Organization At Rising Star Will Oppose Thieves

RISING STAR, Aug. 9.—At a meeting held in the offices of the chamber of commerce here and attended by some 25 of the representative farmers and stockmen of the Rising Star territory an organization was launched looking to the wiping out of petty thievery in the section, especial attention being paid to chicken and turkey thieves.

Among others A. Strackbein, of Snooks community, Ira Swift of the same community and others from different communities reported losses ranging from a few dollars to around $100 worth of property. Each and everyone expressed themselves as being "full up" on losses and are ready to go after the thieves in a systematic way and see that they are put to justice.

Initial fee of $1.00 is to be paid by each member which is used in the running down prosecution of thieves and each member pledges himself to be alert in the apprehension of thieves and to promptly report losses. Membership lists are circulated and another meeting is called for Saturday afternoon when the permanent organization will be perfected.

A CHANGE FOR THE BETTER

With His Wits For His Weapons Dr. Snook Fights For His Life

COURTROOM, COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—The battle of wits between Dr. James Howard Snook, on trial for the alleged murder of Theora Hix, and Prosecutor John J. Chester, Jr., who was cross-examining Snook, came to a sudden end at 2:25 p. m., today when Chester broke off in what seemed to be the midst of his questioning, came to the defense table and said "He is your witness."

Dr. Snook had just completed repudiation of his entire alleged confession and of all statements read from the transcript of his examination before the alleged confession.

COURTROOM, COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 9.—Dr. James Howard Snook accused of the murder of Theora Hix, and John J. Chester, Jr., his prosecutor, fenced and parried through the morning today with Dr. Snook's life or liberty at stake.

With Chester impersonating Miss Hix, and two chairs side by side for the jury, impersonating an auto seat, Snook was forced to reenact what he could remember of his struggle with Theora. Chester rolled on the floor and Snook pulled him up, the prosecutor leveling a drumfire of questions.

Governor Signs Public School Appropriation

Under Terms of Bill Passed by Legislature School Will Get $17.50 from State for Each Child of School Age in District.

AUSTIN, Tex., Aug. 9.—Gov. Moody today signed a bill passed by the last session of the legislature fixing the scholastic appropriation at 17.50. This means that each public school will receive from the state $17.50 for each child of school age shown on the scholastic census for the school year.

The governor also approved a bill by which the state takes over the Dickson Negro orphanage at Gilmer, Tex. He vetoed an appropriation of $7,500 to care for the 135 orphans there until Sept. 1. As the property cannot be transferred to the state before that date, the inmates then may be removed to the state negro school for deaf, dumb and blind at Austin.

"I did not say it. And if we say you did we are lying."

"Yes. When you were on the running board of the car and saw Miss Smith on the ground what did you do?"

"I spoke to her. Did she answer you?"

"No. What did you do?"

"I left. I was scared. Scared of your shadow?"

"Indeed. And you drove away leaving her dead?"

"I spoke to her and she didn't answer."

"So you left her dead?"

"When mid-morning recess came Dr. Snook apparently was collected and his nerve unshaken."

"During the morning recess two surgeons, one selected by each side, made an intimate examination of Dr. Snook to determine presence or absence of marks and scars."

"Dr. Snook maintains he still carries the result of Theora's alleged assault upon him. The result of the examination was withheld for the present."

Young Men Should Be Protected From Women, Woman Says

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 8.—"Down with the bare leg fad—up with the rolled stocking," is the battle cry of Mrs. Annabelle Young, stern, little Westville church worker, who has petitioned the board of aldermen here for an ordinance against "sun-tan" styles.

"I love young people and I want to protect them against themselves," Mrs. Young declared in an interview today.

"Girls and women," she added, "are exposing too much of themselves on the streets of our city, principally because of ignorance of innocence, while man, who is of a rougher moral nature, keeps himself covered because he is shy."

For blue eyes grew tender as she considered the perils of unprotected Yale students.

"New Haven," she explained, "is her own particular problem. Yale university, a beautiful college, erected and maintained for the good of the country, is here and a splendid body of students comes here each year—though of course there must be good and bad."

"But these young men must be protected. I believe no woman has a right to go out on the street and tempt a fellow being."

Mrs. Young wants the aldermen to pass an ordinance making any girl over 12 who appears on the street with bare legs liable to arrest.

