THREE MEN KILLED IN CAR AND TRUCK CRASH

Small Sedan And Government Truck Involved

Workmen on Truck Sustained Injuries of More or Less Serious Nature.

CHAMOND, Mo., July 11.—Three were dead today and several were nursing bruises and a result of a collision between a small sedan and a government truck.

The dead were: Raymond Claypool, 22, Swanwick, Mo.; Edward B. Wrisinger, 32 of Chamond.

Claypool, his brother, also of Chamond.

The car driven by the Claypool brothers sideswiped the government truck as it was returning from the Missouri river project construction near here. Wrisinger was riding on the run-board of the truck.

Wrecker Death Probe Continues

Wrecker Death Probe Continues

WRECKER, Tex., July 11.—Despite a coroner's verdict of accidental death, special rangers T. Glover, today continued investigation into the death of R. R. Swanson, 37 year old canner, who was killed by a wrecker Wednesday. Glover said he expected to make an arrest today, where three stab wounds Swanson's body when it was idling in his wrecked auto, after it plunged into a 50 foot ravine on highway 19 near here.

One of the wounds could have been his death, a doctor's report to Justice of the Peace R. J. Up, who returned the verdict, he was not satisfied with the investigation so far, however, and he change his verdict if additional facts were placed before him.

Glover today went to Trinity to station the woman who was with Swanson the night he was killed. She said she quarreled with the wrecker on the highway outside of Wrecker, and left the car, being in back to Huntsville by a ferry.

Heat Wave Causes Suffering, Death

Heat Wave Causes Suffering, Death

CHICAGO, July 11.—The middle west prayed for cooling breezes or showers today, as a hot sun shone down on parched corn fields, and created near drought conditions in the southern half.

Suffering was evident in rural districts as well as in crowded cities. The United Press survey of heat deaths reported 33 victims since Sunday, and drownings numbered 63. The heat and drowning toll was as heavy in the less populous states as it was elsewhere.

Lack of rain is seriously affecting crop, particularly corn, in Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio. The only wet spot on one weather map was headed for North Dakota, where showers are probable.

Elsewhere workers suffered from temperatures which shot as high as 110 degrees at Abbeville, S. D., and 108 at Emporia, Kas., yesterday. Some industrial plants curtailed operations, and wheat field harvesters in Kansas labored by moonlight. At Benton, Ill., the Evening News advanced its edition time to 12:30 p. m., for the rest of July "because it's too hot to work."

The heat also baked parts of the far west and the south, in contrast to the favored situation of residents of Northfield, Vt., and Elkins, W. V., which with low temperatures of 48 during the night, were the coolest cities in the country.

Boy Scout Camp Opens Wednesday

Boy Scout Camp Opens Wednesday

By GUY N. QUIRL.

Scouts of the Oil Belt Council are making last minute efforts in preparation for attendance at the Boy Scout Camp to be held from July 16th to the 26th in Mason county on the Llano River.

Ideal Spot

Camp Martin is one of the most natural scout camp sites in Texas, as you find clear, running water for swimming purposes and all kinds of water games. Large pecan and elm trees furnish plenty of shade throughout the entire day. A sand beach for boys who wish to wiggle their toes in the sand, a rocky shoal that makes it ideal for having an old time clothes washing bee or a nice perch on which to get a fine morning wash, Spring water to drink. Camp pests are few and far between as a bat cave nearby takes care of mosquitoes; (wild) hogs rove about in great numbers and we are told by old timers that they kill out the rattlesnakes, they further state that the (wild) turkeys that range from the ranches nearby collect the red bugs. Now how could you find a more agreeable place to camp with all the camp pests missing. Of course there is the camp Gopher and Squirrel, but only scents have to bother about them.

Camp Doctor

The Oil Belt Council is fortunate in having the camp doctor for the entire period. We feel sure that the camp will be glad to know that J. P. Lovett who will receive his M. D. degree from Chicago University next March and was in charge of the emergency unit in Woodlawn Hospital in Chicago for six months will be in attendance to give instruction in various types of first aid to the injured and administer treatment to scouts who may require same.

