Wilmington Letter

RODNEY DUTCHER WILMINGTON. — Probably no campaign has ever seen such a defined contest between the vote and the city vote as in the country, again and again the question of greatest interest is found to be whether the heavy urban vote will be won by the Hoover vote or the state.

It is a question of enormous importance because it figures essentially in the largest states; that is, in the largest electoral college with the biggest electoral college.

New York, it's a question of the large majority of Smith is certain in New York will be beaten down by the large majority which will have in the rest of the country's own state. Smith wins, it is generally agreed in New York's 45 electoral college.

New Jersey again, Smith is expected to have a large city majority and the Republicans are confident that the rest of New Jersey will go to Hoover.

It is again likely to carry the state because of the large number of manufacturing cities in Massachusetts, but Massachusetts is a very close state because of the vote.

Illinois and Chicago are likely to go to Smith, but it may be the reverse story as regards Ohio.

The same parallel can be followed as far as San Francisco may go for Smith in the state. It applies to California. It applies to Wisconsin, St. Louis, Baltimore in Maryland, and Wilmington in Delaware and quite conceivable that Smith may carry six of the largest cities in the country. His chances are good in New York, Chicago, and

Special Train For Game At Abilene Saturday Assured

Football fans probably will accompany the Mavericks and pep squad to Abilene on a special train next Saturday, according to announcement today by Superintendent P. B. Bittle of the Eastland schools.

It was thought Wednesday it would not be possible to get the special train, not enough tickets having been sold, but today about 190 persons had signed for tickets on the special and as only a 200-ticket guarantee was necessary the special was ordered.

The caravan of cars asked will not be needed, but Superintendent Bittle said that another opportunity would be presented for the generous fans to aid the team and pep squad.

The special will leave Saturday morning about noon and will leave Abilene on the return trip about six o'clock.

With the first rehearsal Wednesday night on the stage of the Connelley, after the movie, the final act of the rehearsals is gradually drawing near for the final presentation of the Minstrel Flashes, the last word in clever musical acts, farce, comedy, pathos, and ballad singing extraordinary that has been whipped into shape by Charles C. Buckley, the general director for the John B. Rogers Production company.

With Little Sister Clarke, miniature interlocutor; Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Clarke, in memoriam of old times; Alfred Le Claire, as "Old Tyne Minstrel"; Parker Henry as the modern minstrel, and Jack Knox, the one and only bass soloist, the show will make its bow to the public with such a galaxy of talent that will amaze even Eastland itself.

EAGLES READY FOR MAVERICKS NEXT SATURDAY

Eastland High Expected To Give Another Exhibition Of Her Effective Passing Attack.

Special to the Telegram. ABILENE, Oct. 18.—Mavericks with bowed necks are fixing to charge the Eagles; snarling Bobcats with teeth bared are set to defend their own lair against the Lobo pack, and a set of feeble Lions, anything but worthy of the name they wear are gritting their teeth to take more punishment from the hard riding Buckaroos.

It's all a way of saying that in the Oil Belt football district this week Abilene and Cisco, first division contenders, have by no means the easy pickings they had anticipated, while Breckenridge, ranked third or possibly higher, has a set up. All games will be played on Saturday.

Mavs On Up Grade. Eastland comes to Abilene. The Mavericks passed from the list of championship aspirants when their stampede was thrown in reverse by Breckenridge. Breck went the game 56 to 6. Just a week later, Eastland playing at home, was nosed out by a single point by the Ranger Bulldogs.

That was no indication that the Bulldogs were not up to expectations. It meant, on the contrary, that Eastland was far above expectations. That Coach Joe Gibson has been building a football machine from his little band of green and light candidates. That machine, built on the foundation of three letter men, could not match the powerful and experienced Buckaroos the first week in October.

But seven more days mean much to a football team. In those seven days the Mavericks had prepared a passing attack that startled the interscholastic league and all but toppled one of the favorites.

What eight more days of the training will do for the Eastland team remains to be seen, on the Simmons University gridiron this week, where and when the Mavericks meet the Eagles in the first "Class A" test for the latter.

Phelps' Wound Light. Abilene will enter the game with one regular back out of uniform and another probably on the bench. Physicians give Henry Hanna's collarbone three weeks to heal. Phelps was not in suit yesterday but said he would be today.

Services At Church of Christ Each Day At Noon and Each Night, Conducted By Evangelist Busby, Attracting Many

The meeting which was begun at the Church of Christ Sunday morning and is being conducted by Brother Horace W. Busby of Fort Worth, is progressing nicely. Large crowds are in attendance. Noon services are held daily from 12:15 to 12:45. This has proven a splendid arrangement.

Brother Busby delivered a splendid address, Wednesday night, talking for his subject verses 14 and 15 of the 3rd chapter of St. John. "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have eternal life." The evangelist said: "By this was shown that the serpent being lifted up was a type of Christ, and that those who had been stricken were relieved, by having faith in what God told them to do, and that this faith became obedience when the serpent was looked upon. Likewise, under the

HICKMAN NOW IN DEATH CELL AWAITING END

Execution of Murderer of Marion Parker Is Set For Ten O'Clock Friday Morning.

By United Press. SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal., Oct. 18.—Alone with his conscience, in the death cell of San Quentin prison, William Edward Hickman today watched with outward calm the passing of the few hours of life left to him. Shortly after 10 a. m. tomorrow Hickman will be led from the cell over the short path of San Quentin's condemned and will mount the scaffold to forfeit his life in atonement for the murder of Marion Parker.

Hickman's final farewells were said and the only legal means that offered a remote possibility of delaying the hanging had been abandoned. There remained for him a little more time to spend reading or writing at a small desk in the corner of the "condemned cage" and one more night of sleep on a narrow cot in the opposite corner.

Outside the cell, prison guards keeping the death watch marched up and down the corridor. Just as the last mournful notes of "taps" sounded out over the walls of the prison last night, Hickman started on his march to the death house.

Lights in the long rows of prison cells went out at 9 p. m. and the bugler blew taps. A moment later, Capt. James Carpenter of the prison guard started down the balcony of the second tier of cells on the south side of the courtyard within the walls of the prison. Stopping at Cell No. 20, Carpenter

Governor Leaves Silver To the Law

AUSTIN, Oct. 18.—J. R. Silver will be electrocuted at Tarrant state prison early Friday, Oct. 26, for the part he played in the holdup and murder of Roscoe Wilson at Fort Worth on January 31, 1927. Governor Moody said today that he would not further interfere in the case and that "the file is closed." He said he had nothing further to say than what was contained in his statement given when he granted the third reprieve to Silver nearly a month ago. This statement said that Moody had found from a close study of the record that "it was a deliberately planned and cruelly executed murder."

