It is expected that many persons will go from Eastland, Ranger and Cisco to Breckenridge to hear Senator Bailey.

POLICE THINK DYING GIRL IS ATTACK VICTIM

Weird Case of Burning In Illinois Proving Mystery To the Authorities.

LAKE BLUFF, Ill., Oct. 31.—Authorities worked on a theory of attempted murder in their investigation today of the weird case of Miss Elfrida Knaak, the pretty book agent who is said to be dying from burns which she received in the basement of the Lake Bluff police station.

After an inspection of the village police station furnace room, Sheriff L. A. Doolittle said it was absurd to assume that the girl tortured herself to test her love for Chas. W. Hitchcock, the village's handsome night policeman.

Sheriff Doolittle discounted as delirious Miss Knaak's story that she "did it myself." He said he had learned that the girl also asked, "Oh, how could they do it?"

"This is a case of attempted murder," said the sheriff. "The motive, of course, is not clear. It is either an attempt to cover up a criminal attack or a case of jealous revenge."

Doolittle said that during the day he expected to question Mrs. Hitchcock, wife of the night policeman, who had been instructing Miss Knaak in public speaking and salesmanship. She is said to have been in love with Hitchcock.

Mrs. Hitchcock is the mother of four children. She has been married nearly 18 years. Her husband told the United Press he had only a fatherly interest in Miss Knaak and that he did not know she was in love with him.

Whether the former teacher and university co-ed will live to explain her unusual experience is doubtful. Her arms and legs had been held in the fire box of the police station furnace until almost all the flesh was burned away. There was a large burner placed on her forehead and her hair had been burned off. Physicians estimate that she lay in the basement more than 6 hours before she was found Tuesday morning by the janitor.

Sheriff Doolittle said the evidence that Miss Knaak had struggled with someone before she was burned. To support his theory of jealousy he pointed out a lock of hair which had been pulled out before Miss Knaak came in contact with the furnace and was found with some of her clothes in a corner of the basement.

LITIGANTS IN FIST FIGHT

WAXAHACHIE, Oct. 30.—Two men, evidently thinking the wheels of justice turn too slowly, tried to speed up matters and bring them to a quicker culmination when they battled in county attorney's office just before the case was to be taken up in district court.

The men were Paul Dickson and A. E. Clifford of Milford, and were awaiting trial of a civil suit and as they were waiting in the corridors they came to blows.

A Modern Cinderella

Here's the department store Cinderella of Albany, N. Y., whose engagement has been announced to a socially prominent English millionaire. Betty McCormick, 20, was a salesgirl and model before she met John Robert Lawson-Johnston. He soon will come to America, reports say, and they will be married in Albany within a month.

GRAND JURY REPORTS WORK TO THE COURT

Adjourns After Session of Nearly Two Months. Returns Sixty-One Bills Of Indictment.

Sixty-one bills of indictment were returned by the 88th district court grand jury, which was dismissed yesterday afternoon after an intermittent session of one month and 27 days.

The report made to Judge Elzy Beasly by W. H. Kilgore, foreman, follows:

"We, your grand jury, duly empaneled for the September term of your court, would respectfully submit to you the following report:

"We have been in session for a period of one month and 27 days, intermittently, during which time we have examined 268 witnesses and have returned 61 bills of indictment.

"We have found the law enforcers of the county and the courts are co-operating in a business-like manner toward the well being of the citizenship and the maintenance of the peace and dignity of the county and state.

"We have examined the county jail and find it in good condition, and the prisoners therein confined are receiving the care and attention their situation warrants and permits.

"We have received splendid co-operation from the county attorney and from the sheriff's department.

"Now having completed our investigation into all matters brought to our attention, with the results above outlined, we respectfully submit this report, together with the bills of indictment, and request that you discharge us from further duty."

Simmons, Weatherford. Dr. Simmons is under treatment at the Harris Sanitarium, Fort Worth, and his brother, who has just returned from the hospital, stated that he bids fair to soon be up.

WEAVER FLIES WITH FRIENDS INTO OKLAHOMA

Has Enjoyable Airplane Trip. Following Which He Goes Duck Hunting On Gulf.

Accepting an invitation from Randolph R. Page, known as the pioneer mail aviator, and Tol Pendleton, of Fort Worth, Joseph M. Weaver of Eastland joined them at Fort Worth several days ago and made an air flight from that city to Ponca City, and Tulsa, and return, being accompanied on the homeward trip by Harry Craig, of Ponca City.

Page and Pendleton were classmates at the Episcopal high school near Washington, from which Mr. Weaver graduated a few years previously. Pendleton was in the United States air service during the war, serving in France, and after the war made his home in Breckenridge for several years, engaging in the oil business, until he moved to Fort Worth. He owns a Junior Detroiter and has a record of many hours in the air.

Page flew the first air mail and virtually laid out the transcontinental night mail route. He is chief test pilot and manager in charge of the Stinson Aircraft Corp. of Detroit and, with W. A. Mara, secretary of the concern, arrived in Fort Worth last week on a Texas distribution survey. He drives a Detroiter, holding six passengers, in which the trip was made to Ponca City and Tulsa.

Page has been flying more than 14 years. During the war he was an instructor and was stationed in France as engineer in charge of a pursuit school. After the war he entered the mail service, flying the first mail plane between Philadelphia and New York. He was pilot of the first night mail plane on the New York to San Francisco route. Page was an air mail pilot for about eight years, joining the Stinson Company a year and a half ago. He has had 8,909 hours in the air.

On the return trip to Fort Worth the plane was maneuvered close to the grounds so that the country could be seen plainly by the fliers, and Mr. Weaver said he enjoyed this the more because he could get such a splendid idea of the character of the country and its development. He said it was a wonderful trip.