Camp Leaders

A wonderful bunch of leaders will be on duty at camp to assure a well rounded program for the scouts.

Food

Good wholesome, well cooked food will be served by a professional cook, one who has had twenty-five months of army cooking and is at the present time connected with the Laguna Hotel at Cisco. The meals will be served in family style. Plenty of good sweet milk from a nearby ranch will be secured for breakfast cereals as well as to drink. Cocoa, lemonade and ice tea will be other drinks that will be served from time to time. Ice water will be accessible at all hours.

Program

Following is a tentative outline of the daily program: Reveille, 6:30 a. m.; morning wash or dip 6:40; camp chapel and songs 6:50; breakfast 7:00 o'clock; free time 7 to 8; Troop inspection 8:10; handcraft, archery and general scout craft from 8:10 to 10:30. Swimming classes from 10:30 to 11:30; 11:30 to 12 free time. Noon meal from 12 to 1. Free time 1 to 2. 2 to 4 general scout craft, including hikes for nature study purposes. Leathercraft, tin craft, woodcraft, scout tests, first aid instruction, etc; 4 to 5 swimming classes, 5 to 6 free time; supper 6 to 6:30; 6:30 to 8 free time by troops; 8 to 9:30, camp fire; 9:45 taps.

Visitors

Visitors will be welcome in camp any day, provided they do not interfere with the daily program. Visitors should come prepared with their own bedding if they intend to spend a night in camp and furnish their own tents for shelter. Meals for visitors will be 50c each. The camp staff would appreciate a notice in advance if several are going to visit the camp at any one time, so that we may make proper preparations.

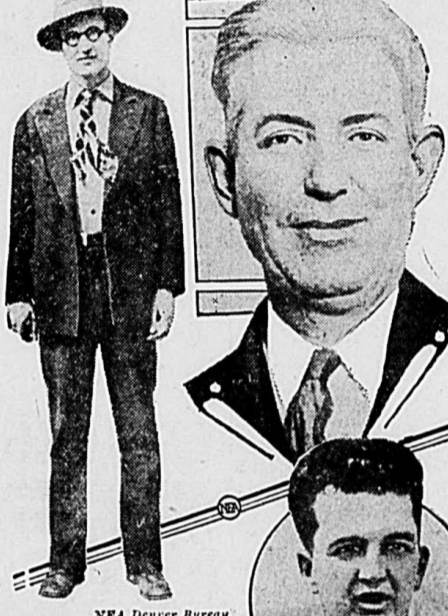

Requests

The camp staff requests those coming down to fish, to see the camp director for directions and instructions as to fishing. Mr. Martin requests that there be no guns or shooting on his ranch. We trust visitors will cooperate in this matter.

Colorado Bandit Dies On Gallows

Colorado Bandit Dies On Gallows

An echo of the bloodiest crime in history of the modern west—the $200,000 robbery of a bank at Lamar, Colo., the murder of two bank officials and the subsequent slaying of two other men—was heard last night when Ralph Fleagle, upper right, the "brains" of a gang of outlaws, paid with his life for his part in the crime. Howard Royston, lower right, and George Abshier, left, are to hang during the week ending July 19.

Ralph Fleagle, Colorado Bank Bandit, Hanged

Ralph Fleagle, Colorado Bank Bandit, Hanged

CANON CITY, Colo., July 11.—Ralph Fleagle, bandit and slayer, met death without a quail on the gallows at Canon city today. He had been sentenced to hang here last night.

Forty-five minutes before the trap was sprung at 9:03 p. m. he embraced the Catholic faith. His last words were: "God bless you Father."

At 5:16 Dr. R. E. Holmes, prison physician, pronounced him dead. His body will be sent to Garden City, Kan., where it will be cremated and the ashes given to relatives.

