Trucks Fail to Start As Distributor Had Been Stolen From Motor.

By United Press.
GRAND SALINE, Tex., Oct. 17.—Twelve persons were forced to flee from second-story windows to safety when fire of undetermined origin destroyed the Grand Saline hotel here early this morning. The building was a complete loss. Firemen and volunteers, searching for the smoking ruins today, had completely scouted the fear that guests from Oklahoma had perished in the flames. It was believed that the guests, who had been in the building, failed to arrive as planned. Fire truck motors failed to start when the alarm was sounded at 2 a. m. It was discovered that the distributor had been stolen from the fire-engine. The building, containing 26 persons, was a complete loss. Total damage was estimated at approximately $15,000. M. Solsberg, owner, was making plans today to rebuild the structure.

The men's automobile stalled in a huge drift near the Regina jail at night, and their bodies were reported to have been recovered by workers. The meager details said seven men were in the trapped automobile. A farmer who was going down the road found the stalled car. He immediately called on nearby farmers for assistance. The seven were taken to a farm house where it was said two of the men probably would recover.

"The Last Mile" Comes To End With Execution

HUNTSVILLE, Tex., Oct. 17.—The final curtain of "The Last Mile," a Broadway drama of death row in a penitentiary with men condemned to die as the characters, was rung down in true life here today.
Joyce Shepard, maddened murderer whose frenzied cries of "Jones, Oh, Jones," were echoed in the play that thrilled New York audiences, was executed at the Texas state penitentiary at 12:11 a. m. for the murder of a peace officer two years ago. He was pronounced dead six minutes later. Shepard, called "Bob" by Robert Blake, who, while awaiting execution for murder, penned a death cell piece that was enlarged into "The Last Mile," went to his death blinded. Two weeks ago, in a fit of rage, he gouged out his own eyes with a steak knife, whetted to razor-like sharpness.
"Joyce once had gained respite from death in the electric chair by feigning insanity. He was taken from death row and declared insane after he had shrieked the senseless 'Jones, Oh Jones' continually, and stripped his clothes from his body in the dead of winter. Confined to a sanitarium, he apparently became normal again. He was returned to his death cell. Again he feigned madness.
Three days ago he became calm and accepted his fate. During his last hour of life last night, he joked with prison guards, ate numerous dishes of ice cream and smoked several cigars.
He explained his action in gouging out his eyes by quoting scripture: "If thine eye offendeth thee, pluck it out."
"A fellow in my fix has to try almost everything he can to help himself," he said.
Seated in the electric chair and with the straps adjusted, Shepard said to the dozen guards and newspaper men who witnessed his "last mile."
"I want to thank all of you for the way you have treated me. God be with you." As his last act, he kissed the crucifix held in his right hand by Father Hugh Finnegan, prison chaplain.
The current was applied. He was pronounced dead within six minutes.
Shepard's body was taken to a city mortuary where it was unclaimed as he had neither friends nor relatives. He formerly lived in Arizona.

Burglars entered the Hyatt & Wood Grocery Store on Avenue D at Cisco last night and removed groceries valued at more than $100, according to word received here this morning.
The burglars are thought to have entered the store about 2:30 in the morning and loaded the merchandise into a truck and hauled it away.
A hurried check-up this morning revealed that 900 pounds of sugar, two or three sacks of flour, 100 pounds of lard and a small amount of other goods were missing. It is thought that a more complete check would reveal other items of groceries would be found missing.
The police have no clues as to who the burglars were, it was reported.

Moody To See Eastland Drouth Committee Soon

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 17.—Governor Dan Moody expects to receive an Eastland county committee urging a special session of the legislature for drouth relief on Tuesday. Calling of such a session is not likely. The governor said today that most members of the Texas relief committee have agreed with the suggestion of W. G. Paterbaugh, chairman of the Oklahoma relief committee that it is better to await action by congress.

Moody's Actions Are Still Held From Public

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 17.—Governor Dan Moody, who has been on a fishing trip, today admitted that he had been on Devil's river close to the Mexican border, but denied having left the state. Boss Sterling, democratic nominee for governor, left a few days before Governor Moody for a hunt and rest in Northern Mexico.

AUSTIN, Tex., Oct. 17.—Claude Teer, chairman of the State Board of Control, who accompanied Governor Dan Moody on the Governor's mysterious absence from the capitol all this week, was back this morning.
Belief that Teer and the Governor were off in one Sterling with Boss Sterling democratic nominee for governor was prevalent at the capitol. Sterling had gone to Mexico for a hunt and rest.
"How did you find it below the Rio Grande?" Teer was asked.
"Am I talking for publication?" he asked in return. When told it was for publication he replied: "The weather is fine today."
The remaining appointments to be made by Governor Moody before he goes out of office and prospective ones of the Sterling administration are presumed here to have been the subject of any conference.
Governor Moody was reported variously to be at Kerrville and at Dallas. He refused to give his destination on leaving Austin. He commuted with his office by long distance yesterday in arranging two relievers.
If Governor Moody really crossed into Mexico, Lieut. Gov. Barry Miller probably lost his last chance to act as governor. He was not notified of any absence from the state.

