Hundreds Of Visitors Flock To County Fair

EXHIBITS OF ALL KINDS ARE BEING SHOWN

Variety and Value of County's Products Astonish Visitors. Displays Very Large.

Hundreds of visitors continued to come into Eastland today for the second day of the Eastland County Free Fair. Flags were flying, music playing, clouds disappearing and the sun shining brightly, all contributing to a perfect day.

The exhibits by farmers and communities throughout Eastland county attracted most of the visitors today. They were studied and discussed by interested callers, many of whom did not realize that such fine products could originate in Eastland county. The exhibits are being shown in the windows of Eastland merchants, chiefly on the square.

The baseball game this afternoon between the Eastland nine and the Humble-Blake team was expected to attract a large crowd. The play contest will be the interesting feature for tonight.

With choice selections of rain, fruit, farm and dairy products on display, the community exhibits entered in the Eastland County Free Fair, which opened a three-day session yesterday morning, are attracting attention of the many visitors from the rural district and surrounding towns.

The exhibits, which are located in the various show windows of business houses on the public square, are far superior to those entered in the fair last year.

Much attention has been given to decoration of the windows and the arrangement of the products which are on display.

So great is the variety of products on exhibit, that separate displays for certain divisions were made necessary.

Probably never before in the history of fairs in this county, has such an individual display of farm products been made. Each community exhibit brought here after being selected from the community fairs held this month contains every variety of garden, farm, poultry, and dairy product, showing the spreading of the idea of diversification.

One of the most attractive exhibits of the many entered, is that of the home demonstration department, in the large show window of T. L. Fagg's, showing products of the canning department. Vegetables and fruits predominate in the display, and each jar is attractively arranged, with the element of shabbiness, sometimes found in canning, noticeably absent.

Sewing and Culinary
The Fancy Sewing display, located at Pressler's, contains handwork of women who live in different portions of the county and has been attracting attention since the fair opened. It contains the different products of the needle, varying from handkerchiefs to quilts.

The culinary exhibit located in the Palace of Sweets show window, also has caused much comment.

The exhibit contains food of all descriptions and variety—cakes, pies, bread, home cured bacon, and other edible products.

Another window of the Palace of Sweets has on display dairy products and livestock products, including butter, lard and soap. All of the community exhibits are complete artistically in each crop placed artistically in the array. All varieties of fruit, grain, garden products, and special preparations of blended fruit can be found in each of the community displays.

Golfers Coming From Breckenridge To Play Sunday

Golfers of the Eastland Country Club will entertain golfers from Breckenridge in a Scotch foursome next Sunday afternoon at three o'clock on the links in Eastland. Members wishing to play are asked to call 336 sometime on Saturday and make reservations.

SINGERS GET GREAT WELCOME IN EASTLAND

Choruses So Closely Grouped That Judges Find It Difficult To Make Awards.

The Chorus Singing Contest in Eastland Thursday night brought many splendid singers to the city. The judges had difficulty in determining the winners, so closely were the contestants grouped. Awards were announced as follows:

Mangum and Colony tied for first place.
Flatwood and Cheney tied for second place.
Scranton and Rising Star tied for third place.

The features arranged for the evening entertainment of visitors to the Eastland County Free Fair, are receiving unqualified approval, judging by the crowded house that greeted the singing contest program, which was held in the Christian church, last night. The music club of Eastland sent a double quartet, which included some of the best voices in the city. Their two numbers were exquisitely presented directed by Mrs. A. J. Campbell, the clubs, choral director, and with Mrs. Charles G. Norton, the club's official accompanist, at the piano. The Music Club presented the first, or hostess number, a curtain raiser for the actual contest which followed.

Judge Rust received many congratulations over his success in his management of this feature of the fair entertainment.

The director-chairman for the play contest, Miss Mary Sue Rumph, has received notices, to date, that the following towns will send the ensuing talent, with accompanying director, to take part in the play or dramatic contest, which will be held on the east side of square, or in the City Hall, according to weather conditions, beginning 7:30 o'clock to night:

Colony—B. B. Standfield, director.
Scranton—B. B. Brummett, director.
Flatwood—Miss Ruth Connery, director.
Carron—Vrsell Self, director.
Cheney—Linn Gentry, director.
Rising Star and Alameda have not furnished the names of the directors.

Plays, known to date, that will be presented, are in tabloid form, confined to 15 minutes in time, and may be given by any number of people, few or many, include:

"Handy Andy."
"The Unseen."
"Within a Railroad Station."
"Educating Many."
"The Landlord's Trouble."
"On Vengeance Heights."

Judges will be: Mrs. Elma Kent Allen of Ranger; Mrs. Paul M. Wood of Cisco; Mrs. John Demmer of Ranger.

This entertainment is free—open to the public. The entertainment will be unique and promises enjoyment.

Hurricane Loss Near $33,874,000
WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Sept. 28.—The danger of epidemic in hurricane relief camps is believed by Red Cross officials to have passed. No illness of serious nature has been reported here and the health of the 16,000 homeless living along the coast for the most part, is considered excellent.

A. L. Schaefer, Red Cross relief director, estimated the toll of death at 2,000 and damage from the hurricane at $33,874,000. The number of homes damaged was placed at 11,389; those destroyed at 3,584, business houses seriously damaged 1,447, and those destroyed 553.

Eastland High Pep Squad Will Sell Tags On Saturday

A Pep Squad has been organized at the high school, with a large membership, Miss Bell Wilson and Mr. Mason of the faculty, being promoters of it.

This is the big thing, not only for the school, but certainly for the town also, which the pep squad will advertise on a great many occasions, on jaunts to neighboring cities.

An enrollment has been secured of seventy-two girls and forty-two boys, alive and alert youngsters, eager to be up and doing, and of just about the nicest personnel of any pep squad that has ever flourished in our town.

Uniforms, of course, they must have them, and so they are selling tags today and will sell tags all day tomorrow.

The squad will buy their own caps, belts and hose, and the boys will also pay for their caps which differ from the girls, as well as other parts of their uniforms.

In addition to what will be raised by tag day contributions, the boys and girls in the pep squad are contributing $2.25 each for the purchase of supplies. Each member of the pep squad has been assessed for that amount.

The returns from the tag day will be used to defray the expense of the material for dresses for the girls, and to purchase garments for the boys.

Railway Extension In East Texas Is Recommended
WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—A favorable recommendation on the application of the Cape Belt railroad to construct 35 miles of an extension between Lane City and a connection with the Gulf, Colorado & Santa Fe railroad was submitted to the Interstate Commerce commission today by Examiner H. C. Davis.

HOW THE BANDS PLAYED TO WIN THEIR AWARDS

Four Companies of Musicians Rank Close Together. Patting Feet Criticized.

Bands competing in the contest Thursday morning in Eastland were awarded points which gave Olden a total of 91, Ranger a total of 89 1-2 and Cisco a total of 88, but because the music played by Cisco band was so much more difficult than any other music in the contest, and the compositions played by the Ranger band the least difficult, an additional percentage was given to Cisco which brought the average to 89 1-4.

It is noteworthy that the bands of Eastland, Cisco and Ranger were criticized by the judges for patting feet, each player being closely watched to see if this (Continued on Page 2)

Three Bombings In Chicago Occur Within 12 Hours

CHICAGO, Sept. 28.—Three bombings have been reported to police within 12 hours, bringing to 64 the total number of bombings in Chicago this year.

Two buildings under construction were wrecked within an interval of five minutes, shortly before midnight. The owner of one of the structures, in answer to police inquiries, said he was employing union labor and did not believe the bombing was brought about by labor troubles.

The owner of the other building said he recently had disputes with the cement workers' union. Earlier yesterday an ice cream factory and a small laundry were damaged by bombs.

ALLEN GOES ON WITNESS STAND IN OWN BEHALF

Defendant Swears Was Not In Carbon Day of Bank Robbery. Tells Story of Life.

Taking the witness stand Thursday night, E. V. Allen, on trial in the eighty-eighth district court for robbery with firearms, denied that he was a companion of Scotty F. Hyden in robbing the First State Bank of Carbon, December thirteenth, last year. He swore he had never been in Carbon and had not been with Hyden when the Carbon bank was robbed.

The defendant said his name is Evander V. Allen, that he was born in Louisiana 28 years ago, and went to Oklahoma with his parents when he was about eight years old. They went to Sand Springs. He left home when about 12 years old, his father having died a year before. He and his older brother quarreled, so he left home. He worked several years for one farmer or another, and then for a year drove a car for the superintendent of the Old Soldiers' Home at Ardmore. Afterwards he worked for several oil and drilling companies.

Allen said he first met Scotty Hyden at Seminole on December 9, 1927, going with him to Desdemona. He knew him as Scotty Ray until he heard him called Hyden at Desdemona. They arrived there Friday, December ninth in a Chevrolet four-door sedan which Hyden furnished. Spent Friday night at the Ewell home. Met Wilburn again Sunday night at home of Edgar Garrett, both taking supper there. He helped Mrs. Garrett cook the supper and also played the Victrola. There almost no conversation with Wilburn and certainly said nothing to him about robbing a bank. Left Desdemona with Hyden Sunday night, driving to Ranger, where Hyden introduced him to White Walker, and they drove with him to Fort Worth, where he left them. Monday he caught a train for Oklahoma City. Said he stayed in Oklahoma City all the week. He had come with Hyden to Texas on the assurance that almost no work to be had. Was told differently in Desdemona, so returned to Oklahoma. He saw Hyden on a train near Oklahoma City the following Saturday. He knew nothing of the Carbon bank robbery, he said, except what he read in the newspapers, and took no part in it.