BRITISH NAVAL OFFICER FLIES INTO THE EAST

Commander H. C. MacDonald Trying To Hop Over Atlantic In 80-Horsepower Plane.

By United Press. ST. JOHN'S, Newfoundland, Oct. 18.—For a thrill which captures by cannibalistic Africans and war time submarine service had failed to provide, Commander H. C. MacDonald risked his life in a daring attempt at a trans-Atlantic crossing.

The former British naval officer started without any great advance publicity from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, at 11:40 a. m. Eastern Standard time Wednesday, hoping to land in England within 18 hours.

So unostentatious was the start that many believed he was just taking his 80-horsepower plane up for an air jaunt, but as darkness crept over the field and the first streaks of dawn came today it was certain that MacDonald was risking his life in a gamble that the little plane would carry him to England.

He had a narrow margin. The plane is fueled for 20 hours. The course he is believed following is the same that Alcock and Brown used in 1919 when they crossed in 16 hours. MacDonald hopes to arrive within 18 hours.

In many ways, the start of MacDonald and Lindbergh's flight were not dissimilar. To be sure, there was much publicity for Lindbergh before he started, but it was not publicity that Lindbergh wanted and was brought on greatly by the prospects of an air race between Lindbergh, Byrd and Chamberlin.

When the proper condition prevailed, Lindbergh quietly climbed into his plane, "The Spirit of St. Louis," and started for Paris.

So it was with MacDonald yesterday. He heard conditions were favorable over the Atlantic. He prepared personally a thermos bottle with coffee, a few sandwiches and walked over to his little plane. A mechanic twisted the propeller, the engine roared and with a wave of his hand, MacDonald was away. It seemed preposterous that the small plane would carry the load. The plane slipped down the runway and then started, wobbled into the sky and MacDonald was started on his great adventure.

Prisoner Killed At Post While In Garza County Jail

Dr. Eckener in New York yesterday revealed that he hoped to formulate such a corporation with a capital of $14,000,000 for trans-Atlantic service before the Graf Zeppelin returns to its home port at Friedrichshafen, Germany.

Eckener and officers of the Graf Zeppelin were expected here today from New York to oversee a view of the plans for repairing the torn fin of the great air liner, and then proceed to Philadelphia where a celebration has been arranged in their honor.

POST, Texas, Oct. 18.—Climaxing what was described as tense feeling between jail officials and the prisoners, E. L. Bracken, who was held here pending arrival of officers who were to transfer him to the penitentiary at Huntsville, was shot and killed this morning.

Three bullets, said to have been fired by one of the jail officials, struck Bracken. Death was instantaneous, it was reported.

An inquest was scheduled today before County Judge H. G. Smith. Bracken was convicted of assault with intent to kill as the result of a street shooting in Post about a year ago. County Attorney Leon Moses said. In this affair a barber was wounded.

Evidence of bad feeling between prisoners and jail officers has been apparent for some time. Tuesday, two prisoners attempting a jail break attacked Jailer J. H. Ramsey with an iron bar; it was reported.

Reception Awaits Returning Flyers

ROCKFORD, Ill., Oct. 18.—Rockford will greet its flyers—Bert Hassell and Parker Cramer—late today with a dignified reception, lacking such hilarity as marked receipt of word here just two months ago yesterday that the flyers were safe in Greenland.

Three bands and several thousand citizens will be at the station when the train bearing the flyers arrived. The day has been declared a civic holiday and Rockford has been decorated from end to end to show Hassell and Cramer the citizens are proud of their flight, even though it did not succeed in reaching its goal, Sweden.

The two will be escorted thru the city to their homes. The parade route is lined with American flags, banners and bunting.

MANY TALESMEN SUMMONED BUT FEW CHOSEN

Taking of Testimony May Be Begun This Afternoon In Tom Davis Case, Night Session Expected.

Application for a writ of habeas corpus and asking that Thomas Davis, now on trial before Judge Elzo Been in the 88th district court, be admitted to bail was filed by Grisham Brothers, attorneys for the defense just before noon today. Davis is being held in jail without bail on two indictments charging murder in connection with the slaying of Lillian and Leon Shook on September 7. He is said to be 17 years of age. His 12-year-old brother, Woodrow, similarly indicted, was admitted to bail in the sum of $2,500 in each case, and the indictments against him have since been dismissed.

The state opposed the application for bail and an argument followed which lasted about one hour. The court denied the application for bail.

After a brief recess, the task of selecting two jurors to complete the twelve required to try the case was resumed.

The inability of prospective jurors to qualify, and the exercising of challenges by both the state and the defense dragged preliminaries of the trial of Thomas Davis, 17-year-old farm boy, charged by indictment with murder in connection with the killing of Lillian and Leon Shook, Friday night, September 7, through a two-hour morning session before a recess was given by Judge Elzo Been.

Only one juror out of 14 talesmen was selected at this morning's session. He made the eleven-juror that had been selected, but E. V. Bollinger, Ranger book-keeper, was excused after the defendant had been called into conference with his attorneys, states attorneys and Judge Been. Bollinger was excused because he had been sick all of Wednesday night and Thursday morning.

The additional talesmen summoned to appear this morning were exhausted and Sheriff Joan Hart was instructed to summon 20 other veniremen to appear at 1 o'clock this afternoon. Court recessed until then. It is expected that more than an hour will be required to obtain the two jurors necessary to complete the jury.

FLORIDA'S PROBLEM.

Florida is still facing something of a problem in the matter of caring for those injured or made homeless by the recent hurricane.

One—all of this is done, however, there remains another problem, which Florida undoubtedly will tackle with all her energy.

Some believe that these lowlands were flooded because the lakes about the lake were not high enough. Others maintain that dikes on the lake will never solve the problem and that some other method of control must be found.

Whatever the facts, Florida should get competent engineers to work at once to find out. If help from the federal government is needed, it should be given.

The lowlands of southern Florida must be made safe if it is humanly possible. Without question, this problem will be the first thing Florida tackles when the first job of relief is done.

A FARM BOY WINNER.

A remarkable achievement is recommended by the San Angelo Standard.

Many lads in this vicinity would do well to observe and follow the example set by John Jones, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Jones, who live near the seven-mile bridge.

His own efforts, and the assistance of his younger brother, Herman, 9, this farm boy has just completed marketing $2,500 worth of produce this year.

There is not a boy in Tom Green county who could not in some measure do the same thing that John Jones has done.

CIVIC LEAGUE HAS INTERESTING SESSION

A most interesting session was held by the Civic League yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. Tom Harrell, chairman of the Better Babies Bureau, presented a full report of the recent one-day clinic.

The League voted to present the nurse in charge, a gift for her valued services. This token of appreciation is to be selected by James Tom Harrell, Curtis Kimbrell and Joe H. Jones.

