MOODY RECEIVES DROUTH COMMITTEE

Members Will See Sterling In Near Future

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 21.—An appeal to Ross Sterling, democratic nominee for governor, to get his assent to a special session of the legislature will be made as the result of a drouth relief conference held here today by West Texas bankers and farmers with Governor Dan Moody. Guy Dalbey of Eastland county, chairman of the committee that visited Governor Moody, is to confer with Sterling.

Sterling's assent would remove an obstacle to a call of the legislature after Nov. 4. Governor Moody said he doubted that a quorum of the old legislature would attend a session called before that time was expressed by Governor Moody. The committee offered to get out a questionnaire to the members and see if a quorum will pledge attendance.

Lack of state available funds was advanced by Governor Moody as another obstacle. His visitors expressed assurance that backed with the credit of the state, funds can be obtained.

Governor Moody and members of the committee differed on the likelihood of early federal appropriation. Committee members declared more immediate steps are needed.

Governor Moody neither directly refused a call of the legislature nor agreed to such a call. Offers Alternative As an alternative Governor Moody proposed that the counties issue warrants that could be taken up by the local banks and the county use the fund for relief. Some of the counties and cities, picked up such a plan should first be tried. In some sections, it was said, that even the banks could not furnish the fund to the county without prospect of outside relief.

Governor Moody said he had not discussed a special session with Ross Sterling other than to mention it as a possibility. He did not recall Sterling having expressed any view upon it.

Doleful pictures of conditions were pictured in some sections. The governor was told that the most serious areas were in the counties of Ross, Sterling and others to mention it as a possibility. He did not recall Sterling having expressed any view upon it.

Muskegon Urges Other Cities To Try Their Plan

MUSKEGON, Mich., Oct. 21.—The drive by Muskegon clubmen to end the "buyers' strike" and bring about a return of prosperity through a "spend a million a week" campaign was so successful that merchants today urged adoption of similar drives in other cities.

Incomplete reports from representative business houses disclosed that business increased several times during the campaign week, that stocks were depleted, old bills paid, hundreds of thousands of dollars of idle money put into circulation and the way cleared for the business men to aid manufacturers by purchasing new goods.

During the campaign, which was started by President L. H. Reids of the Kiwanis Club, 200 members of seven clubs pledged themselves to spend $100 each.

Important Tax Question Before Supreme Court

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The government prepared today to argue one of the most important tax cases of recent years before the supreme court in the so-called "community property" cases. The court's decision, when rendered, will effect the income tax returns of thousands of married couples in Washington, Texas, Louisiana and Arizona.

The government lost test cases in each of those states and the respective collectors of internal revenue are bringing the appeals. The lower courts in each instance held that under the community property laws of states involved husband and wife might file a separate income tax return on his or her share of their combined income.

The government contends the income tax must be paid entirely by the husband on community income and the return filed by him. In each of the cases appealed the filing of separate returns resulted in a substantial saving to the taxpayers.

Scores Killed In An Explosion In German Mine

AACHEN, Germany, Oct. 21.—An official muster of workers the Wilhelm mine pit which was wrecked by an explosion early today showed that 255 men were missing. An official announcement said sixty others had perished in the disaster.

Intense confusion as hundreds of relatives rushed to the mine made the work of checking the casualties difficult. While some 2,000 men were reported at work in the pit at the time of the blast, it was believed that many of them reached the ground through connections with other pits and tunnels in the large mining area.

Estimates of the dead and injured varied from a few dozens to hundreds. More than 60 were known to have been injured. Estimates of the dead and injured varied from a few dozens to hundreds. More than 60 were known to have been injured.

The cause of the explosion was not determined, but the ignition of an explosives depot some 800 feet beneath the ground was given officially as a possible cause. It was believed also that fire damp might have caused the blast.

The disaster was at first reported one of the worst of its kind in the history of the Aix-La-Chapelle region, scene of numerous mine accidents in the past.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 21.—Deciding to commit suicide, R. L. Dunn, who weighs 250 pounds, tied a rope around his neck, the other end to a light fixture, and jumped out of a chair. All he did was pull out the fixture.

Then he cut his throat. That didn't kill him, so he slashed his wrists, then his elbows. Two detectives and a doctor were called. They decided he was dead.

As they stood at his bedside, Dunn suddenly "came to life," jumped up and began fighting them. They subdued and handcuffed him.

"Aw, take off the handcuffs," said Dunn, "I used to be a detective myself."

The doctor said Dunn will recover. The detectives slouched their best, but said they couldn't find any reason for the attempted suicide.

Police Seeking Trail Of Four Dallas Bandits

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 21.—The trail of four bandits who staged a daring $15,000 bank robbery and were near $16,000 as hundreds of eyes looked on had apparently obliterated today.

As they widened the scope of their search, police admitted that definite prospects of apprehending the bandits was in sight.

W. W. Moore, cashier of the Terminal company, and his escort in transporting the money to a bank, were out of danger from the wounds received as they were slugged.

