Explosion And Fires Do Million Dollar Damage

CHICAGO, Sept. 2.—Rain today checked Chicago's most disastrous fires in three years, after it had burned approximately $1,000,000 worth of property, including a candy factory, a factory and a Great Lakes steamship line commissary building.

Explosions of eight storage tanks sprayed the district with burning gasoline and oil. For a moment the fires threatened to spread over a wide section of the Michigan waterfront. Firemen fought the flames from both sides and water.

The eight explosions came from tanks of oil in the Chris Craft boat company.

The Curtis Candy Company was damaged to the extent of $750,000, officials of the company estimated. The boat factory and the Goodrich commissary were the other establishments damaged.

50,000 See Plane Dive Through Roof

NEA Philadelphia Bureau

Only its tail visible above the roof-top, this plane, piloted by a student flyer, crashed into the Central High School building at Harrisburg, Pa., in full view of 50,000 persons gathered for ceremonies dedicating a new bridge. Pilot Bernard Woutersz and his passenger, Morris Bowman of New Holland, Pa., were removed critically injured from the wreckage. The crash halted the dedication address of Governor Fisher of Pennsylvania.

Large Number Of Legionnaires Attend Meeting

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 2.—Two thousand American Legionnaires, the largest number ever to attend a Texas convention, approached the climax of the annual meeting here today with the arrival of O. L. Bodenhamer, National Commander who will address them at 4:15 p. m.

For two days the capital city has been alive with hilarious delegates, blaring bands and gaudy regalia of the various posts and associated organizations.

United States Senator Morris Sheppard and Hon. Josh Lee of the University of Oklahoma were on today's programs.

Races for the 1931 convention and the two-man contest for state commander reached fever heat today in caucuses preliminary to voting tomorrow.

Corpus Christi, Mineral Wells and El Paso were offering the strongest bids for the next meeting, with Abilene and Waco scheduled to extend invitations.

Hal Brennan of Laredo and Dr. W. J. Danforth of Fort Worth were in a close race for the chief office.

Signing For First Commercial Flight Over Atlantic

NEA New York Bureau

French Fliers Reach America Early Today

Are First To Make Paris to New York Flight Successfully Out of Many Previous Attempts.

HALIFAX, N. S., Sept. 2.—The radio station at Chatham Head, near the Halifax harbor entrance, announced a gray and red airplane believed to be the "Question" Mark, passed over there shortly after noon, flying fast toward the southwest.

The line of flight would indicate the craft was skirting the coast line en route to New York.

The airplane Question Mark carrying Lieut. Coste and Maurice Bellonte along the treacherous westward route over the North Atlantic ocean, sped down the American coast today toward New York and the goal of France's most brilliant aviators since Nungesser and Goll.

Maneuvering their plane to escape fog off the Newfoundland coast, the French fliers raced over the island of Miquelon, just south of Newfoundland early this morning, apparently were sailing smoothly along the scientifically-laid course from Paris to New York as they neared the mainland. With good luck it appeared that they would succeed in the difficult flight.

PARIS, Sept. 2.—The airplane Question Mark, bearing Capt. Dieu Coste and Maurice Bellonte swiftly toward the North American coast, swerved sharply to the south today to avoid fog. The noted French aviator, however, apparently were sailing smoothly along the scientifically-laid course from Paris to New York as they neared the mainland. With good luck it appeared that they would succeed in the difficult flight.

Out-Door Revival Drawing Crowds

Much interest is being manifested in the outdoor revival which is being held by the Baptist church at W. Commerce and Madera Streets according to Pastor W. T. Turner who states that both the Sunday night and Monday night audiences exceeded his expectations.

"The Voice of Blood," will be the theme of the Tuesday night sermon. Based upon the words of God to Cain when he had murdered Able—"The voice of thy brother's blood crieth unto me from the ground" the pastor's message will deal with the voice of the blood of murdered bodies, and murdered souls, and the voice of the blood of Jesus.

Rev. H. D. Blair will conduct the music at tonight's service. Mrs. W. T. Turner will give an illustrated bible talk to the children at 7:30. The service begins at 8:00 p. m.

It is understood that if the weather is at any time unfavorable for outdoor services the meeting will be moved to the church.

Jackson To Try Non-Stop Flight To All Capitals

ST. PAUL, Minn., Sept. 2.—Dale "Red" Jackson, world's champion endurance flier, announced today that he would make a non-stop flight between the 48 state capitals of the nation next summer. Financial backing for the flight has been obtained, he said. Jackson will be accompanied by two refueling planes, according to present plans and will refuel the capital cities.

Forrest O'Brien, his co-pilot in the endurance refueling flight will not accompany him, he said.

Tree Sitter Still Up. Reports from the ground crew of Ben Mackall, Eastland's only tree sitter, said that he will have spent 1,116 hours in his tree at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon.

When asked when he intended to come down his spokesman said that he would make a non-stop flight to stay up until he had broken the record.

Dearest Ordered Out Of France

PARIS, Sept. 2.—William Randolph Hearst, American publisher, Paris for London yesterday afternoon when he had been served with an order had been served with an order by an agent of the French government.

Hearst's expulsion was confirmed by the Quai D'Orsay, the French foreign office.

Distinct reasons for the expulsion were given as the generally hostile attitude of the Hearst papers toward France.

The prefecture stated that the order had been prepared for a long time, but that officials had been unable to serve it until yesterday afternoon.