Fleagle, who spent his last day in prayer that he would not falter in the hour of death, walked to the gallows without a quiver.

Shortly before the death march was begun, Father Regis Barrett went to the condemned man's cell. "Are you ready," he asked.

"You bet," spoke Fleagle calmly. He walked unaided to the death chamber and just before the noose was tightened around his neck he turned to the witnesses.

"Jesus have mercy on my soul," he said simply. And then: "God bless you Father."

The first jerk upward broke his neck. It was one of the swiftest hangings in the history of the penitentiary.

Fleagle was the first of the band of desperadoes to pay with his life for the $200,000 Lamar bank robbery of May 23, 1928, which resulted in four murders.

Howard L. Royston and George J. Abshier, erstwhile confederates of Fleagle, their leader, will be hanged on the same gallows sometime during the next week.

The three were arrested and brought to trial after a long search. "Little Jake," brother of Royston and fourth member of the gang has never been apprehended.

Presbyterian's Pastor Resigns

Presbyterian's Pastor Resigns

Rev. Jas. T. Ross' Resignation To Become Effective July 31. His Future Plans Are Not Announced.

Rev. Jas. T. Ross, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Eastland for the past 15 months, has resigned that position to be effective July 31. The Presbytery, meeting this afternoon at Buffalo Gap, will dissolve the pastoral relations between Mr. Ross and the Eastland church.

Mr. Ross expects to leave Saturday, in company with Geo. Harper and family, for Denver, Colorado, where Mr. Harper and Mr. Ross will represent the Eastland Lions club in the Lions International convention in session there. Mr. Ross will be away from his pulpit this coming Sunday and next Sunday school and other regular church activities except the preaching will be carried on as usual, it was stated.

Mr. Ross will probably deliver his farewell sermon to the congregation here on Sunday, July 27th.

Mr. Ross stated that his plans for the future were not sufficiently matured at this time to make any announcement of them. It is probable he will leave Eastland, however. In speaking of his work here Mr. Ross said: "I have enjoyed my residence and work in Eastland and am glad to have had a part in the life of the community. I am very grateful for the kindnesses shown myself and family during our residence here. Sometimes ministers' work requires a long pastorate, sometimes a short one, but whether short or long I am firm in the belief that in view of the fact that life is short and ministerial careers are crowded with duties and opportunities, that a minister should, when he is conscious of having done his best work, to retire from the field in behalf of the church and his successor."

Clouds Cause Of Plane Disaster Aviators Agree

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex., July 11.—Experienced pilots agreed today that K. E. Gabbert, at the controls of the plane in which he and four prominent Kansas City businessmen plunged to their deaths near Aransas Pass, was flying blind in dense clouds and cracked the ship in attempting to right it.

Consensus of opinion was that Gabbert probably pulled back the stick to bring the craft out of a nose dive from a cloud and the terrific impact ripped the wings from the plane. The wreckage was strewn over a radius of half a mile on the farm owned by the First National Bank of Aransas Pass.

The pilot of the plane never queried the weather bureau here for atmospheric conditions. J. P. McAuliffe, meteorologist, said today. He said he would have warned Gabbert that occasional showers and squalls were causing thunderstorms over the gulf.

B. H. Dierks, Kansas City lumberman with whom the victims had been tarpon fishing in the bay, was accompanying the bodies to their home city, which they will reach at 12:30 o'clock Saturday night.

The body of Lynn will be sent to Monroe, La., his former home, accompanied by Charles M. MacLendon of Houston, a boyhood friend.

Pilots agreeing on the cause of the crash included Judd Miller, business manager of Texas Airplane Corporation; W. C. Maus, airport manager here and vice-president of the Southern Academy of Aeronautics and a pilot with more than 9,000 hours to his credit; Glover Johns, president of the Academy; Bonnie Maverick, vice president of the Texas Corporation; Wilbur Cain; F. H. Rogers, pilot with 6,000 hours to his credit who is dusting cotton in this district.