Three suspects have been arrested, two of whom were released, and the third was practically eliminated of the possibility of participation in the crime, police said.

A squadron of heavily armed officers wearing bullet proof vests armed empty handed to headquarters this morning after an hour search of virtually every alleyway in Dallas county.

Deprived of their only concrete clue, the license number of a car in which the bandits escaped, by information that the car was stolen, police were under the handicap of vague descriptions furnished by excited spectators.

PORT WORTH, Tex., Oct. 21.—Three men with a machine gun in Port Worth Monday may have been the trio who slugged an employe of the Union Terminal company at Dallas and escaped with more than $16,000, police believe today.

A negro employed at the Texas Pacific shops noticed the three men with a machine gun going east on the Stove Foundry road a large sedan about two hours after the stick up in Dallas.

He said the man on the back seat of the auto had a machine gun in his lap.

A motorman on the Arlington line noticed a sedan carrying three men and a machine gun Sunday night, and reported the same number to police. It was an Oklahoma number.

The men left the scene of the robbery in Dallas in a small sedan with a Texas license plate, issued by Wood county, East Texas. Police expressed the belief that they might have switched autos before leaving Dallas.

Campbell Goes On Trial In Baker Murder WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—The government's attempt to solve the Mary Baker murder mystery to the satisfaction of a jury begins today with opening of the trial of Herbert M. Campbell on an indictment charging him with killing the attractive stenographer clerk.

Mary Baker was a Virginia clergyman's daughter, one of the hundreds of pretty young women who daily go about the routine of government service. She lived quietly, known and liked by a little group of friends.

But on the morning of April 12 last, Miss Baker did not appear as usual at her desk. A few hours later she was found slain, her body sprawled in a culvert in nearby Virginia.

Campbell, a married Virginia real estate dealer, is the fifth man against whom a first-degree murder charge has been brought in the efforts of authorities to solve the case. He blames his predicament on a desire to get publicity for a miniature golf course he was promoting.

The principal evidence against Campbell is his admitted possession of a revolver which two ballistic experts have identified as the murder weapon.

TRUE CHIVALRY.

"Scoutcraft has proved its worth in Marshall," says a story in today's news.

A 14-year-old Boy Scout, working as a delivery boy, heard the screams of a child while delivering a package to a residence. He ran to the source of the cries, found a baby smothered in the garments in which its mother had left it. Applying the science that he had learned as a Scout he resuscitated the infant. When the hysterically happy parents made up a reward for the youth he refused it with dignity. "A Scout does not accept tips for his service," he said. "I am glad I could help."

If Scoutcraft does that sort of thing to boys isn't it worth while? There is something thrilling about that story. In the face of all that has been said about young America today it makes us feel that chivalry and nobility are not things to be read of in books but qualities that live among us yet. America can place confidence in boys of that caliber, boys whose ideals transcend what is mercenary and venial, who hold steadfastly to the three cardinal principles that are symbolized by the Scout salute. America can thank God for such boys and for the organization that teaches them such ideals. May they hold fast to these principles into manhood, not forgetting their glorious ideals when they have aged beyond the impressionable periods of their Scout service.

THIRTY-SIX THOUSAND LIVES.

The United States is on its way toward establishing a new high record for deaths due to the automobile, according to a well-known authority. It is forecast that at the end of 1930 the total of casualties will be 36,000—several thousand more than were killed last year, when the present tragic record was established.

Recklessness and carelessness are still the modern "rules of the road." Hundreds of thousands of incompetents are allowed full use of the public highways.

This last factor—that of incompetence—is probably largely responsible for our gigantic record of fatalities. Only a few states have laws requiring strict examination of applicants for drivers' licenses. Fortunately, there is a trend toward such laws throughout the nation and when every state has and enforces them at least partial success in accident prevention will be achieved.

Another crying need, in most states, is for modernization and revision of traffic ordinances. Up-to-date, enforceable codes that would be supported by the public, are essential to highway safety.

We have no more serious problem than that of automobile accident prevention. It affects every citizen and is a vital element in the life of every community.

Army Planes To Drop Explosives On a Mountain

POST FIELD, Lawton, Okla., Oct. 21—Three giant army Curtiss Condor bombers, loaded with enough explosive to blast a city from the earth, stood ready today to test a new implement of modern warfare.

Low clouds and drizzling rains kept the planes and picked fliers of the Eleventh Bombing Squadron from Rockwell Field, San Diego, on the ground. At the first lift in the clouds, they will soar high over the granite capped Wichita Mountains and release their cargoes of destruction just to see what will happen.

Signal Mountain, a granite hill on the artillery range, has been selected as the target because property destruction resulted when bombs were dropped at great altitudes at the Aberdeen, Md., proving grounds.

The explosive to be tested is one developed since the world war. It is a 2000 pound TNT bomb with a delayed action fuse. The primary test is to determine if this high explosive, dropped from a 15,000 foot altitude, will not detonate until set off by the fuse. If the missile explodes at impact, further tests will be made.

