WASHINGTON.—Senate rejects farm bill.

By PAUL R. MALLON

United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, June 11.—A few hours before the Senate vote on the debutureless farm bill, with the atmosphere tense and the outcome in doubt, Pres. Hoover moved today to help his Senate leaders. The president called to the White House Senators Nye and Frazier, North Dakota debuture advocates, and Senator Couzens of Michigan who is opposed to the debuture but thoroughly aroused by the refusal of the House to vote on the plan. They are the three which the Senate leaders have been trying to convert or hold in line.

Little Appears to Have Been Accomplished So Far at The President's Oil Conference

About the Only Thing the Delegates Have Agreed On Is That There Are Wastes in the Oil Industry That Could and Should be Eliminated.

WASHINGTON, June 11.—President Hoover's oil conservation order was denounced as "lawless" in the senate today by Senator Cutting, republican, New Mexico, during a discussion of the governor's oil conference now in session at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Ray Lyman Wilbur, secretary of the interior, before leaving for his home in California told the United Press if the government "found a will to make a compact" among the states, he would consider that the meeting had been a success.

The spokesmen from Oklahoma and Texas put a damper on any hope that might have been held of making a compact here. M. M. Crane of Dallas, former Assistant Attorney General of Texas, said he had no authority to bind Governor Dan Moody to any agreement here and Pat Malloy of Tulsa, spokesman for Oklahoma, said the Oklahoma delegation had a similar limitation.

Finally, Chairman Requa, who has been demanding a compact at last night's session said: "All we can do here is to formulate something that the delegates can take back to their states for discussion." With most of the speech making over, the conference managers hoped today to get most of the observers and visitors on their way home so that small committees made up of two or three delegates from each state could get down to the business of trying to agree on a tentative set of principles.

John D.'s Granddaughter Returns

Their romantic marriage was a national sensation several years ago. Pictured above upon arriving in New York from Europe are Mr. and Mrs. Max Oser of Zurich, Switzerland, and their children Anita and Peter. At the age of 17, Mrs. Oser, the former Mathilde McCormick, granddaughter of John D. Rockefeller, married the Swiss riding master over the objections of her father, Harold McCormick, millionaire manufacturer. Because of the illness of Mr. McCormick, they have returned to this country for the first time since their marriage.

Eastland County Twenty-Nine New Members Added Baptist Church

About 30 lawyers from over the county were present yesterday in the 88th District court room when the secretary, Scott W. Key, called the meeting to order. In the absence of the president, Sen. H. P. Brelsford, the organization selected Judge E. W. Peterson of Cisco to preside.

A resolution was adopted recommending that no cases be tried except by agreement during the months of July and August.

The meeting unanimously adopted a resolution whereby the Bar Association of Eastland county announces itself as heartily favoring the adoption of the constitutional amendment which will increase the Supreme court membership to nine judges; it seemed to be the consensus of opinion that such increase in membership of the highest court in Texas would do more than anything else toward the speedy and proper termination of litigation.

An election will be held throughout the state of Texas on the 10th day of July for the purpose of voting for the adoption of this constitutional amendment and Judge O. C. Funderburk, V. T. Seabery, R. N. Grisham and Frank Judkins were selected as a committee to represent Eastland county at Austin on June 12 where there will be a state-wide meeting of lawyers to consider urging the adoption of the amendment.

Ramsay MacDonald Would Be Welcomed

WASHINGTON, June 11.—The administration and American people would welcome a visit of Ramsay MacDonald, of Great Britain, to the United States, it was learned today on high governmental authority.

Neither the state department nor the White House have had any formal indication from the London government that such a visit was contemplated by the British prime minister. They have followed newspaper reports of such a project with keen interest, however.

The United Press learned on high authority that Ambassador Dawes, who will arrive at London this week, probably will acquaint the British government with the American attitude toward Mr. MacDonald's reported plan, but there was no official confirmation of that at the White House.

Indian to Congress Seventh Time

He has been attorney general for the Cherokee Nation and has represented his tribesmen in many important national conferences.

Anti-Evolution Measure Loses

AUSTIN, Tex., June 11.—Anti-evolution went down to another defeat before the educational committee of the Texas House of Representatives today, an unfavorable report on the anti-evolution bill was voted 7 to 5.

Rep. J. W. Harper of Mount Pleasant, minister-member, said he will make an attempt to have the bill printed on minority report.

In the hearing on the bill, Rep. Harper endorsed the principle of barring religious teaching from schools. "We ask you also to bar the teaching of atheism," said Harper.

