REV. L. R. HOGAN MAY DO WORK AS EVANGELIST

He Will Leave Eastland Presbyterian Church November First, Congregation Agrees.

In response to the call for the congregational meeting of the Presbyterian church of Eastland, Sunday morning, there was a large attendance of regular and occasional worshippers.
Following the regular church service and sermon, preached by the Rev. L. R. Hogan, the pastor, spoke of the purpose of the meeting, called at his request. He said, he had requested the session to accept his resignation as pastor, and that it was his desire that the congregation also do so. The session has acceded, and, in view of this fact, he made the earnest request that this action be ratified by the congregation.
Mr. Hogan stated he had expected to have a brother minister to deliver his message to the church, but circumstances had prevented this arrangement. He then requested Marshall McCullough to present his message and resignation to the congregation.
Mr. McCullough spoke appreciatively of Rev. Mr. Hogan's abilities as pastor and as organizer, and of his truth and worth as a friend, and of the many things he had accomplished for the good of the Eastland church in both spiritual and material ways. He said there was perfect harmony between the session and Rev. Mr. Hogan; the only friction being caused by the session wishing Mr. Hogan to remain as pastor until November first, and Mr. Hogan, desiring release on October first, but said the latter date was finally agreed upon as the length of his service.
The congregation accepted the pastor's resignation, although there was only a few voted.
Many who were silent stated afterward they could not vote, as they sincerely desired that he should remain.
After the vote, Mr. McCullough stated the session would draw up resolutions endorsing the splendid services of Rev. Mr. Hogan, noting that his resignation had been accepted at his own request, and would send this to the Presbytery.
On November first, Rev. Mr. Hogan, will close an eventful pastorate of a little over two years, in which his accomplishments for the good of the church have been inestimable. He is considering entering the evangelistic field, in which a great opportunity awaits him.
Mrs. Hogan will remain in Eastland for the balance of the school year. Their son and daughter will attend their respective colleges, leaving here in September.

Five Minister's Sons—All Ministers

SEVEN WEEKS WAR ON RATS GETS RESULTS

Plaintiff Says Deed of Trust Is Without Sufficient Justification and Asks Sale Be Enjoined.

Bringing to a close today one of the most successful rodent exterminating campaigns ever staged, in Texas, workers and county officials are congratulating one another on the results obtained and join in their thanks to the people of the county who have in every way been more than willing to do their share in ridding Eastland county of these undesirable denizens.
Dr. R. C. Ferguson under whose direction this campaign was conducted, in commenting on the campaign, said: "The war on rats just finished constitutes one of the fundamental principles of health preservation and will be far-reaching in its benefit to the county at large. The campaign was conducted with efficiency without a single incident to disrupt the smoothness with which the entire move was carried through."
The summary of the report shows that there were in all 512 properties treated and listed as follows: Residence property, 343; business houses, 156; farms, 11; college, one, city dump, one, six entire oil camps were treated, which accounts in part for the high number of dwellings listed. Those treated were, the Humble at Cisco, States Oil Corporation, Consolidated Gas, Eastland; Magnolia, Olden; Prairie Oil and Gas, the Texas and Pacific Coal and Oil Co. of Ranger.
An interesting sidelight on the campaign was revealed in the report of the amount of bait and chemical used. There has been fed to the rats of our county by this crew of pied pipers nearly a ton of corn chop, 100 pounds of meat, 50 pounds of bananas, 25 pounds of tomatoes and about the same of peanut butter and on this amount of bait was used 550 pounds of chemical or an average of about five pounds of treated bait to each property. M. G. Jorgenson, who has been in charge of the field work, said that the potential possibilities could be judged from the fact that a level teaspoon of chemical was sufficient to kill twenty rats.
"Now, then," said he, "Divide 550 pounds by the amount a teaspoon will hold and you will get some idea of the number of rat meals we have served in your territory."

COMMISSION IS ASKED TO MAKE REPORT

State Board of Control Calls On Highway Commission-ers For Information About Equipment.

AUSTIN, Aug. 6.—Formal call was made upon the state highway department today to furnish the state board of control bids, tabulations, upkeep costs and performance records of the $1,200,000 worth of highway equipment bought a year ago. This information is to be considered in connection with the recommendation for this year's purchase of $560,000 worth of additional equipment.
The resolution asking for this information was passed unanimously by the board after Dr. H. N. Harrington had amended it to state that it was not intended to discredit the recommendation of the state highway department on this year's purchases, but simply to give the board of control first hand information.

HOMESTEAD IS ALLEGED CAUSE OF COURT SUIT

M. G. Jorgenson and His Pied Pipers Bring Campaign In Eastland County To Close.

Eula Little, joined by her husband, Eddie Little, of Cisco, is the plaintiff in an action filed today in the 91st district court against Ralph A. Beaton and the Continental Savings & Building Association of Dallas.
The plaintiff alleges that on September 3, 1927, at which time she resided with her family on her homestead in Cisco at 16th street and Avenue N, the defendant took a mortgage on the property of the plaintiff and now has posted notice of a sale on August 7, 1928. The plaintiff alleges that prior to the execution of the deed of trust by plaintiff to defendants the plaintiff owned no other property than her homestead; that it was recited in the deed of trust that the lien being made was to take up and secure vendor's lien notes existing against the land and property and that this was not true, but that it was a stimulated sale entered into by all parties, having a purported sale in order to obtain a loan and to buy material to improve said homestead, and for the improvement of the house of the plaintiff, conveying title to the property to another who in turn, transferred it back to the plaintiff, retaining the vendor's lien named in the deed of trust the homestead rights of the plaintiff which attached before the transfer was made, the lot and premises then and there being used and resided on by the plaintiff and family as the homestead, and at the said time the plaintiff had not acquired any other homestead.
The plaintiff asks for an injunction restraining the defendant from selling the homestead and for removal of the cloud created by the deed of trust.

POLISH AIRMEN FLY IN CIRCLE OVER ATLANTIC

Are Returning To European Shore When Plane Is Forced Down, Rescued At Sea.

