Hoover's Niece, Married, Holds Post as Typist

Enjoys Department Store Job And Styles Self a "Poor Relation."

By DAN CAMPBELL

United Press Staff Correspondent SAN FRANCISCO, June 21.—Some day she hopes to have the president of the United States pointed out as her uncle and a well known dean at Stanford university likewise recognized as her father.

For the present, Mrs. Hulda Hoover McLain, is content to work in a department store and live on Russian Hill and is proud to be known as Herbert Hoover's niece and Dean Theodore Hoover's daughter.

Few of her co-workers in the comparison office of the store, where Mrs. McLain serves as a typist, are aware of the relationship, the young matron explaining that "being the niece of the president helps and hinders me."

Being of an independent nature and having foresight, the petite, auburn-haired girl took typing as an added subject to her university course and after graduation she obtained for herself the department store position.

She married the man of her choice, Charles Alexander "Chuck" McLain, Jr., a classmate, when she was a sophomore in college, although laughingly admitting that "I always said I'd marry a rich man."

Has Literary Ambitions Following their marriage the couple went to McGill university in Canada. In their senior year they returned to Stanford and received their degrees and following graduation took an apartment on Russian Hill, the local Bohemian section.

Someday Mrs. McLain expects to resume her career. She has ambitions to be a famous psychologist or well-known writer and has already taken preliminary steps which may lead to success in either or both fields.

"Some day, of course," I'll stop working and have my family. Then I'll go on with my career. More than anything I want to do is research work in psychology, along pathological lines. But that will mean money, years in medical school.

"And I want to write fairy stories. Stories for children which grown-ups will enjoy. I've written a few and some say they are good."

Views a Bit Radical Having lived independently for many years her political views are a bit "radical," she says. But she has hopes of outgrowing them.

"You know what they say, anyone who isn't a socialist before 30 has no heart, and anyone who is after 30 has no head."

Mrs. McLain says her father Dean Hoover, heartily approves of his daughter's independent mode of life and that he says "it's great," she boasts.

"And I'm not a poor relation. Though I suppose if I wanted to be one and go home to live, the family would welcome me. But I don't."

She thinks "it would be fun" to visit the White House this summer but "I simply can't afford it," concluded the president's niece and the dean's daughter.

NACOGDOCHES, June 22.—Plans are under way here for construction of an eight-story hotel building at a cost of $400,000. A representative of the Pearsall Hotel corporation of Russellville, Ark., offered to finance the building at a meeting of the chamber of commerce.

Miss Genevieve Lyon, who has been chosen to represent our city at the Miss Eastland at the Bathing Girl revue at Cisco, July 4, it has recently been learned, was two years ago awarded first place in the Cisco revue and received a very handsome sterling loving cup as prize. The following month, in August, Miss Lyon entered the bathing revue held in Ft. Worth and which was made of entrants from every state and carried off honorable mention having been declared from accepting a prize on account of having won the cup the month preceding in Cisco, however she was awarded $100 in cash.
 Miss Lyon will have an official champion, possibly her sister, and will also be provided by an official escort who will be appointed later.

DEMONSTRATIONS THIS MORNING AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

A very elaborate and beautiful demonstration of the subject, "Praise," will be presented by the class in evangelism of the Church of Christ at the regular Sunday School hour, 10:30 o'clock, this morning in the church, with lecture or demonstration given by Mrs. J. R. Boggs. The table, which is six feet long by four feet wide, will be an expanse of charming landscaping, peaceful and fruitful, with rivers, lakes, fields of grain and corn, forests, tended dwellings, and winding roadways. The vineyard will be there and flowers. The demonstration is based on the quotation used in the lecture, "Praise is the fruit of the lips." The Psalm that praise will be a part of the lesson also.
 The committee that has arranged for these demonstrations is composed of Mrs. J. R. Boggs, Miss Virginia Smith, Mrs. A. C. Craig, Rev. H. W. Wray. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Patterson and Mrs. Mullins, on the basis of the majority wish of the club members, that the study will be built along lines of a travel club. So, a real tour will be taken (in the book) through several foreign countries, eight in all, and each will be studied from every angle; political, social, artistic, industries, outlook and in fact, everything that goes to the making of a country including their cities and their ways. The committee has held three meetings so far and the book will be ready for the press in July or August first.
 Mrs. James Horton, who is the incoming president of the Thursday Afternoon club is greatly interested in the plans being developed for the year book which she considers most desirable and quite original.

