Lions Would Hasten Day of Many Shade Trees

TREE PLANTING WILL BE MADE SAFE AND EASY

Orders Being Taken Now So Trees May Be Ordered By Thousands and Planted Properly.

According to reports received by Mr. Donald Kinnaird, president of the local Lions Clubs, the shade tree program inaugurated by the Lions is meeting with splendid success. Mr. Kinnaird reports that after the publicity of the movement given by the Eastland Telegram of Wednesday he has received applications for more than three hundred shade trees, which have been voluntarily sent in without solicitation.

At a director meeting of the Eastland Lions Friday evening committees were appointed by the chairman and assigned to the various sections of the city whose duty it will be to solicit each property owner in their respective sections to purchase shade trees to be planted on their property.

At the last meeting of the City Commission that body unanimously endorsed the shade tree movement sponsored by the Lions and passed a resolution instructing and directing the city engineer to furnish free of charge to each citizen of the city a tree line in order that the trees may be set out on each street on a straight line.

Many of the leading citizens and civic organizations of the city have responded to the movement and not only endorsed it but have agreed to activity work on the program and to the end that Eastland, like Roswell, N. M., will be noted for his civic improvement.

Fas Growing Tree
It is pointed out that the tree selected, the Chinese Elm, is one of the fastest growing and thriftest shade tree that can be planted in this part of the state and that while it is the most expensive tree that can be purchased, that according to the plan worked out by the Lions, where they can be bought at wholesale, that a single tree now selling at $3.50 can be purchased on this plan for $1.25 each set out by the nursery company and guaranteed to live for a period of twelve months.

In other words, for a tree from four to six feet high the total cost of the tree set out on the property of the citizen will be only $1.25 and in addition to the low cost of the tree the citizen gets the benefit of the guarantee of the nursery for twelve months, which cannot be done where one or only a few trees are purchased at a time.

Views Expressed
In an interview, Hon. C. U. Connelley said:

"I heartily endorse the movement started by the Eastland Lions Club, to supply at a low cost shade trees to the citizens of Eastland. It is a worthy movement and every citizen should take advantage of it."

Mrs. W. K. Jackson, chairman of the Better Home's Committee of Eastland, said:

"Our organization not only endorses the shade tree movement inaugurated by the Lions but we intend to help the Lions put it over. It costs very little to the property owner and it means so much to our city."

T. L. Overbey expressed this view: "Considering the minimum cost to the property owner compared to the value he would receive, every property owner in the city should not only co-operate in the movements but enthusiastically assist the Lions in putting it over."

H. O. Tatum, City Manager, speaking of the Lion's tree program said:

"The Lions will not only have my sympathy individually and as City Manager but my active co-operation as well. It is a worthy movement and every citizen should actively support it."

District Committees
The committees appointed by the chairman of the Executive Board of the Lions, together with the district assigned them is as follows:

South Seaman and Burkett Addition—Poe, Seaberry, Freyschlag and Campbell.

The east part of the city east of S. Seaman Street—McDonald, Cunningham, Bates and Gill.

AIRPLANE SHOW HAS THOUSANDS OF SPECTATORS

Display of Air Ships At Los Angeles Attracts Crowds Interested In Air Travel.

MINES FIELD, Los Angeles, Sept. 10.—Aviation was on here today. It has plenty of men and material. More than 40,000 persons crowded into the new airport to see the show. Thousands of others viewed the aerial display from outside the airport.

The place was jammed Sunday and capacity crowds were predicted for the next three days for the finish of the transcontinental races. Roads over the 15 miles from Los Angeles to the field were jammed with automobiles. Flying fields near the field opened a modern tax service—$7.50 for a flight to Mines field and return after today's races and stunts were finished.

In the great exposition at the field, army and civilian pilots here for vacations and ideas mentally compared their sturdy old machines with the bullet-like streamlined 1929 models.

Groundlings stared open-eyed at the flashy monoplane and biplane and mentally compared the marked prices ranging from $2,000 to $4,000 for the most expensive, with the prices they paid this spring for the new sedan.

Model Home Has Many Visitors

The charming model home, constructed by A. H. Pritchard in Hillcrest, and for which Donald Kinnaird is agent, had a continuous run of visitors Sunday despite the mud and rain.

Over one thousand went through the doors of this charming abode and many exclamations were heard of the perfection of detail, the beautiful coloring, and more especially the large and airy rooms, well ventilated and lighted. The furnishings were in exquisite taste, and reflected great credit on the merchants who thus demonstrated their wares, and who were also hosts as well for the day.

The Essex car was found to be all B. D. Hampton claimed for it and then some.

The dwelling is located in a desirable neighborhood, which adds to its value. Splendid stone walks are laid around the year to the rear.

IN TELLING OF FISH STORIES FOR INSTANCE

Sullivan Compares Smith and Hoover From a Trout's Point of View.

BY FRANK SULLIVAN
Mr. Hoover makes a great show of knowing about fish, but, after all, the only fish he really knows is the trout, and a friend of mine who is quite a well known in one of the fashionable Adirondack trout streams tells me that Hoover doesn't know as much about trout as he thinks he does.

"We trout are a funny race," said this trout, whose name is Nate; "We are very reserved. Hoover may think he has our confidence but he hasn't really. Personally, give us Al Smith."

"Why?" I asked, not that I wanted to give Al Smith to a trout, but merely out of curiosity.

"Because he doesn't go trout fishing," said Nate sharply. "If you were a trout would you like people who went trout fishing?"

"No indeed."

I saw his point. The colloquy made me realize that Mr. Hoover does not stand in with trout as well as he would have the vast throngs of trout-fishing American voters believe.

Al Smith, on the other hand, worked in Fulton Fish Market when a boy and knows all fish thoroughly, including pike, perch, sea bass, weebies, whale, swordfish, grampus, electric eel, geufelhtersch and the wierd Norwegian shad, which has a blonde beard, feeds on shreds of smorgesbrod cast overboard from the Scandinavian sailing vessels and carries its grandfather in a marsupial pouch.

If a national emergency should arise calling for expert handling of fish and how to placate them, Governor Smith would be a better man to have in the White House than Herbert Hoover.

FLEA WORSE THAN MOSQUITO IN NICARAGUA

Myriads of Little Pests Impervious To Nets or Bats Marines Endure.

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer
WASHINGTON.—There are about 5,000 American marines in Nicaragua, 1500 in China and 500 in Haiti.

In Nicaragua they have Sandino more or less bottled up on a small area along the Coco river in Jinotega, which is the Honduran boundary, and are confining their attempts to locate him to patrol work and aerial scouting.

About 500 troops are in permanent garrison in the Sandino area, an about 1,000 others are nearby in the three northern states of Jinotega, Estel, and Nueva Segovia. Several hundred more are guarding the Nicaraguan railroad, line of communication, between Corinto and Managua.

Then there's a reserve force of 200 or 300 at Leon, held ready for trouble and with an eye on Emiliano Chamorro in his strong hold, the state of Chontales.