LISBON, Aug. 6.—Major Idzikowski and Captain Bubala, the two Polish aviators who essayed an east-to-west flight over the Atlantic ocean from France to the United States, were brought here Sunday after being rescued from the sea about 100 miles west of Portugal. The seaplane was also brought into port.
The aviators, who started about dawn Friday morning, said they had made a great circle over the Atlantic in the general direction of the Azores and, finding they would not be able to cross to the western shore, were headed back to Spain when their gasoline feed pipe developed trouble and they were forced to drop into the sea. The wings of the plane were smashed by the force of the blow on the water.
The steamship Samoas reached the scene of the airplane wreck a short time after the plane descended and rescued the two aviators, although it was with some difficulty that they were taken from the wreckage.
One of the aviators fell after being taken aboard the steamship and was severely hurt. He was sent to the military hospital at Oporto when the steamship reached dock early today.
The aviators had been in the air about 35 hours. They had not been reported anywhere near the Azores during their circle, but were thought to have been seen by a Norwegian tanker about 200 miles north of the Azores early Saturday, when it should have been a long distance from that point. A plane was sighted, too, by the British steamer Amukura several hundred miles northwest of where a plane was reported by the Aztec.

TEN PERSONS KILLED, SIXTY ARE INJURED

Pipe On Track of Illinois Central Railway Derails One Train Which Side-Swipes Another.

MOUNDS, Ill., Aug. 6.—Ten persons are reported to have been killed outright and 60 were hurt, some them seriously, early today when a train of the Illinois Central railroad jumped the track and side-swiped another train.
Cause of the wreck was said by trainmen to have been an iron pipe obstruction on the southbound right-of-way, which was seen by the crew of the Chickasha, who stopped their train. The New Orleans bound train then came along, struck the obstacle, and side-swiped the stationery train, it was said.
Between 50 and 60 of the injured were taken to a hospital at Cairo, 16 miles south of the scene of the wreck. One woman suffered the loss of an arm while several suffered broken limbs.
The pipe obstruction was believed lost from a freight train which passed over the route during the night. It was 24 inches in diameter and 20 feet long.

Woman Found Dead, Suspect Is Arrested

"Pull the trigger, boys," Kelly was quoted as saying when he was found in hiding in a closet. He told officers he was about to leave the house when Mellus returned. Evidence was found of a terrific struggle. A broken bottle—apparently used as a weapon—was found. Two glasses evidently that had contained liquor were found.

UNDIVIDED TEXAS.

A stranger in Texas recently remarked: "Since I have been in Texas I have heard much about West Texas, East Texas, South Texas, and Central Texas. Yes, I have also heard of North Texas. Now history has told me that when Texas was admitted into the union of states, it reserved the right to divide up into five states by vote of the people, and I was given an impression that such had been done without my having heard of it. You know we have a North Dakota and a South Dakota, both states, and we have a Virginia and a West Virginia, and when we hear you people speaking of different sections of your state in the same terms, it is easy to imagine a political division such as suggested," states an article in a contemporary publication.

The stranger, of course, knew that Texas had not been cut up into five separate states for that would have created a political sensation, but he is right in assuming that as a people we are becoming prejudiced sectionally. And we are not very accurate in our designation. It was not long ago that the city of Waco was making a strong bid for a meeting of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Waco is more than 200 miles east of the central part of the state. Because of early designation, it is said that Waco is in Central Texas, but as a matter of fact it is in East Texas. Fort Worth is said to be a West Texas city, but Fort Worth is almost due north of the city of Waco. It is about 200 miles from Fort Worth to the eastern boundary line of the state and over 600 miles from the western line. So if both Fort Worth and Waco are in West Texas and the line is pushed eastward a little every year, there won't be any East Texas after awhile. Farm and Ranch suggests that the East Texas Chamber of Commerce make a survey and drive its stakes before they are crowded off the map.

Sectional lines in Texas are largely determined by physical and climatic conditions rather than by geographical position, but it is confusing to strangers and to others doing business in Texas. If Waco is in West Texas, then El Paso is in California. Yet, because of the size of the state, we are placed in the same position as the California girl who went east to spend her vacation. She went to Salt Lake City. Her friend who lived in New York went out west for the holidays, and stopped off in Pittsburgh. Probably Waco appears to be out west to the people living in Shelby county, while no doubt San Angelo is a long way east to the people living in El Paso.

Geographically speaking, the west begins at the 100th meridian, which forms the eastern line of the Panhandle, but in the minds of the people of the state, West Texas begins 200 miles east of that line. As a matter of opinion, nearly all of Texas is West Texas.

WEEK END HOLDS INFORMAL AFFAIRS This week end held more social activities of the week-end than has been the case for several weeks past. The young people took advantage of the cooler days resultant from the general rain, and gave their informal little parties honoring visitors or those leaving over.

Mrs. Joseph M. Weaver, assisted by her daughters, gave a most delightful garden dinner at half after six o'clock Saturday evening, honoring Miss Josephine Goodman of El Paso, who has been the guest of Mrs. J. Lewis, and who left for her home in El Paso early Sunday morning, overland, accompanying Mrs. Robert B. Goodman. The dinner table was set beneath the handsome trees and centered with a variety of golden hued and red fruits, in an immense Japanese bowl, striking a glow-note of color, repeated in the tapers in their silver holders, that spaced the table's length.

The delicious menu was in abundant supplies on big silver trays. It included fried chicken, salad service of lettuce and tomatoes, condiments in cheese, pickles and olives, a tray of stuffed eggs, all lavishly spread over the board, and hot buttered rolls served every few minutes by the white jacketed man and maid who attended to the needs of the guests.

Miss Virginia B. Weaver was hostess, and guests were Miss Josephine Goodman, honoree; Miss Elizabeth Garrett, Miss Edna Day, Miss Daphne Grisham and her house guest Miss Babb of Post City; Miss Virginia Root, Miss Aline Williams; Mr. Wood of San Antonio, and Messrs. Wayne Castleberry, Don Beall, Jack Lewis, Bobbie Garrett, Blair Lewis, Allen Key, and Carl Tanner.

Cards and informal dancing filled the evening, when the young hostess was assisted by her mother, Mrs. Joseph M. Weaver, and sisters Miss Ruth Weaver and Louise Weaver.

