

HOOVER'S MEASURES ARE OPPOSED IN CONGRESS

Merchants' Musical Review At Connellee Tonight

Hot Steps of Politics
by Col. Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald

Sky Isn't the limit
The wise ones say that the will not be the limit in Texas, say that the lawmakers will have a chance to put over what is as the blue sky or security bill modeled after the Pennsylvania act. Blue Sky Commissioner Martin of the department of commerce drafted it. His bill would be the principle of the security bill and all security dealers and as well as those who sell securities.

Why the Amendment?
A local correspondent is responsible for the following concerning the civil service act: "When it comes before the house an amendment will be offered by Justice of Corsicana to exempt from the civil service pension all state employees who were in the service in April 1, 1929, and requiring all such employees to be scheduled to and controlled by all other provisions of the act." If an employee who entered the service before 1929 is unable to take the acid test just why should he or she be expected to continue on the payroll of the state?

What Happened to DeGroot?
William A. DeGroot was the federal attorney for the eastern New York district. He had refused to resign. He was removed from office by order of the president of the United States. Reason of removal? "For the good of the cause." He had been given a hint to get out three times by three attorneys general. He didn't take the hint and then he was kicked out.

Hurrying with unusual parliamentary speed, Mr. Hoover's forces got the new tariff bill out of the Ways and Means committee to the floor of the House by a strictly partisan vote of 15 to 9, the 15 being administration Republicans and the nine being opposition Democrats. The opposition announced through Rep. Cordell Hull, Dem., Tennessee, that it would not be content with voting against the bill, but would file a minority report attacking many of its features.

C. D. Neff Makes Charges Against Department Head

AUSTIN, Tex., May 9.—Charges against Secretary of State's department and the attorney general's department made in communications received by members of the legislature from C. D. Neff of Dallas led to offering a resolution in the House this morning proposing that the speaker issue a subpoena for Neff to appear before the House or its committee on State affairs.

Both were referred to the House committee on State affairs. Alleged purchase of an oil painting by an operator seeking favor was one of the things charged in Neff's letters.

Purl said his purpose in asking that Neff be subpoenaed was to "call his bluff." Rep. A. P. C. Petch of Fredericksburg suggested a charge of criminal libel against Neff. Purl said such a charge could not be maintained.

Purl denounced the letters as an attack on a Southern woman and said that Secretary of State Jane Y. McCallum had asked that the resolution summoning Neff be introduced.

The letters read in connection with the resolution were mainly in regard to matters investigated at the regular session. In addition Neff said libelous and untrue statements were made about him in a circular issued in behalf of the proposed new "blue sky" law.

Members differed whether summoning Neff would signify the charges or whether failure to do so would be followed by the charge that the legislators were afraid to investigate.

Miss Mable Wood is Elected as City Secretary. (Ranger Times) Everybody was re-appointed. Serious faces suddenly beamed with smiles as various department chiefs and their staffs were re-named by the city commission of Ranger Tuesday night at the beginning of the new term.

No shake-ups occurred. In fact for most of the various posts there no applications with the exception of the formal application of the officials who were up for re-appointment.

Police Chief Jim Ingram was re-appointed and, after a conference between the chief and L. R. Pearson, fire and police commissioner, they recommended a list of police officers consisting of the present force. This recommendation was adopted. It was indicated that, after the summer vacations are over, as a move of re-appointment it may be necessary to reduce the force by one man.

Live Wolves Are Seen in Ranger, Yessir, 10 of 'Em

(Ranger Times) Ten wolves were brought to the Ranger Times office this afternoon. The animals were alive. However the newspaper force did not scurry toward the back door in alarm as the wolves were pups.

J. R. Coughlan and R. C. Sawyer captured them north-west of Ranger. The little animals were underground and the hunters dug them out. The mother wolf was not captured.

Chief Ingram's force consists of Officers Vire, Hammett, Patterson and Ricker. George A. Murphy, chief of the fire department, was re-appointed. The appointees recommended by Commissioner Pearson and Chief Murphy were approved by the commission. The force consists of the men who are now members—Ernest Brumlow, Bonds Martin, Charles Ishell and Boyd Mangrum.

