Court Order Puts Stop To Consolidation

Judge Elzo Beem of the 88th district court granted a temporary injunction restraining the consolidation of the Curtis, Union Hill and Sabanno common school districts with the Pioneer Independent school district, an order grouping the districts having been passed by the board of county school trustees. The hearing on the case was held Monday.

B. I. Marshall, Guy Westerman and D. G. Harris, for themselves as trustees for the Union Hill school; and Edwin Erwin, C. V. Scott and J. I. Harris for themselves and as trustees of the Sabanno school, and Lee Bell, Oscar Pearce and Robt. Pearce for themselves and as trustees of the Curtis school, brought the suit against the county school board and Miss Beulah Speer, county school superintendent, the trustees of the Pioneer Independent school district, and the newly appointed trustees of the combined district.

In their petition the plaintiffs allege that the consolidation of the four districts as ordered by a financial loss, by the reason of abandonment of school property, of $20,000 to the taxpayers of the four smaller districts; also that it means a great financial loss to the taxpayers of these districts because of the decreased value of their property because of school being moved greater distances from them, also the petition recites that Curtis, Sabanno and Union Hill schools had already employed teachers and that the consolidation of the schools at this time would disarrange their plans and cause great confusion and financial loss.

No date for a trial of the case on its merits has been set.

Sheriff Seizes Third Still In Past Two Weeks

Sheriff Virge Foster and deputy sheriff Lou Wood captured a large still late Monday afternoon in the Nimrod community between Sabanno and Scranton, which is the third big still they have found in that section during the past few weeks.

Having received reports that a number of the young people of the area in the county were in the habit of putting on a party every Sunday night, the officers were working on the theory that the whiskey for these parties was coming from some still in that vicinity, and last Sunday night they set a trap for a party composed of a number of young folks. This clue led to the finding of the big 125 gallon still Monday morning.

In addition to the big still and other equipment the officers found between 1,200 and 1,500 gallons of mash and ten gallons of whiskey. The whiskey was covered over with leaves and the mash was in large galvanized containers. The mash was dumped into a thirty-foot water well that had been dug from which to secure water for the back track of the still. There was no one at the still and it was not running, but was ready to be fired up and doubtless would have been in operation the next day.

A curved handle walking stick was found at the still and the officers in seeking clues as to who owned and operated the still, went to a home in Nimrod community and were making inquiries about the stick when a little fellow spoke out of turn and said, "That's grandpa's walking stick." No arrests have been made in connection with the finding of the still.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 23.—Bishop James Cannon, Jr., against whom ecclesiastical charges have been filed, has been urged by his fellow prelate, Bishop Horace M. Dubose, to resign and thus relieve a "pained and distressed feeling" in the Methodist Church, South.

Dubose told the United Press he had written Cannon Aug. 18, asking him to make the sacrifice for the benefit of church harmony. Copies of the letter were sent to all bishops of the church, Dubose said. "I did not undertake to tell him what to do," the Tennessee prelate stated, "but I did suggest that he make the sacrifice to restore harmony in the church because of the dissatisfaction expressed against stock market and his failure to answer questions in the United States Senate concerning the use of political funds in Virginia."

Negro Pleads Self Defense In Murder Trial

Self-defense is the plea of James Carter, colored, of Ranger, who is on trial in the 88th district court for murder in connection with the death of Bennie Logan, colored, of Ranger on the night of Sept. 29, 1929. Attorneys for the defense offered testimony to show that Carter was being cut and slashed with a knife by Logan and in order to protect himself drew his own knife and cut Logan's throat.

The state's position in the case is that the two got into a quarrel and that Carter killed Logan with a knife.

Argument in the case was begun just before noon and it was expected that the case would go to the jury by 4:00 o'clock this afternoon. The Marion Olson of Cisco opened for the state. The defense is represented by L. R. Pearson of Ranger.

Workmen Busy Getting Ready For The Fair

Eastland county's fourth annual free fall fair opens Wednesday. Workmen were busy today decorating the streets and business houses with flags and bunting and exhibits are to be placed in position this afternoon and tonight. Stands for the various concessions that are to be arranged along the midway, are also under construction. The midway is an added attraction this year.