S. A. P. CLUB HAS DELIGHTFUL MEETING Miss Brazil Hillyer was house hostess to the S. A. P. Club, Saturday afternoon, when three tables were arranged for club members, and one table prepared for guests. The Hillyer home was most beautifully adorned with roses, and the bridge appointments, in some tables were effective. At close of game, favor for high score, a handsome neck band of golden braid, jewel studded, was awarded Miss Aline Williams, and consolation for low score went to Miss Evelyn Taylor, who received a silver anklet trinket. The delicious five o'clock tea, following the game, of a chicken salad plate, with a variety of sandwiches, had stuffed dates, olives, iced tea, and small cakes.

Miss Peggy Taylor ENTERTAINS INFORMALLY Miss Peggy Taylor entertained with an informal bridge and dance at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Taylor on South Mulberry Street, Friday night, honoring Milburn McCarty, Jr., who left the next day for New York City for a lengthy stay. Miss Taylor was assisted by Miss Frances Cunningham, co-hostess. Informal music of piano and victrola, with games played a large part in the entertaining. At close of the pleasant evening the young hostesses served a delicious supper of chicken salad sandwiches, pimiento cheese sandwiches, potato flakes, pickles and peach ice cream, with delectable food cake and angel food cake.

Those enjoying this delightful evening were: Misses Margaret Hart, Ruth Weaver, Virginia Neil Little, Martha Anes Weaver of Ranger, Louise Weaver and Beth Barnett, the guest of Mrs. Hill; Frances Ominiga and Peggy Taylor; and Messrs. Otis Craig, Scott Key, Frank Lauren, Sam Conner, Tillman Stubbfield, Fred Steen, Hayward Weaver of Ranger, and honor guest, Milburn McCarty.

BAND MASTER CAMPBELL ENTERTAINS BAND BOYS A. J. Campbell, director of the Eastland band, entertained the boys of the band, following their practice in the B. Y. P. U. Cottage, with an iced watermelon feast at the City Park.

Several members of the board of directors were present, including Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Hightower, Mr. and Mrs. Horace Conley, and H. A. Slaver.

The evening was greatly enjoyed and watermelons were declared delicious.

THE VALUE OF A NAME Everybody knows the value of a good name to an individual, but not many stop to think of the enormous value of a trademark. It has been only a few years since Liggett & Myers Tobacco company began to advertise Chesterfield Cigarettes; but from the very beginning the brand has grown year after year, month after month—until the sales have reached an enormous volume and the name Chesterfield is worth millions and millions of dollars and is known in every nook and corner of the country. Texas Tech Will Enter Livestock Judging Contest

LUBBOCK.—Texas Technological College will be represented by a stock judging team in the International Livestock Exposition which will be held in Chicago next fall, according to an announcement made here today by Dean A. H. Leidigh, of the school of agriculture. Arrangements for sending the team into the competition with the leading college teams of the United States and Canada were completed this week. This is Tech's first time to enter the international contests. Teams from the College have entered the American Royal, The Kansas State and the Southwestern livestock judging contests in the past, winning places in each. The Tech team won first in the Southwestern Exposition and Fat Stock Show at Fort Worth last spring, their second year of competition. The team will be coached by W. L. Stungel, head of the department of animal husbandry, a former member and later a coach of International winning teams from Texas A. & M. College and Prof. R. C. Mowery, a former member of a Texas A. & M. International team.

"TENDERLOIN"

Scenes from "Tenderloin" starring Dolores Costello with Conrad Nagel in Warner Bros. Production

Costello, regional sales manager, has been directing a sales legion that has as its field 11,000,000 people in the five southeastern states. Figures for the South-eastern automobile market show that it is rapidly becoming one of the best in the country with the demand for Chevrolet increasing rapidly. Due to the perfection of its product and the expansion of its sales forces, Chevrolet's sales record in the southeast has been second to none. Official figures show that the number of Chevrolets sold in the Southeastern region were 16,390 for the fiscal year, 1924-25. The following year the figures reached 23,417. Last year the figure was more than 81,500. This fiscal year close to 95,000 sales have been registered. The Southeastern Region, with headquarters at Atlanta, is composed of five zones with offices at various key points in the territory. These are located at Charlotte, N. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Birmingham, Ala.; Jacksonville, Fla. and Atlanta.

Chevrolet Opens Assembly Plant In Atlanta, Georgia

The formal opening during the past week of the Chevrolet Assembly plant in Atlanta, Ga., coming at a time when a similar plant is under construction in Kansas City, is further indication that there is to be no let-down in the company's extensive sales program.

The mammoth Atlanta plant, which has been in operation since May 1, is capable of turning out 350 cars a day, and was the eighth assembly plant to be opened by Chevrolet in this country. The Kansas City plant with the same capacity will be the ninth. Atlantans last week welcomed their first opportunity of visiting the great assembly plant, and seeing the magic Chevrolet assembly line produce the world's most popular automobile from a set of seemingly unrelated parts.

Atlanta newspapers welcomed Chevrolet to the southeast, and viewed the plant as a southern institution. It was mainly southern contracting genius that built it in four months, one week and six hours, several days before the contracted time has expired. Southern help has been operating it ever since the first car rolled off the line. It serves the southeastern market exclusively supplying cars to the dealers of Georgia, North and South Carolina, Alabama and Florida. A southerner, W. S. ("Crane") Roberts has been placed at the head of the plant as a southern industrial institution.

The plant covers 32 acres and occupies 410,000 square feet of floor space. There are five buildings, and in the main one the Fisher Body Company is using 160 by 760 square feet of space to build their famous bodies for the Chevrolet closed cars. The plant is ideally located with the tracks of the Southern Railroad paralleling its loading dock. Track storage for 300 freight cars is provided. Another facility to speed up deliveries is a driveway shed, 40 by 220 feet, where dealers from nearby cities can take deliveries of cars.

In his office at the plant L. S. Louisville Times: "It is rumored that when Mussolini completes his autobiography every book store in Italy will sell it."