Salvation Army To Have Tag Day Here On Saturday

Salvation Army workers will be on the streets of Eastland all day Saturday selling tags with which to aid the failing treasury of the local Salvation Army work. There are some debts that must be paid, debts owed by the Salvation Army in connection with its work here, and the people will be asked to aid in doing this. The Salvation Army lassies will sell buttons to all friends of the Salvation Army and its work and liberal contributions are hoped for.

Rev. W. F. Kerby To Preach Sunday Next In Eastland

Rev. Dr. W. F. Kirby, D. D., of Arlington, Texas, will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning and evening at the regular hours.

Dr. Kirby is one of the well known men of the Presbyterian church, having been pastor and evangelist for more than 30 years in the state. He had the distinction of being elected Moderator of the Texas Synod at a meeting in Dallas two years ago, and has held other places of honor and distinction in his church during these years of his service. He has just closed a successful pastorate at Bonham.

Dr. Kirby is considered a strong preacher, and it is earnestly hoped that the entire membership of the church and Sunday school will be present. A cordial invitation is extended to all friends of the church and to visitors to come and hear him.

All members and friends of the Sunday School are urged to be present at nine-forty-five and bring a member. There is a class for all. Dr. Kirby will be with the men's class, at the request of Mr. McCullough, its teacher.

TULIA.—New gymnasium plant completed on modern school plant here raises value of building to $160,000.

Smuggler Killed By Border Patrol

WESLASC0, Texas, Sept. 28.—Three smugglers on horseback engaged in a gun battle with two border patrol officers near here last night and one unidentified smuggler was slain.

The battle started when the order "to halt" was answered by a volley of bullets from smugglers. The other two smugglers escaped.

FOUR KILLED WHEN ARGUMENT BECOMES WARM

DALLAS, Sept. 28.—Three negro men and a negro woman were shot to death on a farm near Rowlett in Dallas county early today as the result of an argument over a game of "monte." Dewitt McKinney, 39, negro, surrendered to county authorities in connection with the shooting. He used a single barreled shotgun.

The dead negroes are: C. B. Adams, Walter Hart, "Crip" Fayette and an unidentified negro woman.

McKinney said one of the negroes approached him with a pistol during the argument. "I picked up the shotgun and started shooting," the negro said. "I don't know how many I shot, but I killed everybody around. I sure hated to do for old Crip. He was a good negro but he got in the way. He must have lost his life."

The negroes were employed as cotton pickers. McKinney went to a neighboring farmer and asked that authorities be notified.

Police Probing Northcott's Acts That Look Shady

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 28.—Other grungy evidence in connection with the Northcott murder investigation in the form of a hangman's noose and additional spots of blood has been found in the Los Angeles house occupied by Gordon Steward Northcott and his parents.

Inquiry into the case involving alleged murders of at least four small boys turned to Long Beach today when authorities were informed that a rooming house keeper had rented a room to two boys whom she declared were Northcott and Walter Collins, one of his alleged victims. She identified photographs police announced as those of the two last who had visited her rooming house.

Sheriffs Conclude Annual Convention

AUSTIN, Sept. 28.—Sheriff T. A. Binford of Houston was unanimously elected president of the Texas State Sheriff's Association here this morning during the 50th annual convention. Binford will succeed President Albert Hauffer of Eagle Pass.

San Antonio was chosen as the meeting place for the 51st convention. El Paso was a close contender to San Antonio.

Anton Diaz, deputy sheriff of Bexar county, asked that the convention be held in San Antonio in memory of Sheriff Stephens who died since the last meeting. Sheriff Stephens withdrew his application for the convention two years ago in order that the 50th meeting might be held in Austin, where it was founded.

LAW BREAKERS PAY WELL FOR PROTECTION

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 28.—Inquiries into a charge that disorderly houses were paying tribute to the police force in return for protection occupied the center of the stage today in the city's investigation of alleged police corruption here.

Three Negro Men and Negro Woman Shot To Death On Farm In Dallas County. One Arrest.

DALLAS, Sept. 28.—Three negro men and a negro woman were shot to death on a farm near Rowlett in Dallas county early today as the result of an argument over a game of "monte." Dewitt McKinney, 39, negro, surrendered to county authorities in connection with the shooting. He used a single barreled shotgun.

POE'S HORNED TOAD PROVES VERY SPEEDY

Wins Race Today, With Connelly's Frog In Second Place, Both Being Fast.

"Laughing Gas," bright-eyed racing horned toad from the brooder of Dr. W. S. Poe, won the horned frog race on courthouse square today. Time ten seconds flat.

"Phosphate" belonging to G. C. Connelly, took second money, crossing the line in 11-3/4 seconds.

About 30 horned toads were in the race. Each entry paid 25 cents and the winner took 70 per cent and second 30 per cent of the money.

Bob Hammett's "Speed Away," diminutive frog that won the race Thursday in 26 1-2 seconds, was entered today but was not in running mood. He sulked in his corner. Tiff Harrell's frog, "Hunger," second in Thursday's races, ran fairly well today and might have won had he not made a slow start.

Political Debate Between Parsons Gets Very Heated

CAMDEN, Tenn., Sept. 28.—A heated debate between two ministers on Governor Al Smith resulted in a near riot here late yesterday. Sheriff A. N. Pafford and six deputies were required to disperse the crowd.

The reverend Charles Taylor, Christian pastor of McMinnville, Smith champion and the Rev. John Clark, anti-Smith, were the debating orators. Clark started the argument when he mounted a box on the sidewalk. He began with a scripture reading, later turning to the Knights of Columbus oath. Taylor, who came up during the speech challenged a statement of Clark as false and also mounted the box.

The debate followed. They instantly became the center of a grumbling and cheering crowd. Many of the listeners were shedding their coats for a fight when the sheriff and deputies arrived.

AIR PATROLS.

Predictions that one day the sky will bristle with aerial signal towers, with red and blue lights flashing across the skies, and cops in "pursuit planes" chasing offenders may be a little nearer to reality than we thought.

An air traffic patrol has been established over Connecticut beaches. The state commissioner of aviation has established an aerial police beat over the region to "pinch" foolhardy pilots who perform stunts and fly low over the amusement places, often frightening the people below.

KING GEORGE'S HAT.

A picture of King George V of England has just come to us which shows the king in rather unusual garb. He is wearing the flat hat of a British sailor since the picture was snapped when the king was aboard his yacht, the Britannia, during the annual Cowes regatta.

It only reminds us that even kings are not exempt from the in-quire and sometimes seemingly in- demands of fashion. One kind of hat for this and another kind for that, this kind of shoes now and that kind of shoes then. Such and such a collar for mornings and such and such pants for evening. Life does get complex at times!

MILLION DOLLAR EXPLORATIONS.

The expedition to the south pole headed by Commander Richard E. Byrd, will cost a million dollars, perhaps more, but that should neither surprise nor shock us. The expedition has a good chance of returning to the civilized world with facts worth far more than a million dollars to science. Even if it brings back not one fact and misses the pole entirely, the expedition will have solved problems of supply, morale and communication worth the cost of the adventure.

Facts of importance about the manner and means radio uses in its jump around the world are among the probable results of Byrd's brave dash. Weather is another matter close to the hearts of all of us, and for weather facts the nations of the world spend millions annually. Byrd and his men are expected to bring back data on weather which will be of nestimable value. Meteorologists are eager to know more about the polar storms that exert an influence on a large part of the world's climate.

Ned chapters in the earth's history also will be sought by Byrd's geologists. The movement of the continents is one of geology's most engaging problems today. Are the present masses of land constant or have they drifted here and there? If Commander Byrd can find enough land free of ice to scrape up some rocks and fossils, geology can read in their scarred sides an interesting story of earth development. Besides, there is the chance that the rocks may give up valuable minerals.

Never has a polar expedition been organized with so many things to find out and this is the most carefully planned dash toward the world's southern extremity ever conceived. Even the amount of sunlight has been measured and artificial ultra-violet rays will be soaked into members of the expedition as they need it.

There is no need to ask the "why" of the Byrd expedition.

GALVESTON.—Estimated million and quarter bushels of wheat and other grains will be shipped out of port during the month.

ALLEN GOES ON WITNESS STAND IN OWN BEHALF

(Continued from Page 1.) was told so. Had been charged with no other felonies in the last ten years. Did not know if the federal charge was still pending against him.

Uses Assumed Name. Allen said he and Hyden had driven from Seminole, Okla., in Hyden's car, stopping a short time in Denison. They had spent one night in Fort Worth, where he registered at the Terminal Hotel as W. T. Harris. Did not know where Hyden stayed. He used a false name because he had a companion who had accompanied them from Seminole. She left him in Fort Worth and he and Hyden came to Desdemona.