NEW YORK, Oct. 21—Stocks declined 1 to more than 8 points today, trading around the two million share level.

United States Steel was brought down to within a fraction of its low for the year of 144 1/2 and new lows for the year were made by such issues as Westinghouse Electric, General Electric, Illinois Central, Nash Motors, Public Service of New Jersey, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Atlantic Refining.

Heavy pressure centered on the electrical equipments, Westinghouse Electric dropped more than 3 points on its report for the first nine months. During that period the dividend of $3.75 was earned by a margin of 50c a share, but in the third quarter the company failed to earn its dividend. The latter fact worked against the issue and was one reason for the decline in prices generally.

The market slipped off after an irregular opening and continued to decline most of the day. In the afternoon Pure Oil Company passed its dividend and this brought heavier selling. Oils lost 1 to more than 3 points. Standard of New Jersey drifted toward the 50 mark. A year ago after the issue touched 48, it was given support in the form of a million share order at 50, said to have been made for the Rockefeller.

Rebel Leader Is Given Welcome Through Brazil

Editors Note—A. W. Folger of the Buenos Aires bureau of the United Press has crossed the Brazilian rebel states of Rio Grande do Sul and Santa Catharina and is now in the center of the state of Sao Paulo. Both rebels and federals have mobilized forces in this area for the impending battle for possession of Sao Paulo, rich Brazilian state and federal stronghold. By A. W. FOLGER United Press Staff Correspondent (Copyright, 1930, by United Press) PONTA GROSSO, Parana, Brazil, Oct. 21—The progress of Getulio Vargas through Brazilian rebel territory has been triumphant.

Vargas, rebel leader and president of the state of Rio Grande do Sul, has reached the heart of Parana on his way to assume command of the rebel forces on the Parana-Sao Paulo front.

Crossing two rebel states on Vargas' presidential train, I have witnessed the wild welcome given the rebel leader and his military staff. Bands have played, crowds have cheered, and women have showered flowers on the presidential party at every town through which Vargas has passed.

Vargas told me that the revolution was progressing faster than his leaders had anticipated. Young men have been concentrated at convenient points for military training while older volunteers with military experience are concentrated on the front, he said.

Vargas denied reports that men were being forced to join the rebels, and said that, contrarily, the services of many volunteers had been regretfully declined. He said that the rebels have a well equipped army. "We are in a position not only to repel aerial attacks by federal forces, but to make strong counter-attacks," he said. "We have prohibited the sending of private radio messages in the desire to prevent the dissemination of false reports, such as the reported capitalization of Florianopolis," Vargas said. Florianopolis, island capital of the state of Santa Catharina, is the only point in southern Brazil where federal forces have been concentrated.

Turkeys Hit New Low For Many Seasons This Year

GUERO, Tex., Oct. 21—The traditional board should decorate the table of more homes than in a goodly number of years at Thanksgiving a bit more than a month hence. In this village which terms itself "the turkey capital of the nation" the price was quoted at 12 cents a pound. In stock market parlance that's a new low for many seasons. Packing plant operators said they expected an advance to probably 18 cents, however, when the holiday market opens on Nov. 7. Growers were urged to hold their flocks and market only the choicest birds at present to uphold the prestige of the output here. Experts predicted a normal crop, despite drought conditions and low prices.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 21—Promises made by Ross Sterling, democratic nominee for governor, when he was chairman of the state highway commission, were pressed upon the commission at its session here yesterday for fulfillment but met decided opposition. A Potter county delegation headed by E. O. Thompson of Amarillo said that Sterling had promised state aid in building an underpass there for highways 5, 23 and 75 under two railroads. W. R. Ely, who succeeded Sterling as chairman of the commission announced opposition to the state aiding such projects inside city limits. The matter was taken under advisement.

Gonzales county was allotted $45,000 state aid in regrading highway 29 from Gonzales to the Caldwell county line. Brazos county was promised early work on roads there for which bonds have been issued. Bids were ordered on the work. Early reconstruction of part of highway one west of Greenville also was promised.

Tate Favors Al Smith As Dallas City-Manager

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 21—"Me for Al" was the slogan Mayor J. Wadley Tate heralded today, as he urged the selection of the former Governor Al Smith of New York as the first city-manager of Dallas. A corporation with a plant investment of over 610,000,000 justifies the employment of the best managerial ability to be found, argued Mayor Tate, adding that a stipend of $50,000 per year should likewise prove desirable to the former democratic standard bearer.

WILL DRILL DEEPER GREAT CAREY WELL

In the vicinity of the biggest ever drilled in the Eastland field, drilling on a very important well will be resumed as the muddy condition of the well enables the tools to be run to the well. It is Donley & Co.'s J. R. Coody and was drilled to a depth of 2,300 feet to the straw sand, which was found to be productive. It has been decided to drill on to the Caddo, which is found at approximately 350 feet.

This well is on a farm that comes on the Carey lease where the oil is produced in the Pacific and Texas. The Carey well has produced 18,000 barrels of oil a day and is still producing after 12 years.