Immediately after getting back into Texas, Mr. Weaver joined a group of ten friends for a duck hunt on the waters of the Gulf of Mexico off Corpus Christi, where he is at this time. The party went by rail to Corpus Christi and there chartered a boat on which they are living for a few days. Mr. Pendleton, Mr. Craig of Ponca City, Mr. Rosier of Fort Worth and others are with Mr. Weaver on the trip, plans for which have been maturing for nearly a year.

Waited in Vain

When Lieutenant Commander H. C. MacDonald hopped off from Newfoundland in a tiny plane, bent on flying home to London, his wife and son, Ian, pictured here, kept a long and hopeful vigil. Ian is shown calling a wireless station for news of his flying father. But the only reports indicated that another name had been added to the list of ocean tragedies.

BEARS WANT TO DISPLACE THE MAVERICKS

Game Here Next Friday Promises To Be Exciting Contest To Keep Off Bottom.

It will be decided here Friday afternoon, beginning at 3:15 o'clock just whether the Eastland Mavericks or the Brownwood Bears will be sole owner of the bottom most position in the district ladder, when the curtain is rung down on the 1928 football season.

While other teams in the district are in a bitter struggle for the first, second and third places, the Mavericks and the Brownwood aggregation are far removed from the scene of the heated warfare. The two teams have an argument all their own. Neither of the teams wants to finish in seventh place. Each is more desirous of finishing in sixth place, which, even though it is five notches removed from first, is at least one lap ahead of seventh.

Over at Lillard Field, the home of the Ranger Bulldogs, one team will be eliminated from the race Saturday when the San Angelo Bobcats, accompanied by a bag of tricks, and the Goddess of fortune, meet the Ranger aggregation.

Under Graduates Wise Enough To Eat Heartily

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 31.—The old question of the value of a college education vs. ordinary business acumen was being put to the test here today.

The business acumen part was being demonstrated by a local cafeteria proprietor, who placed this announcement in his window: "Every 25th customer eats free."

The academic side was being taken care of by a group of college students in front of the cafeteria. The leader had a small pile of field glasses trained on the cashier and in his other hand he held an automatic counter. Every "25th customer" for over an hour had been an under graduate and every 25th tray had been piled sky high.

Building Permits In Eastland Close To Million Dollars

Building permits issued in Eastland during the year September 1, 1927, and September 1, 1928, reached a total of $829,969.50. Inasmuch as building permits usually are taken out for considerably less than the actual cost of building or improvements it is safe to assume that more than one million dollars of building was the record of the last year in Eastland.

Building permits are being issued by the city clerk daily and it appears likely the record for the year 1928-1929 will go ahead of last year.

WATER MAIN CUT-OFFS SAVE IRON PIPES

Dwelling House Owners Are Urged To Have Them Installed and Keep Down Plumbing Bills.

Many dwelling houses in Eastland are not provided with water main cut-offs so that the water may be turned off when the weather becomes cold, thus preventing broken pipes from freezing. Some of these are in the habit of rushing to the city hall when a real cold spurt of weather appears and seek a key to the city's cutoffs.

This is a practice, according to city officials, that cannot be encouraged. It will cost only a small sum, it is stated, to install a cut-off, and owners of dwelling houses which lack them are being urged to put them in at once and thereby save plumbing bills later.

Robert Lansing, Wilson's Secretary Of State, Dies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The scrolls of dead among the world's war-time statesmen today bore a new name—that of Robert Lansing, President Wilson's secretary of state died here suddenly late yesterday of heart trouble which attacked him on Oct. 5. Today men high in public life in this and other lands paid tribute to Lansing, who directed much of the diplomatic destinies of this country in the days from 1915 to 1920.

Lansing was born in Watertown, N. Y., in 1864, was graduated from Amherst College and admitted to the New York bar in 1889. He belonged to numerous clubs and societies, had written several books and was an associate editor of the American Journal of International Law. He was popular socially and during his term of office was known as one of Washington's foremost "diners out."

His friends often remarked that he would "dig his grave with his teeth," but his health seemed perfect and it was only recently that he began to fail.

Lansing leaves a widow, Eleanor, who was the daughter of John E. Foster, secretary of state in the Ben Harrison administration. Funeral services for Lansing will be held at his residence tomorrow at 4 p. m. It was announced today. Burial will be at Brookside cemetery at Watertown New York, Friday.

Alleged Murderers Of Obregon To Be Placed On Trial

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 31.—The jury panel from which nine men will be selected to try Jose DeLeon Toral and Mother Superior Concepcion for the murder of Gen. Alvaro Obregon was drawn today. Selection of the jury will begin tomorrow, while actual testimony probably will get under way Friday.

GERMANS HAPPY OVER RETURN OF THE GRAF

Thrilled By Daring of Stowaway's Feat. Big Airship Breaks Speed Records

PARIS, France, Oct. 31.—The Graf Zeppelin sent a wireless message shortly before 7 p. m.—which is 2 p. m. Eastern Standard time—saying they might fly over Paris at midnight.

A violent storm in the Mediterranean has forced her to head directly for the French coast at Nantes. It was understood.

French wireless stations advised German stations of the storm and the latter passed word to the dirigible.

The Zeppelin was flying low, about 1000 feet up, when she passed over Nantes. The cabins were lighted in the glowing darkness and watchers could see the crew waving lights. Speed was estimated at less than 50 miles an hour.

FRIEDERICKSHAFEN, Germany, Oct. 31.—An American boy embodying the spirit of adventure realized in the day-dreams of every lad in the land is holding a high place in the hearts of the German people today, people whose hearts were already filled with thanksgiving and pride over the return of the Graf Zeppelin on her round trip to America.