Miss Mable Wood, who has been the acting city secretary for some time, was elected as city secretary. On down the list the commissioners went, naming W. A. Flint as city engineer, W. C. Blackmond as engineer of the water plant, Dr. W. C. Palmer as city health officer, Pearl Cox as superintendent of water lines, Wade Swift as sanitary officer, Mrs. Ratliff as superintendent of Evergreen cemetery and E. C. White, sewer inspector.

Inauguration Occurs The meeting was called to order by Mayor John Thurman. Minutes of the preceding meeting were read and adopted. Miss Wood was then elected city secretary. The new secretary administered the oath of office to Mayor Thurman and Commissioners L. R. Pearson, Raymond Teal, Hall Walker and J. C. Smith, all of whom were recently re-elected.

Then came the matter of appointments. The members of the police, fire, water and street departments had tendered their resignations effective at the end of the old term—at the suggestion of the city commission—and then had made formal application for reappointment. They were there to learn their fate and while they were optimistic—still, you know how it is, a fellow never can tell—and so there was just a trace of nervousness here and there it seemed to the newspaperman, almost the only one present who was not an applicant for appointment.

The meeting was harmonious and good-natured. The matter of allowing the amount authorized by law to the men who held the city election was taken up and one commissioner said, "In view of the fact that we were re-elected I move that we pay it" and there was a general laugh.

Then when the appointment of the fire chief came up Mayor Thurman announced there were three applications. The popular and genial fire chief was wearing a poker face at this announcement. When Commissioner Pearson asked who the applicants were, the mayor said that Chief Murphy was the only one. The broad smile that covered Murphy's face was worth walking a mile to see.

Man Said to Be Wanted Elsewhere (Ranger Times) The man brought back to Ranger from Fort Worth by Police Chief Ingram to face a charge of swindling has been turned over to the county authorities, the chief stated. The man is alleged to have left a trail of bad checks in various cities and several places have asked for him when the charge in this county is disposed of, said the police chief.

Mother and Daughter Meet After 19 Years FORT WORTH, Tex., May 9.—Nineteen years were spanned Wednesday afternoon when Miss Beatrice Beasley, Sherman nurse, and her mother, Mrs. O. C. Taylor, Dallas, saw each other for the first time since 1910.

They met in front of the Tarrant county courthouse. The meeting was arranged by County Clerk Hollis to whom Miss Beasley had written, asking his help in finding relatives from whom she had been separated since she was 4 years old.

Beatrice King, 5, was one of six children placed in the Tarrant County Orphan Home in 1910, after her parents had separated. Her four sisters and a brother were adopted out, but she remained because of sickness. Later she was adopted by Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Beasley of Whitewright.

PLANNING FOR THE C. M. T. C.

Young Men May Spend 30 Days in Outdoor Life. (Ranger Times) A vacation at the government's expense can be obtained by boys and young men between the ages of 17 and 24 at the citizens military training camps.

Capt. Wayne C. Hickey has received a supply of application blanks and anyone interested should call at the chamber of commerce office.

Those enrolling will receive free their transportation from Ranger to Fort Sam Houston, San Antonio, uniform, meals, quarters and laundry. The training course lasts 30 days, June 14 to July 13. Athletics, physical training, drills and target practice are engaged in for six days of the week.

Where a man has had previous military experience, the age limit is higher, the limit being up to 31 years.

Other citizens military training camps will be held as follows: Camp S. D. Little, Arizona, Aug. 1-30; Fort Logan, Colo., June 20-July 19; Fort Sill, Okla., July 5-Aug. 3; Fort Bliss, Texas, July 25-Aug. 23. Anyone preferring to attend one of these camps may do so by paying the difference in transportation cost between the camp of their choice from Ranger as compared to the fare from Ranger to Fort Sam Houston. This difference will be only a few dollars.

Ranger, in other summers, has sent large numbers of young men to the training camps and it is expected that a representation of considerable size will attend this year.