Very close questioning about what happened in Desdemona brought out that Hyden had left Allen for several hours Friday night after arriving in Desdemona, and the next morning had a different car from that in which they had arrived. He asked no questions about it and did not know where Hyden got it. Said he asked Ewell for work and was told it was scarce. Went with several others to Thurber on Sunday and got back Sunday evening, going to Garrett's home, where several of them had supper. He testified that Welburn was drunk Friday night. Sunday night Hyden drove him to Ranger, where they picked up Whitely Walker and drove to Fort Worth, where he stayed a few hours with a friend, Clyde Wallace, Monday at noon he got up and went out to eat, met several persons he had known but could not recall their names, and left Monday afternoon for Oklahoma City, arriving there Tuesday morning. At 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, Dec. 13, Allen testified he was at the office of Judge James H. Mathis, in Oklahoma City, father and law partner of James C. Mathis, who is in Eastland at this time assisting in the defense.

Says Lacks Honey. Asked why he had brought no witnesses or depositions to prove his alibi, Allen said he had no money with which to do either. He testified to spending Tuesday night at the home of old friends, Mr. and Mrs. Scrib in Oklahoma City, and the two following nights at hotels. He testified to meeting an old friend, Mrs. Lillian Tucker in Oklahoma City, and to having received letters from her since being in jail in Eastland in which she had promised to aid him, but so far she had failed to do so. He did not know her present address. He said he was arrested Christmas eve and placed in jail, and later the jailer had given him the keys and turned him out. He was at a party in the home of his attorney, James C. Mathis, then living in Marietta, Okla., Monday after Christmas. Judge Stubblefield carried the witness over much of the same ground time and again, seeking to pick up every flaw in the testimony, and occasionally had the witness thinking hard, but he was unable to get any material change in testimony. Allen insisted that he had no money to bring witnesses to prove his alibi, and he appeared doubtful of the nature of a deposition, which he said he had never tried to obtain. Finally the state tired of questioning him and the defense closed.

Rumph Testifies. Dr. F. C. Rumph, president of the First State Bank of Carbon, was the last witness of the state. He told of the hold-up, substantiating the testimony of other witnesses, but was unable to identify Allen as being in the bank with Hyden. He said the taller man had stayed outside the railing, near the door, and he had not seen him clearly.

BLUDWORTH STAYS WITH ARAE CORPORATION

J. E. Bludworth has resigned an associate instructorship in Southwestern University to remain with the chemical research department of the Arab Gasoline Corporation. He has just returned from Fort Worth where he spent ten days doing work at the government helium plant.

THE JURY WAS OBTAINED THURSDAY MORNING

The jury was obtained Thursday morning and taking of testimony began at one o'clock. Witnesses testified to the bank robbery, as in the Hyden trial last Tuesday, and other witnesses identified Allen as a man seen with Hyden in Desdemona a few days previous to the Carbon bank robbery. The testimony was much the same as in the Hyden trial, following which the jury found Hyden guilty and sentenced him to 99 years in the penitentiary and he accepted sentence, but Allen was not positively identified as one of the bank robbers.

Defense Counters. Most important, perhaps, in the Allen defense, was an effort being made to discredit the testimony of A. D. Wilburn, engineer at a gasoline plant near Desdemona, who testified that Allen had told him in the presence of Hyde a day or two before the robbery, that "they" were there to rob a bank and wanted a place to go afterwards and would pay for it.

Wilburn testified further that Allen told him he did not mind telling a man his business, for if it was told on him he would find that man and kill him. He said the conversation occurred at the home of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Edgar Garrett, in Desdemona, and during a period of about twenty minutes or so that he was at that house the Sunday evening before the bank robbery.

By cross examination of witnesses Edgar Garrett and Mrs. Edgar Garrett, the defense sought to discredit the witness, Wilburn, trying to make it appear he was drunk a night or two before at the home of Ed Ewell's and had frightened the women by flourishing a pistol. The witnesses said that Wilburn might have had a drink, but denied positively that he was drunk.

The defense, cross examining Mrs. Edgar Garrett, wanted to know if she had not told Ranger Captain Hamer, while visiting her brother-in-law, in South Texas, about Hyden and Allen being at Desdemona, and which eventually led to their arrest. The defense asked Mrs. Garrett if she had not agreed to give certain information in return for the dismissal of a charge against her brother-in-law, but she positively denied this.

White Plans To Resume Speeches

By United Press. NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—William Allen White, Kansas author and editor, will return to the political battlefield "within 24 hours" he announced today on his return from a two months European trip. He admitted having received $500 for a speech to the National Electric Light Association convention at Atlantic City, N. J., before he sailed.

Eat Everything without Fear of Indigestion

Are there lots of foods you can't eat—for fear of gas, bloating, pains in the stomach and bowels? Do you have to pass up favorite dishes—while the rest enjoy them? That's a sign you need Tanlac! For more than 10 years Tanlac has restored to vigorous health thousands who denied themselves their favorite foods just as you have to.

Mrs. Albert B. Greer, 720 W. Markham St., Little Rock, Ark., says: "Since taking two bottles of Tanlac, I can eat anything without indigestion and put in a full day's work without a bit of trouble."

If you suffer from indigestion, gas, dizziness, headaches, constipation or torpid liver—give Tanlac a chance to help you! The first bottle often brings the needed relief. Tanlac is a good, pure medicine, made of roots, barks, and herbs that are recognized by the United States Pharmacopoeia. Get it from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

"I'll have to read my mail first," he said, "but in 24 hours I'll be back in the battle again."

Two Negroes Go To Electric Chair

HUNTSVILLE, Texas, Sept. 28.—Two negro murderers were executed in the electric chair at State prison here shortly after midnight. With J. R. Silver, they were to have been electrocuted last week, but were granted a respite. Yesterday Governor Moody granted another reprieve of a month, but took no action in the negroes' cases. O. T. Alexander of Houston was convicted of killing his wife. He had to be helped on his walk to the chair and made no statement. At 12:20 a. m. the prison physician pronounced him dead. Tom Ross was convicted of killing Dave Patterson, logging camp paymaster in Nacogdoches county. He denied his guilt to the end. He was officially pronounced dead at 12:39 a. m. Night Warden H. J. Howard was in charge of the executions.

BY ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, lovely and notorious, believes herself the most miserable of girls. John Lawrence her youthful lover, missing in action. Tad, her adored brother, engaged to Valerie West, a frivolous creature. And now her beloved father desperately ill and breaking her heart.

But Sybil has a devoted admirer—Craig Newhall, most eligible bachelor in Boston. Craig persuades her one sunny afternoon to leave her father and drive with him through the country.

For months Sybil and Craig have had a sort of affair. "Just because a girl likes to pet with a man it's no sign she loves him," affirms Sybil. And though she has permitted Craig's caresses and understood his infatuation she is genuinely surprised when he asks her to marry him.

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER V

"Oh, Craig, Craig. Angel Simpson!" Sybil grasped his coat-lapels in both hands and, pulling him to her, kissed him and pushed him away again. "Blessed and adorable fool!"

"I'd be awfully good to you," he promised, and taking her hand, raised it to his lips to make a bracelet of kisses for her wrist.

Craig did that. Sometimes it was necklaces and sometimes it was bracelets. Whenever it was a necklace, there was a very particular kiss to nestle in the little hollow of her throat.

Ceremonial kisses, like strands of sacred stones. Cool and chaste as pearls.

Sybil took her hand away. "Kiss me on the lips," she said.

And when he had, she sighed happily, and leaned against his shoulder.

Sybil thrilled appreciatively. "But there's my past!" she protested. "They say I'm a bit wild, Craigie. Fickle and hard as nails. . ."

"Darling," she told him, "I shouldn't have let you now I don't know quite what I was going to say. Don't touch me again until I've finished. Your technique is not conducive to reasoning. And getting married, Craig, is sort of serious. Now listen—in the first place, I'd make a wretched wife. No domestic accomplishments—no social graces."

"Now you listen" Craig put his hand over her mouth to make her listen. "I don't want a cook, or a professional hostess, or anything like that. If I did, I'd go to an employment agency. I want a girl to love and pet and make a fuss over. Budgets and hashes and things aren't my idea of marriage. I'm not paging a little woman to run a vacuum and shake a wicked mop."

"I want a mistress 'all wonder and a wild desire' A girl with crimson lips to kiss, and skin that's soft and sweet to touch. That's why I'm asking you, Sweetheart."

Sybil thrilled appreciatively. "But there's my past," she protested. "They say I'm a bit wild, Craigie. Fickle and hard as nails, and a notorious petter."

"Well, I'm no white-haired boy myself," he admitted, and smiled at her absurdities.

"But, Craigie, you're a catch! Just try proposing to any other girl in town. My dear, you'd be surprised! They'd simply jump at you. And here you are—throwing yourself away on me! Craig—it's—it's—preposterous!" And, fumbling for a handkerchief, she wiped her eyes. "Darn wind," she said, "makes my eyes water."

"Oh, well, it's nothing to cry about," Craig patted her hand lamely. "Gee, you're a funny kid, Sybil. Anybody'd think, to hear you talk, Galahad had just proposed to Mary Magdalene. Think it over, dearest. I don't want to rush you into anything. But when Tad gets married, you're going to be very lonely. And you'll need someone to cling to."

"You don't mean that, Craig," she corrected him, "not about Tad, I mean. It's daddy you're afraid, when he dies, I'll go crazy again. Like when John died. And you're just wonderful enough to want to save me all you can. Grief and loneliness and everything."

"I suppose you're afraid I'll take to cocktails and affairs and get myself talked about some more. You think I'll try to forget, running round with every Tom, Dick and Harry. You think. . ."