"I warn you if you let evolution be taught in the schools we are going to find some way to present the other side in the schools, too," said Harper before the committee.

Evolution was held up as an exploded theory by other opponents of its teaching. Biblical account of creation was upheld by Rep. B. J. Forbes, minister-member of the House from Weatherford.

Harper expressed hope that the bill can be passed. If the land investigation does not take too much time. He pointed out that at the former session the bill got only two favorable votes in the educational committee. It was ordered printed then by a majority of 14 votes in the House but died on the calendar without final action.

Mystery of Tallman's Disappearance Grows

SAN FRANCISCO, June 11.—Science and sea were called upon today as the last resort of baffled manhunters seeking William L. Tallman, dapper radio operator, suspected of the "brick-bat" murder of Mrs. Virginia Patty in Los Angeles.

After six days of fine-combing the West Coast seaboard from Los Angeles to the Pacific Northwest, detectives and theories gave way to medical and hydrographic science as the possible solution of Tallman's disappearance.

While medical men sought to establish the identity and cause of death of a man whose decapitated body was cast up near the Golden Ferry slips Sunday, mariners experts attempted to determine the trend of tides the night Tallman disappeared from the liner Admiral Benson.

Defendant In 'Torch Murder' Case Testifies

Henry Cain Campbell Accused Of His Wife's Murder; Seeks to Escape Electric Chair.

ELIZABETH, N. J., June 11.—Somewhat nervously, Henry Colin Campbell, the one-time successful engineer, accused of the "torch murder" of his bigamous wife, Mildred Mowry, started testifying today in an attempt to escape the electric chair.

The gray haired man, who in the day and a half of trial has shown signs of evident nervousness—one time almost collapsing—was called the first witness after luncheon recess today. He followed to the stand his betrayed wife, Mrs. Rosalea McCready Campbell, who had traced the steps in Campbell's life since the time he was a successful engineer and author when he married her in 1914 up to the time of the murder.

She attributed illness, financial reverses and finally a narcotic habit as causes for the crackup of the one-time brilliant mind.

Judges Declare New York Girl Most Beautiful

GALVESTON, Tex., June 11.—Miss Irene Ahlberg, "Miss Greater New York," today received acclaim here as the nation's most beautiful girl.

Seven nationally known artists, official judges of the fourth international pageant of pulchritude here, last night selected Miss Ahlberg from the procession of American girls as most deserving the title, "Miss United States." The choice was made on a basis of beauty of face, perfection of figure, grace and personality.

Today foreign girls, representative of the highest type of womanly beauty in their respective lands, will pass in review and from their number one will be chosen to vie with Miss Ahlberg for the ultimate triumph of the beauty pageant, "Miss Universe."

Rangers Were Defended And Criticised on the Floor Of the House at Today's Meet

Rangers to Hunt 'Bootleggers' or Outlaws? One House Member Asks. Effort Made to Reduce Ranger Appropriation From $118,000 to $82,950.

INDICTMENT was alleged to have taken place in investigation of the death of Mrs. Ed Goerner of Bastrop. Goerner was acquitted last week after being charged with wife murder. "How are you going to solve crimes?" asked a member. Harrison said that El Paso didn't have any Ranger there to enforce the law and didn't need them. "Isn't El Paso a wide open town?" asked Rep. A. E. Harding of Fort Worth.

"We don't go round telling people how easy it is to get liquor in the hotel," retorted Harrison naming a Fort Worth hotel while the legislators laughed. Expense accounts allowed for Ranger travel in the appropriation bill were also attacked. Assertion was made that the rangers ride on the bus and railroad passes. "The railroads ought to give them passes. Every strike we have had the rangers have acted as strike breakers," said Harrison, mentioning particularly activities at Marshall.

George Purl of Dallas asked Harrison if he didn't think the governor and adjutant general ought to be criticized rather than the rangers who act under orders. Harrison answered "No." He said he did not believe the governor nor adjutant general sponsored all the rangers do.

A vote on the appropriation was delayed when the house and senate went into joint session to receive the service flag presented to the legislature by A. & M. College.

He would recall bachelors and maiden ladies between the ages of 30 and 40 an annual tax of $100 to be paid to the superintendent of public education. He has found that 50 per cent of the women as well as men teachers smoke and that an investigation shows that 50 per cent of the boys taught by cigarette-smoking teachers smoke. Pipe smoking would not be prohibited. Neither pipe dreaming be prohibited by the gentleman from Stephenville.

ATTORNEYS FOR HOUSE WIN POINT

In Fight Against Land Commissioner Robison Taking of Testimony to Start Soon.