Eastland Woman In Train Wreck

Mrs. E. R. Townsend of Eastland was one of the passengers on the Texas Special crack train of the Texas lines which was wrecked in Louisiana recently.

Mrs. Townsend was accompanied by her niece, Miss Doris Zweifel, when the wreck occurred.

Neither of the two were injured, they are reported as saying in their escape from injury was unscathed.

Year-Old Man Held In Assault Of 7-Year-Old Girl

MARILLO, Tex., Sept. 2.—T. D. Davis, 70, was held in the Polk county jail today following his arrest before justice of the peace J. W. Minter on charges of attempted assault on a 7-year-old girl. The attack, according to the night, Davis was arrested by the highway patrolman Lee Millard Deputy Sheriff W. N. Simpson, who investigated the assault. Davis made a complete confession.

Protests On Oil Proration Heard Today

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 2.—Hearing of protests on proration orders affecting the Van oil field by the oil and gas division of the State Railroad Commission was scheduled for today. The order controlling the field became effective on Aug. 15, subject to modifications possible at today's hearing.

Tomorrow the division will hear the application of R. H. Alexander and others to require the Continental Pipe Line Company to extend its lines four and one-half miles in Young county. The application was made under the new pipe line provisions of last legislature authorizing the commission to require such extensions. It is expected to be contested.

Carter House Is Partly Destroyed By Fire Monday

Fire partly destroyed the Carter House on the corner of West White and Mulberry streets late yesterday afternoon, only quick action on the part of the Eastland Fire Department preventing more serious damage.

The Carter House was owned by Mrs. Minnie Matthews and was rented to Joe Fields, who owned part of the fixtures.

Fire Chief Hennessey estimated this morning that the losses would be approximately one-third of the value of the building and contents and that it was understood Fields had no insurance on his fixtures.

The building and the furniture belonging to Mrs. Matthews were partly covered by insurance.

Man Grilled In Dallas Assault Case

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 2.—Dallas detectives were today grilling a man arrested late Monday in connection with the kidnaping and assault Saturday of Mrs. A. T. Potter, 25. Detectives said they took from the man two finger rings allegedly stolen from the woman.

Mrs. Potter was kidnaped, she said, while going to a nearby shopping center from her home to buy groceries and medicine for her ill child. She said she was struck on the head, dragged into the car, and driven to the outskirts of the city.

United States Consul Dies Of Injuries In Fall

NAPLES, Italy, Sept. 2.—United States consul Randolph Robinson, of New York, died at 7:35 a. m. today as the result of a fall from a balcony on the island of Capri.

Robinson was viewing the scenery last night from the balcony of the Hotel Quisisiana, and lost his balance when he leaned too far over the railing.

Death was due to a fractured skull.

Legion Rifle Team Has Good Weekly Shoot

Charles Thompson won high score in the American Legion Rifle Club shoot this week with a score of 48 out of a possible 50 on the rifle range with Glen Graham second with a 47.

James Horton had a perfect score in trap shooting with a score of 25 and another score of 24 in his second round.

H. W. Oldham was high man in the pistol event with a score of 94 out of a possible 100.

The individual scores for the events were as follows: Rifle: Alex. Clark, 46; S. W. Whitley, 44; Horck Oldham, 44; Russell Perine, 43; M. D. Paschall, 44; W. H. Lobaugh, 25; Jack Gillespie, 27; R. S. Dates Set For Opening Of All County Schools

The county school board met in regular session at the office of the county school superintendent at the Eastland county courthouse on Monday afternoon, September 1st and transacted business that came before them.

A resolution was adopted providing for the opening of all nine month schools in the county September 8, all eight month schools on September 22 and all other schools on the first Monday in October.

Those present at the meeting were J. A. Beard, W. R. Usery; W. P. Roach, E. M. Howard and H. S. Stubblefield.

Road Bond Plan May Be Plank In Sterling Platform

HOUSTON, Tex., Sept. 2.—Many political observers here express the opinion that Ross Sterling's road bond plan will be in his platform when it is submitted to the State Democratic convention next Tuesday in Galveston.

It is understood that the bond day was included in the first draft of the platform, which was completed last week, and that it brought forth opposition from some of the Sterling advisers who thought a road bond plan would be to start the movement for approval from the convention floor.

The final draft of the platform probably will not be completed before late this week.

Murphy Townsend of Dallas is being mentioned here for state chairman.

24 Extensions Of Furloughs Granted

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 2.—Gov. Dan Moody today granted 24 extensions of furloughs to state convicts. Included in the list were a 60-day extension for Marshall Boudard, convicted of robbery in Dallas county, and a 90-day extension of the furlough of Gilbert Williams, convicted of failure to stop and render aid in McLennan county.

Weather Halts Second Atlantic Flight Today

MONTREAL, Sept. 2.—Unfavorable weather conditions postponed the start of Capt. J. Errol Boyde's attempt to fly the Atlantic in the Bellanca monoplane Columbia today. Boyde did not expect to be able to leave St. Hubert air field before Thursday or even later in the week, he said.

Croydon, London's airport, will be the Canadian flyer's destination.

One Killed, One Wounded In Gun Duel At Austin

AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 2.—One man was dead today, another charged with murder and under guard at a hospital seriously wounded, the latter's brother and the dead man's wife in jail charged with murder and a fourth man charged with assault to murder as the aftermath to a roadside gun battle six miles north of here Monday.

Bryan Keahy of Dallas was killed, Charles L. Beland of Fort Worth was wounded. J. J. Beland, Mrs. Helen Keahy and Karl Adams were in the Travis county jail. Sheriff Coley C. White filed charges before Justice of the Peace Frank R. Tannehill late Monday.