The man appeared to have been about 28 years old. In his pockets police found a receipt from a Chicago hotel made out to A. Roy Bell.
It was learned that on June 1 a man who gave his name as William Bell and his address as Beaver Dam, Ill., checked out of the hotel. Police believed the dead man might be Bell.

Jury Suggests Man's Slayer Be Given Medal

CARTHAGE, Mo., Oct. 17.—A coroner's jury here recommended that a medal be awarded a slayer for his actions.
The recommendation in the case of Dr. W. B. Chapman, Carthage, Missouri, who shot and fatally wounded Bernard F. Grinder, 33, of Washington, D. C., and then performed an operation upon the man in an attempt to save his life.
But the jury did not base its commendation upon the act of mercy. Instead it reported "the state should award a medal to Dr. Chapman for killing that fellow."
The surgeon shot Grinder, an itinerant registered nurse, when the latter allegedly forced his way into the room of Miss Imogene Woodfill, nurse in Chapman's hospital here.

Big Spring—Texas & Pacific Railway Company opened $1,000,000 division terminal.

Marshall Woman Claims Husband Gave Her Poison

MARSHALL, Tex., Oct. 17.—Officers in Texarkana were expected today to announce the findings of a state chemist at Austin who examined the viscera of Mrs. W. W. Sanders, who died suddenly Sept. 21. The body was ordered exhumed for examination by officials at Bowie, Texas.
A few hours before the chemist's report was due Thursday, Mrs. W. W. Sanders, grand-daughter of Mrs. Sanders, was found lying on a street here in a faint. County officials who quizzed her after she recovered quoted the woman as claiming she had been poisoned by her husband.
Mrs. Jones also furnished officers with a valuable clue in unraveling the mysterious death of Mrs. Sanders, it was said.
Mrs. Sanders was a niece of former governor H. R. Rumels, and the widow of Dr. W. W. Sanders, Bowie county banker, who died in 1919 leaving an estate reputed to be worth half a million dollars.

Rains Will Help Cotton In Some Texas Counties

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 17.—Rains of the past week which halted picking and damaged cotton grades in Northwest Texas will improve the size of bolls in some counties, the Dallas News said today in its weekly cotton report. The measure of the improvement will depend largely on the time for the first killing frost, due on the high plains about Oct. 20 and on the South Plains Nov. 4.
If the weatherman will delay his frost two weeks beyond the normal dates, considerable cotton will mature in localities where the plant put on fruit early last month, it was said.
Considerable holding among farmers is noted, although some are selling their cotton as fast as it is ginned at 7 to 9 cents per pound. Favored by cool weather and moisture, leafworms have attacked the fruit in many localities.

Moody Will Go Hunting This Fall

Police Believe Explosion Had Been Planned

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 17.—A terrific gas explosion rocked the garment capitol building here today and caused injury to approximately 40 persons.
Firemen found two gas mains in the structure opened and said the explosion apparently had been deliberately planned. Certain garment manufacturers with offices in the capitol building have had labor troubles recently and police at once began an investigation to determine if striking workers might be responsible for the blast. Many of those injured were on their way to work. Others as far as five blocks from the scene of the explosion were knocked down and injured.
Police reported that only ten received serious injuries.
They were removed at once to hospitals. Many others received first aid treatment at the site of the explosion and some were dismissed after treatment at hospitals.

Two Open Gas Mains Are Found After Fire Is Extinguished By Firemen

The interior of the garment capitol building was a shambles. The shock of the blast seemed to concentrate on the fourth and fifth floors and shops there were ruined. All window panes in the same block were broken and panes scattered as far as eight blocks from the site.
Fire followed the blast on the fourth and fifth floors of the eleven-story structure but six companies of firemen quickly brought it under control.
The discovery of the two open gas mains was made by deputy fire chief E. J. Scott.
He said he discovered the open mains in the rear of the building.
Police reported that members of its red squad were working sabotage had been stationed from twilight to dawn at the building.
Two of these men were patrolling outside the structure when the blast occurred.
Their police car, parked along the curb, was destroyed.
While deputy chief Scott said the blast was a gas explosion he had no theory as to what set it off.
The detonation apparently centered on the fifth floor rooms of the Beverly Hill Frocks, Inc., dress and sport apparel manufacturers.
Other firms in the building all manufacturers of wholesalers of wearing apparel sustained damages.
Three floors of the Graybar Electric building just east of the wrecked building were damaged and thousands of dollars worth of merchandise destroyed.
The Stewart-Dawes building, housing wholesale shoe companies, directly across the street, also was wrecked.
Other buildings damaged by the blast were the Otis Elevator company and the N. J. Connell plant just north.
Seven automobiles parked in the street, were destroyed.