AUSTIN, Tex., June 11.—R. B. Allen Sr., of Dallas and C. T. Freeman of Sherman, began plans today for the opening of testimony Thursday on the charges against State Land Commissioner J. T. Robison by the house of representatives.

After nearly a day's wrangle the house agreed yesterday afternoon to employment of Allen and Freeman as house attorneys and payment of $2400 to them instead of $3500 as first proposed. The delay until Thursday is to permit them to become familiar with the testimony taken at the hearing of a legislative committee of the regular session which investigated the land office.

The house attorneys won a first skirmish when it was ruled that testimony taken by that committee might be used at the hearing. The victory was modified later when Rep. Jack Keller of Dallas passed a resolution requiring that efforts must first be made to get the witnesses in person before using former testimony.

Dayton Moses of Fort Worth, counsel for Robison, led the fight against admittance of such testimony. He declared the house ought to see "the whites of the eyes" of the men who testified. During his statement, he revealed that Moses was an employee in the state land office when Robison was a legislator years ago. He had worked in the land office with Robison as a fellow clerk.

Attorney Allen of Dallas is a former member of the legislature. Judge Ed. R. Sinks of Giddings, a former district judge, who had been designated to pass upon admissibility of testimony, ruled against Moses. An appeal from his ruling was made by Rep. Polk Hornaday of Cameron county but Judge Sinks was sustained by a vote of 60 to 4. Hornaday pointed out that only four witnesses from outside Austin appeared before the former investigating committee and declared all could be brought before the house to testify anew. Hornaday opposed hearing "canned testimony."

Abrenberg's Flight Is Again Delayed

By Baldu Sveinsson United Press Special Correspondent REYKJAVIK, Iceland, June 11.—Continued reverses marked the attempt of the seaplane Sverige to continue today its trailmaking flight to America by way of Greenland.

The flyers made two unsuccessful take-offs today and each time returned to their base here. At 10:30 a. m. (6 a. m. Eastern Standard time) they were still ashore and

WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY

It appeared that the third attempt might be delayed several hours. The first attempt was made at 4:10 a. m., but the plane did not rise successfully with its load and returned from the outer harbor at 4:45 a. m. and 15 minutes later the flyers came ashore.

After working on the plane more than an hour, Captain Albin Ahlberg and his two companions made another take-off at 6:35 a. m. The plane sped out of the harbor and made a successful take-off at 7 a. m.

At 8:30 a. m., however, the plane returned again and the flyers came ashore to change the propeller.

The weather was good, with an easterly wind toward Greenland, and the visibility was excellent.

STORMS KILL FIVE PERSONS

Winds of almost cyclonic force, accompanied by a furious hail and rain, swept over a great area of Minnesota and Wisconsin Monday night, caused the death of at least five persons, the injury of more than a score and wrought hundreds of thousands of dollars damage to property.

In two regions, Central Minnesota, where five were killed, and in northern Wisconsin, the winds were whirled into tornadoes which wrecked scores of homes and other buildings.

Kingston and Cokata were the worst sufferers in Minnesota for in that region five persons were fatally and another was so badly crushed by a wrecked building that he was not expected to live.

An undetermined number of persons were injured in the Ashland and Ladysmith district of Wisconsin, which also was pounded by a tornado but no deaths were reported.

MAY REPEAL NEW MARRIAGE LAWS

AUSTIN, Tex., June 11.—Repeal of the new marriage license law which becomes effective June 13 is sought in a bill offered by Rep. Sam Gates of Karnes county. It makes marriage too expensive, he says. The law requires three days' notice of intention to wed and a physician's certificate of the man's fitness.

Gov. Moody vetoed five bills passed at the first called session. One was the prison relocation bill. The others were the Canadian river compact; a bill validating private action taken regardless of whether citation was by posted notice or publication; a bill transferring rock penitentiary land and the fifth the new Confederate pension bill. Directs found by Gov. Moody in the last three bills are cured in bills already placed before the present session.

Last night the time in which Gov. Moody might veto bills of the first called session expired.

State Crop Prospect Is Very Promising

AUSTIN, Tex., June 11.—Although some sections of the state have had from 15 to 20 days rain, with an aggregate fall of 15 inches, an optimistic crop outlook is announced today by H. H. Schutz, federal statistician.

Several farms were levelled about Cokata and Kingston and a large number of people were saved from injury and perhaps death when they hurried into the storm cellars at the approach of the storm.

The powerful winds, hail, rain and electrical demonstration were general.

At Douthett hailstones said to be as large as baseballs crushed down and damaged automobiles, windows and street lights. The masses of ice were reported to weigh as much as eight ounces.