JOHNNY MARTIN RE-INDICTED By United Press. GALVESTON, Tex., May 9.—Johnny Martin, re-indicted Wednesday after an old bill against him had been quashed on a technicality, will go to trial in the June term of court for robbery of the Texas City First National bank.

GASOLINE TAX DURING YEAR IS $305,000,000

Texas Ranks Fifth in Amount Paid in "Gas" Tax.

Gasoline taxes amounting to $305,233,842 were collected on the sale of 10,178,344,771 gallons of motor fuel in 1928 in the States in which the tax was effective during the whole or a part of the year, according to figures compiled by the Bureau of Public Roads, United States Department of Agriculture.

The figures include tax collected and the gasoline consumed in Illinois during the month of January only, owing to the fact that the law, providing for the State's 2-cent tax was held invalid on February 24, 1928.

Massachusetts and New York were the only states without a gasoline tax in 1928. These two have since passed laws providing, in Massachusetts for a 2-cent tax effective January 1, 1928, and in New York for a 2-cent tax effective May 1. As the Illinois legislature has passed a new law which provides for the collection of a 3-cent tax effective August 1, that date will mark the final adoption of the tax by all States ten years after its adoption by Oregon and Colorado, the pioneer States.

Changes in the rate of taxation were effected in four States during the year. The New Hampshire tax was increased from 3 cents to 4 cents a gallon on the first day of the year. Virginia added a half-cent on March 19, 1928, making the new rate 5 cents a gallon. The Texas rate was reduced on September 1 from 3 to 2 cents a gallon; and Mississippi raised its rate from 4 cents to 5 cents a gallon on December 1 last.

The average rate per gallon in 1928 was 3 cents; the highest was 5 cents and the lowest was 2 cents. At the close of the year the rate in effect was 5 cents in seven States, 4 cents in eleven States, 3 1/2 cents one State, 3 cents in 14 States, and 2 cents in 12 States and the District of Columbia.

Each Car Pays $15 Comparison of the total number of vehicles registered with the total tax collected in the States in which the tax was effective through the year shows an average revenue of $15.09 per vehicle.

After deduction of the cost of collection the entire net revenue was used for rural road purposes in 35 States. In the remaining 13 States and the District of Columbia a total of $18,491,754 was devoted to other purposes. In three States a portion of the collections was used for public school purposes. The January collections in Illinois were held at the disposal of the court. In five States a portion of the revenue went to cities for the construction and repair of streets, as did the entire collection in the District of Columbia. In two States small sums were deposited in the general funds of the State; in Mississippi special taxes in addition to those collected at the regular rate were used for the construction of a road-protecting sea wall; in New Hampshire a fourth of the net collection was used for the repair of flood damage; and in one State—New Jersey—a small portion of the receipts was turned over to the State Department of Commerce and Navigation.

Of the portion of the total revenue devoted to rural road purposes, the amount used for construction and maintenance of State highways was $211,046,591 for construction and maintenance of local roads the amount was $57,380,901; and the balance of $17,619,995 was used for payments on State and county road bonds.

Detailed table shows that Texas motorists paid $17,945,037 on 681,135,373 gallons of gasoline.

Posing as Officer Man Arrests Many

FREDERICKSBURG, Tex., May 9.—Suspicious of the way a one-man cleanup campaign was being carried out, city authorities here held an impostor who came in guise of a United States marshal.

Promising to end all crime in short order, the "marshal," said to be William J. Kubala, a soldier on furlough from Fort Sam Houston, brandished his gun before traffic violators and collected fines on the spot.

Within a few hours after his cleanup had begun, he rested behind bars with charges against him of robbery with firearms, falsely impersonating a United States marshal, carrying firearms unlawfully, and false imprisonment.