Mitchell is and forbids her ever to see him again. Later on a shopping Celia offends her grandmother and the elderly woman's and departs for a rest. Celia returns to Mrs. Parsons' home on Island. Tod Jordan calls on her.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXX

man took both the girl's eyes in his "Not angry at me, you?" he asked. "I couldn't see you by telephone, Celia. It's been the matter. I'm so glad to see you." He spoke eagerly. Celia raised her eyes to meet Jordan's dark ones. She waited there, but he only stood there, his hand on his hip. "I don't want to see you," she said. "I must believe that! After I home the other evening—afraid the party—father and I had a scene. He was furious because I came so late." "You couldn't let Jordan know that?" "I mustn't suspect that. But it wasn't late!" "I know, but you can't argue with father. He's wonderful, well, when he gets an idea can't change it." "See. So that's why you didn't answer the telephone?" "I didn't know you called. No, I told me." "Well, then you really angry at me?" "I'm angry at my head negative, smiling, with lowered eyes. The said plainer than words that Mitchell was far from displeased." "Mrs. Parsons had withdrawn, and the pair alone. Jordan led for the radio. "Don't want this thing running, you?" he asked, irritably. "There said she did not. There has been nothing objectionable at the music a moment before, if Tod didn't like it, neither she." "A few feet away before open doors was a broad divan. Two shaded lamps cast a warm glow over the room, beating it in shadows. The breeze fluted the windows curtains. Celia and Jordan sat on the sofa. It seemed natural for arms to slip around the girl's shoulders. She kissed her forehead later his kisses were on her cheeks. Celia glanced that quick, sharp eyes she always felt in Jordan's eyes." "I had meant to talk to him last night. He had reasoned it all out. Mrs. Parsons won John's complete approval of her. It would be better for the couple to see each other occasionally. Seeing Tod at all breaking her promise to her. Celia realized that, but she had herself on the grounds that Mrs. Parsons had promised to do the situation. Mitchell was wrong about Jordan. Since her father's mistake, why did Celia treat the young man though he were in error?" "I'm reasoning with herself and Tod were two different things. Her idea of conversation was whispering to Celia in shadows. Did she miss him, too? Didn't she know that she turned her head that she had to kiss the pink tip of her ear?" "Celia gave up the attempt to be angry. She really did not try hard. For days she had been happy, and now Jordan's magnetic nearness seemed the answer to her longings. He left at midnight, and Celia went upstairs to room that had been hers on earlier visit, happier than she felt for days." "The morning she and Evelyn had a long talk over the breakfast table. Celia came downstairs for a morning in the garden. Mrs. Parsons looked charming and languid in morning pajamas of champagne satin and pale pink chiffon." "Oh-ho!" she said cooly as Celia appeared. "I can guess why you're looking so happy this morning. The girl's cheeks flushed." "It's a wonderful morning," she said. "But I'm surprised that you noticed it. Celia, you're smiling, and no wonder, with a young man calling her 'heart'!" "Mrs. Parsons, you don't think anything wrong in my seeing Tod once in a while, do you?"

"Wrong? Why, of course not!" "Of course," promised I wouldn't, but it's such a mix-up—" "Sit down, Celia." The widow arched her brows, indicating that the maid was coming and would overhear. Celia drew out a chair, seated herself and began to nibble bunch of grapes. After Hilda had brought the muffins and disappeared, Evelyn said: "My dear, I thought we went over all that. There's just a trivial misunderstanding on your father's part. He'll come around all right as soon as I've talked to him." "Then you haven't said anything yet?" "How could I? The poor man has been so upset with your grandmother and getting her away to the country and trying to adjust—er—strained relations. I'm sure you see it wouldn't have been wise."

"No-o, I suppose not. Only I won't be really settled in my mind until father knows Tod and admits he was wrong. I mean about saying that I mustn't see him. I wouldn't for the world let Tod suspect father didn't like him!" "Of course not. Wise little girl! There are altogether too many other pretty girls and women ready to come at the crook of Tod Jordan's little finger. Sometimes when I see this fond suitor approach I'm almost jealous of you myself, dear."