Jim Burris, pipe line worker for the Gulf Coast Pipe Line Company, died earlier today when a fire broke out from the wreckage, saying that the plane fell in soft earth and dust was probably mistaken for smoke.

Barry told of the wings dropping away and an explosion preceding the plunge.

Slightly Hurt As Mystery Ship Takes Nose Dive

Slightly Hurt As Mystery Ship Takes Nose Dive

Had Been Out for a Test Flight and Was Attempting to Land When Smash-up Occurred.

By UNITED PRESS

WICHITA, Kas., July 11.—Captain Frank Hawks, famous flyer who holds transcontinental records, narrowly escaped death here shortly after noon today when his new racing plane, a special "mystery S" Travelair, nosed over at Central Avenue Airport.

Hawks was testing the speed of the tiny plane in which he hoped to fly from coast to coast in 12 hours or less, and was coming in to land when his wheels brushed the telephone wires lining one side of the field, according to witnesses.

Hawks later said his motor cut out when about 100 feet above the ground and the plane settled into the wires.

The plane nosed into the ground. Hawks climbed out unassisted, having cut off his motor when he saw the ship was going to crash. He suffered severe bruises and was badly cut. First aid treatment was given him at the Travelair factory emergency station.

The ship escaped serious damage, fellow airmen said, although it had not been thoroughly examined following the mishap. The propeller was badly bent, and the motor mount probably suffered some, they said. Wings and landing gear and fuselage seemed intact, observers said.

Hawks' escape was considered almost miraculous, as the tiny plane lands at a speed of nearly 90 miles an hour, and ordinarily would have turned completely over on touching its wheels to the wires flyers said.

The "mystery S" is capable of 250 miles an hour, according to officials. It has a wing spread of 30 feet and a length of 20 feet.

Some witnesses said they believed the motor failed to "take the gun" when coming over the wires. But they were not sure.

Hawks received slight cuts on his head and hands.

LETTER FROM FLEAGLE'S BROTHER RECEIVED

CANON CITY, Colo., July 11—A letter mailed in Tulsa, and purportedly written by "Little Jake" Fleagle, was received by Governor Adams late today.

The letter: "I am hoping you give my brother, Ralph E. Fleagle, clemency as it was promised to him. If it is not granted him, it will sure look as if high officials' words are not much account."

"I have been planning very much on giving myself up. I know very little about the Lamar bank robbery. It was told that it was an inside job and that the first shot was fired from Mr. Parrish's revolver, killing his son, by accident, of course, and he planted $50,000 that morning, figuring on that for his self."

"Everything that has been said about me trying to make a jail break and kidnap the warden's children is the blackest lie. Some true confession writer probably fixed up that propaganda."

"Hear we all meet on the beautiful shore, I am as ever, so the police say. "Bandit J. H. FLEAGLE."

