. You see, nobody knew anything about the wedding until a telegram came. Oh, but your grandmother was upset! For one whole day she stayed in her room. Then when she came out she told us that John was married and was bringing home his wife. There was a lot of work to be done. It was a week later they came. Pretty thing she was! You've got the same eyes, Miss Celia. I noticed that the minute I caught sight of you. Yes, she was a pretty thing. Slim like you are, too."

"Mother's eyes are larger than mine," Celia told her. "They're beautiful. Only of course she looks tired so much now, and her hair's gray."

"Gray? The way I remember it her hair waved just the same as your does. Maybe a little darker brown. She wore it in a knot up on her head. She was a quiet kind, but I took to her right away. Only she and John didn't talk very long. I guess it was some kind of a disagreement. They left one morning and never came back. That is, she didn't."

The girl had been listening eagerly. She sipped the buttermilk.

"Did my father come back alone?" she asked.

"Not for a long while. Five or six years it must have been. That was the first I heard that his wife— I mean—that they were separated."

"And you never heard the reason why?"

Martha's lips pressed together firmly. She shook her head negatively. "Eat your cookies, child, the woman said, 'I must be getting along with my work.'"

As the door closed behind her Martha Riley raised her eyes heavenward. She made the sign of the cross over her breast.

"God forgive me," she whispered devoutly. "The poor child! Shaking her head pessimistically, Martha moved toward the kitchen. Celia ate two of the gingersnaps. They were the old-fashioned kind, and after her hasty breakfast she was hungry. Then she finished the buttermilk. She was trying to picture her mother, as she must have looked when she came to the Grammery Park house a bride. Probably she had been in this very room.

'Kidnapped Woman' Turns Out To Be Clothing Dummy

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Sergt. George Schulzsky and his squad of detectives were out last night looking for gangsters, racketeers or whatever lawbreakers might come their way.

Suddenly a black sedan raced past. The curtains were drawn but the sergeant has a sharp eye.

"I think that's a kidnapping," he said. "Looked to me like there was a woman tied up in the back seat. Step on the gas."

The police automobile speeded along the trail of the black sedan. The sergeant leaned forward with his pistol ready.

Then there fluttered through the rear window of the sedan a filmy, lacy, pink something. It had shoulder straps on it.

"This is getting complicated," the sergeant said, "speed up." More speed brought the police car nearer.

Out fluttered another of the filmy, lacy, pink somethings.

"What's this?" the sergeant asked. "That can't be right. Women don't wear that many these days."

Then the police overtook the sedan. Sergeant Schulzsky opened the rear door of the sedan.

"Steady yourself, madam. We're police," he said soothingly. "You're safe, now."

He moved a step nearer and saw an unclipped department store dummy.

The two men in the sedan, Al Bernstein and Joe Miller were taken for having burglar tools.

FUNERAL OF JAMES WELLS AT BULLOCK

The funeral of James Wells, who had lived in this section for 20 years, was held Monday afternoon at the Bullock Methodist church, with the Rev. H. B. Johnson officiating. Mr. Wells, who was 65 years of age, died Sunday night. He had been ill for nearly a year.

Mr. Wells lived six miles north of Ranger on the Caddo highway. He died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Waggoner. He is survived by the following children: Roy Wells, R. H. Wells, Mrs. C. W. Waggoner, Mrs. Pat Downing, Rudy Wells, and Mrs. Ed

Upset Not Serious If Bowels Get This Help

When you're out-of-sorts, head-achy, dizzy, bilious, with coated tongue, bad breath, no appetite or energy—don't worry. It's probably constipation.

Take a candy Cascaret tonight and see how quickly your troubles clear up. No more headache; no gas on stomach or bowels. Appetite improves; digestion is encouraged. Take another tomorrow night and the next night. Get every bit of the souring waste out of your system. Then see how bowel action is regular and complete.

Cascarets are made from cascara, which doctors agree actually strengthens bowel muscles. Ten cents at all drug stores.

COLDS MAY DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Coughs from colds may lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified preparation that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a medical discovery with a twofold action: It soothes and breaks the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

All known drugs creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for coughs from colds and bronchitis. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of coughs from colds, bronchitis and minor forms of bronchial irritations, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

A good program has been planned for the 17th district convention that is to be held in Minion Wells on November 1 and 2. A large crowd is expected to attend.