"TENDERLOIN" TO HAVE 2-DAY RUN AT CONNELLEE

Crook melodrama with swift, tense action, breathless suspense and the beauty and charm of Dolores Costello; that, in short, is "Tenderloin," the Warner Brothers feature which opens at the Connellee Theatre tomorrow for two-day run. "Tenderloin," as the title implies, is a story of the underworld. Its chief characters are all enemies of society. The heroine, a dancer in an east-side cafe, hurrying home one night sees a bag come over a fence and drop at her feet. She picks it up. The bank around the corner has just been robbed, and the safe blowers scatter and the man with the bag throws it over the fence expecting the lookout with the extra car to get it! The police find the girl, put her through the "third degree," but upon opening the bag find it contains nothing but waste paper and brass slugs. What happened to the "fifty grand?" The bandits are sure the girl knows. It so happens that one of the gang, the debonair Chuck, has been paying her attention. It is up to him to worm his way into the confidence of the girl, who is ignorant of his real character, and get the money. Then comes plot and counter plot, complications follow quickly, with the solution of the mysterious robbery coming in the final moments of the picture. The role of the wistful little dancer is played by Miss Dolores Costello. The handsome young crook is played by Conrad Nagel.

LOVE FOR TWO

RUTH DEWEY GROVES © 1928 By NEA Service Inc.

THIS HAS HAPPENED
 The Lou Ward, on the eve of her wedding to Rod Bryer, regarding to a paper knife as a gift to her new husband, who had turned her because he was not the feel of the metal. Bertie Lou, and the thought was a dagger to pierce her mind as she flashed across her mind her dreaming anticipation of her miserable foreboding. She courageously resolves not to be jealous of Rod's past love. His future is in her keeping.

Lou receives a second to her pride when she accidentally overhears one bridesmaid as she thought liked being second. She goes through the ceremony a daze, but when Rod says "My wife" with a world in his eyes, she knows she would rather be second than to give him up.

They spend an ideal honeymoon at a mountain resort, and Bertie almost forgets the shadow of the predatory ex-sweetheart until they return and find Bertie as dictator in their treatment on the ground that she is what Rod likes.

The bride and her mother determine the determination of Lila's first opportunity to address Bertie Lou, that she thinks would be happier if they avoid meeting Lila in the future. Bertie Lou says she will try to keep Rod loving by nothing to make him hate.

"I can cook that steak to the queen's taste," Rod volunteered.

In a moment they both went out and found Rod untying a square box that a boy had delivered. "Thank heavens you aren't having company," his mother-in-law said fervently. "Give me my hat, Bertie Lou. Where did I put it?" On the photograph, I think here it is. Lock the door behind me and don't answer any more doorbells. The whole town's likely to begin calling on you after supper."

Bertie Lou kissed her warmly and thanked her and then turned back from the door to discover Rod standing over the square box with a strange expression twisting his features into a cross between a grin and a scowl. Bertie Lou came over and looked into the box.

Nothing more impressive than a square of devil-food cake met her gaze. But it might as well have been a scorpion from the way she drew back from it.

"With Lila's compliments," Rod explained, glancing at a card in his hand. "Wishes us happiness. 'Shall we have it for dessert?'" she asked quietly, after she had recovered from the surprise it had occasioned her.

"I hate the damned stuff," Rod replied. "Throw it in the garbage pail."

"Let's see first what mother left for us," Bertie Lou said, hiding her satisfaction. They went to explore the kitchen and found what Bertie Lou hoped would be there—a big, juicy blackberry pie.

They set about preparing their first dinner in their own home. Bertie Lou found peeled, cut potatoes, ready for French frying, a thick steak, corn, lettuce and tomatoes, and a melon.

"I can cook that steak to the queen's taste," Rod volunteered. "That means you'll like it, Bebs. 'Oh, can you?'" Bertie Lou cried. "Gosh, that's lucky, because a steak is the same as a Chinese laundry ticket to me. Guess you couldn't think of anything easier, though. I can do the potatoes, and here's the salad dressing already mixed. Were sure of that, anyhow. And I don't see how we can spoil the melon, but if we do there's still the pie. I wish you were a New Englander. Then I wouldn't have to worry about breakfast."

"You won't anyway," Rod told her. "Just you sit opposite me and I won't know whether I'm eating toast or shoe leather."

Half an hour later he knew he had spoken hastily. For never was shoe leather tougher than that steak. And Bertie Lou's potatoes were a pale, soggy mess. The corn was boiled too hard, but the melon was coolly delicious and the pie made up for all disappointments.

"If you can stand an eatless week I'll have mother teach me to cook," Bertie Lou promised. She had a burned finger and a cut thumb, but she had no tears for a culinary fiasco. The idea of a bride weeping over the kind of dinner that lay before them would have made her laugh. The new way was to turn in, tackle and master—well, if not master, at least get a toothhold on the art of cooking.

She made no apologies. Her job when she was single had been to be a good stenographer. That she was. And her engagement hadn't lasted long enough to permit her to take up cooking. She had worked in an office right up to the day before her wedding. And Rod had taken all her spare time.

But she made a mental note to repeat the dinner a week later and make it one to be remembered as well as they'd be likely to remember the disaster accompanying the first one.

"I think we'd better go and see your mother," she said when they had finished clearing the table and washing the dishes. Rod, with a cretonne apron, had wiped them with as much pleasure as he'd have had polishing a new car. But the hour was not without accident.

He couldn't keep his eyes off Bertie Lou's lovely arms plunged deep into a pan of soap—she'd added a half cup of suds—flakes to the dish water and the foamy consequence all but flooded the sink—her thick, heavy, gleaming hair, most alluring of all, the exquisite turn of her deliciously round throat.

As a result of his gloating over having such a darling girl as his own he dropped a cup and broke it. Bertie Lou smiled bravely over it but she felt badly because she knew the cup couldn't be replaced. It was from a set her mother had had when first she was married.

"Let's wait until it gets dark before we leave the house," he said in answer to Bertie Lou's suggestion that they visit his parents. "I don't want to be meeting a lot of people on the way home."

Bertie Lou noted how naturally he spoke of the way home as "home." Habits were strong with Rod. She wondered about his affections, and the thought brought Lila back to her mind. She wished she were strong-minded enough to forget her.

She was rather quiet while they unpacked and put away the things in their suitcases. She found the dresser drawers and wardrobe shelves lined with pink tissue paper, ready to receive her trousseau. Everything in her new home was dainty and pretty. But it was very simple and inexpensive. Except the gifts from Rod's parents, who, while not wealthy, could afford to make their only son a few good wedding presents. No one disturbed them; perhaps the absence of a light in their living room discouraged visitors from dropping in. When they slipped out to pay a call to Rod's family the street was almost deserted, except a few blocks south, near the pool room. They walked north and circled the center of town.