FLEAGLE'S PAIS REST UNFAS

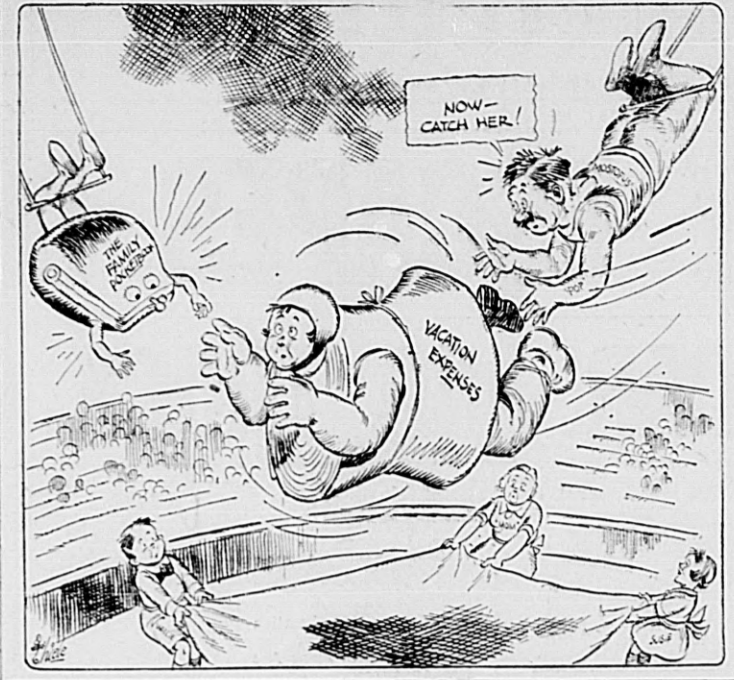

CANON CITY, Colo., July 11—Howard Royston and George Abshier, the other two of the Lamar trio who must die next week, spent a restless and sorrowful night after their leader, Ralph Fleagle was hanged.

Returned to their cells in the death house after the execution, they were silent for a time. Then Royston said: "Well, he played us a dirty trick, but it's not the same here without him."

The death watch told them how bravely Fleagle had faced his death. "He had the guts, all right," said Abshier, "but he certainly pulled a bad one on us. I'm going to walk in there straight up like he did, too."

During the night one or the other would stir frequently and say something which showed they were thinking of Fleagle. Once Royston said "I wonder what came over Ralph that he got Raymond Watson, R. J. DeLano, Murat Boyle, Eugene Lynn, and K. E. Gabbert of Kansas City, who lost their lives yesterday in an airplane crash near Arkansas Pass, were all personal friends of E. E. Freyschlag of Eastland, Mr. Freyschlag stated this morning.

Mr. Freyschlag, who formerly lived in Kansas City, stated that two weeks ago he was on a visit to Kansas City and attended a luncheon with the five men that were killed and his brother-in-law, J. Scott Harrison Jr., the six being members of a fishing club.

The luncheon was held, Mr. Freyschlag said, for the purpose of planning the trip to Arkansas Pass. Harrison planned on making the trip with the party, but on the day before the party left Kansas City, he had to go to a sanitarium for a minor operation and S. H. Dierks went in his stead. Dierks was not killed.

R. J. DeLano, Mr. Freyschlag stated, had lived two years at Abilene and during the oil boom spent a great deal of time at Ranger.

Mr. Freyschlag was greatly shocked yesterday evening when he saw the account of his friends' tragic death in the newspaper. He did not know until that time that his brother-in-law was not in the party.

analysis and in the evidence that Love's campaign has weakened already. The Hoovercrat voters who come back into the democratic party this year do not want to do it as martyrs. They want to do it as quietly as possible, and don't like for the old issues of a dead-and-done campaign to be shouted at them.

Earle B. Mayfield has acknowledged that there is practically but one question in the governor's race this year, by discarding whole sections of his cut-and-dried speech and expanding at length in his attack upon R. S. Sterling's road bond campaign issue.

This week the state finished paying out over $24,500,000 in the past 12 months, as the $17.50 per capita scholastic apportionment to schools on a scholastic census count slightly over 1,400,000.

This was the highest payment in history. Last year's was $15. And along with this amount paid from school funds, the legislature gave the schools another $2,500,000 per year as rural aid.

Texas highway building will continue this month the biggest factor of public activity and the expenditure of public funds on permanent works in the state. Approximately $2,000,000 of new construction is being projected for the award of contracts July 31 and Aug. 1.

Approximately $3,000,000 contracts were let in June, and the work of half a dozen months now under way in Texas, besides that yet to start as a result of action this month, would run easily to $10,000,000.

the open in California. The plants are easily forced in the greenhouse, says Dr. Griffiths, but require a rather long period to get into flower. Plants grown at the Arlington experimental farm in Virginia this spring began blossoming the middle of March and continued until the middle of May. The wonderful keeping quality of the blossoms has few parallels, says Doctor Griffiths. Cut flowers shipped from South Africa to London keep in good condition for two weeks afterward. One instance is known of a reshipment from London to the United States, and then the stock was propagated from the bulbs produced.