For a number of years the Eastland county fair was held at Connelley Park, about one mile south of the city, but for the past four years it has been held in the downtown section and has been free, so far as admittance is concerned. The business men of the city donate the use of their show windows for exhibit booths and one of the streets, East Commerce, this year is being blocked for a midway.

While the displays will be arranged around the public square, those streets around the court-house will not be blocked this year, and the plays, singing, boxing contests, dramatic contests, in fact the entire program of entertainment, will be staged on East Commerce street and on a lot, just behind the Texas State Bank, specially arranged for the program. On this lot seats have been provided for more than 2,500 people.

The horse races will be at Connelley Park and will be in the afternoon of Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The entire county is taking part in the fair program.

Only Survivor Tells His Version Of The Accident

Funeral services for little Mary Louise Mitchell, 6 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Mitchell of Eastland, the fourth victim of the fatal accident, will be conducted this afternoon at 5:00 o'clock at the First Baptist Church. Dr. W. T. Turner, pastor of the church, will officiate.

The dead children were school children, attending grade school in Eastland and all lived just above Lake Eastland, three miles northwest of town. Mrs. Halbert was carrying them home in her Ford to town after the children about 3:30 yesterday. E. W. Junior cried to remain on the lease with his father, who is a pumper for the Trans-Continental Oil Company and as a result both the younger children were left at home. Had it not been for their father's truck, which had been in the car at the time of the accident.

As to just what happened at the Gulf or Lake Eastland crossing where the accident occurred, is not clear. One witness stated that Mrs. Halbert drove over the track which is on a rather high grade that is level and smooth on top and on which three tracks of the Texas & Pacific, the main line and two switch tracks cross, and as she did so apparently saw the approaching train and attempted to back off the track. Others say she became excited, screamed and threw up her

The owners of the well found that the water wheel used to bring up water would not work. Forty fifty men pulled together but something held the wheel. When they paused, the wheel began to work of its own accord, and threw water high into the air. ### BEGIN HERE TODAY

Celia Rogers, 17 and just out of high school, suddenly learns that her father she has believed to be dead is actually living, and a New York lawyer. The relation is made when John Mitchell, the father, calls at the apartment in Baltimore, where Celia lives with her mother, and tells the girl for the first time that Celia is the daughter of a rich man.

The second husband, Bob Rogers, has been dead for years. Mrs. Rogers and Celia have had no income but the mother's earnings as a stenographer, though the girl has secured a position as stenographer.

Barney Shields, young newspaper photographer, is in love with Celia and swears they will be married some day. Mitchell proposes to take Celia to New York to make her home, offering to shower her with luxuries. The girl refuses, and later her mother on the davenport, says "Barney Shields calls at the apartment next evening and tells that Celia is not there."

CHAPTER IX

Barney Shields looked disappointed. "You mean Celia's away for the night?" he asked, hoping the girl might be in the negative. Mrs. Rogers nodded. "Yes, come in, Barney. I might tell you all that's happened."

The perplexed young man followed her into the shabby living room. For the first time he wondered if Celia's mother might really be seriously ill. She looked to him as though she were sick. Mrs. Rogers took a chair and Barney sat down on the davenport. "Celia's father is here," the woman said abruptly. "She didn't know he was living. You see, well, I'd put off telling her, but she was my first husband, and we were divorced. She grew up thinking Bob Rogers was her own father."

"Well—that must have been a shock!" Shields' laugh was forced but he tried to appear at ease. "She's—with him now?" Margaret Rogers went on explaining. "We're having dinner down here. He's a rich man, Barney. He wants to take her to New York."

"What? Take Celia?"

Margaret nodded. "He wants to give her so much. It wouldn't be fair to keep her here! Barney, understand a little how it is, don't you?"

"But—say, Mrs. Rogers—is Celia leaving? Why, that changes everything! When's she going?"

"She wants to go."

