By United Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.— A motion to try former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall on a charge of bribery in connection with his Elk Hill oil lease to Edward L. Doheny, Los Angeles oil man, was presented to the district of Columbia court by Atlee Fomerene, special government counsel.

Credence was given to the report when it was learned that auditors of the Frisco line are at Jernyn, Texas, checking records of the G. T. & W. road.

WEST IMPORTS NEW STYLE OF GUN WIELDING

United Press Staff Correspondent DENVER, Colo.—This section of the West, once noted for its forthright method of settling disputes with pistols, is having its first experience with the modern practices of eastern gunmen.

The style of gun-play which originated in the mining camps—and still prevails to some degree—ter. The honors usually went to the man who first wrapped his index finger about the trigger of his weapon.

Sometimes the verdict was a bloodless one, with the victim of the draw shuffling off shamefacedly. But in many cases the contestants blazed away right heartily at each other, with fatal results.

Now Denver has the screened automobile, the hidden gunmen, the ambush and the deadly machine gun. All of those accoutrements of modern killing were brought into play against Eddie Diamond.

ably, if he had lived a half century ago, he would not have minded meeting his enemies in the open, shot for shot. But the modern machine-gun ambush, automatic rifles and such equipment have him worried.

This modern type of gang warfare does not appeal to the west. The code of killers of the past seems always to have contained a concession that the victims should at least be allowed to see who was poking lead in their direction. Perhaps this was a bit of egotism, founded in pride of marksmanship, but the record of frontier duels and impromptu shootings shows a strain of sportsmanship entirely lacking in the gangster methods.

THE MEN'S SHOP

High Flight

1928 By NEA Service Inc. RUTH DEWEY GROVES AUTHOR OF "WHEN A GIRL LOVES" "LOVE FOR TWO" etc.

Jerry leaned forward and started with bated breath at the ring master had disclosed. She had never seen anything more beautiful. It was a square-cut emerald in a band of carved jade—on jade. The clear, deep color of the stone seemed even richer and darker in contrast with the pale opaqueness of the setting. "To match your eyes," Alester holding it out to her on the tip of his hand. "Only your eyes are more beautiful, Jerry, with the golden lights that set my eyes on fire."

"One doesn't mind the opinion of a servant," he said, and Jerry felt squelched.

Jerry's fingers trembled as she held the ring. She had been called yellow-eyed, green-eyed, cat-eyed, but never golden-eyed or emerald-eyed. She could not be thrilling to flattery so different from any she had ever received before. "Let me put it on, with a wish," she said, coming round the table to her. Jerry lifted her left hand, a little ashamed that it had been soiled during her vacation. She seemed to find it satisfactory for he raised it, palm upward, to his lips.

After a lingering caress he lowered it and picked up the ring that she had laid on the table. "If my wish comes true," he slipping it over her third finger, "you'll get a bracelet to match the jeweler is holding it until I know if you love me, Jerry."

His words, begun softly, had in a swift crescendo until he reached dramatic utterance. He seemed to be carried away by his emotion for he swept Jerry to his arms and crushed her to his breast while he covered her face with his hands.

She did not resist. She felt as if she belonged to him. A pang of dismay came to her with the realization that his embrace left no room for doubt.

But she would not let her reaction influence her. Older, wiser, she had said that love comes by marriage. Such fleeting moments as she had known in Dan's arms were no more to be thought of as the foundation for a lasting marriage than a rainbow as a sign to a ship or a fleecy white cloud as a roof for your home.

Some such thoughts were Jerry's, but she did not put them into words, not even to herself. It was not necessary. All her adolescent thinking culminated at this moment in a severe discipline of the soul that did not require words.

Jerry had come to the point where she was nothing but a love so great that it would completely overwhelm her could eradicate the effects of the fallacies she had taken herself as truths. Such a love would not succumb to without struggle. Dan Harvey's image thrust resolutely out of her mind.

"You spoke of the advantage my wealth gives you," he interrupted. "I thought perhaps you understood its responsibilities also. Dear, don't you see that the obstacles to a marriage between us are insurmountable? And yet I can't live without you, Jerry. I'll devote my life to making you happy."

"Why make such a fuss about a simple little ceremony? What are the few words a minister might speak compared to the adoration and luxury I can give you?" He stopped for breath, and Jerry snatched her hands away from him.

"Why do you talk to me like that?" she cried. "You know I won't listen to you. But since you've said so much let me tell you that a girl doesn't need to be a million years old to know what those few words you think so little of mean to her?"