The flowers are white, and usually about three-fourths of an inch in diameter. They are borne on spikes from 5 to 8 inches in length. Flowering begins at the bottom of the spikes and continues as the spikes develop. Although the chincheriee is a member of the lily family, it does not bear close resemblance to any of our common flowers.

PUBLIC AGAIN WARNED NOT TO EAT RAW PORK Reports that trichinosis has caused the death of three persons and illness of 30 other residents of Reading, Pa., recently has led the United States Department of Agriculture to renew its warnings against eating raw pork. In Reading the disease was the consequence of eating raw-pork sausage.

Trichinosis is produced by a minute parasitic worm that infests the meat of swine without noticeably injuring the animals. This minute worm is taken into the human body by eating raw or undercooked fresh pork. In the human body these worms, or trichinae, produce a disease known as trichinosis, which somewhat resembles typhoid fever. Trichinosis is a painful and dangerous disease which does not respond to treatment. All fresh pork in whatever form should be thoroughly cooked to make it safe.

Leaflet 34-L, "Trichinosis," prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture to explain this disease and methods of avoiding it, is available free to anyone requesting it.

The five "non-selective" leagues—the American Association, Pacific Coast, International, Western and Three I Leagues—are in open rebellion against the major league ultimatum that they will refuse to accept the "draft."

Representatives of the minor leagues expressed doubt that the major leagues would adhere to their resolution, but predicted that if they did the entire structure of organized baseball would be broken.

Minor league owners contend that if the majors recruit no talent from these circuits the class AA organizations soon would become as strong as the American and National Leagues, thereby paying the way for a new major league.

"Third league" talk has been prevalent for several years and advocates believe the prospects for a new major league are far more favorable than ever before. If all five of the non-selective leagues unite to fight against major league domination they would have a strong nucleus for an independent organization.

Competition in the major leagues today had little bearing on the pennant races, with the three leading clubs in each league taking a holiday to prepare for Saturday's opening of inter-sectional series. IV. Hers to Command An army to set her table When the housewife tells A & P her needs—by her purchases in its stores—an army of men, trained to obey her will, stands at command.

And because great numbers of women who like good things and good values trade in A & P stores, the order of one housewife becomes the order of many. A vast association of housewives, A & P's customers, thus grows out of a single aim—good food at least cost.

The whole A & P army is at her command, and the buying of all these housewives—massed to serve each—gives to all the pick of every crop, of every food.

Growers and manufacturers know that only their best products at fair prices will satisfy this large body of consumers. In return, these industries are assured of regular sale of their goods.

So the housewife who shops at A & P is certain of the best; while her steady, thrifty buying supports honest food industries in every part of the country.

In shopping for her own advantage, she is helping the food producer.

Imported Cheese
The United States imports about 75,000,000 pounds of cheese a year, according to the United States Department of Agriculture. O. E. Reed, chief of the Bureau of Dairy Industry, says "If this cheese were made in this country it would make a market for the product of about 150,000 good American dairy cows." The dairy specialists in the bureau laboratories are now engaged in research which is expected to help the American dairy industry produce foreign-type cheese that will compete successfully with the imported product.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Judith Grant, artist's model, loves Alan Steyne, painter, who is also loved by Chummy Morley. Judith roommate and best friend. Chummy had loved Steyne years ago, and lost her memory when he went away. She loves Steyne and Judith, Judith insists that it is his duty to marry Chummy, whose memory is restored when she sees him again. Judith is studying dancing under the great Guarvenius, and Bruce Gideon, rich financier, wants to star her in a musical show, although Steyne wants her that Gideon's intentions are not honorable. Guarvenius is killed in an auto accident, and Judith plans to go on with her career. She urges Chummy and Steyne to get married at once.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

Chummy found it hard beyond belief to repeat her conversation with Judith to Alan. She managed to tell him that Judith was very much changed.