Mrs. W. E. Chaney reported splendid progress on the Civic League Cook Book, soon to be issued, with very favorable reports from committees securing recipes, and a satisfying report from Mrs. O. C. Fundburk, who received splendid response from merchants' advertising.

Bert McGlamery was reported general chairman of the second annual sale of Christmas seals, with authority to select her own chairman, and assistants to be announced later.

Mrs. C. U. Connellee, general chairman of the Civic League Flower Show, announced a general committee meeting had been held, with ten department chairmen present, when detailed plans were perfected for the show on November second and third.

In line with the city cooperation, it was stated that reports of the membership committee, city parks, and home improvements committee, will be called for at the next session of the Civic League.

It was stated that the president of the Civic League, Mrs. Earle Johnson, had been added to the executive board of the United Charities of Eastland, in its recent plans for expansion.

Mrs. Nell Duncan, interior decorator, of the Columbia University, New York, Art Institute graduate, and an experienced decorator with training in Paris, France, was presented, and entertained her audience with a most practical talk on interior decorative art, stressing moderate priced effects.

Beautiful materials of all textures, colors and prices were used to illustrate fundamentals of color, balance, unity, etc.

The boy wept at intervals this morning and continually wiped his eyes with his handkerchief. He sits with downcast eyes with his hand to his face.

That the defense would seek a suspended sentence for the lad was indicated by questions asked veniremen in regard to their opinion regarding the suspended sentence law of Texas.

In spite of questions asked by the states attorneys regarding the death penalty it is not generally believed that the death penalty will be asked for young Davis.

A night session will be held tonight, according to Judge Been provided a jury is obtained.

Sheriff Hart was ordered to summon 20 additional men and to "get them from the country."

Nearly all of the veniremen questioned have read newspaper accounts of the murder, the statements made by Clyde Thompson and the testimony of Woodrow Wilson Davis.

The defense attorneys in asking for a suspended sentence and light term for their client will urge that young Davis was present at the slaying without any intention of murder and was under duress from Thompson.

James Davis, father of Thomas Davis, the boy's mother, and his brother, Woodrow Davis, all will take the stand in behalf of the youth, when two more jurors are secured to complete the jury and the taking of evidence has begun.

Woodrow Davis, brother of the defendant, was the star witness against Clyde Thompson, who was found guilty and given the death penalty Tuesday night in connection with the Shook murder.

Peanut Culture Adapted To Sandy Lands In Texas

By United Press.

COLLEGE STATION.—Peanuts had not been an important commercial crop in Texas until the war-time demand for vegetable oils brought the crop into prominence, and in 1918 a peak of 7,117,000 bushels was reported, which declined in 1926 to 1,644,833 bushels.

The principal demand at present is for shelled peanuts, which, are used in the production of peanut butter, confections, and for roasting.

Approved methods of planting, cultivating, harvesting and curing peanuts are discussed in Bulletin No. 381 of the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station. Experiments at Beville and Lubbock indicate that close planting from three to six inches in the row, will produce larger yields of both forage and nuts than will a greater distance is given between plants in the row.

The culture of peanuts is adapted to the sandy soils of the state and fits well into a crop rotation. Peanuts produce forage comparable with the clovers as a feed for dairy cattle. Peanuts also make good feed for hogs, but when the nuts are not properly fed, either whole or as a meal, they frequently produce a condition known as soft pork which is penalized by the packing trade.

There is practically no difference in the yields of peanuts, when planted in the hull, or where the hull is broken or cracked. Peanuts produce higher yields of forage when planted in thirty-six-inch rows, but higher yields of nuts are obtained when planted in eighteen-inch rows.

The Macspan peanut, a selection by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station from the Little Spanish variety, matures earlier, is more productive and uniform, and the kernels probably contain a higher percentage of oil than the common Spanish peanut.

AMARILLO, Oct. 17.—Although Amarillo is doped to slide through its District No. 1 football schedule without much trouble, the fact that every team in the district is pointing for the Sandies is likely to make it hard at times for Coach Russell Smith's charges.

The Golden Sandstorm, following an impressive 74 to 0 victory over Roswell, N. M., last Saturday—made more impressive by the fact that Bob Walker, the Sandies' ball-toting ace, was out of the lineup taking a well-deserved rest—goes into the conference struggle this Saturday against Plainview. The Bulldogs aren't conceded even an outside chance, but the Sandies, fearing over-confidence, are working as hard for Plainview as they would for a state title game.

The Lubbock Westerners, who will battle the Sandies at Lubbock November 3, are known to have a smooth-working machine, but whether their battle cry, "Beat the Sandies!" will instill enough fight in them to stop the powerful Sandstorm attack is doubtful.

The Vernon Lions, too, are working hard with the Armistice day game with the Sandies in view. Coach Vey is rounding his team into shape rapidly, and while it didn't show up any too brilliantly in defeating Plainview last week a few more weeks of drilling should develop some real opposition for Amarillo.

Wichita Falls doesn't look so well on paper. They were beaten rather badly last week by Ardmore, Okla., being on the short end of 24 to 0 score. A week earlier Ardmore was trimmed 41 to 0 by Norman, Okla., high, the same team that bowed to the Sandies in Amarillo's first game of the season, 20 to 12. On paper, this gives the Sandstorm a tremendous advantage over the Coyotes, but these figures mean little. Coach Bud MacCallum is noted for developing his grid machine slowly but thoroughly, and by the time the Coyotes and Sandies clash in the final game of the district, he is expected to have developed an attack that will give Amarillo at least a few bad moments.

The loss of Harvey Black, star signal barker of the Coyotes, through ineligibility, will be felt keenly by MacCallum. Black, it was found, had played three years of high school football before going to Wichita Falls last year.

Electra is the dark horse. The oil city always has a strong contender in the race, but this season's strength can't be gauged until the district campaign is well under way.

Quannah, whom the Sandies meet next week, is not expected to finish very far up in the class A race. Their showing last year, and the fact that they have nothing upon which to base a suddenly strong team this year, puts the Indians more or less in the background among the district teams.

The Sandies so far have met four teams—among the strongest in three states. They beat Norman, Okla., 20 to 15; were nosed out 7 to 6, by the strong Central high team from Oklahoma City; swamped Liberal, Western Kansas champions last year, 34 to 0, and ran wild over the champions of New Mexico—Roswell—74 to 0. Thus they go into the conference race in mid-season form.

VERY SMART with a tweed frock is this tweed triangle with a velvet motif in one corner, by Chanel.

WHIRLWIND

by ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sybil Thorne, spoiled and pampered, has consummated a sorry marriage with a drunkard. Richard Eustis, whom she met on shipboard, was fascinating and seemed desperately in love. Throwing discretion to the winds Sybil married him after an acquaintance of five days. On their honeymoon in Havana he becomes horribly and almost constantly intoxicated. Within two weeks there are bitter quarrels, followed always by reconciliations. Finally, when Sybil threatens to go to another hotel, her husband rushes from their apartment, leaving her to do as she chooses.