"I think," he told her, "that you're a luxurious little barbarian—that's what I think. I think you need someone to look after you. And I'm begging for the job. Oh, Sybil, you adorable child, with your hardboiled ways! Come, and let me baby you, and keep you from all that hard and cold and hurtful."

She leaned against him gratefully.

"I feel like the girls in the comic sheets, Craig. This is so sudden."

"You darling!" he cried, and moved to take her in his arms.

"Just a minute. Just a minute." With both hands she waved him away. "Sit still like a good little boy. The lady of your heart must ponder."

"But you're so deliberate!" he protested.

And over his shoulder, as he drew away, she saw another figure. Pathetically boyish. With the sun on his hair, and the light of love in his eyes. A phantom in khaki. And she saw his mouth grow hurt, as she gazed. And his outstretched arms drop to his sides. . . could she break faith with the dead?

She thought of her father, as she had left him an hour ago. And he seemed to her more pitious even than John, who had died in his youth with his heart full of love and dreams.

It must be dreadfully hard to grow old, and die. Particularly when you knew that death was only around the corner, lurking—waiting—ready to spring, and to choke. John had been pined all that. He never knew. Oh, the blessedness of never knowing!

Six months ago her father was so strong and happy. Robustly alive, florid and laughing; and his little light mustache bristled and looked full of life.

Six months had made a frightening change. His eyes—they used to be bright and China blue. They were dull now and swimming in tears so they made her think, with a lump in her throat, of blue bells under water. His face was drawn and wan. Pain had left its mark and the horror of death. His mustache had grown white and looked limp and dejected. Sometimes he knawed savagely on its ends.

She remembered what he had said that afternoon.

"I want to see you happily married."

It was the first time he had ever said it, but, before today, she had read the desire in his eyes. Sometimes when they talked of Tad's marriage; sometimes when she told him the wedding plans of other girls; when children came to visit them or when they talked together of little houses and gardens.

"Daddy'd be so happy," she reflected, and a warm, lovely feeling filled her heart. How his dear eyes would brighten! But there was John—John—John. His name beat like a drum in her ears. So that she put her hands to her temples, to keep him away. Poor little boy. It was so long, long ago. A sort of dream—the way he had loved her, and the way they had talked and planned. How he loved her! "But he wouldn't if he were alive today," she told herself. "He cared so fearfully then because I was young and good, and he was young and good, too. There isn't that kind of love when a girl gets to be 23 and knows life. Love at 19 is a beautiful illusion."

Sometimes Sybil felt as if she had died with John Lawrence and been reincarnated within herself, and, having died, had gone on living. So that there had been two Sybil Thornes—and one was dead. Perhaps the girl John loved wandered with him in Elysian fields—or slept by his side in a soldier's grave. And this girl Craig wanted to marry—she was not really the girl John Lawrence loved. Then what if she did marry Craig? And bore him children? John Lawrence wouldn't care. What do the dead want with bodies? "Crimson lips to kiss and skin to touch."

Shivering, she turned to Craig. "You know about my sweetheart," she told him. "John Lawrence, who was killed in the war. There has never been anybody else but John—not really. I love John, Craig—love him still."

She put her hand on her heart. "I mean it's here I love him. And that's silly and sentimental most likely. It's a state of mind I suppose—that sort of love. It's not like—like passion. Maybe it's not so healthy. But there it is."

"I love you too, Craig. And—"

and of course there's my body, Craig. Whatever's happened to my soul, there's still that. Sometimes I think bodies don't count very much. But probably they do—Could you be satisfied, Craig, with a girl who—whose love was—was—sort of divided?"

Helplessly she paused. It was hard getting it into words. And Craig caught her hands that fluttered so futilely, and kissed her tear-drenched eyes.

"I should never," he murmured, "be jealous of a dead man."

"Then," she said, "I will marry you."

"Oh, my God!" he cried and took her in his arms and smothered her with his caresses. "When, Sybil? When?"

"Whenever you choose," she told him.

And she smiled very sweetly upon him because she was thinking of her father. But of course Craig did not know that. He only knew she looked transfixed.

"Now take me home," she commanded. "I want to tell daddy."

It was dark when they reached the house. One of those soft, moist darknesses of early Spring. Piercing the dampness—throwing strange, blurred radiance—a row of cars stood at the curb, their dimmed lights glowing sepulchral.

Sybil pointed a shaking finger. "Dr. Parker!" she whispered. "Daddy's doctor. And those other cars, and the house all lighted up. . . Daddy's dead, Craig."

She clutched his shoulder in a spasms of agonized horror. Her face grew white and frozen.

The door opened and a great arc of yellow light spread from the hall over the lawn.

Solemn men, filing solemnly down the steps to their cars. A big man and a little man, carrying black bags. . .

Just Two More Hollywood Suits

Divorce suits on file in Los Angeles have scarred two more Hollywood romances. Renee Adoree, above, star of "The Big Parade" alleged her husband, William S. Gil, compelled her to drive home late at night and expressed the hope that she break her neck. Doris May, inset, charged cruelty, saying that her husband, Donald Macdonald, in private nagged her and, in public, "raved about her beauty and their love." Miss Adoree, it is said, later planned to withdraw her suit.

BREAKFAST—Orange juice, ready-to-serve cereal, cream, rice omelet, crisp toast, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Corn and tomatoes on toast, bran rolls, apple sauce, ginger cookies, milk, (see recipe).

DINNER—Chicken en casserole, escarole and cucumber salad, squash custards, milk, coffee.

Potatoes, carrots, butter beans, onions and mushrooms are included in the casserole of chicken. This makes an excellent nourishing dish for school children as well as grown-ups.

Keep in mind that cookies made with molasses are better for children than "sugar" cookies.

Rice Omelet

One cup cooked rice, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 3 tablespoons butter, 4 eggs.

Heat milk and add cooked rice, 2 tablespoons butter, salt and pepper. Beat well and add the well beaten yolks of eggs. Fold in whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Melt remaining tablespoon of butter in a hot iron spider or omelet pan. Turn pan until thoroughly coated with butter and make sizzling hot. Pour in rice and egg mixture and let cook on top of the stove for two minutes to brown the bottom. Then cook in a hot oven until well puffed and firm to the touch. Fold and turn out on a hot platter. Serve with tomato sauce or white sauce.

Package Loan Library Bureau At University of Texas, Gives Library Extension Service To the Citizens

AUSTIN, Texas.—Texas has comparatively few libraries, and the Package Loan Library Bureau in the Division of Extension at the University of Texas provides to Texas' school children and club women practically the only means of securing up-to-date material on current topics, as well as on subjects of general wide-spread interest, according to Miss Mary Lula Barrett, who is acting chief of the Bureau in the absence of Miss LeNoir Dimmitt, on leave of absence for the current year.

"The loan library offers to the citizens of the State a library extension service which can not be excelled," Miss Barrett pointed out. "By means of its package libraries, it furnishes the people with material on almost every subject. A 'package library' is a collection of material relating to some particular subject, such as child labor, farm sanitation, some motion picture actor, perhaps Rudolph Valentino or Charlie Chaplin, summer camps, primitive art, city parks, military aeronautics, Tammany Hall, Edgar A. Guest, or fathers as a moral problem.

In School Work.

"There are many ways in which package libraries are used to advantage in school work. The history teacher finds them of value in presenting late historical events that have not yet been printed in text books. The English teacher uses them in composition work, as there are many interesting subjects on our lists which when assigned for themes give the student information on important topics while giving the necessary drill in composition. Teachers of geography, civics and other subjects borrow material on topics discussed in their classes. Latin teachers find a wealth of material to help in making their subject interesting. Libraries have been made up on many educational topics which teachers find helpful in keeping in touch with the latest ideas in regard to their profession and in preparing papers or institutes. Material is also borrowed to aid in planning school entertainments."

The Package Loan Library Bureau was established in 1914, and during the 1914-16 biennium it sent out 3,871 package libraries. The biennial report compiled by Miss Dimmitt for the past two years shows, according to Miss Barrett, a total of 39,265 packages sent to school officials, club women, parent-teacher associations, civic clubs and other organizations and individuals. These packages contained 3,539 books, 2,016 plays, 16,195 declamations, 4,930 club study programs and 450,000 pamphlets and clippings.

Many Towns Served.

More than one thousand three hundred towns in Texas were served by the loan library during the past two years, Miss Barrett said. Packages were sent to 249 counties, she added, only five counties in the entire State not having been served in any way.

The records of the past two years are better than those of the 1924-26 biennium in every respect, Miss Barrett declared. During the former period only a trifle more than 36,500 packages were sent out, 1,142 towns were served and only 243 counties were represented on the mailing list of the Bureau.

Among the most popular subjects with the Package Loan Library Bureau patrons are those relating to biographical sketches, works of American poetry, American and English poetry, school entertainments, Texas art and

BOLTERS FROM PARTY TICKET OF DEMOCRATS

Names of Prominent Hoover-Democrats As Announced By Republican Headquarters.

By RODNEY DUTCHER

WASHINGTON.—The contry is full of "Hoover Democrats" and "Smith Republicans."