More than 2,000 are being trained at Leon for the "free and fair" election which this government has guaranteed in October, when one or two marines will be sent wherever there is a voting booth.

Lieut. Col. Lawrence S. Willis, a veteran of campaigns in Haiti, San Domingo and the Philippines is headmaster of the election school. His pupils are studying the election laws and Spanish, with special concentration on election parlance.

Summer weather in Nicaragua is not especially pleasant and neither is the life many of the marines are living in the more isolated posts. In the larger towns such as Managua and Matagalpa there are motion pictures which the marines patronize regularly, but during the rainy season many of those in outlying sections are even unable to obtain reading matter. There are no Red Cross or Y. M. C. A. workers in Nicaragua to help back up the marine morale.

Mosquitoes are baffled by mosquito nets, but the fleas are reported to be worse than the mosquitoes, what with their ability to crawl through the nets in large numbers.

There is no prohibition in Nicaragua, but some of the distillations are pretty awful. Officers have undertaken to close up many saloons where bad liquor was to be sold to marines and encouraged private clubs.

FLYING SHIPS FLY WESTWARD OVER EASTLAND

Three of Classes B and C In Trans-Continental Races Are Seen This Morning.

Three planes in Classes B and C of the Transcontinental air races passed over Eastland shortly before 11 o'clock this morning. All were flying fast and flying low. The first to pass was flying about 1,200 feet high and going fast. The second to pass was flying low, making plenty of noise and did not seem to be in such good shape as No. one. That may have been only a fancy from the ground, however. The third was about 700 feet high and did not seem to be traveling so rapidly as the two that went before.

The planes of Classes B and C were due to arrive in Fort Worth at 8 o'clock this morning and arrangements had been made there to service them as rapidly as possible so they might be speeded on their way. Each plane was required to stay on the ground for 30 minutes before proceeding on its way to Midland, the next stopping place. It is probable that each of the three that passed over Eastland left Fort Worth shortly before or just after ten o'clock.

MIDLAND, Sept. 10.—E. E. Bulough of Chicago landed on the Municipal field here at 11:21 a. m. today, the first entrant in the class B, national air race to reach this control.

PECOS, Sept. 10.—E. D. Bulough of Chicago was the first class B flyer in the national air races to land here at the municipal airport today. He was timed in at 12:25 p. m. by Miss Amelia Earhart, only trans-Atlantic woman flyer, who acted as one of the judges at this point. Weather conditions were ideal here.

Racing Planes Are Fast Approaching Pacific Terminus

YUMA, Ariz., Sept. 10.—On the last lap of their transcontinental contest, flyers in the class A division of the national air races began leaving here Monday at 7 a. m. for Los Angeles. The planes are expected to reach Mines Field shortly after noon. A stop will be made at San Diego.

Earl Rowland held out elapsed time advantage over other competitors when the racers left here.

SAN DIEGO, Cal., Sept. 10.—Leading the pack in the Class A trans-continental air race, Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kans., landed here, the last control before the finish at Los Angeles at 8:42 a. m. today. He made the best time for the trip from Yuma and was ahead in the matter of elapsed time, the basis on which the winner will be decided.

Oklahoma Man Is Identified As One Of Bandit Gang

ARDMORE, Okla., Sept. 10.—Floyd Jarrett, Oklahoma gangster, has been "positively identified" as one of the four bandits who looted the first National Bank of Lamar, Colo., killing four men, Carter county officers announced today. Lamar officers were en route to Oklahoma City today to ask Jarrett's extradition on grounds of the claimed identification.

The office here said Jarrett was "positively identified" by three citizens of Lamar who viewed the fugitive Sunday. Jarrett was identified by a garage proprietor and pool hall owner of Lamar, Okla., witnesses left for Oklahoma today to appear before Governor Johnson at 10 a. m. Tuesday, the hearing for Jarrett's extradition.

BATES TELLS OF HIS VISIT TO MICHIGAN

Spends Days In Buick and G. M. C. Factories At Flint and Pontiac and Gains Much Wisdom.

R. J. (Bobby) Bates returned late Sunday from Pontiac, Mich., driving a Buick coupe, which was assembled expressly for him, while he watched the work being done, in the factory at Flint, Mich. He drove through from Flint without a mishap or trouble of any kind. The car was purchased by Mr. Bates through the Sivalis Motor Company of Cisco.

Mr. Bates spent five days in Pontiac going through the General Motors truck factory, watching them make parts and assemble G. M. C. trucks. He met officials of the General Motors Truck Company, who did everything in their power, said Mr. Bates, to entertain him. "They gave me a wonderful time," he said. "They were very courteous and showed me everything that would be of advantage to me in my business. They took me out under the direction of the assistant general sales manager to Milford, Mich., which is the test ground for all the General Motors products. I saw them testing General Motors cars and other cars, too. American and foreign cars alike. They showed me through the factories and showed the machines and devices they use to test the cars and trucks, trying to give tests that will meet with uniform conditions the cars will encounter on all kinds of roads in all sections of the country. They certainly give the cars and trucks plenty of hard usage to determine the defects, if any. From Milford I went to the Buick factories at Flint, Mich., and went through them. The day I was there they made 1,100 new Buick cars. Both the truck factory at Pontiac and the Buick factory at Flint are from 60 to 90 days behind with their orders.

"The new models of trucks are the finest and best in the history of the General Motors Truck Company and are being received very favorably by the big users of cars and truck in all parts of the United States. Truck users in this territory will be well pleased with the new truck models, now on their way down, which we shall show within a few days. Business justifying, there should be many General Motors truck sold in this territory in the next year. I was well pleased with my trip both from a business standpoint and as a vacation."

The Governor also expected a plank calling for election for state employees and urging the legislature to pass state penitentiary board authority to buy and sell prison land.

ROTARY CLUB WANTS AIRPORT IN EASTLAND

President Weaver Names Committee To Work With Lions To Obtain Landing Field.

The Eastland Rotary Club sponsoring a movement having for its purpose the establishing of telephone communication between Eastland and Olden, four miles to the east. President Joseph M. Weaver, who has just returned to Eastland from an absence of several weeks, brought the matter up at the club's meeting today.

Another matter, which was brought to the attention of the members of the Rotary Club, was that of an airport for the city. John Mouser told the club that many aviators flew their planes to Cisco or Ranger and hired an automobile to come to Eastland. "If there was an airport here they would land here," Mr. Mouser said. President Weaver appointed a committee to make investigations necessary to determine available lands suitable for an airport.

In the discussion of the matter of an airport, it was stated by some members that the Eastland Lions club had been working on the proposition of securing an airport for the city, which is true. President Weaver said that if the Lions were working on the matter that the Rotarians would lend their aid, but that the matter should not be dropped.

The Governor also expected a plank calling for election for state employees and urging the legislature to pass state penitentiary board authority to buy and sell prison land.

COMBATING THE CRIMINAL.

French criminologists, proposing a revival of the ancient custom of branding criminals, reflect the seriousness with which nations other than ours take the problem of suppressing crime.