"Oh, Evelyn!" Celia laughed. "you're so good and kind and sweet I can't imagine you being jealous. Why, that's funny!" "Mrs. Parsons acknowledged the compliment with a smile. "Well, don't be too sure of your young man!" she taunted. "I'll leave him alone, but there are others I wouldn't trust."

The younger girl broke a muffin and buttered it. "There's one thing that worries me. You see, Barney—remember, I told you about him? Well, he isn't going with any other girls. It doesn't seem quite right for me to let Tod come to see me when I know how hard Barney is working and never having any fun."

"How are you so sure of that?" "Why, he told me. And anything he never goes with other girls!" "Evelyn Parsons' laughter was a scornful trill. "My darling," she said patronizingly, "when you've lived as long as I have you'll never believe pretty speeches like that from men. Oh, I won't say that they don't mean them—at the time! Never mind about your Barney. He'll take care of himself. The thing for you to do is enjoy yourself and if young men want to show you attentions, thank your stars!"

"I suppose you're right," Celia agreed hesitantly. She did not tell Evelyn that what really worried her was the fact she had received only one letter from Barney Shields. There were times when Tod Jordan, for all his fascination, paled in importance to the youth in that afternoon she went to her room, wrote a long letter to Barney and walked to the postbox at the corner of the drive and mailed it.

The days at Larchwood passed pleasantly. Celia was content about her garden pretending to help Ben with his work. She listened to his stories for hours, learned the kind of soil in which deep-fringed blue asters thrive best, and how to war on pests that attack rose bushes. One day Mrs. Parsons drove to the country club for tea, or later in the evening Evelyn enjoyed her bridge and Celia danced or amused herself with the younger crowd.

Lisi Duncan came for her on two separate afternoons and they drove to the beach. Celia sunned herself lazily on the sand while Lisi swam and played in the breakers. Whenever Lisi went there was a group gathered around her. Lisi accepted Celia as one of her playmates, and others followed unquestioningly.

Celia's father adopted the habit of driving to Larchwood two or three evenings each week. Occasional evenings arrived in time for dinner, sometimes later. He seemed drawn by the home-like atmosphere of the place. On these evenings Evelyn Parsons always spent a little more time at her dressing table. She affected sheer black table and white or pale green costumes which brought out the gold of her hair. She wore perfume with the faintest touch of heady, exotic sweetness.

When the three of them were together Evelyn found frequent opportunities for showing her affection for Celia. She praised the girl constantly. At such times John Mitchell looked pleased. Tod Jordan called often. Sometimes he drove down in the afternoons. It did not seem strange to Celia that Jordan never was hampered by business ties. In this new world and men women both lived leisurely. No one she knew seemed to work except her father. Once or twice she had heard Jordan speak vaguely of "investment." Celia supposed that relieved him of labor.

As the days slipped by she began to take a new interest in Jordan. He had arrived from his letter to Barney. When Celia was alone she pondered about this and that. When Jordan appeared she was less restrained in her greetings and being hateful. Very well—she'd show how much she cared! Celia's changed attitude was not lost on Evelyn Parsons. With in-lane on Evelyn Parsons' finite pains and care Mrs. Parsons was setting the stage for her tri-

MOM'N POP

By Cowan

Whether you like it or not, Henry Tye, I intend to have mother come for a visit!

I don't care about a visit from your mother, but—

Remember every word over ten costs extra and you have twelve in that telegram

On a Saturday morning Lisi arranged a picnic. It was to take place that afternoon. By a miracle Dicky Caruthers was able to get away from town, and Celia and Jordan were to join them. Lisi had wheeled from her father permission to drive the coupe—on an invented excuse, of course. She would have the lunch packed, pick up the two men and call for Celia at four o'clock.

"But father's coming down tonight!" the girl said, still holding the telephone and turning to Mrs. Parsons. "What'll I do?" "Oh, we can manage that. Run along. I'll tell him you're having dinner with friends. It will be all right."

Celia informed Lisi she would be waiting at four. A small dirigible, designed by Capt. Anton Heinen, German dirigible expert, will be one of the most interesting aircraft exhibited during the all Eastern Air Races at Worcester Airport here, Oct. 18-19, according to announcement today. Captain Heinen supervised the construction of the dirigible Los Angeles in Germany under Count Zeppelin and later flew it to the United States. He has notified the program committee that he will fly his small dirigible from the factory at Atlantic City to the races.

"I don't mind," Celia snuggled down in the seat and covered Jordan's hand with hers. The man frowned, looked bored, but let it remain there. "Don't know. Some place Lisi likes. Lord—sun's hot, isn't it?" Lisi chattered about the landscape as they sailed by. Lisi Duncan drove without regard of speed laws. Even her split-hair civics had little effect on Jordan's lethargy. Once or twice he suppressed a yawn.

