LONG BANDIT HOLDS UP LUNCH SHOP IN RANGER Man Runs Amuck; Kills Three Persons With Axe CHICAGO 'GANGLAND' MARKS WOMAN FOR DEATH

Editor Davis in the List

Rep. John E. Davis of Dallas county editor of the Mesquite Messenger, sees an opening for promotion and he is going to ask the publisher to make him treasurer of the state of Texas. He has been publisher of a successful newspaper for years and years, and has 16 years to his credit as a maker. He never scored but one defeat in politics. Mrs. Edith Williams defeated him for representative. This in days when the Klan fever was running high in Dallas county. Mrs. Williams was a candidate for election. Editor Davis was her opponent. He won the nomination by a majority of 7000 and has held the job ever since. Dallas is modest, politically speaking. To date she has four in the gubernatorial picture: Harry Miller, Thomas B. Love, J. Senter and W. Gregory. Editor, Dist. Atty. Wm. Meyers will be in the race for attorney general and Editor Davis for treasurer. Only not Dallas democrats for superintendent of public instruction and state land commissioner? Give all the shrinking fiscal violets a place in the sun.

BOOKED FOR A 'RIDE'

"Gun Girl" Sought by Both Gangsters and "The Law;" Only in Jail Will She Be Safe, Detectives Declare.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Gangland marked a woman for death today. "Bad Luck" Corrine Griffith was booked for a "ride." The sweetheart of gunmen and widow of a crackman was hunted simultaneously by gangsters and "the law." Police wanted to question her about the killings of Thomas McNichols and James Shupe and the probable fatal wounding of Edward Higgins in the latest outbreak of Chicago's bitter beer war. But gangland sought the "gun girl" only to assassinate her in retribution for the aid she gave McNichols when he went gunning for Shupe and Higgins. The girl's death was decreed, detectives learned, by Shupe's convict brother, Tommy, over the "grapevine telegraph" from Joliet penitentiary yesterday. Thus "Bad Luck" Corrine becomes the first of her sex gangland has marked for assassination. Only in jail will she be safe, detectives declared.

SWEETWATER WOMAN HURT IN EXPLOSION

Mrs. Charles Anderson Badly Burned While in Bath; House Damaged.

SWEETWATER, Tex., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Charles Anderson, wife of a local oil man, is in the Sweetwater hospital today suffering from serious burns and shock as the result of a gas explosion in the bathroom of an apartment here. She suffered burns about the head, face, back and arms. Physicians say she will recover. A gas jet, accidentally opened in the bathroom where she was taking a bath filled the room with gas which was ignited by the pilot of the water heater. The force destroyed one wall and wrecked the apartment. Firemen were called to extinguish the blaze. Mrs. Anderson was burned about the arms and head as she endeavored to prevent the spread of the flames. He was knocked to the floor from a divan in the living room. Physicians declare that Mrs. Anderson's presence in the bathtub saved her from more serious injury and probably from death.

Policeman Fitzgerald was slain in the early fighting. Street firing was continuing shortly before noon. A negro, Dave Singleton, who was believed the slayer of the officer, was slain by police. The rioting began when Fitzgerald was summoned to the Yamacraw section where he was told a negro woman was being murdered. When he arrived he was shot through the heart and left lying in the street. Police reserves were called and Fitzgerald's body was found by Police Lieut. Alexander. Singleton was killed during exchanges of shots which followed the discovery of Fitzgerald's body. He was heavily armed when police examined his body. The negro woman for whom the call was made was found later. She had been shot in the face. Police quelled the disorder by using their night sticks and the firing later in the morning was only desultory.

SPATANBURG, N. C., Aug. 1.—Earl Robertson, 45, ran amuck here shortly after noon today and killed six men, including one negro, splitting their heads open with an axe. Robertson is understood to have gone insane at the mill and elevator plant of J. W. Bell & company, first-attacking J. L. Bussey, manager of the plant. Two others were seriously injured and their chances for recovery were slight. The dead were J. L. Bussey, R. H. Day and a man named Davis. Thad Sherbert and a negro whose name was unknown, were in a local hospital suffering from serious injuries. Davis died shortly before 2 p. m. Robertson calmed somewhat after the slaying and surrendered to a constable, but shortly after his arrival at the jail he went mad again and it took six men to hold him. It was believed no murder charges would be filed against him.