First Photo of Lindy on Honeymoon Cruise

Col. Charles A. Lindbergh came under the camera's eye for the first time since his surprise wedding to Anne Morrow at Englewood, N. J., when his honeymoon launch Mouette docked at York Harbor, Me., to take on gasoline. At the top you see him, garbed in white duck trousers and open shirt, crouched on the deck of the boat as it came up to the dock. Pretty soon the trim little cruiser set out on the honeymoon cruise again, as pictured below, without anyone having glimpsed the bride who stayed in the seclusion of the cabin.

SUGGESTION IS SUBJECT OF ARTICLE

Dallas News Editorial Disagrees with Ranger C. of C. Head.

(Ranger Times) The suggestion advanced by the directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce that Governor Moody include some practical oil men in the Texas delegation to the oil conservation conference of President Hoover is thus commented on in the Dallas News, editorially.

The designation by Governor Moody of the chairman of the state railroad commission and two leading Texas lawyers as his representatives at the forthcoming oil conservation conference called by President Hoover has aroused in the directors of the Ranger Chamber of Commerce the apprehension that the state will not be sufficiently represented at Colorado Springs, either in numbers or in practical knowledge of the oil industry.

"W. D. Conway, president of the Ranger chamber, calls the governor's attention to the fact that the executives of New Mexico, Wyoming and Oklahoma have appointed from 12 to 25 delegates to attend President Hoover's meeting. If Mr. Conway is correctly informed, it would seem that the governors of these other states have misunderstood the president's intent and that Governor Moody has not. For it has been clear from the start that the conference was not intended to represent only the executive opinion of the leading oil-producing states. Invitations were extended to oil organizations of both the large companies and the independents, and their representatives will attend the meeting as spokesmen for the petroleum industry.

"Only the other day, the Midcontinent Oil & Gas association announced the appointment of its six delegates, including J. D. Collett, a Texan from Fort Worth. The Independent Oil association of Oklahoma is sending 10 representatives. The six delegates of the American Petroleum institute include another Texan, H. H. Baker of Houston. Three men, including the chief counsel of the organization, are to represent the Midcontinent Royalty Owners' association. Every petroleum organization of importance will have delegates at Colorado Springs at a conference that, if it is to obtain practical results, must represent a cross-section of American thought.

"In view of that fact, the burden upon Governor Moody was to name a Texan delegation qualified to view the problem from the angle of the political interest of the state. The inability of Chairman Gilmore of the railroad commission to attend will force one change in the original personnel of the delegation. But it would not be surprising or disappointing to see the choice made from the oil and gas division of the railroad commission.

"President Conway and his associates are commendably interested in seeing the Texas branch of the industry suitably represented at Colorado Springs. As, at least occasionally, the leading oil-producing state, and a leading experimenter in agreed restriction in the Winkler and Pecos fields, Texas has an important place at the council board. But that it will be well represented, not only in the governor's delegates, but also in those various branches of the industry itself, there seems to be no reasonable doubt."

Sargon Simply 'Rebuilt' Him

"The difference in my condition now, and what it was before I took Sargon, is simply amazing. After ten years of suffering it sure is great to be so well and strong again."

HARRY L. GIBSON

"I suffered so much from stomach and liver trouble that everything I ate disagreed with me, and the gas pains were awful. I had to take soda constantly for temporary relief from sour stomach and gas. I was told that my teeth were the cause of my trouble and had them all pulled out, but that failed to help me.

"My trouble was also diagnosed several times as acute gastritis. I tried dieting but nothing I did kept me from suffering. I had become entirely indifferent to food and my nerves had become badly affected. I tried all kinds of treatments and used dozens of medicines, but continued to go down hill.

"I had about given up when I read about the results other people were getting from Sargon. By the time I had taken three bottles, I was simply rebuilt. My appetite is now wonderful. I am entirely free from stomach troubles for the first time in ten years."

"I have my old time energy again and am able to go right ahead with my work. I am very grateful for the benefits I secured from Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills, and am very glad to recommend this wonderful treatment."

The above statement was made by Harry L. Gibson, well-known advertising man with offices at 203 Melba Bldg., Dallas. Sargon may be obtained in Eastland from Texas Drug Store; in Rising Star from Star Drug Co.; in Desdemona from City Drug Store; in Carbon from Dixie Drug Store; in Gorman from Corner Drug Store, and in Olden from Central Pharmacy.

Lois Downs, her nurse, was being tried, John Curtis Morgan entered his office with a gleam of triumph in his despair-hunted black eyes.