On last Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, the county agents came down. We had our regular business meeting and then decided to enter in a contest in which two captains are elected and then choose a name. The name of the contest is Blue. ## Always Safe

When your Children Cry for It

For relief and comfort for fretful, feverish babies or that you don't need to command them to take, give the delicious taste of little's Castoria. Your doctor says you it's absolutely safe, can give it as freely and as often as needed to keep your child happy and well. A few drops will take to quiet fretful, colicky babies; relieve constipation, gas on stomach, indigestion, etc.; soothe them to a jiffy. For like disorders in children, you simply use a larger dose of the same reliable little's Castoria. Don't buy cheap, "brown-folk" medicines, with no children, specialists say, per cent of them recommend little's Castoria. It's the only one that's safe for every child. It's the only one that's safe for every child. It's the only one that's safe for every child.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

MILDRED LAWRENCE falls in love with STEPHEN ARMITAGE who is lured away from her by PAMELA JUDSON when she tells him that Mildred is trying to marry her brother, HAROLD, for his money. Harold fears HUCK CONNOR because he has a check which he forged. Huck is infatuated with Pamela, who plays him to make Stephen jealous. When Pamela maneuvers Stephen into an engagement, Huck frames him for the theft of an auto and causes his arrest. Pamela breaks their engagement, but Mildred goes to see him in jail and promises help.

Harold had once confessed his fear of Huck to Mildred and said that he threatened to get Armitage to keep him from marrying Pamela. She determines to force Harold to help her and is shocked to hear of his death—apparently accidental. She tells Stephen her suspicions but they have no proof and things seem hopeless.

In desperation, Mildred goes to Pamela and tells her story. Pamela sends her to MR. JUDSON who takes her to headquarters to repeat her suspicions about Huck. He puts up bail for Stephen and leaves Pamela to go to see him and ask forgiveness. A lawyer and detective come for Stephen and the taxi they leave in is followed NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXVIII
In her desire not to remain a moment longer than necessary in a "horrid" cell in an "unspeakable" jail, as she mentally described the place where Stephen was "detained"—her own word—Pamela quite neglected to give him even the most sketchy details of her father's efforts in his behalf.

She was well aware when she went to him that he would be at liberty, under bond, that afternoon. Her father had telephoned her from the bond bureau just before she left the hotel that all was going well, thinking she would convey the news to Stephen.

Stephen understood, from her remark about expecting to be at the hotel to greet him, that steps were being taken to release him that day, but he made no preparations for his departure.

He scarcely realized that he was showing a lack of trust in Pamela. His attitude was a natural one in view of her treatment of him. It did not even occur to Stephen to analyze it.
It was some little time before he had proof that she had not been lightly making promises. Mr. Judson's lawyer, Arthur V. Oerndorf, had important business on hand which he could not drop at the moment his client appealed to him to conduct Stephen in safety to the Judson Hotel.

But he got around to it as quickly as he could and when he arrived at the jail he was, at Mr. Judson's earnest request, accompanied by a detective in plain clothes.
Stephen was bewildered by this latest turn of events. How, he had asked himself over and over, had Pamela been able to induce her father to have him released? "It is Mr. Judson's wish that you go directly to his hotel," Oerndorf told him as they made their way out to a waiting taxicab.

Stephen nodded, thinking that he was soon to have the mystery of Mr. Judson's act cleared up.
"Mr. Armitage, Mr. Freen," the lawyer pronounced tersely, introducing Stephen and the plain-clothes man who had remained in the taxicab while Oerndorf had gone inside to wind up the final bits of red tape that opened the door to freedom for Stephen.
Stephen climbed in, and the other two men saw to it that he sat on the left side.

It was a lovely day, clear blue sky and sparkling sunshine. Stephen had been too quickly hustled into the cab to pause on the sidewalk and savor the liberty as he'd been moved to do.
But he glanced through the windows with the expression of a man seeing a new world, a world that pleased him much.

A hurdy-gurdy on the street corner sent out notes of sweet music and the two newspapers that littered the sidewalk were but evidence to Stephen of a life that was not hemmed in by three small walls and a row of bars.

