Eastland and Stephens Counties to Hold Institute

JOINT SESSION WILL BE HELD IN EASTLAND

School Teachers To Have
Two-Day Meeting October
11 and 12. Program
Announced.

Eastland and Stephens counties will hold a joint school institute at the High School in Eastland, Thursday and Friday, October 12. It will be conducted by Mrs. Ula Brockman, county school superintendent of Stephens county, and Miss Beulah Speer, county school superintendent of Eastland county.

Dr. Musselman of Dallas, R. T. Ellis of Fort Worth, and Dr. Roberts, president of Randolph College at Cisco, will be on the program.

First Day.

Meeting in general assembly at 9:30 a. m. Thursday, Oct. 11, in the Eastland high school, the Rev. F. E. Singleton, Methodist pastor at Eastland, will read a Scripture passage, and the invocation will be given by Pastor H. W. Wrye of the Eastland Church of Christ. Words of welcome will be delivered by Judge V. T. Seaberry and the response will be by F. H. Patterson of Parks. Music will be by Eastland home talent.

Beginning at 10:10 o'clock with an address by Dr. Roberts, the following program will occupy the attention of the institute: "Standard Tests," James F. Cox, Abilene.

Departmental:

High School—directors, A. M. Limmer, Desdemona and T. M. James of Caddo. Address by R. D. Bittle, superintendent of Eastland schools, on "Correlation of Affiliated and Non-affiliated Schools."

Farmer Kills Self After Wife's Death

By United Press.
CORPUS CHRISTI, Oct. 2.—Less than a half hour after he had been told that his had been found dead as the result of a self-inflicted wound, J. M. Reynolds, farmer, shot himself to death with a rifle. Justice W. W. Sharp pronounced both cases suicide, following an inquest.

LIONS PLAN TO ENTERTAIN FOR THE LADIES

Will Be Hosts At Dinner
Next Tuesday Night In Roof Garden of Con-nellee Hotel.

Eastland Lions will observe Ladies' night Tuesday night, October 9. All members of the club and their wives are urged to attend. Members are expected to notify the secretary of the club if they will attend and how many will be their party. This is for the purpose of arranging plates for all who will be there. The meeting will be on the roof garden of the Connellee Hotel and will be at 8 o'clock sharp. The club will not meet Tuesday at noon.

Four new members, B. E. (Bert) McGlammeary, J. W. (Joe) Thiel, Nick Prutley, and Superintendent F. B. Bittle, were formally initiated as new members by the club at today's meeting.

President Donald Kinnaird urged everyone taking trees through the committees appointed by the Lions club during their tree campaign to turn in their orders between now and the next meeting of the club in order that the trees may be ordered.

Japan Awaits Royal Wedding

NEA Tokio Bureau

All Japan is eagerly awaiting the royal wedding of Prince Chichibu, heir apparent to the emperor's throne, and Miss Setsu Matsudaira, daughter of the former Japanese ambassador to the United States, which is scheduled for Sept. 23. Miss Matsudaira is a thoroughly Americanized girl, having attended school at Washington, D. C., and is also an excellent dancer and tennis player. She is shown above with the prince in the inset.

BUCKAROOS AND MAVERICKS TO PLAY FRIDAY

Game To Be Played In Breckenridge Will Be First
This Year In Oil Belt
District Race.

The Oil Belt district race is about to start. On Friday afternoon at Buckaroo field, the Eastland Mavericks and the Breckenridge eleven will play the first conference game of the year. These teams are traditional "opening day" rivals and have opened the season for the last four or five years. There are no other conference games in the district until the following week.

Coach Gibson's men have shown up well with a pair of victories over Class B opponents. The first game was a 6 to 0 win for Eastland over Cross Plains. The struggle was played in a sea of mud but, despite the unfavorable condition of the gridiron, Eastland clearly outplayed their opponents at all times. The next game—which fortunately was played on a dry field—enabled the Mavericks to display their speed and they defeated the Rising Star Wildcats 19 to 0. The visitors never threatened to score although their quarterback, Firpo Thompson, is a player of such caliber that he would be a star on any Class A eleven in the district, and he and his team mates will make the Wildcats one of the contenders for the Class B district title.

Two factors are being relied upon by Eastland in the game against Breckenridge—speed and fighting spirit. The Mavericks have a fast backfield and the entire team is made up of boys who are always in there scrapping. Such a combination as this has, on innumerable occasions in football, won over weight, experience and reserves.

Secret workouts are now the order of the day at Maverick field and the "no admittance" sign is up. Coach Gibson is working strenuously in order that his team will take the field Friday in tip-top condition to battle the Buckaroos from beginning to end.

Fidac Leader

Mrs. Adalin Wright Macauley of Menominee, Wis., will represent the women's auxiliary of Fidac, international veterans' federation, at the American Legion convention in San Antonio, Oct. 8 to 12. Mrs. Macauley, former head of the Legion auxiliary, was elected president of the Fidac auxiliary in a recent convention in Bucharest, Rumania.

Tank Cars.

By United Press.

OLNEY, Texas, Oct. 2.—Pat Eaton, fireman, and W. I. Bryan, express messenger, both of Wichita Falls, were injured when the W. F. & Southern passenger train crashed into a string of tank cars on a siding through at open switch here late yesterday.

Railroad officials who investigated the wreck expressed the belief that the switch showed evidence of having been tampered with. The train, which was traveling slowly, remained on the track.

Execution Of Girl Murderer, Hickman Set For Oct. 19

By United Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 2.—William Edward Hickman today had but two chances to escape hanging for the murder of Marion Parker, Los Angeles school girl.

He lost a third chance here late yesterday, when a writ of error sought by his attorneys from the state supreme court was denied. The action had been based on the contention that Hickman's constitutional rights had been violated. Unless a reprieve can be obtained from the Governor of California, or individual members of the United States supreme court, can be induced to allow his case to come before that body, the Kansas City youth must go to the gallows of San Quentin penitentiary on October 19.

Accused Man Is Returned To Jail

By United Press.

CORPUS CHRISTI, Oct. 2.—Robert Lothringer, Beville barber, who with Ralph Whitenton, fellow workman and their wives, is charged with murder in a hospital here, September 5, of E. C. Young, was in jail here today.

He was arrested in his shop in Beville, Monday, at the request of Sheriff Ben Lee of Corpus Christi. He had been at liberty since September 26, when he was released on a $15,000 surety bond. The bond was signed by a lawyer as representative of the surety company, but the firm cancelled the bond and Sheriff Lee ordered Lothringer jailed again. Private parties are on Whitenton's bond and those of their wives.