"Well, the defense rests, Nan," the lawyer announced to his secretary. "Want to hear all about it, or have you been reading the extras?"

"Why buy extras when my boss can tell me all about it himself?" Nan retorted as she followed him into his private office.

"Brainerd knew he was licked long before adjournment today, but he stubbornly refused to admit it," Morgan began eagerly, and the girl, whose big brown eyes searched his beloved face intently, knew that he was grateful for the chance to talk, that he dreaded to be alone. "He tore into our fingerprint expert savagely on cross-examination, but he couldn't budge Cornwall a hair's breadth. Cornwall made it plain enough for an imbecile to see that the fingerprints found on the bathroom cabinet and on the poison bottles had been superimposed upon prints made by the nurse's fingers, indicating that Mrs. Ward had handled them last."

"Good point," Nan nodded, her face glowing with interest. The man opposite her could not know that she was visualizing that day's dramatic scenes in the courtroom, where again the man she loved had played the hero's role, even though the heart in his breast was heavy with humiliation and despair. A man to be worshipfully proud of—this man she loved!

"I didn't call Dr. Holtzmann until after my fingerprint expert had testified, but I let him hear Cornwall's evidence. Fortunately, the doctor is a brilliant, fair-minded man. When I asked him if it would have been physically possible for Mrs. Ward to walk, he said that it would have been, if her desire had been keen enough. Her paralysis was due to a psychosis, or, possibly, was shammed, he admitted,

"Won't you help me dig up a good housekeeper that will take an intelligent interest in my boy? God knows I want to do the right thing by him."

while Brainerd positively clawed Parks?"

"Yes, Parks testified that he and Lois were engaged to be married, that she had complained to Downs' young man, Chester attention. His testimony will go far toward destroying the motive which Brainerd has tried to pin on the girl, especially as Ward himself has admitted that Lois did not return his love.

"Brainerd rested without calling any witnesses in rebuttal, but he'll make a stab at saving his face before the jury tomorrow in his summation. Naturally he'll contend that the old lady's fingerprints in the bathroom don't necessarily mean that she killed herself, even if she did toy with poison bottles, but the jury will be glad enough to believe that the unpleasant old lady committed suicide, rather than that a pretty young thing like Lois Downs committed murder. And so—that's that!"

just now. . . .

Nan laid an eager hand on his shoulder, shook him lightly. "Of course you can go—tomorrow night. I'll look after everything." Morgan shook his head at her and frowned, then grinned with wry humor, as he turned back to the telephone. "All right, Ben. I'll arrive at the capital tomorrow evening. . . . Oh, don't bother, Evelyn. A hotel will be all right for me. . . . Oh, all right, and thanks, Ben. My best to Evelyn and the future president of the United States."

When he hung up the receiver he turned to Nan ruefully. "The governor insists on my staying at the executive mansion, Ben and Evelyn Hogarth are both good scouts, and usually I'd enjoy a visit with them, but right now—" He paused, passed a hand wearily across his eyes, and Nan knew that his unfinished thought was that it would be most unbecomingly to find him, a man whose wife had left him because she did not love him, to go into a home that was nationally famous for its domestic felicity.

"But it IS awfully decent of them, and you'll enjoy it more than you think," Nan insisted with forced casualness. "Isn't it splendid that the governor's got around to the Brownlee case so soon? I'm sure you can make him see that this is one case where the granting of executive clemency is a high privilege, not merely an act of mercy."

Morgan's mouth twisted in the wry, humorous smile that she loved to call forth. "I think I'd better send you to the capital in my place. Poor Brownlee has always been your special pet, anyway."

"Thanks awfully," Nan grinned, "but it would be very inconvenient for me to get away right now."

"And so it is for me," Morgan remembered gloomily. "I had intended to spend most of this week, after the Downs case goes to the jury, in hunting for a boarding school for Curtis."

"Oh, Mr. Morgan you can't mean to shut him away in a boarding school! He's so little, so young! Why, he's just a baby—six years old! Do you think it's FAIR to—"

"Whoa, Nan!" Morgan interrupted. "I admit it's not fair to the boy, but I've been watching him rather more observantly than usual since—since Friday." He still could not bring himself to utter Iris's name. "He's a spoiled little devil. No nurse will stay more than a couple of weeks. Yesterday when I got home I found Clara the nurse that I—that we hired only 10 days ago, just waiting to get her money and walk out on the job, and I couldn't blame her. Curtis had flung a fork at her head and cut her cheek prettily badly—"

"Why?" Nan demanded. "I suppose you cross-examined her and put the defendant on the stand?"