This story presents the list of bolting Democrats. It is interesting to note that neither list includes any public office holder, but that each presents distinctly different types. Many of the bolting Democrats named have held federal or state offices in the past, or have held purely political posts or have run unsuccessfully for office. There are a number of Anti-Saloon League figures and former McAdoo enthusiasts. The Republican bolters, it will be later observed, include only one or two former office holders. But here's the list of Democratic bolters:

Henry Breckenridge, assistant secretary of war under Wilson.

Carl Vrooman, assistant secretary of agriculture under Wilson.

J. C. Penney, head of the chain store syndicate.

George W. Lane of Chicago, brother of Franklin K. Lane.

Judge William R. Pattangall, former candidate for governor of Maine.

Mrs. Gertrude M. Pattangall of Maine, former national committeewoman.

Vance McCormick, former chairman of the national committee.

Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the former national chairman.

Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson, city leader.

Ex-Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma.

E. K. Gaylord.

Dr. Jennie M. Callias of Omaha, national committeewoman.

Alva Cummins, candidate for governor of Michigan in 1924.

John R. Tally of Hattiesburg, Miss., former presidential elector.

Thomas C. Burke, former collector of the port at Portland.

Barry Wright of Rome, Ga., dry crusader.

Wayne Williams, former attorney general of Colorado.

Mrs. J. O. Ross of Houston, former elector.

George N. Conrad of Harrisburg, Va.

C. C. McCarty of Grand Rapids, Minn., former state senator.

M. D. Lightfoot of Springfield, Mo.

Thomas B. Love, former national committeeman from Texas.

Professor Irving Fisher of Yale.

Dr. William T. Ellis of Swarthmore.

Former U. S. District Judge Benjamin F. Bledsoe of California.

Dr. D. E. Mitchell, president of Cumberland University, Tenn.

Irving H. Mitzger, Baltimore lawyer.

Cato Sells of Texas, former Indiana commissioner.

Harry McFadden, publisher, of Steubenville, O.

Nathan Newby, James O. Davis, Mrs. Katherine Braddock, Mrs. James Ellis Tucker, all California supporters of William G. McAdoo.

Bishop James Cannon.

Bishop John M. Moore.

Bishop Edwin Mouton.

Bishop Horace DuBose.

Dr. Arthur J. Barton of the Anti-Saloon League.

A story tomorrow will present the list of prominent "Smith Republicans" as given by the Democrats.

Mexican Tries Out Companionate Match And Likes It O. K.

EL PASO, Sept. 27.—A Mexican farmer at Fabens has tried trial marriage and likes it so well he wants another trial—with another spouse. Here's the story as told to Assistant County Attorney R. B. Redic:

Six years ago he got a "permit" to marry a woman for a period of six months. Just where or from whom he got the "permit" was not clear. They lived together the length of the permit and two and a half years more. Then, three years ago she disappeared. He has been unable to ascertain her whereabouts.

And now Cupid has driven his dart in the farmer's heart again! He wanted another "permit."

Redic was unable to advise him.

John D. McRae Points Out How High Standards of South Would Be Menaced By Election of Hoover To Presidency

For the purpose of leaving no excuse for any kind of misunderstanding of what follows in this article, I want to state that I was born, reared, and have lived in the South in all my life. I have had colored people around me during the whole of this time, they on their plane and I on mine. They have never made any sort of effort to place themselves on a social equality with me or with my people; and by the expression "my people,"

I mean all the people of the South, for they are indeed my people. They have always recognized the gulf which separates the two races and have respected it as all times. And I like that race in the place made and maintained for them in our midst; and I have no respect for the white man who imposes upon them either in a business way, or otherwise. We owe them protection so long as they remain in their places; and here in my Southland there is no possibility of their getting out of their places so long as the standards and ideals of the South are maintained and preserved. But if unfortunately that man who is now offering himself for the presidency of this Republic as the choice of the Republican party is elected, and if he pursues the policy with respect to the mingling of the white and colored races as he has inaugurated and is now maintaining in the census bureau at Washington over which he recently presided, our task will indeed be difficult.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

people, especially women. Mr. Hoover, the head of our department, got many of the colored delegates in the South when he gave them Red Cross hams and bacon during the flood. That was probably all right; but now because he has a fight in Ohio and Indiana and wants the colored votes there he has listened to the negro politicians and has put these colored people among the white girls in the department for the first time. They have always been in a section to themselves on the first floor and had a lavatory set aside for them. Now we have to use the same ones that they use, which is not very pleasant. He never showed any love for colored people before the Indiana and Ohio primaries came along. Now the only way he can get colored votes is by humiliating white women." The poor girl signed the letter but requested her name be withheld as it would likely cost her her job.

Senator Stephens wrote Hoover about the newspaper articles and Hoover replied as follows: "The articles which you mean are in large degree foolish untruths. If such action as was taken is against the interest of either the white or colored employees, they have a full right to present the matter to me. I have received no complaint from either group." Herbert Hoover, Vol. 69-P. 10804.

Of course neither Mr. Hoover, nor any other living power will ever be able to force equal association of the negro race on the people of the South in their every day private affairs. That cannot and will never be, at least to those people of the South who are still clinging to its traditions and its ideals. I cannot speak in such positive terms of those who are deserting us in this hour of peril. But while indiscriminate social association is out of the question for all true Southerners, yet there is another phase of the case; and there lies the menace and the danger. It is so conclusively shown by the record above quoted that Mr. Hoover will force this intermingling of the races, in so far as he has the power to do it, that the wayfarer, though a fool need not err therein. How far will that power extend? As President of the United States he would have general supervision and direction of all the governmental departments, not only in Washington, but over the whole of the United States as well. There are literally thousands of men and women working in those departments whose homes are in the South and who have not forgot these ideals which were taught and instilled in them around the fireside and at the altar of true Southern homes. They have sought these positions for the purpose of earning for themselves and those dependent upon them; and since they are citizens of this government they have the right to occupy those positions and they should not be required to pay the unpayable penalty of being forced to sit side by side with members of the negro race in the performance of their duties. You people of the South who are calling yourselves "Hoover Democrats" and propose voting for him in November, visualize, if you please, a refined cultured, Southern woman who is still a Southerner and is not calling herself a "Hoover Democrat" sitting shoulder to shoulder with a Northern nigger. According to the policy of this man this deplorable condition now exists in the census department which is a part of the commerce department of which Mr. Hoover, until recently was secretary; and you have no right to assume that he will not inaugurate the same contemptible policy in all the departments at Washington. And furthermore, you have no right to assume that this same contemptible policy will not be extended to such departments of the government as are located in the South. "The only lamp we have to guide the future is the light of the past."

As I have stated I can understand how and why Northern men and women do not view this matter as the true scions of the South view it; but why under high heaven a Southern man, or a Southern woman can take that dose is beyond my understanding. If you vote for Hoover you thereby, say to those departmental clerks, "You must surrender your only means of supporting yourself and those dependent upon you, or crucially that cherished heritage bequeathed to you by all those proud men and women who created and transmitted to us those Southern standards that distinguish the South from every other spot on the face of the earth."

I have made no effort to discuss the issues in the platform of the two parties. Governor Smith is taking care of that part of the campaign in such a clear, explicit and straightforward way that no man whose mind is open to facts and logic can misunderstand him. The only purpose of this article is to secure local circulation of the record quoted above. And I want to state in conclusion that I do not expect to reach any of my Republican friends with this record of Herbert Hoover and his ideas of social equality of the white and colored races. They believe in the doctrines of the Republican party; they do not view this social question as we of the South view it and for these reasons the appeal I am attempting to make here will most likely not influence them. As I have already remarked they have their viewpoint and I have mine. But if I have the power to reach some of those Southern Democrats in our own locality who are calling themselves "Hoover Democrats" I am going to leave nothing undone to cause them to see the light. I am not a politician and am not ambitious enough in a political way to hope for my appeal to reach beyond my own locality and those I know and who know me. And I am not asking any Southern Democrat to sacrifice any principle in my appeal for the maintenance of an ideal that I cherish above all social questions. Not since the time of Jefferson have we had a candidate for President who exemplified the principles of Democratic government more perfectly than does Governor Smith. Never in all his public career have his enemies been able to find one spot on him. Never has a candidate for that high office been more frank in the statement of his position. In his position of prohibition he has announced as true and sound Democratic doctrine as ever fell from the lips of a man since the organization of the government. He proposes to leave the adjustment of this vexatious question to the states. Just how and why a Democrat can find it in his heart to oppose this clear cut application of states rights is beyond my comprehension. It is possible for men and women of Texas to fear the action of our own people on this police regulation?

I may not reach any votes with what I have said. All those men and women in our community who have always been Democrats, and who have always been true to the high standards of the South who are now advocating the election of Herbert Hoover may persist in their unaccountable course, I don't know. But from my humble place in the private walks of life I am not going to sit idly by while this cloven foot is suspended and ready to be pressed upon the very hearts of my people. But if the Southern men and women of our own community see fit to assist in the consummation of that misfortune, for the sake of decency and consistency let them quit calling themselves "Hoover Democrats." There is not and cannot be any such political classification. You might as well talk about a sober drunkard.

Respectfully,
JNO. D. McRAE.

NEW YORK

Meditations of a Rambler: Broadway just before theatre curtain time. . . Is there a gayer place in the world? Jeweled women hurrying to the play that perhaps will bore them. . . Clerks who worked overtime hurrying home to a late dinner. . . Stenographers in downtown offices who look like movie queens. . . The bouquets presented them by their boy friends cost more than the weekly pay envelope contains. . . Well, one big splash a week is worth pie and coffee the rest of the week. . . And Saturday will be here soon again. . .