THOROUGHbred RACING HORSES BURN TO DEATH

Eleven Animals Valued At $200,000 Destroyed In Stables of John D.
Hertz In Illinois.

By United Press.

CHICAGO, Oct. 2.—Eleven thoroughbred racing horses valued at more than $200,000 were burned to death last night, when fire swept the John D. Hertz stables, near Cary, Ill., 38 miles northwest of here.

Reigh Count, champion three-year-old for 1928 and Kentucky derby winner, was led to safety by Jimmie Allen, a stable boy. Seven other valuable horse also were saved.

Possibility that the blaze was started by an incendiary was under investigation today.

DEAD CONVICT CARRIES MARKS ON HIS BODY

Relatives At Santa Anna
Want Investigation. Fight
With Another Convict Is Reported.

By United Press.

SANTA ANNA, Texas, Oct. 2.—An investigation into the death of Dave Rutherford, convict on Ramsey state farm, who died at Angleton, September 25, will be demanded by his widow, it was learned today.

The body of Rutherford, who was sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying in 1924 of J. H. Giffin, city marshal of Santa Anna, arrived here last Friday and funeral service was held Saturday.

The death certificate accompanying the body said Rutherford died of a string of heart attacks on September 25 of "heart failure." The body revealed many cuts and scars resembling knife wounds, according to statements made by Mrs. Rutherford, W. H. Hosh, a Santa Anna undertaker, and J. R. Moore, photographer of Coleman.

Cuts on the right side, across the arms and a wound in the neck, several gashes on the left side of the head and a split lip and chin, were revealed by examination of the body, they said.

Photos of the body were taken by Moore at the instance of the widow and Rutherford's brother who lives in Childress. An investigation will be launched but just what steps will be taken had not been decided today, Mrs. Rutherford said. The brother returned to Childress, taking with them more negatives and cautioning Moore not to talk.

Rutherford was convicted in Brownwood several years ago. He escaped from jail, was retaken and had been in the state institution for about a year.

OTEY, Texas, Oct. 2.—The bookkeeper at Ramsey prison farm, near here, said today that the death of Dave Rutherford, convict, under investigation at Santa Anna, was caused by injuries received in a fight with another convict about a month ago.

He said that Rutherford and J. E. Edwards, who has since been transferred to Huntsville, were trustees and were working together in one of the buildings when the fight started. They fought for 10 or 15 minutes with every weapon they could find, the bookkeeper said.

"It was a case of two bad men fighting and the cleverest one winning," the bookkeeper, who refused to give his name, said.

Rutherford was treated in the prison hospital and was believed recovering when he suffered a relapse and died.

UNIVERSITY MAY ABOLISH FRATERNITIES

Regents Consider Action,
Following Death of Nolte
McElroy, Student,
During Initiation.

By United Press.

AUSTIN, Oct. 2.—Authorization given President H. Y. Benedict of the University of Texas to appoint a committee to investigate every fraternity and sorority at the school for the purpose of providing more drastic regulations in the future, and relieving L. Theo Belmont of his duties as athletic director after Dec. 1, constituted the major portion of work accomplished by the board of regents, who adjourned their session shortly before last midnight.

Belmont, who has been athletic director for the past 16 years, will be succeeded by Dr. Hyman J. Ettlinger, professor of applied mathematics in the engineering school. Belmont is to be retained for two years as professor of physical training.

Investigation of the fraternity system at the school came as an aftermath of the death of Nolte McElroy, of Houston, university student who was killed during initiation ceremony of the Delta Kappa Epsilon fraternity Sunday night. Practically the entire corps of regents went on record as favoring the abolition of the fraternal system and the investigation is the first step in this direction.

Plans were considered whereby three dormitories could be financed without loans, the incoming rental being used to pay for the structures. This would be the first step in abolishing frats, because a large percentage of the students are now domiciled in fraternity houses. There is only one rather small dormitory for men students.

Dr. Ettlinger Made Active Director of Texas U. Athletics

Special to the Telegram

AUSTIN, Oct. 2.—By action of the board of regents late Monday, L. Theo. Belmont has been relieved of all connection with athletic affairs of the University of Texas. He has been director of athletics for the last fifteen years. He has been director of athletics for the last fifteen years. He will remain with the University as full professor of athletics.

The action followed a report by President H. Y. Benedict that it appeared Belmont was so deeply involved in personal controversies that he would not be able to contribute to the restoration of harmony in the University. One year ago he was placed on probation because of controversies over athletic policies.

Dr. H. J. Ettlinger, professor of mathematics, was chosen for active director of athletics, the appointment to be effective December 1.

Pumping Plant of Texas Company Is Swept By Fire

By United Press.

SOUR LAKE, Oct. 2.—One man was badly burned and damage estimated at $125,000 was done when the Texas Corporation company's main line pumping station here was swept by fire that began at 7:30 a. m. today.

The station's fire fighting equipment, and units from the Sun Company, the Gulf company, and the Beaumont fire department, fought the flames with water and dirt for nearly three hours before the fire was brought under control.

J. B. Hooks, 55, was injured. He was taken to a Beaumont hospital, where it was said he was badly burned but was expected to recover.

A broken connection scattered oil over a hot exhaust and started the blaze, it was believed.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
WASHINGTON—Every who can read or, failing that, knows what the words from the loudspeaker mean, must realize by now that this is a political campaign and that the candidates don't mean maybe.

Unless Al Smith loses his voice, it probably will figure as the hottest campaign since 1896. It is certainly eclipsing those of 1900, 1904 and 1908. The 1912 result was a foregone conclusion in which Taft and Roosevelt pasted each other while Wilson walked into the White House.

No one could have hoped for a hot campaign in 1916 with two austere intellectuals such as Hughes and Wilson leading the parties and the brave efforts of Cox in his hopeless defense of Wilsonism in 1920 brought no real fire from the Republicans.

In 1924 there was no attack at all insofar as the major parties were concerned and one candidate appeared about as colorless and conservative as the other.

On the surface, the present campaign seemed rather a disappointment from the standpoint of sensations up to the time Smith reached Omaha. It looked as if the candidates might act like Davis and Coolidge in 1924, performing like a couple of wedding cakes and inspiring nobody, while a lot of dirty work went on under the surface as usual. But suddenly things began to happen.