Adams, who was riding with Keahy, drove up to the Austin police station two hours after the shooting and announced: "I've got a corpse out there in my car."

Shortly thereafter officers arrested the other participants at a local hospital.

According to officers' account of the affray, the duel occurred immediately after the car in which Charles Beland and Keahy's wife were riding had passed Keahy and Adams near the University Airport. Mrs. Keahy said both parties emerged from the automobiles and began shooting. More than a score of shots from shotguns and revolvers were exchanged.

Adams told officers he first planned to take his dead companion to Fort Worth, but changed his mind and brought the body here.

Charles Beland had a birdshot wound in his chest and one leg. Keahy's body was riddled with buckshot.

105 Deaths Are Reported Over Triple Holiday

The triple holiday which the United States enjoyed over the week-end took a heavy death-toll. Figures compiled today by the United Press and based on early reports of casualties throughout the country revealed at least 105 deaths and 212 cases of injury. Further reports of fatal accidents were coming in steadily.

Traffic accidents, as usual, accounted for the greatest percentage of casualties. The early reports showed at least 67 deaths due to motor car or grade crossing accidents.

Drownings were second on the list with eighteen fatalities. Airplane crashes took eight lives. Twelve other deaths were listed from miscellaneous causes.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Sept. 2.—Fred Eberhardt, newspaper publisher, Henry Halseman and George Rawls, charged with plotting the assassination of Governor Doyle E. Carlton of Florida, were freed today by a ruling of justice of the peace J. C. Madison, before whom they were given a preliminary hearing.

Cloudy Skies Are Menace To Balloon Racers In East

BUFFALO, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Cloudy skies prevailed today over most of western New York state, to which the Gordon Bennett balloon racers were reported drifting before southwest winds.

No reports of sighting any of the balloons in the race had been received at the United States Coast Guard station on Lake Erie, near Buffalo, early today. The last weather report received at the station shortly before midnight predicted south to southwest winds of moderate intensity for western New York today, shifting to west and northwest by night. Showers and possibly thunderstorms, also were forecast.

Flirting With Another's Wife Causes Shooting

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 2.—James N. Hale, 50, surrendered to authorities here today after he had shot and killed Oscar Bell, 40, at 5:30 o'clock this morning because Bell flirted with his wife.

The shooting took place at the Hale home two miles north of Reinhardt.

Following the shooting Hale came to the sheriff's office here and gave himself up. He was placed in the county jail to await questioning by Dist. Atty. William McGraw.

Hale and his son, Buck Hale, who is a member of the Dallas police force, said family trouble was the cause of the shooting.

Bell was said to have driven up to the Hale home this morning with a load of beef. The Hale family, including Mrs. Pernell Hale, and a son of the couple, Buster Hale, 20, was at breakfast.

Hale said he got his pistol and went out on a porch from which he could look down on Bell as the latter sat in his car. Hale said he fired only one shot. The bullet struck Bell in the forehead and came out at the back of his head. He died instantly.

Hale told authorities that Bell had repeatedly sought to flirt with Mrs. Hale and that he had followed her around. He said he had warned Bell not to come to the Hale home as he did not "like the way things were going."

After the shooting Hale went to the home of his son, Roy, who accompanied him to the sheriff's office.

Lindbergh Forced Down By Fog

TETERBORO AIRPORT, N. J., Sept. 2.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here at 11:21 E. T. after a flight from Bellefonte, Pa. They were forced down last night at Bellefonte by a fog as they were enroute from Detroit to New York.

Steward Meeting Called. A meeting of the board of stewards of the First Methodist church has been called for tonight at 8:00 o'clock at the church.

Officers Differ Over Cause Of Train Derailing

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 2.—County officials differed today over cause of the wreck of the "Texas Special" crack Frisco passenger train near here, which resulted in the deaths of six persons and injury of 11 others.

Although Dr. John O'Connell, coroner, and officials of the railroad believe that he found no traces of the stones.

"I have found absolutely no evidence of vandalism," Schroeder, one of the first to reach the scene after the wreck, said. The "cow-catcher" of the locomotive bears no evidence of having struck an obstruction," he said.

An inquest will be held today. The wreck occurred shortly after the train left the St. Louis union station for San Antonio, Tex. Eleven persons were injured seriously.

Physicians held little hope for the recovery of four-year-old Robert Newton whose parents were killed in the wreck. The child sustained a fractured skull.

AMARILLO, Tex., Sept. 2.—Three children, the eldest 13 years old, were all that remained today of the family of a once-brilliant attorney whose indiscretions weighed so heavily on his mind that he murdered his wife and committed suicide before he could be brought to trial.

Their faces streaked with tears, the three watched yesterday while the body of A. D. Payne, their father, was lowered into a grave in the family plot at Tulia.

On the edge of Amarillo, in Llano cemetery, their mother lay buried. She was the victim of a bomb which Payne had placed under the front seat of the family automobile.

One arm hung limply in a sling as A. D. Jr., 11, attended the funeral services for his father yesterday. The arm was shattered by the same explosion which killed his mother, La Dell, 13, who now must be a mother to the other two, escaped the blast only because of a last minute change of plans which kept her from driving to town with her mother. Bobbie Jean, 9, the youngest, also escaped the blast.

Grief showed in the faces of the three children at Payne's funeral yesterday, despite the fact that he had killed her mother. The children steadfastly believed in the innocence of their father up until he killed himself in his cell at Potter county jail with a nitro-glycerine explosion.