"There is too much of this fad which allows girls of 15 and 16 to go prowling the city streets with their legs exposed several inches above their knees," continued the little churchwoman. "I know what present day morals are. Any showy blonde who comes into town can tell you that a few hours after she lands here."

Descendants of early Huguenot settlers, Mrs. Young believes America is the Biblical "land of milk and honey." But she thinks there's too much of honey on view. "If we ruin America through breaking down the old moral standards we have no place to go," she declared. "Remember, these fads are copied from Europe."

Better See Your Local Lumberman First

The other day we listened to the story of a man in another community who purchased a "ready cut" house.

The material came cut to length and ready to nail together.

Before the building was completed, however, the purchaser was ready to concede that there are many flaws in the "ready cut" system. Carpenters on the job were on the verge of hysteria before the work was finished.

All of which illustrates that the promise of great savings in building materials from such houses are not always to be relied upon.

Our lumbermen in Eastland are ice. They furnish reliable building information as well as building materials. They merit your patronage.

day the oath of office for enumerators will contain a provision that each must preserve the secrecy of information secured. A heavy penalty is provided for violating this provision.

"Do not be afraid or have the slightest hesitation in answering enumerators' questions frankly, without bashfulness or mental reservation," Stewart said. "All information obtained will be held confidential."

"The taking of the census next May promises now to proceed smoothly. Fortunately it will not be accompanied by such scenes as were witnessed in Turkey when Turks imprisoned the entire population in their houses on the day of the census."

The Census Bureau has tentatively established enumeration districts for the taking of the census and is now making plans to employ 100,000 enumerators to work in the districts, taking a census of population, farms, mines, irrigation and drainage projects and unemployment.

Next month, starting May 1, 1930, is allotted Stewart to complete this tremendous task. The first population census took 13 months to count a little less than $1,000,000 while the 1930 census will enumerate about 120,000,000.

"The population of the United States is increasing at the rate of about 1,400,000 persons a year, or approximately one person every 23 seconds," Stewart said. "This total increase is made up of the annual excess of births over deaths, which amounts to about 1,150,000 and the excess of immigration over emigration which totals about 250,000 annually."

"History records no other instance in which the population has increased so rapidly. By 1930 the population will be more than 30 times as great as it was in 1790 and nearly twice what it was in 1890, only 40 years ago."

Stewart said each enumerator will have about 1,800 persons to tabulate. The enumerators must work quickly and accurately. They will receive about $75 to $100 each for their work.

For the first time in history the country will have an accurate count of the unemployed. At present those out of work are estimated between 1,000,000 and 4,000,000.

Officials estimated the census next year would tabulate a population of about 120,000,000 people, about 6,500,000 farms, 14,000 mines and quarries and more than 100,000 irrigation and draining projects.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Henry Porch, believed to have been an American talking-picture engineer was killed and two of his countrymen, Raymond King, Rochester, N. Y., and Richard W. Kirkpatrick, were severely injured early today when an automobile which King was driving crashed over a parapet of a bridge across the Thames river at Staines, 19 miles southwest of London.

Wall Street
NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Every active issue on the stock exchange declined today in one of the worst breaks in stock market history. Holders literally threw away their shares for what they would bring. Prices crumpled and repeated attempts to rally the market failed.

At the opening values were down one to more than 20 points. Orders were lunched in blocks of 5,000 to 25,000 shares and execution of these huge amounts set a new record for the first half hour with business at the rate of more than 13,000,000 shares for a full day.

Later dealings quieted down from the opening rush. At 1:30 the volume amounted to 3,897,100 shares. Tickers were 17 minutes behind before the end of the first hour, but they gradually caught up.

Prices came back in the second hour, but around noon further selling set in followed by another recovery. The list then see-sawed back and forth with the trend lower. Late in the session prices of the majority of issues were off 5 to 10 points, representing a reduction in market value of several billions of dollars.

This terrific decline resulted primarily from the unexpected raising of the New York rediscount rate from 5 to 6 per cent.

The increased rediscount rate had no effect on call money today and the rate held at 18 per cent all day with supplies fairly comfortable. Incidentally the heavy selling was swinging from weak to strong hands able to finance larger ventures and therefore the heavy market was relieved of a heavy strain.