The idea of branding, even by painless chemical means, is not likely to be revived. But the mere fact that it has been proposed by responsible criminologists shows an attitude of mind on the part of the French that partially explains their low criminal rate as compared with ours.

Unquestionably there is a need for a more active public consciousness in the matter of crime. Changes in our legal and judicial system, sorely needed in many instances, must result from public demand that understands the seriousness of the problem and the necessity for sterner justice and expedited trials and convictions.

In comparison with Europe, our American crime situation is nothing short of disgraceful. Misplaced, maudlin sympathy has created parole, pardon, and good conduct systems that often turn the most case-hardened of felons out to graze again on society.

CHAPTER XXXVII

Lila spent but little time over breakfast, having used up the part of two hours in making self presentable. It was not t to erase the ravages of her it of fury.

ut when she left the apart- she looked stunning in a e gray outfit and a two-skin scarf. And her eyes were kling with renewed enthu- a for living. The big thing had pened. Rod and Bertie Lou e parted. That was all she ded to set her again on the old of conquest, with Rod's t as his goal.

It would be at the office, of rse. It was not uncommon for to see him there. Frequently dropped in for a word or two im when she visited Cyrus. He nodded and smiled fleeting- t the girl in the reception her passed on her way to her and's private office. Cyrus tolerant of her unannounced ents upon him and she did not er to ask if he were engaged. Her did she stop to rap for ittance.

Lila was at his desk, poring r a pile of correspondence, and rgs black scowl clouded his ally good natured expression. e paused a moment inside the m. to make up her mind what ask for as an excuse for this ticular intrusion. She decided nake it something unimportant, ng that Cyrus looked annoyed. "Lo, daddy," she greeted him, greeting he gave her in re- i was most undaddylike. ell, what do you want?" he nted.

ila came over and leaned inst his desk. "Oh, nothing if 've got a cross on," she pout- "Did you drink too much last t?"

Never mind last night. Unless can tell me why Rod Bryer the party."

Lila started. "You were the last ee him," Cyrus went on. "Did- he tell you anything."

Why, what do you mean?" e asked, barely keeping herself n stammering.

Lyrus reached out over his desk icked up a sheet of paper. s he thrust toward Lila. She k it in nervous fingers. "Read Cyrus said, unnecessary. Lila e reading. When she put it n her emotions were under er control.

That's a mean way to treat!" she declared warmly. "Af- all you've done for him!"

Lyrus glanced sharply at her. ven't you any idea why he re- od?" he queried doubtfully.

"Of course not," Lila answered mply. "He didn't tell me a g. Be I could see that he was et and I asked him what was ng. He wouldn't tell me. It's tie Lou, I guess, and the way s behaving with that young eo Palmer. Maybe Rod's quib job to take her back to Way s. Didn't you see him? Have s talk with him, or anything?"

"No. He came in early, his ogographer told me, and wrote note to me. That's all I know. It's queer. If he'd given e reason. To tell the truth, s I thought for a while that ight have something to do h it. I've an idea that young yr thinks more of you than he id."

Lila laughed and came over to her arms around his neck. on't be a silly old daddy," she red. "If Rod cared anything ut me I'd know it. However, Cyrus reached up and patted e hand. "You've been seeing a rge him," he reminded her fat- ly. "You must be more care- ulla. You're not the sort of girl a man can be around very much without being tempted to fall in love with you."

"You flatter me, darling," Lila replied with a wry smile. "But we needn't worry about Rod—I think he's concerned over Bertie Lou. And when a man's thinking about his own wife he isn't likely to fall in love with another's. You don't know where he's gone?" she added suddenly.

"I don't know anything except what's in that note. He quit, without notice and without giving a reason. And I'm damned if I'll take him back!"

Lila did not think Rod would ask to be taken back. He was showing more manhood than she believed he had. This was a move she had not anticipated. It would be hard to keep in touch with him now.

"Oh, don't be harsh," she said. "It is enough to make you angry—such ingratitude. I felt that way at first, but after all, you know, we might find out that he had a very good reason, or maybe the poor boy just didn't know what he was doing."

"You're too soft hearted," Cyrus told her with admiring reproof. "People aren't always grateful, you know, dear. See how Bertie Lou has returned your kindness."

"I know," Lila sighed, "but Rod is different; let's give him a hearing anyhow. Have you any idea where we could find him?"

Cyrus hadn't. And Lila soon left to search for Rod in her own way. She called on the private detective she had retained to solve the mystery of her "stolen jewels." She had let him work on the job for a week and then had dismissed him, well paid and with a thorough understanding that she did not wish the mystery solved.

Now she sent him out to find Rod. It was a matter of days before he returned with the address of a rooming house in the West Forties. Lila went there immediately. But she did not find Rod at home. And when the landlady described his caller in answer to the questions he put because he feared it might be Lila, he recognized the description as fitting her.

Again he moved, and this time he left no trace. He took a room in the upper East Side, well outside the pale of the fashionable river section. He believed Lila would not care to visit him there even if she located him. And he was in no mood to see her.

Life was a stark reality of fundamentals now. A matter of bread and bread. For Rod was broke. He had engaged a lawyer, paid him a fee for the legal work of banding over everything Rod possessed to Bertie Lou; turned most of his personal belongings into cash which he sent to his father to clear the loan he had received from him, and started out in search of a new position with no credentials and no patronage.

It did not seem to him axiomatic that he should strip himself of everything he owned, except a few clothes, and give most of it to his wife. He wanted nothing to do with money earned through Lila's interest in him. Bertie Lou might as well have it. At least it would buy her a decent trousseau when she married Marco Palmer.

It was not a huge sum that he sent her, but it made Bertie Lou gassy. Nearly two thousand dollars! At first she wondered where Rod had got it. Then she remembered that he had been saving half his salary for many months. Since Spring, in fact, and it was now early Fall.

She was inclined not to touch the money. It seemed to her that Rod had saved it in cold calculation as the price of his freedom. He could not desert her without making some provision for her, Bertie Lou surmised. So he had saved until he could go without feeling like a scoundrel.

Bertie Lou wept and laughed over the money. No wonder he never would tell her why they must live so niggardly, do without things, move into a cheap apartment and not have a maid—even a cleaning woman by the day! He was saving to leave her!

She cried and laughed some more. It really was funny, she told herself. Their living together that way, saving just as they'd planned to save for that home they were going to build some day—

But that was before they were married. Bertie Lou sat suddenly down on her bed and ceased to laugh, even hysterically, as she had been doing. That house! Had there ever really and truly been a time when she and Rod had planned a house, a home of their own! A stab of poignant pain in the region of her heart supplied the answer.

Rod ought to have known that he couldn't buy himself away from her though, she mourned. He could go, but she would not use the money. Perhaps she could get him to take it back.

But his lawyer said no.

Then Bertie Lou put the check in the bank and set about earning her living without touching Rod's money. She did not know what she would do with it finally, but at least she would not use it for herself.

Marco Palmer begged her to get a divorce and marry him, but Bertie Lou laughed at him as one laughs at an amusing child with impossible ideas. However, Marco would not take offense or be discouraged.