They reached the picnic site, a wooded hill overlooking a wide valley. The hill was cushioned underfoot with grass. Purple morning glories and brown-eyed Susans grew abundantly. Lisi pointed out a spring where they could obtain fresh water. "Very pastoral!" Jordan commented. "Sorry, Lisi, but I'm not the rustic type."

Dicky Caruthers declared here at last was "real living." He was enthusiastic and so was Celia. They explored a while, then set to work spreading out the supper. Lisi insisted they must build a smudge to ward off mosquitoes. Celia passed sandwiches and poured coffee from the thermos bottle. Dicky, not to be superseded, talked about the new play. His part was not enlarged, but he was to wear a costume, which reconciled him.

The lunch was excellent—because, as Lisi said, she had had nothing to do with it and bought it all at a delicatessen shop. When the last crumb of cake had disappeared they burned the papers and packages. Celia and Jordan wandered up the hill to look at the sunset. The man's mood had improved. "Like this kid stuff—picnics," he said, "don't you, honey?" "Love 'em."

returned to town. No, that was not likely. They had nearly reached Larchwood now. Celia would have been amazed at the scene on the veranda there. Evelyn, pale and lovely in the moonlight, leaned against a pillar. John Mitchell stood beside her. He bent his head, his eyes meeting hers earnestly.

"Evelyn," John Mitchell's voice came unsteadily, "you know what I've been wanting to tell you!" (To Be Continued)

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—A short time ago a Virginia lawyer's auto was stolen. Police located the machine, abandoned and without gas two days after it was stolen. School Heads Will Form Association
In a group discussion Monday night at Abilene of representatives in attendance upon a football committee meeting, it was decided that an organization of principals and superintendents in the Oil Belt would contribute largely to mutual interests and school improvement in the educational program. Looking to that end, Superintendent Cluck of Cisco invited the superintendents and principals to meet at the Laguna hotel in Cisco next Tuesday evening at 6:30, for a dinner, followed by discussion and organization of such association as might be decided upon. This invitation was

Mavericks May Get Revenge In Game Saturday

Meet One Man Team In Game At Breckenridge

Magness Left of Great Machine that Robbed Mavericks of Glory Last Year. The Eastland Mavericks have an opportunity to avenge their wrath against the Breckenridge Buckaroos—If it is true that they should feel toward the game played last year, it was not the fault of the Buckaroos or their coach, but the rank decision that robbed the glory that was so theirs. They were the co-champions of the state, and it was not until they were defeated in the final game, when they would have held the title, at least. It was the rank decision, almost everyone in the state remembers that decision. The Buckaroos were ruled out of bounds on a line when it probably should have been ruled as going the goal line, and instead of kicking to the Breckenridge team, they had an opportunity to kick to the middle field, but they kicked the ball into the teeth of the Buckaroos, going only 10 yards, making it first down and ten to go to a touchdown for the Buckaroos.

If the Mavericks of this year fight like the Mavericks did in that game, football history can be written tomorrow. Because the Buckaroos are but a shadow of the team they were last year. Every man on the team will go into the game remembering the defeat that was forced upon them and should fight all the harder to erase that mark that was unjustly placed against them. Two years ago the Mavericks, with a green and untried team went to Breckenridge to play. The result was that the larger and more powerful Buckaroos took advantage of the inexperience of the lighter team and humiliated them, not by defeating the Mavericks, who stood little chance, but by piling up an overwhelming and humiliating score, just to show that their powerful team could run wild against their lighter opponents and to make them feel the defeat more keenly. With only Magness left of that powerful combination of weight and speed, the Mavericks have an even chance of coming out victorious over the Bucks. The slogan of the team should be "Stop Magness" and when they have done this they have stopped the Buckaroos, because they are playing on the glory of last year—of which was stolen from the Mavericks—and one great player. With one of the most powerful teams the Mavericks have had in years, they stand a good chance to win Saturday if they keep their heads when the ball is within the ten yard line, and if they are not robbed of the game as they were last year. There are two big "ifs" but the Mavericks can overcome the first and trust to luck on the second and they can win. Eastland is looking for a victory tomorrow and the Mavericks are going—or at least should go—to Breckenridge determined to see that their backers in Eastland are not disappointed. It all divides down to just this: stop Magness and get revenge for the game of last season.