Within 24 hours, Smith had blown off the roof of all hopes that it would be a nice, sweet, respectable, impersonal campaign, the G. O. P. headquarters here was having conviction fits. Candidate Charlie Curtis had been heckled in Iowa—of all places—and had gone up in the air only to descend on Tammany with both feet and Big Bill Borah was ramming into the lists to bombard Smith with the same kind of hen-fruit he had hurled at Hoover.

It was to be sure, a swell start and the hearts of Washington correspondents thrilled for about the first time this year. Hoover headquarters here was not frightened, but was distinctly disturbed. Apparently the folks there had mistaken Smith for Little Lord Fauntleroy. They had supposed Smith knew that he had no business chiding the farmers, that it wasn't cricking to throw tin cans, rocks, eggs, bricks, vegetables and other such material in a presidential contest and that the Emily Post's of politics unanimously agreed as to the barbaric enormity of ever mentioning one's opponent by name.

Yet Smith had done all these things and the next day was one of the heavy conferences, personal and telephonic, at Hoover headquarters. Obviously, this new method of campaigning introduced by the irreverent Mr. Smith had to be met.

No candidate can remain long erect on a pedestal when the other fellow starts pelting him as Smith pelted.

Hoover probably received more advice in one day than he had ever had in one month of his life. Eastern conservatives demanded that he jump all over Smith for his radical promises to the farmers, while western agrarians urged that he go Smith one better.

The upshot was that the Republican board of strategy decided the best possible answer to Smith's Omaha speech was a counter-attack. Senator Borah, billed for perhaps, than stressing the construction of concrete floors."

Dr. Anderson adds: "We were, of course, glad to learn that your new city manager, Mr. Tatum, is quite sympathetic towards health work."

STATE HEALTH OFFICER SAYS WORK IS GOOD

Approves Efforts At Eastland To Carry Out Provisions of Standard
Milk Ordinance.

By United Press.

Dr. J. C. Anderson, state health officer, writing to Jay Phillips, Eastland's sanitation officer, relative to the recent inspection and grading of dairies and creameries in and near Eastland, says:

"We note that 448 cows have been tested and not one reactor found. We also see that all the milk handlers have provided themselves with a health certificate. This is a mighty good record even if you have accomplished nothing else."

"You state that you have approximately eight grade A dairies, twenty grade B and 25 grade C, and with the rest of them no grade at all. This is not so bad for the short period that you have had the milk ordinance and you should not be discouraged. It seems from your communication that the low grade dairies take their products to Ranger."

"Some of the important things to stress with the dairymen are as follows: Washing the cows' udders with a disinfectant solution, sanitary method of sewage disposal and the sterilization of the milking utensils plus the bottles. We believe this is most important, perhaps, than stressing the construction of concrete floors."

Dr. Anderson adds: "We were, of course, glad to learn that your new city manager, Mr. Tatum, is quite sympathetic towards health work."

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 2.—A youthful "hitch hiker" was sought by Tulsa police today as the kidnaper of Yvita Gunter, 15, of Briscoe, Okla., missing since the young man drove away with her in her father's automobile near Claremore. When John Gunter, the parent, left the car for a moment the young man jumped to the wheel and sped away with the girl.

Gunter said the alleged kidnaper gave his name as Young of Frederick, Oklahoma.

Woman Held For Husband's Death Says He Beat Her

By United Press.

MALLEN, Oct. 2. C. H. Fry, 51, was shot and fatally wounded in the backyard of his home here today. Mrs. Fry, wife of the dead man, was held by police for questioning.

According to a statement issued by Mrs. Fry, her husband had been whipping and beating her for several years and last night stood over her with a butcher knife threatening her with death. The shooting took place early this morning, according to Mrs. Fry, who said: "My husband was in the backyard and I was on the back porch. He was cursing me and he made a rush for the back door saying he was going to kill me. I grabbed a shotgun and fired."

Both barrels of the gun had been exploded. One load of shot lodged in Fry's chest and the other struck him in the back.

The examining trial was set for tomorrow.

MISSIONARY A CAPTIVE FOR DAYS

Chinese Bandits Release Aged Man After Getting $400 Ransom.

By EDWARD HUNTER, United Press Staff Correspondent. HANKOW, Oct. 1.—Haggard and sore of body after 18 days of captivity in a tiny, filthy, windowless hut, Monsignor George Froewis has been returned to the Catholic mission of Sinyangchow, a small city in the interior of bandit-ridden Honan province.

The 64-year-old missionary who has spent 35 years of his life in China, underwent hardships which would have killed many a younger man not accustomed to Chinese conditions. During his captivity, with but a brief interval, he was closely guarded in his windowless hut, so dark that he could not tell the difference between day and night. The hotel in which he was kept was filthy beyond description and the terrific heat of a Honan summer was at its height during his entire captivity.

For six days in succession, thrice a day, he received for nourishment a bowl of hot water, in which slim, elongated soda biscuits fried in oil, which the Chinese call yu-quo-tse, were left to soak. He was given nothing else to eat. He had no change of clothing throughout his captivity, despite the heat which kept his attire wringing wet with perspiration.

The captors of the Monsignor are connected with the local militia, stationed at one of the market towns between this city and a small village not far away, revealing the ease with which soldiers turn to banditry and bandits turn to soldiery. On the night of the capture the aged missionary was treated to brutalities. The release of Monsignor Froewis was obtained without military assistance, as it was feared this would react against the aged captive. The missionaries at Sinyang determined to request military help only as a last resort. They feared not only for the capture, but for the lives of the many innocent people living in the village which it would have been necessary to raid.

The Catholic mission attributes much of the success of the rescue to Yang Kwang Yu, head of the Sinyang Chamber of Commerce. This aged man, a personal friend of the prelate's, commissioned two relatives of his to go into the bandit-ridden country in search of clues regarding the whereabouts of the missionary. They worked tirelessly for 12 days, until they finally discovered the party which had done the kidnapping.

They were successful in capturing one of the bandits implicated. A threat to deliver him to the authorities brought him to terms. In order to retain a minimum of "face" he pleaded that at least $1,000 should be handed to his bandit comrades as remuneration "for the hospitality tendered to the old foreign gentleman during his sojourn."

After a considerable amount of bargaining, the amount was finally reduced to $400, and given to Yang Kwang-yu, as a token of friendship. He paid this over to the bandits. This round-about method was taken so that the bandits could not declare that the money was paid directly by the missionaries, as the loss of "face" would have been disastrous in future cases of this sort.

The promise also was made to the missionaries that after the captive was set free, no steps should be taken by the missionaries for the arrest of the bandits. However, whatever measures the provincial authorities may eventually take to rid Honan of bandits were not involved.