A school for Service officers of posts will be held in the Crazy Cactus after the afternoon and night sessions on Sunday morning. Saturday afternoon and night and Sunday morning.

This is for the purpose of having every ex-service-man present consult with the State Service Officer, and the Legion State Service Officer, so that these men can be kept in the information and readily separate claims. There will be representatives from the United States Veterans Bureau there to confer with these

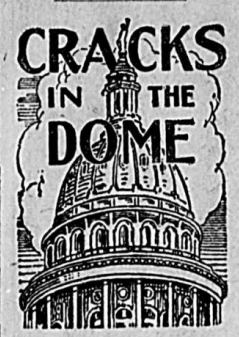

The Army's Anti-Aircraft "Ears"

Hostile airplanes are sometimes pretty hard to see, but they can be heard long before they are sighted—and United States army engineers have taken advantage of that fact in perfecting defenses against aerial attack. This picture shows the Sixty-third Coast Artillery's "ears," elaborately camouflaged, set up outside of Los Angeles for the southern California war maneuvers. On the truck are Captain A. L. Parmelee and Sergeant G. E. Brunson, who have caught the hum of approaching airplanes in the microphones and are telephoning the position to headquarters; inset is Colonel Willis Peace, directing the "defense" in the maneuvers.

CRACKS IN THE DOME

By The Political Analyst

AUSTIN, Oct. 22.—A bill affecting practically every county in Texas by which the state would declare its good faith with those to whom it has sold public lands, will be sponsored before the next legislature by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. The East and South Texas commercial bodies have joint hands also to support it.

This measure would validate all land lines and quiet titles against attacks by the estate involving all public lands conveyed by patent to citizens.

It is much more far-reaching than the Small land title validation bill that accompanied the stream-bed survey validation last year according to West Texans. It affects not only the stream bed surveys that were heretofore illegal because of the state's negligence, but all surveys which may now be subject to attack for vacancies, excess surveys or on other grounds.

"It simply will say that Texas must keep faith with those who in good faith bought land from the state, paid for and improved it," a representative of the West Texas organization said.

The Texas capital city Tuesday more than a back lot on the air maps of the nation.

In the dedication of Robert Mueller municipal airport, Austin placed upon the nation's airways a field of high rating; one lighted according to the highest standards of the government; as safe for night as for day use. The dedication committed formally to the use of transport and mail air service a field of over 240 acres, one adequate for all the increase of air traffic that the next four years can bring.

Emblems showing the modern field will be added to maps of the aerial arteries of the nation, and Austin will stand out alongside many other progressive Texas cities as thoroughly up-to-date in aviation.

An individual who came to the state board of education meeting to present a plea for drought relief after work of a West Texas committee headed by Editor Max Bentley of Abilene, and work of the state board of education is carried through to a promised prompt conclusion. The book revision committee of the board of education promised the West Texans that obsolete, inadequate, misleading and substantially false statements about Texas—the entire state—will be remedied within a year at least and with cooperation of book publishers, before any more of the out-of-date books are put into circulation.

Confab To Link Volts And Farm

COLLEGE STATION, Tex.—Use of electricity on the farm and in the farm home will hold the attention of a three-day rural electrification conference at the A. & M. College of Texas Oct. 30-Nov. 1. The conference will be the first of its sort ever held in Texas. It will be conducted under the direction of the agricultural engineering department of the college in cooperation with the Texas committee on the relation of electricity to agriculture.

Display of farm electrical equipment will be a feature of the conference. Indications are that about 5,000 square feet of display space in the college farm machinery laboratory will be used for showing the latest models of appliances suitable for use on the farm and in the farm home. P. T. Montfort, of the agricultural engineering department, who is chairman of arrangements for the conference, has announced. Ranges, refrigerators, washing machines, vacuum cleaners, farm equipment, water system equipment, feed grinders, milking machines and other equipment will be shown.

Dean F. C. Bolton of the school of engineering, vice chairman of the Texas committee, will preside at the opening session Thursday morning, Oct. 30. Prof. Dan Schoates, head of the agricultural engineering department will preside at the Thursday afternoon session. President T. O. Walton of the college will speak at the banquet the evening of Oct. 31.

KOOLMOTOR

the original high test, anti-knock green gas

WHEN we say "test by test, mile by mile, Koolmotor is the finest gasolene you can buy"—we mean it—it's a fact—we've proved it!