JEAN WILLIAMS, HAROLD RANDOLPH TENNIS CHAMPS

RANGER, Texas, Oct. 17.—Harold Randolph is the new boys' singles champion of Ranger High school as the result of the final tennis match which was played on the high school courts. Randolph defeated Finis Langston in his semi-final match, and then upset Robert Rudolph, the blonde headed "dark horse" (paradoxical as that may sound) of the tournament. Both matches were tightly contested, but Randolph's superior service, careful placements and determined play proved too much for his less experienced opponent. Randolph exhibited fair form, while Langston flashed power at times, but lacked steadiness. Jean Williams won the girls' singles championship by a convincing straight set victory over Frances Glaerner. She showed ability to drive, as well as a deceptive service which usually juggles the ground. These two girls, together with Betty Foster and Mary Louise Stevenson, who also reached the semi-finals, give promise of providing a fair nucleus for a girls' team for the next year. Although the new champions deserve complete credit, mention should be made of the fact that several were not entered in this tournament for various reasons. Among these were Saunders Gregg, Jr., Evis Landers, Roy Weaver, Nina Williams and Lucille Grant. Play in the doubles for both boys and girls began today with a large entry list. After the doubles titles have been decided, a mixed doubles tournament will be held. This will conclude the organized tennis activities for the fall season for a two weeks' practice period for applicants for next year's team, and a practice match with the Breckenridge team in the near future. Details scores of yesterday's play follow: Boys Finis Langston defeated James Campbell, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3. Harold Randolph defeated F. Langston, 6-0, 6-0. H. Randolph defeated Robert

Many Families Reported Back In Dominion

MONTREAL.—Reports from New England communities that large numbers of French Canadian residents and residents of French-Canadian extraction, are returning to Canada, have been confirmed by J. E. LaForce, colonization agent of the Canadian National Railways. Approximately 1,000 families have returned to the Province of Quebec and settled on farms since the assisted repatriation scheme went into effect in 1928, he says. Many of the repatriates had kept their farms, although they moved to the United States some years ago; others were settled on purchased farms. In the first eight years, according to LaForce's figures, 623 families were repatriated and placed on farms in the Province of Quebec. LaForce considers these families the best class of immigrants, as only those who have some resources of their own are granted assistance, given jointly by the Federal and Provincial governments. Each family averages $2,000 capital of its own, he finds. Three thousand New England families are on the waiting list to be repatriated, and 3,000 more desire to return to Canada, but are unable to dispose of their property in the United States. Besides other French-Canadians, returning but as they do not pass through a colonization office, their number is not accounted for by the colonization officials, according to LaForce. ## Flight Needs Bike Riders

SEATTLE.—Piloting an airplane isn't all a man must know to fly the Seattle-Alaska route of the Alaska Washington Airways. He must be an expert bicycle rider. Planes flying from here to Ketchikan and points north must stop at Alert Bay, on the landing of Vancouver Island, and the pilot must visit the custom's office to have his papers signed. It's three miles from the dock, where the seaplanes land, to the custom's office, and Canadian officials have provided a means of transportation—a bicycle—for the airman. The usual procedure in the flight to the northland is this: The plane is flown from Seattle to Alert Bay and taxied to the dock. The pilot climbs out, hops on the bicycle and pedals over the rough, three-mile course, has his papers signed and then starts back to his plane. Some of the pilots have remarked that the most hazardous part of the Alaska flight is that six-mile bicycle jaunt. There has never been a forced landing of a plane, but pilots have had several forced landings from the two-wheeled bike.

RANGER, Texas, Oct. 17.—A market for black walnuts is offered in a letter received by Wayne C. Hickey, secretary of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce from the American Black Walnut Products company of Independence, Mo. ## Quiet Prevails Where Race Riots Had Threatened

STE. GENEVIEVE, Mo., Oct. 16.—Quiet prevailed here today after threatened race riots which were responsible for bringing national guardsmen here twice since Sunday, the result of the murder of two men on the highway near here by three negroes. National guardsmen who patrolled this city yesterday after nine men were arrested suspected of being members of a mob which sought to either kidnap or lynch Louis Rieben, negro mail carrier. Tuesday night, departed for their homes last night. Five of the nine men arrested confessed to participating in the assault and were fined $500 each and sentenced to 60 days in jail in court here yesterday. The fine and sentence were stayed, however. Rieben, who escaped from the mob after they had taken him from his home, returned yesterday but did not identify the men. He and his brother left town yesterday afternoon. ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16.—Operatives of the Department of Justice here were ordered to investigate the attempted kidnaping of Louis Rieben, negro mail carrier at Ste. Genevieve, Mo., Tuesday night. Assistant United States District Attorney Claude M. Crooks, said they were to investigate the activities of the mob which attempted to kidnap Rieben in accordance with a federal law guaranteeing negroes' constitutional rights.