Mrs. Rogers nodded her head gravely. "I think she does now. Of course I was upset last evening. I didn't see what a shock it was going to be. Oh, but they'll be here for a day or two. She wouldn't go about saying good-by to you, Barney. You've been such good friends."

The young man seemed completely at a loss for words. He still staring at the woman, Margaret Rogers was moved by helplessness.

"I'll always appreciate what you've done for Celia," she told him. "I had so few good times coming with other girls and she's enjoyed the drives and evenings we spent together so much. Barney had found his voice now. His cheeks flushed darkly.

"Mrs. Rogers, I wasn't going to say anything for a while but I—I think a lot of Celia. I know she's awfully young and I'm not so good enough for her, but she's the same I care more for her than any girl I ever met. I've been hoping some day she'd marry me. I had it sort of figured out after I got a better job and earning more money I could help her to be my wife."

He stopped abruptly. In his eyes was such appeal that Margaret Rogers stifled the exclamation on her lips.

"Oh, but—you're both so young," she said gently. "Celia is, I'm 23. The youth and then went on aggressively. "Did you say she's really—"

"Celia's father is a rich man," Mrs. Rogers agreed. "I believe he has to do a great deal for her. He's not all decided yet. There have been so many things—"

"I'm going to live in New York, you know," Margaret nodded her head. "For a time. You see, she'll grow used to the idea of these relatives she's never known before. I'm glad you told

THIS IS NO PLACE FOR FRECKLES NOW... CAN HE DISAPPEAR BEFORE BARNEY COMES TO EARTH?

"Open it," Mitchell repeated. "It's something I hoped you might like."

How you feel about my daughter, Barney. I—well, you know I like you very much. Of course I hadn't dreamed you had such serious thoughts. As you say, Celia's a child. I think it's best for both of you to put marriage out of your minds for some time. You have so many years ahead of you!"

Barney smiled sardonically. "If she goes off to meet a lot of rich folks I guess she'll put me out of her mind all right."

"But my dear young man—" Shields interrupted. "I know, Mrs. Rogers. I shouldn't have said that. Only you see this thing's a shock for me too. I'd better be going. I suppose you have lots of things to do. Packing and everything. Tell Celia, will you, that I'll stop in tomorrow evening—that is, if she can see me."

All of the other diners appeared elegant to Celia. She wondered how they could seem so casual in such expensive surroundings.

A solicitous dark-skinned waiter offered her a silver tray of rolls. Celia helped herself to a muffin.

"How's the roast? Tender?" Mitchell asked.

"Oh, yes. It's very nice."

"That's good. Mine isn't!" Mitchell grumbled. "Might have known it would be tough. Can't understand what's happening to all the hotel cooks. All over the country they get worse every year!"

"But I think the food is delicious."

"Glad you can eat it."

They had finished their fruit and were in the midst of the meat course. Celia was beginning to feel a little less embarrassed. Mitchell seemed really the one for whom the dinner was an ordeal. He spoke in short sentences and remained stiffly formal, but if the girl had been skillful enough she could have seen that formality was a mask for diffidence.

"You—h'm—think you'll be

"I have asked for the power to reach the people in order that I might further expose the dishonest methods of chain stores. Any community without brains enough to keep their profits at home is doomed."

"It has been proved that other stations are trying to keep KWKH from being heard. A small station of even 10 watts in South Dakota would destroy reception of a 30,000 watt station in Shreveport."

ready to leave Saturday?"
"Yes. Mother said I was to go then."

Perhaps her placidity was disconcerting after the night before. Silence came between them until Mitchell said brusquely:

"You look like your mother."
"Do you think so? Lots of people tell me that. I'm glad too. Don't you think mother's eyes are beautiful? Mine are the same color but they aren't as big."

Immediately she knew she shouldn't have said that. Mitchell looked across the room. His reply, if he made one, was inaudible. Celia bit her lip. She could not understand why but she knew from that moment that she must never make remarks about her mother to John Mitchell. It frightened her and then after a moment the fight turned to slow anger. She could not yet think of Mitchell as her father. He was an interloper with whom, for her mother's sake, she must be patient.