Aids Brother Held in Murder Plot

Elmer Manchester, 21 (left), of Rochester, Mich., is shown greeting his brother, Earl, 19, who is held in jail at Macon, Ga., on charges of murdering James Parks, 25, at the instigation of Mrs. J. C. Powers, 71-year-old landlady of a boarding house. Young Manchester confessed the woman promised him $1000 for killing Parks, on whom she carried a $14,000 insurance policy. Elmer had only sufficient funds to pay his fare from Michigan, but hopes to find a way to aid his brother.

Miss Ruth Ramey, Eastland county home demonstration agent, presented the matter of financing two girls for the A. & M. short course. Mrs. C. U. Connellee moved that the county federation send two girls to take this course at College Station and the motion was carried. A recommendation was made that from now on the County Federation have their meetings once every two months instead of monthly as heretofore and that these meetings be held in Eastland as the most centralized town in the county. A recommendation was carried that the County Federation meet with the rural clubs in an all day meeting at some period during the year.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

MOM'N POP

"He's going to move to dismiss the indictment, I'll bet my best hat!" Nan crowed.

"Looks like it," Morgan grinned. "Know's he'll lose the second trial. You were right about tipping off the press to some of the new evidence we uncovered. He can brag in his next campaign speech how he saved the state the heavy cost of a second trial by having the indictment dismissed. I told him I'd be there in 10 minutes."

"Oh!" Nan could not restrain the little wail of disappointment, but she recovered quickly. "Good luck—John. I did want to go over the Blackhull case with you, find out what you'd learned today, and all—but that can wait till this evening, can't it?"

"She wanted him to remember the EVENING! Remember, young lady, this is our wedding day! We're going to forget law-yring for ONE evening, at least!" But he said nothing of the kind. "Oh, I'll probably be back in time to go over the Blackhull case with you. What a glutton for you are, anyway!"

"And a glutton for love, even if you don't suspect it, you darling, obnoxious old goose!" Nan answered in her heart. Aloud she said: "I don't think I'll be here when you get back—John." How hard it was to say that name! "I thought I'd go out to the house and see that—that everything's in order. I'd like to see Curtis, too, before—before—"

"A good idea!" Morgan agreed heartily, but the flush deepened on his lean face.

He did not kiss her goodby. But he was so used to her in the office, so accustomed to coming and going that it would have seemed queer to give her his first kiss there. Nan argued with her despairing heart. And after all, this WAS a business office, no place for love-making. But he'd kissed Iris in his office. She'd seen him—a score of times.

"Stop it, Nan Carroll!" Nan commanded herself angrily, forgetting for a moment that she was now Nan Morgan and not Nan Carroll. "You'll drive yourself crazy if you're going to keep torturing yourself with comparisons of his attitude to you and to Iris. He divorced her of his own free will and accord and married you. YOU are his wife now, not Iris!"

Before leaving the office she gathered up the typed sheets of David Blackhull's story, thrust them into the file, flexible leather briefcase that she had found among her new possessions that morning. Stamped in gold on the front was her new name, "Mrs. J. C. Morgan." How sure he had been that she would go through with the marriage! And what a lot of planning he had done to prepare these wedding gifts for her. Gratitude and love—untainted for the moment by jealousy and foreboding—surged through her heart. As she bade Kathleen O'Hara goodby for the day, Nan looked the happy, beloved bride that they all—even Evans and Blake, who had known Iris—believed her to be.

Curtis, playing on the lawn with Cop, who had grown into an enormous police dog, and "Little Pat" O'Brien, saw Nan as she turned up the flagstone path to the house.