Hoover At Baltimore. BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 2.—President Hoover arrived in Baltimore at 12:40 p. m. EDT. to attend a luncheon preceding his review of the Veterans of Foreign Wars parade at 2:30 p. m.

STAGGERING ALGEBRA.

Headmaster Richards of Lake Forest Academy, Ill., has been working out new ideas in school schedules. One is to make each school period an hour and a half long, the first half to be given to recitation, the second to supervised preparation for the next day.

It has long been believed that the child can concentrate better early in the day than he can after he is tired. So Mr. Richards plans that one week a boy will have algebra the first period on Monday, the second on Tuesday, and so on.

Mr. Richards' objective, quoted in Time, is: "I have long wanted to be the head of a school where boys more and more are vitally interested in education, where in every case the master in a given subject can honestly say that everything within human reason has been done to aid and promote the progress of a boy; where the bright as well as the slower student can advance without the hindrance of a lock-step regimentation."

For quite a while pressure was brought to bear on educators everywhere in favor of what was called "practical" education. Now it is becoming plain that a superficial cramming of "practical" and "useful" subjects does not give a student power. The seemingly impractical and visionary training which actually sharpens and tempers the mind as a tool gives the best practical results in the long run.

That freak at Coney Island who is trying for the endurance record in coffin-lying is hopelessly beaten before he starts. Innumerable millions have already done as well as he can ever hope to do.

TO MAKE FLYING POPULAR.

Aviation grows, but not so rapidly as it might. Flying is more popular in theory than in practice. People are interested in flying, talk about flying, dream about flying, but don't fly.

What can be done to gain popular patronage for airplanes? A passenger who recently took his first flight offers two suggestions:

First, take the noise out of the engine. He was deafened by the roar. He and his fellow-passenger, sitting together in the forward cockpit of a small, two passenger plane, could not speak to each other.

Second, take the holes and bumps out of the air. This is something which cannot be done literally, but doubtless flying can be made more even and comfortable than it is.

A novice naturally feels nervous in a plane which feels light and unstable as a boy's kite. A sudden drop gives him a sinking of the heart and a rush of blood to the head, like the drop of an elevator, only more so.

and often fatal westward jump across the Atlantic. The southward course was taken by Captain Coste to avoid the "fog belt" that lies off the Grand Banks southeast of Newfoundland.

The message revealing the position was picked up by the French liner Jacques Cartier. Several hours previously it reported they were about 400 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

The Hollywood Story

BEGIN HERE TODAY
 Dan Rorimer, a scenario writer Hollywood and formerly a New York newspaper man, is in love with Anne Winter, who, beginning an extra, has progressed rapidly and is now under contract to the largest studio.
 Dan, who formerly was under contract himself, now is free largely because of his inability to get along with a studio executive, whose methods irritate and frustrate the sensitive and stubborn writer. Paul Collier, who writes daily movie columns for a string of papers, shares Dan's apartment with him. Collier has great faith in Dan's ability, despite Dan's apparent failure to get along as a writer. Dan has become dependent on this, and over what Dan considers his rather hopeless friend, Anne Winter.
 Anne lives with two other girls, Morrison and Eva Harley, who work only occasionally and but rarely. She is bitter over her divorce and over a rather tragic love affair.
 When in New York Rorimer had been a play for the legitimate stage. His agent thought very highly of the and kept it very close, trying to sell it to various producers. But it comes back one day, at a time when he is disappointed because of the failure of his latest screen play. Collier is curious about the play. He begins to read it and is enthralled by it. He tells Dan that he is foolish to worry about what the studios think of a play when he can write like the theater," Anne informed him, and at Dan's inquiry she said that Eva seemed to be herself once more and things were pretty much as usual again.

 "We've just forgotten that anything happened, Mona and I."
 Dan wanted to know if he couldn't leave the play with her so that she could read it some other time, but she insisted that he must read it to her, and she placed him on the sofa, near a lamp, and herself sat in a nearby chair where she could watch his face as she listened.
 "Well," Dan said as he obeyed her, "you asked for it; don't blame me," and he began to read.
 He held a cigarette in his hand and he paused now and then to puff at it to cover the awkwardness he felt. And at first he was embarrassedly conscious of his own voice, so that he read without expression, somewhat as a school boy reads his lesson; but this was not for long. Presently he had forgotten that he was reading typewritten words to Anne Winter; the thing became a play again, the play into which he had poured so much of his heart, and he read with his eyes and his passionate longing to write something that men would know him by.
 He had conceived it some years ago when he was covering night court for "human interest" stories for his paper, and it had lain in the back of his mind for a long time, waiting to be written. And now that he had almost forgotten about it, it was back again, and it began to live again for him.
 It was the story of a New York gangster—a member of one of the dock gangs—and the girl he left behind him to go to war. It was not a pretty story, but it was real and human and warm with life, and its end was poignantly tragic.
 At the end of the first act Dan looked up and smiled and reached for another cigarette. Anne said, in a low voice: "Go on," and nothing more. So he read on.
 When he had finished he threw the manuscript carelessly to one side, and he got up to stretch, and he saw then that Anne had actual tears in her eyes, and the sight of them moved him; suddenly he realized, with a new and strange sense of pride, that it was what he had written that had made Anne cry. He could not be, then, the sorry failure that he had begun to think himself—not if something he had written could do that to Anne Winter.
 Anne was silent until she saw him smiling at her. Then she said, softly, "And they sent it back to you."
 He replied cheerfully, "Sure, I suppose I shouldn't feel so bad, though. My agent was pretty keen about it and didn't want to give it up; but there was simply nothing doing. There's nothing to do, I guess, but like it. I'm getting used to that," he added dryly.
 "It's a shame," Anne said softly. "It's a shame."
 Dan shrugged and he smiled again. "Maybe so; but it's worth a lot to know that you like it, Anne. I was pretty keen about it when I wrote it, but when it didn't get across right away I began to think it couldn't have been much good. You know how you feel about those things."