WARNS ABOUT HOG CHOLERA

FORT WORTH, Oct. 1.—Hog cholera is becoming a serious menace to the swine industry in West Texas, according to N. F. Williams state veterinarian.

"Hogs, supposedly immunized, are being shipped from East Texas to the west where the feed crop is unusually good and where hog raising is at present very profitable," he declared. "As a matter of fact, however, many of the hogs have been vaccinated by farmers who are not acquainted with the proper methods of administering vaccine and virus.

"The result is that efficient inspection is impossible, since improper vaccination severs rather than to retard cholera."

Dr. Williams suggested an act by the legislature regulating the condition under which vaccine may be administered.

Like most women, Sybil needed anchorage desperately. . . She clung to Craig, wanting him and not wanting him.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Valerie West, pretty and charming—and hard as nails—is engaged to Tad Thorne, adored brother of Sybil Thorne, notoriously lovely and indiscreet. Sybil, a Boston society girl who has had plenty of affairs of her own, distrusts Valerie from the beginning, and is fearful for Tad's happiness.

A few days before the wedding Tad finds Valerie with a monogled Englishman, buying a diamond ring. She introduces him as Lord Montford and tells Tad that the beautiful dinner ring she exhibits proudly is a wedding gift from his lordship. Furiously Tad orders his fiancée to return the ring. Lord Montford intervenes, and Val begins to argue.

Now go on with the story:

CHAPTER VIII

Slowly Valerie slipped the ring from her finger.

"Here, Monty," she said. "Tad's right. Thank you just the same."

She took Tad's arm.

"You know, Monty. I'm crazy about diamonds. But I'm crazy about this big boy, too. And he's an awful bad actor, Monty."

Valerie was carrying a delicate situation with nerve. Tad thought he had never seen her so adorable before. She extended her slim hand.

"Goodby, then, old dear. We'd love to have you come to the wedding, wouldn't we, Tad? And the reception, too. It's only for our very best friends—but we'd adore having you. Wouldn't we, Tad?"

"Delighted," murmured Tad, icily.

They were shaking hands, Lord Montford and Valerie.

"So sorry," he told her, "that I can't be able to. But, you'll look me up when you run over to London? And remember me to your charming mother. So curious to have seen you again, Cheerio."

"Damn clown!" thought Tad, and tugged a little at Valerie's arm.

Outside she turned on him.

"Well, Tad Thorne, I don't know whether I want to kiss you, or slap you. You big idiot, you! You darling old thing!"

"You know I was right, Valerie."

"Yes, of course. That's why I'm so sore about it. You're always right. And I'm always wrong. But, Taddy, that was a peach of a ring! I'll never have another like it."

She sounded very wistful.

"You're a little imp, Val. Don't you know it would make an awful simp out of me, to have you wearing a ring like that, from another man?"

"Oh, I suppose so," she agreed, "but that isn't my fault, is it?"

He looked at her sharply.

"No," he agreed quietly, "it isn't. But you don't have to marry me, you know, Val, if you don't want to."

"Don't be a fool," she admonished him saucily. "You know I do."

Three days later they were married.

Valerie wore her "misty pink," and carried roses of a deeper shade. She seemed more like a fairy princess than a bride, and looked as though she had risen from the heart of a rose. Her veil billowed about her like clouds at sunrise, and everyone whispered, as they always do at weddings, "Isn't she the loveliest bride you ever saw!"

Tad seemed very serious and a little pale, as he bent tenderly over her exquisite wife. His curly chestnut hair was graying at the temples, and though he was less boyish, he appeared very handsome. Morning clothes and silk hats make some men grotesque and others magnificent. Tad was the Apollo type.

Mrs. Thorne bustled around, telling everyone, "I haven't lost a son. I've gained a daughter."

But her cheer was all assumed. For the wedding she had discarded her heavy black, and worn a gown of lavender georgette. The following week she would be quite conscious stricken about it, fearing that people might talk. Sybil had clung stubbornly to black, but she knew that Valerie disliked the idea.

Her dress was of black satin, swathed about her lithe figure, and her skirt was draped and caught at the hip. She wore a large black mian, faced with flesh georgette, and pink pearls that Craig had given her.

Some people said she was lovelier than the bride. Craig thought her infinitely more beautiful.

Sybil had been dreadfully discontented that Spring. But melancholy, which usually makes women unattractive, had softened her, and tinged her expression wistfully.

Like most women, she needed anchorage desperately. Formerly she clung to Craig. Wanting, and not wanting him. She had asked him to tell no one of their engagement. In that way, she felt that she had left a sort of loop hole.

Now she studied him critically, as he stood at the altar, waiting for the bridegroom. He caught her glance, and smiled at her with his eyes. He was really very handsome, she reflected, and remembered with quiet humor, a bit of her mother's homely advice—"A girl could go a lot further and fare worse."

"Here comes the bride!"

The little organ in the loft was booming exultantly. And Valerie, on her father's arm, marched down the aisle. Eyes downcast, arms full of roses, and a big, white prayer book in her little hands.

She looked like a nun, devout and pure. Tad, coming from the vestry, had joined Craig. All other eyes were for Valerie, but Sybil's dwelt compassionately on her brother.

"Poor Taddy. Poor little devil. If she's not good to you, I'll fix her!"

Valerie was making the responses. Clear and sweet her voice rang through the church. Sybil had heard her at rehearsal the evening before, instructing Tad.

"Speak up good and loud, dear. Most men mumble so foolishly."

And now Tad was mumbling. You could scarcely hear his voice beyond the chancel rail.

The little church was heavy with roses and all the languorous, passionate odor of crimson flowers. Candles flickered in tall holders. And there was hint of incense, and the close, sweet smell of sanctity. A gold chalice stood on the altar, and a Bible dripping purple satin ribbons.

"It's like Val," thought Sybil, "getting tied up so grandly and fussily, with all this holiness. She is making it seem complicated, but that doesn't make any difference. It comes untied these days, however elaborately it's knotted."

Man and wife! It was over. Tad bent and kissed his bride.

"Part of the act," reflected Sybil.

She had inadvertently heard that, too.

"As soon as the minister blesses us," Valerie had told him, "you're to take me in your arms, Tad, like a movie lover and kiss me very gently. Be careful not to muss me. And if you catch your buttons on my veil, I'll leave you on the spot."

They were coming up the aisle. Valerie's slim hand rested lightly on Tad's arm. She smiled to left and right, leaning prettily on her husband.