Clarence Terhune, 19, seemed destined to receive the warmest reception ever accorded a stowaway. The daring of the boy's feat thrilled the Germans and gave them a good chuckle. Clarence, peeling potatoes and doing odd tasks to earn his keep aboard the Zeppelin, was probably unaware of what was in store for him on his arrival.

Fines for persons who enter Germany without a passport range from 20 to 10,000 marks. Chief of Police Quintenz, at Friederickshafen, was in communication with the American consul, who hastened a friendly settlement of Terhune's status. He said the fine probably would be only a technical one in this case—the minimum of 20 marks.

American Consul Stuttgart hurried here to make arrangements for a pass-port for Terhune. He said he would take charge of Clarence's personal affairs if the youth so desired.

The Graf Zeppelin approached the coast of Europe today triumphant over the October storm of the North Atlantic. She promises to break all speed record for a dirigible crossing the ocean.

At 5:50 a. m., Eastern Standard time, 52 hours after she left Lakehurst, N. J., the first ocean passenger dirigible was sighted off the Bay of Biscay on her return journey to her home port.

Reports indicated that Dr. Hugo Eckener had taken the big ship out of the storm area, which it struck just after leaving Newfoundland, and was carrying it through the air at the speed of 90 miles and hour.

If the largest lighter-than-air craft in the world can maintain its speed, it should be well over the continent of Europe by noon and safely rest in the harbor this afternoon.

An enormous crowd is expected at the harbor to greet the first trans-Atlantic passenger dirigible.

NEARER TO DEATH'S DOOR
EL PASO, Oct. 31.—Paul Lagrave, business manager of the Fort Worth club of the Texas league, was in a semi-conscious in a hospital here today.

Nurses attending him said he was unable to speak. Death was expected momentarily, according to Jake Atz, manager of the club, who has been at Lagrave's bedside.

FORT WORTH MAN FOUND GUILTY AS CHARGED
FORT WORTH, Oct. 31.—A jury in criminal district court here last night found L. C. Prather guilty of attacking his 14-year-old daughter and assessed a 5-year penitentiary term. Prather is under indictment on similar charges involving two of his other daughters, ages 12 and 13. He based his defense on the claim that he had been "framed."

harm to the American ideal of government, it was declared in a formal interview here today by Ed C. Lasater of Falfurrias, Tex. Mr. Lasater took sharp issue with the declarations of Secretary of the Treasury, Andrew W. Mellon, made in a radio address at Washington on the night of October 11 in which Mr. Mellon gave unstinted praise to the republican party for its "fulfillment of promises" and to Mr. Hoover as the ideal man to carry out the "prosperity program" of that party. In his interview Mr. Lasater was speaking out of the knowledge gained by him as the war time associate and subordinate of Mr. Hoover as United States food administrator. He was speaking as a Texas cowman who perhaps has as intimate knowledge of the live stock industry in all its phases, from birth of the calf to the sirloin steak on the plate, as any man in America. He has for years been one of the biggest producers of high grade beef cattle in the United States, and as a pioneer in the dairy field in Texas has built up the largest Jersey herd on the American continent.

Prior to the World War period, Mr. Lasater had achieved national wide prominence by virtue of his activities among live stock producers. In Texas he had been prominent in the "Bull Moose" movement that attended Theodore Roosevelt's candidacy for the presidency in 1912. He had been the republican nominee for governor of Texas. He had been among the most active officers of the American National Live Stock association and the Cattle Raisers association of Texas that now is the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers association. He was regarded as a natural choice when as food administrator, Mr. Hoover called him in July, 1917, to be the chief of the division of live stock and animal food products. He had not served in that office quite four months before he was moved to tender his resignation in a two-sentence letter that contained this one declaration:

"I do so because I have become convinced that the policies which control it are harmful to the common welfare."

Farmers Mistrust.
The resignation was not accepted and later reviewing that episode Mr. Lasater wrote that he withdrew his resignation when Mr. Hoover in a personal conference led him to believe that he would no longer temporize with the packing industry in what he regarded as its oppression of the live stock producers, however, the conviction that Mr. Hoover was to be the friend of the producers, was short lived. Twelve days after he had withdrawn his original resignation Mr. Lasater made his resignation final and definite. Almost coincidental and for the same reason Mr. Gifford Pinchot who had been chief forester under the Taft administration and who later became governor of Pennsylvania, and who at that time was Mr. Lasater's associate in the live stock department, submitted two resignations, the latter of which was made final.

After his connection with the United States food administration had been severed Mr. Lasater wrote:

"I was convinced and I am still convinced, that the action of Mr. Hoover as food administrator destroyed the confidence of the farmers and stock raisers in the fairness of their government, caused directly an incalculable loss to them as a body with the effect of financial ruin to many, and above all, put this nation in a position where, if the war had lasted the expected five years, or had continued one year longer than it did, it would have been impossible to procure the necessary fats and meat supplies for the allies and ourselves. If Mr. Hoover's slogan 'food will win the war' meant anything, we might well under circumstances have been faced with defeat."

"I sincerely believe," Mr. Lasater said, "that I am no alarmist and I know that I am utterly sincere in the fears I entertain of the domination of this country's affairs by a man of Mr. Hoover's mental attitude. I believe after exercising all of my powers of reasoning, that no more dreadful thing could come to the masses of this country than for Herbert Hoover to be elected the president of the United States. I sat by his side for months. I examined his mind as he examined mine, when we sat in council over the food problems of the war. I believe I know his sympathies—and he has none for the common man. I came to believe, as we sat and tried to solve the problems that came to us, that he looks on the American farmer precisely as he had looked on the coolies who had worked under his direction in China. Mr. Hoover is not a conservationist and he never was. He has been always the exploiter and he knows naught of men as units of society and industry but to exploit them as the agent of big business that he is and ever will be whether as Secretary of Commerce, President of the United States or promoter of mining enterprises. A great number of the people have been hypnotized by a myth of a man who does not and never has existed."