"Some day you will, Bertie Lou," he declared. "You know I'm a very fine fellow, really. I'd make an excellent husband because I haven't a wild oat left to sow."

"Please get off that table and help me close this suitcase."

Bertie Lou was moving. She was sending the furniture from the small apartment to join that which had been stored when they moved from the larger place. She could not bear to part with any of it, though she knew it would be costly to pay storage for it.

"If you want to do something for me, Marco, get me a job. I'm a very good stenographer, but a bum wife."

Marco did help her find a position. It was with a friend of his, Bertie Lou marvelled at his constancy and self sacrifice as the months went by and he continued to devote himself to her without signs of wearying of her many refusals.

But even if she had wanted to marry Marco she couldn't have. She hadn't a divorce. It puzzled her to know why Rod was so long in seeking one. She knew nothing about him, where he was living or what he was doing.

One day a letter came from his lawyer asking her to call at his office. She felt, then, that the blow had fallen.

Various Routes to Learn Aviation Are Pointed Out

By CECIL OWEN
 United Press Staff Correspondent
 WASHINGTON.—Aviation offers promising careers to trained men in more than ten different branches of the industry, a survey made by the aeronautics division of the commerce department, indicates.

Some of the positions which may be obtained after proper training and experience are: pilot, mechanic, aeronautical engineer, factory man, airport designer and constructor, airport ground man, radio operator, traffic agent, sales man and advertising and publicity man.

There are a few other positions of extremely specialized or executive nature, but, as a rule, training in one or more of the branches indicated will fit men for such openings. In its present pioneer stage, aviation is believed to present a better opportunity to "get in on the ground floor" than any other single field.

Special training is required of those desiring to make headway in almost any phase of aviation and for the positions of technical nature a college education is almost a necessity. The varied opportunities which exist for obtaining this training, however, open the door for almost any applicant, who has the qualities required for success.

The ability to fly is a fundamental requirement in the training of those desiring to enter any branch of aeronautics. Several hundred commercial flying schools are listed in department records while flying clubs and military aviation offer alternative courses of study.

Enlistment Suggested.
 Enlistment in the Army Air Corps Reserve is suggested as one method of acquiring training and experience as a pilot. After a thorough course in flying the student is commissioned as a second lieutenant in the reserve and is ordinarily put on inactive duty. He may then enter commercial aviation. The duration of the course depends solely on the student's aptitude in learning to fly. Only men who have had two years of university training, or its equivalent, are accepted by the air corps.

To receive aviation training in the navy it is necessary to enlist as an ordinary seaman and then make application for duty in connection with aviation. Such requests may or may not be granted depending upon the allowance of men for aviation duty. The Coast Guard offers opportunities for aviation training to its enlisted personnel.

HOLLYWOOD'S FILM SHOPPE

By REUEL S. MOORE,
 United Press Staff Correspondent.
 HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 5.—The show capital of the Pacific coast is watching with interest the organization of the Milano Grand Opera company, headed by Alexander Bevani, director, and L. E. Behymer, noted impresario.

The company, which is capitalized at $150,000 and which establishes Los Angeles as its headquarters, will fill the demand the country over, and particularly in the west, for popular priced grand opera, Behymer said in announcing the organization.

"The demand for good touring companies has deprived many music loving cities of visits from some of the established organizations, more notably the San Carlo, Hinchshaw Opera company, and the Boston and Philadelphia organizations," Behymer continued.

"These companies have been prevented from coming west by other engagements, but we will have our organization on the coast and will make Pacific coast schedules of first importance, although we plan to appear in major cities in the east as well."

A number of artists will be brought here from Europe, particularly Italy, according to Bevani. He is already organizing a chorus.

The company will carry a large orchestra, with Maestro Alberto Conti, Italian conductor, in charge.

After finishing the picture "Craig's Wife," William de Mille took some time off and went on a fishing trip on his yacht, before starting on the direction and production of his first talking picture, "which is an adaptation of his own play 'The Man Higher Up.'" It will star Theodore Roberts in the role the latter created on the speaking stage.

Belle Bennett's next starring vehicle will picture "The Bur-

Many colleges and universities now offer complete courses in aeronautic engineering and graduates of these schools usually have little difficulty in placing themselves. The department's survey disclosed a demand by aircraft manufacturers for young men of highly specialized training.

Opportunities abound in aviation, the department points out, for those who are trained in somewhat elated industries. For instance, steel construction experts are needed in building hangars; road builders find opportunities in construction of runways. There is need for men with electrical knowledge to install and maintain lighting systems at airports.

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

"The sixty mile motor climb from Denver to Mount Evans is one that will take you through all seasons on the same trip," said Martin E. Rowley, one of the proprietors of the Albany Hotel, Denver, as a party of us (consisting of the Hon. Benj. F. Stapleton mayor of Denver; the editor of this column and two others) left the spacious Albany lobby to drive with him to Echo Lake, at the foot of Mount Evans. Indeed, magic and romance ever seem to permeate Colorado, and his statement was received in delightful anticipation by the members of our party, for the thermometer at the Albany entrance registered a temperate climate.

After leaving Golden, some thirteen miles away, we began climbing higher and higher, through Denver's system of Mountain Parks, over a road which is thrown lariat-fashion over the face of Lookout Mountain, the top of which marks the rock tomb of Col. Wm. F. Cody, popularly known as "Buffalo Bill."

Not far away is Colorow Point, where Ute Indians expiated unforgivable crimes by leaping to their death 2,000 feet into Clear Creek Canyon. Here we found it much cooler—there was changing foliage and the flowers were different. It was summer; yet, some how, the patches of brown here and there gave the feeling of a fall day.

From Colorow Point the motor drive continued over a broad highway (formerly a Ute trail) to Bergen Park and on to Squaw Pass, with its elevation of 9,800 feet; at which place we found our coats welcome.

We paused at Echo Lake to gaze into its crystal pools—nature's mirrors, as it were—reflecting the snow-capped peaks and stately pines. From Echo Lake a winding road is being built to the summit of Mount Evans, nearly three miles above sea level, which, when completed, will be the highest scenic motor road in the world.

We went as far as Summit Lake—about 13,000 feet elevation, and found ourselves on the top of the world, surrounded by perpetual snowbanks, as we gazed over the rolling peaks of the Continental Divide. Here, above timberline, vegetation gives up the fight for existence.

The return drive was equally alluring and as we drove up to the Albany Hotel we had to agree with our host—that we had experienced the climatic changes of the four seasons in the short span of a day.

El Paso Stirred By Art Longings

EL PASO, Sept. 8.—An art academy in El Paso during the winter, conducted by Cyril Kay-Scott, internationally known artist, is assured, according to Karl Hatfield, president of the El Paso Art guild.

"This is the first step in our plans to establish in El Paso a winter colony of artists," said Hatfield.

DON'T suffer headaches, or any of those pains that Bayer Aspirin can end in a hurry! Physicians prescribe it, and approve its free use, for it does not affect the heart. Every druggist has it, but don't fail to ask the druggist for Bayer. And don't take any but the box that says Bayer, with the word genuine printed in red!

Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacturing Co. of Monacoceticacidester of Salicylicacid

"The art academy is to open Oct. 1, and close in May. Kay-Scott will close his school in Santa Fe Sept. 15, and will be in El Paso about the 20th.

"Over 30 pupils have already enrolled in the academy. Six artists from Santa Fe have promised to spend the winter here.

Kay-Scott has received letters from New York artists, assuring him that they would come to El Paso for the winter if he came here. We expect at least 12 artists and their families here. With such a nucleus, we are assured of a real artists' colony," Hatfield said.

Kay-Scott maintains a studio in Paris. His paintings have gained recognition in Belgium, England, France, Switzerland and other continental countries.

Meditate—

Your Neighbor Will Take Better Care of You Than a Stranger

Consider these things—before you mail your orders out of town. The dollar that you spend out of town is gone forever. The dollar that you spend at home—stays here and works. Whether it goes into civic improvements, via taxes, better schools, churches, streets—or whether it simply goes into more merchandise for your next needs—it circulates at home. Remember your neighbor will take better care of you than a stranger. It is his interest to do so. His future depends on his winning and holding your confidence and friendship—and he's right here to make good any mistakes. When you help the home merchant, the home industry—they in turn help build up your town—thus making greater and better opportunities for you and your children. Spending money at home is putting a mortgage on it to come back to you—spending it away from home is bidding it goodbye. And your home purchase is better, for you can see and measure its value—before you part with your money. Not so "the cat in the bag" you buy from the distant point. Don't mail your order until you have considered these things—and you won't mail it at all. Sikeston, Missouri, Standard.

Sun Baths Helpful But Should Avoid Extensive Sunburn

The United States public health service declares sunlight is beneficial to health but extensive sunburn should be avoided.

An official bulletin says: Almost every new discovery in the scientific or medical field becomes a fad and is often carried to the extreme. Scientific workers have recently shown the necessity and importance of sunlight for the maintenance of the health of children and adults. The beneficial action of sunlight in the cure of certain diseases of children and adults has also been pointed out.

One of the things which have been advocated a great deal recently, and which has proven of much benefit for children, is the sun bath. These sun baths are healthful not only because the child receives the beneficial direct rays of the sun, but also because the fresh air which is thus bound to receive regularly. Scientists have shown that direct sunlight not only prevents rickets, but if given regularly, will ward off many of the illnesses which are common in children. Tuberculosis would suffer a sharp decline among children if all mothers gave this simple treatment to their children.

In giving sun baths to the children, it is well to keep the following facts in mind:

1. Exposure to the sun must be gradual or else the child may receive a sunburn.
2. At first give the baby direct sunlight for about ten minutes, increase this bath from three to five minutes daily until he receives exposure one hour in the morning and one hour in the afternoon. This will vary, depending on how the skin reacts to the exposure.
3. Be sure that the exposure is carried on in some spot sheltered from the wind.
4. Sun baths may be given on enclosed porches or in the house, provided the sun can shine on the child unobstructed by glass.
5. Certain special kinds of glass have been devised which permit the passage of the majority of the beneficial rays of the sun. Such glass may be used if desired.

The above directions also apply to adults who should observe similar precautions and avoid prolonged or sudden exposure to sunlight, as injurious or even dangerous sunburn may result if the sunburn is extensive. In case sunburn does occur, the following has been found to be useful: Make a lotion as follows: Take one-half pint of hot water and stir into it a level tablespoonful of boric acid powder; then add 20 drops of carbolic acid, and shake well. The solution should be dabbed on the inflamed skin with a small piece of cotton or sprayed on with an atomizer. It should not be rubbed into the skin. It can be applied every half hour, if necessary. If no medicine is available, cold compresses will give relief to badly burned areas.

Babe Talks a Bit
When Babe Ruth opens his mouth and talks about things pertaining to baseball, others in the game sit up and think over carefully what the Babe says. They know the Babe knows what he is talking about.

The Babe was sitting in his room at a Washington hotel recently, waiting for some friends to call for him, when a New York newspaperman cornered him and managed to get the Babe to talking. And here are a few things the Babe said:

"My home run record. Say, I haven't been bothered with it. If I had kept after home runs I could have broken my record, but I can do more good to the team by making sure of a hit when it is needed. I can hit into left seven times out of ten and anything I hit there goes for two bags."

"I don't know what I may break that record. I hit 17 last September and we're got better than 20 games to play yet and I only need 14."

"But I'm not thinking about it. I want to play in another world series, because I want to play in 10 if I have to play until I'm eighty. I've been in nine already."

Sure, He Likes Yanks
The Babe was asked if he thought the Yankees would win. "I think we'll win," he replied. "And what about the Pirates?" "Well, I don't think so. They're too far behind."

Took No Chance
The Babe has a watch he has been wearing for years. And there's a funny yarn, the way he tells it, about that watch.

"I got this thing in Hartford one day," he says. "We were playing an exhibition there and a guy at a jewelry company put it up for the first guy to hit a home run. So I hit one in the first inning and got the watch—haw, haw, haw!"

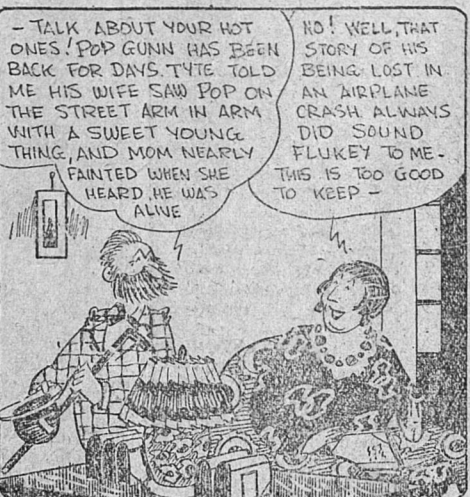

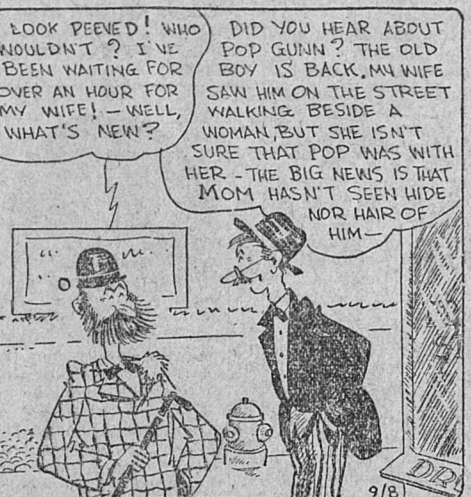

"Gehrig had batted ahead of me and he struck out. It's a nice watch, isn't it?"

Well, Well!
The Georgia court of appeals handed down a decision a few days ago which is interesting, and which would have been more interesting if handed down several years ago when the act on which the suit was based was more common than it is now. Georgia court held that when a baseball player feels so inclined he may invade the stands and "mix it" with an offending fan without his club standing the chance of losing a damage suit. The decision came when a fan sued Hollis McLaughlin, an Atlanta pitcher, because he climbed in the stands after the spectator had razed him. The fan wanted 20 grand damages. But the court laughed his suit off.