Nan knelt and held him close to her heart, regardless of neighbors or servants who might be watching. Tears welled in her eyes as she looked him over proudly, with as much love—she thought—as if he were her own flesh and blood. He was a very different child from the spoiled, anemic little boy that Iris Morgan had deserted nine months ago. His cheeks had filled out, there was astonishing strength in the round arms that cling to her so tightly.

"Listen, Nan!" he plunged on breathlessly, without waiting for an answer to his other impertunate question. "You know what? We had physical 'zamination to-day, and you know what? . . . I got A-plus! Honest! The doctor said my weight was just right, and my hema—hema-glo-bin—I can spell it, too!—was 94. Little Pat's hema-glo-bin is 98, but I betcha mine'll be about 150 by next term. You ARE going to stay all night, aren't you, Nan? Can I sleep with you?"

Little Pat, who had drawn near, let out a warwhoop of delight at that innocent question of Curtis', but there was no smile on Nan's face.

"Gee, Nan, you're red as a beet!" Curtis informed her. "I AM going to stay all night, and as many more nights as you want me, Curtis," Nan said in a low voice, as she gently released the boy's arms from about her neck.

"Hi, Pat! Nan's going to stay all the time at my house!" Curtis shrieked and tore across the lawn to his chum, followed by a madly excited police dog.

Nan walked slowly up the path to the front veranda and, without ringing the door bell, stepped through an open French window into the drawing room. Her eyes flew to the fireplace. Estelle had lost no time. Nan could imagine with what malicious pleasure the maid, who adored her and despised the house's former mistress, had yanked down the life-size portrait of Iris Morgan which had dominated the drawing room, the whole house, even the life of John Curtis Morgan.

But Nan, at the banishment of her rival's portrait, felt no relief—only dismay. For the picture was more conspicuous by its absence than it could have been by its presence. It had left as indelible a mark on the wall as it had upon Morgan's heart.

Where the picture had hung there was now a great rectangle of paper many shades darker than that of the surrounding space. Nan stood staring helplessly at the spot where the picture had hung. What could she do? If John came home to find that dark, blank space where he had been accustomed to seeing almost incredible beauty, would the terrible thought occur to him that Nan, in banishing his former wife's picture, was trying as cruelly to banish her from his heart? And would he be forced to face the fact that his heart was an empty without Iris as that blank space above the fireplace?

Nan cast desperately about for a solution. No, there was no other picture in the house anywhere near large enough to fit the space. No piece of tapestry large enough or worthy to fill so conspicuous a place. No time to have the room redecorated or to purchase a picture before John came home.

"Oh! Excuse me, Miss—I mean Mrs. Morgan!" It was Estelle entering the drawing room with a basket of logs for the fireplace. "I didn't know you were here, ma'am. May I congratulate you, ma'am? But as I said to Maude O'Brien, it's Mr. Morgan that's to be congratulated."

"Thank you, Estelle," Nan forced herself to smile naturally. "That blank space looks awful, doesn't it? Will you please re-hang Mrs. Morgan's picture?" The maid looked shocked and scandalized, but Nan gave her no time to protest. Stepping to the French window, she called to Curtis.

Five minutes later the little boy was importantly and excitedly helping her to unpack her trunk, which had been placed in the middle of the big guest room. "Can I play like I'm the husband and sleep in one of the man-and-wife beds, Nan?" he suggested with eager hopefulness. "You let me sleep with you that other time, because you weren't married. (Continued from page 6)

ise Weaver, daughters of host and hostess.

Delightful dance music was provided by Ray Jude's several piece orchestra of Ranger. Teed punch was served throughout the evening from a charmingly flower-burdened table. The scene was a brilliant one all the pretty frocks and bright colors resembling a garden of blossoms. Mrs. Weaver was gowned in tan lace, Mrs. Martin in pastel chiffons, Mrs. Garrett wore ivory crepe Romaine.

The honoree, Miss Virginia Weaver, was charming in rose chiffons; Miss Elizabeth Garrett in orchid and green taffeta, and Miss Louise Weaver in pink taffeta with twin sister, Miss Ruth, in pale blue georgette.