Their attendants followed them. Bertha's rose pink had heightened her color. She looked hot and uncomfortable, and took Craig's arm awkwardly. As they passed Sybil and her mother, Craig smiled again.

Mrs. Thorne was crying softly, and Sybil braced herself for the ordeal of the reception. There was to be a wedding breakfast at Somerset Inn. Everything very nice and exceedingly correct. The Wests had a small apartment, and it simplified matters to have breakfast at the smart little seashore hostelry.

"After all," as Mrs. West had said to Mr. West, "Valerie's our only daughter, and we might as well do the thing up right."

"Oh, sure," conceded Mr. West heartily. "We'll give Val a good send-off."

The affair was entirely successful. A muffled orchestra played softly, and everything was quiet and decorous.

"I suppose it's a dreadful thing to say," remarked Mrs. West to Mr. West, as they drove home in a hired limousine afterward, "but since Mr. Thorne had to die anyway, it was the luckiest thing for us that he did it just before the wedding. Quiet weddings are comparatively reasonable, you know. My dear, I simply shudder to think what this affair would have cost us if the Thorne weren't in mourning."

Mrs. West folded her hands upon her ample bosom. "It's an ill wind," she remarked, "that blows nobody good."

Tad and Valerie were going to drive to Montreal and Quebec, and upon their return were to visit at the Thorne's place at Wianno. They planned to start housekeeping in the fall, and would not look for an apartment until midsummer. Valerie had been quite in-

ATLANTIC REFINERIES USE MORE FOREIGN CRUDE

20,000,000-Barrel Increase, of Which 13,000,000 is Imported.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28.—The amount of crude petroleum refined at plants on the Atlantic seaboard was increased during 1927 by approximately 20,000,000 barrels, or 15 per cent, over 1926, according to the United States bureau of mines, department of commerce, which has completed a study of the sources and distribution of major petroleum products in the Atlantic coast states in 1927, in co-operation with the American Petroleum Institute. Of this increase, 7,000,000 barrels consisted of domestic crude oil and 13,000,000 barrels were foreign crude. Runs of foreign crude comprised 28 per cent of the total throughout, as compared with 22 per cent in 1926.

The effect of increased runs of foreign crude oil during the second half of the year was evident in the decreased relative production of gasoline and the increased production of gas oil and fuel oil. That this decrease in relative gasoline production was due to the lower gasoline content of the foreign crude as compared with the domestic crude available and was not occasioned by a curtailment of cracking operations is shown by the fact that gasoline produced by the cracking comprised 35.11 per cent of the gasoline production during the first six months and 35.47 per cent during the second half of the year.

The demand for gasoline in the Atlantic coast area increased by 10,152,000 barrels, or 11.5 per cent, over 1926 and a slight increase was noted in the demand for kerosene. Deliveries of gas oil and fuel oil, however, decreased from 110,157,000 barrels in 1926 to 107,790,000 barrels in 1927. This decrease of 2,367,000 barrels, or 2.15 per cent, in deliveries of gas oil and fuel oil resulted from a decreased demand in the South Atlantic states.

Gulf Coast Tankers.

Receipts of crude oil by tankers from Gulf coast ports continued to increase, reaching a total of 85,212,000 barrels, as compared with 78,992,000 barrels in 1926 and 72,556,000 barrels in 1925. Pipeline receipts from the mid-continent field increased from 7,458,000 barrels in 1926 to 13,605,000 in 1927, due principally to a larger movement of Seminoe crude. Tanker receipts from California were slightly smaller than in 1926.

different about a place of her own. "Oh, of course, we can get some thing when we get around to it, Tad," she insisted, "but why rent a place now, and start paying rent months ahead of time?"

"But I should think," he ventured, "that you'd be anxious to get all your things around. We've got a raft of wedding presents, Val. Guess we can fix up a pretty swell little cabin, dear. How about it?"

"Oh, Tad, I'm not particularly keen about settling down in a hurry. If your mother will put up with us for awhile—it's so hot in Boston in the summer, you know. I'd lots rather wait."

Sybil went alone to Wianno, to open the place for the return of the newly-weds.

FAMED FIGHT AT TOLEDO IS VIVIDLY TOLD

Dempsey Followed Careful Plan in First Move Against Jess Willard.

By HYPE IOGE, Famous Boxing Writer. To my mind comes back that day at Toledo. Jess Willard had no more idea that he was going to lose than you have that you'll never again see the sun come up.

When they got into the ring and Dempsey followed Kearns' instructions in his first three or four moves Willard laughed. It was the laugh of a surprised, checkmated champion.

Here were Dempsey's instructions: Jimmy De Forest, his trainer, had one dominant thought: Make Willard miss his first right-hand punch.

Kearns and De Forest went over the details of Dempsey's first moves by the hour. They practiced it in the quiet of their rooms at training quarters.

"Willard will come out and let fly a right," De Forest told Dempsey. "The cue is to make him miss that right. He won't believe it possible. It is the peculiar conceit of a champion that he can do no missing," went on Jimmy.

"Almost with the same motion that you use in sidestepping, step right back in front of him and let your left go to his jaw, a right to the heart and then all you have into a second left to the jaw. You'll wreck him. He'll be so rattled at missing, and getting three solid clouts in the bargain, that he'll be yours then and there.

What all saw what happened. My first impression of Willard was seeing the soles of his shoes glistening in the sunlight! Dempsey had actually upset him in the air. Then, quickly, seven knock-downs. Some one has criticized Dempsey for not finishing Willard then and there.

Dempsey was declared the winner by the referee while Jess still was on the floor, but in the meantime the timekeeper, Warren Barbour, signaled the referee that he had pulled the bell cord but that the caller had been fouled with a rope when they placed an extra canvass on the floor.

What man that ever lived could have floored Willard seven times in the first round? Fitzsimmons might have done it—he alone. Never Jeffries. Jeff never was that kind of hitter; he couldn't floor Choynski or little Sharkey.

MOM'N POP

Penn Threat

You'll hear a lot about this young man this fall. He is Paul Scull, captain of the Penn eleven, and a mighty football player is he. He not only is a nice running back, but a sweet manipulator of a football on the end of his toe when points are needed by kicking.

Fitz knocked Sharkey kicking in eight rounds in Frisco and two rounds here in New York. They said he fouled Sharkey out on the coast. Fitz wasn't that kind of a hitter.