When the waiter had cleared away the dishes Mitchell reached into a pocket of his vest and drew forth a small white packet. Celia lifted startled eyes.

"Open it," Mitchell repeated. "It's—something I hoped you might like."
"Oh—how beautiful!"

The little cry was involuntary. Cushioned on white satin within the box lay a white gold circlet with a tiny watch face on one side. Surrounding the watch was an elaborate setting of diamonds and rubies. The gems were exquisite.

"Try it on," Mitchell suggested. "If the size isn't right we'll have it altered."

Dramatic Action at the Home Plate

The most remarkable action picture of the baseball season is reproduced above. It shows Sparky Adams of the Cardinals trying to steal home during the ten-inning battle between the Robins and Cards in Flatbush which the Cards won, 1-0. Vance's pitch struck Hafey, the umpire ruled the ball dead and Adams had to go back to third. The ball is shown just above Catcher Mancuso's glove.

"It's lovely! Celia said softly. 'I've never seen anything so pretty in my whole life. She gazed at the jewels, fascinated.

"Put it on!" the man urged. "The girl raised her head. 'You mean—it's for me?'"
"Of course."

"But I couldn't take it—"
"Nonsense. Of course you can take it. It's yours. Every girl needs a watch. I want you to have it so that you won't miss that train Saturday."

It was a heavy effort at humor but for John Mitchell it was an impressive one.
Still Celia shook her head. "No," she said, "I can't take it. 'But why not? I bought it for you. I want you to wear it. Celia—couldn't you do that much for your father?'"

For an instant her eyes met. Then, with conflicting emotions, Celia lifted the wrist watch from the box and slipped it over her slender wrist. The flashing stones nearly took her breath as she fastened the clasp.

"It fits perfectly."
Gravely Mitchell inspected the arm she extended. He fingered the clasp to be sure it was tight enough.

"Sure it's all right!"
"Oh, it's beautiful! I think it's lovely—and I don't know how to thank you for it!"

"H'm! Never mind. I hope it will keep time all right." Mitchell's voice was careless again.

Celia could not keep her eyes from the gleaming bracelet. Discontent and rubies! They sparkled and danced, caught reflected rays from one another, gaining doubled brightness.

Impulsively the girl raised her arm and laid the bracelet caressingly against her cheek.
"Celia," he said slowly, "there's something I want to ask you to do."

Laughed, But—

Laughed at Wilbert Robins when he gave Douglas Gray to Cincinnati in return for aged remnant of baseball known as Adolfo Luque. Cuban veteran won five last year for the Reds, losing the results showed Robble right. McWeeny flopped in and quit baseball when the made minor league over-look him. And just look at Adolfo Luque has done for the Reds! At last reports he won 15 ball games while Robins' staff, sharing the with the young southern-ly Phelps.

It may be the trade that won the League pennant for Robins, and, who perhaps a world series!

Deal
Robins has been a wolf in sheep's clothing as far as the trades were concerned. The Pittsburgh Jess Petty Harry Riconda for Glenn Wright. After Wright's injury, Robins in the crippling of his arm. ## DID YOU KNOW THAT—

JOE McCarthy, Rogers Hornsby and Hack Wilson had contracts to entertain the public with the written or spoken word . . . provided the Cubs won the pennant. . . Last year, long before series time, nearly every man on the Cubs' roster was signed for some sort of stunt. . . Hack Wilson signed with a syndicate. . . He was to get something like $500 for writing about the world series. . . Hack really thought he would have to write the stuff himself, and was incensed to learn that the syndicate expected to ghost-write the half-barrel center felder. . . This year Hack signed up about the middle of September, just for the use of his name. . . for C's. . . Crimm, Cuyler and Heathcote arranged last year to present an act at a loop theater after the world series. . . but after the Athletic landslide, the patrons jeered every time the theater flashed the announcement on the screen that the boys would perform. . . so the act was canceled.

lyn ball team up there. Last winter no one would have dreamed that "old Looker," as Uncle Robble calls his Cuban finger, would win any ball games for the Robins. Even Robble himself, when queried as to what he meant to do with the old gentleman, told the scribes that he thought a veteran like that would all in nicely for relief work and "help balance the team." He certainly has "balanced the team!"