Sybil's mad marriage is particularly disastrous because she was engaged at the time to Craig Newhall, a fine chap. Craig, who is in Boston, knows nothing of her marriage. Sybil took a trip to Cuba with Mabel Blake, a social worker, and met Eustis on shipboard.

Mabel, meantime, has met an American named Jack Moore, and becomes engaged herself. The first time Sybil left her husband Mabel and Moore persuaded her to return to him. But now that Richard has left in a towering rage, Sybil resolves to go alone to another hotel.

New go on with the story: CHAPTER XXII

Emotional reactions, thought Sybil disinterestedly, were extremely fatiguing. She would not cry, or sob, or pray. She repressed a faint inclination to laugh.

"No hysterics," she told herself sternly. And, being a creature of habit, she powdered her nose and straightened her hat.

She looked about the room, talking in every detail—much as one looks upon the dead, to remember forever something one will never see again. Then she took her bag, and proceeded soberly to the elevator.

At the Ingle Terra she engaged a room, and leaving orders not to be disturbed, undressed, and slipped into the white satin nightgown that Richard said made her look like a vestal priestess.

She was glad that she was so tired—so utterly, painfully weary. There were aches in the back of her knees, and it was good to stretch between the cool sheets. Good, too, to be alone.

Completely exhausted, she slept until late forenoon, and woke with a guilty start, and an oppressive feeling of impending disaster. She phoned for ice-cold orange juice, and black coffee, and a cold shower that made her tingle.

The sun was shining, and the streets were full of people bound for their siestas. Dressing hastily she sought the sizzling Prado and hurried to the Seville. She saw clerks glance at her curiously, and wondered if they knew she had left the hotel the night before. The lights were burning in their room. Perhaps Richard had not returned. She turned the knob quietly.

"Maybe he's asleep," she thought. "Poor little boy!" She tip-toed across the threshold. Yes, he was asleep. . . . Sprawled across the bed, dressed even to his shoes.

She moaned. An empty bottle lay on the floor. Rich's favorite drink—Havana rum. His coat sprawled where he had flung it, an open bill fold spilled its contents. Cards and letters littered the floor, and there was paper money, sticky with the sugary liquor Richard loved.

Absently Sybil stooped for the coat, and shuffled the confused papers together. It seemed as if she was always tidying after Rich. Socks and shoes and soiled linen. He never hung anything up, or put things away.

"Richard!" she called, bending over him. He did not start at the sound of her voice, but began to breathe noisily. As she turned away, shuddering, her glance fell on the papers she still held. On top was a square white card.

Isabella Petite Amistad & Cognac Una Triguena Abajo Triguena? Triguena? Sybil's brows drew together thoughtfully. The papers slipped from her fingers and fluttered to the bottle on the floor. Then, without a backward glance, hard on her little French heels, she left the room. Ten minutes later she was with Mabel and Jack Moore at the Panje.

"There's no use talking, Mab. Please, Jack! It doesn't make any difference what you say. Wild horses couldn't drag me back. There's a boat this afternoon, and I'm going to get it. You can come or not just as you choose, Mab."

"But, Sib, we haven't anything ready! How about your trunk?"

"I'll send a message to the manager. He'll take care of it all right."

"Where's Rich?"

"Asleep."

"Does he know you're going?"

"He doesn't care what I do."

"Oh, Sib darling, if you run away, there'll be hundreds and hundreds of miles between you. Jack, can't you reason with her?"

Sybil's mouth hardened, and her eyes were cold as steel.

"Listen," she began firmly. "I didn't intend to tell you. I'll never tell anyone else. Last night after you people went, Richard was horribly abusive. I left him, and went to the Ingle Terra. This morning I woke all brimming with wifely love and idiotic devotion. I thought Rich might be sick. I felt sure he would be repentant. And I meant to forgive him once more, Sybil's brows drew together thoughtfully. The papers slipped from her fingers and fluttered to the floor.

and start in all over again. Exactly like a poor adoring fool, you see. So I hurried back to the Seville, and up to our room.

"There lay my husband, drunk, across the bed. An empty bottle on the floor. And beside it a little card. Do you remember, Mab, the card we saw on the boat? The purser showed it to us. It said 'una rubia' on it, and the purser told us it meant the girl was blond. This one said 'triguena.' I know that means brunet, because Richard says love is a matter of types, and you see he likes dark women."

"Sybil—oh, my dear!" "Her name is Isabella, and she lives downstairs somewhere." Sybil was talking rapidly—disconcertedly now. "My husband particularly likes girls with dark eyes and olive skin."

"Sybil—darling—don't!" Mabel threw her arm protectively across Sybil's shoulders. "You poor girl—don't, dear!"

Sybil contemplated the ring on her left hand thoughtfully. "Why not?" she demanded. Gently Mabel drew her closer. "It's so horrible." She shivered. "And—besides—perhaps Richard didn't go there. Maybe he just found the card."

Sybil sat up very straight, and shaking Mabel's arm away, turned her level gaze upon her friend. "Don't be a dumb-bell, Mab," she with me so that Mother would know, I can tell her he's just a crazy man we met on the trip that I don't care a bit about. And you will stick with me, won't you, Mab?"

"You know I will, Sib."

"Well then—I guess that's settled. Will you grab a ferrigno, Jack, and hustle down to the steamship office and get us a stateroom? We have round-trip tickets. Mab's coming along like a good girl—arent' you, dear?"

"Oh, I suppose so," Mabel concurred dubiously.

"Angel!" approved Sybil, and turned briskly to Jack.

"I'll help Mab pack," she told him, "and if you'll come to take us to the boat after you make the reservations, we'll be all ready."

When Jack had gone she turned helplessly, to hide the tears that stung her scorching lids. Fumbling in the depths of a big beaded bag, she found a handkerchief, and pressing it to her trembling lips, began to bite its lacey edge, until it became a tattered little rag. Her bravado had vanished, and all her crisp, efficient manner.

"Oh, Mab!" she whispered, and it was such a weary, defeated little whisper. "Oh, my dear—my dear—whatever shall I do?"

CENTENARY ENTITLED TO NOTICE

Gentlemen's Victory Over Aggies Stamps Them Great Team.

By BYRON F. RIDDLE
United Press Staff Correspondent
DALLAS, Oct. 17.—The "dope" upsets which were predicted early in the season for Southwest Conference teams have already started occurring with unseemly regularity and at the same time, conference officials are brought face to face with the request of an outside school for admission that appears to be making itself heard.