Big Zeppelin Enroute to U. S. Expected at New York Sunday

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The Graf Zeppelin was observed at 3 p. m. (9 a. m. EST) between Marseilles and the Balearic Isles in the Mediterranean, an exchange telegraph dispatch from Paris said today. By MAURITZ HALLGREN United Press Staff Correspondent FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Aug. 1.—Germany's mammoth dirigible Graf Zeppelin took off for another trans-Atlantic flight to the United States early today, making full speed toward Southern France and safety from an approaching storm from the north. Carrying a crew of 40 men and a passenger list of 18, the giant of the air was released by her ground crew at 3:30 a. m. (9:30 p. m. EST Wednesday). After cruising over Friedrichshafen as a gesture of farewell, the Graf turned its silver nose westward and a few minutes later disappeared over Lake Constance. It was not until last night that Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf, announced definitely the voyage would be begun as scheduled. Until then it was believed owing to the threatening weather the trip would be postponed. Dr. Eckener explained to the United Press he was determined to leave on schedule because the atmospheric depression which was likely to follow the threatening storms from the North Sea might cause a further delay in the plans. Eight of the passengers are Americans. One of the members of the ground crew contended he saw a man jump from the hangar to the ship just as the craft took off, leading to the belief that there might be a stowaway on board in spite of the precautions taken by the officials of the Zeppelin line to prevent the boarding of unwelcome passengers. A would-be towaway, a 17-year-old German lad, was found on the top bag of the ship earlier and was handed over to police. The passengers arrived at the hangar some time before the take-off. Dr. Eckener arrived just a few minutes before the ground crew let go. When everything was in readiness for the takeoff it was suddenly discovered that one of the principal members of the trip was missing. From the ship—Otto Mamm, the local butcher shop owner, who also is the chief cook of the Graf Zeppelin. Officials of the Zeppelin company, accompanied by the United Press reporter, started out hunting for the chef and finally discovered him—sleeping soundly in his butcher shop. He was immediately awakened and rushed to the ship. It was announced the surplus wine which was carried along would be locked in a special iron box, when the Graf reaches the United States. The ship carried a greater supply of wies and liquor than on previous trips, but officials stated the surplus would not be thrown aboard to comply with the United States regulations.

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The trans-Atlantic dirigible, Graf Zeppelin, en route from Friedrichshafen, Germany, to Lakehurst, N. J., was speeding southward along the Rhone valley today, making satisfactory progress in spite of unfavorable weather conditions which prevailed over all of Southern France. Driving rain and strong winds beat against the giant dirigible at various points, but in spite of that the Graf was over Tournon at 11:50 a. m., and passed Valence at 12:10 a. m. (6:10 a. m. EST), flying steadily on her course. The Graf Zeppelin passed over Montelinar, France, at 12:35 p. m. today, flying low and proceeding at a normal speed. The ship continued to follow the Rhone river. The weather was cloudy. The first report of the Graf in France was when she passed over Beaucourt, near Belfort, at 7:30 a. m. She was not actually seen at that point, but her motor was heard so clearly through the heavy mist that it was unmistakable. The Graf flew over Besancon at 8:25 a. m., flying at an altitude of 2,000 feet. She radiated from there that all was going well and that she was definitely taking a southern course. At 1:10 a. m. the Graf passed Lyons, heading down the Rhone river.

Moody undecided on the next step. It was indicated they likely will seek a writ of injunction from the court of criminal appeals here. AUSTIN, Aug. 1.—W. C. Worford, R. S. Farmer and Walton Taylor, all Taylor, Tex., attorneys, are in conference with Governor Moody this morning seeking a stay of execution of Harry J. Leahy.

I Mean Business' Bandit Said As He Drew His Gun

Wearing Black Mask Over His Face, Man Holds Up Lunch Counter—Gets Little Cash.

RANGER, Aug. 1.—A lone bandit, wearing a black mask and armed with an automatic, held up the Oasis lunch shop on Hunt street at 10:45 o'clock Wednesday night and escaped with about $15. It was the first holdup in Ranger in approximately a year. Mrs. J. W. Hooks was in charge of the lunch room. A waitress was in the back and one customer, Lewis Gregg, was at the counter when the man entered. His face was covered by a black rag, with holes cut for the eyes and mouth. He held an automatic. "I thought it was a joke," said Mrs. Hooks, in telling of the robbery today. "I asked, 'What do you want?' The man answered, 'I mean business—get your hands up!' The waitress continued washing dishes until the bandit gave his command the third time, then she came forward with hands raised. Young Gregg was ordered to get behind the counter and keep his hands raised. Mrs. Hooks was directed to open the cash drawer. As the man took the money, the plucky little woman told him, "You're doing a dirty trick," but the man made no response. As the robber backed out the door, he spoke as though to a confederate outside: "Get ready, Joe."

He had no accomplice, however, declares those who were in the restaurant and merely made the remark to mislead. Mrs. Hooks saw him stop in the shadow of an automobile that was parked nearby. She called to her husband and, at the outcry, the bandit disappeared from view. Mr. and Mrs. Hooks' residence is behind the lunch room and only a few minutes before the holdup, Mr. Hooks had gone into the house and lay down beside the two children to quiet them. He had fallen asleep himself and the first he knew of the robbery was when his wife called. He obtained a pistol and searched for the man but was unable to find him. Inquiry developed that the robber had stood for some time between the two freight cars on the Hamon railroad tracks before he walked over to the Oasis and held the place up. A man living nearby had noticed the loiterer by the freight cars. The robber was described as about average size, with blue eyes and of sandy complexion, judging from the portion of his face that could be seen. He was a young man. He wore a blue shirt, blue khaki trousers and a broad-checked cap.