There was an inkling of Brooklyn greatness when it was learned that Glenn Wright could throw again. It turned out to be a true hunch. Robble took a blank card from the deck and made an ace of it when he turned Glenn Wright loose on the boys this summer. Two trades and a pennant!

Rogers Hornsby To Be Manager Of Cubs In 1931

By United Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 23.—The Chicago Tribune, in assigned copyrighted article, today stated that William Wrigley, Jr., owner of the Chicago Cubs, had decided definitely to appoint Rogers Hornsby manager of the team for 1931, replacing Joe McCarthy, manager for the last five seasons.

"There has been no misunderstanding with McCarthy," the Tribune quoted Wrigley as saying. "We simply decided to make a change and as proof of my friendship and respect for Joe I will do all I can to assist him in getting another big league position."

The newspaper said McCarthy had been informed that his contract will not be renewed, but that Hornsby had not yet been told officially he was to be elevated to the position of manager of a major league ball club for the third time during his career.

Wrigley intimated last night that he was considering such a plan when he declared that he was determined his team should win a world series and that if McCarthy couldn't lead them to it he would have to find someone who could.

Today the Tribune quoted Wrigley as saying McCarthy had been given five years in which to prove that the Cubs were a great team and that he did not consider it unusual not to engage him after that long a stretch.

Glider Has A Mount For Motor

By United Press
CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 23.—Heracleo Alfaro believes he has solved aviation's demand for a two-place air glider.

Alfaro recently completed a small convertible glider at his experimental plant here that can be mounted with an outboard motor. Installation of the motor requires five minutes, only four bolts being used, according to the inventor.

The plane is a high-wing monoplane. The motor is attached on the back of the wing, to the rear of the cockpit. Dual controls are to be installed and a gasoline tank is to be placed in the fuselage and fuel forced up to the motor.

Alfaro hopes to license his convertible glider as a two-place plane but if he finds it does not conform to Department of Commerce regulations he will build a larger plane on the same lines, he said.

Girl "Steps Out" And Loses Jewels Of Her Employer

By United Press
CHICAGO, Sept. 22.—Policeman William Sullivan got one of those "surprises of a lifetime" early today when a pretty girl jumped from a taxicab, ran to him, thrust about $80,000 worth of jewels into his hands and asked him to arrest her.

The girl, he learned after granting her request, was Lois Hyde, a maid in the home of Max J. Mauermann.

She had started out at 1 o'clock in the morning, she said, to do "a little stepping." Before going she donned about $100,000 worth of Mrs. Mauermann's jewels.

She went to a saloon, she told the police, and asked for a drink. The bartender told her that unescorted girls were not served drinks there, but that he would take her to a place a block away where they would.

While they were walking together and he was admiring one of her diamond rings, she said, a man and a woman drove up in an automobile, robbed her of the ring and the tie pin, said to be worth $19,000 each, and took $50 of her own money.

Ranger Boy Is Bitten By Wolf While At Play

Bitten by a wolf, Buddy Mack Dutton, 7-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Dutton, of Ranger, is in bed at his home.

The wolf, a pet owned by a neighbor, was killed after the attack on the boy. The head of the animal was sent to the Terrell Laboratories in Fort Worth to determine whether the wolf was a victim of rabies.

The anxious parents of Buddy, as well as his friends, were greatly relieved this afternoon when a message was received to the effect that the wolf did not have rabies.

About noon Sunday, the animal broke the leash that held him and rushed toward a group of boys. All of them except Buddy were able to scurry to safety but he was severely bitten on the calf of the leg. The wolf's owner rushed out and prevented the boy from being more badly injured. The owner killed the animal and had the head sent to the laboratories in Fort Worth.