Just what effect those upsets will have on the individual team is yet a matter of conjecture. The probability is, however, that in some instances they will be a help rather than a detriment. Last week, two upsets occurred to mar the day's results. These were the 6 to 0 defeat handed the Texas Aggies by Centenary, on the Aggies' home field, and the 14 to 0 defeat handed Baylor by Arkansas.

Centenary college of Shreveport is seeking membership in the conference. They request admission by the formal application route some time ago. Thus far their request has been in vain. Now it appears that the Gentlemen from Shreveport are literally forcing their way in. Last year they handed defeat to four conference teams: Rice, Baylor, T. C. U. and S. M. U. This year, they are in a fair way to repeat their performance.

The reason for these defeats at the hands of an apparently smaller school may be laid to luck for awhile for before long, the Southwest Conference teams will be forced to think up another and better excuse. In the meantime, their application for membership will probably lay idly by.

The reason given thus far for denying Centenary membership is due to the fact that conference members desire to make the conference smaller and more compact. In that case, it might be wise to consider eliminating one or two of the present weak members of the conference to make room for Centenary.

Their defeat at the hands of Centenary last week is expected to put the Aggies on edge for weeks to come. To be defeated by an invading team on Kyle field is a practice that the Aggies have not been accustomed to. They might come back now with their wealth of ball bats, and fair line, to deal misery to their remaining opponents on this season's schedule. They play T. C. U. Saturdays at College Station.

Southern Methodist University should have no trouble downing Rice Saturday, although the Owls staged a wonderful comeback when they defeated Trinity, 20 to 6 last week.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS

MOM'N POP

After the wonderful performance of the Texas University Longhorns against Vanderbilt, however, it is almost a safe bet to say that the team that beats Texas wins the championship. The Longhorns have both backfield and line material and they believe in fighting. This was demonstrated against Vandy, raised as a leading Southern Conference contender when they outplayed the Commodores through three quarters.

Texas Christian University has not yet had a chance to test its mettle. That will come Saturday however, when they invade College Station. The chances are they will meet a different team that the one that played Centenary last week. At least the Aggies will be in a different frame of mind.

Barring a tie, four teams will have tasted defeat by sundown Saturday. In a way it is disgraceful to taste the bitter sting so early in the season and patrons may be assured of a hard battle in each of the games scheduled.

Alameda

A number of people around here have begun gathering their peanut crops. The crop has been estimated rather low in this section of the county, but we hope will turn out to be better than it is expected.

Singing at Alameda was well attended Sunday and we extend a cordial invitation to everyone to attend singing here next fourth Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Jones are spending a few days out on the plains with their daughter.

Miss Ruby Apple, who is teaching school at Alameda, is spending these next two weeks at home as our school turned out for two weeks to give everyone a chance to gather the crop.

Children are spending the week with relatives near Carbon.

Mrs. Russell Horner and little daughter left Sunday for a week's visit with relatives in Westbrook, Texas.

Cheaney

V. V. Cooper has a crew north of Cheaney putting in roadways for the water and the road just built by John Daniels and crew.

The water system at Cheaney has been greatly improved of late and the grounds are in fine shape. All helps to beautify Cheaney.

We are all proud of the efforts being put forth to upbuild Cheaney school.

The J. O. Calvert well was spudded in last week and is going fine.

The T. P. Jones well will be spudded in soon.

Jno Parish and family of Ranney were in Cheaney recently, gathering fall garden truck for winter.

David Lowe of Cross Roads was at Cheaney Sunday getting a crew to help him thresh peanuts Monday. Mr. Lowe dug early thus he threshes early.

Grandpa Mitchem is visiting his sons, Walton and Elwood, at Breckenridge.

We are having another rainy spell at Cheaney.

School was suspended by J. C. Lockhart, so we could dig our peanuts and just a few were ready to dig, but after a good rain most all will get busy and our school will start again after a while.

Sunday school and preaching were well attended last Sunday in each house. Cheaney can boast of two Sunday Schools and if we had another building we might have three each Sunday.

Joe Snell is improving and will soon be able to walk again, we hope. He fell off the Jesse Blackwell store and stove up his ankles so he has not walked for two weeks. Grandma Walton is reported some better, but is still very low.

J. E. Walton of Sweetwater went home Saturday after staying with his mother two weeks.

Earl Strickles in threshing peanuts for Frank Lemly and Joe Tucker just now.

J. T. Walton and L. A. Melton were jurors at Eastland this week, but were excused because of sickness in their homes.

O. S. Milton and Lin Gentry of Cheaney were Wiles visitors Tuesday. Most all are through picking cotton and peanut digging will be the order of the day soon.

AL'S CROWDS SPONTANEOUS AN ENORMOUS

Senator Pat Harrison Says Hoover Can't Take "Cool" Advice.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—Senator Pat Harrison, who is the southern member of the advisory committee of the democratic national committee, declared yesterday that Governor Smith's trip into the south and the border states has already shown the absurdity of republican hopes of making inroads on the "Solid South" and has brought home to the Hoover leaders the seriousness of the situation confronting the republican party.
He said:

"There is consternation in the republican camp. Mr. Hoover and his aides in Washington are in such a political frenzy that even the president advises them to be cool—not to become stampeded.
The situation has become so tense,
that on yesterday they called Mr.
Hilles, national committeeman of New York, and Mr. Machold, the New York state chairman, down to Washington. The newspapers were told that this was one of the most important conferences yet held in Mr. Hoover's behalf. Undoubtedly, it is a very important conference. Just how important it will be noted in the fact that Mr. Hilles and Mr. Machold were told to return to New York immediately and take charge of the campaign. In other words, Mr.
Hoover put the New York fight up to them. We have it from official sources.

"The feverish activity of the colonels and lieutenants in the Hoover camp do not fit well with the soothing admonition of the white house staff but, of course, as a matter of fact, both Mr. Hilles and Mr. Machold know the situation better than those in Washington. They know that what Mr.
Hoover needs is a little action rather than a little quiet and for months they have been endeavoring to bolster up the boys out in the other states by prediction of "good news" from New York, but the "good news" is not forthcoming.
As a matter of fact in New York there is nothing but "bad news" for the republican management. It was bad enough when Mr. Smith, after eight years of magnificent service to his state, became the presidential nominee;
it became "worse news" when Franklin D. Roosevelt was nominated by acclamation by the democratic state convention. As a result of the candidacies of Governor Smith and Mr. Roosevelt it is high time that Mr. Hilles and Mr.
Machold were called to Washington. The result of the conference speaks for itself.

How About a Slow "Movie" of This?

PARIS, France.—That the distance between England and France has increased five meters during the last 300 years is one of the possible deductions from new longitude reckonings made public by the Paris observatory.