Whoofus Whiffletree's Woozy Wonderings

"I will have a squad of between 40 and 50 men and should have a fair semblance of a team by the time the season is half over." No, that is not the San Angelo or Greenwood coach indulging in a forecast of the Bobcats or Lions. It's none other than Dewey Mayhew, coach of Abilene, discussing the Eagles. The statement appeared a few days ago in the Abilene Reporter. Continuing Coach Mayhew says:

"The reason I say this is that while I will have a good line, my backfield is shot and the majority of the men I expect to fill backfield positions will be inexperienced. Baldwin, Kincaid, Hamish and Phelps will be valuable men later on, but nothing will replace experience."

"At present, it is difficult to even foresee just what our results will be this fall. I not only have the problem of replacing material as usual but am considering making a change in the system of play."

All of which should be highly encouraging to the other teams of the oil belt district, although allowance should be made for the fact that Coach Mayhew might have had several motives, all of them highly commendable, for issuing the statement. For instance, he might have been wanting to keep his players from becoming over-confident.

And then did you ever see a coach whose team had been a howling success one season that he did not utter pessimistic prophecies the next year whether it is Knute Rockne of the coach at Possum Trot?

Our friend the Abilene coach has over-drawn the picture's dark hues somewhat however. When he refers to Baldwin and Kincaid for instance as "inexperienced," it seems to us that we recall numerous brilliant dashes made by that same Baldwin for San Angelo against Eastland and Ranger last season. Furthermore, we can remember Kincaid's work for Eastland in 1925 and recollections of his achievements as a halfback on the regular team at Abilene last year are still quite vivid.

And while we think of it, shouldn't "Hannah's" name be spelled "Hanna"? We've noticed it spelled the first way each time by the Reporter but we are just wondering if he isn't a kid brother of Pete Hanna who was a backfield star for the Eagles about 1922 and '23.

The Abilene scribe, near the close of the writeup, says: "One big question that suggests itself is: Has Mayhew anyone on whom he can count to boot the ball? It looks at the moment as if they were going to be a rather serious proposition."

Yes, and since it seems assured that Smith will be shifted from fullback to end, does the Abilene coach have a big rugged fellow to back up the line and to make that one yard when it means a first down?

And who is going to throw the passes? These are problems that we have been pointing out for some time. However, formerly of Eastland, the three-fold problem can be solved. We have this up as a powerful defensive player, a splendid punter and a sensational passer. However, his name has not appeared in recent writeups of the Abilene prospects.

The most courageous achievement in the history of major league baseball can be recorded to the glory of the Philadelphia Athletics. Not even the famous drive made by the Boston Braves in 1914 under the leadership of Stallings, "the miracle man," equals the feat of the White Elephants under the chieftainship of Connie Mack.

In July, the Athletics were 13 1-2 games behind the New York Yankees. Miller Huggins' team was hailed by many critics as the greatest team in the history of baseball. Ruth, Gehrig, Lazzeri, Coombs, et. al., formed a "murderer's row" that caused opposing pitchers to quail and quiver with dread. The Yankee pitching staff composed of such aces as Pennock, Piggars, Hoyt and Wiley Moore, was almost on a par with the terrific attack of the New York wrecking crew.

But on Saturday morning, the world read the newspapers in amazement. The Athletics had wiped out that lead of 13 1-2 games and were tied with the Yankees for first place.

Comparing the feat of Philadelphia with the achievement of the Braves 14 years ago, it is true that Boston was in eighth place in July, 1914, and yet made a drive that won the pennant, whereas the Athletics were in second place when they began their attack. But the Braves were only 11 1-2 games behind the New York Giants, who were in first place; whereas the Athletics were 13 1-2 games to the rear of the New York Yankees, in first place. Think what a runaway "race" the American league was having that there was a greater gap between first and second place than there was between first and eighth place in the National league in 1914! The American standing on July 1 was:

	W	L	Pct.
Yankees	52	16	.765
Athletics	39	30	.565

And Saturday morning, Sept. 8, the figures stood:

	W	L	Pct.
Yankees	87	47	.649
Athletics	87	47	.649

Philadelphia may not win the pennant. The terrific pace that they have had to maintain may cause them to break while the Yankees may "find themselves" again. But regardless of which team wins the pennant, the Athletics' achievement this season, in transforming a runaway into one of the closest contests the majors ever saw, will long be cherished and will inspire other teams to refuse to give up when it looks as though all hope is at an end. Personally (this is being written Saturday afternoon before the day's games have been played) we believe that if the Athletics enter New York for that four-game series with the tie still existing for the league leadership and can win as many as two of the four, then Philadelphia will win the flag.

G. D. Chastain's Mother is Dead

Word was received here Saturday of the death of Mrs. Lena M. Chastain, local oil operator and member of the Ranger school board. Chastain, mother of Garvin Chastain, died Friday night at Boston. She will be buried Tuesday at Chickasha, Okla. Mr. Chastain will leave for that city to attend the funeral.

Beef Takes Place of Buffalo Meat

MASON.—Mason, in the days of the old fort was supplied buffalo meat by the government. Now the people of Mason enjoy the most choice of baby beeves on their tables, as several farmers make a hobby of raising blooded Hereford stock.

W. I. Marshall, with the cooperation of business men organized a boys' club in which 254 young beeves were put on feed that had previously found no market, and sold to representatives which were sent from markets at a profit.

Max Pleunke of the Hilda community fed nine head which were valued at $360.00 and sold them for $855.51 after feeding for 141 days which was a net profit of $27.90 per head.

Has the Punch

Here's Young Corbett III, the California welterweight, who hasn't lost a fight in three years and who is a dangerous threat to the crown of Champion Joe Dundee. He's a southpaw, a nice boxer, a terrific puncher, and a smart ringman. He recently kayped Nick Testa of New York.

Air Race Entries

CISCOS ARE FIRST IN ACTION

Meet Haskell Friday; All Teams Working Out.

Believe it or not, the first football game in the Oil Belt will be played next Friday.

The Cisco stadium will be scene of the opening battle. The Lobos, who are regarded as strong contenders for the district championship, will meet the Haskell eleven. While the latter is a Class B team, it is rated as powerful enough to give Cisco a real test.

There will be an abundance of fans on hand for the conflict—their appetites for football whetted by nearly a year of "starvation."

The next team to "hop off" will be the Breckenridge Buckaroos who will swing into action on Sept. 21. The Comanche Indians will furnish the opposition. Comanche formerly was a member of this Class A district but several seasons back went into Class B. The Indians always have to be reckoned with in the "B" race.

All the teams in the Oil Belt district have begun working out. Ranger Bulldogs under the guiding eye and voice of the new coach Esker Curtis, formerly mentor of the Anson Tigers, are impressing the fans who have watched each afternoon.