Europe's 'Red Day' Dawns Serenely

PARIS, Aug. 1.—The long-substituted Communists' "red day" dawned serenely throughout Europe today with municipal police and in many cases federal troops on the alert for promised demonstrations, uprisings and threatened sabotage. The police of Paris seized the entire issue of the Communist newspaper Humanite as a safeguard against trouble today. It was reported that during the last 24 hours police chief Jean Chiappe's men had arrested 40 radical leaders and had expelled 58 more from the Paris district. Advances from Ankara said the government of Turkey had prohibited all workers' demonstrations. Prague advices assert that gendarmes and police have massed in the Czechoslovakian capitol equipped with machine guns and rifles to thwart any demonstrations. In addition the 20 battalions comprising the entire Czech Communist press at these converts and heretofore were prohibited from publishing today.

Historic Name Given a Highway

There is an overwhelming de mand for the completion and hard surfacing of the historic highway from Austin to Mason by way of Burrhead and Llano over which Gen.
Robert E. Lee traveled prior to the Civil war. Yes, the five county Robert E. Lee association has been launched.

A large delegation from the five counties will appear before the state highway commission on July 31 to present the entire 129-mile project and urge asphalt paving of all portions ready for surfacing and other work to complete the remainder of the highway.
Judge A. S. Walker of Austin is the chairman of the association.
There is a four-cent gallonage tax.
Motor vehicle owners of the five counties are interested in the pro ject. Livestock producers of the five counties are interested. Farmers of the five counties are interest ed. Manufacturers and business men of the five counties and the counties which fringe all along the line of travel are interested.
There are lanes of trade which are very necessary to all the wealth-makers of the section which is to be traversed by this historic highway named in honor of the most illustrious soldier of the Confederate army.
He was as noble and high mind ed when peace came as he was gal lant and courteous in the days of bloody strife.

Cooperative Idea of Ancient Origin
This appears to be the age of ag ricultural cooperatives. There is a federal farm relief board. Three of its members are among the leaders of the cooperative plan on the continent. They represent the fruit growers of California, the to bacco growers and the milk pro ducers industry.

However, the cooperative idea was launched on these shores be fore the organization of the repub lic itself. George Washington and Benjamin Franklin were members of the first association. An anti quarian has made the discovery that as far back as recorded his tory runs farm have worked to gether in some degree.

This is the program of the fed erated farm relief board: Loans
when made will go to cooperatives.
Those already organized, with an established place in the economics of the country, will be first to try the new legislative experiment.
In 1928 there were 10,195 co operative marketing associations.
These associations did business estimated at $2,171,000,000. It is said about one-fourth of the farm families of the republic are mem bers of the cooperatives. There are cotton producers who are co operatives, but the great bulk of the producers of the fleecy staple are unorganized.

In the cotton growers of the south organize themselves on the lines of the American Federation of Labor, they would be in a posi tion not only to regulate the acre age planted but to fix the price of their product. Perhaps there is a reason for the lack of it.

There are millions of tenant farmers, white and black - and brown, in the old slave states and the commonwealths of the south west. They are landless and a landless man in the country is a homeless man. They are victims of the credit system. A majority never break away from the rut.
They farm as their grandfathers farmed. California fruit growers are cooperatives. They are prosper ous. They market their own produce.
Growers of burley tobacco are cooperatives. They are prosper ous. They have their own ware houses. They have their own sell ing agents. A few years ago to bacco growers were helpless.

OUT OUR WAY

IT NEVER COMES BACK. J.R. WILLIAMS © 1929, BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

They were at the mercy of the tobacco kings. They were unor ganized. They were victims of the credit system. Dairymen of the west and the northwest are co operatives. They are the masters of their own industry. They have their selling agents. They fix the price. They move along scientific selling lines.
Some day the southern cotton grower may get the idea. Then he will bow to the cooperative plan of doing business and have a choice in fixing the price of the basic staple of a vast territory.

Chicago Police
Get 'Bomb Gang'
CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—Seventeen alleged members of a "bomb"
trust were under arrest here today.
The men, the state's attorney's office declared, directed manufac ture and throwing of explosives in racketeering activities, were taken in a raid on their headquarters
last night after exposure by James Altmeyer, newly appointed police man, assigned by chief investigator Pat Roche to gain the confidence of the ring.
For three months Altmeyer was in contact with the men in cus tody. While he worked "on the inside," his telephone conversa tions were listened in on by fel low officers.
Once Altmeyer even bought a "pineapple." That night there was a bombing in Chicago. And the men now held, believing the police man responsible, immediately took him into their circle, he re lated.
Daily Altmeyer reported to Roche. Tapped wires always con firmed the things he told the chief.
Altmeyer ordered more bombs.
Last night they were delivered to him as detectives, hidden through out the neighborhood of the gang's headquarters, kept watch. Veto Erick, 14, son of the man living at the house, was arrested as he handed the package to Altmeyer.
Immediately the detectives crashed into the place.