Buddy lives on Cypress street and his father is connected with the Wichita Falls & Southern railroad.

WEEK

EVERY week should be a fire prevention week, even though only one is officially so observed.

This Year—October 5-11

The activities of Fire Prevention Week represent a concentration of effort within a short period. That the results carry through farther and farther into the months that follow is one of the encouraging signs of this national conservation movement.

You have a personal reason for helping to observe Fire Prevention Week. It concerns your family—your home—your business—your community. If you take no part in the public observance, you can at least make the valuable contribution of your own better preparation to resist fire through preventive measures.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

companies—through the National Board of Fire Underwriters, Chambers of Commerce and other organizations—have done much toward making Fire Prevention Week popular and effective for all property owners whether insured or not.

Increased public cooperation should result in reducing fire losses and in that way justify further reductions in the average cost of fire insurance—a cost which has consistently declined over a long period of years.

Two Addicts of Narcotics Are Pathetic Sight

RANGER, Tex., Sept. 23.—Two men who were drug addicts were found lying on the sidewalk near the Pickering Lumber company, by Deputy Sheriff John Barnes and were taken to the police station this morning. The men were apparently exhausted due to being without the narcotic on which their constitutions had learned to rely. One of the men sat on the running board of a car. His eyes were staring and his lips working. His companion sprawled out on the sidewalk. The sight of these unfortunate men attracted a large crowd.

Two Arrested In Hall Tire Co., Robbery Case

Two men were being held by Ranger police this morning for investigation in connection with the holdup of the Hall Tire company on the night of Sept. 10.

Policeman Hammett was riding in his car Sunday afternoon, accompanied by his wife and son, Lynn, when he saw a car and three men. From information the officer had previously obtained, he decided to place the men under arrest.

The three got into Hammett's car. They sat on the back seat. Young Hammett was at the wheel and his mother was in the front seat. Officer Hammett stood on the running board.

When the car reached the railroad switch on East Main street, the man sitting next to the door on the opposite side of the car from where Hammett was standing, jumped out and ran north up the railroad siding.

The policeman fired once but missed.

OIL NEWS

By UNITED PRESS

PAMPA, Tex., Sept. 23.—On test, the Cree-Hoover well in new territory adjoining the Pampa oil field was making 5,600 barrels daily today.

It blew in with tremendous force, shooting a spray 50 feet higher in the air than its neighbors. Drillers labored several hours before they were able to bring it under control.

This prospect of a new pool has sent oil interests rocketing, and a number of new locations have already been made and several leases contracted. Mrs. Agnes Barrett of Pampa sold 104 acres to the Phillips Company for $104,000.

Difficulty is anticipated in restricting production in the light of the new excitement. West of the city the field has already been extended almost to the city limits.

About 40 wells are now drilling. Companies are now trying to get permits to drill in the city limits but have been denied so far.

A few locations are being made in other parts of the county, largely to protect leases or for offsets.

One is Released. The two other men were taken to Ranger police headquarters. One of them was released. The other was still being held this morning and another man also had been arrested.

Motorcycle Officer Bob Hammett—son of the Ranger policeman—several days ago arrested a man near Baird in connection with the Hall Tire company holdup and this man was held by the county authorities in Eastland.

Three men in a coach held up the Hall Tire Co. at Ranger. While one man covered the filling station attendant with a shotgun, two other men loaded a safe in the car. The safe contained $85.

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 23.—The railroad commission will render a decision on the plea of the Col-Tex Refining Company to run an additional 2,500 barrels of oil a day out of the Howard-Glasscock county pool next week, commissioner C. V. Terrell said here yesterday.

AMARILLO, Tex., Sept. 23.—Eight new locations have been announced for this section, incited by production of 5,400 barrels from the Graham-Cree-Hoover well in the first 24 hours and a belief that it would make 20,000 barrels if drilled deeper.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Sept. 23.—Initial production of 1,680 barrels a day from 2,598 feet was reported from the Gulf's No. 6 Posey & Baker well in the Darsis creek field, Guadalupe county.