 Anne nodded and he continued: "The agent said it's getting terribly hard to find a producer who is willing to take a gamble; things aren't flourishing on the stage the way they were before talking pictures turned everything upside down."
 And Anne said quickly, "No wonder—if they can't take a gamble with a play like that. The movies took a chance with sound pictures—Dan, why don't you do your play over for the movies?"
 Her eyes flashed. Anne got up and went over to the sofa and sat beside him. "It's all there, Dan—everything; and pictures could do it better than the stage ever could; and they could develop that war sequence into something tremendous. Do it, Dan!"
 He watched the smoke from his cigarette rise in a straight, slender column under the yellow lamp shade. "That's the idea," he said half doubtfully.
 "Why, it's the only thing to do! Dan, I'm crazy about your play! I think it's marvelous."
 Dan laughed. He said, "Gee, you make me feel pretty good. You mean it. I think it would be wonderful to play the part of that girl." She added with a frown: "That's the kind of thing I'd like to do—and they want me to sing and dance."
 Dan put out his cigarette and turned his head to look at her. "I've done none of the things I'd really hoped to do," Anne said, and there was a bit of wistfulness in her voice.
 She was silent then, and Dan looked thoughtfully at his hands; spread them out before him and rubbed them together. He said, "Yes, that's so," and it occurred to him now that he might have been somewhat selfish in taking it for granted that Anne was satisfied with what she was doing. He said as much to her. "I've been grousing so much because things weren't breaking right for me that I'd forgotten there were others who had a right to kick." He suggested that they go for a short ride. "I've earned it, Anne, don't you think? And I'd like a limeade about a mile high; my throat's full of cotton." So they stopped at a drug store and then they headed for the

Texas Electric Preferred Stock Offered Public

Beginning today, investors of moderate means are accorded an opportunity to obtain shares of $5 Preferred Stock of the Texas Electric Service Company, a statement by J. E. Lewis, district manager of the company revealed today. Several thousand shares of the stock have been made available to the buying public and considerable interest is being shown in the issuance of the electric company securities.
 "Those who invest in Texas Electric Service Company Preferred Stock are not confronted with the possibility of putting their money into an uncertain concern located at some remote point where personal investigations may not be easily made," Mr. Lewis asserted in an interview today. "The properties of the company are located in the state of Texas and investors who buy the stock know that they are investing in a reality and not a wildcat scheme concocted in the mind of unscrupulous speculators."
 "Every investor in Texas Electric Service Company Preferred Stock will become a partner in the industry. We believe such a partnership with a large number of people will be of mutual advantage. Stockholders will gain by receiving dividends from a well established business and the company will gain from its customers a more cordial interest in its affairs. The community will gain because money paid out as dividends to local investors remains here at home," Mr. Lewis further stated.

 The stock is to be sold at $100 and accrued dividends per share either for cash or on a liberal easy payment plan of $10 down and $10 a month per share. Arrangements have been made whereby shares can be purchased at any office or through any employe of the Texas Electric Service Company.

GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXX

Anne insisted that Dan bring his copy and read it to her. Paul had seen her the following day at Grand United, had told her about it, and Anne had never seen him so enthused.
 "It's a play about a gangster and his girl, and it's got a wallop to it," Paul drew a deep breath. "Well, it's a knockout, but just a knockout! But you know Dan," he added.
 Anne nodded. "Yes, I know him. A play wouldn't have come back to him had been a good one."
 "That's Dan, I tell you, it's got a wallop to it. I've never seen a man in my life who'd put so much into a thing and pour on it so quickly. You know what the trouble with Dan is?"
 "He doesn't have enough faith in himself, for one thing. Isn't that right?"
 Paul said, "Yes, and he's bulldozed," and Anne smiled, remembering something Ziggy Young had said to Dan about herself.
 "I mean," Paul explained, "that he can't argue with him. Just because his ideas aren't set Hollywood on fire, he thinks he's a flop. He's got a lot of stuff, but it's his own, and it's a little different from what the studios have been doing. It's too bad there wasn't a studio with any imagination in it at Continental when Dan was there; he might have been sitting there if it hadn't been for Adam."
 So Dan stuck the play in his pocket that evening and went over to the bungalow.

Souvenirs of Andree Flight

Souvenirs of the ill-fated expedition of Major Salomon Auguste Andree (inset) and his daring Swedish co-explorers whose bodies were found recently, 33 years after they vanished during an attempt to reach the top of the earth in a free balloon, now rest in the museum of the University of Baldwin City, Kan. The souvenirs were presented to the University by Evelyn B. Baldwin, U. S. meteorologist, now 62, who has accompanied Andree, but who escaped the explorers' fate because he arrived at the starting base at Spitzbergen too late. The souvenirs, taken by Baldwin from the shed which housed the balloon, include fabric from which the big bag was made, sandbags, straw shoes, a part of the rope which held the balloon to the sign (written in four languages) which says "Smoking Not Allowed" and a small package containing carrier pigeon food of wheat, and small peas, still in good condition. Gilbert Crockett, Baldwin City youth, is standing beside the souvenirs.