Masses Are Ignored.
"The Hoover that I know in 1917 when the producers of agriculture and live stock needed a friend and found none in Mr. Hoover, has not changed his spots. I believe it is conceded now by all persons and certainly Secretary Mellon not only concedes but boasts, that all is well with the commercial and industrial fabric of the country, but no man will say that prosperity has blessed the pocketbook of the man who produces agricultural commodities in any of its forms. For every hour of the time that Mr. Hoover has been a member of the cabinet of two presidents, agriculture has stood in need of a friend in the government. Of all the men who have sat in those two cabinets he had most reason to know and he did know, beyond all peradventure of doubt, that the rest of this country was prosperous at the expense of the producers of our basic wealth. In raptest admiration Mr. Hoover has been called secretary of commerce and under-secretary of all other departments. When he took his seat in the cabinet the pleas of the producers of this country for a square deal were still ringing in his ears. He has made no move to give them, even the semblance of a square deal, and promises of Herbert Hoover to bring relief to agriculture when he is a candidate for president of the United States are worse than idle; they are little short of insults to the intelligence of the American producers of raw material.

"Mr. Hoover is a man of amazing energy. I think I can understand how, though he was inexperienced in politics, he has come to be the candidate of a great party for the presidency. He knows how to exploit men. He knows how to serve great machines of which men are only component and insignificant parts. He does not know how to serve men nor mankind except in the fashion that they may be served by a stroke of promotional engineering. I can understand how Mr. Hoover can do a service to man in the abstract in an hour of peril or emergency. I cannot, by the broadest stretch of imagination, conceive of Mr. Hoover ever rendering a service to the masses of mankind in the solution of the ordinary and persistent problems of human welfare, and this to me is thrown in bolder relief because in my judgment the democratic party has nominated to be president of the United States the greatest humanitarian in government that this material minded period in the history of our government has produced. America has had opportunity to call to the helm of government a woman in its history with the great heart and the great sympathy for mankind that animates the spirit of Alfred E. Smith, about whom Franklin Roosevelt could say 'Victory is his habit—the Happy Warrior.'

WATCH FOR ANNOUNCEMENT OF THE NEW OWNERSHIP OF L. KLEIMAN'S

Every purchaser of a new Ford is entitled to Free Inspection Service for the first 1500 miles

THE modern automobile is a finely built piece of machinery and it will stand a lot of abuse. Considering the work it does, it gives surprisingly little trouble. But there isn't a car made that will not run better and longer if given proper care.

The first few hundred miles are especially important because that is when the mechanism of your car is being broken in. Proper attention during this period will lengthen its life and prevent unnecessary trouble later on.

We are particularly interested in this matter because we believe it is our duty not only to make a good automobile, but to help the owner get the greatest possible use over the longest period of time at a minimum of trouble and expense.

With this in view, the entire Ford dealer organization has been specially trained and equipped to service the new Model A car.

Furthermore, we have instructed every Ford dealer to give the following Free Inspection at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles:

Check battery
Check generator charging rate
Check distributor adjustment
Check carburetor adjustment
Check lights
Check brakes
Check shock absorber adjustment
Check tire inflation
Check steering gear
Change engine oil
Lubricate chassis

No charge is made for labor or materials incidental to this service, except, of course, where repairs are necessary through accident, misuse or neglect. The only charge is for new oil.

See your Ford dealer, therefore, and get this Free Inspection of your new car at 500, 1000 and 1500 miles. Find out, too, how little it will cost to have your car given a thorough going-over at regular periods thereafter.

A periodic checking-up, together with oiling and greasing every 500 miles, will add months and years to the life of your car and mean more economical and pleasurable motoring every mile you drive.

Next Saturday afternoon at three o'clock, the Church of Christ class in evangelism will present the demonstration, "Offering of Isaac" with lecture, by Mrs. Anna Craig.

Al's Wild Welcome in Boston

The greatest ovation Al Smith ever received was this one, in Boston. For that matter, it was the greatest demonstration the city ever staged, including the one for Colonel Lindbergh. At South Station, where this picture was taken, the multitude jammed the streets for blocks. Several persons were injured in the clamoring crowd; police reserves were almost powerless and cleared the way a yard at a time for the Smith parade to Boston Common.

WHIRLWIND BY ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, Boston society girl, has scandalized her little world by having a baby and failing to present its father. Sybil was quite properly married, but there are a great many people who decline to believe it. She married Richard Eustis during a vacation in Cuba. They met on shipboard and were married after an acquaintance of five days. Two weeks later Sybil left him for great and serious cause. She meant to keep the marriage secret until such time as she might quietly secure a divorce. But, to her dismay, she learns that she is going to have a child. Passionately rebellious at first, she loves her baby wildly from the very moment of his birth.

Before her marriage to Eustis Sybil had been informally engaged to Craig Newhall, who has loved her devotedly for years. Before she knew Craig there had been another man—John Lawrence, who went to France with the A. E. F. and never returned. He sailed on the eve of his contemplated marriage to Sybil, and left her thoroughly heartbroken.

Meantime Mabel Blake, Sybil's dearest friend, wed Jack Moore and Sybil is matron of honor. She reproaches herself for having neglected the baby during the preparations for Mab's wedding.

New chapter on with the story:

CHAPTER XXXIII Sybil held her baby on her lap, and twisted his yellow ringlets into curls.

"I've an awful, clammy feeling," she said, "as if something dreadful was going to happen to him." She clutched him to her heart, and held him so tightly that he cried in fright, and dug his small fists against her face, to free his little body from her embrace. Tad, picking out idle notes at the piano, stopped his humming to laugh.