In the laboratory this thoroughbred among motor fuels must pass eleven of the most rigid quality tests ever applied to any gasolene—tests for starting, acceleration, anti-knock, power, vapor pressure, odor, corrosion, sulphur, gum content, distillation, and mileage.

Should a single gallon ever fail to meet any one of these eleven rigid tests, it is never offered for your use. You can bet on the fact that every gallon of Koolmotor Gasolene pumped from a green and white pump is full of unchallengeable service and quality—test by test, mile by mile.

Why be satisfied with a gasolene whose benefits end with a showy effect in one phase of performance? Insist on Koolmotor—the gas that gives perfect performance from the time you start your car until your foot calls a halt to your drive.

PRESCRIPTION use over 47 Years really Helps Bowels

Do you want this way of making your bowels behave? A doctor's way to make the bowels move so well that you feel better all over! Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin doesn't do anything to water, but it cleans you out without any shocking. It's only fresh laxative herbs a famous doctor found so good for the bowels, combined with pure pepsin and other harmless ingredients.

A doctor should know what is best for the bowels. Let Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin show you how easy you can train the bowels to move freely, every day, the way they should. It's wonderful the way this prescription works, but it's perfectly harmless; so you can use it whenever a coated tongue or headache tells you that you're constipated. Fine for children, too (it's so nice) and they ought to try a spoonful the minute they're fretful, feverish, or sluggish. It gives a sallow look.

You can get the original prescription Dr. Caldwell wrote so many years ago; your druggist keeps it ready in his bottles. Just ask for Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and use it always for constipation.

Negro Spirituals Calm Condemned Men In "Row"

By ROBERT A. ERWIN
United Press Staff Correspondent
RALEIGH, N. C.—"Swing Low Sweet chariot, comin' fo' to carry me home—"

"No harm, no harm—"

The strains of these famous southern negro spirituals came from the throats of many condemned men in North Carolina state prison here, before and during the march to the electric chair.

Religion—mainly southern negro religion—prepares them for their last walk down the narrow concrete floor and Eternity.

"Death Row" today. Two of them are there for safekeeping, as a precaution against possible mob violence. The others eventually will die in the old wooden electric chair, time worn after 20 years of service in 106 electrocutions, unless the supreme court or executive clemency saves them.

Harvey Lawrence, young negro who recently was electrocuted for first degree burglary, led the "Death Row" songsters on his last day of life. With Lawrence carrying the lead, 15 other voices joined in singing "No harm, no

General Sessions

Also, on Sunday afternoon the general session of the American Legion will be presided over by V. Earl Earp, who is the present executive committeeman from the 17th congressional district, and also is the state membership chairman of the American Legion for Texas. Hon. Hal Brennan, the present state commander of the Legion, Hon. Jimmie Allred, attorney general elect of Texas, Bob Whitaker, state adjutant of the American Legion will be present and appear on the afternoon program.

It is hoped to have Hon. Wright Patman, congressman from the Texas First District present at this meeting to present his plan for the cashing of the adjusted service certificate. Mr. Patman is the first man to present such a bill in congress for this, and will present it another in December for the same purpose. It is estimated that the cashing of these certificates would place into immediate circulation approximately four billions of dollars, and in this way help to pull the country out of the distress financial condition. That the United States Government could do this at this time without any increased burden of taxation.

Explanations by Hal Brennan and Ernest Cox will be made as to the American Legion aims and problems.

with Her manner, complacent and assured, conveyed the same impression.

Whomever she was expecting was late. Several times Evelyn glanced at the tiny wrist watch. Then, half way across the lobby she saw a man coming toward her.

Mrs. Parsons stood up. "How do you do?" she smiled, offering her hand.

"Evelyn, I'm sorry to be late. Caught in traffic. I'd have gotten here sooner if I'd walked, but I thought a cab would save time. I hope you'll forgive me!"

John Mitchell's apology was spoken sincerely.

"Don't think of it another moment," Evelyn told him. "I didn't mind waiting in the least."

"Let's go in to lunch at once." They entered an ivory and blue dining room that was cool and softly shaded.

"It's Nancy and Boyd Fraser," Evelyn said to Mitchell. "You know them, don't you?"

"Oh, I forgot. It was in Paris I met them. Don't they look happy together? One of the most devoted couples I've ever met. He's in real estate—Westchester company, I think. You know, I love to see them. Boyd simply adores his wife! That sort of affection seems such a novelty these days."