Abilene Eagles, last year's State finalists, after a brief period of pessimism in the columns of the Reporter and News, are again viewed through rose-colored glasses and the Abilene scribe Friday predicted that Waco and the Eagles would meet again for the state championship. The further information is given that Abilene will first concentrate on Breckenridge and Cisco however before devoting all its time and thought to the Waco game. The Eagles will have another strong team—whether Walter, Sellers and the other four stars who were lost can be replaced remains to be seen.

Eastland Mavericks began working out under the watchful gaze of Gibson, the new coach who was formerly assistant coach at Abilene. Twenty-five reported the first day, which is believed to be the biggest turnout in the history of E. H. S. so far in advance of the first game. The backfield is the big problem in Eastland but some fast, hefty material may be shifted from the line and a strong attack fashioned.

San Angelo is taking football more seriously than ever before. A big group of candidates for the team have spent the past week in camp, boxing, working out and drill practice. A fast halfback from Oklahoma, reinforcing the Bobcats who remain from last season, has aroused enthusiasm.

Advices from Brownwood, the other member of the Oil Belt district, are lacking but doubtless the work of training is going forward with zest.

Interest among the fans is warming up with more rapidity than this writer has ever before seen in his experience of seven years in recording football battles in this district and the prediction is confidently offered that the attendance at the early games is going to be surprisingly large.

Baseball, Golf and Other Games Held By Electric Light

"Postponed by darkness" may soon become a lost phrase in baseball language as a result of the success attained by daring electric illumination engineers in steady competition with his royal majesty the sun.

Major sports are now being contested after darkness throughout the country. The latest to be played under artificial light is the ancient game of golf. Regulation football and baseball games were played last fall and this spring under the glare of high-powered electric bulbs and drew large crowds. Soccer played at night on the Polo Grounds at New York, between two big league teams, was pronounced a great success. Trapshooting by electric light is the latest sport taken up by Pennsylvania and New Jersey farmers whose daily labors at this season of the year preclude much recreation until after night-fall.

Several of the participants in a golf match under electric illumination declared they were able to play better under artificial lighting facts than in daylight. "The balls were lost during the contest," said Arthur A. Brainerd, illuminating engineer under whose supervision eighteen 1500-watt floodlighting projectors to light the fairway were mounted on posts about four feet above the ground. "One player made a hole in one stroke under par." The tees and putting greens were each lighted with a 1500 watt floodlighting unit with a special lens.

Margaret McCormick of Breckenridge was the recent guest of Polly Rumph.

Mrs. S. P. Rumph visited Arlington and Fort Worth, Saturday and yesterday. Miss Mary Sue Rumph spent the week-end with Miss Darrah in Arlington, a member of her large house party.

Black Cat Is His Mascot in Race

People who scoff at superstitions bet on "Tex" Rankin of Portland, Oregon, to win the Class A event of the air races. His Waco plane carried the number 13 and "Jinx" a black cat mascot. Rankin says "Jinx" has flown with him for two years. Rankin sailed over Ranger yesterday.

Sports Matter

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Sports Writer
The American singles championship which starts today at Forest Hills, has attracted the greatest gathering of foreign tennis players in the 46 years of its history.

Rene Lacoste, the sad-faced Frenchman who won the United States title in 1926 and 1927, did not return to defend the honor this season, but six ambitious Frenchmen are here and one of them is very likely to take the championship back to Paris for the third year.

Without William T. Tilden to help beat back the foreign invasion America's task of winning her own singles title is more formidable this season than last when Lacoste beat Tilden in the three-set final.

Henri Cochet, the fiery little Frenchman who rose from a ball boy at Lyons to the most spectacular player in the world, is the most dangerous foreign contender. Cochet almost single-handed enabled France to retain the Davis Cup after Lacoste had lost to Tilden in the opening singles match.

He defeated Tilden and John Hennessey in the singles and, paired with Jean Borotra, defeated Tilden and Francis Hunter in the doubles. Cochet also won the Wimbledon title, defeating Lacoste.

Tilden Lands Cochet Hennessey's defeat of Cochet in the fourth round of the national championship last year, 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 3-6, 6-1, was the big upset of the tournament. Cochet never had his heart in the match, as France had just won the Davis Cup and he was anxious to sail for home.

Tilden rates Cochet as the world's greatest player when the Frenchman is on his game. Tilden thinks that Lacoste, day in and day out, is the better player, but that Cochet is unbeatable in a crucial match.

George Lott, the blonde Chicagoan, and Johnny Doeg, the brilliant California southpaw, are two of America's best bets, but neither is apt to go past the semi-finals. Doeg has perhaps the best service on any player in the tournament, but he does not possess a well-rounded game.

Hennessey has an outside chance as do Frank Hunter, Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn, Wilbur Coen and Fritz Mercer.

England Also Represented If Cochet should hit a snag somewhere along the line and be eliminated in one of the early rounds, America would stand an almost even chance to win the title last won for this country in 1925 by Tilden.

Besides Cochet, the French are represented by Jean Borotra, Jacques Brugnon, Christian Boususs, Pierre Landry, and Rene de Buzelot. Boususs and de Buzelot are two of the most promising of the new school of French players.

England has four stars entered. W. H. (Bunny) Austin, I. G. Collins, J. C. Gregory, and Edward Higgs. Austin, a Cambridge youngster, defeated Hennessey, Lott and Coen when the American players were in England. He carried Lacoste to five sets in the fourth round of the Wimbledon tournament before the Frenchman was able to pull through a victory.

Australia has brought four strong players here in Gerald Patterson, Jack Hawkes, Jack Crawford and H. O. Hopman. Patterson and Hawkes are veterans, but Crawford and Hopman are two of the most promising youngsters in tennis.

Mystery of the Vanished Melon' a True Life Tale

WICHITA FALLS, Sept. 8.—His appetite for watermelons landed one negro in the city jail here the other day.

Luke Hart and C. W. Jensen, city detectives, answered the frantic call of a melon vender and using all the faculties possessed by detectives trailed the purloined watermelon to a negro's residence. The negro was arrested and taken to jail.

The watermelon was not recovered.

Three Burn to Death, Six Are Injured by Fire

STEPHENVILLE, Sept. 8.—The Tarleton Plowboys' football training camp opened on September 5 with 44 big huskies answering the call of Coach Wisdom.

There were six letter men and six reserves from last year's team and thirty-two new men who have come from high school widely scattered over the state. The Plowboys are going through a carefully planned program—working hard by day and doing the skull practice by night. There are a few letter men and reserves who have not reported yet, and it is also thought that enough material will come in later to run the roster up to a total of sixty before camp closes.

That the Plowboys will have a strong line is certain, while the backs are not so promising as yet. There are many aspirants on the field among whom there may be some valuable backs in the making.

Under the supervision of Coach

Wisdom, who is beginning his eighth year in John Tarleton College, assisted by "Bunt" Adams, formerly a stellar player on the Plowboy and Simmons University squads, and the further assistance of Coach Frazier, who starred for the Texas Aggies not many years ago, the beginners have the assurance that their abilities will be recognized and developed rapidly. It is through this process that Coach Wisdom expects to develop an almost entirely new backfield.