"Eve said that to Adam," he remarked, "whenever Cain or Abel got a cold in the head. All mothers have the same 'clammy feelings'—and the offspring invariably survives."

Mrs. Thorne drew her purple afghan about her narrow shoulders and shivered.

"I've got so I believe the Lord is never going to be through punishing us," she confessed dimly. "Though if He ever let anything happen to that baby, it seems as if there'd be nothing else to live for."

They all worshiped Teddy, and declared staunchly that he was "a real Thorne." He was a handsome child with endearing, small manners. It was, for instance, his adorable way to sidle his soft, baby hand into the hand of one or another of his worshipping relatives. He was an affectionate baby and unusually demonstrative. When he was tired he liked to be held, and, with one hand clutching his own yellow curls, would lay the other confidently against the cheek of the person who held him.

Christmas came, and Teddy, at eight months, was lovelier and more winsome than ever. Tad brought home a small tree to the back of his car, and it was Valerie who begged to decorate it. She hung the baby's stocking, and bought him toys enough for a dozen children.

Then between Christmas and New Year's she sold her pleated silver crepe—only slightly mussed—and her scarlet Russian blouse to Dolly Weston for $42 and purchased with the proceeds a broadcloth baby coat of rosy taupe with a beaver collar.

"You musn't, Val!" remonstrated Sybil.

"Why not?" she demanded. "I love him more than anything."

After the holidays Mabel phoned.

"Sybil dear," she pleaded, "you simply must help me find an apartment. We came back yesterday, and went directly to Aunt Emma's. But Jack's as nervous as a witch with aunts pattering around. And we absolutely must get into a place of our own."

"My dear, I never was so happy in all my life. Jack's perfectly wonderful! But hell die if we stay here—I know he will."

"Rents are something dreadful. A hundred and twenty-five for any place you'd look at. Seventy-five for the most miserable little kitchen."

"I'm dying to see the new apartments on Commonwealth—electric refrigeration and everything. I suppose they're simply out of sight—but we've got to get somewhere—and that's all there is to it."

"Jack says he doesn't care what it costs. He's like that. The most extravagant creature you ever saw. Why, on our honeymoon, he simply MADE me buy everything I as much as looked at. Oh, darling, it's simply too good to be true. I keep pinching myself to see if I'm really awake."

Sybil met her that afternoon. A new Mabel, in abbreviated skirts and French pumps.

"For 10 years," she explained, surveying her stubby yamps complacently, "I've been dressing like a stylish stout. Now I'm on a diet and I buy my clothes in the misses' department."

Sybil laughed. "Marriage," she observed, "is like the things you eat—one girl's meat, and another girl's poison."

"Well, my dear, the dose you had would have poisoned anyone." Mabel nibbled a bran muffin, and toyed abstemiously with a salad of beets and eggs.

"Please don't think me too nervous for words," she burst out suddenly, "but why don't you get a divorce, and marry Craig? Is it because of that boy who was killed?"

Sybil pushed her sundae away, and cupped her chin reflectively in her palms.

"Time," she answered slowly, "changes everything. Stark tragedies become beautiful memories. When I think of John it isn't like a great gaping wound any more. It's a scar that is healing over."

She smiled at her memories as one smiles at a child, tenderly.

"And the past," she whispered softly, "is a moonlit city of a dream, beautiful in distance. It was a lovely little romance. All exquisite things are frail, and perish. First love is like the first violet in springtime. There's never another that seems so sweet."

Mabel stirred her tea vigorously. Sybil's unexpected eloquence embarrassed her.

"Gosh," she said, "you sound like a book." And then, after a minute, "Do you think, Sib, that a woman can love more than one man in a life time?"

Sybil crumpled a ladyfinger reflectively.

"Yes—a. I suppose you could love a dozen different men in a dozen different ways."

"There are so many degrees of the well-known ecstasy—not all of them ecstatic, to be sure. There's your young love, which is altogether blind, and violent during incubation. And wane, sensible middle-aged love, with its eyes wide open—not so much fun, of course. And passion, that burns itself out. Infatuation, that comes to its senses after awhile. And compatibility on which all permanency must be founded. Good old-fashioned affection, without speeches and far-below."

"Then WHY, my dear, if you believe all that, don't you marry Craig?"

Sybil poured herself another cup of tea.

"Because," she said, "in an incurable sentimentalist—a poor embittered little devil, chasing rainbows on a silly primrose path."

"Once I had a golden boy—my beautiful John. With the sun in his hair, and all the blue of sky and sea in his eyes. He died, like a crusader, for an ideal. And now he slips, like a phantom in khaki, between Craig and me. Dear old Craig, in his double-breasted serge with a little dandruff on his shoulders, and his hair a trifle bald, where he parts it."

Mabel crumpled her napkin.

"Sybil Thorne, you're a bigger fool than I thought—and goodness knows that IS a fool. Don't you know that all life is a compromise? If you can't have what you want, take what you can get—and be thankful. There aren't even crumbs for half the girls who cry for cake."

"Craig may be nothing but a compromise to you. But, there are suffering sisters who'd give their eyeteeth for a worse bargain. And Craig won't go begging long. You can bet your bottom dollar on that. Personally, I think you don't deserve him. I've wasted my last bit of sympathy on YOU."

"A phantom in khaki," is it! You're an antiquated Laura Jean Libby model—that's what you are! Dandruff on his shoulders! Dear Lord, has the girl gone crazy? Come on, let's get out of here. We're late, anyhow. I had an appling, with a real estate agent at four. Pretty gold hair, baby blue eyes. You'd like him. Heaven's little gift to women."