It was nearly midnight when they returned to their flat. At the top of the stairs Bertie Lou halted. "Carry me over the threshold for luck," she giggled, and Rod unlocked the door, threw it open and then picked her up bodily and strode into the living room.

He did not put her down at once. She was light as a feather in his heavily muscled arms. And her lips were cool and sweet. Rod was enjoying them immensely when a roar of "ha ha" burst out and the room was flooded with bright light from a dozen flashes. Then someone turned on the electric lamps and disclosed a

BALDWIN AT 61 GIVES NO HOPE TO HIS CRITICS

Demands for Retirement Have Left Prime Minister Unperturbed.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin celebrated his sixty-first birthday today on the battle front in the house of commons. The prime minister, who is now the same age as Queen Mary, had little time for the hundreds of congratulatory messages received at No. 10 Downing Street, for with the end of the present parliamentary session expected within a few days he was busy with his official duties.

The hope of the premier's political enemies that he might retire received no encouragement during the year. Ramsay MacDonald and Lloyd George have been particularly bitter in their criticism of the present government. But demands that he retire obviously have been wasted on the imperious Baldwin. With the conservatism holding a substantial majority in the commons, it is not expected that the premier voluntarily will leave his duties for a long time.

The Baldwin government has made its way through a stormy passage since the prime minister observed his 6th birthday a year ago. The so-called "flapper" bill expending the franchise to young women raised a heavy parliamentary storm. Though Baldwin personally supported the revised prayer book bill, the rejection of the measure and the religious debate involved were significant preceding an election year. The government's "safe-guarding industry" measures, which the opposition termed "back door protectionism," produced bitter attacks on the floor of the house of commons.

Taxation Scheme Attacked.

The caustic tongue of Sir Philip Snowden, former chancellor of the exchequer, has been directed chiefly against the government's rating proposals, or taxation scheme, which labor declared designed to aid "big business" at the expense of smaller interests. The government's action in taking over the "Tote" bill to ensure its passage after the bill was defeated in the house caused more than a political ripple. The bill is designed to legalize the totalizer or betting machine, at racing meetings.

The placid—and popular Premier has difficulty at times in restraining the more fiery members of his cabinet. Lord Birkenhead, Winston Churchill, and Sir Austen Chamberlain are apt to develop into fire eaters under pressure of hot parliamentary debate. There has been no marked dissent within the rank and file of the Tory party, which is probably largely due to Baldwin's popularity with the electorate.

The prime minister's retreat from the cares of public life is found in "chessers" a beautiful country home near Stourport, Buckinghamshire, in the Severn valley. It is here that the politician becomes a farmer. Pigs are his chief delight, and he raises porkers for the local market.

Mrs. Baldwin is active in women's politics, and is in frequent demand as a speaker at Tory gatherings. She takes great interest in her husband's campaigns.

Willing.

Jim Higgins was having his first experience as a "hired man" on the farm. His employer was more than disposed to be thrifty. On the first morning he breakfasted with the family on cold bacon. He proceeded to cut off the rind and place it on the side of his plate.

The farmer noticed this and looking up remarked: "We eat the rind here."

"That's all right," replied Jim. "I'm jest gettin' mine ready for you."—Successful Farming.

Challenge of Youth As In Past Generations For Ages Continues To Confront the Adult World

COLLEGE STATION.—Youth is no longer governed by the authority of the Church, parents or teachers, Mrs. Noyes Darling Smith, of Austin, president of the Texas Parent-Teachers Association, declared in an address on "The Challenge of Youth" at Thursday night's general program for adults at the nineteenth annual Farmers' Short Course.

"The old standard of right and wrong, morality and immorality, is gone. In its place youth has put up a standard of its own, an expensive one, through experience and calls it expediency.

"Youth is thinking and is demanding facts on which to fasten his reasoning. He wants to know why we call ourselves Christians and yet endure these earthquakes and volcanoes of war, this desert of race-hatred, this swamp of ignorance, this blood of crime. He wants to know why in hundreds of laboratories men are spending their lives to defeat disease and crime and then in hundreds of other laboratories men are working to discover more deadly means with which to kill each other.

"It is he sees beneath the indecencies in the mind of humanity. He sees humanity's desires, aspirations, its struggling nobility, its unrealized ideals.

"This challenge of youth has confronted every adult generation since the beginning of time. A hopeful sign today is that the adult generation of today realizes that it has created or allowed to exist those conditions in the midst of which youth finds itself. If in our adult world there has been sham, hypocrisy, false modesty, double standards, complicity toward legalized vice, can we, the adult generation, expect to find youth wholly committed to good, to honest wisdom and to sincerity? Can't we of the adult generation open our hearts to this youth of today and say with him: 'Oh, the glory of the years to be! I, too, would labor in their fashioning?'

Influences affecting the youth of today were cited by the speaker as including the soul-shock of the World War, the disappearance of home and community life, great industrial systems that furnish jobs and ready money to

MOST OF WORLD STILL UNKNOWN EXPLORER SAYS

Airplane Is Expected To Prove Great Aid In Mapping the Earth's Dark Areas.

NEW YORK.—The work of exploring the surface of the earth and compiling verified and corrected data about the important continents and oceans is going to receive great impetus with the development of air transportation, according to Dr. Hamilton Rice, South American explorer, who has just arrived here from Southampton on the Leviathan of the United States Lines.

With only two-sevenths properly mapped, there remains five-sevenths still to be measured and charted before we even have a true picture of the world we live in, he declared. Dr. Rice has just completed the last report and recheck of the maps he made during his South American explorations, which were begun 25 years ago, when he explored and roughly marked out 500,000 square miles of what was then little known territory in Brazil, Colombia, Venezuela, Ecuador and Peru. The last of this work of the explorations was, so greatly facilitated two years ago by use of a small hydroplane and a sending and receiving radio set. Dr. Rice said, that all doubts were removed as to the practicability of going ahead with similar exploration work and map-making elsewhere.

The next big step in furthering exploration work, he said, will be to establish in a sufficient number of schools of higher learning departments which will teach exploration.