Not only did the New York stock and curb markets break out but the markets of practically all other financial centers of the country felt the effect of the discount rate increase. Canadian, English, Dutch and German markets also declined in sympathy.

She Will Try for Speedboat Mark

"My name isn't Betty. It's Marion B. Carstairs. Get that" . . . . . Cigaret in hand, rakish beret set atop her boyish clipped hair, here's the way the wealthy English sportswoman appeared as she arrived in New York to try to wrest speedboat honors away from America. She brought with her a three - engine, 3000-horsepower mystery craft, "Estelle IV," which will compete for the coveted Harmsworth Trophy at Detroit on Labor Day.

SARGON PROVED TRUE BLESSING

Sargon has done more for me in a few weeks than all the other medicines I took put together during the ten years I suffered.

"I had awful attacks of nervous indigestion and my stomach was in such a disordered condition I could not eat a good meal. I couldn't even take a glass of milk without suffering. In fact for the two years before I started taking Sargon I had not swallowed one mouthful of solid food; I had lived on orange juice. I had sharp pains in my stomach and was so weak I had to give up and go to bed. My nerves just went all to pieces and I never got a good night's rest.

"Sargon has surely proved a blessing to me. I can now eat anything I want without bad effects. My nerves are normal, I sleep fine and never have to use a laxative any more like I did before I started taking the Sargon Soft Mass Pills.

"This remarkable treatment has given me back my health and I feel like telling everybody about it."

Texas Drug Store, Agents.

THIS HAS HAPPENED MOLLY BURNHAM'S love life is all upset. There are two men in Molly's heart—JACK WELLS, a poor young architect, whom she truly loves, and RED FLYNN, a reporter, with whom she has written the play that made her famous.

Newspaper people pre-suppose a romance with Red, and write various stories, anticipating Molly's marriage with him. The unpleasant notoriety incenses Jack, and he and Molly quarrel. Then Red writes her a letter, protesting that he is crazy about her, but will never be in a position to ask her to marry him. His mother is an invalid, and Red has promised he will never marry while she lives.

On top of her distressing amours, Molly encounters tragedy, when she visits Rita Newton, a college classmate. Rita says the doctors have given her a year to live. She asks if Molly will take care of her baby when she dies. Molly, fearful, upset and saddened, promises.

A little later she sails for Italy. First, Molly urged Rita to go with her. Then she invited her mother, but they both declined.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

The sun was sparkling on the water when the Conte Biancamano rode the shining sea into the Bay of Naples. Molly stood at the rail beside an elderly little Englishman, who took off his glasses to rub away the moisture.

His voice was tremulous with emotion, as he murmured, "Italy! O Italy! thou who hast the fatal gift of beauty."

"It's heaven," she whispered—a little apologetically, because she could not break into verse also. Molly had always envied people who could breathe an appropriate bit of poetry for almost every occasion.

"It falls around with beauty," he declared solemnly and wished she could think of a poetic comeback.

"You're going to Rome, I suppose?"

"Yes, indeed," she said. "And Venice—I simply adore Venetian jewelry!"

Her companion regarded her stonily.