The Coody well is 20 miles north of Ranger, near Caddo.

HERE'S HOW FRENCH SCIENTIST PLANS TO HARNESS SEA TO DO WORLD'S WORK

By NEA Service HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 13.—Prof. Georges Claude, the busy French scientist who believes he can put the warm waters of the gulf stream to work for mankind on an enormous scale, and who has spent most of his life prying into the obscure corners of the domain of science, may at last be on the verge of a development of far-reaching consequences.

Claude is now close to the point where he can learn definitely whether his scheme to generate power from the sea is practical. He has succeeded in sinking a mile long tube into the sea at Matanzas, after spending a million dollars in three attempts. He is confident that the result will be a revolutionary development in industrial engineering.

If he succeeds it will mean that the human race is forever freed of its fear of exhausting its supplies of fuel. It may mean a new economic order and industrial upheaval.

How Plan Works Prof. Claude's scheme, puzzling to the average newspaper reader, is after all fairly simple.

"There are two water supplies of unlimited quantities and unvarying temperatures throughout the year in the tropic oceans," he explains. "There are the surface waters which retain the temperature varying between 75 and 85 degrees Fahrenheit; then the water found below the surface at a depth of 1000 yards or more, of a constant temperature of 40 degrees Fahrenheit."

Temperature represents energy and so this difference in temperature levels represents a supply of latent energy which Claude proposes to use.

Claude proposes to harness the tropic ocean on a principle similar to that in an ordinary steam engine. But in a steam engine the water is boiled and turned into steam by heating it with fire. Claude proposes to do it by substituting a vacuum for fire.

His scheme is to introduce the warm surface waters into a chamber in which a vacuum has been created. The boiling point of water depends entirely upon the air pressure above it. Water, for example, boils at 212 degrees at sea level, but at so low a temperature on a high mountain that it is not sufficiently hot to boil an egg.

Bulls at 78 Degrees The vacuum, says Claude, will cause the surface water to boil at a temperature approximately 78 degrees. The steam thus formed would be used to turn a turbine.

From the turbine the steam would pass into a condenser. Here is where the mile-long tube comes in. This tube, extending as well as the depth of the sea, would bring water at a temperature of 40 degrees. This cold water would then be turned into the condenser.

This would then condense the steam (contraction) would create a new vacuum, causing more water to boil or turn into steam and so, according to Claude, the engine would keep itself in operation indefinitely.

Claude says that each cubic foot of water will furnish 17 pounds of steam energy, that it is feasible to build an engine using 35,000 cubic feet of water per second. Such an engine, he says, would furnish 300,000 horsepower.

The cost of such plants would be about equal to the cost of modern hydro-electric power plants, with their dams, etc.

Is Famous Inventor This plan for getting unlimited power from the sea—a plan that sounds almost like perpetual motion—is only one of many intricate problems Claude has applied himself to in his busy career. In his boyhood the remarkable fictional inventions of Jules Verne captivated him and as a man he has sought to match these imaginative inventions with real ones. He has succeeded so well that today there is more than $150,000,000 invested in his inventions, $60,000,000 of which is American capital.

The government's enormous accumulation of nitrogen apparatus at Muscle Shoals, Ala., is based on a process he devised. Nearly every big chemical plant in the world is indebted to him for some method now in daily use.

It was Claude who learned how to get neon gas from the air—and who showed what could be done with it once it had been extracted. The bright neon lights that are such common features of modern cities are due to Claude's research.

Developed Acetylene Gas It was he who changed acetylene gas from a costly laboratory curiosity to a cheap commercial product and thus brought on acetylene welding.

Claude is also famous for having devised a process for the synthetic manufacture of ammonia. Incidentally, the trans-Atlantic telephone and the telephoto process by which pictures are transmitted to this newspaper by wire, use neon tubes as an integral part of their machinery.

During the World War Claude was busy in the service of the French government. He mixed liquid oxygen with lampblack to produce a powerful explosive. It was so dangerous that its use was not allowed, but Claude enlisted and used such bombs himself. He perfected a device by which airplane observers could locate enemy batteries through sound waves. He was able to liquefy chlorine gas for the manufacture of poisonous gas shells. These feats won him the order of the Legion of Honor.

His plan for generating power from sea water, however may prove more revolutionary than all the rest of his discoveries. Places like Cuba and Florida might become industrial centers if his idea turns out to be as practical as he believes it will.

Two Miners Are Killed As Train Falls In Shaft

JOHNSTON, Pa., Oct. 20.—Two miners were killed and 37 injured today when a coupling broke and loosed a train of cars carrying approximately 100 men to work in the Sonnan Shaft Coal Company mine at Portage, near here.

Michael Haschack, 22, and George Puchlik, 45, both of Portage, were the dead. They leaped from the cars and were killed instantly.