His visit to London, Dr. Rice said, was to confer with heads of the Royal Geographical Society regarding maps of land he explored in South America that were compiled from sketches and photographs made from the hydroplane. While much additional exploring might well be done in the territory in which he worked he added, his 25 years' work has resulted in a general outline of corrected data now being in the hands of both the Royal Geographical Society and the American Geographical Society.

Large Enrollment At Texas Tech and More Money Needed

Special to The Telegram.

LUBBOCK. — Endeavoring to meet the demands of the increasing educational needs in West Texas, members of the Board of Directors of Texas Technological College are asking for more buildings on the campus here for the next two years. The board met with the state board of control recently in considering the budget of Tech for the coming biennium.

Included for the appropriation requests are petitions for completion of the administration building, a new library building and a dairy products building to be erected on the campus during the next two years.

In speaking of the prospects for the coming school year, President Paul W. Horn stated, prior to his departure for Austin, that he expected the enrollment of the school to exceed the 2,000 mark easily during the first term of the 1928-29 session.

NEW HOMES BEING BUILT IN HILLCREST

Popular Addition Gaining in Favor As Dwelling Houses Increase.

This popular addition is growing more popular each day as building permits for elegant homes keep piling up.

Walter N. Hart has let the contract for a seven-room brick to L. I. Willis, local builder and contractor. Dirt was broken Saturday morning, and it was stated by Mr. Willis that the work would be pushed as rapidly as possible and the home turned over to Mr. Hart for occupancy in about 60 days. This home, when completed, will be one of the most delightful and modern homes in Hillcrest. Facing east in block 12 and overlooking the city, it will occupy one of the most conspicuous locations in the entire addition.

Just across the street from the location of the Hart home Austin H. Pritchard broke dirt Friday for another brick. It will be as large as the Hart home and fully as complete. Mr. Pritchard would not reveal the owner when seen Saturday morning.

C. Hiller Simmons has the contract for the erection of a large five-room frame residence in block 6, just north and across the highway from the Frank Day residence. J. O. Wheat, with the Eastland-Nash company, will be the owner of this splendid residence, and will move into it as soon as it is completed. Work on this residence will be started Monday morning, Mr. Simmons stated.

A number of other prominent Eastland people have purchased lots in Hillcrest, and their plans and specifications are now being prepared and shaped up. Other announcements will be made soon of additional building activity in this growing residence section.

Electric Power Is Making Gigantic Steps In Nation

DALLAS, Aug. 2.—Rapid development of cities and industries in many sections of Texas undoubtedly figures in the general expansion program of public utilities throughout the country this year which is revealed in statistics received from New York.

Expansion of the power plant near Ranger is one of the big developments of the state. Nine hundred million dollars in new capital will be required this year by the electric utility companies of the United States for expansion to meet increasing service demands.

"It is generally conceded that its power supply is the greatest single factor in the steady industrial growth and prosperity of the United States," says a report.

"In order to keep abreast of the constantly increasing demands of the country at large for electricity some long-distance figuring has to be done and calculations made by engineering and financial staffs, and in line with this necessity there has been appropriated by the industry approximately $900,000,000 to be spent during 1928 in plant expansion.

"When it is realized that the estimated total capacity of all power producing machines in the United States is 750 million horsepower, and that further expansion of electric generating facilities is needed, the value of the electric utilities to the commercial and domestic life of the nation is made clear.

384 Percent Increase

"The generating capacity of public utility plants in the country is now more than 27 million kilowatts, as contrasted with five and a half million in 1914, an increase in fourteen years of 384 per cent. Production of electricity in the same period has jumped 456 per cent; number of customers has increased 371 per cent; while gross revenue has advanced 429 per cent.

Such increases in facilities for providing home comforts and creating more efficient operation in industry have entailed huge expense. Including the 900 million dollar budgeted for 1928, there will have been spent by the electric utilities over an eight year period an amount exceeding five billion dollars, of which the greater proportion will have been used in extending transmission and distributing systems.

"The tremendous sum thus invested is apportioned about as follows: For transmission and distribution systems, two billions, eight hundred million dollars, or 56 per cent of the whole; for generating plants, two billion, two hundred million dollars, or 44 per cent of the whole."

DEAD AT 136
By United Press.

PODOLSK, U. S. S. R.—Peter Rudak, possibly the oldest person in Europe, has just died here in the village of Pitschania, at the age of 136, if local tradition is to be believed.

Rudak claimed to have fought for the Russians against Napoleon I, and was pointed out as the only person who had bridged the interval "from Napoleon to the October revolution." His claims were supported by documentary proof of military service 129 years ago and by the memories of centenarians in the neighborhood.

WOULD BANISH GOING TO FIRE IN COLUMBUS

Traffic Code Proposed By Keeping All Several Blocks From Blazes

By RALPH H. MAITLAND,
United Press Staff Correspondent,
COLUMBUS, Ohio, Aug. 4.—If the plans of Mayor James J. Thomas materialize, the great American sport of following fire engines will become a lost pleasure and participants in that diversion will be considered law violators.

Probably no other sound, coming when everyone is comfortably settled at home in the evening, is so electrifying as the shrill scream of the fire siren. Husbands in the car and flabby folks, who would not be stirred from their chairs of entertainment, leap from their chairs and announce they're "going out for a while."

Thomas submitted a model traffic code in which this phase was included. His remarks applied chiefly to autoists who follow the fire engines, and touched but lightly on the multitudes of fire enthusiasts who rather on foot to view conflagrations.

Must Keep Far Away.

Automobiles would be compelled to keep a distance of 500 feet between them and the fire engines when going to a fire.

At the scene of the disaster, no one on foot or in machines, would be allowed within several blocks of the blaze. Persons violating these regulations would be liable to jail sentences.

Thomas' municipal traffic code, as a whole, is indeed model.

At the time of a fire, all vehicles would draw to the curb at the first blast of the approaching siren, and remain there until the engine had passed.

Hizzoner's plan extend much farther than fire regulations, however.

Another suggested law would compel commercial garages and service stations to report to police, automobiles in their establishments containing evidences of bullet holes or of having been in a wreck.

Jail Sentences for Violators.

A heavy penalty would be meted out to persons defacing official traffic signs and lights.

Multi-colored lights on automobiles would be abolished. Several colors of lights on a moving vehicle constitute a menace to drivers or pedestrians in that they may be confused with traffic signals, the mayor said.