At the elevator they met Dolly Weston. A breathless Dolly, with a dab of careless rouge on either cheek.

"Sybil," she cried, "Oh, how do you do, Mrs. Moore?" Dolly was always garrulous. "My dear, I'm glad I found you! I'm simply worried to death. Mrs. Thorne said you might be here—I just phoned her. Then I grabbed a taxi, and simply flew down. I'm a perfect wreck."

Dolly cast a backward glance in to the mirror. "My goodness!" she squealed. "I didn't even powder my nose!" And then, suddenly serious with the imprint of her errand.

"It's about Valerie, Sybil. Something dreadful. I simply hate to tell you, my dear. I'm absolutely all broken up about it."

Hoover Will Carry Texas

The conspiracy to deliver Dry Democrats to Tammany Hall and the Liquor Interests has failed in Texas. Prohibition Democrats will vote as they want to vote. They will not be led astray by false issues injected into this campaign designed to hide and obscure this the paramount issue. Mothers and fathers appeal to you to consider well the position of the two candidates on PROHIBITION, the greatest moral issue ever before the voters of America.

Below we have set out the testimony of the candidates and their supporters. Consider it well and you will vote for Herbert Hoover to keep this nation dry. Added to this, we want you to consider the statements of Statements made by Governor Dan Moody in his Harmony Speech, April 7, 1928, as reported in the Dallas News of April 8th.

"There are but two subjects on the public mind of Texas at this time, the candidacy of Al Smith and prohibition. His candidacy, as expounded by his chief supporters, is based upon the fact that he is opposed to prohibition and upon the theory that his opposition to prohibition will carry certain votes in the north and east which would otherwise go Republican. The average man in this country only knows that Governor Smith is opposed to the prohibition laws. It naturally follows that his views on this subject subordinate other matters, and most people make up their mind toward his candidacy because of his position upon this subject. The chief argument for his nomination is expediency and that is contrary to the best traditions of Democracy. It is unthinkable to my mind that the Democratic party, which has through all these years stood for those fundamental and essential principles of a Republic and of equality, with all of its colorful history and all of its campaigns for the great principles which are for the benefit of the masses, should bow and pass under the yoke to make itself the party of a man and follow doubtful expediency, forgetting issues and devotion to great principals of government.

Hoover Leads in Texas!

The Literary Digest of November 3, 1928, showed that Hoover will carry Texas. Hoover's vote in Texas, according to the Digest poll, was 52,864 and Smith's 38,626. It was also shown that 55 Democrats out of every 100 in Texas are going to vote for Hoover. We call upon all Hoover supporters to assist financially in this campaign. Mail all checks to Carr P. Collins, Treasurer, care Southland Hotel, Dallas, Texas. We want to run more advertising.

DOWNFALL

KARROOS GIVEN

DR. C. G. DOWNTON, DENTIST, 208 Exchange Nat'l Bldg. of Cisco, Breck's Mediocre Strength Pointed Out in Advance of Game.

'How come?' the fans ask concerning the lop-sided in which the Cisco Lobos walloped the burly Buckaroos of Breckenridge.

There are lots of angles to the affair. For one thing: When Breckenridge played Eastland that slender end—Cheatham—who scored all four of the touchdowns against Ranger was unable to play.

CHERRY'S TEAM WILL PLAY IN CISCO FRIDAY

Team That Scored Twice on Cleburne Will Meet Lobos.

Blair Cherry's North Siders of Fort Worth are coming to the Oil Belt.

The former Ranger coach will bring his eleven to Cisco for a game Friday against the fast-flying Lobos.

Thus will be resumed a rivalry between Cherry-coached and Chapman-coached teams—a rivalry that during the four seasons Cherry was in Ranger, produced some of the most exciting games in the annals of the Oil Belt district.

Blair has been handicapped at North Side by the fact that he had few veterans to work with but he has produced a strong team as evidenced by their good work against the always-strong Cleburne Yellow Jackets.

North Side lost the game but scored two touchdowns. Captain of North Side is Boswell, husky tackle. He is a member of the family that has produced more noted football players perhaps than any other in Fort Worth—including a member of the famous Center College eleven a few years ago.

The game Friday at Cisco will start at 3:30. Admission charges will be 25 cents less than for conference games.

Pyle attributes the success or failure of pro football to one thing: the weather.

Depends on Weather. 'If the weather is good and we have a lot of Sundays without adverse weather conditions most of the teams ought to make money this season,' Pyle said.

The National League is composed of nine teams as follows: Detroit Wolverines, Frankford Yellow Jackets, Providence Steam Rollers, Chicago Bears, New York Giants, Pottsville, Green Bay Packers, Chicago Cardinals and New York Yankees.

Welch, the all-America star from Pittsburgh, and Bruce Caldwell, the all-America star from Yale, are the two outstanding 1927 college players who are performing in pro circles this season.

Caldwell's work with the New York Giants has been disappointing thus far. He has been stopped easily by opposing lines and has never been able to get away for any of the long runs that characterized his sensational work at Yale.

Welch, however, has played well with the Yankees and despite little help from the Yankee line in the early games made several good runs and performed capable under the circumstances.

Friedman Stands Out. The outstanding star of the early games has been Benny Friedman, the former Michigan quarterback.

Inspired by Friedman's brilliant all round work, the Detroit team started a winning streak and early jumped into the lead in the National League.

The Wolverines swamped both the New York Yankees and Giants in the opening games against those teams.

Friedman's passing and running has been of the same high calibre as it was during his stellar days at Ann Arbor. In the first game against the Giants, Friedman broke through tackle and ran 58 yards for a touchdown.

The opposition has never been able to fathom Friedman's long down the field passes and at least once in every game he completes one for 40 yards or more.