CRACKS IN THE DOME

By the Political Analyst AUSTIN, Tex., Sept. 2.—Ross S. Sterling followed on odd custom in his campaign speeches of referring to himself in the third person as "Mr. Sterling."

The word "Sterling" is a good deal longer than "Moody" or "Neff" or "Hobby."

So far as the headlines are concerned, the successful candidate is going to find that he is "Ross" in the papers to a lot of people to whom he was "Mr. Sterling" in the speeches.

He will be consoled by remembering the informality of "Dan," and "Pa" and "Ma."

Now that they are prating oil to avoid "economic waste" or production against an unsatisfactory market, some of the people who fought to limit cotton production are asking why it is that their proposal was ruled to be unconstitutional, illegal and void, if the state can do the same thing with oil.

The legislature promises to get away to an unusually fast start in January, with harmony—peace among its members and cooperation with the executive—the guiding spirit of its session.

Fred Minor of Denton, who served as acting speaker last year when Speaker W. S. Barron went to the hospital, seemingly will be unopposed for speaker. That will avoid the worst cause of division in the house, and will save the smart of any silent belief of any member that he has been slighted in committee honors because of partisanship in a speaker's race.

Farmers who haven't any cotton to pick will find something else to do in September.

Gov. Moody picked up his telephone, talked to T. H. Webb, assistant highway engineer, and W. R. Ely, highway commissioner, and in 15 minutes announced no high-way contracts will be let in September except to firms which agree to hire all available free labor at the point of their construction jobs, so far as requirements of the work go.

Commr. Ely offered the suggestion of this definite form of farm relief in the sections affected, and Gov. Moody promptly put it into operation.

Dean T. U. Taylor of the university engineering college, has written a treatise upon the Lake Austin dam in the Colorado river at Austin. He didn't discuss finance, but he talked the engineering side of a situation that has wasted, first and last, around $100,000,000 through dissipation of water, critically needed part of the year, and flowing away wasted in destructive floods at other times.

There is a saying that every courthouse along the Colorado from Austin to the gulf, stands in water from the river's floods on an average of once every three years.

Burned Gambling Ship Is Being Searched For Loot

LONG BEACH, Calif., Sept. 1.—The submerged hulk of the gambling ship Montalongo, burned to the waterline in a fire Saturday night, was explored by deep sea divers today for trace of a safe containing $50,000 in silver, currency and checks.

A leaking gasoline line and a spark from the motor set fire to the notorious ship while a crowd of 200 patrons were playing at the various gaming tables.

The ship's orchestra, realizing the emergency, maintained order by playing lively music while the patrons were taken aboard water taxis and transported to shore, six miles away.

The vessel burned to the water's edge and the hull sank, carrying with it the safe and its valuables.

Tommy Jacobs, proprietor of the ship, estimated his loss in gambling and kitchen equipment at $100,000. He said another boat already had been purchased and that he would begin operations at the same spot next Saturday. At mile limit where federal jurisdiction ends.

Prospects For Close Pennant Races Loom

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent
NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—The prospects of two close pennant races down the last days of September in the two Major Leagues were increased as a result of the Labor Day double-header which saw both leagues lose ground.

The Chicago Cubs dropped their third straight game and their tenth in a row to Cincinnati when the Reds routed the National League champions twice, 6-0 and 2-1, and reduced their lead to 4 games. The Philadelphia Athletics continued to lose ground by losing a twin bill with the New York Yankees, while the Washington Senators won twice from the Boston Red Sox and moved within 5 1/2 games of first place in the American League.

The temporary collapse of the injury-riddled Cubs has opened the way for another contender to edge its way to the fore, but the second place New York Giants seem unable to grasp their biggest opportunity of the season.

Twice within two days the Giants have divided double-headers with the second-division Boston Braves and Phillies when a clean sweep of the four games would have hoisted McGraw's men within two games of the National League peak.

Brooklyn seems definitely out of the National League race, playing listlessly after the Robins' disastrous western trip. The Robins divided a double-header yesterday with the Braves and dropped to fourth place, 5 games behind the Cubs.

The St. Louis Cardinals have definitely moved into a strong contending position in the National League race and are now playing the best ball in the circuit. Winning twice from Pittsburgh yesterday, the Cardinals passed the Robins and climbed into third place only half a game behind the Giants and 4 1/2 games back of the Cubs.

The schedule favors the Giants and Cardinals over the Cubs during the rest of the season, the Giants having all but nine games at home while the Cardinals have eight games left at home to the Cubs' five.

In the American League, Philadelphia and Washington, will begin their final western trips a week from today and will return home until just before the season ends September 28. The Athletics have four games with the Red Sox, opening tomorrow and one with the Senators before going west. While the A's are playing the Red Sox, the Senators will clash with the Yankees, whom they have beaten in 15 out of 18 contests thus far this season.

Major League

Only three Major League games were scheduled today, giving the clubs a rest after their eight double headers yesterday. With the league-leading Chicago Cubs idle, the New York Giants and Brooklyn had a chance to gain on the pace-setters. The Giants were scheduled with the Philadelphia Athletics and the Robins with the Braves at Boston.

The only American League game scheduled was between Cleveland and St. Louis at St. Louis.

Stellar pitching by Red Lucas and Benny Frey enabled Cincinnati to beat the Cubs twice yesterday, 4-0 and 2-1. Lucas allowed but three hits in the opener, Frey permitted but five hits in the nightcap, but the Reds trailed until the ninth when Sukeforth's triple drove in two runs.