Where do all the pretty girls come from? . . . Some made up to resemble olive-skinned Spanish Senoritas. . . Others all pink and white although their apartments in the Bronx are many miles from flower gardens. . . Delicately slipped feet. . . A white haired lady in a golden shawl with diamonds in her heels. . . Mae West, the actress. . . A bent old man with his fiddle playing tunes of yesterday.

A party of six from Jersey lose each other and one girl has the tickets. . . The crowd is too great for them to get together again so they signal that they'll meet in the lobby. . . Was there ever such a cosmopolitan crowd anywhere in the world? . . . A Turkish gentleman in a red and black turban is pushed and jostled about. . . Three German sailors. . . mere boys. . . look ahead at the lights and the milling throng. . . First time in New York and you can tell by their faces they'll never forget it.

Newsboys with tomorrow's papers. . . 'Extry, Big Broadway murder' . . . But perhaps it isn't so much. . . The crowd doesn't get excited. . . Was there ever a more matter-of-fact city? . . . And did any city ever have a more matter-of-fact street? . . . The announcer outside the movie palace whispers in velvet tones that there are plenty of seats. . . These fellows are cut out for their work. . . Towering giants who make you feel like nothing beneath them.

Theatre-time in the hotel lobbies present colorful pictures. . . Here is where you see fashion's latest. . . Lacey frocks from Paris in the Palm room of the Roosevelt. . . Hand-painted slippers done by artists of reputation. . . You cannot tell the M'selle from Milwaukee from the M'selle from Paris.

Grand Central terminal presents another sort of picture when the trains for the west arrive. I believe it to be the greatest spot for human interest in the city. I have seen mothers great sons they had not seen in years and I have seen sons meet mothers they left back in the home town years before and have at last made good and "brought them on."

But the partings are less joyous. Rarely do I pass through the station that I fail to see some weeping mother, sister or child. It is hard to say good-bye to a loved one, especially when they are sometimes leaving for indefinite stays through queer turns of fate. . . I saw one old lady break down as a train pulled out the other day and she had to be wheeled away by a porter in an invalid chair.

But I also saw a husband who a moment before had literally wept over the departure of his wife for the country, who as the train slid gently, but surely out of the station, yelled a merry something that sounded very much like "hooray" and I watched him skip merrily off, headed in the general direction of Broadway.

Quanah to Join In Celebration

QUANAH, Sept. 27.—Two hundred business men of this city will board the Plainsman, the new all-steel train of the Quanah, Acme & Pacific Railway company, Oct. 1, on its initial run to Floydada.

The municipal band will accompany the party, which will make brief stops at Paducah, Roaring Springs and other points, arriving at Floydada at 1 p. m., where they will join with representatives of nearby towns and Floydada citizens in celebrating the extension of this line, returning to Quanah at 10 p. m. The Plainsman will operate as a through train from Floydada to Quanah, making close connection with the Frisco to Oklahoma City and St. Louis. Charles H. Sommer, president of the railroad will accompany the Quanah delegation.

BRICKLAYER AND MINISTER

Denver Man Spreads Gospel in Winter and Mortar in Summer.

DENVER, Colo.—Dr. Thomas Murray, Denver's preaching bricklayer, finds that "building foundations for houses has its place, just as building foundations for the soul."

Spreading the gospel in winter and mortar in summer, the blue-eyed Irish immigrant has worked his way through two universities, including Princeton, with his trowel.

He brought his parents to the comforts of America in 1911, one year after his arrival here, and married soon afterwards, all through the earnings of his trowel.

"I have a lot for which to thank bricklaying," he said. "It gave me my opportunity to preach."

"I worked my way through school with it. I used to work on Saturdays, and make enough money to go to school a year. The other lads would wash dishes during the school term to make their way."

Dr. Murray is completing a community center for his church here as a part of this season's bricklaying in Holly, Colo.

"You make a lot of friends when you're a preacher," Murray said, and added, with a smile for his family of five, "but when you are a bricklayer, you're sure of three in a day."

Great Demand for Tickets to T. C. U.—Simmons Struggle

BRECKENRIDGE. — Advance ticket sales to the T. C. U.—Simmons game point to one of the largest crowds that has ever seen a football contest in West Texas.

According to Jake Sandefer and M. Daniel who are in charge of the arrangements under way for the game which is scheduled for October 6.

The game will be played on the Breckenridge Field, which is rated as one of the best playing grids in Texas. During the summer, new stands have been erected and new equipment provided which will enable the management of the big college game to accommodate 10,000 people.

The reports coming from Abilene indicate that two special trains will be the fans and students to Breckenridge for the game. Reports from Fort Worth indicate the effect that a special train out of the T. C. U. home town during a delegation of Frog will be to Mr. Sandefer or—has been placed from towns within a radius of one hundred miles.

Breckenridge already have been reserved by the fans from Albany, Cisco, Rancho, Eastland, Weatherford, Minnells, Graham, Throckmorton, Woodson, Wichita Falls, Archerly, Lubbock, Sweetwater and many other points in West Texas. Batches of various high schools in this immediate section, both in A and class B divisions, have been sent word that they will bring their squads to see the engagement.

There will be plenty of music on the air on the day of the event as the Cowboy Band, famous official band of the Southern Confederacy and the T. C. U. musical organization will be heard. The Breckenridge Buckaroo band, champions of the high school division of West Texas, will be among the organizations providing entertainment for the occasion.

The tickets are available at the homes of M. E. Daniel and J. D. Sandefer, Jr., in the First National bank building, Breckenridge.

DWBOYS MUST FORM OFFENSE

DENVER.—Building an offense has been the main consideration of Coach Bridges and his University Cowboys this week. The sad offensive showing of the Simmons team against Decatur last week proved that they must develop more attack before they can win over Sul Ross Saturday, or cope with the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs at Breckenridge on Oct. 6.

Although the Cowboys did not open up anything against Decatur, a lack of attack was displayed just the same. The defensive showing of the line was encouraging, especially the first string line, and the performance of some of the new men heartened Cowboy fans, and gave some consolation for the poor offensive showing.

A heavy, powerful line seems assured for the Cowboys this year. The speed and versatility of the backfield is still an uncertainty. There is plenty of brawn and a fair sprinkling of speed, and a few more games ought to see a dangerous bunch of backs on the lineup. The backfield which Bridges started last week averaged 185 pounds and was not so slow.

On Achieving Success. Friend: "Tell me your secret of success. How have you obtained so many patrons in such a short time?" Dry Goods Merchant: "I got a frog and trained it to cry out, 'Don't she lovely!' every time I entered the store."

Heads Indians

This young man, who looks like he knows how to punt, has two names. At Oregon State, where he wants to play fullback, he is known as Coquille Thompson, but at his home in Siletz he is Chief Hux-Hux. Yes, he's a real Indian chief and he is, says Coach Schissler, a real football player.

TREASURE LIES BURIED IN BED OF 'BIG MUDDY'

Coins in Confiscated Slot Machines Tossed Into River.

KANSAS CITY, Mo.—Treasure troves of the Caribbean have long held the fancy of the adventurer who dreams of retrieving treasure of pieces of eight from casks in the caves of isolated and forgotten isles. The Missouri river, commonly referred to as the Big Muddy, now is offering a similar attraction.

Known treasure to the amount of $65,000 lies buried in the slimy mud of the river bed of the Missouri under the A-S-B bridge at Kansas City. It is said that the river bed is paved with coins, quarters, dimes and nickels.

Three years ago a war was instituted against slot machines by Judge M. J. Kilroy. The regular procedure was to throw the confiscated gambling devices into the Missouri from the bridge. Jack Rieger, clerk of the North Municipal Court, says that he has dumped about 300 machines into the river. The value of these machines ranges from $135 to $250 each and the total worth is estimated at $60,000.

The value of these machines is increased by their contents when thrown into the river. The smallest denomination that can be used in the machines is a nickel. The smallest machine contains about $10. It is estimated that the total cash contents is $5,000.

During the three years that the slot machines have laid on the floor of the river, it is possible that some of them have rusted and fallen apart loosening their treasure to pave the bed of the stream under the bridge.

Chief of Police Lincoln T. Toyne recently has inaugurated a cleanup campaign on the slot machines to clear them from places frequented by school children. Many of the students, it is charged, squander their lunch and carfare money on the chance and have to go hungry and walk home. The river bed will get more treasure as a result.

Hill Billies to Meet Horned Frogs

FORT WORTH.—One of the hardest contests of the year looms for the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs Saturday when Herman Clark, former Purple star, leads his veteran Daniel Baker Hill Billies to Fort Worth for the boys' second game of the season. Still stinging from a 27-0 defeat handed them last year, the Billies are headed for Frogland with revenge in their hearts.

Nor will the team invade foreign territory unsupported. Special trains have been chartered and reports have it that at least 200 Brownwood citizens will entrain early Saturday for the game. The school pep squad and band will also make the trip and a parade of the Fort Worth business section is scheduled before the march to the stadium.

Coach Clark, with seventeen letter men and a host of new material, has been at work since Sept. 5. The Billies have not yet played a game, and the long hard session of drill and conditioning leaves them with no injuries and in the pink of shape.

