FOUR CENT GAS TAX PASSED

Motor License Fees Reduced Fifty Per Cent

House Concerns In Senate Amendments to Gasoline Tax Measure.

AUSTIN, July 1.—The house of representatives concurred in senate amendments to the four-cent gasoline tax bill. The vote was 104 to 14.

This will put the four cent tax in effect immediately when the governor signs the bill.

Going with the four cent gasoline tax is a fifty per cent reduction in the registration fees for passenger automobiles. This reduction will be effective January 1, 1930.

Each county will be permitted to retain registration fees collected in it, up to a maximum of $175,000.

The action ends the hardest fight of the session, which expires tomorrow.

The house and senate were still far apart on an education appropriation bill. Failure to agree on it will require another special session at once.

Opponents of the four-cent gasoline tax and 50 per cent reduction in auto fees were busy urging house members this morning to refuse to accept the senate amendments.

This is the last stand against the bill which was passed in the senate in the early hours of Sunday morning after one senator had been taken off a train and others walked in voluntarily, to complete a quorum that had been broken at 9 o'clock Saturday night by nine senators leaving.

If the house accepts the changes made by the senate there will be four cents gasoline tax, 50 per cent cut in the registration fees on passenger cars and counties will be permitted to retain all registration fees up to $175,000 for local road work.

AUSTIN, Tex., July 1.—Gov. Moody at noon signed an act of the present legislature removing the present penalties that have been in effect against officers who made illegal searches of seizures.

In signing the repealing act, Gov. Moody said that the search and seizure law had been used as a means to thwart law enforcement and that the repeal should remove one of the obstacles encountered by law enforcement officials.

The provisions of the constitution protecting the people against unlawful and unreasonable search, he said, should be respected and enforced but should not be permitted to prevent enforcement of law.

The repeal will become effective in 90 days.

AUSTIN, July 1.—After appropriations Chairman Jno. F. Wallace of the Texas House of Representatives had a conference with Gov. Moody this afternoon, he conferred with Finance Chairman Thomas illard of the Senate upon the educational appropriation. This appropriation is the last major difference between the House and senate.

As a result of the conference, it is believed a third called session of the legislature has been averted.

Omaha, Neb., July 1.—Purchase by Union Pacific railroad of the Interstate Transit Lines, operating passenger motor buses from Omaha to a score of points in Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Minnesota and South Dakota, was announced by President Carl R. Gray of Union Pacific today.

Mrs. E. H. Layne of Stamford arrived Saturday evening for a brief visit with her sister and her-in-law, Judge and Mrs. J. L. Davenport.

Prohi Slayer Is Facing Trial

Emmett J. White, 24-year-old U. S. customs border patrolman, who faces trial for the killing of Henry Virkula, near International Falls, Minn., is shown here in the first picture taken since his arrest. White says he thought Virkula's auto was smuggling liquor from Canada and that he aimed at the tires, wounding the driver by accident.

A. J. Holloway Is Sought By Anxious Family

An anxious family was seeking for A. J. Holloway, 71, of near Gorman at noon today.

Mr. Holloway disappeared last Wednesday after coming to Eastland.

He was last seen near the courthouse, and it was said he had stated he was going to Ranger.

Whether Mr. Holloway was the victim of foul play or whether he was troubled in mind is debated by his son-in-law, Roy McCullough, who gave the Telegram the information concerning Mr. Holloway's disappearance.

MEN HELD AFTER DEATH OF WOMAN

KENNETT, Mo., July 1.—Arthur Allison, 32, and Claude Payton, 26, are held in jail here, without bail, in connection with the murder of Allison's wife, June 23. Although a coroner's jury decided Mrs. Allison committed suicide the story told by Charles Fields, a laborer, brought the arrest of the two men. Fields declared, officers say, that Allison offered him $1,000 and a car to kill Mrs. Allison.

PALMER NO. 1 FLATWOOD'S NEWEST WELL

New Producer Promises 300 Barrels; Extensive Drilling Campaign Foreseen.

With the bringing in of the largest well so far drilled in the Flatwoods shallow field, otherwise known as the "Pumpkin Center" area, midway between Eastland and Carbon and the completion of three or four other producers in the area this field is rapidly making good a promise to become the best shallow territory developed in Eastland county in post-boom days. The latest well is the Lan Palmer No. 1 drilled by the Texas Oil Company and Frank Kirk.

The Palmer well topped the sand at 1320 feet and Sunday morning was drilled six feet into the formation. The well now looks good for 150 barrels daily of 35 gravity oil. It will probably be drilled several feet further into the formation with the prospect of making a 300 barrel producer. The sand in the territory ranges between 25 and 30 feet in depth.