"Morgan smiled at her vehemence but she saw that he was grateful for her implied championship of the child. "It seems that he insisted on having his dinner with his father, rather than in the nursery with his nurse."

"You see?" Nan triumphed, rather obscurely. "He SHOULD have dinner with his father. I'd fling forks, too! And he shouldn't have a nurse—a great big boy of six—"

"You were just saying that he's a baby," Morgan reminded her, smiling.

"Well, a baby as far as being sent away to school is concerned, and a big boy as far as having a nurse goes," Nan expalined impatiently. "He belongs in public school, along with other six-year-olds. Put him with a bunch of other young hoodlums and they'll knock selfishness out of him too quick to talk about."

"The primary grades only have half-day sessions," Morgan reminded her. "Someone would have to be responsible for him until I got home. Besides," and he sighed heavily, "there's the nuisance of keeping up a big house, just for a man and a child—"

"I think," Nan broke the silence hesitatingly, laying the words down gently so as not to anger him, "that Curtis has a right to a real home to grow up in. And since he's been—left—to you alone, it will have to be your job to make that home for him somehow. It won't be easy. But seeing him grow up, your companion and friend as well as your son, will pay you, I believe—Oh, can't you see the other side of the picture?—a poor, lonely little misfit, shuttling from boarding school to summer camp and back to school again, homeless, parentless, except for a father whom he sees two or three times a year and who is worse than a stranger, because he takes liberties and scolds?"

Morgan groaned. "Lay off, Nan! I'm not like Brainerd. I know when I'm licked. Will you help me a bit—dig up a good housekeeper that will take an intelligent interest in the boy? God knows I want to do the right thing by him."

Nan considered a moment, her capable, slim fingers twisting a lock of her short brown hair. "You'll be at the state capital several days, I imagine. Would you think it awfully cheeky of me if I suggested going out to your house and staying nights with Curtis while you're gone? I could get things in shape with the cook and the maid. I could also get Curtis started in school and have time to look about for a housekeeper."

Morgan interrupted. "Good Lord! Would I think it CHEEKY?"

Nan, I'd think it angelic of you, and you know it! Curtis will be tickled to death, too. You're the only human being that can do anything with him."

The next day the Lois Downs case went to the jury just before noon, and within five minutes a verdict of "Not guilty" was returned. John Curtis Morgan, with another sensational court victory to his credit, boarded a train at two o'clock to visit the governor of the state and at half-past five Nan Carroll walked up the steps of the home which Iris Morgan had abandoned. A small figure hurried out of the door and into her arms.

"Hello, Nana! I wanted to see you. Nana, Estelle's an awful liar. She says my mother ain't coming back. If she ain't, are you gonna stay, Nana?"

Liquor Valued at $100,000 Is Seized

GALVESTON, Tex., June 10.—Federal prohibition agents here today seized a launch laden with liquor valued at $100,000. Two men were arrested. A coast guard patrol towed the launch in to port.

A trio of youths, composed of the popular Joe King, of recent high school honors, Carl Foster and Jimmie Dawson, also handled the transparent and chilly stuff, and moreover, bring it into your icebox in the most gentlemanly and careful manner.

HANDING OUT A COLD DEAL

Four perfectly charming young men, who have always been known for their cordiality and friendliness, are now busily engaged in the daily occupation of handing out to friends and foes alike a hard cold deal, with not only the right, but the left as well.

In other words, Dr. Isbell's boys decided they wished to do something this summer, following a year of indoor work at the University of Arkansas, so Jim and Harris are on the job at 6 a. m. shooting the cool and glistening ice into the wagon, to shoot it out at the other end of the line, to the haughty or pleasant housewife as the case may be.

The Story of a Rug.

A man who lives not far from Eastland was approached the other day by a stranger. The stranger had a number of rugs for sale

They were orientals, he said. Through some mysterious method which he hinted about but didn't explain, he was able to get these rugs into the United States duty free. Hence, the phenomenally low prices.

It sounded "good". The rugs were attractive. The gentleman who lives not far from here was persuaded. He bought one of the rugs.

Until a few days ago he was happy in his purchase. Then he learned from a friend who knew very ordinary rug that would retail usually at from ten to twenty dollars less than he paid for it.

The moral is obvious. Buy your rugs through your Eastland merchants. If the rug you want is not carried in stock, any local dealer can get it for you or put you in touch with reliable houses who can be depended upon. Transient rug salesmen may be all right—but we don't know.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Some of the weight congresswomen appear to be skittish about, telling their ages and some do not.