Worn Planes To Be Bombed

WASHINGTON.—The Army's war-birds will swoop down on Camp Stanley near San Antonio, on November 1 and let loose powerful bombs in an attempt to destroy a fleet of grounded airplanes. Twenty worn-out army planes will be the target of the attacks, 18 planes of the third aircraft group from Fort Crockett, Galveston, Texas. The test will be the first of this nature ever attempted by the Air Corps.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

HOW WISDOM DEPENDS ON CHARACTER

Text: Luke 2:25-39

And, behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon; and the same man was just and devout, waiting for the consolation of Israel; and the Holy Ghost was upon him.

And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death, before he had seen the Lord's Christ.

And he came by the Spirit into the temple; and when the parents brought in the child Jesus, to do for him after the custom of the law.

Then took he him up in his arms, and said unto Mary, and said, Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace, according to thy word:

For mine eyes have seen thy salvation.

Which thou hast prepared before the face of all people:

A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Israel.

And Joseph and his mother marvelled at those things which were spoken of him.

And Simeon blessed them, and said unto Mary, Behold, this child is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel; and for a sign which shall be spoken against:

(Yea, a sword shall pierce through thy own soul also;) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.

And there was one Anna, a prophetess, of the tribe of Asher; she was of a great age, and had lived with a husband seven years from her virginity.

And she was a widow of about fourscore and four years, which departed not from the temple, but served God with fastings and prayers night and day.

And she coming in that instant gave thanks likewise unto the Lord, and spake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem.

And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city of Nazareth.

day School Lesson for Oct. 19. How Wisdom Depends on Character. Luke 2:25-39.

By WM. E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist. The general title for this lesson is given as "Simeon and Anna: the Insight of the Pure in Heart."

The International Uniform Sun-

It is really discernment. Discernment, in turn, is a matter of clarity and accuracy of vision. And, as in the matter of physical vision, some imperfection, of astigmatism or myopia, in the eye, distorts or blurs the vision, so imperfection of the spirit is bound to affect the things that can be only spiritually discerned.

To see with clear and unobscured vision is necessary for discernment; and it becomes, therefore, a truism that it is only the good who can see goodness, only the true who can perceive truth, and only those whose hearts are full of love that can understand and discern the meaning of love.

Must Be Discerning

To perceive goodness, to see truth, to understand love is to have great enlightenment that brings into one's ken a world that others do not know. The world of these new relationships is a world of constant contacts. The man whose moral sense is dull and whose spiritual vision is dim can never discern truth with his fellow-men, nor can he discern what is worth while in human relationships.

But just as Jesus discerned in the lives of men the elements of goodness that lay beneath evil deeds or evil reputations, so it is given to the coming of Jesus into the world, and in seeing God to perceive and understand godliness in all of his children. The prophet, whom the blind and the ignorant stone is really a prophet to the one who looks out through eyes of faith with an love with the power to discern truth without prejudice. The teacher, whom others neglect and despise, becomes the sublime influential guide and leader for those who can discern the glory of the truth that he is to impart.

It was all this that was exemplified in the coming of Jesus into the world. It was the pure and the good who were looking for his coming and who knew him and received him when he came. Here in our lesson we have two old saints who had schooled themselves in righteousness and devotion. They were as well trained by moral and spiritual discipline to know the Master when he came as some miner whose heart was all set upon gold might be trained to recognize the golden vein when he saw it in the rock.

Finds Satisfaction

The reward of the righteous comes in this enrichment of their lives. The man of clear vision and of unimpaired vision sees so much more. So these devout souls found a deep satisfaction in the revelation that came to them late in life. Simeon had a revelation concerning the babe brought to the temple, and Anna, who shared in the worship of the temple, in some way perceived the significance of the child and the fact that in him was to be the fulfillment of the great prophecies to which their souls were fully attuned.

But the vision that they saw was not all of comfort and satisfaction. They perceived that the salvation the Messiah brought was to come through sorrow and suffering. Mary could not have understood at this time the words that Simeon addressed to her, but in after years, especially under the shadow of the cross, she must have recalled these words, "Yea, thine own soul." And in that dark hour it is probable that nothing so much helped her as the recollection of these words—the realization that the way of the cross was the way of salvation and the way of blessing which her son had brought to mankind.

Discernment is written over every word attributed here to Simeon. He sees the inevitableness of the great spiritual law that it makes for the rising of many through their acceptance of salvation through Christ makes for the falling of those who refuse to bring their lives under the power of the Spirit.

He sees the reality of that great law of sacrifice through which love accomplishes its triumphant work. It is in the fellowship of souls like Simeon and Anna that our own vision is clarified. It is in the companionship of those who have the vision of love that we attain to that vision ourselves. And there is no other way. It is hopeless to expect as the vision is clarified and the eyes are trained to see them. The deepest, truest law of all the universe is expressed in the simple saying that it is the pure in heart who see God.