Only white and amber lights would be permitted as headlights, dashlights, taillights and on running boards. Red only would be permissible for the stop signal in the rear of machines. Spot-lights, when permitted, would be properly controlled to prevent serious effects on approaching drivers.

All regulations would be enforced faithfully, with jail sentences for violators, according to the mayor's plan.

Not Ripe.

Two little children were playing in the yard when one suddenly called out:

"Look here's a green snake."

"Leave it alone," the other admonished. "It's probably no better than the ripe ones."

Former Senator Republican, is for Governor Al Smith

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—Henry Clay Hansbrough, who represented North Dakota in the senate as a republican for 20 years, believes that Governor Smith will sweep the east, carry the border states and pick up a sufficient number of electoral votes in the agricultural west to assure his election to the presidency.

Mr. Hansbrough, one of the organizers of the Smith Independent league, successor of a like organization formed in the interest of President Wilson in 1916, expects the Smith-Robinson ticket to run well in the corn belt, particularly Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, despite predictions to the contrary made by republican leaders.

He looks for the agricultural west to turn to the democratic candidate as a protest against the veto of the McNary-Haugen formula of farm relief by President Coolidge.

Mr. Hansbrough, formerly an old-line republican, stamped North Dakota for President Wilson in 1916. Although he is 81 years old, he expects to perform like service for Governor Smith in the state in the current campaign.

"The farm problem is a serious one and cannot be cried down by Mr. Hoover and those associated with him in this fight," said Mr. Hansbrough. "Thirty years ago the farmer was selling wheat for about $1.60 a bushel and buying binders for a little more than $100. Today the price of wheat is down around $1.26 and binders cost more than $300. Prices for the commodities that the farmer sells are low, whereas everything that he buys increases in price year by year.

"This is not a theory, but a condition that pinches the farmer and emboldens him to seek relief through the medium of legislation, just as protected manufacturers demand higher tariff rate when they find themselves in economic straits.

"I am aware that farmers of the corn belt are republican at heart, that they have habitually voted the ticket for years, and that it will be difficult to wean them away from old-time political associations. Nevertheless the farmers are ripe for a revolt for good and sufficient reasons and I believe that this will be demonstrated when the votes are counted in November.

"Due in part to the work of the Wilson Independent league, Woodrow Wilson carried North Dakota against Charles E. Hughes in 1916. The prospects for Smith in the state today are more promising than they were for Wilson at this stage of the campaign 12 years ago. Our independent league will set up central headquarters, probably in Chicago, and do missionary work for the Smith-Robinson ticket in all of the corn belt states. We will concentrate on Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana just as we did in 1916. We carried North Dakota and Montana for Wilson, and lost Minnesota by the narrow margin of 179,544 to 179,152. Hughes carried South Dakota by 64,217, as against 59,191 for Wilson.

Mr. Hansbrough served three full terms of six years each and one unexpired term of two years in the senate. He retired in 1909. For the last two years as a senator he was a contemporary of Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma, who announced this week that he had quit the democratic party and would throw his support to the republican nominee.

Roads of Red, Blue Brown and Yellow Be the Next Step

LOS ANGELES.—Burnt Amber road, Color Harmony avenue, Cerulean boulevard, Envy Green boulevard, with innumerable named traffic arteries which already lend an atmosphere of charm and distinction to the cities of the Orient may find an echo in Los Angeles soon.

This is seen in the increasing popularity of color in construction and the result of recent experiments being conducted by local engineers and contractors in using color in highway surfaces. Colored pavements of green, amber, blue and what not are being considered to relieve eye strain, soothe traffic worn nerves and add to the picturesque and attractiveness of the community.

According to G. H. Beers, president of Hollywood, it won't be long now until one will be able to see sidewalks similarly decorated and toned.

Sea green sidewalks and streets on Broadway, delicate shades of mauve or mist blue on Hill street or a golden heena for Wilshire boulevard, with innumerable combinations of all primary colors may result from the tests now being made, he declared.

Anyhow, color will be the next step, even in the streets.

Whoofus Whiffletree's Woozy Wonderings

After winning 16 out of 17 fights by knockouts, Les Marriner received his first set-back a few nights ago when he lost a 10-round decision to Chuck Wiggins, veteran.

Johnny Risko, the baker boy from Cleveland, who nearly everyone persists in regarding in a light manner, has filed a claim to the heavyweight crown and points to victories over Jack Delaney, Uzcudun, Sharkey and Godfrey.

Damon Runyon, who is regarded by many as the best sports writer in the country, advances the novel idea that Tommy Loughran, world's light heavyweight champion, can defeat any of the heavies.

The Athletics' winning streak was halted at 10. But the Yankees are not out of danger by any means for they couldn't win either.

Marathon Golf Record Sought

FORT WORTH, Aug. 4.—"Skeet" Fincher, young professional of the Worth Hills municipal golf course, will attempt to set a new world's record for the greatest number of holes played from dawn to dusk, on Wednesday Aug. 8.

The present record of 99 holes is held by Rex Pettit of Sioux City, Iowa and Fort Worth. Pettit also the municipal champion of Sioux City.

Hott, who is 200 pounds of good pitching material. Last year he was one of the most effective men on Wilbert Robinson's high-powered staff, but this season he is having his troubles.

In fact, most of the fat boys are having their troubles this year. The passing of Buckeye to Toledo already has been chronicled. Hogan is doing only a fair job for the Giants and since McGraw acquired Bob O'Farrell, Shany Hogan hasn't had much chance to work.

Heilmann's customary place is among the first five hitters in the American League, but this year he is trailing along down in the ruck. He probably will improve, for he has always been a late starter, needing the heat of August to thaw out his elephantine frame.

Ruth, of course, is Ruth.

Finest Shots In America Fire For The Magic Letter

CAMP PERRY, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Hundreds of valuable trophies in bronze and precious metals have arrived at the rifle range here, as rewards for the winners of events in the great national rifle matches which will open Aug. 26.

The "magic letter" is to be awarded to the winner of the president's match, an individual event open to the best riflemen of the army, navy, marine corps and other branches of the government service and to members of civilian rifle clubs.

Year after year this match draws an increasing number of shooters. Last year, 1,371 riflemen stepped up to the firing line to shoot for the prize, a record number of competitors. This year it is predicted that a still greater number will compete.