Five of them have included the dates of their births in the new Congressional Directory and the other three omitted this vital statistic. The three are Mrs. Florence P. Kahn of California, Mrs. Pearl Peden Oldfield of Arkansas and Mrs. Ruth Pratt of New York.

A number of congressmen have also failed to include any clue to their ages, however, in submitting biographical material for the Directory.

Your correspondent has no especial business revealing any lady's age beyond suggesting consultation of the Directory, but the average age of congresswomen, taken from the five figures given is about 48. The oldest of the five is 54 and the youngest 44. The age average might be boosted by inclusion of the ages of the other ladies—and it might not.

Congresswomen's Children

Three congresswomen mention their children. Mrs. Pratt mentions six, of whom five are living, three daughters and two sons. Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen of Florida has two girls and two boys, and Mrs. Katherine Langley of Kentucky two girls and a boy. Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick of Illinois leaves her children unmentioned.

The two youngest of the congresswomen giving their ages are Mrs. Owen and Mrs. Langley.

Before getting into deep water by some such suggestion as who looks the youngest of the lot, your correspondent will pass on to tell something of some of the congressmen. Frequent inquiries among visitors are enough to convince any Washingtonian that a know who represents their district in Congress. One correspondent in the House press gallery boasted the other day that he knew a third of the members by sight, but he probably would have a hard time proving it. Nevertheless, since Speaker Nicholas Longworth is determined to make the House more important than the Senate, it may in time be necessary to get better acquainted with the congressmen.

Edward M. Beers of Pennsylvania is reputed to be dry. He used to be a judge.

Richard B. Wigglesworth of Milton, Mass., a new congressman, was a World War captain who later served as secretary to the Foreign Debt Commission, as assistant to the agent-general for reparations payments and as general counsel for organizations created under the Dawes plan.

Wall Dooey of Holly Springs, Miss., was a district attorney until his campaign for Congress last year. Jeff Busby of Houston, Miss., was prosecuting attorney of Chickasaw county and was elected to the 68th Congress.

Augustus McCloskey of San Antonio is president of the Texas Highway Club and was a county judge until his election to Congress last November. He defeated Harry M. Wurzbach, who used to be the only Republican congressman from Texas, by about 300 votes.

Tom Von Tallahassee, Fla., managed to get into Congress without first becoming a lawyer. He was a traveling salesman from 1906 to 1927, when he resigned to come here. That was the first time he ever ran for any office.

David A. Hogg of Fort Wayne, Ind., is another lawyer, who was first elected to the 69th Congress.

Andrew J. Hickey of the Porte, Ind., also practiced law. This is his sixth term.

CONTROLLING AND GAUGING WELLS THAT PRODUCE GAS

A study of a fundamental basis for controlling and gauging natural-gas wells is being conducted by the United States Bureau of Mines, department of commerce. Bureau of Mines engineers and others have endeavored to determine a fundamental method for gauging the capacity of gas wells to deliver gas under different pressure conditions. Their studies show that for accurate gauging two factors must be determined: The actual pressures at the face of the sand in the well (usually referred to as "at the sand"); and the relation between such pressures and the rates of flow of gas through the sand. In Serial 2929, the first of a series of reports on the subject, there is described a method of attacking the problem of determining the actual pressures at the sand by means of observations of pressures and volumes at the well head. The experimental observations on a gas well which are necessary to gauge its capacity to deliver gas under different pressure conditions are the "shut-in" pressure at the well head and the rate of delivery from the well at each of several different back pressures. However, before the fundamental relation for the flow of gas through sand of a particular well under test can be determined, it is necessary to compute from observations taken at the well head the actual absolute "shut-in" pressure in the sand and the absolute back pressure at the sand face in the well. In Serial 2930, the second paper issued in this series, it is stated that a gas well has a certain definite capacity to deliver gas from the sand through the producing string of pipe. This capacity depends upon the pressures in the sand; that is, a well will deliver gas at a rate of flow which is determined by the formation of "shut-in" pressure in the sand and the back pressure at the face of the sand in the well. The three factors, rate of flow, formation or "shut-in" pressure, and the back pressure, for a given well can be written into a fundamental relation which is strictly applicable only to that well. This relation can be used to determine the capacity of the well to deliver gas from any formation pressure against any back pressure held at the face of the sand in the well. Studies have been made of the deliveries of 400 gas wells operating under different conditions of pressure. Most of the wells which have been studied are in Osage County, Okla.; however, several representative studies have been

Prescription He Wrote in 1892 is the World's Most Popular Laxative

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients. The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin. Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breath, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will always have a bottle handy for emergencies. It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and their children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles.