Bars! He'd hate the shadow of one as long as he lived. But it took bars, mortar and steel and locks and keys to make a man appreciate his liberty, he told himself.
So far as he knew the shadow of bars still hung over him. But for that, he would have married Pamela until he proved his innocence.
Something of the glory of the day faded, but Stephen was too confused to know whether it was because he knew himself to be still under a cloud or whether it was because he saw an impediment to his marriage with the girl whose love had overcome her pride and doubt at last.

At least Stephen believed it was like that with Pamela. He believed her reason for coming to him was the one she had given—that she loved him. He was not plunged into any great, sudden, admiration for her nobility, but he did believe that she was being honest. And she had secured his freedom. He must not forget that.

The taxicab rolled away from the curb and these thoughts traveled through Stephen's brain with more speed than clarity. He was overloaded with impressions.
One of them was that a tenseness endured with his companions in spite of Oerndorf's brief comments, made to relieve the awkwardness.

Stephen did not feel like talking. His thoughts and his opportunity to renew his acquaintance with the world were enough for him.
Freen sat in silence, with only now and then a mumble syllable uttered in response to something Oerndorf had said.

"I've directed the driver to go up First avenue," Oerndorf explained, and looked at Freen, who showed some surprise when they proceeded to cross Fifth avenue, eastward bound. "The traffic is too heavy on Fifth; I haven't the time for it," the lawyer added.
"H'm," was all Freen said, but something in the way the spoke caused Stephen to look at him in surprise. Who was the fellow, anyway, he wondered?

Oerndorf had not seen fit to enlighten him.
As the car edged forward into a cross-town traffic jam between two parked trucks Stephen saw Freen lean over and glance into the driver's mirror, saw him draw back quickly and sit tensely erect in his seat.

His action made Stephen nervous. Why the deuce was going on? Oerndorf may have sensed his uneasiness. At any rate he put a question that Stephen himself would have liked to ask.
"Is there anyone trailing us?" the lawyer inquired in a low voice.
Freen nodded. "Believe so."
"Are you sure of this man?" Oerndorf asked, indicating the driver of the taxicab with a slight motion of his hand.

"He's O. K.," Freen replied, not troubling to lower his voice as Oerndorf had done. "One of our men."
Oerndorf's expression showed belief not unmingled with concern. He had not relished this assignment but, being a junior partner in the firm of prominent attorneys that represented Mr. Judson in legal matters, he had not been in a position to refuse to undertake it.

And Mr. Judson had most explicitly insisted that he accompany Stephen to the hotel. Oerndorf had been inclined to consider such guardianship unnecessary and the idea of having a detective along had seemed a crankish idea in view of the fact that Mr. Judson, compelled to telephone in his orders, had not been in a position to relate the full facts in the case to the lawyer.

But he had not failed to warn Oerndorf that Stephen was the victim of relentless criminals; that his life might reasonably be considered in danger.
"Keep a sharp lookout," the lawyer said to Freen, who considered it an unnecessary admonishment since he "knew what he was there for," as he said to himself.
Oerndorf turned to Stephen. "Are you aware that the men behind us, if they are following, are undoubtedly your enemies?" he asked.

Stephen whistled. "Mr. Judson informed us that you are in danger," he explained as Stephen added nothing to the whistle.
Suddenly Stephen clenched his fists. "Let's get them," he exclaimed hotly. "Anyone of Huck Connor's men might lead us to him!"
"Who is Huck Connor?" Oerndorf asked.

Stephen glanced at him sharply. "I thought you knew," he said, sobbing.
"I only know that Mr. Judson warned us your life might be in danger."
Stephen had nothing more to say about Huck. He did not know but he wanted to get Huck if there was a chance. He and Mildred knew the man was guilty. To prove it was the only way Stephen saw to clear himself of the framed-up charge that still stood against him.

He turned to Freen. "Who's in that car?" he asked. "Did you see?"
"A bird I once ran in," Freen answered, "and the driver."