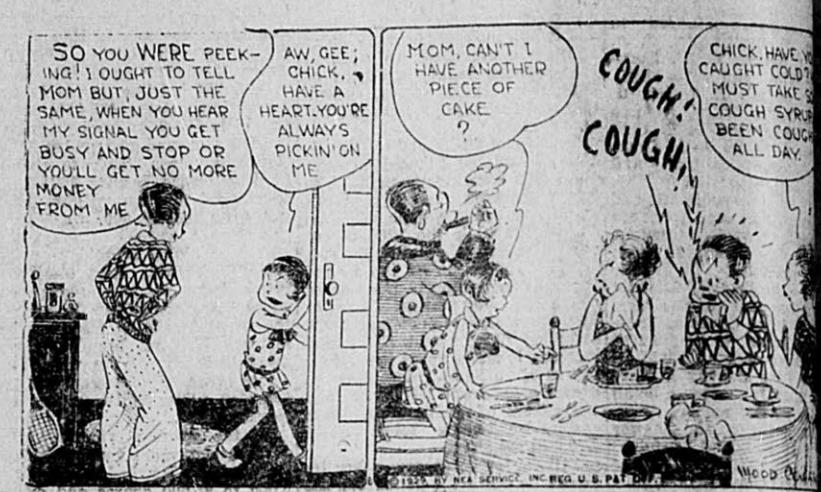

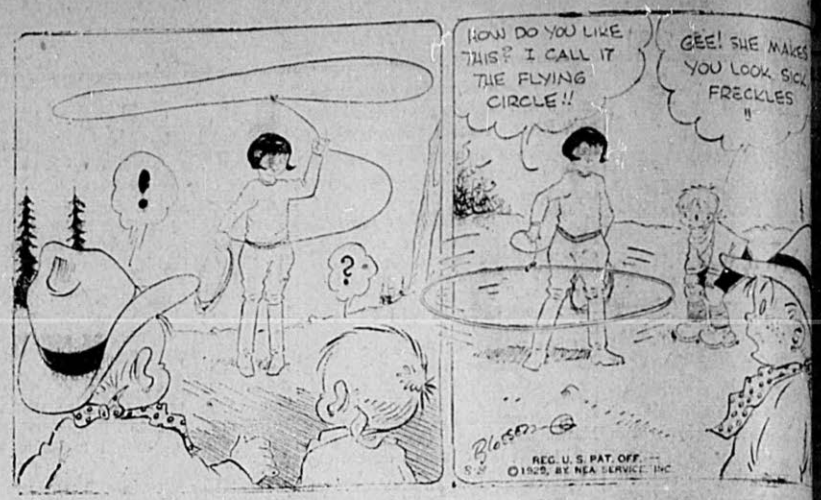

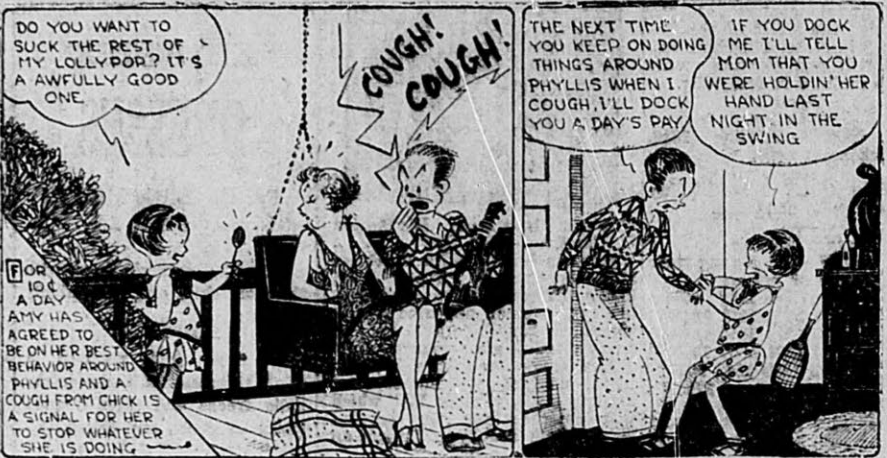

"I stood on Venice," he proclaimed, "on the Bridge of Sighs. A palace and a prison on each hand."

"And Florence," she added

But one night, after they had danced at the ambassadors, the duke, whose first name was Lorenzo, suggested they see the Colosseum in the moonlight. And there, under the moon that shone on ancient Rome, Lorenzo sought to take Molly to his arms.

All things considered, Molly decided to go to Venice. Everybody told her to be sure to arrive by moonlight. And the duke, declaring that Venice could not be Venice without romance, offered to go himself, as her guide. But Molly declined. And, leaving a forwarding address for Jack's belated mail, set out alone for the sea-city of her dreams.

It was like another fairy tale, the way she stepped into a gondola at the station, and the way her bondholder began to sing. By the time she reached her hotel, he had sung Santa Lucia and Sole Mio, from beginning to end. Then he paddled his boat into the lobby of the hotel.

It was a gorgeous hotel. Once it had been a palace, and about it clung the remnants of its ancient glory. Right away Molly knew that Venice was going to measure up to all dreams. And fasted in an open dining room that floated over the canal, she determined to return on her honeymoon.

A week later she went on to Florence. Surely there would be a letter now from Jack. If there wasn't, she had better cable after all. There was no telling what might have happened but Jack.

Everyone had written but Jack. Red and Rita, and poor Zip. And Mr. Durbin, to say that they were still packing them in. Even her mother. And her father, poor dear, had enclosed a check, asking her to buy a "surprise for mother."