At close of a wonderful evening, serpentine ribbon rolls and confetti were flung and hung in glittering loops from the beamed ceiling and pretty lusters reminding one of a grove of glistening beauty. Gay confetti filled the air and carpeted the floor as the strains of "Home, Sweet Home," lingered in the playing.

out of life," he added, with so patient an imitation of little Pat's mort mature manner that Nan laughed shakily. "Listen, Nan! Can I bring Father's things in? I won't drop anything, honest!" "Are you glad I'm going to stay? That your father and I—are man-and-wife?" the heart-breaking girl urged, her voice breaking. "Sure! I always did want you to come here and live," Curtis assured her offhandedly. "Listen, Nan! CAN I bring Father's things in? Can I?" It was then that Nan made the decision upon the threshold of which she had been trembling all day. "No," she said gently. "Let him bring them in himself—if he wants to."

TITLE REMAINS BRING BACK CHAUMONT DAYS

By RALPH HEINZEN, Press Staff Correspondent. CHAUMONT, France—This old capital of the A. E. F. wrapped itself again in the of the provincial city of but will never forget its days when General Pershing made the headquarters of his in an old French military and brought here most grand figures of that day—General Wilson, King Albert of Belgium, Haig and many Chaumont lives in the past, but tourists coming here would search hard for any trace of the American occupation. A little marble plaque on the wall, but you have a really curious to decipher script which informs you that Pershing was received in September, 1917. The many hastily built structures which housed the brains of the A. E. F. and the staff offices of the American battle plans drawn up in all their careful but little remains. Only one temporary barracks place and it is used as an office by the roads superintendent. In General Pershing came over Chaumont for the army, he resided in a house, "La Gloriette," which he faced on the great open Champ de Mars. That is now a home for aged, and can be found of General Pershing's occupation.

The Rouvre Chateau. After he moved to a beautiful house on the Langres road and there that he received many visitors. President Wilson, Mrs. Wilson spent several days there. It was given rent to the Americans by its owner, M. Rouvre, who still lives bookkeepers of the A. E. F., general staff itself and all the things lived in the army barracks Damremont which were unattractive before the American occupation. Army electricians, painters and carpenters, who work and within a week complete metamorphosis took troops of the French army barracks in Chaumont have most agreeable lodgings of the army. They live amid the fact that the Americans put themselves. The barracks are bath-rooms and shower-rooms, movie theatre, library and mess tables to sit down to. These were gifts of the Americans when they left.

The municipality sought to vend the memory of the A. E. F. changed the name of one of principal thoroughfares to avenue des Etats-Unis (avenue of the United States), but the name is rather long to pronounce, and many of the older citizens call it by its previous name, rue du General Pershing has come to Chaumont several times, but he is still the greatest figure of the war in the eyes of the population. Elsewhere in France, the memory of the A. E. F. may have dimmed by time and vicissitudes, but not in Chaumont.

Keeps Up Correspondence. Every family keeps its memory of some American boy, and many of these French people keep up an intermittent correspondence with boys they billeted 10 years ago. Some of the proudest citizens of Chaumont are those who called General Pershing just before his departure 10 years ago to offer him as the town's gifts gloves himself and his son, Warren, a golf knife with the coat of arms of Chaumont finely chiseled.

Newspaper Men's Convention

Photos by Newspapers Enterprise Association, Fort Worth Bureau

In keeping with a French tradition, General Pershing gave each of the visiting delegation a 25-cent piece of American money. Tradition has it that you must not accept as a gift a cutting instrument, and General Pershing knew this, so he "paid" for his gift with quarters. These quarters are cherished family heirlooms now and happy is the merchant or doctor who can pull a Pershing quarter from his pocket.

At the town hall, the town clerk will voluntarily show you the municipal documents which created Pershing an honorary citizen in July, 1918, and it was in that capacity that the general later distributed the prizes to school children at graduation time.