T-P PAVED HIGHWAY LOOMS UP

Four Miles Already Assured—Survey Will Be Made.

RANGER, Texas, June 10.—The paving of a highway across southern Palo Pinto county paralleling the Texas & Pacific railway is a proposal that is making progress.

Contract was let last week for a paved road from Strawn through Mingus to Thurber, declared Editor Garner of the Strawn Tribune, who was in Ranger Monday. The road will be six and a half miles in length and is to be completed in 125 working days. It will give Strawn a paved road toward Stephenville as far as the Erath county line.

The proposed highway from Strawn to Millsap—paralleling the T. & P.—will need to be paved only from Mingus to Millsap as the Strawn to Thurber highway will give pavement—as stated above—from Strawn to Mingus.

Credit is given by Mr. Garner to County Commissioner Bob Loflin for the paved highway from Strawn to Thurber via Mingus. This is made possible from precinct funds aided by the State highway department.

The State department has also arranged for a survey of the proposed highway to Millsap, Garner said.

TOKYO COPS GUARD MORALS OF THE PUBLIC

TOKYO, June 8.—That the gentle burglar is able with comparative immunity to carry on his nefarious pursuit at the expense of the citizens of Tokio is not surprising when one considers the many absorbing interests which occupy the minds of the police of the capital.

In almost every issue of the local foreign newspaper there are references to the activities of the police in their role of guardians of morals and thoughts.

Dance halls, where modern youths and maidens disport themselves, cause the police a tremendous amount of worry. They are sure that dancing, in the so-called western style, is immoral, and besides the framing of innumerable regulations, exhaustive statistics are compiled where they work out to five or more points of decimals the minutest details as the girls employed as dancing partners and their masculine guests.

Cafes, too, of which so many have sprung up in recent years, call for the same supervision, regulations and statistics.

Just now a questionnaire is being issued to 10,000 cinema halls, with the object of determining the influence on the minds of young people and juveniles exerted by the movies.

Officials are required to state the number of minors who attend the cinema halls and the report as to the probable impression which these young people gather from the films shown.

A great amount of time is spent by the police in chasing "danger-

BRUSHING UP SPORTS . . . By Laufer

LIKE the forbidden juice of the grape, the blood of a true sportsman improves with age. The storied competition of the world of athletics is full of such examples—ball players who go on, year after year; Sir Thomas Lipton, who never gives up; fighters who stay in there battling after Time has closed the book on them; race horses who go on gamely and well after the limit of their years has passed.

Now, in 1929, a man named Bob Gardner, still young, is riding with the crack polo team of the Onwentsia Club of Chicago.

Back in 1912 Bob Gardner of Yale set a new collegiate polo vault record of 13 feet 1 inch. In 1926 Bob Gardner, one of America's foremost golfers, went to England with Outmet, Evans and others to try to wrest from John Bull the dearest thing John Bull ever had—the golf championship.

Throughout his career, Gardner has carried the name of being one of the gamest and cleanest of sportsmen. For him it always has been the thrill of the thing that counted—the joy of overcoming handicaps that seemed unbeatable, the dizzy height of the bar above or the long stretch of far-way punctuated with peril—and now, the sensation of driving the polo pill cleanly and straight from a pony going at full gallop.

Thousands who have watched Gardner play the game in other fields will keep an eye on him now as he bobs up in one of the most spectacular of modern sports.

CADDO CELEBRATES BAPTIST CHURCH FOUNDING THERE

Caddo Baptist Church Hears Sermon By Its Founder — Friends for 50 Years Meet at Big "Homecoming" Sunday.

Sunday was a great occasion at Caddo, the historic town about 20 miles northeast of Eastland. The first Baptist Church held a home coming, all the other churches joining in the occasion, and old-timers came from points as distant as the lower Rio Grande Valley and Midland. It was an all-day meeting with dinner on the ground.

The Rev. Mr. McDonald, who organized the Baptist Church at Caddo 35 years ago, preached at the morning hour. He was pastor there for 23 years.

Brother McDonald is past 80 years of age. Four charter members of the church were present. Many of those in attendance had lived in that section for 50 years or longer. Old time songs were sung and the afternoon was spent in addresses by pioneers. H. O. Wilkinson, assistant cashier of the Commercial State bank of Ranger, accompanied by Mrs. Wilkinson and their daughter, attended. The parents and the young lady played in the orchestra. Former Senator Sebastian was present. Many friends, gray and stooped, who had not seen each other for 20 years, met again. There were smiles, back-slapping, hand-shaking and tears of happiness. It was an occasion that will always be remembered by the hundreds present.