The Giants won the first game from the Phillies, 8-4, but dropped the second game, 4-3. Freddy Lindstrom was hit in the face by a thrown ball in the second game, and forced to retire.

SPORT SHOTS

By UNITED PRESS
TEHUACANA, Tex., Sept. 2.—Westminster College grid men have their first football practice here Saturday, Sept. 13, when new coach Harold Darling, formerly assistant coach at Adrian College, Adrian, Mich., arrives.

The team's first game of the season will be with the Hillsboro junior college at Tehuacana on Sept. 26.

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 2.—Losing the first fall to the Irish grappler, Pat O'Brien, Huchle Nichols, light-heavy mat champion, returned the fray to outlast his opponent and win the match. O'Brien wore himself out from the third fall by a series of headlocks. Hugh Reversed a leg-split to win the second go.

PORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 2.—Provided the Fort Worth Fellies saw up the second half of the 1930 Texas League season comes to a close, President J. Alvin Gardner will ask that the last two games between the Cats and Spudders be called off, he announced here Monday night.

This will enable both clubs to take a needed rest for the pennant play-off series, which will likely start the following Wednesday.

Regardless of which team wins the last heat, President Gardner is preparing for the play off by ordering large sets of tickets for the Philadelphia 3-0, New York 2-2 and Shreveport parks.

Two holiday victories over Shreveport, one of them a shut-out, placed the Fort Worth Cats a safe distance ahead of the Texas League pack today.

Shreveport, runner-up, stood four games behind the Cats today while the latter enjoyed one of the strongest leads attained by any club in the circuit in weeks. The Cats took the first Labor Day encounter 8 to 5, smashing out 13 hits to gain the victory. The second was a 5 to 0 shut-out in which Stoner allowed the Sports only three hits. Wichita Falls' Spudders divided a double bill with Dallas taking the first 12 to 10 and losing the nightcap, 3 to 10, to gain a tie with Shreveport for second place. The Spudders were hard pressed in the first game and lost the second without a struggle.

Houston and Waco also divided a doubleheader. The Bufts lost the first, 2 to 1, when Waco, held to three hits by Judd, managed to score two runs. The Bufts were unable to profit from three Waco errors. Houston retaliated, however, in the second game and took a 5 to 4, decision, scoring the winning run in the last half of the seventh.

San Antonio rose from the depths and beat down Beaumont in two encounters, by scores of 6 to 5 and

The Laxative With Highest Endorsement

When you get out of bed feeling headachy, sluggish, weak, half-sick here's a simple measure that will have you feeling yourself again in a jiffy.

Take a little Phillips Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water—or lemonade. Two to four tablespoons is the usual adult dose. Taken in lemonade, Phillips Milk of Magnesia acts like citrate of magnesia. Take it like this an hour before breakfast. By the time you leave home, you'll be surprised by your improvement.

As a mild, safe, pleasant laxative Phillips Milk of Magnesia has the highest medical endorsement. As an anti-acid to correct sour stomach, gas, indigestion, biliousness, it has been standard with doctors for over fifty years. To know its quick relief in digestive and eliminative troubles of men, women and children—and babies—is to keep a bottle always handy.

Full directions for all its uses come with every bottle. All drug stores have the generous 25c and 50c sizes.

Arnold Winner Of Altoona Race

ALTOONA, Pa., Sept. 2.—Billy Arnold of Chicago holds the 1930 A. A. A. championship today as a result of his victory yesterday in the 14th running of the Altoona speedway automobile race.

Arnold's victory gave him 145 points to make his total for the year 1,032. He had previously won the 500-mile Indianapolis race and the flag day event here.

Rain halted yesterday's scheduled 200 mile race on the 93rd lap near the 115 mile mark with Arnold ahead, Deacon Litz second and Shorty Canton third. A field of 12 started and there were no mishaps, despite the slippery condition of the track.

By UNITED PRESS
FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 2.—Unexpected defeats for George Lott, Chicago, and Johnny Doeg, Santa Monica, Calif., in the annual east-west matches have caused many tennis followers to wonder if the two Davis cup players are not "over-tennised" after their long campaign abroad.

Frank X. Shields, New York youngster, defeated Lott in straight sets yesterday, 6-3, 6-2, and Gregory Mangin, Newark, N. J., won from Doeg in straight sets, 6-2, 6-4.

The east won the annual competition yesterday three matches to two. John Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., and Mangin scored the deciding victory when they beat Lott and Lott, who won the National doubles title last week, 3-6, 6-3, 6-6.

The western victories were scored by Berkeley Bell, Austin, Tex., in the singles over J. Gilbert Hall, South Orange, N. J., 6-2, 4-6, 6-3 and by Bell and Ellsworth Byrnes, Pasadena, Calif., in the doubles over Shields and Hall, 6-4, 6-4.

McAdoo Keaton, assistant football coach at Howard Payne College was being treated in a local hospital today for injuries received when his car collided with another machine. Keaton was cut on the face and received internal injuries.

Bob Bettis, Howard Payne football player who was also a passenger in the car, escaped uninjured.