The longitude between Paris and Greenwich taken in the reign of Louis XIV in the seventeenth century was 9 minutes 20 seconds and 95 hundredths of a second.
The new measurements reveal a difference of two hundredths of a second which reduced to linear measurement is five meters or about five yards and a half.

Scientists point out that the difference may be due to the greater accuracy of modern instruments.
On the other hand, it may also be due to the generally accepted theory of the movement of the continents.

never considered the southern states as anything but democratic.
In fact, the scurrilous campaign that has been waged against the governor in these states under the guidance of certain outside influences has only stirred the democrats of the south to a keener sense of their responsibility and their devotion to democratic doctrines. The south is O. K. and it was most fitting that at the opening of his second tour Governor Smith should touch its border and greet those whose support he never had any reason to doubt.
"Mr. Hoover, a few days ago, announced that he would enter a border state for an address and immediately we were informed that 75,000 persons would greet him at Elizabethton. They were careful to select the one part of the south always known to the republican. The 25,000 who were mustered together by a concentrated move left the attendance at Mr. Hoover's much heralded speech exactly two-thirds short of the anticipated audience. Look at the crowds throughout North Carolina to greet Governor Smith.
There were more people at any one of the 10-minute stops to greet the governor with only a few hours notice than greeted Mr.

Hoover in the republican settlement of Elizabethton after weeks of concentrated effort. There is little wonder that political events during the last three weeks, favorable to the democratic cause, have caused consternation in republican national headquarters. There is bound to be a break between Mr.
Hoover and President Coolidge on the issue of keeping cool, because the situation confronting Mr. Hover at this time will not permit it."

How to Reduce Varicose Veins

Many people have become de-led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen

OIL MEN ANNIHILATE SPACE WITH AIRPLANE

Sail Through Clouds to Meet Business Associates Far Away.

(Editor's Note: The author of the following article is a noted oil man and formerly was financial writer for a New York newspaper.)

By S. F. BALENTINE
In San Angelo Standard

Today, space means nothing to the modern oil operator.

At 10 o'clock Saturday morning Frank Pickrell, vice president and general manager of the Texas Oil and Land company, had George Henshaw, president of the Henshaw Oil Corporation on long distance telephone. Pickrell was in Big Spring and Henshaw was in his office at San Angelo.

An important matter pertaining to development in the Howard Glasscock oil field was under discussion and a point was reached where maps became necessary—Pickrell said, "all right, I'll be in your office at 12 o'clock."

At 10:15 Pickrell was in his Ryan Brougham 5-passenger plane, accompanied by Stacy B. Dorn, head of the land department for the West Texas and New Mexico area for the Marland Oil company, the writer and J. Harold Mangin; the pilot.

At 11:45 the party stepped out of the plane at the municipal airport at San Angelo—the 12 o'clock appointment was kept.

Air Trip Delightful.
The writer was traveling as a guest of Pickrell and the one hour and thirty minutes in the air was very delightful. Not being a seasoned aviator many impressions were indelibly written—impressions that the seasoned traveler of the air never notices.

The Ryan Brougham plane, of course, is enclosed with the pilot seated in front—the next seat was occupied by Stacy Dorn and the writer, the rear seat by Pickrell. The engine was running slowly when we topped in—just warming the engine up a little the pilot said, "Pickrell pointed to a roll of cotton, saying, 'if you will put a little of that cotton in your ears you will not notice the propeller quite so much and the altitude will not bother you.'" He was then reaching for some cotton for himself—Dorn, who is not seasoned as an air bird himself and I began stuffing our ears.

The indicator was showing that the engine was making 1,500 revolutions per minute—the pilot released the brakes and the plane began moving—a few feet more and I noticed that the wheels were still revolving but not touching the ground—I turned around and glimpsed at Pickrell that we were off the ground—he smiled and nodded—he was watching Dorn and I—not the ground—the get away was so smooth that one never missed the ground—it only appeared that the ground was dropping from under us.

Viewed Oil Field.
A few minutes more and we sighted the derricks of the Howard-Glasscock oil field—Pickrell leaned forward and said to tell the pilot to swing over to the left a little; he wanted to see what was going on at Settle A-5 and A-2—the order was carried out from an altitude of approximately 1,000 feet reading of the Tag Altimeter; we viewed the respective wells and field—the field as a whole looked small and the derricks very far apart.

Another few minutes and I noticed that we were passing the Cushing ranch, just to the west of the ranch buildings—that was the last land mark that I knew. I noticed that the plane was making altitude—the meter showing 2,500 feet. The pilot turned around and said, "I'll show you something beautiful in a minute—he did, he began climbing up through the clouds and we were soon sailing along at an altitude of 4,000 feet above the clouds—they looked like banks of white snow. Dorn seemed to have his mind entirely on the oil business—as he continually kept pointing out some wonderful structure in the clouds.

We sailed along above the clouds for a period of 25 minutes then dropped to an altitude of 2,000 feet so the pilot could get his landmarks. At 11:25 we passed east of Mertzon and discovered that we were out of our direct course and headed east to San Angelo—landing at 11:45 after making a circle over the city at the new municipal airport.

"One of the important moves that should be made by each West Texas town is to establish an airport," Pickrell said. "Traveling by plane is developing so rapidly," he said, "that safe landing fields should be one of the foremost in the program for each community."

Sports Matter

By United Press.
Jack Delaney, whose real name is Ovilla Chapelaine, is back on the pugilistic map today after an absence from the ring for nearly five months.

A crowd of 6,500 witnessed the return of the Bridgeport fighter recently at Elbert Field. Delaney, retired light-heavyweight champion, again seeks the title. The first hurdle was cleared when he won a technical knockout over Nando Tassi, Italian school teacher, in eleven rounds of scheduled fifteen round battle.

When Delaney crawled through the ropes that night tradition was on his side. It was in the same park that he made his metropolitan debut some seven years ago, when he knocked out Bert

State Champs

Two champions out of the west are Aubrey Conner, 19, of Hillsdale, Okla., shown in upper photo, and George McColm, 17, of Fremont, Kas. They've been picked as the champion 4-H club boys of their states, in view of their leadership in many agricultural projects and their high records in farming.

Collins in the semi-finals of the Weimert-Journee go.

Delaney demonstrated he still retains the punch that won him the light-heavyweight title from Paul Berlenbach in 1926. Tassi was down for a count of eight in the first round and was on the receiving end of Delaney's left hook and right uppercut until the fight was stopped by the referee in the eleventh. The Italian's nose was split in the tenth and Delaney rained blows upon the injured member until the crowd cried, "Stop it."