A sort of reverence surrounds the person of old Marthe, now a toothless old woman but who, 10 years ago, baked the croissants which General Pershing took with his coffee every morning. Pershing pronounced her croissants the finest he had ever tasted, and Marthe rose in the esteem of the town while her bakery attracted such crowds to taste her croissants that she could not bake them fast enough, obliging her to sell out for a small fortune.

TOURISTS CAN LEARN OF SPAIN

"Spain heretofore has been little visited so that the American tourist will find a country which has conserved its local color," states a letter received here from the Spanish Tourist Information office, 695 Fifth avenue, New York, which gives literature and information without charge concerning all matters in which prospective tourists to that country would be interested.

"The nation is entirely unprejudiced against the foreigner, who will be given the heartiest welcome. At the same time, he will find in Spain some of the best modern hotels, rivaling if not surpassing the most fashionable hostleries anywhere in Europe. Railroad service is good and some of the most luxurious trains are operated in Spain.

"Spain is one of the most interesting and beautiful countries in Europe, full of art, romance and history and to omit Spain on a European tour decidedly would be a great mistake.

"Two of the world's largest expositions just opened at Seville and Barcelona so that a trip to Spain at the present times would be doubly beneficial."

AMAZED OVER BIG CHANGE

"Orgatone Gave Me Relief Right From the Start and I'm Glad to Recommend It," Says Brownwood Mechanic.

"At the time I began taking Orgatone, I was in a very badly run-down condition, and was losing in strength and energy," said Bert Johnson, of 1617 Fourth St., Brownwood, Texas. Mr. Johnson is a mechanic for the Mitchell Motor Co.

"For the past three years my stomach has been in such a bad condition that I couldn't eat without suffering from indigestion. I was nervous and restless, and couldn't sleep at night, and had fearful headaches. My appetite was all gone and what I did eat would sour on my stomach and cause me so much pain and distress that I was almost frantic. The gas on my stomach would cause my heart to palpitate and I would have dizzy and bilious spells. I thought I had heart trouble and it continued to get worse instead of better. I also had heartburn, and in fact, felt tired and worn-out most of the time.

"After reading so much about Orgatone I decided to try it, and it has proven the right medicine in my case. I have certainly improved rapidly—and am never troubled the least bit with gas, pain or shortness of breath. I sleep as well as I ever did and am not the least bit nervous any more. I feel like going about 77 days' work with vim and vigor. I am more than amazed over the big change in my condition and know that Orgatone was just what I needed. It has given me relief right from the start and I take pleasure in recommending it to my friends."

Genuine Orgatone is not a so-called secret or patent remedy but a new scientific preparation and is sold in Eastland, exclusively by the Toombs & Richardson Drug Co., under the personal direction of a special Orgatone representative. (Adv.)

Volume of Business Handled by Jersey Cattle Club During Last Year Greatest in Its History

NEW YORK, June 22.— Jersey breeders from almost every state in the union assembled here at the Hotel Pennsylvania on June 5 to attend the 51st annual meeting of the American Jersey Cattle club.

Reports of the officers showed that in the fiscal year ending March 31st, the volume of business handled was the greatest in the history of the club. Registrations of purebred Jerseys totaled 75,690, an increase of 12.7 per cent over last year during which an increase of 20 per cent was recorded. Breeders reported an excellent demand for Jersey cattle and Jersey products throughout the entire country with no surplus.

Samuel F. Crabbe of Fargo, N. D., was unanimously re-elected president of the organization for the ensuing year. Mr. Crabbe has been an outstanding Jersey breeder and is widely known in agricultural and engineering circles in the northwest. New directors elected to the board are: Herbert Farrell, Nashville, Tennessee; R. C. Tway, Louisville, Kentucky; J. J. Grathwol, Excelsior, Minnesota; S. R. Head, Hannibal, Missouri.

Mr. George W. Sisson, Jr., of Potsdam, New York, was appointed vice president by the board of directors.