Alester essayed a smile. "What a charming little sophisticate you are," he taunted her. "But if you know so much about life surely you know what a hell of a mess some girls get themselves into just through those few words?"

"Yes," Jerry agreed. "I know I've told you I know. That's why I'm not going to marry a poor man. Oh, you might as well know it," she hurried on, stung by his smile. "I'd marry you if you asked me—even now, and I'm sure I hate you. But it's a lot easier to be unhappy with money than without it, and no one's happy anyway."

"You're adorable when you cry," Alester assured her. "So few girls are." "Do you go around making them cry just to find that?" Jerry asked him caustically.

"No, just to kiss their tears away," he answered, and again Jerry found herself imprisoned in his arms. This time she resisted. And her resistance fired Alester to greater desire.

—coming from down near the beach and growing louder as it approached the house. It was a cheerful whistle, the tune a vagabond's devil-may-care air. Jerry turned limp, a dead weight in Alester's arms. In the stillness that accompanied his surprise, he, too, heard the intruder's gay little tune. And he recognized the whistler.

He shook Jerry vigorously. She opened her eyes. "Come out of it, Jerry," he pleaded. She half raised her hands to brush away the hair that had fallen into them but it dropped back weakly upon the hammock. Alester left her and dashed into the house to see if Marsh had left anything in the cocktail shaker.

When he came back, the empty shaker in his hand, Jerry was sitting erect. Alester glanced anxiously down the path to the beach. He could see someone coming up. Jerry's line of vision was obscured by the table. He wondered if she knew there was someone about—if she'd heard the whistle.

Quickly he picked up a glass of water and took it over to her. Jerry sipped it thankfully. Her throat was dry from gasping for breath. "Fix your hair and powder your nose," Alester said to her with a falsely cheerful note. "We're going to have unexpected company."

BREAD STOPS FLEET STOCKHOLM.—How a package of Swedish "Knaeckebroed," a popular kind of thin, hard rye bread, caused a whole squadron of men of war, going at full speed, to stop far out at sea, is being told in Stockholm.

The admiral, commanding a foreign naval detachment, recently visiting the port of Stockholm, had taken a fancy to the palatable "knaeckebroed," and ordered a few packages. Through some mistake the bread was not delivered in time before the departure of the fleet. On learning this the manager of the bakery shop at once borrowed a racing boat, took the bread with him, set out at full speed, and caught up with the squadron out at sea.

He waved frantically with his bread package and managed to have the ships stopped. The bread was delivered to the laughing admiral, and the shop keeper contentedly and proudly raced back to Stockholm.

Intensive Study of Potash Wells

AUSTIN, Texas, Dec. 8.—Treating of the core drill tests for potash in the largest potash field in the United States, located in Midland County, Texas, a recent bulletin issued by the University of Texas presents the results of an intensive study of the geologic and chemical data relating to the well by Dr. E. H. Sellards, associate director of the University Bureau of Economic Geology, and Dr. E. P. Schoch, director of the University Bureau of Industrial Chemistry.

The extensive prospecting for which is now in progress has resulted in a large number of wells being drilled in recent years in the Texas-Permian salt basin in many of which potassium minerals have been detected. The authors of the bulletin declare in the introduction.

The search for potash in Texas began as early as 1911, it is explained. In December of that year, Dr. J. A. Udden, then geologist, later director of the Bureau of Economic Geology, in company with W. A. Wrathner, visited a well which was being drilled at Spur in Dickens County, the well at the time having reached a depth of 2,600 feet. The presence of much anhydrite and salt in this boring, as indicated by the driller's log, prompted the suggestion by Dr. Udden that the water of the well be analyzed for potash.

Later, in April 1921, the water in the well was lowered by pumping to 2,200 feet and a sample was taken at that depth. This sample of water was found upon analysis to be unusually high in potash, approximately 5.4 per cent of all solids being potassium chloride. The analysis of this sample afforded the first record of the occurrence of potash in the Texas Permian. Some additional samples of water subsequently analyzed from this well and the cuttings and cores obtained from the well were carefully studied.

Well samples were later obtained by the Bureau of Economic Geology from several wells in the salt basin of Texas and in 1915 it was possible to report a potash mineral present in three additional wells, as follows: The Borden well in Potter County, the Miller well in Randall County and the Adrian well in Oldham County. In the winter of 1915-16 the United States Geological Survey began a test boring for potash at Cliffside in Potter County. This boring which reached a total depth of 1,703 feet was discontinued in 1917, no potash having been found.