Then came Willard's finish and proof that he didn't have the divine spark—the fighting spirit. At the end of the third round the bell rang, with Jess in my corner, causing him to walk, unassisted, clear across the ring. He sat down and, watching him, I noted that he was wrangling with Ike O'Neil and Walter Monahan, his handlers. O'Neil, his trainer, told me afterward that Willard suddenly seemed to come to as he sat in his chair at the end of the third round.

OLD-FASHIONED DANCE REVIVED IN PHILIPPINES

Governor-General Stimson Sponsors Return of Stately "Rigodon."

MANILA.—Governor-General Henry L. Stimson's revival of the stately rigodon has met with great approval of old-style Spanish and Filipino residents of Manila.

The rigodon, a dance somewhat similar to the French quadrille, was a feature of the governor-general's ball at Malacañan palace shortly after the opening of the Philippines legislature.

Governor-General and Mrs. Stimson themselves participated in the dance, which was subsequently described as "dignified, graceful and elegant," featured by "interchange of places, bowing to each other's partners, marching with rhythmic poise to the tune of music."

Virtually all the local press commented favorably on the Stimsons' action in making the rigodon a feature of their reception, and the Free Press, a Manila weekly magazine, found symbols in it.

"The executive is bowing and scraping in the legislature, and the sweet and mellifluous phrases by which the governor-general is referred to by members of the legislature are sweet as honey. That's the essence of the rigodon—co-operation, class and friendly. One false step and the measure is spoiled."

Urge Support of Texas Industry

The following letter has been sent out to nearly a thousand stockholders in Texas:

Enclosed is check covering sixteenth consecutive quarterly dividend on Imperial Sugar company 7 per cent preferred stock.

The Imperial Sugar company is truly a Texas institution; its entire capital stock is owned by over a thousand Texas citizens.

The payroll at Sugar Land is in excess of a million dollars a year; the company spends another two million dollars a year for miscellaneous purchases from other Texas manufacturers, jobbers and retailers. Our annual expenditure for taxes is in excess of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. Our school tax, alone, for 1927, amounted to twenty-one thousand dollars.

None of our competitors are returning to Texas these several millions of dollars a year, neither are they interested in the building and maintenance of our schools, our highways and our general welfare; thus when you demand Imperial, your sugar money remains at home.

Will you kindly pass the above information on our company to your neighbors and friends, and urge them to specify Imperial sugar? By doing so they benefit Texas at large; they benefit you as a stockholder; they benefit us as Texas manufacturers, and your friends may, also, possibly be interested in becoming stockholders.

With best wishes, we are, Very truly yours, IMPERIAL SUGAR CO.

Washington Church Victory Sunday To Be Observed October 21 In the Eastland County Christian Churches

Plans for the erection of a National City Christian church at Washington, D. C., are being brought before the Christian churches of Eastland county this week, looking forward to the observance of Washington Church Victory Sunday, on October 21.

The building of the National City Christian church is a part of a three-year program of the Disciples of Christ (Christian church) held at Columbus, Ohio in April, the erection of this representative church. A goal of $500,000 has been set for the day. Already more than one million dollars have been raised toward the fund.

The building of the National City Christian church is a part of a three-year program of the Disciples of Christ (Christian church) held at Columbus, Ohio in April, the erection of this representative church. A goal of $500,000 has been set for the day. Already more than one million dollars have been raised toward the fund.

The site for the church comprises about 50,000 square feet of ground facing Thomas Circle, at the junction of Massachusetts Ave. and Fourteenth Street, six blocks from the White House. It is considered to be the finest available site for a downtown church in the city of Washington.

The general plans for the building, designed by John Russell Pope of New York City, have been approved by the building committee. The structure will be of the American Classic style of architecture and will be a fitting companion to the great government buildings and monuments of the capital city.

The choice of the architectural style is also in keeping with the recommendation of the art commission of Washington that future buildings of an imposing character be of classic design. A tower, one hundred fifty feet in height rising beyond a colonnade of twelve classic columns, will be the most arresting feature of the building. The building group will include, beside the house of worship, a modern educational unit and a small prayer chapel.

Doctor Found Women and Children Sick More Often than Men

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of Dr. Caldwell's 47 years' practice, he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and placed it on the market.

The preparation immediately had as great a public success as it previously had in Dr. Caldwell's private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us it helped when everything else failed.

While women, children and elderly people are especially benefited by Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, its mild, gentle action is promptly effective on the most

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

That some cities wait for prosperity, while others go ahead and make it.

That every citizen should get on the band wagon and boost for the home city and its future prosperity.

That it is your parade or it is your funeral. Get busy and boost hard—make it a parade.

That a lot of fellows who should be boosters seem to be suffering with brain fatigue; somebody should wake them up.

That work alone will never hurt anybody, but work and worry will break down the best of them.

That no city should drift along without thought of the future.

That if it does it is because they have too many self-satisfied citizens who are satisfied with their lot and lack ambition.

That if these people would stop drifting along and would take some interest in city affairs, they would become boosters, yet be in no danger of being hurt by worry.

That they should dig around a little and they would soon find out that much good can be done and they would be surprised to see what good has already been accomplished by the live ones.

If a lot of grouches now living in some cities would look around and get acquainted with the home city they might like it and quit knocking it.

EL PASO TO PLAY AT CISCO

Heavy Experienced Team Invades Big Dam City Next Friday.

CISCO, Oct. 1.—The Lobos of Cisco high school are not going to be over-confident when they meet the El Paso Tigers here Friday. True, they defeated the El Pasoans in the border city last year but it was only by a margin of one touchdown and they had to fight hard from beginning to end.

The Tigers appear to be stronger this year than they were last—at least, Bud Roe, sport writer in the El Paso Herald thinks so. Their 38-0 victory over Artesia, N. M., would indicate it.

Commenting on the Tigers' prospects, Roe had the following to say:

"There's going to be some high-class football played by the high school Tigers this year, and you can lay to that, my hearties."

"It was a cheerful sight that greeted Ed Olle when he donned his coaching clothes for the first time this year. A large squad of candidates, most of whom had been through some stiff practice sessions by Olle's partner, 'Cops' Clyde Waffer, during the last few weeks, that was on hand to bid welcome to the affable young mentor."

"In that squad there is material for a winning football team, and Olle and Waffer are the two boys who are capable of whipping it into shape. The two mentors, both just out of school themselves, went over big in their first year here last season. Since then each has attended a coaching school and with the practical experience picked up last year, they should be able to develop an undefeatable outfit this season."

"That is their one aim, and don't be surprised if they accomplish that ambition."