"Not at all you see, to me marriage is—well, such a sacred thing. That's why this frightful modern way of treating it lightly hurts me, I suppose. When I see couples who truly love each other and are not ashamed to admit it I can't help rejoicing."

Evelyn's gaze was sweet and pensive. Her eyes rested on Mitchell a moment, then she smiled. "Anyone else would think me a Victorian. I hope you don't, John."

"You never looked younger—or lovelier."

Before Evelyn could reply the waiter arrived with chilled fruit. Fortunately he arranged the service. When the man disappeared John Mitchell leaned forward.

"Do you remember that young fellow Celia spent so much time with the night of her birthday party? Jordan his name is—Todd Jordan. Remember she came home late? I'm sure I told you about it."

Mrs. Parsons nodded. "I remember," she said. Very tense and still she waited.

Mitchell applied a match to a cigarette before she spoke. He eyed the flame carefully.

"I've got a line on that young man," he said quietly. "Got it this morning."

McGregor Urges Voting For The Amendments

By RAYMOND BROOKS
AUSTIN, Oct. 23.—Former Sen. T. H. McGregor of Austin, nominating for the house in the next legislature, has issued an appeal for all voters to go to the polls Nov. 4 and cast ballots in support of the constitutional amendment to permit 17 West Texas counties to pay taxes on the University lands within their borders.

"Texas always has fought discriminatory taxes, but discrimination has existed in the state for 50 years in the university lands' paying nothing for county improvements in the counties where they are situated," Sen. McGregor pointed out. He declared the university land tax amendment is fair and will equalize the situation of the counties affected.

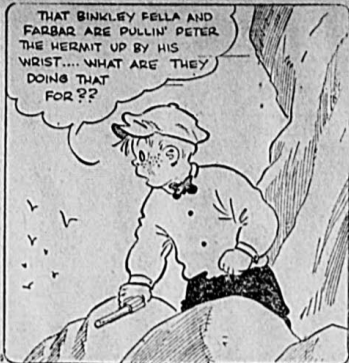

Ford Boring Tunnel Under City Streets

DETROIT, Oct. 23.—A tunnel which will supply the Ford Motor Company's Rouge plant with more water per day than is used by the cities of Detroit, Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Washington combined, is being bored 90 feet beneath the streets, creeks and railroads, on the western edge of Detroit.

paste comes from a tube. Workers slice off the putty-like mud and send it to the surface. The interior of the shaft is lined with steel blocks as the "shield" creeps forward and the tunnel lengthens.

The greatest care is necessary to take out only the amount of clay displaced by the tunnel-cylinder. Occasionally too much is removed through the square openings in the shield, and the street or land above sinks in consequence; or too little dirt is removed, which compresses the earth above and forces a bulge on the surface.

Woods accepted by wire Tuesday, wound up his business yesterday and arrived here from New York last evening. He was installed in offices in the commerce department today. President Hoover discussed the impending work for half an hour immediately after Woods' arrival and there was a later conference between Woods and secretary of commerce Lamont at the latter's home.

Woods ruled against expenditure of federal funds for charity—that is, the provision of food, clothing or shelter for the workless. The word was quick and definite "no."

Foreign Ports Ask For Texas Exports

SAN BENITO, Tex.—More than 29 inquiries have been received recently from various European countries for fresh and canned Texas grapefruit, Ernest L. Tutt, district manager of the U. S. department of commerce at Houston, has reported.

The reports have come from large firms in England, France,

Germany, Norway, Denmark, Sweden and the Netherlands, Tutt states.

While this year's crop will not be large enough to warrant exports in any considerable volume, efforts are going to be made to make sufficient shipments to maintain the interest that has been aroused in foreign markets.

When trees now growing come into bearing annual production will be 10,000 or 15,000 carloads and shippers will depend to a certain extent on foreign markets for handling their crop.

HENDERSON, Tex.—Four years of dairying development in the territory served by the East Texas Chamber of Commerce are reviewed by C. C. Teller of Henderson, chairman of the regional organization's agricultural committee, in an article in the October or fourth annual dairying number of "East Texas."

"Four years ago there was not a single milk-products plant in Texas, and, speaking of the state as a whole, the vicious one-crop system of farming held almost undisputed sway," Teller says.