WHAT SCRIBES ARE WRITING

West Hodges in Breckenridge American.—Not one word have we heard about the Eastland prospects this year. Breckenridge fans will remember the Eastland game last year as one of the most exciting games played by the Buckaroos. Doped as the heavy favorites, the cocky Buckaroos waltzed over to the Maverick den and in a slashing rain, almost got the socks licked off them by the toughest, hardest hitting bunch of little warriors the Bucks ran into all year. Shotwell's charges finally grabbed the game, but victory came late in the last quarter and then after the Bucks got a whale of a big break.

ocean, and on the way back; with a waxing moon in the sky and a soft breeze singing in the palms, Anne sang for him.

Her voice was low and thrilling. Dan said when she had ended her song: "You must always sing, Anne. Even when you are doing the things you want most of all to do, you must always sing."

Paul Collier was sitting up reading when he returned home. "Hello, my boy," he said lightheartedly. "Well, what did she think of it? Did she like it?"

"Yeah. How do you think that thing would go in the movies, Paul?"

"Who suggested that, Anne?" Dan nodded, and Paul grinned. "I thought of that," he said, "when I first saw it. I'm not going to let Anne steal all the credit. But I thought you might listen to good advice if it came from another quarter. I've been wasting it on you until I'm sick of talking to you."

"Oh, yeah?" Rorimer swung a playful punch at him. He said, "Anne had an idea she'd like to play the part of Jenny. You know what I'm going to do?"

"Sure," said Collier. "You're going to try to sell it to Grand United, and then you're going to try to dictate who'll play in it. And I suppose you think they'll thank you for telling them how to run their business?"

Dan laughed, but his face grew red nevertheless. "Aw, be yourself," he said lamely.

But Collier, though he continued to smile, was serious. "You've got a great idea there, Dan. I'll swear I think I'll make the swiftest picture Hollywood has seen in a year."

He began then to take the play apart and discuss it, and Dan was amazed that he should remember it in such faithful detail, and he made suggestions here and there, to which Dan listened thoughtfully and agreed.

"See what I mean?" Paul said. "It would be a great picture for an actor like Lester Moore; he'd make that gangster of yours come to life; it's made to order for Moore."

Rorimer nodded. "I'll get at it tomorrow first thing," he said. "And then what are your plans?"

"I don't know exactly. What do you mean? I thought I'd do it over and then see if somebody wanted it. What else is there to do?"

"I've been thinking," Paul answered. "Do you know what you need, Dan? You need a little showmanship. Hollywood goes for it. The swiftest piece of showmanship you ever pulled off in Hollywood was when you tore up your contract in front of Adamson's nose. He was afraid to fire you at the time; you probably had him thinking there were half a dozen studios waiting for a chance to sign you up."

"I've got an idea," he continued. "It's probably been worked before, but everything's been tried at least once in Hollywood, so it doesn't make much difference."

"Well, let's have it."

Paul lay back in his chair and draped one of his long legs over its arm. He said, "Do you know Phillips over at Grand United?"

Dan said he did not. "Who is he?"

"He's the scenario chief. Well, you don't need to know him; he's a good egg, and if you let him know you're a friend of mine he'll see you. 'I'm not,' he hastened to add, 'going to suggest anything that won't square with that funny conscience of yours; but if you put this over—do you know in your mind just what changes you're going to make?'"

"Just about—thanks to you." "Well, forget that part of it. Now, here's what you do," and Collier, gesturing earnestly with his hand, began to unfold his plan.

End Flight From Germany By Swooping Down Among New York's Skyscrapers

Taking their welcome by surprise, Captain Wolfgang von Gronau, German flyer, and his three companions, brought their old rebuilt seaplane to rest in New York harbor with the same lack of fuss or flurry that marked their secretive trip from northern Germany via the Faroe Islands, Iceland, Greenland, Labrador and Nova Scotia. Here you see the huge airship at the Battery, with police boats standing by until the official welcome, who thought the flyers would land farther out, arrived. At the extreme right is the Woolworth Tower.

Their faces wreathed in smiles, the four German air heroes are shown here shortly after alighting from the seaplane at the Battery. Left to right, are: Fritz Albrecht, mechanic; Edward Zimmer, assistant pilot; Captain Wolfgang von Gronau and Franz Hack, radio operator.

Bishop. Pillows—Mrs. N. J. Lewis; Miss Annie Caley; Miss Annie Caley. Bathrobe (quilted)—Miss Bessie Marie Edwards. Quilted Quilt—Mrs. M. E. Edwards; Mrs. H. R. House. Quilt Top—Mrs. Emma Varner; Mrs. Delia Adams. Applique Quilt—Mrs. B. M. Carrol. Bed Spread—Miss Era McClesky.

Our advertising

DAY AFTER DAY, as you turn the pages of this paper, you see the advertising of things you need. Food, clothing, home equipment... all the necessities and luxuries that go to make up the fullness of modern living.

Has it ever occurred to you to wonder just how far you could trust these advertisements as reliable guides to the selection of worthy products?

We can answer your question in one broad statement. Any product or service that you see consistently advertised in the pages of this publication is worthy in quality, honestly priced and truthfully presented.

Why? For the very simple reason that to the maker and the seller of an unworthy product, advertising presents the quickest and surest road to failure. To the misrepresented product, advertising brings a sudden and fatal storm of public disapproval. To the dishonest maker, advertising brings a constant public reminder of his dishonesty.

Truth in advertising has come to stay... its use is no longer dependent on the integrity of the advertiser, but on his business ability. Nothing else pays.

And, in addition, the publishers of your paper make every effort to disbar from these columns any advertising that might prove objectionable or unprofitable in any way to its readers.

Read the advertisements here. They offer you a dependable short cut to the kind of merchandise you would select if you spent your day in shopping for it.