Location is in the southwest corner of the Lon Palmer 160 acre tract and about one-fourth a mile north by east of the Turner No. 1 well; the last discovery test in the new pool.

The well was swabbed a few times yesterday. Very little gas, not enough to flow the oil, is found in the wells drilled in the area. They are pumped, electric power, obtained from the power line which follows the paved highway, being used. The highway, incidentally, cuts directly through the Turner discovery tract.

Storage tanks were connected to the Palmer late yesterday afternoon.

The Tex-Wa and Kirk have also brought in a nice well on the Turner tract. This well, making between 40 and 50 barrels daily, is located north by east of the original Turner well and on the same tract. It topped the sand at 1298 and has been drilled to 1015 feet.

Tex-Wa and Kirk are now rigging up for a test on the T. F. Murrell farm offsetting the Turner land to the west.

All together there are about 30 new locations in the field, promising a heavy drilling campaign in the immediate future. The field, as it now stands, appears certain to respond to this activity in such a way as to stamp it as the best shallow territory in the county.

Facilities are favorable to rapid development. A paved highway runs directly through the center while a power line follows this road. Plenty of gas for fuel is also available.

Mosquitoes Giving But Little Trouble

The only mosquitoes Eastland citizens will be bothered with at this season are transients or those bred in stagnant water permitted about the premises. J. Phillips, county sanitary officer, states:

"We are treating, regularly all places within the city where mosquitoes might breed and harbor and the only places they can come from are places where people have carelessly permitted water to accumulate and stand." Mr. Phillips said.

Mr. Phillips stated that many times mosquitoes are blown in by wind from untreated areas and harbored in weeds, vines and tall grass where the ground is damp or where water stands and from such hiding places find their way into bedrooms.

BRELSFORD AND M'MANUS INSTALLED

Former Presidents of the Club Present the Club and Incoming Officers With Rotary Gong.

Earl Bender, for the past year vice president of the Eastland Rotary club, was inducted into the office of president of that organization today succeeding Joseph M. Weaver, who has served the club as president for the past two years or more. Homer Brelsford, Jr., vice president; and Tom McManus, secretary-treasurer, all elected at the same time Bender was elected, also took office at today's meeting.

Six presidents have served the Eastland club since its organization, these, in order in which they served, were Tom Crutcher, Scott Kretz, H. P. Brelsford, Jack Williamson, Dr. Caton, Joseph M. Weaver. The former president, at today's meeting presented to President Bender a beautiful Rotary gong, former President H. P. Brelsford making the presentation speech in a few well chosen remarks. President Bender graciously accepted the gong for the club members and for himself.

Joseph M. Weaver, retiring president, asked the fullest cooperation of the club members for the incoming president. Mr. Weaver's administrations, which have been crowned with success in virtually every undertaking, was reviewed briefly and praised by members of the club.

Rob Roy Sparr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Sparr of Eastland and a brilliant young orator, addressed the club on the subject of "Future Citizens." This address took up the entire time allotted the program.

Mrs. Joe Gibson furnished music for the program.

J. E. T. Peters and E. P. Crawford, Cisco Rotarians, were visitors at today's luncheon.

On last Monday the Rotary club went on record as favoring the proposed 15 cent road tax for the county, which is to be voted on in an election July 16.

The "I'm Alone" incident, firing upon the Suvayest fish yacht, the Virkula and other killings, and prohibition pamphlets for public schools have been subjects of wide comment and debate.

Both Lowman and the white house have denied the assistant secretary's resignation had been asked by Mr. Hoover but it is certain that Lowman will give up his office. It is expected also that Prohibition Commissioner James M. Doran will be transferred to his former post as a chemical expert with no prohibition enforcement responsibilities.

Because of the president's opposition to publicity in connection with prohibition, it is likely there will be a delay in Lowman's relinquishment of his post.

A feeble smile played on Dr. Snook's face as he faced the court.

Dry Situation Before Public's Eye Once More

By WALTER K. WALKER, United Press Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Widely circulated reports from high official circles dealing with the imminent retirement of Seymour Lowman, assistant secretary of treasury in charge of prohibition enforcement, have served to center attention again on the dry program and have brought out clearly President Hoover's intention to keep sensationalism out of dry law enforcement.

When Mr. Hoover took office it was his desire that prohibition be kept in the background, but perhaps the public eye has been centered upon Lowman and his staff through a series of incidents that have been front page news for weeks.

The "I'm Alone" incident, firing upon the Suvayest fish yacht, the Virkula and other killings, and prohibition pamphlets for public schools have been subjects of wide comment and debate.

Both Lowman and the white house have denied the assistant secretary's resignation had been asked by Mr. Hoover but it is certain that Lowman will give up his office. Brookhart Is Pleased With Investigation

Creager Indignant at Manner in Which Committee Chairman Is Conducting Texas G. O. P. Probe.