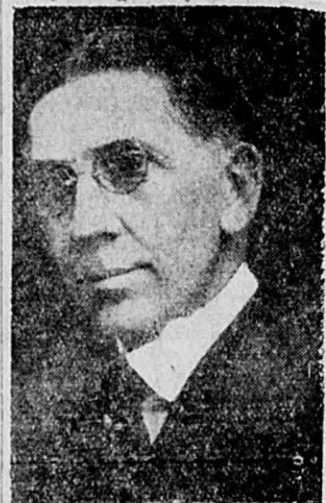

Dr. Frank B. Morrison of Cornell University presented some extremely interesting facts on feeding in his address, "Mineral and Vitamin Requirement of Dairy Cows," given during the meeting. A. J. Glover, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, delivered an enlightening address on testing, health regulations and breeding theories in relation to the dairy industry in his talk, "Some Essentials of Successful Dairying."

Lewis W. Morley, secretary of the club, presented the formal report for the past year. He stated that representatives of the Extension department of the organization assisted in forming 63 purebred bull associations and placed helpers during 1928 in addition to the general routine of stimulating better dairying and a broader interest in the Jersey breed of cattle. In the twelve months these representatives participated in programs promoting more profitable dairying that were presented to a total of 272,425 persons attending 1,326 community and state meetings. Mr. Morley also reported a good demand for Jerseys throughout the United States, particularly in Texas, Ohio and Missouri, the three leading states in registration for the year; 21,249 new breeders of Jersey the American Jersey Cattle club in 1928.

During the past year 2,734 official production test records were completed by Jersey cows and accepted by the Register of Merit department of the club. The 365-day test records showed an average yield of 524.62 lbs. of butterfat per cow. This average yield represents tests completed by cows of all ages. At the present time there are 3,430 cows on Register of Merit test. This is an increase of 6.8 per cent over last year.

The most outstanding Jersey record of all time was completed in 1928 when Abigail of Hillside finished a 365-day test of 1,197.51 lbs. of butterfat in 23,677 lbs. of milk. This is the highest butterfat and milk yield ever credited to a Jersey cow. It is her second record of more than 1,000 lbs. of butterfat. She is owned by J. T. Caspenter of Shelburne Falls, Massachusetts.

WELL KNOWN MAN DIES IN FORT WORTH

Built More Rigs in Ranger Field Than Any Other Man.

RANGER, Texas, June 22.— E. N. Dorsey, one of the best known men in the Ranger field during the great oil boom, died this morning in Fort Worth.

Mr. Dorsey was a member of Gholson, Moorman & Dorsey, which owned extensive properties in this field. He also owned a lumber yard and was a rig contractor. As one oil man declared today, "He built more rigs than any other man in the Ranger field."

He is survived by a son, C. L. Dorsey, of Ranger, who left for Fort Worth immediately after receiving the sad message.

Funeral arrangements had not been learned here this afternoon. Mr. Dorsey's death is deeply mourned by numerous friends in this city.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Calvin Coolidge's congressman is the Hon. William Kirk Kaynor, former postmaster at Springfield, Mass. Kaynor represents the second Massachusetts district, which includes famous Northampton, and Coolidge voted for him last November in the altogether likely event that he voted the straight Republican ticket.

Kaynor went to Northampton to see his illustrious constituent before he came down here. Naturally, he was anxious to pick up any tips that would help him on his new job and intimated as much.

"You just follow the Republican leaders and I guess you'll get along all right," said Cal.

CONGRESSMAN HENRY ST. GEORGE TUCKER of Virginia gives a good imitation of Coolidge's silence when asked about his forthcoming marriage to Miss Mary Jane Williams. Congressman Tucker is 76 years old and he doesn't believe in "publicity for ladies who aren't in public life." Neither does he believe in printing photographs of ladies in the newspapers.

He has been married twice before. He was asked in view of his age and experience, for his ideas on marriage.

"I approve of it!" declared Henry St. George Tucker.

THREE birds were riding in an elevator in the Department of Commerce Building, one of whom happened to be your correspondent. One of the other two asked to be let off at the second floor.

The colored operator made no reply to that and kept right on going. The second man began to accost him somewhat as follows:

Third floor: "Hey!"

Fourth floor: "I said second floor!"