"She's so serious, Alan—you wouldn't know her."

"And you think she can look after herself, Clarissa?" the young man asked.

"Oh, yes, of course she can. She always has."

"Then you don't think it necessary to postpone our wedding any longer?"

"No, Alan—not on that account."

Steyne said nothing. There was no other account. He knew that. It had come to the point. It was now the end of the first week in August. He had consulted the girl about the date of the wedding a day or two ago, and she had suggested the 17th, her birthday. It must be settled definitely now. There was no going back. Her preparations were made. He had none to make.

The time had come for him to settle his debt, to pay for that more than ten-year-old mistake. He nerved himself, and they discussed details. There was plenty of time to give orders for the other rooms at Gramercy Park to be prepared before they came back. They would write from abroad.

Perhaps Clarissa would pick up some Italian furniture. There were a small sitting room for her and another bedroom, and also a maid's room, to be arranged. Clarissa could think of no more ideal home.

"Before we go, Alan, we must make Judy spend a day with us. I'm still a little worried about her. You see, she's alone a great deal now, and Clara Jenks is so busy. Shall we go into the country and have a really nice day? I'll make her come."

"Yes," he agreed. "I'll hire a car—there's not room enough in mine."

"That will be lovely!"

(Chummy was radiant. Alan wondered at her selfishness. He wondered how she had ever come to believe that he loved her; and he wondered what in her secret heart she thought of him as a lover now.)

"You will come, won't you, Judy?" Chummy asked, her eyes alight with affection, her whole being aglow with the thought of the wonderful life that was opening out before her. "Just one day before we start off, Alan and I!"

"Of course I'll come," Judy answered. "It sounds lovely. A whole day in the country, a motor car, a picnic lunch, and a dinner and a play to end up with! Why, sweet, I haven't done a single thing since dear old Guarvenius died!"

"Then it's tomorrow, if it's fine," said Chummy. "We'll call for you at 10 o'clock, if that isn't too early—we want to go a long way, into the real country."

"Splendid! And you're really to be married—when is it?"

"A week from today," said Clarissa, blushing.

"And I'm not asked to the wedding?"

Chummy went still redder.

"It's Alan, Judy darling. He somehow doesn't want to ask anybody—not a soul."

"I quite understand," Judy said. "If a thing's going to be quiet, it had much better be dead quiet. And you see, all the boys would want to come."

Judy was decidedly more like herself, and Clarissa, now about to enter the very innermost circle of happiness, was elated and transfused, so that she had no fears either for herself or for her beloved little friend.

The future of Judy was as rosy as her own. She would have the world at her feet, and then in time she would find love, and she would know that it is the greatest thing of all.

The day in the country was a great success. From Chummy's point of view, it was perfect.

They drove up to a far corner of Connecticut, where there was a sweeping line of great hills. They climbed one of them, leaving the car at the bottom, and Alan, carrying the luncheon basket. On the top they were rewarded by a grand view and a sweet cool breeze. They ate and drank like school children. Judy was entranced by the wide, open spaces, and danced about like a child of ten.

Then they laid themselves down on the springy, scented turf, and smoked and talked—at least, Judy and Chummy talked. They strolled about and picked flowers, made a wide circle of the summit of the hills, and finally reached the car again, scrambling down a steep hillside, exhausted with laughter and exercise and fresh air.

Judy was dropped at her rooms after six o'clock, and Alan and Chummy made an appointment to fetch her at half past seven for the dinner and theater, which were to make a fitting end to this gala day.

It was a little after half past seven when Steyne arrived.

Judy's room were on the top floor of the little house, the front sitting room was very scrappily furnished, but Judy had put up some little pictures that the boys and all the variegated splendor of the August border. They had evidently been thrown into basins and jugs pell-mell, and their scent made the atmosphere of the little room heavy with sweetness.

Judy came into the room, while Alan stood at the window, glower-ing down into the street.