DALLAS, July 1.—Apparently pleased with the result of its inquiry in San Antonio last week into the ramifications of republican federal patronage as handled by Rene B. Creager, G. O. P. national committee man, the senatorial probing committee resumed its work here today.

Senator Smith W. Brookhart, chairman of the committee, would make no statement other than that the San Antonio hearings "have been very profitable."

Senator Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, the other member of the committee, before he left San Antonio, voiced his conviction that all border patrol agencies should be placed under one officer responsible directly to the president. The Tennessee's statement, apparently was prompted by the disclosures relative to conditions along the Mexican border and alleged friction between the customs and immigration service.

The present state of law enforcement, as disclosed by the McKellar said, "Jealousy between bureaus and individual groups, non observance of the laws by some of the law officers themselves, failures to prosecute law violations, if not connivance with them, and a general spirit of disregard of all laws seems to permeate all of the federal enforcement bodies. The entire present political system as practiced on the border is subversive of good government and must be remedied. As long as these appointments are held as political patronage, so long will the present conditions of lawlessness prevail."

Senator McKellar announced that he will introduce a bill in congress to remedy the situation. He also expressed a desire to inquire into conditions along the Canadian border before the committee makes its report to congress.

Spain Prepares Reception For Her Air Heroes

By JOHN DEGANT, United Press Staff Correspondent.

MADRID, July 1.—A triumphal reception such as marked the return of conquering heroes in the days when Spain ruled the Western world was prepared here today in honor of the "four home-coming fliers" who were snatched from the waves of the Atlantic at a moment when they were all but given up for dead.

Had Commander Ramon Franco and his three flight companions—Eduardo Gallarza, Ruiz de Alda and Pedro Madariaga—succeeded in reaching the United States as they had set out to do their homecoming could not possibly have been any more enthusiastic and elaborate than Madrid and all Spain are collaborating to make it.

The fliers, speeding toward Europe aboard the British ship that saved them, the airplane carrier Eagle, are expecting to land at Gibraltar tomorrow morning, about 9 o'clock. From there they will be brought to Madrid, in triumph, through towns where the enthusiasm is as great as it is here, and through a countryside which yesterday offered thanksgiving in the churches for the rescue of the valiant airmen.

View of an Oil Economist
It is admitted that the extraordinary efforts in the petroleum industry, put forth by Pres. Hoover and governors and giants of the industry and their propagandists, have failed to check expansion of output. It is well known that the Colorado Springs conference was a gesture and that's all. Geo.
R. Hopkins, petroleum economist for the bureau of mines, in a recent bulletin lets it be known that crude oil coming from the surface at the record shattering rate of 2,700,000 barrels a day failed to swamp storage facilities. There is a reason for it.
Economist Hopkins says that even this tremendous flow from the wells is not operating at the moment to increase oil reserves stock. He submits figures. Gasoline consumption is running at the rate of more than 1,000,000 barrels a day in the United States.
Exports of gasoline, he says,
only balances supply obtainable imports of crude. The plain of this is that crude im-be given first place. Those who use the highways must pay for the construction and maintenance of the highways. A Texas economist has figured it out that a four-cent tax will produce a revenue of $346,000,000 a year for the highways and that for a ten year peri-

Two Planes In Air Today Seek To Set Records

Trans-Atlantic Attempts to Be Made During Week

Two planes were in the air today seeking a new refueling endurance record.
One, a tiny Cessna monoplane, took off at Los Angeles at 7:30 a. m. (Pacific Coast time) yesterday with Leo Nomis and Maurice Morrison aboard.
The other, the monoplane, City of Cleveland, had been in the air over Cleveland since 6:38:51 p. m. central standard time. Friday, Byron K. Newcomb and R. L. Mitchell were in command.
Four aviators were killed and several injured in crashes throughout the country Sunday.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 1.—Leo Nomis and Maurice Morrison, attempting at the controls of a tiny Cessna monoplane, today began their second day in the air in an attempt to better the world's refueling endurance flight record of 172 1/2 hours.
The plane took off at 7:30 a. m. (Pacific coast time) yesterday. The small airplane capacity necessitated two refuelings during the first 18 hours of the flight.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., July 1.—The Cessna monoplane in which Leo Nomis and Maurice Morrison hope to shatter the world's sustained flight record was circling safely over Metropolitan field today after it narrowly escaped being forced to land by weather conditions.
The endurance plane was refueled successfully about 9 a. m., after a low fog had prevented the attempt to refueling it in an earlier attempt.
Field officers were dismayed when the refuelers first returned with word that the Cessna could not be found. Later a note dropped over Girard indicated the position of the endurance craft and contact was made despite the low ceiling.
Nomis and Morrison took off at 7:30 a. m. Sunday on their proposed record breaking attempt.
PLAN HOP TO BERLIN
CHICAGO, July 1.—The "Tintin" Bowler, the Chicago Tribune's Storksky amphibian, will leave early Wednesday morning on its flight to Berlin, via the northern route, weather permitting.
A severe electrical storm gave the big plane its "baptism of fire" as it neared Chicago last night. It had been buffeted in gales all the way from Cleveland.
COPENHAGEN, July 1.—Bert Hassel and Parker Gramer will begin their flight from the United States to Copenhagen within the next few days, Danish government officials understood Hassel sent a cablegram to the government asking facilities for their landing here, including weather reports. The government promised to cooperate.
SCARBORO, Me., July 1.—Roger Q. Williams and his flying mate, Lewis A. Yancey, today awaited tomorrow's dawn in the hope of being able to make a new start on their projected 4800-mile flight to Rome.
Tested and tuned, their recently acquired monoplanes Pathfinder needed only to be fueled—a process requiring three to four hours—before heading westward toward the distant goal.