Fifth floor: "What the deuce?"

Sixth floor: "What's the matter with this guy—is he deaf?"

The lift stopped at the seventh floor and the third occupant, moving out, explained that the operator wasn't deaf and that he would be glad to take the gent with the loud voice back to the second floor.

The operator then spoke up for the first time and explained in a condescending voice that he had just elevated none other than Secretary of Commerce Robert Patterson Lamont. Such incidents occur frequently in Washington.

THE Hon. Oscar De Priest, dusky congressman from Illinois, finally finds himself parked on the cellar floor of the House Office Building next to the office of the newest congressman, C. Murray Turpin of Pennsylvania. Mrs. Hoover has entertained Mrs. De Priest at tea in the White House, but until Turpin came here following his election to succeed the late John J. Casey, the office next to De Priest's was conspicuously unoccupied. A southern member had hastily moved out.

Turpin used to be a dentist. He is about 51 years old and 30 years ago was working alternately as grocery clerk, steamboat hand and apprentice carpenter to get money to study dentistry. After long dental practice he became successively mayor of Kingston, Pa., and prothonotary of Luzerne county. In the election a few days ago he defeated the late Congressman Casey's widow, who had the backing of Democrats and labor unions, after a campaign in which he was frequently accused of taking bread from the poor's mouth.

Turpin doesn't mind having

FRANK KIRK IS DRILLING THREE WELLS

Two Going Down Between Eastland and Carbon; Third Near Gorman.

Wells in three different fields are being drilled by Frank Kirk, well known operator of Gorman, who was in Ranger this morning. Kirk is drilling two wells in the "Punkin Center" shallow field between Eastland and Carbon where, a few weeks ago, he brought in an excellent well. The most recent completion in the pool is a south offset to Kirk's 60-barrel producer. The new well is good for 35 barrels and is owned by Crabb & McNeil.

A test two miles from the nearest production is being started by Kirk a short distance west of the city limits of Gorman. The derrick is up for the Oldham No. 1 which is located near the highway leading to Carbon and Eastland. This well is located near the filling station where a road turns off to Bass Lake.

Kirk and associates are drilling a well on the Fisher in Comanche county.

Housewives Will Raise Protest

CHICAGO, June 20.— Becoming irritated over the fact that governmental departments have a tendency to class them indifferently with the "they also serve" varieties, housewives are planning to do something about the matter of being listed as having "no occupation."

The immediate medium for a protest is the Women's Christian Temperance Union. A statement issued by that organization said that something may be done at the national convention of the W. C. T. U. in Indianapolis, September 18-25, to get a more dignified listing for housewives.

Mrs. Ella C. Boole, president of the union, said this attitude of the government saying the hardest working bunch of women in the country have no occupation is characteristic of the stand taken by men for thousands of years back.

"I think mothers and housewives are pretty well occupied," Mrs. Boole said, "and I think Washington should realize it, too. Women rarely have had proper recognition in any sphere and yet they are the backbone of several of the greatest movements."

Mrs. Boole did not say what, exactly, the women would seek to do, but they probably will petition congress to make the business of being a housewife recognized as such.

First Aid Class Large This Week

RANGER, Texas, June 22.— One hundred and fifteen are taking the course this week in accident prevention and first aid conducted by J. S. Ferraro of the United States bureau of mines, division of safety. This is an even greater number than attended the series last week—the total then being nearly 100.

Mr. Ferraro will start a new series Monday evening at 7 o'clock at the armory. The series will close at the end of the week. Oil field workers and any others who are interested are invited to attend.

Reports Excellent Lions Convention

RANGER, Texas, June 22.— The following excerpt is from a letter which has been received from the Rev. P. T. Stanford, pastor of the First Methodist Church, who is attending the Lions International convention in Louisville, Ky., as a delegate from the Ranger club.

"Lions International convention is in full swing. The attendance is excellent. Texas is well represented in numbers and leadership. I am impressed with seriousness of international leadership. Everything suggests a constructive, forward looking, practical program of service.

"Be home Saturday. Yours, P. T. STANFORD."