In the Frog camp three casualties will keepers as many players out of the battle Saturday. Mack "Possum" Clark, veteran signal caller, is out with an injured shoulder, as is Melbourn Moore, a third year squadman, at guard. Gordon "Skeet" Copeland is the other injury. He is suffering with a wrenched back. Except for these, the Bellmen are in fine shape.

WASHINGTON LETTERS

BY RODNEY DUTCHER, NEA Service Writer.

WASHINGTON.—For a few blissful days the good people of Washington, who are forever at the mercy of crusading congressmen, went happily about in the belief that they had been definitely relieved of four of the most ambitious reformers in Congress.

Final returns from Georgia, however, showed that Congressman William C. Lankford of Douglas had narrowly nosed through in the primaries, after appearing to have been beaten. Lankford is the author of the Blue Sunday bill which would close up everything in the District of Columbia except the chimneys and which causes an annual row at committee hearings.

Nevertheless, it is certain that Congressman T. Webber Wilson of Mississippi and former Congressman William D. Upshaw of Georgia will not be among the members of the Seventy-first Congress. Wilson, a handsome and pleasant young man, is the author of a bill providing a federal magazine censorship board with fearful penalties and drastic restrictions. He ran for the Democratic senatorial nomination against Senator Stephens this year and was licked. Upshaw is the famous dry crusader, who was regarded by both wets and dries as the outstanding fanatic of the prohibition cause until the voters unseated him two years ago. He went back after his old job this year and was again defeated in the primaries.

Congressman Tom Blanton, defeated previously in the Texas senatorial race, is also a crusading reformer in Washington's local affairs. He is a supporter of Lankford's bill, but has generally confined himself to raising rumpuses in connection with the district government and its police.

One hears many strange things over the radio these nights. For instance, there is Congressman Fred Purnell of Attica, Ind., who says:

"Herbert Hoover knows more about more things than any other living man."

Well, how about Gene Tunney?

When a man gets to be vice president he has earned it. The vice presidency is the softest job in Congress because there are no constituencies or constant fears about re-election to worry a fellow and there are always plenty of senators who can sub in the chair to preside over the Senate. The job is unquestionably an honor and there's always a chance that something will happen to the president.

Both Charlie Curtis and Joe

Robinson were tickled silly to get their nominations. Curtis has been grinning his pleasure ever since because he thinks he is as good as elected.

But how those boys do have to work! One finds that the Curtis speaking program gives him 13 speeches in 13 states in 13 days. Robinson has been plugging away with equal vigor.

The parties always make their second place candidates work like that, giving the two leaders plenty of rest between speeches.

Roosevelt sold himself to the country while plugging for McKinley in 1905. Senator Wheeler of Montana, La Follette's running mate in 1924, had to carry a great burden alone when La Follette's health broke down.

The vice presidential candidate's hope of reward is a four-year-old rest in the Senate, but he needs it.

SCRAPBOOK SELECTIONS

THE IRISH

By R. L. TAYLOR.

If I were a sculptor, I would chisel from the marble my ideal of a hero. I would make it the figure of an Irishman sacrificing his hopes and his life on the altar of his country, and I would carve on its pedestal the name of Emmett.

If I were a painter, I would make the canvas eloquent with the deeds of the bravest people who ever lived, whose proud spirit no power can ever conquer and whose loyalty and devotion to the home of free government, no tyrant can ever crush; and I would write under the picture "Ireland."

If I were a poet, I would melt the world to tears with the pathos of my song. I would touch the heart of humanity with the mournful threnody of Ireland's wrongs and Erin's woes.

Tortured in dungeons and murdered on scaffolds, robbed of the fruits of their sweat and toil, driven like the leaves of autumn before the keen winter winds, these sturdy sons and daughters of Erin have been scattered over the face of the earth, homeless only in the land of their nativity, but princes and lords in every other land where merit is the measure of the men.

Where is the battlefield that has not been glorified by Irish courage and baptized with Irish blood? And where is the free country whose councils have not been strengthened by Irish brains and whose wealth has not been increased by Irish brawn?

Whenever the flag of war flutters, the spirit of Irish chivalry is there, panting for the battle and eager for the charge. Whether it be Wellington leading the allied armies at Waterloo, or Ney following the eagles of France, whether it be Sam Houston crushing the armies of Santa Anna at San Jacinto, or Davy Crockett courting death at the Alamo; whether it be Andrew Jackson at New Orleans, or Stonewall Jackson at Chancellorsville—it is the same intrepid, unconquerable spirit of sublime courage which flows like a stream of inspiration from the heart of old Ireland to fire the souls of the world's greatest leaders and to burn forever on the altars of liberty.

Whenever the banner of peace is unfurled over the progressive English-speaking nations of the earth, this same irresistible Celtic blood has ever been present, shaping the destinies of empires and republics.

It warmed the heart of Edmund Burke, whose brain was a mighty loom that wove tapestries of glory for England and for mankind. It inspired the souls of Swift and Sheridan, whose dreams will linger in English literature forever, like the fragrance of roses that are faded and gone. It lighted up the brain of Oliver Goldsmith, who broke out in songs sweeter than the song of the nightingale. It kindled the soul of Tom Moore into flame, and like an angel of light from the realms of dreams, he swept the burning strings of Erin's harp and the whole world thrilled with its melody.

Abilene Matches Game for Friday

Abilene Eagles are going to play their second game in five days by taking on the Daniel Baker reserves Friday afternoon on the Simmons university field.

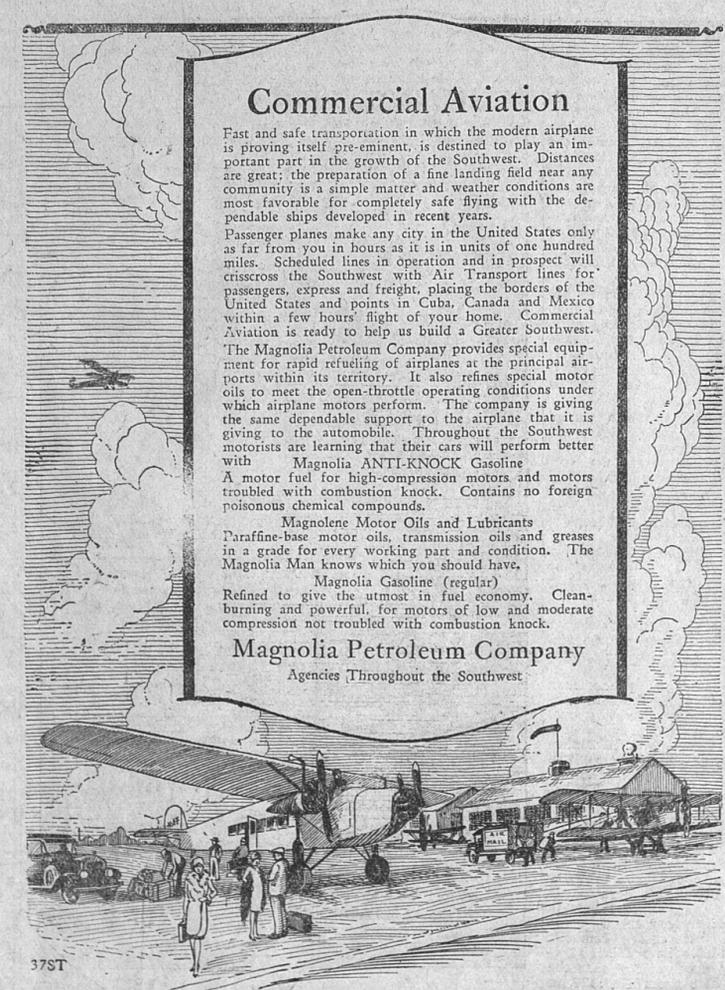

Apparently dissatisfied with the work of his team in Monday's game against Anson, Coach Dewey Mayhew matched the college "scrubs" for a tilt tomorrow. Very likely the Eagles have been getting some strenuous work since their disappointing debut a few days ago and, tung into action, they will take the field in savage mood Friday that will bode ill for the collegians.

Last season this columnist saw the Howard Payne reserves meet Abilene—and beyond all doubt the "reserves" were a cruder-looking crew than any class B high school team ever known. They were ill-assorted as to sizes, had no team work, no cohesion, no co-ordination, didn't know when to take possession of the pigskin after a punt and when to leave it alone. Some of them had never played football before—and they certainly hadn't played any when the game was over either. JACKSON, Mich.—Louis Nolan, fined $250 when he pleaded guilty in Justice Ballard's court to charges of driving an automobile while intoxicated, has asked the county board of supervisors to return $150 to him, stating that under the law the justice was allowed to fine him no more than $100. Builders of a Greater Southwest

Commercial Aviation
Fast and safe transportation in which the modern airplane is proving itself pre-eminent, is destined to play an important part in the growth of the Southwest. Distances are great; the preparation of a fine landing field near any community is a simple matter and weather conditions are most favorable for completely safe flying with the dependable ships developed in recent years.

Passenger planes make any city in the United States only as far from you in hours as it is in units of one hundred miles. Scheduled lines in operation and in prospect will crisscross the Southwest with Air Transport lines for passengers, express and freight, placing the borders of the United States and points in Cuba, Canada and Mexico within a few hours' flight of your home. Commercial Aviation is ready to help us build a Greater Southwest.