Sharkey Trimmed Him.
Last year Delaney was regarded as one of the favorites to survive Tex Rickard's complicated heavyweight elimination contest. Delaney was a great puncher but the experts wisely shook their heads saying, "He may be a great puncher in the light-heavy division but he will find his right hand wallop is merely a tap when he mixes with bigger and stronger fellows." Even at that, Delaney, who began mingling with heavyweights in 1926, has scored knockouts over Sailor Martin, Tom Roper, Quintin Romero-Rojas and Bud Gorman. He won decisions from Young Bob Fitzsimmons, Johnny Risko, and King Solomon.

Jack Sharkey, Boston sailor, wrote "finis" to the heavyweight career of the Bridgeport fighter on May 1 of this year. A terrific two listed attack beat Delaney out after one minute and thirteen seconds of the first round.

"In the Bag" Talk.
Cutting loose with savage swings to the jaw at the opening bell, the Bostonian drove the bewildered Delaney about the ring. Delaney managed to land only one blow, a right, which slightly bruised Sharkey's collarbone. A succession of rights to Delaney's head and jaw caused Bridgeport

Jack's knees to sag and he clutched for his opponent, Sharkey drove a terrific right to the body and sent his opponent to the canvas.

There were some hints that the fight was "in the bag." James A. Farley, chairman of the Boxing Board, called referee Lou Magolla over to the side of the ropes and said, "Tell those two fellows that there are wicked yarns going about concerning the fight. I won't stand for one crooked move. If I see a false step or a halting punch I'll have them thrown from the ring." After the fight there was an investigation, but it was concluded that Sharkey's victory was fairly earned.

Back in his own class Delaney will find the opposition a bit rougher than when he retired as champion. Tommy Loughran as title-holder is one of the cleverest fighters in the game. Delaney will find the Philadelphia a different opponent than the one he won a decision over in 1924. Jimmy Slattery, who cannot be termed an actual contender won from Delaney in 1924 and again in 1925.

Delaney has a life-time record of participating in seventy-four fights. He won thirty-two by the knockout route and has been knocked out twice. Thirty-one were won by the decision route, no decision was awarded in two of the fights, six decisions went against him and two were draws.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

James M. Ross, managing editor of the Lexington (Ky.) Leader, says:

"That the time wasted by the average young man and woman can never be made up. The golden hours pass rapidly; the task of building for the future cannot be put off from day to day, from year to year, without taking its toll from the youth who things, 'I still have plenty of time.'"

There is never "plenty of time." When one is 20 it seems that so many years are in perspective that waiting another month or a year will not be missed from among so many—but it will.

"I have known so many youngsters who put off plans for the future from year to year until now it is too late and they will be restless in the shadows of mediocrity and even failure—restless because they still hope to do something big, dissatisfied with their own lives and even hoping

Bucky and His Wife Take In Races

You would think that a young man with a lovely wife and a young child to support would be worrying over the loss of a job that was reported to have a salary of about $80,000 a year attached to it. But it seems Bucky Harris, who was fired a few days ago from such a job as manager of the Washington Senators, is not. Here he is attending the races at the fall opening of the Laurel, Md., track with his wife, daughter of ex-Senator Sutherland of West Virginia. Buck is shown in the center. Rumor has it that he will manage the Detroit Tigers next year.

for that chimerical event that never comes: "Something may turn up."

"Something" rarely turns up—it must be turned up, and those who wait and hope without putting their best efforts to the task every day are sure to be found wanting, unless they are more fortunate than the common run of humanity.

Sullivan Calls For Whisperers

By FRANK SULLIVAN.

If it is not too late, let's start a whispering campaign against Hoover. They say one has been started against Smith. They say anti-Smith persons have been going about whispering as follows:

1. He is uncouth.
2. He wears a brown derby.
3. He says "foist" for "first."
4. Once, on a hot day, he said he would like to blow the froth off a schooner of beer.

(This last is obviously the bunk. Smith is smooth-shaven. He would not have to blow the froth off a glass of beer. That custom was started by men with large mustaches to prevent telltale snowy patches of froth from clinging to the mustache to serve as a giveaway to inquiring wives.)

New, for this Hoover whispering campaign, we shall require about 3,000 expert whisperers and they ought to be able to whisper in at least two or more foreign languages, for we must cater to the foreign vote. We shall want these whisperers to skulk silently about on dark nights between the hours of midnight and 4 a. m., whispering the following set of little-known facts from Herbert Hoover's lurid past:

1. He is uncouth.
2. He was the fellow who killed the Austrian Archduke in 1914, thus starting the world war.
3. He invaded Belgium.
4. He is the missing Charlie Ross and also the missing Dorothy Arnold, and he killed Elwell.
5. He once wore a gray fedora with the brim turned up in front and down in back and with a red feather stuck in the band.
6. He butters his radishes.
7. He says "Pardon me."
8. Both he and Al Smith are really Senator Curtis in disguise, and Senator Curtis, if he could be induced to take off his mustache, would stand revealed as Senator Robinson, who in private life is Senator Borah.

TALKING FILMS MAY MEAN END OF MUSTACHES

Critics Say Voices of Unshaven Least Distinct Than Colleagues'.

LONDON—A crushing blow has been dealt to the mustache. Critics here declare that the voices of mustache and beard wearing actors in talking films are less distinct than those of their clean-shaven colleagues.

Tonsorial experts predict that this will be the death-knell for the mustache which for the last five years has been making slow but

Hot Biscuits for Breakfast— an easier and better way

Strange, isn't it, that when Mother announces "Hot biscuits for breakfast," everyone hops out of bed without any urging?

Just try this time-saving scheme and we'll wager your family will have hot biscuits for breakfast often.

Whenever you make biscuits for the evening meal, mix up enough extra dough for the following morning. Have your biscuits all cut out, put them in the pan and keep them overnight where it's cold. All you have to do the next morning is to heat your oven and bake them.

Try this rested recipe for biscuits given below. Made with Crisco they are light, tender, fluffy and snowy-white.

Maister Recipe

for "Rolled" Biscuits

- 2 cups bread flour
- 4 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 4 tablespoons Crisco
- 3/4 cup milk or water (for "drop" biscuits)
- 2/3 cup milk or water (for "rolled" biscuits)

Sift dry ingredients together 3 times. Work Crisco in with fork. Add liquid gradually.

Form dough into shape, roll 1/2 inch thick, cut. For round-shaped biscuits, cut squares, then diagonally in half. Brush top of biscuits with melted Crisco or milk. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Makes about 12 biscuits.

To use buttermilk or sour milk beat in 1/2 teaspoon soda for each cup of milk. (If milk is very thick, use a little more milk.) Use same amount of baking powder and follow method for either "drop" or "rolled" biscuits.

steady steps toward renewed popularity.

It appears that after the war a reaction set in and mustaches and beards almost completely lost favor. The smarter-set had no time for them. The "beaver" craze ended heads. Then mustaches were seen again.