Immediate administration of emetics prevented possible deaths, doctors said.
Physicians and health authorities learned the 10-pound wedding cake had been prepared by a bakery. Crumbs of the cake's colored frosting were collected for analysis.
COLUMBUS, O., July 1.—A dense fog for which caused him to lose his bearings was held responsible today for the death of Waldo E. Robey, 24, Kansas City, air mail pilot for Continental Air Lines, Inc., who was killed here Sunday when his plane crashed into the 200 foot steel radio casting masts of station WAHU.
Robey was dead when two caddies from the Elks Country club, nearby, dragged him from the wreckage. A mass of debris was all that was left of the plane.
MEXICO CITY, July 1.—The wildest enthusiasm, which for a time endangered the lives of many worshippers, marked the first Sunday in three years that Mexican Catholics were able to worship under the direction of their priests and in their own churches.
Thousands of the faithful crowded into all the churches which have been returned to the clergy, to hear early mass and the services that followed. The jams were so great in many of the edifices that police were called to maintain order. Archbishop Diaz, who officiated at pontifical mass and at the latter to deum at Guadalupe, left the Basilica only with the greatest difficulty.
Francisco Croscio y Jimenez archbishop of Guadalajara, who remained in hiding three years during the dispute, and returned last week with a denial that he had

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Charges, Prohibition and Public Morals with violation of the corrupt practices act, Representative Tinkham, republican, Massachusetts, has written Attorney General Mitchell demanding prosecution of that organization.
Tinkham declared the Methodist organization has violated the law which requires any person or organization spenders $50 or more within a year for the purpose of influencing in two or more states the election of candidates to file an itemized statement of such expenditures with the clerk of the house.
The church board has not filed such a report, Tinkham said, although it sends out literature exclusively political in character.

DALLAS, Tex., July 1.—Party fights of the G. O. P. in Texas during the last generation, were reviewed in detail by three witnesses appearing before the Senate committee investigating federal patronage in Texas, which opened its Dallas hearing at the Baker hotel today.
One witness, a Democrat, made open charges of graft in the prohibition enforcement department of the Harding administration; another, a former Republican but now a "converted" independent, claimed he had been double-crossed, while a third witness, a black-and-tan Republican, shouted "pie counter," at the organization of R. B. Creager, Republican national committee man for Texas.
ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 1.—A coroner's jury returned a verdict of "accident" today in the deaths of four children in a fireworks explosion at the Frank A. Scharlott 5 and 10 cent store here Saturday, and ordered Scharlott held for action of the grand jury.
Scharlott, under $5,000 bond on a charge of illegal display and sale of fireworks before July 1, was called to testify, but refused to do so on advice of counsel. Police Captain Arthur McGuire testified patrons of the store told him they purchased fireworks at the store Saturday.

CHAPTER XXXVI

Nan Carroll Morgan was not one of those women who thrive on drama. She had never lost her little-girl horror and sick distaste of scenes. Her own well-bred home had been singularly free of open discord, but once, inadvertently, when she was a child, she overheard her mother and father quarrelling bitterly. For days her shamed eyes had avoided them, fearful of seeing those two she idolized in that dreadful state of soul-nakedness to which their quarrel had stripped them.

Now, her hand on the knob of the door beyond which an unspeakably shameful scene was being enacted, every ounce of physical courage which the girl possessed had to be desperately summoned before she could force herself to go on.