The most successful professional teams all have highly developed forward pass attack and gain most of their ground by this means.

The Providence Steam Rollers, another of the most successful pro teams, have a dazzling aerial game built around George Wilson, the former Washington Wildcat.

Off for Two Years In Antarctic

This picture shows the C. A. Larsen, Commander Byrd's flagship, as it sailed from Los Angeles the other day on its voyage to the Antarctic, expecting to consume at least two years. This ship carried Commander Byrd and the plane in which he expects to fly over the South Pole.

Whoofus Whiffletree's Woozy Wonderings

Football is getting "bigger and better" every year out here in the Oil Belt. Not only in the skill of the teams but in the incidental features of the games.

The Abilene pep squad boys the other day put on an unusual stunt when they formed three human pyramids—each being four "stories" in height—the top boy of each pyramid holding up a banner and the letters "A. H. S." were fluttered to the gaze of the assembled thousands.

And over at Breckenridge, the girls of the Buckaroo pep squad released 50 pretty balloons tinted in the school colors and a pretty sight the tiny balloons made as they fluttered into the sky and slowly faded from view.

All the pep squads stage excellent maneuvers between halves.

And can't that Ranger cornet player make the instrument do its stuff in that semi-solo number? If we haven't described this in a technically correct manner, we aren't the music editor anyway!

Just when we were deciding that maybe a little novelty in the way of yells would be welcome—a season so some of the "Hold that line" and "Hit 'em hard" yells grow a trifle shop-worn—why along came the Eastland pep squad with that "Touchdown, Mavericks" chant. It sounds like an Indian war dance rhythm, with the big drum beating like a tom tom.

All of these things add to the games' appeal. The enthusiasm of the pep squad and the fans of the town communicates itself to the players and makes it possible for them to put forth more effort than they are capable of doing, paradoxical as that sounds. How else could a boy weighing 150 hold his own with a lad outweighing him 30 pounds, take all his heavier antagonist can administer and get up with a grin for the next play?

Out at San Angelo when the embattled Bobcats fired the shot heard 'round the world—we are referring of course to their 13-13 tie with Cisco—someone had an inspiration that was worthy of a genius. The day of the game was set aside as "Dad's Day" and the fathers of the Bobcats were given chairs on the sidelines.

Had Some Talks Though. "There were times when Griff and I talked things over after a game and there were times when he disagreed with my methods but there never was any serious friction," Harris told the writer.

Griff likes the old army game of playing for one run and I didn't always do it. In fact, I seldom played for one run when there was a chance to shoot for two or three. I didn't have a pitcher in every game upon whom I could depend to hold a one run lead and I had to play for plenty. That was the only disagreement we ever had.

Changes in St. Louis. Instead of being used in a trade, as has been reported in rumors, Frank Frisch will be retained by the St. Louis Cardinals, but will be moved over to third base. The management seems to think that Selph, a youngster from Houston, will do at second and that Charley Gilbert, from Rochester, will fill the job at short.

The Answer Was—Nay. One of the infielders of a major league club, from whom much was expected, broke his leg in the early days of the season and was out of the game for the entire year. The club shipped him home and sent him his pay check, regularly.

When the season closed the business manager of the club received a phone call telling him that the fractured leg was in perfect shape again and asking him for permission to go barnstorming with a team for which he was to get $100.

Baylor and T. C. U. Clash This Week Is a Vital Game

FORT WORTH, Oct. 18.—With their last non-conference game past, the Texas Christian University Horned Frogs began work this week in preparation for their tough schedule of four remaining games. The remainder of the Purple season will be a series of card games with Baylor, Rice, Texas and S. M. U. furnishing the opposition in that order.

On Nov. 3, the Baylor Bears will journey to Frogland for one of the deciding contests of the season. While the Bears have lost one game, they are still very much in the competition and their 28-6 victory over the strong Centenary Gentlemen on the latter's home field, stamp them as real opposition. The Frogs' 6-0 victory over the Texas Aggies has suffered some in prestige in comparison with Arkansas' crushing 28-12 verdict over the same team. It looks as if the Farmers will not be in it this year.

Nov. 10 the Frogs will journey to Houston for a game with the Rice Owls. The Wise Birds flashed unexpected strength to hold the strong Texas University Longhorns to a 13-6 score last Saturday.

Hooks and Slides

Turned Down $100,000. The Washington Senators, in exchange for Bucky Harris, get Jackie Warner from the Detroit Tigers. Which means, if all the facts of the trade were disclosed, that Washington got practically nothing for him.

Yet, less than a year ago, Washington could have parted with Harris and received $100,000 in very good cash.

When the Bradley interests took over the Cleveland club an immediate need of a good second baseman and a manager was faced. Bucky Harris would have filled the double bill and Cleveland offered $100,000 cash for him. And Washington wouldn't sell.

No Bad Feeling. The transfer of Harris to Detroit on bargain terms has been taken by some baseball men as an indication of a serious break between Harris and Clark Griffin. Such is not the case. They parted as good friends and Griffin made a sacrifice to help Harris get the job he wanted.

It has been suggested that Griffin wanted to replace Harris with a manager who would follow his instructions and that Walter Johnson will be manager of the Senators only when a picture is to be taken of the manager.

Harris, however, says that Griffin never seriously interfered with him and that their relations always were pleasant.

Had Some Talks Though. "There were times when Griff and I talked things over after a game and there were times when he disagreed with my methods but there never was any serious friction," Harris told the writer. "Griff likes the old army game of playing for one run and I didn't always do it. In fact, I seldom played for one run when there was a chance to shoot for two or three. ANGELO'S TEAM IS FAST ONE Biggest Game in West Texas Saturday on Ranger Field.