There were 24 cars in the string. The coupling of one broke as the cars reached a steep grade in the mine shaft. Thirteen of the cars broke away and plunged down the steep grade for a distance of 1200 feet.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—William McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, has proposed that the farm board's 60,000,000 bushels of surplus wheat be used to feed unemployed persons this winter.

"The farm board, using the money of the taxpayers of the United States, has bought some 60,000,000 bushels of wheat, which it is holding presumably for a higher price. This can come about only through a general lifting of the price level for wheat. Certainly there is no prospect that the government will soon be able to market its holding of wheat at a higher price or even at the purchase price. Why then should it be hoarded instead of

Ross S. Sterling, as governor, will take steps to reunite democratic factions in Texas to equalize taxes, and solve penitentiary problems, and will have "perfect harmony" with the legislature, Sen. Walter C. Woodward of Coleman predicted here.

Sen. Woodward disavowed conflict in the senate over his proposition for Sen. Walter F. Woodliff to be named a resident pro tem, of the senate. Sen. Woodliff will not stand as a candidate and Sen. Carl C. Hardin, next in line under the seniority rule, "will no doubt be elected by the unanimous vote of the senate," Sen. Woodward said. The suggestion of Woodliff's selection was made by him before he knew of the move to name Sen. Hardin, and was withdrawn when he learned of the Stephenville man's seniority standing, he said.

Sen. Woodward's statement was predicted a successful administration for Lieutenant Gov. Edgar E. Witt and joined Witt in urging adoption of the pending constitutional amendment to reform legislative procedure. The legislative amendment will save the people money by doing away with many special sessions, and will provide better legislative service, he declared.

"I look forward," he said, "to a successful administration under the leadership of Mr. Sterling. I have no intimation from any source of any discord or any dissatisfaction."

"The senate and house will, I think, work in perfect harmony with Mr. Sterling. I predict one of the most harmonious sessions of the legislature in recent years. I know Mr. Sterling will invite harmony and will put forth his every effort to reunite the various party factions so that the people of Texas will profit by reason of his leadership. He has the interest of the people at heart, and is a kind of wonderful business ability and judgment."

"I believe he will put forth every effort to equalize the tax system and to readjust the tax system so that those least able to pay will be relieved of whatever unjust burden they now bear."

"I see no possible conflict over penitentiary matters. The present manager, Mr. Simmons, is doing a wonderful work, and with a man of Mr. Sterling's business ability and his determination to work out the problems of the penitentiary system, I believe the troublesome penitentiary matters will be solved, at least for the next few years."

venture enters the life of Celia Mitchell, 17, when she learns whether she has supposed dead father and wealthy. She leaves her present home in Baltimore to live in New York with her mother, John Mitchell, and her aristocratic grandmother.

Her mother, Mrs. Parsons, is in love with the young man who is to marry her before leaving Baltimore and promised to be loyal to his father.

Mitchell asks Evelyn Parsons, a beautiful widow, to introduce the young man to her. Parsons, considering Celia a means to get rid of the girl, introduces Celia to Tod Jordan, a fascinating but of dubious character, and does all she can to bring the match. Lisa Duncan, prominent, becomes Celia's friend.

Mitchell learns Jordan is paying attention to her and forbids her to see him. Celia offends her grandmother and the elderly Mitchell feigns illness and goes to rest. The girl goes to Parsons' Long Island home for a lengthy visit. There Jordan frequently, Mitchell arrives to propose marriage to Mrs. Parsons when Celia is present. Next day when Parsons offers her does not introduce subject. Celia and Jordan go to supper club to dance and encounter Eve Brooks. The marriage does not interfere with the situation.

"Once or twice. Not remember," Jordan looked away as she spoke.

"Well, I think it's lovely here, and you brought me!"

"Better order before we dance, do you want?"

Celia looked over the menu card made her selection. Jordan the order to the waiter, who disappeared.

The orchestra leader at the far end of the room raised his baton, first bars of "In Monterey" led out on the air. The leader a blond youth, slim and with high face. Now he raised his baton and was singing the "It's our song!"

"What do you mean?"

Before Celia could explain a laugh interrupted.

and then the youth known as Frederick sat down. He was wildly good looking in a way which did not differentiate him from hundreds of other young men.

"That's good music," Tod Jordan said. He appeared ill at ease. "Shall we dance?"

"I'd love to!" Eve was on her feet at once. Celia glanced up, startled. She was sure Tod had not meant to ask Eve to dance the first dance with him. Already they were moving away in the crowd.

"Will you dance, Miss Mitchell?"

Celia smiled. She rose and slipped into Frederick Ward's arms.

They were first to return to the table. Eve and Tod appeared a minute later. Eve was laughing and Jordan's face was white. He looked angry. He did not sit down, but made an excuse. Something about getting cigarettes, which was ridiculous because the waiter would have brought them.

Eve eyed the young man's back as he disappeared. Then her lips set in a hard line.

"How yourself out, Frederick," she said. "I want to talk to Celia."

How well you're looking tonight, my dear.

"I'm glad you think so." "Oh, you look marvelous. You should always wear white, darling. It gives you that innocent, childish appearance."