A wave of nausea swept over her. If she had had only herself to consider she would still have done as Estelle had feared—she would have fled the house, leaving Iris in possession. But, as always John Curtis Morgan came first. What was it he had said last night—"I was a slave in bondage." Could she, whom he had loved as his deliverer, consign him to slavery again? He had said, too, "I hope I shall never see Iris again." Well, now that he had seen her again. . . . But he had sent Estelle to find HER. He needed her. She had never failed him yet.

Nan's icy fingers turned the knob slowly, noiselessly, though with no intention of muting her entrance. She forced her eyes to take in every detail of the tableau before her:

Morgan standing tall and stiff, his pale face stern and forbidding, but such agony in his deep-set black eyes that Nan could have screamed. Swaying against his stiff body, her hands locked behind his rigidly unbending neck was an Iris Morgan such as Nan in her most uncontrolled flights of imagination, could not have pictured.

The divorced wife had torn off her hat and thrown aside her fur coat—a tame mink coat in which she had gone away to join Bert Crawford. The glorious red-gold hair was in wild disorder, the thick knot on her neck almost shaken free by the violence of her emotion.

Before Nan became aware of the words Iris was pouring out upon her former husband her eyes took in, with curious detachment, the fact that Iris' normally slender body had become painfully thin. But somehow, subtly, her beauty had fed upon the wasting of her body. Undoubtedly Iris had suffered, and as a result was far lovelier than ever. Even her voice had a new quality, a throbbing sincerity in what had formerly been an artificial, beautifully modulated ripple of music. Gradually her words beat into Nan's still half-dazed brain:

"It can't be true, Jack! You've said those horrible things to punish me. I'm punished! See! I'm crying, Jack! Now put your arms about me. Kiss me! Hold me tight! I can never leave you again! And then tell me—tell me!" With her hands still locked behind his neck, she tried frantically to shake the rigid figure—"Tell me you were lying—that you haven't divorced me and married that girl!"

Over the wild disorder of red-gold curls Morgan's harassed eyes caught sight of the small, erect figure of his new wife, waiting before the door she had closed softly behind her. Nan's wide brown eyes met his steadily, unflinching, without question or reproach. As if their aloof gravity had a magic power over him, the man suddenly raised his hands and tore apart the locked fingers of the woman who was no longer his wife.

"Stop, Iris!" his hoarse voice commanded sternly. "I can't have you humiliate yourself and me like this. I've told you the truth. I'm sorry you had to learn the truth in this way. If you had written before returning I could have spared you—all this—"

"So I should have written, should I?" Iris panted, stepping back from him and raising the delicate wrists which his repudiating hands had bruised. "As your wife, I had a right to return without warning if I pleased. And I AM your wife! Do you think for a minute that I'll let you cast me off like this—?"

"It was not I who cast you off, Iris," he reminded her sternly. "You dissolved our marriage by deserting me. I merely made the divorce legal—"

"Legal?" Iris shrieked. "When I had no chance to contest it? I wasn't a lawyer's wife eight years for nothing, Jack Morgan! And I'm a lawyer's wife still! I'll fight you through every court in the land—"

"Nan! She's fainted!" Morgan called hoarsely as he dropped to his knees. "Brandy—quick! The sideboard! I'll carry her into the living room—"

Nan was too sick and dazed to obey quickly, but somehow she managed to find the brandy bottle, spilled some into a glass, caught up from the breakfast table her own untouched glass of water, ran with them jerkily, on icy feet. But just on the threshold of the living room she halted involuntarily. Her husband had laid the unconscious body of his former wife upon the big couch and was kneeling beside her, his head bowed upon her breast, his hands locked above her head in a gesture of such profound despair that Nan's heart cried out in a passionate prayer for unconsciousness for herself.

As if that prayer had reached him, instead of the God to which it had been directed, John Curtis Morgan suddenly raised his head and turned it toward the door where Nan stood. In his eyes was no recognition of the girl as his wife, only a wild urgency.

"For God's sake," hurry! I'm afraid she's dead," he watched Nan stood beside him, watching with that queer grave aloofness which had come upon her, as his shaking hands held the tiny glass of brandy to Iris' pale, parted lips. She did not speak. What could she possibly say that would help him now? But when Iris' bronze lashes began to flutter against her almost transparent white cheeks, Nan quietly moved out of range of Iris' returning vision, took her place at the end of the couch, her grave eyes fixed in an unwinning stare upon her husband's ravaged face.

A white hand rose feebly, wavered, then fluttered to rest upon Morgan's black-and-silver head. "Such a horrid dream, Jack," a thread of a voice whispered. "I knew all the time I was dreaming. I couldn't wake myself up. Dear, silly Jack!" The long white fingers rumbled his hair feebly.