U. S. HAS RIVAL TO LADY HEATH IN AIR RECORD

Mrs. Phoebe Omie of Memphis Achieves Success With Light Craft

By WILLIAM J. DUNN, United Press Staff Correspondent. NEW YORK—Lady Heath, the English flying heroine now paying her first visit to the United States, probably has but one woman rival in the world in aviation.

That rival is an American girl, Phoebe Fairgraves Omie of Memphis, Tenn., who rightly may be called the "American Lady Heath." Just as rightly, perhaps, might Lady Heath be termed the "English Phoebe Omie." For, as fliers their records leave little on which to base a choice between them.

Mrs. Omie—for she is married to an American aviator—is the only woman ever to fly alone around the western rim of the United States, across the American desert and the Rocky mountains.

Lady Heath is the only woman ever to fly from Capetown, South Africa, to London alone. Both flights were made in light airplanes, Mrs. Omie skirting the western states in a tiny American Monocoupe and Lady Heath accomplishing her feat in a diminutive English moth.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

E. Lansing Ray, president and editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, says: "Did you ever stop to think of the responsibility which the industrial and commercial firms are assuming in this day and age to help make life more liveable?"

Their duty does not end with the manufacture of the products which they make. It takes them still further into the task of educating the world to the proper and profitable use of those products.

Here is a firm making, let us say, an appliance for use in the kitchen. Not content with merely turning this appliance out upon an indifferent market, this firm invests large sums of money in advertising to demonstrate to executives the need of the product in their work.

Here, it seems to me, advertising performs one of its most important tasks. It shows how new inventions may be used to simplify tasks, to eliminate waste, to minimize error—in short, to increase efficiency.

You have seen this same process applied to various phases of living. You have seen the advertising of flour and shortening and flavoring extracts directed to home-makers, in order that they may be taught new and better methods of preparing delicious meals.

FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH

We hope to have a good attendance at both services Sunday, at the 11 o'clock service a special talk will be made using the following subject, "Enlisting and Developing Man Power in the Church." We are trying to have an extra number of men present. Let every man in church plan to be present and invite another man to come with you.

At the 7:15 hour the subject to be used: "If I Were Young Again." We extend an invitation to young people to make a special effort to be present at this service. It will interest you and we hope you will benefit by it.

May each one keep these services on your hearts and come. Invite some one to come with you. Do it now.

P. W. Walthall, pastor.

CHURCH OF GOD

It is not how much time we have but how we spend our time. A good many at this time of the year are spending most of the time getting ready for Christmas, but we think little of the one whose birthday we celebrate. It seems to me that of all the seasons or days of the year, that the Christmas season should be one of worship and praise in the House of God. Let us all come with one accord and beautify the House of God with praise, let us come into His courts with Thanksgiving.

Our message Sunday night will be "The Birth of Christ Foretold" in which we will speak of the prophecies of His birth and the expectancy of the Jewish nation in regard to His coming.

Sunday morning we will speak on the "Leadings of the Holy Ghost." This is a vital doctrinal subject especially at this time and should receive your attention.

Next Sunday we will study the word concerning Paul and his friends. Paul had many friends and some special friends. It will be interesting to learn of them.

Men of God. Come to Sunday school. It's a good place to make friends. Your children will enjoy the sand table talks and object lessons in the junior class room.

We now have four sisters in charge of this room and we are sure that the little folks will be entertained in a way that will be enjoyable as well as instructive.

We will dispense with the prayer meeting next week, on account of the revival at Cisco, also at Gorman, which with our preparation for the Christmas Program will fill the week full and running over.

God chapel is located three blocks south of square, on Valley and Lamar. If you have no way to get there, call 1343 and we will provide a way for you.

WARS ON CIGARETTE

By United Press.
TOPEKA, Kan. — Contending that Kansas cannot afford to "accept money from a source which corrupts morals," the W. C. T. U. is preparing a drive for enactment of the anti-cigarette law which was repealed a short time ago.

Announcement of the campaign was made by Miss Mary Dobbs of Wichita, one of the W. C. T. U. leaders, and Miss Lorraine E. Wooster, former state school superintendent.

"Cigarettes are making idiots out of our women," Miss Wooster said, "and something must be done to stop this."

The anti-cigarette law was repealed at the last session of the legislature. It was being violated openly in all parts of the state, so a law was passed putting a stamp tax on cigarettes.

Revenue to the state from cigarette sales tax is approximately $700,000 a year.

RAZOR AGED 10,000.

PARIS.—The ancestor of all razors is believed to have been dug out of a sand pit at Fourieres-les-Amiens in the Somme valley. Its edge is rusted off, but otherwise the straight-edged blade would be as good as new with honing.