This radio photo is the first picture to reach America showing Pope Pius XI leaving the Vatican—the first pope in 59 years to do so. The picture was taken as the procession, resplendent with all the traditional color and ceremony of the church, proceeded through vast crowds before famed St. Peter's. The canopied chair in which the pope rode is shown in the center, borne on the shoulders of the Vatican guards. This photograph was taken from London by airplane, sent across the Atlantic to New York by radio, and transmitted thence by telephoto.

Wall Street
NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The stock market today paid no heed to higher money after a brief spell of selling and continued the ad vance under buoyant leadership of U. S. Steel. Steel touched a rec ord of 212 near the end of the fourth hour, strengthening a list
that had begun to waver.
Early in the morning steel also was the leader. It met a small amount of selling but each time came back to set a new mark. To ward the close, the stock was among the best performers on the board.

A few stocks made gains of 5 to 8 points. These shares were among the best on the board and their behavior helped restore confidence that had been impaired momen tarily by a rise in demand loans from 10, the renewal rate, to 12 percent.
Trading quieted down considerably on the money advance, but picked up volume when the list turned upward again.

The outstanding gains of the day were made by such issues as Allied Chemical, St. Joseph Lead,
Westinghouse Electric, General

Brooklyn Edison, the latter at one time being up nearly 30 points.

Doubt Long Jump

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—There was no doubt today that Miss Mary Daly, 29, and a bona-fide member of the Caterpillar club had made a long distance jump, but whether it was by parachute as she claimed or by train it was cited by un believers remained a moot ques tion.

Miss Daly created great excite ment in aeronautical circles yester day by claiming that she had jumped from a plane over Chicago at an altitude of 31,000 feet and floated 276 miles to a landing at Louisiana, Mo. In fact, she pro duced a notebook in which she had scribed details of the long des cent to prove her statements.
Then it was discovered no plane Chicago airports was equipped to make such great altitude and the pilot who was supposed to have aided her explained that instead of lifting her into the upper at mosphere he had merely taken her on a flight to Joliet, Ill.
But the record breaking descent was Miss Daly's story and she stuck to it. "Why I took notes

every hundred feet as I came down
she said. "I don't see how any body could doubt that." And she waver her notebook triumphantly escaped in an automobile.

Effect of the Lively Ball Upon Baseball Is Discussed

BY UNITED PRESS
By BERT DEMBY
 CAGO, July 31.—While they call it the "lively ball has some-thing to do with it," a majority of baseball association managers "poor pitching" is the major cause of the present epidemic of home runs.

The managers expressed their opinion with the present ball, which they believed the ball should be changed.

Stengel, one time big league outfielder and now pilot at O'Leary in the severest case of the present ball. He called it "rabbit" ball for the fast batters of the arts of "fielding" and "base running."

"I am quick thinking, sharp fielding, and have been seen to have been seen to hit a ball a mile," Stengel said.

Those who are satisfied with the present ball seemed agreed that they are responsible for some-thing in base running, fielding but they expressed the hope that the fans enjoy the hard horn, former big league pitcher, believes the home run is a lack of a game and is liable for the growing interest in baseball.

"Pitching is far below par," "Azoid pitcher still is hard to hit as ever and live no live ball if you can't knock it anywhere, pitcher's job to prevent the ball from being hit."

Berzhammer, Milwaukee, and Leibold, Columbus, sided in opposing the lively ball. Both lamented the decline in fielding and sharp fielding.

"I believe the game is played well as it used to be," Leibold and the fans seem to be tired over the fence slams.

Summer said he believed there were too many hits today, but is a good hitter today, and a poor fielder or catcher, he said.

Butzel, Indianapolis, expressed satisfaction with the present ball but said he believed the ball should be given more leeway in the matter of new balls.

Leibold, the umpire who called the new ball so hard for the batter to hit said, "A gleaming ball is easy to see and considerably easier to hit than a dark ball."

Zwilling, Kansas City, of the present ball "one of the assets of the game." "Fans see lots of long hits, home runs, and heavy scoring. Babe drawing powers are evident," Zwilling commented.

A Texas money crop of 128,000,000 pounds with honey worth $180,000 from an investment of $1,247,430 in the 249,000 acres of bees.

 In a pitchers' battle, the hardest fought game that Dallas fans have witnessed this year, young Victor Frasier yesterday afternoon won a victory over the veteran Paul Wachtel, enabling the Dallas Steers to defeat the visiting Houston Buffs, 1 to 0. The game was won when the Steers landed two safeties in the third.