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church October 19th, Mass at 8 a. m. There is the Nineteenth Sunday after Pentecost and the gospel is from St. Matthew XXII, 2-14; in which Christ compares the kingdom to a king who made a marriage feast for his son and invited all his subjects, some of whom refused to come and made all kinds of excuses.

The church is called a kingdom because she has officers, subjects and laws. She is called the kingdom of heaven, because she comes from heaven and leads to heaven. The king is God, the Son is Jesus Christ. When it is said that the king made a marriage feast for his son, it means this: It was the will of God that the Son should become a man, establish a new church consisting of Jews and Gentiles, unite himself with her as with a bride and raise her to the participation of his eternal inheritance. Christ loves his bride, that is his church, so much that he laid down his life for her sake and the salvation of her yet unborn children. Greater love than this no man had. Hence what a blessing for men to become members of that church and thus enjoy the friendship and love of the God-man.

Rev. M. Collins. Church of Christ Despite the inclement weather there was a nice increase in attendance at all the services last Sunday over the Sunday before. Come with us next Lord's day, Services begin at 9:45 a. m. with Bible school. Following this is communion and fellowship which all disciples should enjoy greatly. Preaching at 11:30 a. m. Alaska Plans Bronze Statue Of Irish Girl

SEATTLE.—Loved by the hardy Alaskan prospectors and gamblers as one woman, who remained "pure and white as the snow" during the gold rush days of '87 and '98. Mollie Bell will live as a pedestal for friends erect a bronze statue of her at Skagway, Alaska.

The laughing-eyed Irish lass, honored by all on the trail and in camp, was the belle of the North. She was a comrade and tender-hearted pal to the unkempt men who slung into the wilderness to seek their fortune.

Wood and Lost One of her closest friends was "Packer Jack" Newman, who wooed and lost her. He has had a bronze image of the famed Alaska belle modeled for a pedestal to be placed in a Skagway park dedicated to her memory.

Far different than the dance hall girls, Mollie Bell was the angel of the camps and her name is still spoken in hushed reverence by the old timers. It was she who cared for the sick and friendless, who grub-staked prospectors, who lent a helping hand wherever she could.

Mollie went North while she was in her early twenties and opened a grub shack near Lake Bennett. "Packer Jack" met her first when he stumbled into her tent one night suffering from a frozen hand. She administered aid to him as she had to others and a romance began.

Married Another "Packer Jack" became a bit too sure of himself, however, and when Mike Bartlett began showering attention on Mollie, Jack ordered her to forbid Bartlett entrance to her grub tent. Mollie married Bartlett. Mollie gradually drifted away from her direct contact with the trail, and in 1902 she was living in Seattle with her husband. Her brief life ended in October of that year when she was shot and killed. Bartlett was acquitted of her murder when adjudged temporarily insane.

Now Mollie's going back to Alaska, to take her rightful place on the Skagway trail, a perpetual reminder that there was at least one girl of the trails who was not a "Dancehall Lou."

Hyde Plans Timber Areas

WASHINGTON.—In an attempt to relieve the present agricultural situation Secretary of Agriculture Hyde has advocated a program whereby unprofitable crop producing lands might be turned into timber producing areas on a profitable basis.

In a statement to the American Forestry Association, the secretary said that many millions of acres of farm lands which do not under present conditions produce enough to support their owners properly are suitable for growing trees. "If such land could be switched from crop production to timber growing the change would both help the general agricultural situation and put the land to profitable use," he said.

It was pointed out by Hyde that before such a program could be carried out it would be necessary for it to be preceded by an economic land classification. It must first be learned, the secretary said, what credit measures would be needed to accomplish the reorganization, and what lands are best suited for timber growing.

Another farm owner who might be helped by forestry is the man who has woodlots that contain trees of merchantable value. "I am convinced that forestry offers possibilities in farm relief," Mr. Hyde concludes, "and the department of Agriculture will investigate these possibilities as rapidly as possible and make such recommendations regarding them as seem feasible."

Art Work Used On Coste Check

DALLAS, Tex.—In the issue of the Advertising Club News, New York, Oct. 6, it is said that the $25,000 check to be presented to Diodonne Coste and Maurice Bellonte for their flight from Paris to Dallas is to be a novel affair as well as a handsome bit of artistry.

The check to be presented to Diodonne Coste at the international convention Oct. 17 is approximately three feet in width. In the center is a picture of the Eiffel tower, which was the French flag. In the upper hand corner is a picture of the Statue of Liberty and the American flag. In the lower left hand corner is a picture of the Dallas Flying Field and the Lone Star flag.