Besides the president's letter, the lucky winner gets a gold medal, a Springfield rifle, and a cash prize. To win them he must make almost perfect scores at ranges from 200 to 1,000 yards.

Both the Wimbledon cup and Leech cup have become traditional trophies, for they have been objects of competition for more than 50 years. Winners of these trophies also receive gold medals and cash prizes.

Regardless of the attractiveness of these matches, range officials predict that they will not attract as many entrants as the president's match with its simple letter of commendation.

Hooks and Slides

The "600" May Talk.

It will be interesting to watch the effect of the big flop on Rickard's 600 millionaires. They squawked when the profits of their Chicago enterprise were only a half million dollars and when they have to pay out this year they certainly will squawk some more.

The greatest shock to Rickard will be against his vanity. He doesn't care as much for the dough. His blow will be the mark in the record book that he promoted a loser. But it should be entered along with it that the show failed through no lack of ability on Rickard's part.

The big money in the corporation will tell him that he made a terrible blunder in signing Tunney for $525,000, but most any daring soul would have gone that high in the flush of victory after the Chicago show and at that time

"Good Luck, Gene"; "Same to You"

"If I had fought again it would have been for Tex Rickard... foremost boxing promoter of all time." So said Champion Gene Tunney when he announced his permanent retirement from the ring, and here he is shaking hands with Rickard after the farewell luncheon in New York.

Some of the smart boys thought that he had made a smooth bargain with the champion.

One of Rickard's best friends said after the fight—"I'm glad that they got a flop right in their laps. They haven't been paying Tex enough for a big job. They would have to pay $50,000 to get a man to run a job like that in any other line and they squawked when he made them a million dollars a year. They should have had that he had made a smooth bargain with the champion.

Rickard says he isn't through with the business. There were stories before the fight that he was going to retire and spend the rest of his days spending his money, but he says that he has no such intentions. Perhaps the millionaires will try to persuade him to retire and some of the boys in the racket would like to be around for the

Did You Ever Stop To Think?

I returned from the east through Chattanooga, Tenn. I remembered the town of 25 years ago. What natural advantages it had possessed—scenic beauty, historical interest, a wealth of raw materials easily accessible, and major railway lines radiating in every direction.

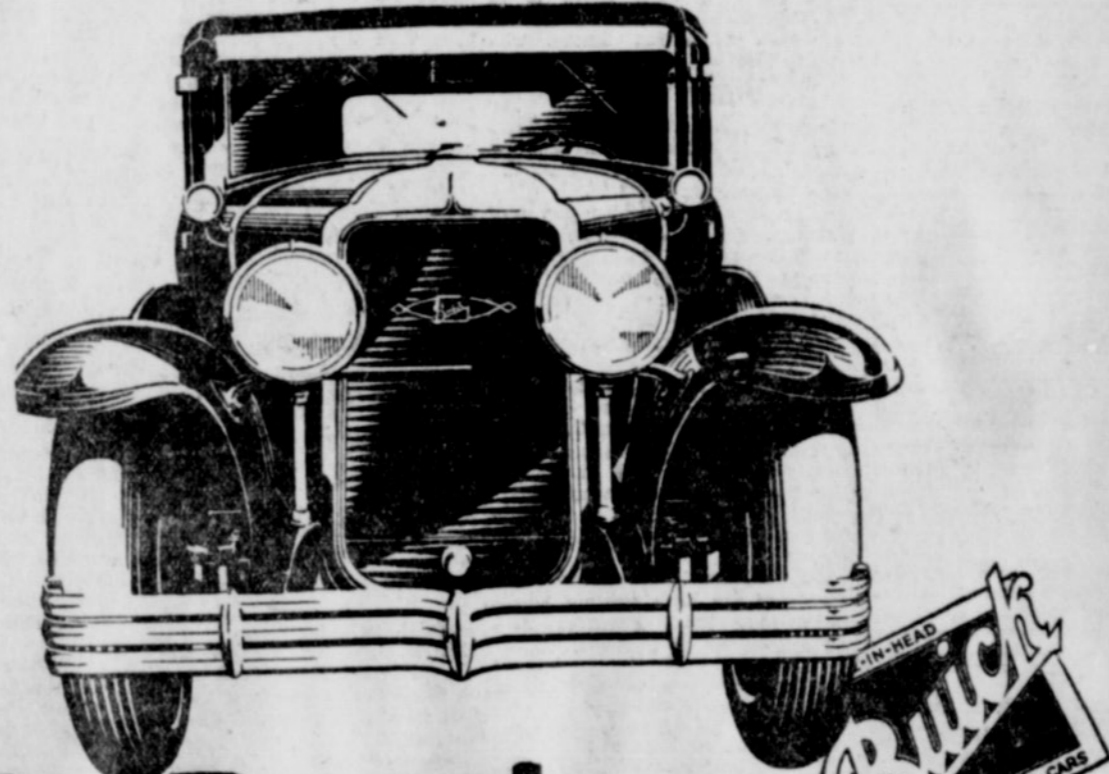

From the vantage point of Lookout mountain, famous for its Battle Above the Clouds, he showed me the convergence of four states, and the blood-soaked fields of Chickamauga. That vast panorama, the great piled up blue, purple and green of the Blue Ridge mountains, stretching on through North Carolina; the shoe-like Mac casin Bend of the Tennessee, with the contrast of its paddle-wheel ships and its electric power dams; Raceoon and Signal mountains, Walden's and Missionary ridges,

My mind filled with its factory stacks, its business section, and its inevitable future, I motored, on my last afternoon, up the concrete ribbon which winds along the brow of Signal Mountain overlooking the river and the Grand Canyon of Tennessee. I saw the hotel which, with the recently completed $2,000,000 hostelry on Lookout Mountain, gives Chattanooga unsurpassed tourist facilities. I saw the homes which many Chattanoogaans build on the mountains, 30 minutes from the heart of the city.

Then I saw the beauty of the Blue Ridge, stretching out from the west brow. There are more magnificent and more breath taking sights, but none more enamoring in sheer exquisiteness. Then as dusk came on, I had the view which I like to remember Chattanooga by. Hundreds of thousands of lights below, dotting the whole city and casting a halo against the mountain sides which wall it in. It seemed the sky had turned upside down.