14 Lettermen.
To start off with, they will have 14 lettermen, including two captains and two ex-captains, with which to form a nucleus for the combination. Included in the 14 are some mighty likely prospects, but, with the added wealth of new material, the old-timers are promised some stiff competition for every position on the team.

"The host of newcomers will be a decidedly valuable asset for the young coaches, as it means that no player, be he a letterman or not, is assured of a place on the lineup. That should tend to make the players try hard all the time, as a man fighting for a place works harder than one who can rest on his laurels."

Players of the caliber of Art Booth, captain of the Tigers two years ago; Louie Railston, last year's captain; Nig Osborne, co-captain this year; Bill Sullivan, Osborne's running mate; "Wee Willie" Schreffler, the clever little quarter, and several others are included in the list that will have to compete—and compete hard—for positions this year, and hard competition makes a football team.

220-Pound Back.
Among the new arrivals who are reasonable for the lack of size this season are "Half Pint" Gillenwater, a husky young fellow who hails from Arkansas, where, it is said, he won all-state honors last year. He is a back-field man, tipping the scales at 220 pounds, and said to be able to turn the century dash in 11 seconds.

"Another likely newcomer is 'Red' Lookadoo, carrot-topped, freckled, young pigskin who comes from Gillenwater's home town."

Dick Stark, from St. Louis, also looms as a prospective regular. While not showing much form during the opening workouts, he has a good build and seems willing to work.

"Another who has been drawing plenty of attention is young Don Thomas, who played on the Austin junior high school team last year. I picked him to be in his share of the Tiger games this year, despite the fact that he is young and has had but little experience. He is built from the ground up and has plenty of push and drive."

"B. P. Brown, who last year attended the New York Military institute, is also making a bid for the team."

"Several other newcomers, some of whom have had experience, are expected to join the squad before the end of the week, and, with one of the best squads seen here in years, it will be well worth the time of football fans to keep their eyes on the Tigers this season."

OVERDOSE OF 13 TOO BAD

NEW ORLEANS—The name of Harry E. R. Swales contains 13 letters. So does the name of James L. Daniels which belongs to a detective who brought Swales to New Orleans charged with embezzling $39,39—303 times 13 cents—from a company the name of which contains 13 letters.

Marquis Deaver, whose name contains 13 letters, brought the charge against Swales. Swales' home address contains 13 letters as does the address of the company for which he worked.

Harry Snyder, chief of the bureau of investigation for the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company on July 13 came 1300 miles from Detroit, to investigate Swales' accounts.

VETS OF AGGIE LINE

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 29. Despite the inroads that graduation made in the strong Aggie line of last year, Coach Dana X. Bible still has four veterans to count on in the new line and this quartet of stalwarts is expected to bear much of the brunt of action when the Texas Aggies meet the Sewanee Tigers at Fair Park Stadium, Dallas, Oct. 6, as a feature of the opening day of the State Fair.

SAYS AIRPLANE RIDE UNABLE TO CURE DEAFNESS

Laryngology Expert Expects Only Hysterical Variety Which is Rare.

ST. LOUIS.—It is utterly illogical to expect that hearing can be restored or even bettered by airplane dives, according to officials at the School of Medicine of Washington university here.

A number of persons throughout the United States have resorted to such drastic procedure in recent months in the hope of restoring their hearing.

"The ear is one of the most complex organs of the human body," said an expert in laryngology. "How complex is indicated by the fact that the spiral ligament in the labyrinth of the ear is composed of 24,000 fibers and the spiral ligament compared with the whole mechanism of hearing is as a screw to a dirigible. Hearing is impaired or destroyed only by the destruction of some material portion of this intricate mechanism. Once destroyed, no human agency can restore that portion."

"So, in effect, what one plunges in an airplane is expecting is that something that is gone will be brought back. It would be as sensible for a one-legged man to plunge and expect, when he reached the ground, that he would have two legs."

"There is only one exception. That is hysterical deafness. The treatment there is identical with treatment in general hysteria—heroic sudden shock or fright. Hysterical deafness, however, is rare. It might be instantly cured by fright attending an airplane under stunts, just as it might be cured by rousing the patient to great anger or scaring him out of his senses and into hearing by some other drastic procedure."

Hooks and Slides

A Beautiful Friendship Mickey Walker has become somewhat of a factor in the light heavyweight class since he flattened Armund Emanuel.

The publicity that attended his victory over the overly advertised Emanuel put him in line for a "matinee" with Tommy Loughran. Tex Rickard is fond of those "natural" things and as he is too much of a business man to permit personal prejudices to interfere with the prosperity of his board of directors it was thought that his feud with Jack Kerns, Walker's manager, might be settled amicably.

When Kerns was asked if he would bury the hatchet he said he would. But he added—"Right down in Rickard's skull."

He said he had a better way of revenge than the commission o' fassault and that he would balm his own sore spots by forcing Rickard to come through with 250 grand if the promoter wanted to use Walker.

A Slap at Sharkey In spite of every good reason to believe that Walker is through he may go on and even become a person to be considered in the tangled heavyweight situation. There is one thing certain. If he can hold up his end he will get some great managing from Kerns. Kerns knows how to pick spots for his fighters, spots that are easy for his fighter and that get the biggest blare of publicity. There is no better judge of fighters in the business than Kearns and it can be taken as more than idle chatter when Kearns says he is interested principally now in luring Jack Meusel into a match with Walker.

When it comes to holding up his end of the firm, Walker has done quite well since he hooked up with Kearns. It must be that he is another iron man as Harry Greb was and that the ordinary rules of living do not apply to him.

Didn't Have Small Change The Kankee ball players were talking during the season about spendthrifts and it was their opinion that Everett Scott, their shortstop for a number of years, was the champion with his change.

They tell the story that Scotty went into the dining room of a hotel one evening with three other players and their wives. They enjoyed a generous repast and signed the checks. When the male members of the party started to reach in their pockets to pull out something for the tip Scotty stopped them.

"Never mind. I'll take care of the waiter," he said. And he dropped a large dime right out in the middle of the table.

These words comprise an essay written by a 13-year-old Indian boy of the Odanah reservation in connection with his 4-H pig club exhibit at the Ashland county fair. The judges awarded the lad a prize on the strength of the essay.

EAST AND WEST MEET; ROMANCE SOON BLOSSOMS

Young Missourian, Smitten at First Sight, Wins Chinese Beauty.

By HAROLD P. MILLS United Press Staff Correspondent SHANGHAI.—Love at first sight, a romance between an American youth and a Chinese girl—those are the ingredients in this story that should reduce Rodyard Kipling to shame.