"But I don't want to look childish!" "Nonsense! Of course you do. It fits your temperament perfectly. You should have my name. You know—the Little Eve type! Don't you think that's delightful?"

Eve threw her head back and laughed. It was a favorite gesture of hers, throwing into profile the fine white line of her throat.

The girl stirred uncomfortably. "Really, Eve," she said, "do I seem so awfully old-fashioned?" Her companion laughed again.

"My dear, you're precious! One would actually think you did it unconsciously. Of course I know you don't! No one could be so angelic in reality. That's why I think it's so dreaming to see you with Tod."

Celia straightened.

Democrats Have Small Chance Of Gaining Control

By PAUL R. MALLON
United Press Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Oct. 20—Democrats can win control of the senate only by a landslide sweep of ten republican seats in the congressional election two weeks from tomorrow.

The size of this task is measured by the reports being privately collected by campaign headquarters of the two parties here which indicate that only 13 out of the 35 senatorial contests are considered doubtful.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON—The war over electric power, to which the general public pays little attention but which is almost constantly in progress here, is expected to break out again in spectacular fashion after Congress reconvenes in December. It always does.

Foes of the "power trust" are intensely excited over a recent ruling by Attorney General Mitchell which they believe virtually nullifies the effect of the federal water power act under which the government exercises certain control over water power sites on navigable streams, which are under federal jurisdiction.

This opinion, rendered to President Hoover after it had originally been sought by Executive Secretary F. E. Bonner of the Federal Power Commission, held that the commission had the right to issue "minor project" licenses for power sites on the New River in Virginia to the Appalachian Power Company of New York, a subsidiary of Electric Bond & Share.

The commission could do this by declaring the New river to be non-navigable. It has always been considered navigable. With a license for a "minor project," the power company would escape inspections of accountants and other provisions of the water power act which were designed to safeguard the interests of the public when power sites were turned over to private interests.

Fear Result
It is charged that if the power commission now sets such a precedent in the New river case, federal control over about 90 per cent of the people's power sites will be destroyed, including nearly all large projects in the east.

Worshippers Of Sun God Held Observe Eclipse

ANAHA, Niuaou (Tin Can) Island, Oct. 21.—Brown-skinned Polynesians, who list the sun-god Ra among their deities, helped world famous astronomers check the accuracy of the Einstein theory today during a total solar eclipse. Long before the sun's light began fading at 9:09 a. m. (3:39 p. m. E. S. T.) scientists and sun worshippers were standing by, ready to swing some 50 tons of scientific instruments into action and determine whether light is subject to the laws of gravity. The Polynesians were paid in candy and tobacco for carrying the apparatus to the top of a 100-foot cliff. It only was several weeks ago that they became friendly with the scientists and agreed to work for them. Each of the astronomers who came to this wilderness of the South Seas to study a phenomenon that lasted only 92 seconds was assigned to a special task and each had his native assistants. The assignments were made by the United States Naval Observatory which sponsored the expedition and was assisted by scientists from Swarthmore, Ohio Wesleyan and the University of Virginia. Among the observers was Professor S. A. Mitchell, director of the Leander McCormick Observatory of the University of Virginia. This will be the eighth total eclipse of the sun that Mitchell has witnessed. With him was his associate, H. P. Fales of Pasadena, California. A 65-foot camera was used by the University of Virginia party in taking pictures of the phenomenon. It is an Einstein camera and

Agency of the problem of protecting the workers from the rigors of an unsheltered winter is indicated here by the growth of bread lines and the sudden move fortunately placed citizens to supply themselves with overcoats and heavier clothing. For most of the area of the United States winter is here or is hurrying on the way. Secretaries Lamont, Hyde, Wilbur, Davis, Hurley and Mellon, and Governor Meyer of the federal reserve board, comprise Mr. Hoover's committee. It was summoned by chairman Lamont to meet after today's cabinet session. When the shadow of unemployment closed over upwards of 4,000,000 Americans in 1921, President Harding appointed an unemployment committee headed by Mr. Hoover its chairman. In general the program of that group is applicable to the current problem. Mr. Hoover estimated afterward he and his colleagues had arranged employment of from 1,500,000

Three Million Jobs Sought By Administration

By LYLE C. HOKS AND SLIDES

My Giants THE New York Giants that I picked to win the National League chase did not win any chase, as you well know. But they wound up the season snuggly in third place, a game behind the Cubs and three notches away from the championship. The nice part of it, not from my own standpoint particularly, but from a New Yorker's, is that the Giants crosed under the wire with their noses in front of those pesky Brooklyn Robins, their bitterest enemies from the opening song. I still think that if Brooklyn had been barred from the league this season, my Giants would have won. Looking back over it all, the Giants were a great collection, now weren't they? They put on more dramatic drives, more complete collapses in crucial spots, more sensational hitting, pitching and fielding feats and more agonizing inconsistencies of baseball than any other club. You have to agree that they were interesting.