Surely, if Jack had written, she would have received it, for none of her other letters had gone astray. Her might, of course, be sick. They had no mutual friends in New York. There was no one to let her know if some dreadful thing had happened.

Molly was beginning to be homesick. She wanted someone she loved to talk to. More than anyone in the world she wanted Jack. And after Jack—she would like very much, she decided, to talk to Red. And then to Rita. And she was anxious, too, to see her father. Then she began thinking about her mother. Their relations had been strained, but if anything should happen while she was away, she would simply die, she decided.

She unpacked her bags, and hung up her clothes listlessly. They were wrinkled. And her prettiest dress, the lovely blue one she had faded almost colorless by the Italian sun. There were her colored felt hats—wrecks, all of them. And her shoes, scuffed out at the toes. Dusty streets, and miles and miles of museums! And she'd give anything in the world for a good cup of coffee. She hadn't had a taste of decent coffee since she could remember. And bacon and eggs. Oh, how she'd love some bacon and eggs.

"Good lord," she fretted, "I wonder why they can't learn to cook bacon."

All travelers get to feeling that way. It's a feeling that usually sets in on rainy days. Or when there hasn't been any mail from home for a long time. When the sun comes out, or the mail arrives, it usually passes. But when it persists, despite sunshine and letters, the only thing to do is to pack up, and go home.

Molly's money was beginning to disappear. Before, she had always stopped at hotels. But in Florence, in order to economize, she had gone to a pension, which is rather like a boarding house in America. Only most pensions are nicer than most boarding houses. And Pension White, on the River Arno in Florence, happens to be run by one of the nicest women anywhere.

Molly was beginning to cry, when Signorina Benvenuti knocked at her door. Perhaps she had guessed that Molly was traveling-worn and tired, and disappointed because there was no mail.

"Wouldn't you like to begin getting acquainted with Florence?" she asked. "There is time before defejner to stroll down to Ponte Vecchio, if you care to."

Molly looked blank.

"Ponte Vecchio," Signorina hastened to explain, "is the little old bridge that crosses the Arno. You'll know the minute you see it, because I'm sure you must have seen hundreds of pictures of it. Artists have been painting Ponte Vecchio for a thousand years, I guess. It's where all the jewelry shops are tucked away. Many of them are on the very spots where goldsmiths sold trinkets to the Medici."

Molly wiped her eyes.

"I've been having a dreadful fit of blues," she confessed. "But shopping always braces me up. Thank you so much, Signorina."

"I'll buy Jack a ring," she was thinking, "to make up for the little diamond that he gave me. Maybe I can find an antique in one of those old shops."

It was almost too good to be true. She ventured into a stall that was smelly and down-at-the-heel. And there sat an ancient silversmith, sticking rubies in the eyes of a silver monster, on a silver ring!

The old man spoke no English, but he called a school boy's apprentice in, who was studying the language. And the boy said that the ring was a copy of one worn by Lucrezia Morgia, who secreted a poison powder in the head of the monster. He showed Molly the finest smith in Florence. And create spring that opened the creature's head, and there was a place to hide poison enough, to murder a tiresome lover any day.

"I suppose," hazarded Molly doubtfully, "that it costs a fortune."

The apprentice conferred with the master.

"Twenty-five dollars," he said, "and hand-wrought, Signorina, by the eyes of the monster are of rubies."

"I'll take it," she declared, fearful lest the apprentice had made a mistake, and would correct it before she could acquire possession.

It was not until she bought, in the marketplace, raffia handbags for 29 cents—the kind that sell in the smart shops at home for $5—that she felt quite sure Florence was a wonderful place for shopping.

Happily she returned to Pension White, with the precious ring for Jack and amethyst earrings for Rita.

Signorina herself drew back the big bolt on the door, and admitted Molly gayly.

"The mail has come," she declared, "and also a cablegram."

It cost such a lot to cable from the States to Italy that a cable is sometimes a rather fearsome thing. Molly took it nervously, and tore it open.

"I hope it is good tidings," remarked Signorina Benvenuti.

She was sorting the letters of her guests, and placing them on a table. And her back, as she turned when she felt a little fluttering hand on her shoulder.