The banner gridiron conflict in West Texas this week will be fought on the Ranger field when the battling Bulldogs meet the fighting Bobcats from San Angelo Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Both teams are undefeated and the right to continue in the race for the district championship will be at stake. Each eleven has a tie in its record—which counts half a loss—and the team that loses Saturday will be eliminated from the running.

San Angelo's team electrified the entire State two weeks ago when, picked to lose to the Lobos by 30 points, they fought the heavy Cisco eleven to a standstill. The score was 13-13—and everyone who saw the game says that the Big Dam team was lucky they didn't lose. The Bobcats gained 50 yards more than Cisco did—that's how good a team San Angelo has!

"Red" Massey, Bobcat quarterback, far outshone the dashing Little of Cisco in that game two weeks ago, and Baker, captain of the team, was hailed as one of the greatest passers the district has ever seen. Just how dangerous the Bobcats are may be deduced from the fact that when the Lobos went into the lead, San Angelo came right back and—in two plays—had a touchdown. First they tore off a big gain on a lateral pass and then they made another breath-taking advance on a forward pass—something like 80 yards in two plays that were pulled off as fast as lightning.

One of their favorite devices is the lateral pass. A back starts off, for instance, as though on a run around left end. As he is tearing along, another back speeds along behind him. "Zip" over the shoulder goes the ball to the back who is behind and then protected by a screen of beautiful interference, he gallops down the field. It is a pretty play to watch—if it is not being used against your team. The effect is startling because the defensive players head on the man with the ball and heading for him when suddenly yards away from another man. The ball is tossed the oval way of another man. The ball is tossed the oval way of another man. The ball is tossed the oval way of another man.

There are only two games in the district on Saturday only by getting and fighting from start to finish. They are meeting a team not as heavy as Ranger, how fast and tricky they are.

What Doctors Say About the Laxative Habit

What do YOU do when the bowels need a little assistance? If you clear-up the condition with some laxative made with CASCARETS, there is nothing better for the system—for the blood.

But if you don't KNOW the laxative you have learned to depend on is of harmless cascara, here's some truly valuable advice: The bark of a tree called cascara is the most marvelous conditioner mankind has yet found. It stimulates the bowel's muscular action, but does NOT weaken. A violent laxative forms the laxative HABIT. You always need more on the morrow. With cascara, you don't. Its gentle influence carries on sometimes for days. With less and less need of any aid, as time goes on.

CASCARETS. They Work While You Sleep!

So, the very next time you feel sluggish, take only a candy Cascaret. Delightful to the taste, sweet and acceptable to any stomach, and just as efficient as the powerful purges that fairly paralyze the peristaltic walls of one's intestines. The only habit you'll get from Cascarets is the one of going weeks and months without ANY help of the kind. And when you do invoke their aid again, the same small dose suffices. Any doctor can tell you about cascara; and any druggist has the candy Cascarets.

Professional football is still a gamble. Some of the teams in the National League of professional football clubs made money last year, but most of them lost plenty. C. C. Pyle, who lifted pro football into the big case, still believes there is a place for it in big cities. Pyle is optimistic over a successful financial season for his New York Yankees this year even without Red Grange. 'We showed a little profit last year,' Pyle said, 'and I believe we will make even more this season.'

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

Walter Johnson's first managerial order in Washington was—"Well practice every morning." Bill Rourke, scout for the Reds, didn't draw his pay check all season. Earl Combs, Yank outfielder, is a colonel on the staff of the governor of Kentucky. And he owns two big blue grass farms. Käl Glenson said of an American League pitcher who had a sore arm—"When he gets stewed his arm gets stewed with him." Wilkinsburg, Pa., the home town of Bill McKechnie, wanted to give him a swell testimonial. But he wouldn't go for it. And he's waiting for one from St. Louis. The Black Sox, a colored team in Baltimore, gave Lefty Grove a fine pasting in an exhibition game. Pie Traynor is expected to be the manager of the Pirates. Some day.

AFRICA SLAVERY CHARGE BEFORE MANDATES BODY

League Commission To Scan The Power of Foreign Industrial Capital

GENEVA.—Charges that the native population of Africa are being virtually enslaved by the development there of great industrial enterprises by foreign capital were to be investigated by the Permanent Mandates Commission of the League of Nations when it convened in its 14th session.

The African situation has been especially called to the attention of the commission by the recent book of Prof. Raymond L. Buell, formerly of Harvard but now of the research department of the Foreign Policy Association of New York.

The book has been deposited with the mandates commission in the form of a petition by the International Association at Geneva for the Protection of Native populations.

While the book makes especially serious charges relative to the use of native labor in Liberia resulting from invasion there of American rubber interests this cannot be considered by the commission which can only look into those portions of the book that refer to mandated territories in Africa.

DIZZY, NO APPETITE

Since Taking Black-Draught This Man Is Eager For His Meals and Feels Much Better.

Harrisburg, N. C.—Mr. M. F. Fink, of this place, says: "It must have been fully twenty-five years ago that I began taking Black-Draught regularly. It wasn't so long after I married.

"I was in town one day, and while talking to a friend I stooped over to pick up something. When I straightened up, I felt dizzy. I spoke to him about this and how I had not felt like eating.

"My friend told me to take some Black-Draught. I knew my mother had used it, and so I bought a sackage. When I got home, I took a good, big dose, and the next night, another. In a few days I felt much better. I was hungry and the dizziness was gone.

"A good many times I have had this dizziness and a bad taste in my mouth, or headaches, and then I take Black-Draught and get better. I do not have to take it very often. We buy from five to seven packages a year."

Theford's Black-Draught has been found to relieve sick headaches in thousands of cases that were due to constipation. Containing no mineral drugs, it acts gently, yet promptly. Try it.