With a groan of sheer agony the man dropped his head to her breast again. Nan knew he did not even remember that she was there. The thread-like voice went on:

"So tired, Jack—so tired! Poor Iris has been awfully sick. Did you know? So sick! Tried to—commit suicide. So sick, Jack. . . . Wanted YOU, Jack. So lonely. Ashamed to come home—but I did—I came home—"

The thread spun itself gossamer-fine and broke; the eyelids fluttered down over the blue-green eyes.

"Oh, my God!" The words were wrung from the man on a sob that shook his body. "Jack! Silly Jack!" There was a ghost of a laugh. "Everything's all right. Iris has come back to you. You're glad, aren't you, Jack? In that horrid dream you told me you'd divorced me and married Nan Carroll. Wasn't that a foolish dream, Jack?"

The long white fingers twined about a lock of the man's hair, tugged at it with feeble playfulness, which suddenly became frantic as his head remained bowed on her breast. "IT WAS just a dream, wasn't it, Jack? Tell me!"

Suddenly, though how she knew she could not have told to save her life, Nan was sure that Iris Morgan was shamming, that the fainting spell had been faked, just as this feebleness of voice and hand, this childlike prattling of "horrid dream" were faked—for the purpose which had been so completely accomplished—of bringing John Curtis Morgan to his knees.

She might have known—she told herself with that queer, aloof calm that had descended upon her—that Iris would fight like this. What other weapon had been left to her? Well—Nan shrugged her tally—it seemed to be a very effective weapon. Odd how little pain she felt; just an absorbed, grave curiosity, as if she were looking upon the melodramatic second act of a drama whose conclusion she could not guess. Her queerly aloof mind elaborated the metaphor: "A modern problem play entitled RIVAL WIVES, starring Iris Morgan, with a notable cast, including John Curtis Morgan and Nan Carroll Morgan—"

She felt a smile twist at her lips; wondered "Am I going crazy? Or am I just having what Iris calls a 'horrid dream'?"

But if it was a dream her husband's voice—or was he Iris' husband, really?—seemed amazingly real. She listened with grave attentiveness.

"You mustn't talk just now, Iris," he was saying slowly, hoarsely, as if each word was wrung from him. "Close your eyes and try to sleep, darling—"

He caught himself, remembered Nan, flashed her a look of such piteous appeal that her numbed heart stirred, lunged sickeningly.

It was several minutes before she had sufficient command of herself to dare return to the scene she had fled. Her husband was still on his knees beside his former wife, but now his head was bowed upon his hands, not upon her breast. Iris was speaking, her "Look at me, Jack! . . . Oh, you don't dare look at me and tell me you don't love me. That unspeakable girl has wormed herself into your life, trapped you. I tell you—your marriage isn't legal! I'll make the courts annul it—you belong to me—"

"John!" Nan called from the library door. The man dropped his hands, stared at her as if he did not recognize her. "I've called Dr. Black. He's coming right over to take Iris to the hospital. It's getting late, dear. Hadn't you better leave for the courthouse? You're to open the Blackhall case today, you know."

PLAYS IN CISCO BY SPECIAL REQUEST

Miss Bernice Johnson, an Eastland pupil of Grover C. Morris, played for the Vesper service of the Cisco Presbyterian church for Sunday evening service, by special request. Miss Johnson has been presented in Eastland by Grover Morris in special piano programs.

SUNBEAMS MET SATURDAY MORNING: PROGRAM SUNDAY EVENING

The Sunbeam Band of the Baptist church held a busy session Saturday morning with Iola Simmons, their little president, in the chair and Winston Allison, acting as secretary pro tem.

There were several interested visitors present from the First Baptist church at Cisco, including Mrs. Poe, president of their Women's Missionary Society, with several leaders of the prospective Sunbeam Band they will organize in Cisco, and several children, who are prospective officers of their organization.

The work of the Sunbeams was exemplified for their instruction and benefit.

Several songs rounded out the morning's program, and a wonderful lesson on home missions was given by Mrs. W. T. Turner, their teacher.

There were about 40 children present.

The program presented by the Sunbeam Band Sunday night carried the patriotic theme and the Baptist church was filled with a very interested congregation who greatly appreciated the efforts of the little people.

The regular service followed the special program, in which Carl Garrett read "My Flag," and Miss Argye Mary McCanlies presented a splendid talk on "Challenge of the Church to the Youth of Today."

The choir sang "America, America" under the direction of A. M. Hearn.

The closing feature was the marching of the Sunbeam Band with waving flags, singing "The Old Red, White and Blue," and going through a flag drill that was a beautiful sight.

Several rows of children standing in relief against the dark and handsome furnishings of the new church all brightened by the rows of flags, that fluttered in concerted action, in their drill movements.

The service was concluded with sermon by Rev. W. T. Turner, the pastor, whose pivotal thought was that of carrying patriotism into the home and business life.