"Know anybody by the name of Lefty Flint or a fellow who owns a place out on Long Island called J. B.'s Place?"
Freen granted a negative answer.
Stephen was disappointed. He'd hoped Huck had sent the men he knew to get him.
"If we could nab that guy we might learn something of importance to Mr. Judson," he said to Oerndorf.
"We had no orders to arrest anyone," the lawyer returned, disinclined to act in the dark at Stephen's instigation. "Besides, if they mean trouble it would come before we could bring about their arrest."
Stephen was silenced. After all it was chiefly for his own sake that he wanted to get his hands on one of Huck's men.

"You want to be prepared for trouble," the detective said after they had crossed another north and south thoroughfare and the car behind them was still following. "Those birds aren't taking son or even that Mr. Judson suspected his son had been killed."
He believed he'd better have a talk with Mr. Judson before saying anything even so Oerndorf.
That Mildred had gone to Mr. Judson's interest in the scenery.

Oerndorf stiffened at the words and Stephen felt a prickling along his spine. The detective's voice was cool and matter of fact, but his listeners knew that he was not talking just to exercise his vocal cords.
Stephen saw him draw a gun and rest it in his lap. He started to look around.
Freen held him back with an elbow. "We don't want to wise 'em," he said and Stephen settled back in his seat.

Freen leaned forward and spoke to the driver. "Keep to the right, Bill," he said. "We're talked. Don't get in their way." Then he turned back to Stephen and Oerndorf.
"They'll probably pull their stuff on First avenue," he said grimly. "Be ready when you see they've got a chance for a getaway."

men reached first, three errors and one on a walk. Two men got to second and one to third. In the ninth, with two men on base through errors, Hubbell counted Lloyd Waner and counted for the last two putouts. The victory failed to advance the Giants and they remained in sixth place in the National loop.

The Chicago Cubs converted seven hits into four runs and moved into first place by whipping Brooklyn, 4 to 2, at Brooklyn. Guy Bush pitched for the Cubs and allowed only seven blows, besting McSweeney in a round duel. Brooklyn errors handicapped the Robin hurler.

The St. Louis Cardinals booted the Boston Braves out of the league leadership with a 10 to 2 victory at St. hub. The Cards knocked Leverett and Wertz off the Boston mound before a man was out in the first inning and clinched the verdict with eight runs in that frame.

Philadelphia won its third straight, defeating Cincinnati 3 to 2, at Philadelphia. League opposed Collins of the Phils and each allowed only seven hits. Ford hit home run for the Reds.

The New York Yankees clung to their narrow lead in the American league by laying down a twelve hit game at St. Louis to win 8 to 1.

Lou Gehrig contributed his seventh home run of the season. Waite Hoyt held the Browns to five hits.

Philadelphia continued the chase by defeating the Chicago White Sox 5 to 4 at Chicago. The Sox outbit the A's 12 to 10, but were unable to bunch the blows as effectively.

Detroit won its 12th victory of the season—the greatest total in their major league—by edging out the Washington Senators, 5 to 4. They remain in fourth place in the American league, however.

The Boston Red Sox neared the lead, bowing to Cleveland 3 to 1 in the western city. The Sox club is only a half game ahead of Washington, in last place.

Philadelphia did a right about face yesterday and won their first game in five starts when Earl Caldwell returned his sixth consecutive victory of the season.

Fort Worth lost, 5 to 3. Blackberry, the Waco right fielder, got two home runs and a single in four times at bat.

Dallas' winning streak of four straight games was brought to an abrupt end when Houston knocked the ball to all corners of the lot in three innings to win 18 to 2. Bert Grimm, rookie pitcher, and "Oyster" Joe Martina, then association cast-off of the beating for Dallas.

Shreveport players Hank Hanson, Beaumont's Bert Hanson, Beaumont won 9 to 0. Murphy, Beaumont won 9 to 0. and Mayo, Beaumont won 9 to 0. Blanchard, Beaumont first baseman, and Hanson from Kelle, Ira, Beaumont game.

PLAN FOR A PAVED SHORT CUT

(Ranger Times)
Impetus has been given to the project of building a road across Palo Pinto county paralleling the Texas & Pacific railroad that would reduce the distance between Ranger and Fort Worth by approximately 12 miles.