It was uncovered by the French archaeologist Dharvent and neoliths experts to whom it was shown declare it to be 10,000 years old.

Baptist Campaign Is Going Forward

STEPHENVILLE, Texas, Dec. 13.—More than $516,000 has already been pledged toward the Greater Baylor university state-wide campaign now in progress in all Baptist churches. District 13, with Stephenville as the key city, has contributed many pledges of this amount, with reports of all larger churches and the cities, yet to be submitted, according to the Rev. W. H. Andrew, district chairman.

One church of district 13 has been placed on the campaign honor roll, having already reached its quota and over-subscribed. Albany Baptist church, in the Cisco association, with a quota of $1,200, has sent in pledge cards to state headquarters at Waco, totaling $1,652.

A substantial beginning, more than one-fourth, toward the goal of $2,000,000 has been reached, according to State Chairman D. K. Martin. He recently announced that the campaign will continue until the goal is reached.

A representative number of complete campaign reports have not been received. Only those churches which have completed their campaign and inclosed their pledge cards have been included in the above total, Chairman Martin declared. General indications over the state, however, show that the campaign goal will be reached through the efforts of hundreds of workers throughout the state.

A campaign for $1,000,000 has been started in Dallas to match the money raised in the state campaign as well as $1,000,000 pledged by Waco. Success of the present campaign will qualify Baylor for $300,000 from the general educational endowment.

Cummings, surgeon-general of the United States Public Health Service, and many other famous physicians and surgeons of both North and South America.

Entertainment plans for the delegates includes tours of Havana's health farms and hospitals and an excursion to Camaguey and Santiago de Cuba.

1924 RECORD OF SQUYRES IS MISTAKE

So Declares Cleburne School Official Concerning Protested Player.

Here's the story of Seaman Squyres, fullback of Cleburne's Yellowjackets, Emmett Brown, Cleburne school superintendent, has made the following statement explanatory of protests filed against Cleburne in the Squyres case:

Seaman Squyres, a little 13-year-old boy, entered high school five years ago this fall. In the spring of 1924, just as 30 or 40 lads have been doing each year since, when they have come out for training in some form of athletics, Seaman came out to practice with the track squad.

The 1924 track team is the outstanding team of all time for this school.

School records and the local papers show that representatives of Cleburne High school participated in a dual meet with Blasca, in the district meet at Hillsboro, and in the meets at S. M. U., Rice, University of Texas and the University of Oklahoma and that a relay team was sent to the national meet at Chicago. The printed records and the school records show that at some time in those various meets 13 different boys participated. Among them at no time was little Squyres. The photograph of the team, these big fellows, all of whom have been out of school, in college or in the walks of life from two to four years, lined up and at their feet a group of little boys who were receiving some training. The smallest and youngest of these is Seaman Squyres.

Eligibility Blank.
In the fall of 1924 when football practice began the squad was called together at the chapel period one day and each boy handed registration blank to be filled out by him in his own handwriting. The two coaches stood by after saying that they would answer any question for any lad who did not understand the blank before him. These blanks were assembled. Those of the squad who had any prospects at all of playing were carefully checked and the entire bunch handed to the high school principal for his authenticating signature. He asked if they had been checked and received an affirmative reply. He then signed them and they were sent to the interscholastic league office at Austin. At that time and the next year blanks were not made in duplicate as at present, therefore no record of the data on any of those blanks was available in Cleburne.

During the school year 1924-25 Seaman Squyres participated in no form of athletics. He was out for such training as he could get, but he was still a little 14-year-old boy, too small and too young to represent the school.

In the fall of 1925, he again came out for football practice. On the day when blanks were to be filled out to be sent to the interscholastic league office, Squyres and some three or four others were sick and out of school. A few days later when they returned, a blank was handed to each one of these with instructions to fill it out, as they were familiar with the procedure from the former year. Without checking them, they were signed and sent to the league office. Squyres, through misconception of the significance of participation in 1924 indicated on the blank that he had represented the high school in track in the spring of that year. In the fall of 1925 under the circumstances just mentioned through the same misconception, he made the same mistake.

His first participation in athletics in Cleburne High school was in the fall of 1925. All of his blanks from that time truly represent the facts.

Unanimous Vote.
In September, 1928, a representative of one of the other schools in district 4, in checking of records at Austin, discovered that Squyres had made the above statement of participation in track in 1924. The school authorities in Cleburne, his former coach, now in Dallas, the boy himself, and his father, all made sworn statements of the facts. These were filed with the district committee and in the state office. After investigation, the district committee, by unanimous vote, declared Squyres eligible.