A DEFINITE OCCUPATION HAS ITS CHARM FOR YOUTH AS WELL AS OTHERS

Miss Marjorie Davison, the young daughter of the George A. Davisons, a popular, brilliant and delightful girl, who is a student in Our Lady of Victory in Ft. Worth, decided she wanted to know something of actual business and has entered a local business college for the summer course. And daily, this little lady may be seen, with an armful of books, on her way to her serious day of work, forgetful of the jolly crowds, going to the swim places and the little bridge gatherings which her friends are enjoying. Marjorie declares she needs the training which she considers will be of big benefit to her in the next three or four years.

More and more one hears of a so-called "butterfly girl" who has taken to more serious views of life or at least realization of the various component parts that make up life or living and are entering business colleges or studying some kind of a business course. There are more women lawyers today than the public realizes and the field for the activity for women grows constantly larger.

George Davison, Jr., Miss Marjorie's brother, is ambitious to become a real oil man and to know the business from the very beginning, and he has taken a position on one of the leases of the Davison wells and is hard at work each and every day. He was an honor student and graduated with high degrees at Roswell, N. M.

Surplus in U. S. Treasury Is Sum of $185,000,000.00

WASHINGTON, July 1.—The treasury started the fiscal year today with a surplus of $185,000,000, a public debt of less than $600,000,000 for the first time in the war and with government bonds generally in a "highly satisfactory state," Secretary Mellon announced today.

Closing the treasury's books for the present fiscal year last night, he announced the surplus, which exceeded the treasury's first estimate by $148,000,000.

Oyster Joe Martina, veteran Dallas Steer speedball merchant, took out his revenge on the Waco Cubs Sunday and blanked the Pratt men in the opener of their two game series at Steer Stadium, Dallas 5 to 0. Martina allowed only three hits and struck out nine cubs.

The Wichita Falls Spudders, falling from their league leading throne, divided a double header with the Beaumont shippers. After winning the opener 8 to 5, the Spudders fell off and lost the nightcap 12 to 10.

Shreveport, meanwhile, went on its second hitting rampage in two days and advanced to second place in the pennant scramble by smothering the San Antonio Indians under a 21 to 11 score.

Dick Whitworth and Meadows each turned in a win for Fort Worth and the Cats took a double header from the Houston Buffs, 7 to 2 and 6 to 4.

Watching the Scoreboard

Yesterday's hero: Harry Rice, Detroit outfielder whose spectacular catch of Jamieson's fly in the ninth cut off two runs and enabled the Tigers to beat the Cleveland Indians, 11 to 10. He also made four hits.

Fred Marberry gave Washington its second victory in fifteen games played against Philadelphia by beating the Athletics, 12 to 2. He allowed but six hits.

With the Browns leading 2 to 0, Phil halted the Louis-Chicago White Sox game at the end of the third inning.

After beating the Phillies, 14 to 2, in the first game, the New York Giants were tamed by Claude Wiloughby in the second game, 4 to 2. Overcoming a seven run lead the Chicago Cubs made it four straight over the St. Louis Cards, 14 to 8, and held their half game lead over the Pirates.

Staving off a Red rally in the ninth after two runs had scored, Pittsburgh beat Cincinnati, 7 to 6.

Brooklyn divided a double header with the Boston Braves, winning the first game, 5-3 and losing the second game 10 to 6.

Babe Ruth hit home run No. 16 and drove in four runs as the New York Yankees beat the Boston Red Sox 6 to 4.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 1.—Paul Tobias, his son, Jack Tobias and a daughter, Betty, were kidnaped by three bandits in front of their home early today. The bandits drove them a few blocks from their home and robbed them of $225.

Chiffon Popular

One of the simplest figured chiffons seen this year in Paris was a gray and white modernistically striped one, made severely princess, with a V neckline from which a tie of white chiffon hung below the waistline. The sleeves tapered to the cuffline, where bands of white and gray chiffon were introduced. Over the hand a white cuff flared in mitt-fashion.

000 pounds, or 25 per cent. Total sales for the year were 280,579,000 pounds, an increase over 1927 of 57,149,000 pounds, or 26 per cent. The production had a value at the plants of $13,782,000, an average of 5.54 cents per pound. This represents little change in average value but, because of the sizeable increase in output, represents a material gain in total value over 1927.

Stocks of carbon black held by producers at their plants continued to decline and, on Dec. 31, 1928, amounted to 50,240,000 pounds, as compared with 82,931,000 pounds on hand at the beginning of the year.