The Magnolia Petroleum Company provides special equipment for rapid refueling of airplanes at the principal airports within its territory. It also refines special motor oils to meet the open-throttle operating conditions under which airplane motors perform. The company is giving the same dependable support to the airplane that it is giving to the automobile. Throughout the Southwest motorists are learning that their cars will perform better with Magnolia ANTI-KNOCK Gasoline.

A motor fuel for high-compression motors and motors troubled with combustion knock. Contains no foreign poisonous chemical compounds.

Magnolese Motor Oils and Lubricants
Paraffine-base motor oils, transmission oils and greases in a grade for every working part and condition. The Magnolia Man knows which you should have.

Magnolia Gasoline (regular)
Refined to give the utmost in fuel economy. Clean-burning and powerful, for motors of low and moderate compression not troubled with combustion knock.

SCIENCE RIVALS NATURE IN THE ART OF MAKING MORE GASOLINE

Everywhere in the petroleum industry there is talk of new methods—new methods of mining petroleum, new methods of storing petroleum, new methods of refining petroleum, new methods of preventing corrosion.

A serious question which confronts petroleum technologists is: How much gasoline can be obtained from a barrel of crude? The obvious but incorrect answer is 10

Crude petroleum man calls it is obtained from other earth. Suppose a barrel of crude contains 10 gallons of gasoline (a barrel is 42 gallons), what is the maximum amount of gasoline which can be obtained from this barrel? The obvious but incorrect answer is 10

Some Reasons Why You Should Give to Red Cross

Helpless and homeless but safe in the care of the Red Cross, child refugees from the Florida hurricane area are shown here as they are being sheltered against disease and death by relief workers. This picture—taken in Dade county—shows how the Red Cross is ministering to the homeless children.

In the Dade county stockade, with a background of cold steel bars built to hold criminals, Red Cross workers hurriedly established a temporary refugee camp for child victims of the Florida storm. The three women standing in the rear are in charge of the ward. This is one of the reasons why you should respond to the Red Cross' appeal for funds.

gallons; the absurd but correct answer is about 25 gallons.

This paradoxical answer is chemistry's triumphant reply to one of the most vexing problems of the age. Go back about 10 years. The automobile is still young. It was a decade younger then, but it was a full grown, lusty youngster. Long lines of cars were pouring forth from the automobile factories. The great automobile age was in full bloom and there was already talk of saturation. But still there came more and more cars crying for more and more gasoline. Now crude has just so much gasoline and no more. The answer to the cry for more gasoline lay in mining more petroleum, but it had already been recognized for several years that the needs of the automobile would ultimately outstrip the capacity to find new oil deposits and mine the precious fluid.

The answer to this problem also has been found. It lay in developing processes for converting the non-gasolines of the crude into gasoline, into a type of synthetic gasoline which has turned out to be superior to the natural or straight-run gasoline. A few years earlier there had been introduced the process known as cracking and its commercial use was spreading. Cracking consists essentially in strongly heating a non-gasoline fraction of the crude petroleum from which the gasoline has already been removed. This heat treatment causes a considerable change in the chemical constitution of the non-gasoline material, resulting in the production from which a further quantity of gasoline could be distilled.

Back in 1918 crude yielded an average of 26 per cent of gasoline. As the cracking processes came into more general use the amount of gasoline produced from a given quantity of crude increased slowly but continuously. In 1920 the yield of gasoline had risen to 27 per cent, by 1921 to 30 per cent, by 1923 to 31 per cent, by 1924 to 33 per cent, by 1925 to 35 per cent, by 1926 to 38 per cent, and in 1927 to 40 per cent. A barrel of crude in 1918 yielded less than 11 gallons of gasoline, and in 1927 a barrel of crude of poorer average quality than that used in 1918 yielded nearly 17 gallons, an increase of 50 per cent in the amount of gasoline obtainable from a given amount of crude.

Most of this gain was due to the introduction of cracking methods and a smaller part to the fact that some natural gasoline was being obtained from natural gas by compression and absorption and was being blended with the straight-run and cracked gasoline.

During 1927 approximately 785,000,000 barrels of domestic and imported crude were refined in the United States to supply 314,000,000 barrels of gasoline. Without the advent of cracking processes the amount of crude oil necessary to provide this quantity of gasoline would have been 1,185,000,000 barrels which would have led to a tremendous shortage and high prices instead of the present over-supply and low prices for gasoline.—New Bedford (Mass.) Standard.

BUTTE, Mont.—Attendance at Yellowstone national park this season will break records, according to L. E. Flint, publicity director for the park service.

It is estimated that 225,000 persons will see the park before the close of the vacation season, as compared to a previous high mark of 208,000.

NATURE FACES BIG SCHEDULE IN NOVEMBER

Shower of Meteors, Eclipses of Sun and Moon, on Program.

By United Press. WASHINGTON.—A shower of meteors as well as a shower of votes is due in November. Astronomers will be more busy than the politicians. An eclipse of the moon is coming Nov. 27, and will be visible in North and South America, the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, Australia, the western and northern extremities of Europe and part of eastern Asia. The total phase will last nearly one hour.

The moon will first come in contact with the umbral shadow of the earth at 2:24 A. M., E. S. T., when the partial phase begins according to a bulletin by the American Nature Association. It will pass deeper and deeper into it until it becomes entirely immersed in it at 3:33. This is the beginning of total eclipse which will last for 56 minutes. The moon will not be entirely invisible during this period, however, for its surface will be illuminated by light from the sun passing in the shadow of the earth thru the ring of atmosphere surrounding the earth.

Total eclipses of the moon are far more generally observed than total eclipses of the sun, since they may be seen from more than half of the earth's surface while a total eclipse of the sun is visible only within a very narrow path of great length.

There is also to be a partial eclipse of the sun on Nov. 12 with a maximum magnitude of 81 per cent of the sun's diameter covered by the moon. This will be visible only in the British Isles, the greater part of Europe, Egypt and western and central Asia.

The occultation of Mars, on Nov. 29, will be visible in the northwestern and northern states and in Canada, although in the eastern part of North America it will take place just before or after sunrise. It will not be visible in the southern or southwestern states.

This is another phenomenon for observation of which the observer in fortunate localities must be up early in the morning hours. The exact time varies in different localities. Jupiter also will be temporarily hidden behind the moon this month on Nov. 25, but only to observers in the south temperate and south frigid zones.

The two annual periodic showers of meteors due in November are the Andromedes or Bielids, so called because they are probably remnants of Biela's lost comet and the Leonids, which follow in the orbit of another comet, called after its discoverer, Tempel's comet of 1866. The reddish, slowly moving Andromedes may be seen anywhere from Nov. 20 to Nov. 30, and will appear in the evening hours coming from the direction of Andromeda and the rapidly moving, bluish colored Leonids will stage their greater display about Nov. 14-15, and they will come from the direction of the Sickle in Leo, hence their name Leonids. One will have to be up before sunrise to see them.

Mineral Water Is Pumped Direct To The Bath House

Pipes have been laid, pumps installed and now the baths of the Eastland Mineral Water Company are being supplied with mineral water coming direct from the company's own wells on property purchased by it at the corner of East Plummer and Halbryan streets.

Dr. C. Ferguson has moved his offices from the Exchange Bank building to the bath house, 113 East Commerce Street, and already is planning to build a second story addition to the building and establish the Ferguson Clinic in connection with the mineral water baths.

In addition to steam and vapor bath equipment at the bathhouse, Dr. Ferguson has installed a Savage health motor, an automatic massage manipulator, which he says is used by hospitals and many physicians.

Within the two years since first it was discovered that Eastland had a valuable mineral water, declared by some to be the equal of mineral waters having world-wide fame, Eastland has become more and more a mecca for health seekers, and Dr. Ferguson looks forward to seeing the first mineral water bathhouse, established by him, become one of many large and flourishing establishments that attract thousands of health seekers to Eastland year after year.

Raincoats Tend To Gay Colors

By FRANCES PAGET Women's Wear Magazine Copyright, 1928, by United Press NEW YORK—Evidence of a more colorful raincoat season is found in both domestic and imported sportswear collections for fall. The trend toward gayer colors in raincoats has been noticed for some season past but not been so marked as this year. Especially in the French suede coats is color paramount, such shades as dark and light red, tans with a strong mixture of yellow, navy and midday blue being of particular importance.

Not only in colors have raincoats enlarged their appeal, but in media as well. One of the most important developments abroad, and one which it is believed will receive favorable acceptance when introduced to the domestic market in the early spring of next year, is the use of rubberized silk pongee for the lightweight raincoat. Other fabrics that are noted in fall collections include crepes de Chine, Japanese silk, plaided taffeta, leatherette, velveteen, gaberdine and French suede.

There is an effort abroad to popularize the ensemble in rainwear, by offering hats in matching colors and fabrics. So far the buying of separate coats is in more favor, since most women prefer to don raincoats over their everyday costumes. As to models, the trench coat type remains outstanding, especially in such fabrics as French suede, gabardine and leatherette. A washable cotton material with a suede finish, customarily found in gloves, has been adopted for trench coats in pastel shades, and has been well received because it is not strictly confined to rainwear.

On the whole, raincoat fashions retain simple, practical lines, in spite of the feeling for more elaboration with both English and French designers are advancing.