Molly's arms were outstretched and shaking. Before Signorina Benvenuti could catch her, she had fallen. The cable was in her hand. . . . For the first time in her life Molly had fainted.

Rum Runners and Patrolmen Fight

EL PASO, Aug. 9.—A patrol of U. S. border patrolmen and five rum runners engaged in a ten minute gun battle on Cordova Island, within a half mile of the business district here last night, resulting in the injury of two smugglers.

The smugglers were successful in escaping into Mexican territory after the skirmish.

The U. S. agents ascertained the casualties by two separate trails of blood leading into Mexico.

The battle was waged by the combatants within 25 steps of each other, patrolmen said. The quiet was watched as they approached the American side of the island. At the command of the officers the San Antonio Indians took a 6-0 victory over the Dallas Stars yesterday. The Indians' pitcher, Bill Gardner, pitched a perfect game. Gardner, a left-hander, was a newcomer in the Texas League.

Waco defeated Houston yesterday after a hard-fought battle. Waco had knocked a home run in the seventh to tie the score, followed it with a single in the eighth which scored the winning run. The score, 6 to 5.

Waco Sports had their season interrupted yesterday when they were beaten by the Waco Cubs. A two-bagger and a home run enabled Waco to pile up a 6-0 victory. The winning scores in the game were 6 to 0.

the first of a series with Beaumont. The Exporters held the lead at the beginning of the ninth but Bonowitz landed a homer to tie the score, after which Baker singled to bring in the winning run to make the score 8 to 7.

Watching the Scoreboard. Yesterday's hero, Willey Moore, veteran pitcher of New York Yankees, who relieved Herb Pennock against the Athletics and allowed the American league leaders only one hit in five innings, helping the world's champs to win, 6 to 1.

The Yankees thereby took the series from their rivals and left for the west confident that they can overtake the Mackmen, who are now 10 1-2 games out in front. Sam Byrd's hitting was the big factor in the Yankee offensive. Rube Walberg being the victim.

The skidding St. Louis Browns dropped a pair of games to the Chicago White Sox, the scores being 5 to 4 and 6 to 2. Bill Cissell's batting featured the opener and Red Faber's pitching the second game.

Harry Heilmann's double with the bases filled in the ninth was the winning punch in Detroit's late rally and 9 to 6 triumph over the Cleveland Indians. Dale Alexander made five hits including a homer.

Ervin Brame held the St. Louis Cardinals to three hits and beat them 5 to 1, Pittsburgh's twelfth victory out of fourteen starts after he finished high school here.

EXCAVATIONS IN SOUTHERN BRAZIL. National Museum Seeks Remains of Prehistoric Animals.

RIO DE JANEIRO, Aug. 7.—Dr. J. A. Padberg of the National Museum is planning to lead an expedition late this year to Uniao da Victoria, state of Parana, in southern Brazil, to undertake excavation work in search for remains of prehistoric animals.

Fossil remains, one of which resembled the vertebrae of a gigantic beast, were found recently on a farm at Uniao da Victoria, and were identified by Dr. Padberg as belonging to an American megatherium of the pleistocene or glacial period. The deposit and also some stone utensils believe to be of the paleolithic period, were discovered near the headwaters of the Iguaçu river at an altitude of 900 meters. Dr. Padberg said the stone instruments probably are the first of their kind to be found in either North or South America.

Ranger Youth Receives His Transport License at T. A. T. Flying School.

RANGER, Texas, August 9.—Dick Barkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Barkley, 608 Young street, has just been granted the same airplane license Lindbergh has and that all the pilots on the various air passenger lines of the country are required to have, according to word received from Fort Worth.

It is the transport license, which means that he has flown more than 200 hours by himself and is eligible to fly passengers mail and express for hire.

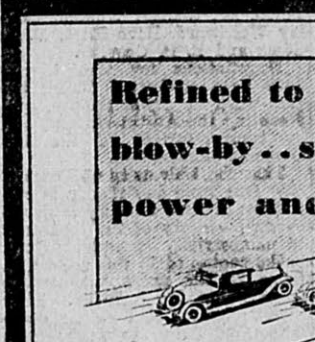

Barkley passed the examination this week with flying colors after completing the course in flying he has been taking from the T. A. T. Flying School at Fort Worth.