As noted above, total sales by carbon black producers in 1928 amounted to 280,579,000 pounds. Of this amount, 77,903,000 pounds, or 28 per cent, were exported, leaving 202,676,000 pounds, or 72 per cent, as the domestic distribution. Of the latter amount, 140,938,000 pounds or 70 per cent, were sold to rubber companies; 27,223,000 pounds or 13 per cent, to ink companies; 20,040,000 pounds, or 10 per cent, to paint companies; and 14,475,000 pounds, or 7 per cent, for miscellaneous uses.

Two Pounds To Tire

The rubber industry is by far the largest consumer of carbon black and the major portion of the increase in output in recent years has been due to a comparable increase in the number of automobile tires manufactured. During 1928 the rubber industry produced about 75,000,000 automobile casings which, with a distribution of 140,938,000 pounds of carbon black, would indicate a carbon black consumption of nearly two pounds per tire.

Louisiana again ranked first in the production of carbon black with Texas second, and Wyoming third. Louisiana with two less plants operating in 1928 than in 1927 produced 136,320,000 pounds of carbon black as compared with 124,188,000 pounds in 1927, an increase of 10 per cent. The output in Texas rose from 56,396,000 to 100,828,000 pounds, an increase of 79 per cent. Of the 1928 total for Texas, 64,927,000 pounds, or 64 per cent, were produced in the Panhandle district and 35,901,000, or 36 per cent, in the vicinity of Breckenridge. The two States of Louisiana and Texas produced 95 per cent of the total output of carbon black in 1928. The year 1928 witnessed the almost complete extinction of the carbon black industry east of the Mississippi. In 1927 the two States of Kentucky and West Virginia had nine plants in operation, which, during the year, produced 8,465,000 pounds of carbon black; in 1928, however, the number of operating plants dropped to three and their output was only 1,181,000 pounds.

GOES TO WORK FEELING FINE

Ranger Farmer Had Been In Badly Run-Down Condition For Three Months—Relieved By Oratone.

"I just get better and better with every bottle of Oratone I take," declared J. T. Walton, an industrious and reliable farmer residing on rural route No. 1, eight miles southeast of Ranger, Texas, "and I think so much of it I am recommending the medicine to my friends."

"I was in a general run-down condition for the past three months," Mr. Walton continued,

"my food didn't digest right and my whole system seemed to be out of order. My stomach felt like there was a lump of lead in it regularly after every meal and I would belch up sour, sickening gas. I would get dizzy like I was going to keel over and would see spots floating before my eyes. I was very nervous and lost right smart of sleep and some nights didn't sleep a wink all night long. In the morning I felt all tired out and fairly dreaded to get up and go out to the field to work."

"I read so much in the papers here about Oratone, I got some and I'm now on my second bottle and can truthfully say I get better with every dose and feel good all over. I haven't had a dizzy spell for a month and my stomach is getting all O. K. I am getting rid of all clogged-up feeling and constipation don't bother me like it did. My nerves are quiet and I have restful sleep every night and get up in the morning refreshed and can go out to the fields and go at my work feeling fine. Oratone is the best medicine I ever saw and I cannot help but say a good word for it."

Genuine Oratone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific little preparation and is sold in Eastland exclusively by the Toombs and Richardson drug store, phone 203, under the personal direction of a special Oratone representative.—Adv.

Miss Helen-Jane Angstadt and Miss Josephine Martin returned home last evening from a week-end house party entertained by Miss Alta Hood, in Abilene.

Correspondence Way Of Study Popular

AUSTIN.—Courses in 24 different subjects, offered by a staff of 71 regular university faculty members, are at the disposal of persons who wish to take correspondence courses from the Bureau of Extension teaching at the University of Texas, according to Miss Julia Vance, chief of the bureau. The catalogue describing the different courses is now off the press and may be secured upon request from Miss Vance or from Mrs. Faith A. Perry, editor of the university publications.

"Teaching by correspondence has long since passed the experimental stage," Miss Vance pointed out. "While the university recommends resident work when possible, the authorities of the university realize that correspondence study also offers substantial advantages. Correspondence work develops a marked degree initiative, self-reliance, accuracy and, above all, perseverance."

Correspondence work should make a special appeal, according to Miss Vance, to the following types of students: Graduates of accredited schools, who, though forced by necessity into money-earning labor, and unable to attend college, desire to continue their education beyond high school training.

Graduates of non-accredited schools, who, upon presenting satisfactory evidence of their fitness to do the work, may be permitted to take courses by correspondence. Teachers who desire their certificates to a high degree of preparation for the nation.

Prospective students of medicine who are unable to attend the university to acquire academic credits which are requisite to entrance to the school of law and the school of medicine.

College students, who, for special or other reasons, are forced to drop out of school for a time.

Isolated persons who reach of good lectures, libraries and yet who want advantage of contact with all institutions.