Memphis Bill Terry WHILE the boys are renewing acquaintances back home in Gretna, La.; Meeker, Okla.; Arcadia, Calif.; Somerville, Mass., and other out-of-the-way places, I've been having a lot of fun mulling over the statistics after Memphis Bill Terry's name. Big Bill did some noteworthy things with hits but in the season just closed. First of all, unofficial averages show that he hit .401 to lead the league in batting. Secondly, he registered 254 base hits, which figure tied the National League mark recorded a year ago by Frank (Lefty) O'Doul of the Phillies. Thirdly, he established himself as the first Giant to hit 400 or better for a season. Lastly, he was the first Giant to win the batting championship, since Larry Doyle turned the trick with an average of .320 back in 1915.

Flatbush Flattery UNCLE WILBERT (ROUND ROBIN) ROBINSON gave those Flatbushers plenty to be proud of this season, too. They didn't win any pennants, to be sure, but they perched at the top longer than any of the rest, unless you count the Cardinals' roosting to 2,500,000 persons. Edward J. Byrne, 1921 secretary and probable secretary of the new group, told the United Press the experience and organization developed in the 1921 conference would materially simplify the problem this winter. There is every indication that the present of drought relief to states or municipalities as great responsibility as is possible in the solution of unemployment.

Federal Funds For this purpose approximately $500,000,000 has been authorized by congress for expenditure on federal buildings. If this vast sum could be immediately translated into offices, hospital equipment and other public property, it would go far toward relieving the workless. But at the treasury today the United Press was informed it would be possible to spend any such amount this winter.

Plans must be drawn, sites purchased and other preliminary work performed before much of this fund can be touched. A somewhat similar situation exists with respect to road building. Congress has authorized payment of $172,000,000 to states for road work. The states must match this fund dollar for dollar. That would increase the total to $344,000,000. But authorities do not believe it likely that so large a road building program could be inaugurated within the next 12 months.

Tourney Shows Midget Golf Is Not For Midgets

By UNITED PRESS CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Oct. 21.—Midget golf is not a game for midgets, competitors in the National Pee Wee Golf Tournament decided as they prepared for second round play today. First round play resulted in the elimination of the only real "Tom Thumb" entry—Herbert Barnett, who stands 45 inches high in his shoes and weighs 50 pounds. Barnett came from Greensboro, N. C. to try his luck with the amateurs and professionals from all over the country on the Fairyland miniature golf course on Lookout Mountain, but he forgot to bring along his private putter. Barnett had to be content with a regulation putter and it proved his undoing. Whenever he stopped up to drive the ball all of ten yards to the green the handle of his club got tangled up in his necktie or bumped into his chin, with the result he took 85 strokes to make the 18 holes, 25 above the qualifying mark.

J. I. Scott, Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. Murray Roney, Chattanooga, led the men's and women's divisions respectively at the end of the first round. Scott had a 53 and Mrs. Roney a 58 on the par 55 course. Twelve players scored holes-in-one. The winner will get $2,000 and the runner up $1,000. A total of 131 players remain in the tournament. They will play 36 holes today and 18 holes in the final round tomorrow.

Landward Favors Land Amendment To Constitution

By UNITED PRESS COLEMAN, Tex., Oct. 20.—State Senator Walter Woodward of Coleman today announced his approval of the university land amendment to be voted on in the November elections. I will favor the land amendment as a means of adjusting the situation and equalizing the burden of the University of the 253 counties of Texas," Woodward said.

Terrier Dog At Dog Show

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 20.—Florence Superb, wire-haired terrier, today possessed the highest award of the twenty-fourth annual dog show of the Texas Kennel Club. Florence received its coronation from no less a person than J. Waddy Tate, mayor of Dallas, who officiated at the canine ceremonies. Florence is owned by Lewis G. Spence, and is a product of the Leyspen Kennels here. "Oh, how I've been waiting for this splendor was a half-pound Chihuahua, probably one of the smallest dogs ever seen here.

way to stop her." Jordan gave a wry grin. "O way to start her, you mean?" "Why, Tod, you talk as though..." "See here, did we come out quarrel about Eve Brooks? You'd better powder your nose and fix your hair and then we'll go in. Seems to me I ordered something to eat several hours ago." Meekly Celia opened her eyes and dusted her face with tiny puffs. They returned to dining room. One darting look at Celia that Eve had disappeared. "Where's the waiter?" Jordan found the man who had taken order, told him to bring a second. Afterward they danced, but fine edge off he evening had dulled. It was early when they returned to Larchwood. Jordan said good night and left immediately. An hour later he entered living room of Eve Brooks apartment. "Well," he said angrily, "you've taken to telling tales!" (To Be Continued)

Sue's Letter to Ann Eastland Shop Talk

Dear Ann:

Hop in the old bus and go hunt yourself some bargains. You won't find a shop full of exceptional values. I know because I've seen them. That new hat you've been wanting is waiting for you at the United Dry Goods Store. They have just received a shipment of French felt, velvet and fur body hats that are the last word in style and quality. The off-face models are strikingly becoming, and then there's plenty of brims, tiny and wide, if you'd rather have them. Some are fur and lace trimmed, and they are shown in the jangling colors, black, brown, dark green, and red. You'll adore the clever, little, close-fitting felts. They're always good, and really, they're the very thing to go with your sport suits.