The Waco Cubs got to Jimmy Walkup in the first few frames of yesterday's game at Ft. Worth, piled up a score of 5 to 2, and evened their series with the Cats.

Bunching three runs in the seventh inning, the Wichita Falls Spudders beat the San Antonio Indians in a pitchers battle between Hal Wittse and Joe Giard. The score was 4 to 2.

Beaumont at Shreveport, rain.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD
 BY UNITED PRESS
 Yesterday's hero: Socks Siebold, 33-year old rookie pitcher traded to the Braves by the Cubs in the Hornsby deal, who broke Chicago's string of nine straight victories by pitching Boston to a 7 to 1 triumph in the first game of a doubleheader. The Cubs won the second game, 6 to 3, Hack Wilson hitting home runs Nos. 29 and 30.

Home runs by Klein (No. 33), and Hurst (No. 22) gave the Phillies a 6 to 2 victory over the fast slipping Pittsburgh Pirates. Hurst's homer came with two men on base.

Brooklyn divided a doubleheader with St. Louis, the Cardinals winning the first game, 5 to 2, and the Robins taking the second game, 8 to 2. Haines allowed but four hits in the opener.

Eppa Fixey bested Joe Genewich in a pitchers' duel and the Cincinnati Reds beat the New York Giants 2 to 1. Ethan Allen drove in the winning run and saved the game with a great catch in the ninth.

Scoring nine runs in the fifth inning the Philadelphia Athletics overcame Detroit, 10 to 1. Alexander's homer saved the Tigers from a shutout.

The New York Yankees hammered out a 16 to 2 victory over the Chicago White Sox for their seventh straight triumph. Gehrig hit home run No. 26 and drove in five runs.

Walter Stewart held Washington to five hits and the St. Louis Browns beat the Senators 5 to 1.

The Boston Red Sox blanked Cleveland, 4 to 0, in the first game, but dropped the second to the Indians, 6 to 2. Rhye's double with bases filled featured the first game.

Once Maestro, He Now Works In Oil Fields

H. R. von Zimmerman Before War Conducted Budapest Symphony.

By RICHARD L. HARKNESS
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 31.—Once maestro of the symphony orchestra in the Metropolitan opera house at Budapest, Harry R. von Zimmerman now is toiling under a blazing Oklahoma sun—a roustabout of the oil fields.

From the culture of Dresden and Vienna, the 54-year old musician has been forced by misfortune to work as a common laborer in the grosse and muck of an oil well.

Zimmerman's father also was conductor of the famous orchestra. At the age of 13, the son was a concert master. Today the agile fingers which once wielded a baton and plucked the strings of a harp in European palaces for the entertainment of royalty are calloused and stiff from firing boilers and "skinning mules."

In order to escape service in the world war, Zimmerman and his family came to America. He taught music in Albany and studied English at night school in New York. Drawn to Hollywood by a colony of musicians there, Zimmerman again organized a symphony orchestra. He played up and down the west coast for several years.

Zimmerman responded to the war call when the United States entered the combat. First as a musician and later as a bandmaster, he was stationed at Kelly field, San Antonio, Tex. After the war he reorganized his musical troupe and toured the Orpheum vaudeville circuit for 34 weeks.

"Financial Reverses"
 In 1924, misfortune overtook the Zimmerman family. His wife and daughter died. The other children left home to work their own way. Overcome by financial disaster the musician was forced to sell his costly home in Los Angeles containing a pipe organ valued at $35,000 which he had put together himself. His valuable collection of instruments were sold.

Zimmerman, the musician, became an oil field roustabout at Signal Hill, Calif. A fireman at first, he soon mastered all the jobs on the lease—tooltie, truck driver, derrick worker, mule skinner and pot man.

Zimmerman still spends some of his evenings composing. His trunk is full of orchestrations and his own compositions. He began composing while in Leipzig conservatory and continued while teaching school in the east and at Lancaster, Calif.

Asked why he, with his musical training, had turned to the oil fields for a living, Zimmerman said: "It is but a step from mechanic and engineering to music. Most musicians have some mechanical hobby to divert their minds. That is why I turned to the oil fields."

INJURED TAKEN TO HOSPITAL
 After Two Cars in Head-on Crash on Strawn Highway.

(From Ranger Times)
 Several persons were injured in a collision between two automobiles Tuesday afternoon on the Bankhead highway east of Ranger. The injured were conveyed to the West Texas hospital where their injuries were dressed.

Only one, Edgar Cummings of Mineral Wells—remained in the hospital. He will be able to leave in a day or two.

Occupants of the other car, the Self family of Paris, Texas, left the hospital after cuts had been sewed up. Mrs. Self and a son were rather severely lacerated.

Police investigated and stated that the cars, going in opposite directions, met in a head-on collision. Both cars were wrecked. The accident occurred near the highway "dips."