Barkley is a graduate of Ranger High School. It was while he was in school there that he first became inspired with the idea of becoming a pilot. He took a ride one day with one of those post-war barnstormers and, seeking to add a little zest to the flight, unstrapped himself and stoop up. After that he did not have any further yearnings to sail around through the skies that way, but he did want to be the power that made the ship rise and dive and bank.

THE PEACH FAIRY A STORY FOR CHILDREN AND SOME GROWN-UPS

A loving Fairy put the appreciation of beauty into the hearts of some good people of whom Judge and Mrs. George Davenport answer the promptings of the Little Fairy as she knocks on their door of Generosity at their House of Comfort, and who issue forth ready to pass out to friends, big and little, the fruits of their work and the kindness of their hands.

About four years ago deep holes were dug loosely in the yard of Judge Davenport's residence and into these holes went long, dry-looking roots, topped with little straight stocks of things about a foot and a half tall. A lot of water was poured in the holes, the dirt tamped down, and the row of little stocks marching down the yard were introduced by the Fairy as Fruit Trees. Two years passed the Fairy returned, waved her wand, the tops of the little sticks shot up into a number of little green umbrellas, and there before us were peach trees. Another year and golden globes were hanging from the small branches of the pretty trees and this year Mrs. Davenport, helped by the Fairy, has picked big bowls full of luscious peaches from her lovely trees and friends have been remembered, young children have been delighted, and the trees have waved their green leaves in joy, over so much goodness and sweetness given to others.

Just some little trees, just some big thoughts of others, just a Peach Tree Fairy—that's all.

KINDERGARTENS IN THE AIR; CHILDREN WILL SOON BE TOBING THE CIRCLE

Ho! You little children, you vacation will wind up in the kindergarten pretty soon and if you are very earnest about your work in the fall you will begin now to look about a bit and see just how much time you want to give to your kindergarten work, your sand pile and the swimming hole. One lady who has had kindergarten for four years will have her pupils in a new house at 600 South Mulberry, already provided with dandy new sand tables, colored papers, circles, music, scissors, crayons and all kinds of things that go toward the making of a happy day for you little folk. Mrs. Fairbairn has absorbed several new ideas this summer in her study of how to handle you little people in a scientific way and in kindergarten methods. She has had success with primary children and will this time be assisted through the Grolier Society in many new ways that will interest and develop your

The happiest days of childhood are the kindergarten days when all your work and purposes is camouflaged in colored papers, sand and games.

Churches

St. Francis Xavier Catholic Church
August 11th, 1929, Mass at 8 a. m. This is the twelfth Sunday after Pentecost. The gospel is from St. Luke X, 23-27. Next Thursday, August 15 is the Feast of the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin into heaven and is a holy day of obligation. There is a belief in the church that after death of the Blessed Virgin her body was taken into heaven. The Church annually celebrates this assumption of the Blessed Virgin. We know that Christ ascended into heaven by his own power but the mother of Christ's human nature was assumed into heaven by the power of God. This festival embraces two events: the death of the Blessed Virgin and her assumption into heaven, for it was necessary to die before she could enter heaven. Whether we consider her death or her assumption into heaven, the words of Christ in this day's gospel are applicable to her. Mary hath chosen the best part, which shall not be taken away from her. Mary chose the best part at her death, for it was a holy, blessed death; but she chose in a greater degree the best part after her death, for she was assumed into heaven body and soul, and exalted there above all the angels and saints. The gospel read on the 15th of August is taken from St. Luke X, 28-42.

Rev. M. Collins.

First Christian Church
Many people are on their vacation and the rest of us would be if we could. But Sunday morning the pastor is going to preach on the subject announced two weeks ago: "A Little Child Shall Lead Them," using the statement of a little girl 9 years old made to me at the close of our revival meeting. I have repeated that statement to 51 adults since it was made to me and not a single one failed to have their eyes fill with tears when they heard it.

Come next Sunday morning and study with us this question or subject. Sunday night union service held as usual. Brother Ross, pastor of Presbyterian church will bring message.—P. W. Walthall.

Baptist Church
"With Christ in the Guest Chamber," will be theme of the sermon at 11 a. m. "Their gods and the true God contrasted" will be the theme of the message at 8:15 p. m. certain household gods of heathendom will be exhibited at this service and a list of the gods of the world as worshipped in Eastland will be given. The Sunday school meets at 9:45 a. m., J. R. Carlisle, superintendent. The B. Y. P. U.'s meet at 7:00 p. m.—W. T. Turner, pastor.