"Where is Chummy?" she asked.

"I expected to find her here," he answered. "We said half past seven. I came straight here—I am a little late."

"She won't be many minutes," Judy said carelessly. "What a lovely day we had! What do you think of my room?"

"Where do all these flowers come from?" he asked abruptly.

"I'm sure I don't know."

"Nonsense, Judy! Tell me, are they from Gideon?"

"I tell you I don't know; but I shouldn't be surprised. They come every few days, and there's no name. Only Mr. Gideon hasn't any country house, and aren't they garden flowers?"

"Some of them," said Steyne roughly. "Where is Gideon?"

"Abroad somewhere—in France, where he goes to drink waters to reduce his fat, I think."

"When did you last see him?"

"I haven't seen him since dear M. Guarvenius died," Judy answered.

"Didn't he try to see you?"

"He did, if you want to know; but I can't see why you—"

"Oh, yes, Judy, you can see!" said Steyne recklessly. "You know perfectly well that I'm madly jealous of the brute!"

"I think it's very strange of you to talk like that when you're going to be married in a day or two. Why do you want to spoil this nice day?"

Steyne turned and looked at her. She wore a little black dress all but sleeveless, as was her wonted garb. Around her slender waist was a sash of fussy tulle, needing in a big bow at one side. She was very pale. The flowerlike face, the bright hair, and the curl of the lips were more than Alan could stand.

He had given her up—yes, he had given her up, once and for all, on that night in his studio, when she had begged him not to make it so hard for her, and he was going to marry Clarissa Morley in a day or two. But just now, at this moment, in her flower-scented room, after a day in Judy's company, drinking in her presence, absorbing all her mad-dening variety, he was not master of himself.

Just once more—once more! He strode up to her and took her hands.

Hunter Brothers Now Plan Flight Around U. S.

Not content with smashing the world's endurance record by keeping their second-hand airplane, City of Chicago, aloft for 23 days, these four Hunter brothers now plan a non-stop refueling flight around the borders of the United States just as soon as it can be arranged. The four musketeers of the air are shown here just after the endurance plane was brought to earth at Sky Harbor Airport, near Chicago. Left to right, are, Albert, John, Kenneth and Walter. Kenneth and John piloted the endurance ship; Albert and Walter, the supply ship.

"Judy, this is goodbye," he said.

"Yes," she breathed. "It is goodbye."

"You are making me do it. It's your fault. You insist on my marrying Clarissa. You insist on my leaving you all alone in the world without any one to look after you."

"I can look after myself."

"Perhaps; but I want you to know that it's your fault, your doing. Goodbye, Judy!"

"Goodbye!"

She breathed faintly, was ghastly. She swung him, and the next moment in his arms.

"Don't forget," he said, "you are making me love you and you love me. Clarissa. I know I tell her the truth. You me. Whatever happens, fault!"

aware that Clarissa was standing there in the doorway, her lovely face set into a mask of incredulous wonder, her golden-brown eyes half closed, as if in an instinctive effort not to see.

Some five minutes later Clarissa Morley slowly descended the stairs. She had descended them swiftly and silently, and stood at the bottom like a graven image, with her hands clenched at her side.

What gave her strength to play the part she did she never knew. This time she rapped at the door and called out Judy's name. She found Judy and Alan waiting for her. Judy was laughing at something Alan had just said. Steyne gave her a smile of cordial welcome.

"Late, Clarissa!" he exclaimed. "Yes, I know," she answered.

She wondered in an impersonal way what they thought of her voice, her face, her whole bearing—those two who had just been in each other's arms, bidding each other goodby eternally, with tears and anguish, with passionate despair—those two whom she had seen, but who had not seen her. They played their parts well, too.

Life, after all, was a comedy. On with the show! A single broken leg will not stop a circus. Why should a single broken heart put a spoke in the great wheel of life?

They spent a merry evening, a fitting end to a gala day.