The schedule for this season begins with the Abilene Christian College Wildcats on Hays Field at Stephenville on September 28. Fans are looking forward to this game, knowing that it is certain to be a fast, hard fought contest. Among the other teams the Plowboys will meet on the gridiron this season are the McMurry Indians, Sul Ross Lobos, Ranger Junior college Badgers, Hillsboro Indians, Wesley College Panthers, Clifton College and Randolph College.

AMARILLO, Sept. 8.—Caught in a stampede of horses is the recent experience of Charlie Austin and John Boyce.

Returning from a prairie chicken hunt the other afternoon, the two men had just started to cross the Canadian river bridge when a herd of horses at the other end, became frightened at the whistle of a train and stampeded.

The avalanche of horse flesh poured down the narrow passageway and literally engulfed the two hunters. They dashed against the car, knocking off fenders, door handles, radiator caps, and one of them even jumped over the radiator, landing on the running-board. The car was almost a complete wreck when the herd passed.

Mr. Austin, whose car it was, attempted to back off the approach but could not do so quick enough. Both men had forgotten the plight of the vehicle and began to fear for their lives before the stampede ended safely for themselves, at least.

THE NEW FRIGIDAIRE

Almost as simple as your present ice-box

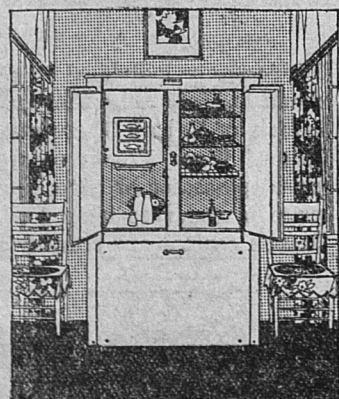

All working parts concealed. Oil and refrigerating fluid sealed inside the unit

It's hardly fair to the New Frigidaire to compare its simplicity with an ice-box. For while you have to watch your ice-box and keep it filled with ice, the New Frigidaire needs no such attention.

All working parts are concealed. The mechanism is entirely automatic. It starts itself and stops itself. But it's so incredibly quiet that you don't hear it start... stop or run. Furthermore, the oil and refrigerating fluid are sealed inside the unit.

The patented self-sealing ice trays freeze ice quickly and always

If you buy the New Frigidaire on a deferred payment plan... as most people do... the first payment need be no greater than the cost of a few ice books. Furthermore, your New Frigidaire will actually pay for itself. There will be no more ice to buy. No more wasted food due to spoilage, and you can safely buy in larger quantities.

Would Aid South Prestige. Nevertheless, an independent Mongolia with bolshevik leanings would give to Russia the possibility of regaining in part her fallen prestige in the Far East. If Russian political authority could be extended in an advisory capacity to Mongolia, a serious situation would arise both for China and Japan. These Oriental powers, while at present on not too friendly terms toward each other, always must keep a watchful eye on Russia. While Moscow pretends to desire amicable relations with Japan and China, the pressure of events is over at work influencing Russia to strengthen her position at the eastern end of her great Asiatic possession. Japan is firmly entrenched in Manchuria and is resolved not to abandon her hold on that province which Japanese money and enterprise has lifted far above the economic level of China proper. Japan, too, for some time has had her gaze fixed on Mongolia as offering possibilities for future development somewhat as Manchuria has been developed. Mongolia could be made to flourish under Japanese initiative, but a Japanese move in that direction is not considered advisable for the time being.

Nationalist Also Worried. Mongolian independence, with soviet influence offering attractive theories to the Mongols, would be disquieting to Japan. Not only would the possibility of Japanese development of Mongolia be lessened by such a move but also Japan cannot look with favor upon the spread of bolshevism as near as this to her national environment. A bolshevik government established in Canada would cause similar misgivings in the United States. The Chinese nationalists, too, cannot see bolshevism create an independent Mongolia without disquietude, quite apart from the

MONGOLIAN REVOLT IS LIKELY TO REACH FAR

By J. W. T. MASON. Written for the United Press. The Mongolian revolution, aimed at establishing independence from China, is the first serious development of internal discord since the Chinese nationalists obtained control of Peking. The Mongols have long enjoyed an autonomy akin to independence and their present demand for full freedom will test the authority of the Peking nationalists severely. Should Mongolia succeed in repudiating nationalist sovereignty the balance of power in northern Asia may be threatened. Bolsheviki propaganda has been proceeding in Mongolia for several years with greater success than in China proper. The Mongols also have had a loose form of government while class lines have been but vaguely drawn among the people. Their low culture in this respect has been an aid to the spread of the communistic arguments of the bolsheviks, for property in Mongolia is distributed on a fairly even scale and industry is almost non-existent. There is no necessity for assuming that the Russian government is behind the Mongolian independence movement. The anti-bolshevik attitude of the Chinese nationalists is in itself sufficient to account for the antagonism the Mongols are showing toward the new Peking nationalistic administration. Russia might seek secretly to encourage the Mongols and probably would do so if opportunity offered. But the Mongolian troops have moved against Russian interests by interrupting rail communication used by the Russian trans-Siberian trains. Were there actual co-operation between Russia and Mongolia the railway would be left alone.

USE OF SCIENCE IN BUSINESS TO BE CALCULATED. British Group Plans Discussion of Scientific Aid to Industry. GLASGOW, Scotland. — The question of whether scientists can apply their calculations to the management of business and industry will be discussed at the annual general meeting of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, which opened here tonight. Science as applied to industry and industrial relationships will have a prominent part in the papers and discussions. It is understood that the recent "peace" conferences between British trade unionists and employers will be considered. The trend of science in dealing with subjects of everyday practical importance was seen in the presidential address delivered by Sir William Bragg, on "Craftsmanship and Science." He traced the modern development of the physical sciences and their relation to national problems. F. G. Donnan, professor of inorganic and physical chemistry, University college, London, will address the meeting on "The Mystery of Life." His remarks will reveal the latest developments in bio-chemical research. Aviation and radio will receive greater attention than ever before. A general discussion of the present knowledge of atmospheric is on the program. One of the features of the discussions on education will be the value of broadcasting, and a demonstration will be held in a model broadcasting studio. The scientists fill reach into the far corners of their world before the discussions end. Mathematics and physics, chemistry, zoology, botany, economics, psychology, agriculture, engineering, anthropology and many other scientific fields will be thoroughly covered in search for the most modern means of advancing them. Twenty-six women will read papers during the week's meeting. More than half of them will be heard by the botanical section, of which Professor Dame Helen Gwynne-Vaughan is president. Papers will also be prepared by women on zoological, anthropological, psychological, educational, and geological subjects.

County Records Are Still Intact. M'ALLEN, Sept. 8.—Hidalgo county officials believe that they have established a record for keeping their records intact, from the time of creation by the legislature up to the present time.

Minutes of proceedings in the county court since the county was created by the legislature in 1852—records of the district courts since they were created—deed records—records of probate—records of road work and surveying—all dating back from organization of the county, or from the time that keeping of such records was authorized, are available.