The 1929 commercial tomato crop of Texas brought an estimated return of $3,500,000, more than twice the value of the 1928 crop.

What Does a Business Owe Its Home Town?

Co-operation Says H. L. Vann, Manager of the Local J. C. Penny Co. Store, Who Reports on National Findings.

"One of the investigators for J. C. Penny Co. recently completed a cross country trip by motor car, calling on scores of store towns and seeing the picture of the towns in the light of the average resident of any city or town in the country" says H. L. Vann, manager of the local store of the organization.

"Out of his trip he suggested the following question and answer which have been sent to every manager of the 1285 towns where there are stores. The question is, 'What does business owe its home town?' The answer is 'Co-operation with every worthwhile activity in town'."

Quoting him, Mr. Vann says, "Co-operation means co-working with everyone in town in every way that can make the town better. Many towns throughout the country are handicapped by bad approaches, rough roads at the end of state highways. Business owes it to the town and to itself to do all it can to have these rough entrances improved."

"Many towns are losing far more than the cost of the improvements because travelers will not come into town over bad approaches."

"Some towns are still handicapped by toll roads and bridges which penalize everyone driving into the town. This condition is gradually being eliminated but its complete elimination should be assured by the insistent demands of business men in the towns affected."

"Obsolete speed laws oftentimes unwisely enforced by local magistrates put a blench on the reputation of any town and it becomes the business of every business man in town to see that motorist, mind full of the rights of others, are not penalized by misplaced zealots."

"Clean streets and sidewalks are an asset to any town. It is a matter of city politics to see that the streets are kept clean, that defacing signs are removed, that trees along the road are kept in proper condition. The street and sidewalk are the aisles which lead to the centre of the store. No wise operator would think of letting his aisle get dirty and decrepit looking."

"Civic pride in store windows should be developed. Some civic clubs offer monthly prizes for the best trimmed windows. Every merchant in town can afford to enlist in such a movement because of the increased business which properly trimmed windows will bring to his store."

"Business clubs, Kiwanis, Rotary, Civitans, Lions and others can help by bringing well-known speakers who will be glad to make the trip."

"Business should work closely with local government bodies for the local officials are custodians of the public good in the cities where they serve. Better business committees from the business clubs could well afford to have joint sessions with the local administrative bodies."

"Local newspapers should be supported in every way for the newspaper is the messenger to the homes of everyone in the city and in its surrounding areas."

"The importance of the local newspaper has increased by leaps and bounds during the past several years. Business houses have learned that the local paper, the one published in the town where it circulates is the quickest approach to local interest.

"By availing itself of the opportunity to use the local newspaper to its greatest advantage any local business house is making the value of that paper a constantly increasing asset to itself."

"Towns make same kind of an impression of a person as people do for towns are highly personal things. The town with the clean approach, with neat looking streets with attractively decorated stores, with well-kept homes is like the man who dresses in good taste and whose actions indicate sincerity and wellbeing."

"The shabby looking town is like the shabby looking individual."

To substantiate its attitude toward civic betterment, according to Mr. H. L. Vann the J. C. Penny Co. conducts a nation-wide campaign of instruction in window trimming for the benefit of all stores. It insists upon a standard and uniform degree of cleanliness and attractiveness in all stores. It furnishes carefully prepared advertising which is designed to help the appearance of every newspaper in which it is used. It encourages participation in all local activities by store managers.

REVOLVER SHOTS SPUR TO HENS
 By United Press.
 STOCKHOLM—To make his hens lay twice as many eggs as usual, a Swedish farmer has found that nothing accelerates the process more than a couple of good revolver or rifle shots fired close to the hen house.

He came upon his discovery by a strange incident. A road building company was blasting rocks near his farm, and while the noise was enervating to him, he found that it had another influence on the fowls: as long as the dynamiting went on, his 150 hens laid exactly double the number of eggs as before.

When the excavation was finished, the egg crop immediately decreased to its normal low level, wherefore the observant farmer let his trusty shot gun serve instead and every morning took a couple of shots at nothing in particular. The hens responded with a record number of eggs.

Like It Was Made For Her

Edridge Electrician's Wife Seen a Well Day For Years Until She Took Orgatone.

Orgatone acts like it was specially to fit my wife's ailment. She had a well-known electrician for the Humble and residing at 1214 W. St., Breckenridge, Texas; fact is, my wife hadn't seen day in twenty years," said Mr. Hoskins, "and almost as she started taking Orgatone went right to the seat of her ailment and anybody could see she was getting better. Her stomach was better. She has her own tonsils and adenoids removed; she had no appetite and she hardly ate enough to keep her on her feet. Her circulation was poor and she suffered a lot of time from chronic constipation. She was weak and

and all run down, didn't get up at night and would get tired in the morning feeling tired out all the time for a thing. In fact, she was so weak and run-down her work was a burden to her. In every body here, seemed to be making Orgatone for their ailments and I got some for my wife. She has now taken Orgatone and the constipation has disappeared. Her blood is better and she is now strong. She is better and she now eats a square meal and feels all right afterwards. Her headaches are gone and her nerves are in shape than they were before she began taking Orgatone. She is better and gets up in the morning refreshed and feeling fine. Her husband has given her the energy and she is now strong enough to do her house work with me. I am sure glad we found Orgatone when we did, for it has done more good than anything we have ever tried before and we are sticking to it from now on."