At the time these affidavits were filed, there was no one apparently in district 4, who thought that Cleburne would be in the running for district honors. Most newspapers placed them expectantly in third or fourth place. The action of the school authorities in Cleburne was merely to clear a record and to correct a mistake.

Old Ship Launches New Spirit

the 1928 Christmas seals, Mrs. Calvin Coolidge here is shown opening dall Emerson, right, managing director of the organization, is presenting the ship model with the assistance of little Jacquelyn Krahe. Accepting the original model of the old galeon which is pictured on child health crusader.

At the same time another boy's age was certified by the school authorities as being a year older than his blanks had previously shown. This fact was ascertained after a careful checking and re-checking of the records of each boy on the squad.

Squyres is now 18 years old and graduates with the present class.

Florida Scene of Interesting Tests For Rubber Trees

WASHINGTON.—Experimental plantings of several different kinds of tropical rubber plants in Florida are demonstrating, according to investigators in the United States department of agriculture, that rubber-yielding trees and vines are able to survive and flourish under Florida conditions. At present, however, the department is not ready to make predictions as to the possibilities of commercial rubber-planting in Florida.

Last winter was considered the most severe in 40 years in the vicinity of Miami, according to O.

F. Cook of the bureau of plant industry who is in charge of the experiments. This afforded a good test of reactions of cold weather. Many small plants were killed, but those of larger growth and in good condition were not injured in most cases. Some were cut back by frost, but recovered promptly and made vigorous growth through the summer. All the principal types of rubber trees, including those used for planting in tropical Asia, Africa, and South America, are represented by thriving plants in the Florida experiments.

The Chapman Field plantings are near the coast, and it was evident that the strong sea breeze retarded the growth of the young trees, and that protection was necessary. "When this was supplied," said Mr. Cook, "the plants responded with vigorous growth, apparently as normal and as rapid as in the tropics. Even the Hevea or Para rubber tree of Brazil is showing ability to thrive there. The seedlings and young trees that have had protection from the wind at Chapman Field have grown as well or better than in plantings under tropical conditions in Haiti and Panama. It is probable that normal Hevea trees may grow to maturity in many areas of southern Florida."

Locations must be chosen where the roots can reach the level of permanent moisture in the soil, says Mr. Cook, and shelter from the wind will be needed if the seedlings are to develop rapidly. "Apparently," he says, "they are not less tolerant of cold than many of the tropical plants that have been introduced in southern Florida. It is still too early to form an opinion regarding the feasibility of growing rubber in Florida, but we must lay aside the current belief that the Hevea tree is very delicate, and hence must be confined to a narrow equatorial belt of the tropics. A single Hevea tree has lived for more than 20 years in Florida, at Palm Beach under conditions much less favorable than occur elsewhere. Castilla rubber trees from Central America, which apparently are more tender than Hevea, grew for 12 years on the south shore of Lake Okechobee and attained a height of 40 feet, but were destroyed in the hurricane of 1926.

The ability of Hevea to grow in flooded lands is known from experience in South America. This may make it useful for shade or ornamental purposes, apart from its usefulness as a rubber producer. However, the production possibilities of Hevea and other rubber plants should be investigated thoroughly since most of the land being reclaimed in southern Florida remains subject to flooding in storm periods. Much of the reclaimed land is not now cultivated, and there is great need of crops that floods will not destroy.

Altar is Grid Star's New Goal

Now that the football season is over and there's no penalty for holding, Kenneth Strong, star halfback of the New York University football team and a member of the mythical All-American, didn't mind posing for this picture. For the girl, pretty Reila Harrison, Broadway singer and showgirl, soon is to be Mrs. Strong.

Great Tackle, Fine Punter Will Play

The Anson Tigers, who, under Coach Eck Curtis' direction in previous years, attained great renown in Class B circles—even capturing the B championship of Texas two years ago—will invade Eastland county Friday afternoon to give the Gorman Panthers a busy session. The championship of four Class B districts will be at stake.

The game at Gorman begins at 3 and a number of fans from Ranger, Eastland and other cities of this territory will motor down to view the conflict.

Anson has a tackle, Leaman, who has only one superior in West Texas—and that is "Ox" Hinman of the Bulldogs.

Hudson, Gorman fullback, is the main reliance of the Panthers on attack. He is rugged and is almost always good for a gain through the line and of tackle. Gant, Gorman punter, likewise will show the Tigers some of the best kicking they have seen this season as his kicks, in addition to getting good distance, sail unusually high.