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS GETS VALUED LIBRARY

Dienst Collection Contains Valuable Texas Historical Documents.

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Aug. 8.—Acquisition of the famous Dienst Library for the University of Texas has been announced at the offices of the University Ex-Students' Association. This collection will establish the supremacy of the University library in the field of Texas history for all time, the statement said. The library was the property of Dr. Alex Dienst of Temple and was known as the best collection of Texas historical documents in private hands. Dr. Dienst has acquired this collection after a search covering a period of forty years. When it became known recently that the library was to be disposed of, a group of Austin citizens underwrote the purchase price of same to assure the acquisition of the collection for the University of Texas, as it was impossible to get a meeting of the University regents in time to consider the matter. These citizens who underwrote the purchase were Judge R. L. Batts, M. C. Parrish, Judge Charles Black, Dr. Goodall Wooten, Dudley Woodward, Dave Reed, E. L. Steek and E. P. Cravens.

Negotiations for this library have been conducted during the past week by Clyde Parrish, representing the Austin citizens, and by representatives of the Ex-Students' Association.

That the University of Texas is now free from any rivalry in collections of Texas history is shown by an inventory of the thousands of manuscripts, pamphlets and books contained in this collection. Some of the rarest manuscripts in existence are included. They include letters and early documents pertaining to Texas from the early-Spanish days to the present time. One document contains the last signature of Stephen F. Austin and the collection also contains the last three letters ever written by Stephen F. Austin. There are a number of letters also from Moses Austin and a quantity of early Spanish documents. Among the many interesting features of the collection is a letter from Governor Ireland written at the time of the controversy over the material to be used in the construction of the state capitol building. Governor Ireland was insisting that native stone be used in this structure, while others were advocating the importing of other material from another state. In this letter the Governor stated that he would "take the government into a tent" before he would allow the capitol to be built out of imported material.

There is a mass of material of more or less political nature dealing with government and politics in Texas, which material will remain sealed until the present generation has passed away. The thousands of documents contained therein are of such a personal nature and affect so many individuals of the state that the collector of the library specified that this material was not to be opened for inspection by the present generation.

Rare Texas Papers

There are a number of extremely rare Texas pamphlets, books, maps and newspapers. There is quite a collection of newspapers from other states, including a two-year file of the Massachusetts Sentinel dated 1784-1785. This library contains the best collection in existence of southern broadsides and proclamations pertaining to the Confederate army and also includes a large amount of Texas and Confederate money.

In addition to the thousands of books and other documents pertaining to Texas, the Dienst library contains many early printed books on American history and literature and English and general literature. There are a dozen early Bibles and prayer books printed before 1600. Much early Wesley and other Methodist material of the Eighteenth century is in the library and there are also a number of rare Elizabethan items.

Dr. Dienst conceived the idea of this collection when traveling from Ohio to Texas thirty-five or forty years ago. In coming through New Orleans he came into possession of a number of original books and accounts of New Orleans bankers who were financing the Texas revolution. He became interested in ascertaining whether or not this material was included in the existing Texas histories. At his home in Temple he has carried on his research work in Texas historical fields and has acquired this collection.

There have been a number of other bids for the collection, and various institutions of the State have been active in an endeavor to secure it. When the deal for this library was consummated last week, representatives of the University of Texas went to Temple and packed the material and it is now being assorted and catalogued in Austin.

Under the expansion program of the Ex-Students' Association of the University of Texas, ex-students and other interested citizens of the state are being urged to assist in the matter of securing rare collections and important material in all fields of learning in order that the University may more successfully serve the citizenship of the state and at the same time achieve international fame. The local ex-student clubs throughout the United States are being asked to present one gift to the University each year, and it is planned to secure many private endowments that could never come to the University through the expenditure of public money.

The Ex-Students' Association is just now bringing to a close a popular subscription campaign during which approximately $511,000 has already been raised to supplement University funds in building three Student Life structures, the great auditorium-gymnasium, a women's activity building and a student union building. The auditorium-gymnasium is now under construction and plans have practically been completed for the women's activity building. Representatives of the Ex-Students' Association have also been active in sponsoring the $1,300-

000 boys' dormitory program for the institution.