Orgatone is not a secret or patent remedy but a scientific bile preparation sold in Eastland, exclusively to Thombs & Richardson Drug Store, which are direct laboratory (adv.)

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

MOM'N POP

“Oh, Jack, Rita’s going to have a baby!”
“Zatso?”
“Is that so?” she cried. “Why, Jack Wells, I thought you’d be thrilled to death.”
He grinned. “Lots of women have ‘em.”
“But Rita’s different,” she pointed out. “There’s a companionate marriage.”
“Well, it all amounts to about the same thing, doesn’t it? Now she’s going to have a child, like her mother and her grandmother, and all the mothers since Eve. Nothing very revolutionary about that.”
“Well, anyhow, I think it’s perfectly wonderful,” declared Molly. “Rita’s the happiest girl in the world.”
Molly’s eyes grew wistful—
“Just seeing her so glad made me think it must be wonderful to be married, and to be going to have a little baby.”
“But as writers,” taunted Jack, “must have our careers. You know Molly, I haven’t mentioned breaking our engagement since that day at the hospital when you ran a temperature on me. But I’ve thought of it plenty, and I haven’t changed my mind any.”
Molly had put her arms about his neck when Jack did a most incredible thing. Unclasping her hands, he withdrew from her embrace.
“Molly, I can’t be harried when you do that! Can’t you see that what I’m trying to do is for your own good? If I were to bust up your career, I’d feel like a rat. And after a while you’d hate me. On the other hand, if you go ahead, you’re going to make a ton of money. Then where do I get off? Nowhere at all. You’d despise me if you had all the money, and I didn’t have any.”
“That’s a dreadful way for you to talk, Jack. Besides, I may be an awful fop.”
“Then I’ll marry you,” he promised.

“After all,” she pointed out defensively, “it was his idea—the play, I mean. If it goes, it will be more to Red’s credit than mine. . . . You’re not jealous of Red, honey?”
“Jealous?” he repeated. “Well, I reckon everyone in love is more or less jealous, honey.”
“No, they’re not,” she affirmed. “Psycho-analysts say that jealousy is an indication of an inferiority complex.”
“Yes—and how old are psycho-analysts?” he demanded. “They’re ancient fossils who’ve forgotten all about being young and in love anyhow. What do they know about it? But I’m not cross, dear. And if I’m jealous, it’s my own funeral. I hope you and Red hit the bull’s eye. Honest I do.”

And her flesh fell in great loose waves, that quivered like jelly.
“You ought to bring a jane like that into the play. Touch of comedy. Well, have to relieve the tragedy somehow. How’d it be to introduce a scene on Don Ce-Sar bench?”
Molly watched the young people on the beach with malveiling interest. She had heard so much of the thing called Sex Consciousness. Where was it, this stalking, horrid Consciousness that had the adult world by its ears? Surely there was none of it among these beautiful, naked pagans. These glorious boys and girls who romped and swam, and rode the waves like sun-tanned sprites.
“There’s a new Youth,” she told Red wisely, “and the oldsters don’t know it. Look at that girl—the one in blue. There isn’t enough material in the suit she’s wearing to make a bandanna. And the boy with her—the one in trunks, without a jersey—did you ever see a finer looking boy in your life?”
They had been racing in the water—the girl in blue, and the boy in trunks—and now, breathless, they had thrown themselves on the beach.
“I wonder,” mused Molly, “if there are middle-aged moralists anywhere with a little sex consciousness as those two. Wearing a lot of clothes and cultivating repressions doesn’t do much for morality. I think boys and girls in sun suits are the sanest, healthiest, beautiful things in the world.”
“Now, Molly!” Red laughed at her earnestness. “Don’t turn propagandist. You’re all dated up to forget this fine, clean youth you’re hipped on. You gotta bend your talents to a swell, dirty play. Lay off young virtue now, and get busy on middle-aged sin.”

back, Germany wants to keep but Germany has not so friends in the world that she afford to make an enemy.
So while diplomats diplomacy and polite words between Cairo and Berlin, little Nofrit smiles like a deity behind the colored mask for she sat sculptor Thutmose the latter’s studio in the royace at El Amanne on a sun day 3304 years ago.
With 589 different species, as has a greater variety of life than any state in the U.S.