"It is difficult to say whether talking films will affect their upward trend of popularity," declared a society men's hairdresser. "Any barber will tell you that the appearance of a new favorite on the screen or stage is invariably reflected in men's fashions."

"When Rudolph Valentino was so popular men were coming in to have their mustaches shaved off every day. Now the rage is the straight-lined mustaches, something like an eyebrow, worn by John Gilbert."

A look around London reveals that there are quite a number of prominent men who favor mustaches and beards.

Members of the cabinet who wear mustaches are Lord Balfour, Neville Chamberlain, W. C. Bridgeman, Lord Salisbury, Viscount Peel, and Sir John Gilmour.

There are probably fewer mustaches in the house of commons today than at any time in its history, although recently it has been noticed that some younger members are growing them.

More socialist members sport them than conservative members. The speaker, Captain E. A. Fitzroy, has a well-trimmed slightly grey mustache. Other well known members who have mustaches are Lloyd George, Sir Herbert Samuel, Ramsay MacDonald, J. R. Clynes, and J. H. Thomas.

In the world of art mustaches are numerous. They are worn by Bernard Shaw (accompanied by his famous red beard), Sir James Barrie, G. K. Chesterton, H. G. Wells and Arnold Bennett among others.

TEAPOT DOME TRIALS STILL UNCOMPLETED

Stewart's Case One of Several Yet Pending in Oil Leases.

By HERBERT LITTLE, United Press Staff Correspondent. WASHINGTON, Oct. 17.—The "oil trial season" when courts and congressmen and others in public life annually consider the great number of law-suits resulting from "Teapot Dome" starts in a few days.

Existence of such a "season" of course is due to the fact that courts and congress are most active in winter and spring. This year's crop of hearings is not expected to be as spectacular as those of last year, but it is likely to be two or three more years before all litigation and investigation are concluded.

The most notable event for this winter is the trial of Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil company of Indiana, on a charge of perjury before last year's senate—Teapot Dome committee. This is set now for Nov. 12, but an intervening event is likely to have a decided bearing on the trial.

The District of Columbia circuit court of appeals is expected at its next decision session, Nov. 5, to announce its ruling on Harry F. Sinclair's appeal from a three-month jail sentence imposed for refusing to answer questions of the senate Teapot Dome committee in 1924.

One of the points brought up in the Sinclair appeal is whether the investigation was in line with the senate's legislative function, and, consequently, whether the questions put to Sinclair were valid and backed by a legislative purpose.

Fall Indictment Pending. If the court upholds Sinclair's contention that the questions had no legislative purpose, then Stewart also might tear down the charge against him without even a trial.

If Sinclair loses, he expects to appeal to the United States supreme court.

In addition to these cases, bribery indictments against former Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall and E. L. Doheny, who leased oil reserves from Fall, are pending, no dates for trial having been set since they were voted four years ago. These indictments are based on Doheny's "loan" of $100,000 to Fall, made a few months before the Elk Hills lease. There is also an indictment charging Fall with conspiracy to defraud the government in the lease of Teapot Dome to Sinclair. Sinclair was tried alone on this charge and acquitted last spring after Fall's case was severed and postponed because of his illness.

The only other jail sentence imposed in an oil case, the six-month sentence for Sinclair together with four months for H. M. Day, a Sinclair lieutenant, and 15 days for William J. Burns, noted detective, is on its way to the court of appeals here. These penalties, imposed as a result of the activities of Burns agents in shadowing Fall-Sinclair trial jurors just a year ago, may be argued late this winter or early next spring. A supreme court appeal is expected if the court of appeals upholds the contempt of court convictions here.

Blackmer Case Postponed. A $100,000 contempt of court penalty which the government is seeking to assess on Harry M. Blackmer, Denver oil man and Teapot Dome missing witness, was scheduled to come up for argument here Oct. 15, but failure to serve Blackmer in France with the papers in the case has caused a postponement. This is the second suit of this kind, both arising from the oil man's refusal to appear to testify in one of the Teapot Dome trials after he had been subpoenaed in France.

One other case, now before the United States supreme court, has a remote touch of Teapot Dome. This is an appeal of H. Leslie Parker from lower court decisions which turned down his suit against Sinclair for the value of one-seventh of the stock of the Mammoth Oil company at the time Sinclair through this company leased the Dome. Parker claimed a one-seventh right to the placer mining rights on the oil fields, which he said Sinclair agreed to pay off.

In addition to all these, the senate has several new angles which may be investigated, particularly dealing with the leases on Salt Creek field in Wyoming near Teapot Dome, which the interior department made to various persons. The Standard Oil interests now control most of the production under these leases.

MENDOZA NOW LEADS MEXICO BANDIT GANGS

Displaces "El Catorce"—Charged With Series of Releasant Crimes.

By GESFORD F. FINE, United Press Staff Correspondent. MEXICO CITY, Oct. 17.—Benjamin Mendoza, a bandit who sometimes operates almost on the borders of the capital, is seizing the front page honors formerly held by the famous "El Catorce." The bandits or rebels who recently fought with federalists on the Cuernavaca-Mexico City highway almost within sight of an automobile containing United States Ambassador Dwight W. Morrow and Mrs. Morrow was said to have been members of the Mendoza group.

Mendoza with Maximiliano Vigueras is regarded as responsible for most of the recent holdups of motorists on the highways around the capital. In at least one of his attacks, Mendoza exhibited a savagery which is generally rare among the bandit gentry in Mexico.

This was the holdup and assault of a dozen or more automobile loads of Sunday week-enders on a visit to the famous cave near Cuernavaca. Besides being deprived of their money and valuables, several women of the tourists' party were assaulted brutally by Mendoza's men. The bandits, using the tourists' cars, also fired on a nearby village.

Facts of the holdup, including the details of the assault on the women, were slow in reaching the capital although as much as could be published eventually got into print. One of the victims was reported on excellent authority to be connected with one of the capital's most prominent families and had been married only a few days previously.

Wiped Out Garrison. Mendoza's attacks on villages and towns in the state of Mexico and the region around Cuernavaca where he generally operates have on one or two occasions been extraordinarily relentless. At one point where he wiped out a small federal garrison, his men, came away with 50 federal uniforms, according to a foreigner who was in the district at the time.

With himself and a picked band wearing the uniforms, Mendoza and 50 men entered another town in the guise of federalists and asked for local volunteers to help hunt Mendoza. Twenty-seven citizens responded. They were barely outside the town, according to the story brought to the capital, when the bandits turned on the volunteers and killed them without warning.

Twice the Mendoza band, or a group believed to have been under his direction set loose wild locomotives on the Cuernavaca-Mexico City railway in an attempt to wreck passenger trains. Each time the locomotive wrecked itself.

Within the past few weeks, a federal escort of 25 men on a