Harry Warren Palmer, of Kansas City, Mo., 26 years old and handsome, was sent to Shanghai to transact business with a Chinese firm of importers.

It was his first night in Shanghai and he went to a hotel restaurant. A few tables away sat a Chinese beauty and her father. Harry looked at the girl; the girl looked at Harry. They blushed and looked away. That sort of thing, you know.

Now, by all the rules of etiquette the American should have sought out a friend or an acquaintance who would introduce him to the girl. But he was more impetuous than that. He arose and walked to her table.

She met the emergency. "Father, meet Mr. Brown," she said in perfect English. The introduction was acknowledged, and before "Brown" left he heard the girl say:

"By the way, my 'phone is still West. . . . Call me up tomorrow morning. . . ."

Young Palmer somehow managed to wait until "tomorrow morning" arrived. The conversation over the telephone was long and highly satisfactory.

Then the Missourian set forth to call on the head of the Chinese firm. You've probably guessed it. Palmer's quarry was the father of the girl. And naturally he was somewhat surprised that the "Mr. Brown" of the night before was now a "Mr. Palmer."

Palmer's stammered explanation was unsatisfactory but after the Chinese had threatened not to do business with his caller the youth broke down and confessed to the deception. He was forgiven and his business was concluded.

The girl in the case was Miss Ming Liu-tze, a friend of Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, wife of the Nationalist leader. . . . And, to complete the record, the wedding was arranged to be held

Corn Stalks, Peanut Shells and Other Farm Waste Found To Have High Value, Providing Food, Clothing and Shelter

Chemical research reveals that American agricultural wastes, variously estimated at between 500,000,000 and 1,000,000,000 tons a year may eventually provide building material for our homes, part of the food we eat, cardboard containers to ship in, paper to write upon, clothes to wear and starch to iron them with, states Arthur L. Little of Cambridge, Mass., recently elected president of the British Society of Chemical Industry.

"The waste materials of agriculture," said Dr. Little, in an interview in Boston, "furnish an almost inexhaustible supply of raw material from which chemical research will develop an increasing number of valuable products of widely diversified use."

Research to increase the industrial demand for farm products offers more promise to agriculture than any single proposal yet advanced," Dr. Little warns the farmers must not be led to expect that they will be made rich overnight.

Cornstalks Gain Value

Chemistry has provided the processes, he said, but profitable mass production must yet be proved. Collection and transportation of waste materials, scattered as they are over wide areas, present a major engineering problem, he indicated.

"At the present moment," Dr. Little stated, "a very definite interest is concentrated on the processes involved in the profitable utilization of cornstalks. It has, for instance, been demonstrated thaty from the stalks pure vegetable film is readily extracted in form available for papermaking and for such other cellulose products as rayon, photographic films and certain lacquers and finishes.

"The solution of the technical problems involved is relatively simple. The factors which will decide the commercial outcome, and which still require intensive study, are the economic ones of local supply, yields and costs."

Dr. Little pointed out also that several years ago his organization built a mill in Hawaii to manufacture from waste sugarcane the mulching paper used to cover the fields in the cultivation of sugar and pineapples. More recently, he said, a highly successful industry has been developed in Louisiana through the conversion of cane sugar bagasse to building board.

Even Peanut Shells Used

"What straw has been found usable for making corrugated board containers," Dr. Little continued, "Seed flax straw is yielding an excellent insulating material used in home building. Ground peanut hulls are providing fibrous fiber needed in building materials. "Starch is being made from potatoe wastes with such profit that crop surpluses are being utilized. Fruit wastes are now converted into vegetable acids, oils and juices. Even their seeds are being used in industry. And vegetable fibers are at the present time being used abroad as binders for coal briquettes.

"True, waste materials which can be obtained from the farmer at a cost even as low as $1 a ton can hardly be handled economically in competition today with the vast piles of waste wood already available at the lumber mills, except by the most carefully worked-out transportation and handling systems. The cost of wood, however, is rising."

CITY WITHOUT LIGHT.

BUENOS AIRES.—General Villegas, noted cattle center, is now without electricity. The mayor refused to pay the electric light company's bill, and the company retaliated by cutting off the current.

The mayor objected to the power concern transferring its shares and concession to the Anglo-Argentine Electric company, contending it violated its concession and that if the power bills were paid, law proceedings would be invalidated.

U. S. CONTINUES TO ASK CUT IN NARCOTIC DRUGS

Wants Production Limited to Actual Medical Scientific Needs.

GENEVA.—The limitation of the production of harmful drugs to the world's actual medical and scientific needs continues to be the American slogan before the League of Nations' opium advisory commission.

The state department has just submitted to the league an entirely new plan for the attainment of this end which it is believed meets all of the practical obstacles that have been encountered to date.

America's original effort before the league's opium commission was for the limitation of the raw material, from which opium, cocaine and their various derivatives are produced, namely the poppy and cocoa leaves.

The present situation in China, however, makes it certain that many years will elapse before a stable government can be created that will bring about a control of the production of raw opium that would justify other opium producing countries in enforcing similar restrictive measures.

The question of limiting the production of cocoa leaves is also exceedingly difficult owing to the fact that in various countries the trees grow wild and limitation would be virtually impossible.

Factories in Eight Nations.

Undaunted by the impossibility of making headway along this line, the United States in its new project just submitted to the league, provides for the limitation of the manufactured product.

Virtually all of the "dope" in the world is now produced in some 40 factories, located in eight different countries, namely the United States, England, Germany, France, Switzerland, Holland, India and Japan.

Seven of these factories or those located in the United States, Eng-

Not a 'Silent Drama'—Dumb Witness is All

WICHITA FALLS, Oct. 1.—Visitors to the court of Justice of the Peace R. V. Quinn, were treated to a rare bit of movie acting the other day, when a negro, minus the senses of hearing and talking, portrayed in detail the facts concerning a theft case.

James Jackson, deaf and dumb negro, who originally worked in a shine parlor, was the star witness for Willie Smith, negro, also a deaf mute, who claimed that $4 had been stolen from his trousers while he was asleep. Another negro youth was accused of the theft.

As though enacting a "silent drama," Jackson related the details of the "gruesome deed," although it took almost all afternoon the court officials not being accustomed to taking that kind of testimony.

E. F. Freuchete, the defendant's attorney, assisted in one of the scenes, acting as Willie, asleep, while James played the part of the negro who absconded with Willie's funds.

When Freuchete and Dick Kenley, district attorney, called "cut" for the final fadeout, Judge Guinn set the defendant's bond at $300.