“But that’s not the half of it,” she declared. “Suppose I DO get somewhere—you’re going to, too honey.”
“Sure I am,” he boasted. “Only I haven’t made the grade yet. And I’m not going to be any hanger-on while you’re going strong. If I’d made my little pile, it would be a different story. Don’t you know I’m right, dear?”
“No. But I’ll do what you say. I’ll let our engagement be broken, if that’s what you want. And, by and by, I can PROVE that I love you more than fame, or money or anything.”

A week later Molly and Red were hard at work. They had left the train at Jacksonville, where they hired a second-hand car, and motored on to St. Petersburg. The car was theirs for six weeks. They had loitered at St. Augustine, and they stopped in Daytona to see the famous beach, where a friend of Red’s had been killed driving a racing car.

Wanted a Pyramid.
The Egyptian artists worked in stone and that is why there is something left today to hunt. There is a story, how true I do not know, that a Chicago engineer, late last century, offered to buy one of the pyramids, take it down stone by stone, and build it again in Chicago as a feature of the World’s fair.

“Oh, darling!” Jack kissed the tears in her eyes. “Won’t you wear it, Molly? Somewhere where it won’t show, if you’d rather. I’d like to know that it was close to you.”
They clung to each other desperately. And Molly cried because the boy she loved was holding her in his arms. Kissing her tears away. Telling her that their futures lay far apart.

“I forgot to tell you,” she said. “Red got himself transferred from police court to sports. He’s written baseball before. Besides, he has a drag with the publisher, and he’s got himself sent to St. Petersburg, to cover the Braves’ training camp. You see he wanted to be around, dear, while I’m working on the play.”
Jack lit a cigaret and said nothing.

There were lots of kings and queens who were not so fortunate as to be buried under immovable pyramids. They sleep today in museums all around the world, with millions gazing on their mummified features and the gems and jewels which were buried with them as their personal possessions are under glass in cases.
The Case of Nofrit.
The case of pretty little Nofrit was something like that. She sleeps in painted stone in a German museum and Fuad’s visit to Berlin may have been more than the idea of bringing Nofrit back to Egypt, and Egyptians hope that he has some luck.

“Look at ‘em,” said Red. “The young out of the nest. Rich kids on a holiday. And pretty soon the will go to work. They’ll learn to forage for themselves. But how about the girls? What’s going to happen to them? They don’t go to work—not if the old man has money bags they don’t. Well, what are they going to do?”
Molly laughed.
“Find a forager,” she predicted lightly.

“Exactly,” agreed Red. “And if that ain’t hell, what is? It’s degrading, that’s what it is. Nice girls—and they’re brought up to hunt a forager! Molly old dear, it’s a lucky girl who can earn her own living.”
But Molly was growing tired of Red’s cynicisms.

“The famous great Pyramid was classed among the seven wonders of the world. Napoleon estimated its age as 4000 years when, from the summit of one he made his famous proclamation: ‘Soldiers, from the top of these pyramids, 40 centuries look down on you.’

“I’d lots rather,” she told herself, “be somebody myself.”

“I forgot to tell you,” she said. “Red got himself transferred from police court to sports. He’s written baseball before. Besides, he has a drag with the publisher, and he’s got himself sent to St. Petersburg, to cover the Braves’ training camp. You see he wanted to be around, dear, while I’m working on the play.”

“Oh, I don’t know,” she protested. “I’m beginning to lean toward old-fashioned romance. A man who loves his wife wants to support her. It is a privilege, a pleasure, and a pride.”

Red grimaced. “Not only that,” he amended impudently, “but ‘This more blessed to give than to receive.’”

“It certainly is,” agreed Molly. “The pleasure of giving is sweeter than that of receiving, and infinitely more beneficial. Take my father and mother. All their lives they’ve been sacrificing for each other, and they’re the happiest people I know. Take Jack and me. He’s generous and noble. And I’m so darn selfish and mercenary.”

“Let’s not get personal,” interposed Red hastily. “Hey, look Molly—look at the Yellow Peril over there!”

The Peril was a tremendous woman in a yellow sun suit. She was dressed like the slim young things, in a suit without a back.

“I wonder,” mused Molly, “if there are middle-aged moralists anywhere with a little sex consciousness as those two. Wearing a lot of clothes and cultivating repressions doesn’t do much for morality. I think boys and girls in sun suits are the sanest, healthiest, beautiful things in the world.”

EGYPT SEEKING TO REGAIN ITS ART TREASURES

By PRINCESS ALI FAZIL, United Press Staff Correspondent.
PARIS.—For several centuries Egypt stood by powerless and saw conquerors come in and take anything that was not nailed down.

Under the guise of spreading Egyptian culture, Napoleon took everything that was loose and packed it for shipment to France, even digging up a few obelisks which had been sunk 20 feet in the ground. But now Egypt is thinking of reclaiming her great national heritage, and restoration of part of this priceless art.

It is a safe estimate to say that there is 10 times as much Egyptian art outside of Egypt today, as in. There is more Egyptian art in the museums of Paris and London than there is in all of the sandy kingdom.