Oh! I'm so thrilled. I got Betty the darriestest wedding present you ever saw. It's the most beautiful table lamp with an oval pottery base and a parchment shade. The shade is gorgeous, all pointed in the gayest, brightest colors on a sort of fan background. I know she'll be crazy about it; anybody would. I found it at the Eastland Furniture Exchange, and they have two sizes, 14x17 inches and 16x22 inches. Their very special prices are $24.50 and $42.50. I'm all cozy and warm by a Toasted Heater from the Eastland Furniture Exchange. There's no heater quite like it. It's a full clay back with twelve burners, and we only paid $18.55 for it. This heater has never been priced nearly so low before.

What do you think I found at Tombs and Richardson Drug Store? It's just what we need for our school girl complexions. Dorothy Gray, Helena Rubenstein and Elizabeth Arden cosmetics, are carried exclusively by Tombs and Richardson. You can get anything you want in these lines, face powder, rouge, lipstick, creams, bath salts and perfume. Oh, you never saw such darling vanities, all shapes and sizes.

Oh! Boy, I got a swell surprise last night, a big box of Whitman's candy. Is it good? Well, you don't need to ask, because you see it's Whitman's, the prestige chocolate, and the world's best. I know it came from Betty's Drug Store, because it is the exclusive Whitman dealer here. Whitman's is the real sweet, and that's no mistake.

Take a tip from yours truly and see the good looking new fall dresses at Wolf's. If they aren't the smartest things you've seen anywhere this season, then I'm all wrong. There's every kind you can possibly imagine, and you'll sport dresses and three piece suits. I want you to know that there is a dress for every occasion. You'll look keen in them I know, and there's any and all of the leading fall colors. I've just got to have one of them to wear to the ball game Saturday.

Listen, be sure and see "Sweethearts and Wives" at the Lyric Theatre today or Wednesday. It's a mystery romance and believe me it's plenty exciting. Billie Dove is American beauty in the making. Screen is at her best in this one, and the cast also includes Sydney Blackmer, Leola Hyams and Clive Brook. "Sweethearts and Wives" is primarily a drama, but has many sparkling comedy moments. You'll get a big kick out of the comedy lyrics. Every hour spent at the Lyric is 60 full minutes of wholesome entertainment.

Say, I will be able to get away any time that you come over. Dad bought a new Ford car for himself so the family car will be here at all times for mother and me. And listen, I happened to drive to town with dad the other day I was at the wheel and say that little boat is a whiz—may trade with him most any time. I didn't realize the comfort, speed and ease of handling. Dad is driving the Ford from here out every time I can get it.

Now is your big chance to replenish your supply of toilet articles at real savings. Whatever you need, you can find it at Terry's Variety Store. They have a complete line of tooth paste, tooth cream, talcum powder, hand lotion, face cream, both powder and shaving cream, razor blades, and many more. I miss my guess you'll be bubbling over with interest and enthusiasm. I hope I can find as many good bargains for you next week as I did this.

cream. It is becoming quite popular as a powder foundation, and you'll understand why after you use it. Doesn't this sound like a perfectly good bargain? At Terry's you get a 25 cent cake of Luxor soap absolutely free with every box of Luxor face powder. You'll want your water and finger waving. It does wonders with your hair.

Drop in Harper's Music Store and see and hear the best instrument in the world. Modern radio has reached perfection. It gives super-performance, and it's tone is marvelous. Grace and simplicity are combined in the beautiful figured walnut console models. These exquisite consoles add distinction and beauty to any living room. Radio creates such a happy and cheerful atmosphere. No home is complete without one. You'll want one of the radio phonograph combinations to get you through the long winter evenings. In addition, these radios can be had at astonishingly low prices. When you get a radio at Harper's, you get the best possible service on it, and that means everything. Their radio service department is unusually efficient. By the way, while you're in Harper's, ask for the newest recordings of your favorite artists. They have all the hottest dance tunes and the latest song hits on the Victor and Brunswick records.

I know how you love pretty hose. That's why I'm so anxious for you to see the Dextale Tru-dul Silk Sealed Hosiery at the Gift Shop. Here is hosiery of exquisite sheerness, of soft, shimmering lustre, and clear, sharp color—a revelation in beauty. For each of the seasons' fashionable colors, Dextale has the correct stocking, one of their special features is the new off black shade. They wear longer, "pulled" threads are rare, and "runs" less frequent. You'll be surprised to know that they are only $1.65 and $2.00 a pair.

You might give me a ring after you've made the rounds and tell me what you think of things. Unless I miss my guess you'll be bubbling over with interest and enthusiasm. I hope I can find as many good bargains for you next week as I did this.

Yours, SUE.