Wayne C. Hickey of Ranger who attended the recent meeting at Gordon with reference to the paved highway from Strawn to Mingus, Gordon, Santo and Millsap, said that citizens of those towns stated that a county bond issue for highways is proposed in Palo Pinto county and that they will seek to have allotted for the paving of this highway an amount that will be sufficient, with state aid, to carry out the project. It is hoped that the state highway department would match the amount that the county would allot.

Other representatives from Eastland county at the conference were County Judge Clyde L. Garrett, C. H. Colvin of Eastland and J. E. T. Peters of Cisco.

JUNIOR MUSIC CLUBS ENTERTAIN WITH SEATED TEA
 One of the delightful events of Music Week was the entertainment by the Junior Music clubs tendered the Eastland Music club and the mothers of the club members at Community Club House Wednesday afternoon. Many lovely flowers adorned the assembly room and the entering guests were served a delicious fruit punch by Maxine Jordan, president of the Seale Runners club, and Mrs. E. B. Baldwin, club director. Roses massed about the punch bowl made the table very attractive. Guests were received at the entrance by Mrs. T. J. Pitts, president of Music club; Mrs. Joseph M. Hunter of West Ward; Miss Eda Lindley, president Loraine Taylor, president of McDowell junior club, assisting throughout afternoon, was Mrs. Grady Pipkin, Music Week chairman for recitals.
 About 75 guests attended. All were well pleased with the charming music of the program, which was given as published in Eastland Telegram of Sunday. The young musicians were very attractive in their light costumes, against the background of a screen of larkspur and fuchsia of roses. At close of program, Mrs. Perkins announced the Merchants Musical revue, vaudeville, at the Connellee theatre tonight, and the succeeding events for Music Week.

MRS. POE AND MRS. LAWRENCE HOSTESSES TWO CHARMING AFFAIRS
 Mrs. W. S. Poe and Mrs. Milton Lawrence entertained their friends with two beautifully appointed bridge luncheons on Tuesday and Wednesday, having several tables arranged for bridge following the delicious luncheon of four courses. Each table was centered with a crystal vase filled with LaFrance roses, nestled in the gay place cards, cut-out, of messenger carrying a huge bouquet of blooms, the base, in rose color, in theme with the flowers. An unusual bowl of LaFrance roses centered the dining mahogany, and a round mound of American Beauty roses adorned the buffet. Each dressing room was fragrant with flowers, in harmony with furnishings, in lavender spikes of larkspur, and in garden roses.

WEEKLY SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By H. W. WRYE.

 Golden Text—"We must obey God rather than men." Acts 5:29.

upon the people, instead of contending earnestly for a "thus saith the Lord." Men should give heed to Jesus Christ and the apostles. If they do not, Jesus said "He that believeth not, shall be damned."

death penalty. Urijah had warned the people by prophecy, and Jehoiakim slew him with the sword. Certain elders of the people at this time thought that killing prophets was a bad business. An elder whose name was Ahikam was outstanding in defense of Jeremiah, and his contentions prevailed with the princes and he was permitted to live.

Practical Observation
 The faithful preacher will preach the whole truth without addition or subtraction. Those who will not be subject to the commands of God, but instead will teach the commandments and doctrines of men, make themselves subject to the curse of God. Just as certain as God is the author of all good, the devil is author of all evil. He works in the children of disobedience and they oppose the children of God. Jeremiah was opposed by kings, princes, false prophets, priests and people, even members of his own family (Jer. 1:17-18). We are to enter the eternal kingdom of heaven way of the cross, through tribulation.

Jeremiah's Reply
 (Jer. 26:12-15)
 The text shows that the prophet reaffirmed his predictions, and instead of defending himself, he pleaded with his accusers to repent of their sins. He had the welfare of the people at heart ignoring his own danger in considering the danger threatening the nation. He assured the people that the Lord would overlook their sins if they would turn from evil. Killing prophets was no new thing with those ecclesiastics. Micah prophesied against Israel and paid the
